The foundation of the new city hall having been laid in September, 1699 (see Sept. 20), the common council appoints a committee to make an estimate, with the help of carpenters and bricklayers, "of What Stone Bricks Lime Timber and Other Materials will be Necessary to be provided & Employed for y<sup>e</sup> building of the New City Hall the Next summer and also what will be the Charge thereof."—M. C. C., II: 92. On Nov. 1, this committee reported their estimate as £1,151:18:3, and it was ordered that they "doe Agree with Persons for the finishing the same Materials" on or before March 25, 1700, on the easiest terms possible.—Ibid., II: 94. The amount was included in the tax budget for that year.—Ibid., II: 95-96. On Jan. 16, 1700 (q. v.), a committee was appointed "for the Managing & Supervising the building of the New City Hall." They were "Impowered to treat with Any person or persons who will undertake Either by the Great or by the day the building and finishing of the said Structure att such Reasonable and Easy Terms as may be most beneficial and Profitable for the said City;" and it was ordered "that A true and distinct Account of the materials and severall Payments be kept by the said Committee."

Oct.
16

- 1699 Ibid., II: 97. See "Ledger No. 1, Chamberlain's Office, Corporation of the City of New York, May 11, 1691, to November 12, 1699," Oct. 16
16 in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1909).
- Money was raised by the sale and renting of land, as well as by taxation, to pay the debts due to building the hall.—M. C. C., II: 122, 125 (Nov. 7 and 30, 1700); II: 126 (Dec. 3, 1700). From time to time it was ordered that the mayor's warrants be issued to the treasurer to pay various persons for materials and services.—Ibid., II: 150, 155; and "Ledger No. 1" (op. cit.), 101, 102, 103, 106, 110. One of these items, paid Oct. 13, 1701, was "for bear [hear] delivered at the building the New City Hall."—M. C. C., II: 155.
- On Feb. 4, 1701 the court of general sessions convened there.
- On Dec. 29, 1701, it was ordered "that the Mayor do take care to have the Court room in the City Hall made convenient for the Court to sit in this winter and that he issue his warrant to the treasurer for the payment of the charge thereof."—Ibid., II: 185. It was nearly two years, however, before this could be accomplished.
- On Oct. 26, 1702, the court resolved to petition the general assembly "That A Law be made for the finishing the City Hall to be fit for the Gen Assembly to sit in."—Ibid., II: 206. It does not appear in the Assembly Journal or the Minutes of the Common Council that such law was made; but, on Feb. 26, 1703, it was recorded in the Minutes: "Whereas the City Hall of this City is not yett Completely finished whereby the Common Council thereof were Obligated to Assemble together to doe the publick business of this Corporation all this winter past at the house of William Davis for the Conveniency of A Warme fire Room and fire which the said William Davis furnished and Provided by Order of this Court as well as for the Conveniency of the Common Council as of several Committeees by this Court Appointed for the better Expediting the publick Affairs of this City,"—it was ordered that the mayor issue his warrant to the treasurer to pay Davis the sum of two pounds.—Ibid., II: 229. Also, on March 9, 1703, the common council ordered that "A Committee of this Court" be appointed "for the Employing able workmen for the laying of the floors in the two Chambers in the City Hall for the making the Stair Case & Petition Walls Making Doors to the Court Room Wooden Shutters to all the Windows Making tite the Cupulos Glazing the Oval Windows and laying the floor Over the Court Room."—Ibid., II: 230.
- The common council occupied the new hall Oct. 14, 1703.—Ibid., II: 240. As further evidence of the time taken to build the hall, a committee of the assembly reported on May 12, 1704, on the subject of "fitting up the Room where the General Assembly sits, . . . That they had examined and considered the Workmen's Bills for the same Room; and what Work is to be done in the Lobby, and the Furniture of the Assembly chamber and Lobby," and agreed upon the payment of £14,010:10 for these items.—Assemb. Jour., I: 180-81. Other dates of payment were: June 25, 1703, for "Stone and Stairs" (M. C. C., II: 236); Oct. 19, 1703, for "Materials and paying workmen" (ibid., II: 242); March 17, 1704, the same, "Pursuant to an Order made the Ninth day of March, 1702" (ibid., II: 257).
- On April 11, 1704, the common council ordered "that Mr Johannes Provost doe deliver unto the Treasurer of this City all Bookes Acc<sup>t</sup>s papers and writings belonging to or Relating to the building of the City Hall and that his Receipt be a sufficient discharge unto him for the same."—Ibid., II: 261 (and see 229-30). This date fixes approximately the date of finishing the building. That it was occupied then, or soon thereafter, appears from the Assembly Journal entry of May 12, 1704, above cited; or possibly as early as Oct., 1703.—See M. C. C., II: 240.
- There were later payments for materials and labour used in constructing the building.—Ibid., II: 296, 312-13, 314, 320, 325, 339, 348. On Dec. 31, 1709, the common council ordered that "the Acc<sup>t</sup> of the City Hall" for £1,647:10:1 "be Ballanced by the Acc<sup>t</sup> of the City of New York."—Ibid., II: 393. Many repairs and alterations in the building were recorded in the Minutes in later years. A new cupola was added in 1738 (q. v.)—M. C. C., IV: 433. For plan of the building as it was in 1745, see Pl. 32-b.
- In 1761, the hall was described as a brick building, oblong, and two stories high, with two wings, at right angles with the centre; the "floor below" was "an open way, except two Goals, and the Gosler's apartments;" the cellar underneath was a dungeon, and the garret a common prison; the building was erected in a place where "four" (should be three) streets met, and fronted to the "southwest" one of the most spacious streets in the town (Broad St.); the eastern wing contained, in the second storey, the assembly room, a lobby, and the speaker's chamber; the west wing, on the same floor, formed the council room and a library. In the middle space the supreme court was usually held.—London Mag., August, 1761. In 1763, a storey was added.—M. C. C., VI: 331.
- During the Revolution it was occupied by British soldiers.—Pattison Letters in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1875), 305. In 1788, it was rebuilt for the use of the Congress of the United States.—M. C. C. (MS.), IX: 125, 288, 321, 363, 379; XIII: 150. For description after these alterations, see March 26, 1789. On May 15, 1812, the materials of the hall were sold for $425 (Com. Mag., May 15, 1812), and it was forthwith demolished, some of its stones being used for a footwalk on the south side of Marketfield St. along the Battery.—M. C. C. (MS.), XXV: 120-21, 180. A portion of the balcony ironwork is now (1916) in use on the porch of the courtyard entrance of the main building of the old Bellevue Hospital group (see Kelly, Hist. Guide, 1913 ed., p. 113), and another portion is in the collections of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 973-74.
- The common council appoints a committee to "View the Block-house by the Governours Garden & Whether it may be Conveniently fitted for A Prison."—M. C. C., II: 92. On May 17, 1700, payment of 20 shillings was made to Isaac de Milt "for Worke done at the Block house."—Ibid., II: 107. See Peterson & Edwards, op. cit., 192.
- Bellomont, having previously sent to the lords of trade "the written Laws of New York passed the last Session of Assembly," now sends them printed, "because Mr Parmiter (the naval officer at New York) has made some little marks on the Margin of the Revenue Act, which stands first in the Booke of Laws." Parmyter complains of the insufficiency of an act, "which gave the Merchants advantages against the King."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 590.
- Bellomont gives evidence to the lords of trade showing, as he states, "that it were good husbandry to allow £800 a year to a good Judge from England, and £300 a year to a good Attorney General, if peace and good order in a Country are to be valued, and if piracy and unlawful trade are to be effectually suppressed; And lastly if an Improvement of the Revenue to £4,000 a year more than it has ever yielded yet, be arguments worth the King's consideration."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 594.
- Bellomont prevails on Gov. Winthrop "to seize and send Thomas Clarke of New Yorke prisoner thither;" and he orders that Clarke be "safely kept prisoner in the Fort, because the Gaol of New York is weak and insufficient." Clarke is then offered immunity from prosecution on his pledging to surrender all the goods and treasure (valued at about £5,000) which he took to Connecticut.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 595.
- A pond is established at Harlem. On Nov. 2, 1702, it was let for one year to John van Oblien, who was to pay one-third of the receipts for the benefit of the poor.—Harlem Recs., 687.
- The common council votes in favour of raising £1,600 in 1702, by taxation or assessment, £1,165 to be used to build the city hall, and £435 to build the ferry-house.—M. C. C., II: 96.
- It is learned in England that Capt. Kidd's effects were valued at £200,000.—"Diary of Narcissus Luttrell," in Hist. Mag. (1868), 2d ser., III: 293. See, further, April 16, 1700.
- Thomas Story, the Quaker (see July 5), records in his Jour.: "I went to New York, and lodged with Dr. John Rodman, and the Day following I was at the Meeting there, which was indifferent large, though the Testimony of Truth hath seldom any great prevalence in that Place; Yet, at the Conclusion of the Meeting, I appointed another, to be held there the next Day in the Evening, at the House of Thomas Roberts; where I had been disappointed of my proper Time when last there [see July 5] and my concern remaining in secret till now. This Meeting being large, I had a full ad open Time therein, and then was fully clear and easy; And, intending to go from thence toward East Jersey the next Day, we were block'd up, and detained by an exceeding hard Frost; but took occasion to appoint another Meeting at John Rodman's, on the 7th; which was also large and open." He left the city on Dec. 9.—Jour. of the Life of Thomas Story, 243.
- The lords of trade make representations to the king regarding the need of a chief-justice and attorney-general for the provinces, suitably paid so that men of the right ability will accept the service.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 598-99.

1700

1700

— "New York is built most of Brick and Stone, and covered with red and Black Tile, and the Land being high, it gives at a distance a pleasing Aspect to the Spectators. The Inhabitants consist most of English and Dutch and have a considerable Trade with the Indians, for Bevers, Otter, Raccoon Skins, and other furs; as also for Bear, Deer and Elk Skins; and are supplied with Venison and Fowl in the Winter and Fish in the summer by the Indians, which they buy at an easie rate; and having the Country round about them, they are continually furnished with all such provisions, as are needful for the life of Man, not only by the English and Dutch within their own but likewise by the Adjacent Colonies.

— "The Commodities vented from thence are Furs and Skins before mentioned; as likewise Tobacco made within the Colony, as good as is usually made in Maryland: Also Horses, Beef, Pork, Oyl, Pease, Wheat, and the like."—Hist. Mag., 1st ser., V, 244-45, citing Morden, Geography Rectified (London, 1700).

— A survey of New York harbour is made by Col. W. W. Römer, with the title "A new Mappe of a part of Hutsons or the North River, Raritan River which have there aiet let [outlet] in to the Sea by Sandy hooke where the coming in is from Sea to go up to New York North thro the Narrows betwin Staaten Island and Long Island and West up towards Amboeye." It is preserved in the British Museum, and is reproduced in The Crown Collection of Photographs of American Maps, selected and edited by A. B. Hulbert (1904), I, Pl. 1. Romer Shoals were named from this survey.—See Oct. 12, 1698.

— In this year, ten Congregational ministers assembled at Bradford, Conn., and donated books "for the founding of a College" in that colony. The Connecticut legislature, on Oct. 9, 1701, passed "An Act for liberty to erect a Collegiate School;" the school was established at Saybrook soon after. In 1716, the trustees decided to move the school to New Haven, and, at the first commencement there, on Sept. 12, 1718, the name was changed to "Yale College."—Baldwin, Annals of Yale College, 1701-1831, 10-35.

— See Addenda, 1700, for diagram showing development of the East River front from Whitehall to Smith's Fly, between 1748-9 (q. v.), when Stuyvesant built the first pier on Schreyer's Hook, and c. 1750, when the Bradford Map (Pl. 27, Vol. I) was drawn; after which date the developments can be readily traced on the well-known plans and views of the period (e. g., Pls. 32-a, 34, 35, 40, 41, 42, 50, 64, 70, 79, etc.). For purposes of more ready reference, the dates in the Chronology under which the successive steps in the development of the East River water front, within these limits, are mentioned, have been gathered together, and are as follows:

1648-9; 1653-8; 1654; 1654, June 13; 1654-60; 1656; 1659; 1661; 1661, Sept.; 1663, March 9; 1671, July 16, Sept. 19, Dec. 20; 1672; 1674, March 17; 1675; March 25; 1676, May 9, July 26, Sept. 12; 1677; 1677, Feb. 28; 1678, Jan. 8, Oct. 8; 1679 (prior to); 1679, Feb. 21; 1681, July 10; 1686, July 24, Sept. 15, Dec. 3; 1687, May 1, July 25, Oct. 13; 1688; 1688, Feb. 26, May 4, June 14, Nov. 15; 1689, May 3; 1690, June 4; 1691 (prior to); 1691; 1691, April 18, 25, 29, May 4, July 9, Oct. 7, 15, 20, Nov. 26, Dec. 5; 1691-2; 1692, Feb. 4, 18 (Addenda), Aug. 9; 1693, Sept. 12, 13, Oct. 10; 1694, Jan. 22, July 10; 1695, June, Oct. 12; 1696; 1696, May 11, June 16, 19, Aug. 19, Dec. 10; 1697, June 9, and 13; 1699, Aug. 17, Sept. 6; 1700, Feb. 19, April 13; 1701, July 8; 1702, May 20; 1703, June 25, Nov. 19; 1705, March 23, June 12; 1706, June 14, 20; 1707, Sept. 10; 1708, Mar. 20; 1709, June 22, Aug. 20, Sept. 6, Oct. 4; 1711, Feb. 3; 1713, Oct. 24 (and Addenda); 1716, Feb. 23; 1717, March 20, May 22, June 18; 1721, July 4; 1724, April 23; 1727, Nov. 18; 1730, April 22.

— In this year, the old "stad' huys" (city hall), erected in 1653 (see Feb. 6, 1653), was partially demolished.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 973, citing Liber City Grants, A: 254, 387. See March 14.

— About 1700, or later, Etienne de Lancy erected a dwelling-house on the site of the present 115 Broadway.—Gf. date of his marriage, Jan. 23, 1700, to Anne van Cortlandt (E. F. De Lancy, in Scharf's Hist. of Westchester Co., I: 864); Liber Deeds, XXIII: 125 (New York); M. C. C., II: 163; ibid., III: 44. It came, by devise, the property of John Peter de Lancy, in 1741.—Liber Wills, XIV: 91 (New York). In 1754, it became a tavern, called the Province Arms, or City Tavern. See April 11, 17; April 15, 00 and June 10, 1754; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977.

The city of New York has a regiment of 684 men. For a list of its officers, see Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to. ed.), I: 232-53.

— "Printed in the Year 1700" is found in the imprint of a small 4to volume of 52 p., bearing the long title Gospel Order Revised, Being an Answer to a Book lately set forth by the Reverend Mr. Increase Mather, President of Harvard College, &c. entitled, The Order of the Gospel, &c. Dedicated to the Churches of Christ in New-England. By sundry Ministers of the Gospel in New-England. A copy is preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library; it is not mentioned by Evans in his Am. Bibliography. As in the case of an earlier book of religious controversy (New England's Spirit of Persecution Transmitted to Pennsylvania), with similar imprint, a careful comparison of the typed pages with other press-work of the time shows that Bradford was the printer. Such a view is made conclusive by the declaration of Bartholomew Green, the Boston printer of that day (who had declined to publish it himself, because it was a work of controversy, and he had no license from the governor of Mass. Bay to do so), that it was "printed at New York."—See Green's handbill, reproduced by Thomas in Hist. of Printing (1810), II: 458. Thomas found special interest in this item because, as he stated (p. 91), it was, with the exception of the laws, "the only book printed in New York as early as 1700, which I have seen, that contains more than twenty pages." We know now that he was mistaken. Cf. Truth Advanced, published by Bradford in 1694 (q. v.). For the earliest product of Bradford's press, see April 10, 1693.

— Cane-seated chairs were first used in New York about this year.—See "Hist. of the Domestic Affairs of the Inhabitants of N. Y.," in Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 500. For an authoritative account of early colonial furniture, see Lockwood, Colonial Furniture in Am., 139-40.

— The names of many of the common articles of dry-goods of this period have a strange sound to-day, as, for example: blue and red penninote, hafe-tylke, sarge, frysa, arsay, druggett, meppling, camerche, canting, calko, garelet, Hollands, Ogenbergs, foustter, neppens clait, damask estemyns, galoen, gallemink, brustonstuck, russel, and bangale.—Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 500-8.

— An inventory of the domestic establishment of Peter Jacobs Marius (whom Valentine describes as "the last of the Knickerbockers," the surviving representative of the Dutch merchants of New Amsterdam), which was on the south side of Pearl St., between the present Whitehall and State Sts. (see Castello Plan, II: 280), included the following articles: One silver tankard, three silver salt-cellars, two silver beakers, silver mustard-pot and spoons, 27 silver sweetmeat spoons, four silver turlers, nine silver cups with two ears, one old-fashioned salver, one silver mug and cover, a baby's silver chafing-dish and cradle, a silver fork and cup, a parcel of buttons and other broken silver; three gold chains, six gold rings, three gold buckles, four pairs of gold buttons, a gold bodkin and gold ear-wire, two pairs gold pendants, two gold and diamond rings, one amber necklace, two silver-handled knives, one pair of silver-handled scissors, a small Dutch Bible, tipped with silver, and a chain, etc. The inventory included also a full variety of furniture.—Ibid., 516. See also Abstracts of Wills (1892), 314, 324, 355.

— Valentine also describes, under this date, the style of life of William Smith, giving an inventory of his household goods (presumably in New York), and the stock on his Long Island farm. These included "a coach with cushions and harness."—Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 516-17.

— Bellomont informs the lords of trade that the collector reports that "this has been the worst year that ever was known in New York for the Revenue by reason of the great scarcity of Sugar, Rum and Molasses at Barbadoes, and the other Islands and of Wines at the Madera's; for from those Articles the Customes of New York do chiefly arise."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 600. See Sept. 25, 1701.

— The common council orders "that the Mayor Alderman D: Peyster Alderman Dr: Kierner Mr: Peter Willems and Mr: Brasier be A Committee of this board for the Managing & Supervising the Building of the New City Hall for the publick Service of this City [see summary under Oct. 16, 1699] who are hereby Impowred to treat with Any person or persons who will undertake Either by the Great or by the day the building and finishing of the said Structure att such Reasonable and Easy Terms as may be most beneficial and Profitable for the Said City, and to the End that all things and Materials Needfull for the said building may be duly Satisfied and paid to such as are Employed therean itt is 1700

Jan.

5

16

1700 Ordered that the Mayor do Issue his Warrants from time to time Jan. 16 as there shall be Occasion on the Treasurer of the said City for the payment of the Respective sums which Shall become due for y<sup>e</sup> Service Aforesaid. And that A true and Distinct Account of the Materials and severall Payments be kept by the said Committee."
—M. C. C., II: 97.

" The City treasurer is ordered to pay Alderman Schuyler six shillings "for Mending the Wall of the little bridge" (see Oct. 12, 1695).—M. C. C., II: 97. The "little bridge" was apparently the name given to the plank covering over the outlet of the ditch or sewer (see ibid., II: 379) at the foot of Broad St. (see ibid., II: 359).
On April 2, 1700 (q. v.), it is mentioned as being "by the house of Capt Cornelius D' Peyster,"—that is, near the corner of Water and Broad Sts. (see Feb. 19, 1700). The common council, on March 23, 1705 (q. v.), ordered that stairs be built "in the Dock on each Side of the little bridge." Gradually the dock was filled in on both sides of the little bridge to a point considerably beyond the outlet of the sewer, leaving a stagnato slip (see May 4 and June 14, 1688), which became a public nuisance. On Aug. 20, 1709 (q. v.), the common council ordered that this space be filled in and the sewer extended to the "entering of the dock" (that is, even with the wall or wharf), and it was ordered that the bridge itself be re-covered with boards "A little higher than the Street."
This spot was referred to as the "little bridge" as late as Nov. 11, 1731 (q. v.). On June 18, 1717 (q. v.), the city council ordered, among other repairs to the dock and wharves, the extension of the sewer through the dock into the open river, and the erection over it (as a protection) of "A Good and substantial Bridge from the Markett house fronting the Dock to the Dock's mouth."
This bridge, usually referred to as the "Long Bridge," is shown in the Burgis View (Pl. 25, Vol. I). On Sept. 22, 1773 (q. v.), the common council ordered that 20 feet of the long bridge south of the exchange be arched, and the remainder boarded and "A Number of Posts . . . fixed at such places near the said Bridge . . .
sufficient to prevent Carts from passing over & injuring the same."
—Ibid., VII: 445. See 1700.

" The common council appoints a committee "to View the place
On which Jasper Nessepott intends to build A Mill at Kings Bride and make Reporte to this Board whether the Erecting the said Mill will hinder the passage of Boats & Sloops Round this Island."—M. C. C., II: 97. See Nov. 24, 1692. For the committee's report, see Feb. 19. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 961.

17 Lemoine d'Herbville takes possession of the Mississippi River for France, planting his colony at Poverty Point. He had entered the river on March 2, 1699. His colony did not thrive. French missionaries, in this year, occupied various points on the river. In 1701, Bienville was in command of the French settlements in Louisiana. See July 9.

21 In the general accounts of the province is a payment of £6:10
"for making coats for the Bargemen," and one of £3:10 "for making the Aurning for the Barge." On Oct. 15, there was another of £19, "for sundries in the fort and Custom house Barge," also payments "for sailors" and for "painting" of this barge.—
Entered in Conveyances, Liber XXX (register's office, New York).
The expenses of Oct. 15 are detailed in the Council Minutes, which refer to warrants issued to pay Francis Vincent for sails, Cornelius Lodge for paint, John Latham for carpenter work, Jean le Chevalier for carving work, John Cooley for blacksmith work, and John Owen for joiner's work,—all on the custom-house barge; while Robert Crannell is paid for rum for the "pin-nace" workmen.—Gal. Coun. Min., 150-51. There was another payment on April 21, 1701, "for cloathing for the barge crew."— Conveyances, op. cit. See also Nov. 10, 1702.

24 "Att a Meeting of the Justices & Vestry men of the said City on Wednesday y<sup>e</sup> 24th Jan. 1699," a committee is appointed "to Enquire for a Convenient house to serve this City for a house of Correction; and also for a Person or Persons suitable to be keepers thereof; and upon what terms they can agree for the same, and make Reporte there of to the Mayor . . . In Order that Severall Idle Vagabonds in this City may no longer be a Charge to the same, but obliged to worke as the Law directs." On Feb. 15, this board "unanimously agreed with Coll. Abraham D: Peyster for his house in the broad Street within this City at the corner of Princes Street," at a rental of £25 to May 1, 1701, "which house is to be Employed for the use of the poor of this City, and a house of Correction for the punishing of Vagaboods and Idle persons that are a nuisance and common grievance of y<sup>e</sup> Inhabitants of the same: that the said Coll. Abraham De Peyster shall put the said house in good & sufficient Repair; and at the Expiration of the said Terme the said house shall be redelivered unto him in like good repair." The board agreed with Matthias Boeckhout "to be keeper of the said poor house and house of Correction" at £30 per annum, the city to "find" him and his wife "with Meat and Drink, & other necessaries (apparel excepted)."—From a manuscript copy of Minutes of the justices and vestrymen, in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (in Box No. 1, N. Y. City Misc. MSS., 1639-1700).

The king directs Bellomont to send certain pirates from New York to England, with witnesses and evidence against them, that they may be tried and punished.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 603-4.
These include Kidd, who was seized in Boston on July 6, 1699 (ibid., IV: 584), and Clarke, his associate, who was taken to New York from Connecticut (ibid., IV: 595). There were 40 pirates confined in Boston, Connecticut, New York, and Philadelphia in January (ibid., IV: 601). Bellomont wrote the lords of trade, on Feb. 28, that he was sending the pirates in charge of Lieut. Hunt, who was going to England for the purpose of obtaining recruits (ibid., IV:
p. 611). These recruits, Bellomont planned, were to be given homesteads after a certain number of years' service (ibid., IV: 553).
The pirates arrived in England on April 16 (q. v.). See also Addenda,
July 6, 7, 26, 1699.

Daniel Latham, a Quaker, is examined regarding his connection with Capt. Kidd's crew.—Gal. Coun. Min., 145. See also July 20,
Aug. 16, 1699.

In a petition to the common council, Cornelius de Peyster, Johannes van Cortlandt, and Francis Vincent state "That there is a Certain Place within this City nigh the Little Bridge which contrary to the design in laying out the said slip is become very nauseous & a Coffon receptacle of dung & filth to the annoyance & infection of the inhabitants & whereby the dock of this City is filled with a great deal of mud to the p'judice of this City." They therefore "Pray that the said Place may be filled up by the City & made even with the Street & a Gutter & grates layd under it for the conveying of the Water thro' that comes down the great Street."—From the original petition in "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room. De Peyster's house, which he had built in 1699, "to be y<sup>e</sup> ornamet of y<sup>e</sup> sayde City" (see Pl. 25, Vol. I, and description, I: 246), stood at the foot of Broad St. facing the dock (Water St.), while Van Cortlandt's house stood on the opposite corner of Broad and Water Sts.; that is, it was the next house east, with Broad St. separating them (cf. Dec. 10, 1695). The council appointed a committee, on Feb. 20, to "Examine the Conditions the Dockage is farmed for and take Care that the farmers doe forthwith performe the Conditions they are Obliged to . . ."
—M. C. C., II: 100. Apparently, favourable action was not taken until Aug. 20, 1709 (q. v.).

The common council orders "that the sessions of the Mayor Courte & Common Council be held for the City at the house of Gabriel Tompson in the single [Cingell] Street [Wall St.]. And that the Bell be hung there."—M. C. C., II: 99. At the same house
"the Courte of Common Council" met, on Dec. 27 following, to lease the ferry.—Ibid., II: 129. This was while the new city hall was under construction. Tompson was paid for rental on Oct. 13, 1701.—Ibid., II: 155.

The house of Gabriel Tompson was a tavern at the sign of the White Lion, at the north-west corner of William and Wall Sts.—
Liber Deeds, XXX: 184 (New York). Here Tompson kept his inn until his death in 1720.—See Nov. 19, 1720. The Book of America now occupies the site. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981; Pl. 174, Vol. III. Tompson had evidently been a tavern-keeper since 1683, and perhaps earlier.—See March 15, 1684.

"The Committee Appointed to View the place Whereon Jasper Nessepott Intends to build A Mill on at Kings Bride Reporte in these words following (Viz) Jan 20th 1699 [1700] pursuant to an Order of y<sup>e</sup> Common Council to us directed [see under Jan.
16, 1700] Wee have Viewed the place for Erecting A Mill at Kings bride and Wee are of Opinion that the same be Granted to Jasper Nessepott On Condition that he take out of the way the Stones and Rocks On the Other Side thereof that the same may not hinder the Passage of Boats and Canows and when Any is to pass at their Reasonable Request he is [to] shut this Sluces

Jan.

24

Feb.

10

16

19

"

"

"

1700 & On the Other side of the bridge Erect A post in the water and Feb. Have A Rope ready to Assist them in passing Which Reporte is 19 Approved.

19 "The Petition of John Marsh was read praying the Grant of the Mill to be built at Kings bridge be made to him and Jasper Nespeet he the said Marsh being the first Projector thereof."—M. C. C., II: 98. See, further, Jan. 25, 1701.

28 Bellomont informs the lords of trade that the soldiers at New York are in need of clothing; "they are in Rags."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 612. See June, 1700.

Mar. — Merchants of New York petition the king, accusing Bellomont of being the cause of the "decay of Trade," etc. They ask the king to bring back the province "to its former manner of Administration unconcern'd with the Governor of any other place, to re-estate It's Inhabitants in their pristine peace, safety and prosperity."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 624. Bellomont wrote to the lords of trade on Oct. 17, opposing their proposal to have the provinces of New York and Massachusetts Bay put under different governours. He also stated that he had "no advances to make to the merchants" unless it could be proved that he had governed "arbitrarily and oppress'd them in their trade, contrary to law," etc.—Ibid., IV: 725.

11 The merchants of London make accusations against Bellomont, alleging favoritism of the Leisler party in New York, and various acts of an extra-judicial character.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 620-23. On Oct. 17, Bellomont wrote to the lords of trade with reference to these accusations, which he treated as "trash."—Ibid., IV: 725-26.

14 An order is issued, on the complaint of Mrs. Davis, against John Rodman for intending to pull down a party wall between her house and the old city hall which he bought on Aug. 17, 1699.—Cal. Coun. Min., 145; see also May 25, and Aug. 17, 1699; May 9, 1700; Feb. 11, 1701.

We find various later references to the altered condition and ownership of the building. Du Simitière wrote, about 1770: "Environ 1694 la vieille maison de ville étoit de pierre a Pendoit ou est a present Brinkerhoff & wanwyck le coin de la petite rue qui va dans Bayard Street, derriere il y avoit une petite elevation en forme de coline."—From vol. lettered "Papers relating to N. England, New York," etc., formerly belongiog to Du Simitière, now in Ridgway Branch of the Library Co. of Philadelphia.

Again, in a report to the common council by the corporation counsel and the street commissioner, on Nov. 14, 1808, regarding title to certain lands in Wall St., it was stated that "the first Building occupied as a City Hall was situate in Pearl Street at the corner of Coenties (Countess) lane opposite Coenties Slip at present in part owned by Mr. Abraham Brinkerhoof, the premises being divided after it was sold into two dwellings."—M. C. C. (MS.), XLX: 248.

As late as 1831, it was observed that "In the vaults and cellars of the buildings of the Brinkerhoffs, its [the first city hall's] ruins may yet be easily traced."—Fay, Views in New York, 13. And in 1833, likewise, it was said that the first building used as a jail and court-house in New York "was the house of A. Brinkerhoff, corner of Dock and Coenties streets, the dungeons [of which] are still to be seen in the cellar."—T. R. De Forest, Olden Time in New-York, 38. The author examined the cellar in 1909, when some of the masonry, especially in the walls on the south side, appeared to date from the period of its erection.

29 The common council appoints a committee "to Enquire for A Convenient house to make A Powder house till such one [time] as the City Can Provide one."—M. C. C., II: 101. On April 9, the committee was given power to hire a building and fit it as a powder-house.—Ibid., II: 102. See further April 13.

The previous repository for powder had been Point Hollandia, a bastion of the wall (see March 12, and Aug. 3, 1696). The several bastions had been demolished or were undergoing demolition (see Sept. 4, 1699), making a new repository necessary.

Apr. — Bellomont examines the registers of all the vessels in the three provinces within his government, and finds that Boston has 25 ships of between 100 and 300 tons, and 39 ships of under 100 tons burden; 50 brigantines, 13 ketches, and 67 sloops,—in all 194 vessels; and about 70 vessels of all sorts (11 being ships of good burden) belong to other towas of the province of Massachusetts Bay. New York has 6 ships above and 8 below 100 tons burden, 2 ketches, 27 brigantines, and 81 sloops. New Hampshire has 11 ships of good burden, 5 brigantines, 4 ketches, and 4 sloops. He Apr. reported on Nov. 28, 1700: "I believe one may venture to say there are more good vessels belonging to the town of Boston than to all Scotland and Ireland, unless one should reckon the small craft such as herring boats."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 790, 791. Cf. July 7, 1698.

2 Abraham de Peyster conveys to John Ellison "All that piece and parcell of ground Situate lying and being within the dock ward . . . Adjoining and fronting to the bridge by the Custom house [Moore St.] att the south end of the warehouses of him the said Coll Abraham D'Peyster . . . contiguous and adjoining thereto which . . . is in breadth fronting the aforesaid bridge twenty-nine foot six inches and in the rear y<sup>e</sup> same breadth and is in depth att ye North End by the warehouse aforesaid sixteen foot four inches and att ye south end fronting the wharfe or Street which faces the great dock of ye said City & which leads to the little bridge [see Jan. 16, 1700] by the house of Capt Cornelius D' Peyster sixteen foot . . ."—Liber Deeds, XXIII: 142-44 (New York). For location of the custom-house bridge, the little bridge, etc., see diagram under year 1700.

9 The owners of Indian and negro slaves have neglected to restrain them "from Associating together on the holy Sabbath in time of Divine Service to the Great Scandal of the Christian Profession and Religion." The common council orders that if more than three congregate such slaves are to be punished as the law directs.—M. C. C., II: 102-3.

" The common council revives the order that persons who neglect or refuse to pave before their houses shall be fined.—M. C. C., II: 103. See also Feb. 11, 1693.

11 The corner lot on the south-east corner of Broad and Pearl Sts., later the site of Frances Tavern, is conveyed by "Coll Stephen Van Cortlandt" and "Gerteruy," his wife, to their son-in-law, Stephen de Lancy. It is thus described: "All that certain corner lot or toft of ground lying and being in the dock ward of the city of New Yorke . . . bounded on the north by the dock street on the east by the house and ground of Phillip French on the south by the ground of Samuell Bayard and on the west by ye said Broad Street."—Liber Deeds, XXIII: 147-49 (New York). Stephen, or Etienne, de Lancy, built a large brick house on this lot at some time subsequent to April 14, 1719 (q. v.), when he petitioned for a small piece of ground on the corner of Broad and Dock Sts., and stated that he was "now going to build" upon his lot. Before July 25, 1736 (q. v.), Col. Joseph Robinson, one of the firm of De Lancy, Robinson & Co. was occupying the house as a residence, remaining until his death, March 16, 1759.—N. Y. Merc., May 28, 1759. On May 28, 1760, the firm of De Lancy, Robinson & Co. gave notice that they had "removed their Store to the House wherein the late Col. Joseph Robinson lived being the Corner House next the Royal Exchange."—Ibid., May 28, 1759. By a conveyance dated Jan. 15, 1762 (q. v.), Oliver de Lancy, Beverly Robinson, and James Parker, the heirs of Stephen de Lancy, sold this house and lot to Samuel Fraunces.—Liber Deeds, XXXVI: 62 (New York). Here Fraunces opened the famous Queen's Head Tavern, probably before April 19, 1762, by which time John Jones had taken over the Mason's Arms on Broadway, formerly kept by Fraunces.—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 19, 1762. The first notice, however, of Fraunces's occupancy of the house was contained in an advertisement of July 26, 1762 (q. v.). See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 978. For the earliest history of this site, see Castello Plan, I: 314-15.

The conveyance of April 11 to Stephen de Lancy came just after his marriage, on Jan. 23, to Anne, the daughter of Stephen van Cortlandt. It was, therefore, a conveyance from his father-in-law and mother-in-law.—See 1700.

Etienne (Stephen) de Lancy arrived in New York on March 20, 1686; he was elected alderman in 1691. The city is indebted to him and John Moore for its first fire-engines.—See May 6, 1731.

13 The common council orders "that the bridge be Run Over to the Wharfe Cross the Dock And that the Dock on the West side of the Bridge be filled up Provided it be no Charge to the City."—M. C. C., II: 104. This bridge, called the "great Bridge," and also the "Custom House Bridge," is shown on the views and maps of the city made after the Dutch period (see Pls. 10A et seq. Vol. I). It was built in 1659, and extended in 1661. Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 989. On the Labadist View of 1679-80 (Pl. 17, Vol. I), it appears for the last time on a view. The above order of

- 1700 the common council is explained by a memorandum in the "Con-Apr. 13 ditions" for farming the docks and slips, issued on the same date, which reads as follows: "Memorandum that the Inhabitants of the south Ward or their Assigns have Liberty to Erect A Building
On the West Side of y<sup>e</sup> Custom house Bridge Runing from the Street into the Dock one hundred and twenty Seven foot, and in breadth Seventy foot, Any thing before Mentioned in the Above Condition Notwithstanding."—Ibid., II: 105. As the market house was not erected, it is quite probable that no filling in of the dock west of the custom-house occurred at this time.
On June 22, 1709 (q. v.), however, the common council, having secured the consent of the lessee of the dock (Christopher Denne), resolved that the "great Bridge by the Custom house be forthwith New built and Carried over the Dock to the wharfe . . ."— Ibid., II: 379. A committee, appointed to investigate the situation, reported on Aug. 20, 1709 (q. v.). The Burgis View, of 1718
(Pl. 25, Vol. I), shows the dock west of the custom-house bridge entirely filled in. Regarding the proposed market-house, see Oct.
16, 1699. See also 1700, Addenda.
- " The common council orders "that A Powder house be forthwith built within this City." The mayor proposes to build one at his own expense, 40 by 24 ft. and two storeys high, enclosed by a fence; his proposal is accepted and it is ordered that he "have y<sup>e</sup> Stones left of the Bastians to build y<sup>e</sup> Same." He is to have the use of it for 31 years, to charge 2s. 3d. for each barrel stored there and the fines imposed for keeping in each private house over 50 pounds of powder.—Ibid., II: 103-4. For some unknown reason Mayor Provoost decided not to undertake the building, and on Nov. 11 following, by public notice, he sought proposals, on terms similar to the former ones (including the use of "the Stones which are not used for building the City Hall") for the construction of a powder-house before May 1, 1701.—Ibid., II: 124. No such structure appears to have been built until the governor took up the matter with his council the next year. See May 28, 1702.
- " New "Conditions for Farming y<sup>e</sup> Dock & Slips of y<sup>e</sup> City of New Yorke" are framed by the common council.—M. C. C., 11, 104-5. See Sept. 28, 1694. The foulness of the dock during the term of Thomas Clarke as dock-master had been a matter of concern to the common council several times.—Ibid., II: 80, 97, 100, 101-2. It is, therefore, now stipulated that the new lessee "Shall att his Own proper Cost and charge well and Sufficiently Clean the said Dock & Slip in the Dock of all the Mudd & filth therein Soe deep as till they finde A Sandy Bottom and . . . Keep the same Clean." He is, furthermore, to keep the wharves enclosing the dock in good repair to the expiration of his lease.
"Towards the Cleaning" the lessee is to receive the next six quarterly payments (amounting to £60), from which we may infer that the task was recognized as no slight one. Under these conditions the docks and slips were "demised" to Philip French for £40 per annum.—Ibid., II: 104-5. See May 20, 1702.
- 16 Early in this month, Capt. Kidd and 33 other pirates arrived at Bristol, England, from New York. Kidd is examined on this day before the lords of the admiralty and committed to Newgate, to await further examination by parliament.—"Diary of Narcissus Luttrell," in Hist. Mag. (1868), 2d ser., III: 293. For the further proceedings, see ibid., III: 294-95; and May 23, 1701.
- 18 A petition of Michael Hawdon, regarding the cellar leased by him under the custom-house (see Jan. 17, 1695), is referred to a committee of the governor's council.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 275; Cal. Coun. Min., 146, citing the original minutes, VIII: 150 (Albany), now burned. The custom-house stood at the present 33 Pearl St.—See "Pack-house," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 987. See also Sept. 24.
- May 9 A warrant is issued to John Rodman "for building a wall between his house and the kings house."—Cal. Coun. Min., 146.
See Aug. 17, 1699; March 14, 1700; Feb. 11, 1701. For the "kings house," see "Lovell's tavern" in Landmark Map
Ref. Key, III: 979.
- 12 Bellomont writes from Boston to De Peyster: "I am glad the new Town-house is so far advanced."—De Peyster, Life [etc.] of Bellomont (1879), Appendix, XV.
- 17 Payment is made to Gysbert Vaninburg "for 5 Beams for y<sup>e</sup> Old City Hall."—M. C. C., II: 107. Perhaps these were the beams intended to prevent the collapse of the worn-out edifice.—See Oct.
5, 1697.
- The "Market house at the bridge" is leased by the city to Schuyler, De Riemer, and Jellison for £12 per annum.—M. C. C., II: 107. Cf. "Market-house at Custom house bridge," and "Market-house by the bridge" in M. C. C., VIII: 348 (Index).
See also Oct. 3, 1704, March 23, 1705.
- "The Petition of John Marsh for Liberty to Build a Mill att Copshee was read and granted."—M. C. C., II: 107. "Copshee" here means Capske, the rocks just off the Battery.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 965. No mill appears of record as having been erected there, however. For Marsh's various mills, see Feb. 19 and Sept. 19, 1700; Jan. 25 and Feb. 11, 1701; Sept. 4, 1712.
- 30 Dirck Vandenberg submits his account "for building the new house in Fort William Henry"—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 275. He was paid £100 on Aug. 3 (q. v.), "for building his Majties flort."— Conveynances, Liber XXX, unnumbered page 30. Apparently both these items refer to the addition that had been made to the gov-ernour's house. This house was reported in need of repair, July 5, 1694.
—Cal. Coun. Min., 97. On June 28, 1695 (q. v.), an addition to the governour's "lodgings" was ordered; and on June 9, 1698 (q. v.), the "buildings in the Fort" were ordered to be finished.
- "Three companies of Sir Charles Haro's [Hara's] regiment are to be sent from Guernsey to New York."—"Diary of Narcissus Luttrell," in Hist. Mag. (1868), 2d ser., III: 294. They arrived in New York in October.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 760. A year later, one of these companies fared badly for lack of clothing and bedding (ibid., IV: 882); although Bellomont had complained generally of this condition of soldiers in New York as early as Feb. 28, 1700 (q. v.).
- An account is prepared of the revenues in the province of New York from June 8, 1698, to this date.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 756.
- Bellomont informs the lords of trade that "Mons<sup>r</sup> D'Iberville is lately come to New York from building forts at Mechipsis in the bay of Mexico and manning them."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV:
684. See also Sept. 24, 1702.
- Bellomont returns to New York from Boston, where he has been since May 26, 1699.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 528, 686; and Cal. Coun. Min., 147 (which gives July 25, as the day of his return).
He left Boston July 17.—Thomas, Hist. of Printing in Am. (1810), II: 466, citing the printer Green's statement.
- A conference committee of the two houses of the legislature is appointed to meet in the afternoon "at the house of M<sup>r</sup>s Davies."—
Jour. Leg. Coun., 145. This refers to the tavern adjoining the old Stadt Herbergh on Pearl St., granted to Gov. Lovelace before Jan.
25, 1670 (q. v.), and which was referred to, in 1699, as "The King's House now in the tenure of Joseph Davids."—See plate description, I: 228. The tavern was also used as a temporary city hall from 1698 to 1703, for which, in 1698, "Joseph Davis" was allowed a rental of £3 each quarter.—M. C. C., II: 60. On Feb. 5, 1703,
"Ruth Davies Widdow," having lost a warrant dated Oct. 16, 1699, for one-half year's rent for the "Court Room Candles R<sup>c.</sup>," amounting to £9-13, was given another to take its place.—Ibid., II: 217.
In 1703, the tavern was referred to as the "house of William Davis."
—Ibid., II: 229.
- The general accounts of the province show a payment of £100
"for building [repairs] his Majties flort at New York."—Entered in Conveynances, Liber XXX (register's office, New York).
- The general assembly passes "An act against Jesuits & popish preists." The act recites that Roman Catholic missionaries have for some time resided in the remote parts of this province and adjacent colonies, and have stirred up the Indians to sedition. The law therefore requires "That all and every Jesuit and Seminary Preist missionary or other Spiritual or Ecclesiastical person made or ordained by any Authority power or Jurisdiction derived Challenged or p<sup>t</sup>ended from the Pope or See of Rome now residing wth in this province or any part thereof shall depart from and out of the Same at or before the first day of November next in this present year Seventeen hundred." The penalty for failure to obey was perpetual imprisonment, and, in case of escape and recapture, it was death, as in a case of felony. Lesser punishments were prescribed for persons who should knowingly conceal and succor any of the Roman Catholic clergy.—Col. Levys N. T., I: 428; Eccles.
Rec., II: 1368-70. "This represented the culmination of the anti-Catholic feeling of the province, resulting from the intrigues of James both as duke and king . . . The Roman Catholic Church was extinct in New York from 1700 until the close of the 1700 American Revolution."—From Eccles. Condition of N. Y. at the Opening of the 18th Cent., by Edw. Tanjore Corwin, 101, reprinted Aug. 9 from the Papers of the Am. Society of Church History (1912) 2d ser., Vol. III. See also Eccles. Rev., III: 1449-52. In this year, Massachusetts passed an act banishing Roman Catholics and Jesuits.

29 At a conference between Bellomont and sachems of the Five Nations at Albany, Bellomont says: "I wish you would send two or three Sachems sons out of each Nation to be kept at School at New York where I will take care to have them taught to write and read both English and Indian, and they shall be well clothed and dyeted at the King's charge and after three or four years that they are perfect in their writing & reading they shall return home to you and other boyes shall come in their places."
 —N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 734. The sachems replied the next day:
 "that is a matter that relates to our wives, who are the sole disposers of their children while they are under age."—Ibid., IV: 738.

Sept. 18 Nicholas Burger agrees to release to John Rodman, in fee simple, a piece of ground "in the Rear of the late City Hall," which was granted to him on June 23, 1690. The consideration was that the city pay Burger £15.—M. C. C., II: 110.

" A committee of the common council is appointed to make an exchange of "some land lying Near Inclaumbergh."—M. C. C., II: 110. This is the first mention of this place in the Minutes.
 It is variously spelled: Inclamen Bergh, Inclaumbergh, Inkla-bergh, Inklawbergh.—See Index to the printed Minutes. Valentine defines it as "Fire beacon hill, a name of Dutch origin, and of very ancient date," from which he concludes it "would seem to denote a locality which had served the purpose of telegraphing to the people of New Amsterdam the approach of savage foes . . ."
 This hill was "situated near the present Thirty-sixth street and Fourth avenue; it was formerly a part of the common lands of the city, and was sold by the corporation in 1806, for sixty-two thousand dollars; the property embraced thirty-two acres of land."—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 468. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 966.

19 A petition from John Marsh is read in the common council, praying leave "to build A Mill on flowing Island Near Hell Gate."
 It is ordered "that he have Liberty to build the said Mill on the said Island Provided the same belong to the City."—M. C. C., II: 112. John Marsh subsequently built his mill at Flowing Island, in the East River, at Hell Gate, and it thereafter became known as Mill Rock. The island was fortified by the erection of a block-house upon it in 1814. This is shown on Pl. 82-B-3, Vol. III, and described, III: 554. Mill Rock has also been variously known as "Gibson's" and "Leland's" Island.—Liber Deeds, MDCCCXLIV: 27-30 (New York).

23 The rector of Trinity Church informs the vestry "that his Excel the Gov<sup>r</sup> did send for him last night & desire him to call together the Vestry & signify to them that be desired he might have Liberty to set benches in the Isles of the Church for the Convenience of the Soldiers there being no Chaplin at present to the garrison." Granted, provided "the Church Wardens be Consulted in the ordering & placing of said Benches."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

The vestry makes an agreement with John Ellis, a joiner, to build "a handsome gallery in the West end of the Church from the South doore to the North according to a Draft thereof made by M<sup>r</sup> Everts;" also "to build the pews therio, to make a pair of stairs in the Steeple . . . to make the door from the Bellfree into the Gallery & to finish this work against April or May next."—Ibid.

24 The common council orders that the mayor's warrant be issued to Michael Hawdon for "Such sum of Money as was Expended in liquors in Making his Majesties forces drinke on their Arrival here from England."—M. C. C., II: 113. It does not appear that the warrant was issued at this time, however, and on Feb. 1, 1709, Hawdon was paid £41:19 "for Strong Liquors delivered to several soldiers on their Arrival here from England . . . in the year 1700."—Ibid., II: 369. See Dec. 1, 1702.

29 The governor appoints Isaac de Riemer mayor.—M. C. C., II: 117. The new mayor was sworn in, as usual, on Oct. 14.—
Ibid., II: 118. For a brief sketch of his life see Man. Com. Coun.
 (1853), 397; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 54.

" Alderman Evert Beyvanck succeeds Isaac de Riemer (see Sept. 29, 1699) as treasurer of the city.—M. C. C., II: 117. Beyvanck was replaced by Nicholas Roosevelt on Sept. 29, 1701

(q.v.); he refused to render an accounting for his term of office
 (see Nov. 4, 1702).

An account is due the estate of Peter de la Noy, deceased, for lumber for the house (probably the powder magazine) above the gate.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 278. See also June 1, 1698.

The following declaration of loyalty to the crown is made by members of the common council: "Whereas there has been a horrid and Detestable conspiracy form'd and Carried on by Papists and Other Wicked and Trayterous Persons for Assainating his Majesties Royall person in Order to Encourage an Invasion from France to Subvert our Religion Laws and Liberties, Wee Whose Names are hereunder written doe heartily sincerely and solemnly Profess Testifie and Declare that his present Majesty King William is Rightfull and Lawfull King of these Realms and Wee doe Mutually promise and Engage to Stand by and Assist Each Other to the utmost of Our power in the Support and Defence of his Majesties Most Sacred person & Government Against the Late King James the pretended Prince of Wales and all their Adherents and in Case his Majesty Come or any Violent or untimely death which God forbid see doe hereby freely and Unanimously Oblige Our Selves Mutually to Associate and Stand by Each Other in Revenging the Same upon his Eemies and their Adherents and in Supporting and Defending the Succession of the Crown According to an Act made in the first year of the Reign of King William and Queen Mary Entituled an Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subjects and Settling the Succession of the Crown. Dated att New Yorke the fourteenth day of October in the twelfth Year of his Majesties Reigo Anno Domi 1700. Signatures of the members are appended, headed by
 "To D Peyster."—From the original document, in metal file lettered "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room. After Barclay's plot of 1696 (Macaulay, Hist. of England, VII: 309-15),
 "associations" were formed in England and her plantations, subscribed to by officials and principal inhabitants.—See Gandy's Associations Oath Rolls (London, 1922); also May 21, 1696.

About this date, William Penn suggested to Bellomont that "It would be much for the dispatch for trade and business, if a mout for small silver to the value of 6<sup>d</sup> were allowed in the City of New York for prevention of clipping and fileing, as well as wearing." (Nothing ever came of this proposal.) He also suggests that there be a common standard of value for all the northern colonies.
 —N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 757.

In the expense accounts of the province is an item for carpenter work done in the custom-house.—Conveynances, Liber XXX.

Warrants are issued to various workmen and tradesmen for materials and labour in making the custom-house barge.—Cal.
Coun. Min., 149-50. See March 16, 1699.

Bellomont writes to the lords of trade of the difficulty he has in borrowing money to pay for "subsisting the soldiers," saying
 "Were it not for one Dutch Merchant and two or three Jews that have let me have money, I should have been undone."—N. Y. Col.
Docs., IV: 720. See also Daly, Settlement of the Jews in No. Am., 28.

As Augustine Graham (see Jan. 19, 1693) is found to be "a man not to be depended upon," Pieter Cortleau (Cortelyou) is appointed surveyor of the province.—Cal. Coun. Min., 150. Cadwal-lader Colden was the next to hold this office (see April 21, 1720).

The governor appoints Samuel Clowes a surveyor, he having studied many years under John Flamstead, his majesty's mathe-matician in England.—Cal. Hist. MSS. Eng., 277. He was sworn in next day.—Cal. Coun. Min., 150.

The provincial council issues a warrant to pay Francis Chappell for rent of a committee-room at his tavern.—Cal. Coun. Min., 150.

The common council orders that the mayor appoint "A Constables Watch to Consist of A Constable and twelve Able men to be the Watch of this City to take Care to Keep and Preserve the peace &c: And that the Costables of Each Respective Ward doe take their Turns and that the High Constable take Care the said Watch be duly set and kept And that the Mayor Provide fire wood for the same."—M. C. C., II: 120. No watch was established for the summer season until 1714. Five months of service in the winter, from about Nov. 1 to April 1, were regularly arranged for.—Ibid., II: 207, 243, 281, 364, 454.

Abraham Gouverneur is appointed recorder of the city by Gov.
 Bellomont, and his commission entered on the minutes.—M. C. C., II: 119. The appointee was a prominent Lislesteria, and was elected clerk at the time of the rebellion in 1689.—See Oct. 7, 1689.

Sept.
29
Oct.
9
See A.
14

- 1700 In Cal. Coun. Min., 150, Gouverneur is spoken of as being appointed recorder "vice Graham illegally acting as such." James Graham Nov.
Oct. 26 is meant, who had been appointed by Fletcher as an anti-Leislerian (see Sept. 1, 1692), and, therefore, was not in Bellomont's favour.— See Nov. 29, 1700; also Sept. 1 and 12, 1692.
- 28 The recruits from Ireland, whom Bellomont describes as "a parcel of the vilest fellows that ever wore the King's livery, the very scum of the army in Ireland," arrive at New York, and mutiny, demanding "full sterling pay, and sea pay during their voyage," etc. Bellomont summons the burghers to the fort without arms and a few at a time. When he has 500, he arms them and then the soldiers submit. He reports to the lords of trade that "all the Townsmen and Merchants of all parties have been very unanxious this day in showing their zeal to suppress the mutiny."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 770. A court-martial condemned four of the mutineers and two were shot.—Ibid., IV: 781.
- 30 A deed of this date indicates the location of the early synagogue. It is a conveyance from Jacob "Melyen" of Boston to Katherine Kerbyl, widow, of "a house and lot on the north side of the street, bounded south by Mill street [76.8 ft.], west [110.6 ft.], and north [78 ft.], by the house and ground of David Provost, Esq., and Lawrence Van Hook, east [97.4 ft.] by the house and ground of John Harpending, now commonly known by the name of the Jews' Synagogue."—Liber Deeds, XXIII: 230; "Points in . . . N. Y. Jewish Hist." by Dyer, in Publications, Am. Jewish Hist. Soc., III: 49. See also, 1695; Dec. 19, 1728; 1729-1730; Castello Plan, in Vol. II. From this deed it appears "that Harpending's lot was on the north side of Mill street and that the Melyen lot joined it on the west. The Harpending lot was 28 feet front, and Melyen's lot . . . was 76.8 feet." Dyer, op. cit., III: 51. Dyer locates this "first Jewish synagogue of North America, and probably of the Western Hemisphere," at No. 8 So. William St.—Ibid., III: 520. Miss Jennie F. Macarthy, historical expert of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co., traces its location by title search to No. 16 So. William St. This was its first synagogue of the Congregation Shearith-Israël.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 929.
- 31 William Bradford is displaced as government printer.—Cal. Coun. Min., 150. His name appears again on official publications in January, 1701.—Bulletin, N. Y. Pub. Library (1903), 61. He continued to be public printer thereafter until succeeded by Zenger in 1737.—See June 15, 1737.
- Nov.— The militia of the province of New York numbers 3,182 men, of whom the city and county of New York supply 684. For muster-rolls of the officers, see N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 807-11.
- 2 While the new city hall on Wall St. is in process of construction, the common council orders "That for the future this Courte of Common Council doe sitt at the City Hall the last saturday in Every Month in Order to hear any publick business that may be brought before them."—M. C. C., II: 122. This reference probably means that meetings of the common council are to be held only once a month for the present (see Feb. 1, 1701); possibly it refers to the mayor's court, however, as the sessions of the common council were not always held on Saturdays. It should also be observed that the tavern or other place where the common council met, while the new city hall was being constructed, received the title "City Hall" in the Minutes. The occupation of the new hall began late in 1703 or early in 1704.—See summary, Oct. 16, 1699.
- " The common council orders that "the Mayor Provide firewood for Bonfires" on Nov. 4 and 5, the former date "being the birth day of Our sovereign Lord King William" and the latter being "Gun powder Treason day."—M. C. C., II: 121. This is the first record in these Minutes of the bonfire being used to celebrate these or other stated events. There are, however, two earlier references to bonfires, one, on May 6, 1692, being a payment for wood for a bonfire, and the other, on Jan. 16, 1695, for "fire wood Cartage Pitch Barrells & Cash paid to the Soldiers for making A Bonfire."—Ibid., I: 275, 374. After 1700, annual celebrations became more and more a feature of the city's life, on the birthday anniversary of the English sovereign, the accession to the throne, the coronation, and the discovery of the "Gunpowder Treason" plot, and occasionally for other events. The place where the bonfire was held is almost invariably referred to as "the usual place." The exceptions are as follows: On Aug. 18, 1713, it was mentioned as "the Green before the Fort;" on Feb. 6, 1714, it was "the usual place in this City before the Fort;" on Oct. 29, 1719, the celebration of the king's coronation, evidently without a bonfire, was at the house of "M<sup>rs</sup> Catalina Post Widow;" from 1724 to 1729, inclusive, the bonfire was at "the usual Public place;" on July 10, 1745, it was "without Spring Garden;" and on Oct. 9, 1753, it was "in the Commons Near the work house."— See under these dates; also Nov. 4, 1694; March 17, 1702; Feb. 6, 1703.
- " The provincial legislature passes "An Act for the Incouraging the brewing of Beer and making of Malt within this province." The act states that this industry has been discouraged by "the great Quantities of Beer and Malt daily imported," and to prevent this an import duty of nine shillings per barrel of beer and one shilling per bushel of malt is imposed.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 439.
- 7 It is ordered by the common council that three parcels of land he sold to pay the debt due for building the new city hall and ferry-house, and to meet other public charges. One parcel is near William Beckman's and Mr. Sydeoham's land at "the Bowry;" another lies on the north side of Teunis Ides'; and the third is near Henry Cordaz's, "by Inclaumberg."—M. C. C., II: 122, 125, 128.
- 9 At a town meeting in Harlem two superintendents of highways are chosen.—Harlem Recs. (MS.), 648.
- 12 The governor's council orders that barracks be erected outside the fort.—Cal. Coun. Min., 151. On Nov. 27, it was ordered that bedding be provided for the soldiers.—Ibid. It is probable that the governor chose to quarter outside the fort "the recruits from Ireland" who arrived on Oct. 28 (q.v.), and whom he described as "the vilest fellows that ever wore the King's livery."
- 27 Capt. Benjamin Faeuul sells oak plank, lath, lead, etc., to the city for use in the new city hall. His account for £13:15:5½ was paid Nov. 21, 1707.—M. C. C., II: 339.
- " In the city's general account is a payment (no day or amount given) for building "his Majesty's Ship fortune," and, on Nov. 27, a payment of £9:6 "for Riggeng & ca for the ship fortune."—Eaters in Conveynances, Liber XXX (register's office, New York).
- 28 In a letter to the lords of trade, Bellomont reviews the case against the mutineers of whom he wrote on Oct. 28 (q.v.). Their leader, Corporal Morris, and one Robert Cotterel, "an Ensign in the late King James's Popish Army in Ireland," have been shot for the mutiny. He reports that "some of the lawyers here had put it in their heads that in time of peace it was against the law of England to exercise martial law;" also that he told the mutineers that they knew very well that the lawyers here "broke English laws every day, and were disaffected to the present Government of England and therefore they ought not to give credit to them." Bellomont accuses Attorney-General Graham of trickery, falsehood, and "doing no manner of service in his post for more than a year."
- He writes regarding soldiers' pay, their organization, discipline, and officers; and of the need of parliament's breaking all of Fletcher's grants—particularly to facilitate the making of tar and cutting of timber for the British government. He has made contracts to secure masts, "boltsprits," and yards, and believes by this enterprise he will save for the king £15,000 a year. He sends a list of the militia of the province. (This is published in Man. Com. Coun., 1851, 475-80.) He explains the promising character of the province as a wise-growing country, and otherwise productive.
- He reports on the comparative number of vessels in the three provinces under his jurisdiction (see April, 1700); but is unable to do so in regard to imports and exports. "Collonel Courtland tells me there was this last year imported at 2½ pf Cent (which is the duty on English goods) here at New York to the value of £60000. the said duty having amounted to £1200 this money." Boston merchants "computed that Boston had four times the trade of New York, and New York four times the trade of New Hampshire; but I afterwards examined the entries and clearing of all the three Custom Houses and found that the trade of New York was almost half as much as that of Boston, and the trade of New Hampshire (except for lumber and about 1500 quintals of fish) not the tenth part of New York, from the 25th of December .98 [1698] to the 25 of December .99 [1699]."
- He blames Fletcher's extravagant grants of land for the backward trade of New York Province: "The people are so cramp'd here for want of land that several families within my own knowledge and observation are remov'd to the new country (a name they give to Pennsylvania and the Jerseys;) for, to use M<sup>r</sup> Graham's expression to me and that often repeated too, what man will be 1700 such a fool to become a base tenant to Mr Dellius Collonel Schuyler, Nov. 28 Mr Livingston (and so he ran through [the] whole role of our mighty landgraves) when for crossing Hudson's river that man can for a song purchase a good freehold in the Jerseys?"

" . . . Mr Ranalears grant of 24 miles square, in the centre of which stands the town of Albany was not of Collonel Fletcher's passing, neither was Mr Livingstons, of 16 miles long and 20 or 24 broad. Mr Nichols I am told has as extravagant grants as any, that his land reaches 30 miles in length on Nassau Island, which is the prime part of this Province. I know no merit Mr Nichols has, except his being broker between Coll. Fletcher and the pirates, and being disaffected to the government, and the chief incendiary and author of faction here, may pass for virtues; otherwise his grants ought to be looked into as soon as any of the rest. . . "

" . . . I believe no part of the King's dominions is under so loose a management as these three Provinces are, or that practice unlawful trade so much." He describes some of these conditions at Boston and elsewhere. "Here at New York the merchants run all the goods they can, and too much unlawful trade there is. That from Madagascar seems to be at a stand at present, and I think piracy too is in it's wane. . . "

He continues: "The harbour of New York ought to be well fortified, or 'tis odds if this town be not laid in ashes the next war we have with France."

"The old part of the house in the Fort here is falling down, and so is one of the soldiers barracks [see Jan. 2, 1701], and how to repair them I cannot tell; the revenue is so clogg'd with anticipations that we can apply no part thereof to those uses. . . With my first or second letter I writ to your Lordships from New York [see Nov. 8, 1698] I sent the Report of Collonel Courlaudt and Collonel Bayard of the necessary repairs of this House and Fort, which they then estimated at £1500. . . Collonel Fletcher was then here, who told me he had applied the 30 p<sup>c</sup> Cent to the repairs of the fortifications; which was a most impudent untruth. The 30 p<sup>c</sup> Cent amounted to about £2500 a year, as I take it, and I could never yet discover that he laid out £500 a year of all that money for the King's service."

"The French have mightily impos'd on the world in the maps they have made of this continent, and our Geographers have been led into grosse mistakes by the French maps; to our very great prejudice." He suggests that there be sent over from England "a very skillfull surveyor to make correct maps of all these plantations and that out of hand, that we may not be cozen'd on to the end of the chapter, by the French. And for saving charges, if that surveyor be a sober honest man, perhaps it were best to make him Secretary of the Province."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 781-96.

29 Bellomont complains to the lords of trade regarding James Graham being both attorney-general and recorder, and of his corruption in office. When the mayor told Graham that "the city were in want of money to carry on their Town House and other works," Graham advised that the city tax the flour that is brought from the country. Bellomont considers it "treason to levy money on the subject without an act of Parliament or of an Act of Assembly." He finds it necessary to name a new recorder.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 811-12. See Oct. 26, 1700; also Sept. 1, 1692.

" Bellomont informs the lords of trade that "it appears plainly the [Dongan] Charter of New York is not a legal Charter, for the Original I have lately seen; 'tis sealed with the Duke of Yorke's seal, and neither the Great Seal of England nor Seal of the Province, yet it bears date the 2<sup>d</sup> year of King James, so that the whole foundation is wrong. In strictness this is no City, and all the judgments that have been pass'd in their Mayor's Court are void; yet Colonel Dangan I am told, and Mr Graham, got a good sum of money for this Charter. I send you the printed Copy of the said Charter."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 812. The same objection was alleged against the Dongan Charter when a new charter was sought in the time of Gov. Montgomerie.—See Feb. 11, 1731.

Dec. 16 Bellomont explains his "wheeling" Capt. Kidd.—See Addenda. 13 The town of Harlem votes that a new bridge "at the stone bridge" (which crossed the Mill Creek at 111th St.) be erected.—Riker, Hist. of Harlem (1st ed.), 482.

27 The common council appoints a committee "to Demise the ferry," this afternoon, together with "the New Brick house Barne and Pen therunto belonging," for seven years beginning March 25. The conditions of the lease are similar to those of Feb. 2, 1699 (q. v.). Instead of "security," as provided for in that lease, however, the former shall "Give Bond with such sufficient surety" as the common council shall approve. Instead of the indefinite provision of that year regarding his quarterly payments, this lease requires that he "Shall be Obliged to pay the Rent of the Ferry [I, Ferry house &c]" (see description of Burgis View, I: 245-46) to the treasurer in quarterly payments. The provisions are renewed for maintaining boats for cattle, etc., and passengers; also regarding the pound, place of landing, public house, repairs, and the scale of ferrage tolls. The ferry is accordingly leased to Direck Benson, boatman, for £145 per annum.—M. C. C., II: 130-32.

It was ordered on Jan. 20, 1701, that Benson give a bond for £500. At the same time the mayor reported that he had executed the lease on Jan. 3, and demanded that Benson execute his counterpart and give bond, but that Benson had refused and demanded in addition "the old house." This, the mayor told him, he could not include in the prescribed conditions. The common council then demanded that Benson execute the lease, but he again refused, unless the house was added in the lease, or the rent reduced £50 per annum. It was therefore ordered that the ferry be again demised, on Jan. 27, and that action be taken against Benson for damages.—Ibid., II: 132-33. On Jan. 27, however, to prevent a law-suit or the continuance of further differences, the common council decided to let the ferry to Benson for £130, and it was also ordered that he be allowed "the Benefit of the City ferry house in which Thomas Hooke now dwelleth if this City have any Right therunto During the Terme of the said Lease Although the same be not Mentioned in the Lease therof."—Ibid., II: 135.

1701

The European "War of the Spanish Succession" brings the French and English colonies of America into conflict. It was known in America as Queen Anne's war, and ended with the Treaties of Utrecht and Rastatt in 1713-4.—Winsor, op. cit., V: 420.

About this date, and for some years later, Richard Sackett, a maltster, kept his brew-house, and also a pleasure resort, garden, tavern, and bowling-green on the shore of the East River, commonly known as the Cherry Garden or Sackett's Orchard.—See Liberty City Grants, B: 1 (compt. office); cf. Liber Deeds, XXVI: 314; and see June 4, infra. On the modern map, this garden would be bounded west by a line running between Nos. 22 and 24 Cherry St.; north by the line of Batavia St., if extended; south by Cherry St.; and east by a curving line from the corner of Roosevelt and Batavia Sts. to the corner of James and New Chambers Sts. See description of Burgis View, I: 250. For other references to Cherry Garden, see Feb. 26, 1703; May 2, 1719.

Bellomont writes to the lords of trade: "Tis great pity this town should be exposed to the mercy of an enemy; 'tis the growingest town in America. Since my coming hither there are not fewer than a 100 fair brick houses built, and a very noble Town-house."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 826.

Thomas Weaver (see July 13, 1698) is sworn in as collector and receiver-general.—Cal. Coun. Min., 152. Weaver's accounts are recorded in a portion of volume XXX of Conveyances in the register's office, hall of records.—See under Feb. 11 and Sept. 25, 1701.

The crown now yet having approved the Vacating Act, passed by the New York legislature a year and a half before, for vacating some of Fletcher's extravagant grants of land, including the King's Garden and the King's Farm, Bellomont writes fresh arguments to the lords of trade urging action.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 815, 820-27.

Bellomont writes to the lords of the treasury: "The Kings house in the Fort here is ready to fall on my head, the soldiers barracks much out of repair, and the fort in an ill condition, one of the Bastions ready to fall, and the greatest part of the Palisados wanting."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 829. See also Nov. 28, 1700.

Col. Romer makes a report to Bellomont on his survey of the harbour of New York, and recommends locations for fortifications at the Narrows and "the Coll" (now known as Arthur Kill, between Staten Island and East Jersey), and at Sandy Hook and Hellgate.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 836-37; Man. Comm. Coun. (1854), 555.

James Graham is deprived of his office of attorney-general.—Cal. Coun. Min., 152. This was a few days before his death. Mr. Weaver, one of the council, was sworn in by Bellomont in his place on Jan. 27.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 847.

The committee of the common council appointed to adjust the difference between Jasper Nesselcott and John Marsh regarding

Dec. 27

Jan. 2

"

"

"

13

21

25

- 1701 the mill at Kingsbridge (see Sept. 19, 1700), finds and reports that John Marsh ought to receive from "the Said Jasper" the sum of £12 (provincial), and that the mill should then be granted to Nessepott and his assigns.—M. C. C., II: 134. This report is approved and the mayor is ordered to execute a grant for the mill to Nessepott and his heirs and assigns, on Nessepott giving a bond to Marsh for the payment of the £12 awarded to the latter.—Ibid., II: 134. On Jan. 29, the city conveyed to Jasper Nessepott the grist-mill at Kingsbridge "together with the ground whereon the mill stands and also all toll, benefit and custom for grinding corn and grain."—City Grants, Liber A: 388 (in real estate bureau, comptroller's office). See also the summary of Sept. 20, 1699; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 961.
- 27 The ferry to Brooklyn is leased to Dirck Benson for seven years, beginning March 25, at £130 per year.—M. C. C., II: 135. The first agreement with Benson called for a payment of £145 annually (see Dec. 27, 1700); cf. Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 133-37.
- Feb. 3 Henry Coleman and wife convey to Roger Baker ("Vintner") a "Certain Message or dwelling house and ground . . . without the fortifications of the said City in a certain Street called . . . Queen [Pearl] Street upon the North side thereof and fronting the said street . . ." The property is bounded on the east by the street which leads from Queen St. to Green Lane (Maiden Lane), and on the south by Queen St.—Liber Deeds, XXV: 35 (New York). Roger Baker's tavern, which stood at Pearl and Liberty Sts., was distinguished by the sign of the "King's Head." By July 23, 1702 (q.v.), Baker had purchased a new site for a tavern, on William St. He died in 1702, and his widow was soon thereafter married to another tavern-keeper named Richard Harris (see Dec. 22, 1704). Before Sept. 19, 1715 (q.v.), the house had been turned over to Thomas Cocke, son-in-law of Mrs. Harris.
- 4 The court of general sessions convenes at the new city hall (see Oct. 16, 1699), but is compelled on the following day to "Adjourn to the house of Gabriel Tomson" because of the "Insufficiency of the present City Hall and the Extream severe Snow that has and is now falling."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 59. See, further, Oct. 13, 1701.
- 5 In the court of general sessions, three persons are fined six shillings each for "using false weights and Measures."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 60-61.
- 11 A warrant is issued to pay John Rodman "for building a wall to the kings house."—Cal. Coun. Min., 152. This item of expense (£25) also appears, dated 1701, in the "General Accounts" of collector Weaver (see Jan. 2), as follows: "for building a Petition Wall to a Tenment [tenement] Belonging to his Majesty." See also March 14 and May 9, 1700.
- " The governor's council approves of a tide-mill to be set up by John Marsh.—Cal. Coun. Min., 152. See also May 17 and Sept. 19, 1700.
- 22 The common council orders that Bellomont and his council be petitioned to reimburse the city for £12 expended "for the Making and fitting of Goals for holding & Keeping several Soldiers Upon the Late Great Mutiny."—M. C. C., II: 136.
- 25 It is agreed by the vestry of Trinity Church "that the Gallery be divided into four pews by the Length, with two Alleys each pew 9 foot &  $\frac{1}{2}$  long."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 26 The consistory of the Dutch Church in Garden St. reports that the house and lot of Jan Pieterse Meert (alias Jan Tawbour) have been bought for £140, to be used for an almshouse. It is "bordering on the Wall, to the east of the house of Jacoby de Draaier; to the west of that of Jan Otto van Tuil, and to the north of the ground of the church." To help pay for this property, the consistory resolves to sell the present poorhouse, which has become dilapidated.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1461-62. This house and lot have been identified as the site of the present No. 37 Wall St. The deed is not of record, but the location is established by recitals in neighbouring deeds.—Liber Deeds, XII: 121; XXIII: 45, 57, 59; XXXII: 100. This was apparently the third almshouse of this church. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 955. On March 17, sale was made to Franz van Dyk, the highest bidder, of the property described as "the so-called Poor house and Ground in 'Schape Wytye', between Jesse Kip and Adrian ver Plank," and on Jan. 7, 1703, the consistory resolved to give the purchaser a quitclaim deed of it.—Ibid., III: 1514. This was the second almshouse of the Dutch Church. It was situated on Broad St., south of Exchange Pl.—See Castello Plan, Block C, No. 37, Vol. II. Feb. 26 This deed to Van Dyk was probably not given, however, as it does not appear of record; and there is a later memorandum in the church minutes (without date, but placed with items of 1709 in the Eccles. Rec.), stating that "The Poor House, in the Schape Wytye, which was sold to Isaac Kip, was deeded to him."—Ibid., III: 1802. These recitals in the church minutes, printed in the Eccles. Rec., are the only records we have of these deeds to Van Dyck and Kip; such deeds were never filed in New York or Albany.
- Bellomont dies. "The continual worry and annoyance to which he was subjected by his numerous enemies, both in America and England, had a bad effect on his general health; and in consequence, the gout, which had lately begun to give him serious trouble, made rapid headway." His death produced "a profound feeling of grief in the provinces."—De Peyster, Life and Administration of Richard, Earl of Bellomont (1879), 57. For brief sketch of Bellomont's life, see also N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 851, citing "Sketch of the Earl of Bellomont," by Jacob B. Moore, in Stryker's Am. Quarterly Register, I: 434.
- The council orders that a proclamation be issued announcing his death. Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan being absent at the Barbados, the council assumes the administration of the government. Absent members are called to town. Col. Abraham de Peyster, an elder member, is to act as president of the council until the return of Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan or the eldest member, Col. William Smith.—Cal. Coun. Min., 153; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 280.
- 8 Immediately, accusations of oppression spring up against Bellomont on the part of Nicholas Bayard, who desires that the next governor may be "a worthy person of honour probity and justice; by whose sedate and peaceable temper and disposition our breaches and divisions may be healed."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 850. Regarding the state of affairs throughout British America at this time, see Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 102.
- 10 In the absence of Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan, four members of the council, "A. D' Peyster," "S. Staats," "R. Walters," and "T. Weaver," write to the lords of trade that the administration of the government is at present in themselves, as the other three members of the council have not yet returned to the city on being summoned. The letter reviews briefly the state of the province.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 850-51. On April 30, the other three members, "Wm Smith," "Pei Schuyler" and "R. Livingston," wrote separately to the lords, stating that Smith, the eldest member and president of the council, having arrived on March 11, claimed acknowledgment by the four already in town that he had the powers and prerogatives of president, including the "Negative Voice" (veto). This the four refused to grant. Smith also claimed that, in the absence of the captain-general or commander-in-chief, the assembly could not sit. These three members of the council transacted affairs of government without the concurrence of the other four, and reported independently to the lords regarding the state of the province.—Ibid., IV: 857-63.
- 14 The clerk of the council writes to the several sheriffs inviting the inhabitants of the province to attend the funeral of the late governor on March 27.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 280. See March 17 and 27.
- 17 The council requests Col. Beekman of Kings County to attend the funeral of Lord Bellomont with his regiment, as there is to be a funeral procession around the city previous to the interment.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 281. See March 14 and 27.
- " The consistory of the Dutch Church in Garden St. resolves "That so much of the ground around the church as is necessary shall be used for burying the dead;" also that the charge for burial there shall be half that paid for a grave in the church. Permission is to be asked of the city.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1462. The city's permission does not appear in the M. C. C., but that the ground was appropriated as a burial-place appears from the petition of this church for a new burying-ground, Jan. 31, 1766 (q.v.).
- " A "Memorandum" is entered in the Minutes of the Common Council of an agreement, made this day "with William Mumford Stone Cutter to finde Stones and to Carve thereupon the Kings Arms, the Earle of Bellomonts Arms and the Lieut: Governours Arms According to the Dimensions of the several Squares left in the front of the City Hall for the putting up of the same." The work is to be done "within the space of Six Months Next Ensuing the Date hereof." He is to "make Mouldings of Stone Round Each Respective Coate of Arms," and each is to be put

- 1701 upon a single stone if possible or otherwise on two. The city is Mar. 17 to pay him £414 at the rate of eight shillings per week until five pounds are paid, and the balance on the completion of the work.
 On failure to perform the work as agreed he is to forfeit £40.—M. C. C., II: 137. But see Dec. 1, 1702.
- 26 The commissioners of the Treasury direct Lord Bellomont to withhold the salary of Mr. Weaver, collector of revenue, during an absence of a year and a half spent in England. Any part of such salary which may have been received by him is to be taken from the profits of his position until the amount has been made good.—Blathwayt's Jour. (transcript), II: 73-75, in Lib. of Cong.
 £40.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 280. See also March 14 and 17, 1701. Mayor De Riemer took special care that the city streets should be made clean for the occasion.—M. C. C., II: 154-55.
 When the fort was taken down and the battery levelled, in 1790, the leaden coffin was removed and finally deposited in St. Paul's churchyard.—"Sketch of the Earl of Bellomont," by Moore, in Stryker's Am. Quar. Register, I: 434; and see June 18, 1790.
- 29 The granting of water lots on North River, begun in 1609, continues. A committee of the common council, appointed Jan.
 25 (M. C. C., II: 134) "to Measure the Ground from High water to low water Marke fronting to Hudsons River doe Reporte that they have Measured the same which begins at the Ground lately Granted to John Rodman and Runs Along the Straut towards the forte to the Ground of Direck Vanderburgh" 1,060 ft., 110 ft.
 deep at the north end and about 80 ft. deep at the south end to low-water mark. It is ordered that the committee "doe Cause the said Ground to be laid out in Lotts;" and to "Order Soe many Slips and such Wharfs or Streets as they Shall think fit in Order the same be Granted to the Respective Proprietors of the Land fronting the same or if they Refuse to Such Other person as are willing to make A Purchase thereof in Order that the West side of the City may be made more Regular and More Commodious for the Inhabitants thereof." They are required to make a report of their proceedings, "and upon what Terms & Conditions the same Ought to be Granted."—Ibid., II: 139. It is also ordered that a plan be drawn of the land belonging to the adjoining owners.
 —Ibid., II: 140. See also May 25, 1699, and July 23, 1723.
- " The common council's committee, appointed Jan. 25 (M. C. C., II: 134) "to Agree with Peter Jansen Mesier what he shall pay for a Grant of the Land from high water to low water Marke fronting his house and Ground where he now dwelth by Hudsons River," reports an agreement with him as follows: that this piece of ground, "Containing in breadth Along the Strand According to his Patent," shall be granted to him in fee simple on payment of £20 to the city, provided that he, his heirs or assigns,
 "Shall not Inclose the same or build thereon nor lay Any Dock or wharfe thereupon untill such time as the Ground on the North side of him between him and the Kings farme is Ducked or Wharfed but that the same doe Continue A Publick place for fishing or passing through the same as it is at this present that whenever he Shall Dock the same he Shall make A Street or wharfe of forty foot wide at low water Marke fronting to Hudsons River in such Manner as the Street is to be made on the south side of the same by John Hutchins his Heirs or assigns which shall Remaioe for A Publick Street or Highway for Ever." The report is approved, and it is ordered that the mayor execute the grant.—Ibid., II: 138.
 This grant is recorded in City Grants, Liber A: 391 (comptroller's office), under date of April 15, 1701. These water lots were between the present Dey and Cortlandt Sts. The street he was required to make was part of the present Greenwich St. John Hutchins and others had a similar grant, Sept. 30, 1699 (q. v.), between Cedar and Cortlandt Sts. See also Feb. 13, 1723.
- " Roger Baker (see Feb. 3, 1701) is allowed £2:10:6, "itt being Expences at his house in making of Rules for the Mayors Courte."
 —M. C. C., II: 139.
- " The judge and attorney-general, whom Bellomont had requested to be sent from England, are now on their way to New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 85.
- " The lords of trade write to Bellomont (having not yet heard of his death) that the city of New York ought "to take care of their fortifications which are the main thing necessary for their security."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 85.
- May 6 The governor's council orders "that the collector do pay
 Anthony Rogers Chjrgieon [surgeon] of his Majesties Garrison Fort William Henry three pounds for a quarters rent of the house hired by him for an hospital for the sick soldiers due the first instant."—Coun. Min. (MS.), VIII: 245 (Albany). See also Jan.
 8, 1702.
- 9 The assistants of each ward are required by the common council to go with two freeholders of the ward, promptly, "to the severall houses in the same and Know of the Inhabitants what they severally are willing to Contribute Monthly for the Cleaning of the Streets and Carrying Away the Dirt thereof."—M. C. C., II: 141.
- 13 Rev. Peter Brisac is installed as chaplain of the fort.—*Cal.
 Coun. Min.*, 156.
- " Robert Livingston, writing to the lords of trade (in the absence of Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan) regarding the affairs of the province, reports, among other things: "A labouring man at New York has 3<sup>d</sup> a day and a soldier's week's subsistence is but 3<sup>d</sup> 6<sup>d</sup> which with ease they consume in two days, and this is a great cause of their desertion. . . .
- "Two Companies lye in garrison in the fort in New York, which is of very little strength, or use, more than a convenient lodgment for the King's Governour, and a few to keep centry at his door may do well enough in time of peace at New York." Regarding the character of the soldiery, he states: "Idleness is the great motive of many of them, which makes them leave their trades and enter in the King's service, and tho' they are willing to work when they please and can have liberty, yet will not like to be compelled thereunto, especially for one third part of the wages which a Negro slave receives every day in New York for splitting of fire wood and carrying the hood." He further states:
- "His Majesty's forts are all going to ruine, the sod-work of that in New York is all to pieces and the walls want new pointing, the pallisades round the fort (last winter) were cut down and burnt for firewood and new carriages are wanted to the guns, some of them being dismantled, others scarce able to abide once firing.
- "There are two platformes before the City with fifteen guns each, to defend the town against the water. One of which is washed away by the South East storms and high tides, and the other the Magistrates of our City saw cause to give away to the widow Lysler as a present, the ground between high and low water mark, to the value of about 2200 pounds, which is since laid out in lots, and some part of it built upon.
- "The breastwork and pallisades which were round the town and the two stone bastions on the land side, are quite demolished.
 They were never well built nor of any great service, and were first erected by the Dutch Governour when the Dutch took this Fort, as a defence against the English from Connecticut and New England."
- Livingston recommends what he thinks "may be necessary in this juncture for the defence and preservation of this Province in time of war.
- "1st That a Governour be appointed who is a soldier, a man fearing God & hating covetousness, and who will administier impartially without siding with any faction.
- "2<sup>dly</sup> That two large platformes be erected, one on each side of the river at the place called the Narrows, three leagues from the City, to consist of fifty cannon each, the Channel there being upwards of one mile broad."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 877-78.
- Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan returns.—Cal. Coun. Min., 156; N. Y.
Col. Docs., IV: 879-80. See March 5 and 10.
- 23 Capt. Kidd and three others, condemned for piracy, are executed in Wapping, England, on this Friday.—"Diary of Narcissus Luttrell," in Hist. Mag. (1868), 2d ser., III: 296. The proceedings in England against Kidd are set forth in Arraignment, Tryal and Condemnation of Captain William Kidd for Murder and Piracy, upon six several indictments . . . London, 1701; also in A Full Account of the Actions of the late Famous Pyrate, Capt. Kidd, with the Proceedings against Him, and a Vindication of the Right Honourable Richard Bellomont, Lord Coloony, late Governour of New-England, etc. By a Person of Quality (ascribed to Lord Somers, or Halifax), (Dublin, 1701); and A Full Account of the Proceedings in Relation to Capt. Kidd. In two Letters. Written by a Person of Quality to a Kinsman of the Earl of Bellomont in Ireland (London, 1701). For a modern exposition of the life and character of Capt. Kidd, see
The real Capt. Kidd, by Sir Cornelius Neale Dalton (N. Y., 1911); and July 6, 1699, Addenda.
- 24 The common council orders that Dock St. (the present Water St.), Queen St. (Pearl St.) from Mr. Theobald's to Maiden Lane,

- 1701 Beaver St., and Wall St. as far as the well, be forthwith paved. June
 May The alderman of each ward is to order the city surveyors "to 27 24 Direct the Regular doing Thereof."—M. C. C., II: 144. The well in Wall St. was probably that on which the statue of William Pitt was erected in 1770. This was in the middle of the street, west of William St.—See July 24, 1827; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 964. Dock St. was called Water St. as early as 1735.—Pl. 30, Vol. I.
- June For a list of the vessels arriving at this port from this time until — May, 1702, see Valentine, Hist. City of N. Y. (1853), 217-18.
 — At Detroit, Sieur de la Motte Cadillac, with 100 Frenchmen, makes the first permanent settlement in Michigan.
- 1 The first act of Lieut.-Gov. John Nanfan, on taking control of the government, is to dissolve the assembly by proclamation.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 156. Writs for a new election are to be issued.—Cal. Coun. Min., 157; N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin (1903), 62. Explaining this to the lords of trade by his letter of June 9, he said it was done because he found "so great heats and animosities in the House of Representatives, between the two different parties, in relation to the legality or illegality of their Session."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 881. Nanfan served until May 3, 1702 (q. v.).
- 4 The city grants to Richard Sackett, for £90, the ground extending southward from his house and lot, "commonly called the Bowling Green" (not the present Bowling Green, for which see March 12, 1733), to low-water mark in the East River, with the obligation that whenever he shall enclose or build upon the same he shall make a wharf or street 30 ft. in width along his entire water front, a distance of 560 ft.—City Grants, Liber B: 1. This grant extended from the present James Slip to Peck Slip and from Cherry St. to Water St.—Indexes of Water Grants. Numerous other grants of lots between high-water and low-water mark in this vicinity were made in July and August of the same year, with the obligation that the grantees should build wharfs within three years.—City Grants, Liber B: 4, 10, 16, 22, and 33; M. C. C., II: 145. See also Feb. 26, 1703.
- 12 The king gives assent to the so-called "Act of Settlement," which principally provides for the succession of the crown in the house of Hanover, and for future sovereigns to be of the communion of the Church of England.—Stat. of Gt. Brit., IV: 57-58; Parl. Hist., V: 1294; Pol. Hist. of Eng., VIII: 441.
- 13 The king, having appointed "the Lord Viscount Cornbury to be Governour of New York," the lords of trade are directed by the secretary of state to prepare a commission and instructions for him. One clause of the commission is to contain a revocation of the commission of the present "Lieutenant Governour of that Colony" (Nanfan).—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 883. On June 26, the lords reported to the king that they had prepared the commission. This, like Bellomont's, included the command of the militia of East and West New Jersey. Although Cornbury is not to be governour of Massachusetts Bay, as Bellomont was, yet command of the militia of Connecticut is given him, because such control "as we humbly conceive may be more conveniently in the hands of the Governour of New York."—Ibid., IV: 884.
- Cornbury's commission was signed by the king Nov. 26, 1701. It has never been printed.—See "List of Commissions, Instructions, and Additional Instructions, Issued to the Royal Governours and Others in Am.," ed. by Prof. Charles M. Andrews, in Ann. Rep., Am. Hist. Assn. (1911), I: 495. Cornbury, however, stated in a letter of July 15, 1705: "The late King was pleased to grant me a Commission under the great Seale of England bearing date the 9th day of 7<sup>ber</sup> 1701."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1152. For his second commission, under Queen Anne, see Dec. 5, 1702, and reproduction, Pl. 27, Vol. IV.
- 17 David Jamison is sworn in as deputy surveyor-general.—Cal. Coun. Min., 157.
- 26 The lords of trade recommend to the king that Col. Romer, the engineer who has been employed about the fortifications of New York Province, be directed to remain until the arrival of Lord Cornbury, report to him, and continue as long as Cornbury thinks necessary.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 885.
- 27 John Bacham is paid £30 "for finishing 7<sup>e</sup> worke over the fort gate in his majesties Fort Wm. Henry in this city."—Conveyances, Liber XXX, unnumbered p. 30 (register's office). Gov. Cornbury, in his report to the lords of trade, on Sept. 24, 1702 (q. v.), says that this "Magazene of the Fort" was made by Bellomont under the immediate direction of Col. Romer, and cost £800. It should be distinguished from the "Vault under one of the Bastions for the security of the powder," the construction of which was started the following year (see May 28, 1702).
- The common council orders "that the Old market house near the Custom house bridge be for Ever hereafter Appropriated for A publick Markett house for the Benefit and Convoyniency of all persons thatt Shall Resorte thereunto in as full and Ample manner as any Other Markett house or markett place within this City is or Lawfully Ought to be."—M. C. C., II: 146. For previous history of this market, see Jan. 29, 1677; and "Custom House Bridge Market," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958.
- The common council orders "that the Inhabitants of the neighbourhood of Burgers path have Liberty to Erect A Markett house att their Own Charge on the Vacant Lotts of Ground fronting to the houses of Leonard Huygen and that Late of Jacob Teller." The title to the land shall "be defended" by the city. Damages that may accrue "by the Cutting or pulling down of the Said Market house" shall "be the Loss of the Neighbourhood that build the same."—M. C. C., II: 147. A market was first established in this locality ("under the Trees by the Slipp") on April 18, 1691 (q. v.). The new market-house was mentioned in a petition of April 13, 1708.—M. C. C., II: 352. In 1711 (see June 27), all the markets except this were appropriated for building bateaux. It stood until 1779-80.—See "Old Ship Market," Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959.
- The city grants to Jacob Dekey, for £237, a farm of about 235 acres, embracing a portion of the present Morningside Park and Morningside Heights (formerly Van de Water Heights), on which Columbia University now stands, and extending from the present 107th to 124th St. and from Morningside Park to the Hudson River. As described in the grant, it is situated in the Out Ward, on the north side of the land of Teunis Ides, and bounded as follows: Beginning at a certain old black oak tree, marked with three notches, which stands on the south-east corner of the fence of Teunis Ides; ranging along the fence of Ides north-west 60 chains to the river; thence along the river north-east-by-north 70 chains; southeast-by-east till it cuts the line of Harlem to chains; thence south along the line of Harlem Common 88 chains to the place of beginning.—City Grants, Liber B: 28-32; Mott, N. Y. of Yesterday, 42-43. On Nov. 21, Dekey petitioned the governour and council for a patent of confirmation for this land, described as lying between the land of Thomas Turneur and Hudson's River, and containing in all 235 acres, 3 roods and 18 perches. The petition was granted the same day, and was recorded in Liber Patents, VII: 252 (Albany); Cal. Land Papers, 55.
- The common council orders that the mayor be reimbursed £2:11:9 which he spent "for posts for the Church Yard."—M. C. C., II: 149. See Oct. 13.
- Sampson Shelton Broughton, sent at Bellomont's request to serve as attorney-general, arrives in New York. On Sept. 3, he wrote to the lords of trade for permission to be "admitted to dwell in one of Kidd's houses in this City, which are now forfeited to his Majesty." He added: "I have eight in family and know not yet where to fix them, houses are so scarce and dear, and lodgings worse in this place."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 914.
- William Atwood is sworn in as member of the council and judge of the court of admiralty, and Sampson Shelton Broughton as attorney-general of the court of admiralty. On the following day, Atwood and Broughton were sworn in as chief-justice and attorney-general, respectively, of the province.—Cal. Coun. Min., 158. They were prominent figures in the famous Bayard trial, soon to be held.—See Feb. 11, 1702.
- The lords of trade make a representation to the lords justices, accompanying drafts of Lord Cornbury's instructions, which are similar to those formerly given to Lord Bellomont, with a few alterations rendered necessary by the king's additional directions given from time to time to Bellomont.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 885, citing "New-York Entries," D. 398.
- Abraham de Peyster is appointed deputy auditor-general.—Cal. Coun. Min., 158.
- Atwood, the first chief-justice of the province to receive his commission and salary direct from the crown, writes to the lords of trade that he has begun his work at New York "in the Admiralty and Circuit." He has also been aiding in "settling a Court of Chancery."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 885. Regarding his judicial conduct in America, see articles by C. P. Daly in The Green Bag, 1701 March, April and May, 1895. The court of chancery which was inaugurated Nov. 1, 1683, was abolished the first Monday in Aug. 16 July, 1847 (q.v.).

26 An account of the revenues of New York Province for the year ending at midsummer, 1699, gives the entire amount of revenue as £4,834:16:1½, which is £263:13:2½ short of the "Publick Charges of the Government."—Blathway's Jour. (transcript), II: 86, in Lib. of Cong.

28 An ordinance for establishing a high court of chancery, printed by Bradford, is published.—Bulletin, N. Y. Pub. Library (1903), 62. (See Aug. 16.)

29 A conference committee of the two houses of the legislature is appointed to meet "at 3 of the Clock in the Afternoon, at Roger Baker's, at the Sign of the King's Head" (for location of which see Feb. 3, 1701).—Assemb. Jour., I: 120.

Sept. 5 A committee of the assembly reports their opinion "That the Ferry House, on Long-Island, may be free from Excise, that the Ferry between New-York, and the Island of Nassau, belonging to the City of New-York, have all the Rights and Privileges, it formerly did enjoy. . . . And that the great Bridge may be maintained at the charge of the Government, out of the Revenue."—Assemb. Jour., I: 122-23.

17 James II dies in France. His son, "the Pretender," is recognized by Louis XIV as King of England.

25 The records of Thomas Weaver, collector of the king's revenue in the province of New York for the past quarter, show customs on rum to have amounted to £207:19:6, and on wine, £97:0:8, making a total for "wet goods," £305:0:2. This was more than double the customs received "from dry goods," which was £149:10:1½.—Conveyances, XXX (register's office). See Jan. 2, 1701; Sept. 27, 1702.

29 William Blathwayt, auditor-general of accounts, presents to the commissioners of accounts the accounts of "Her Majesty's Revenues in America." Those of New York Province run from "Michelmass" (Sept. 29), 1701, to May 18, 1709.—See Blathwayt's Account of America (MS.), in Lib. of Cong.

" The common council orders "that Mr Mayor Sell the little Old boarded house Standing by the City Hall to the best Advantage for the City."—M. C. C., II: 151.

" Thomas Noell is appointed mayor by the lieutenant-governour and council.—M. C. C., II: 151. He was inducted into office on Oct. 14, the usual date.—Ibid., II: 156. For a brief sketch of his life see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 397.

" Nicholas Roosevelt is elected "Chamberlain or Treasurer."—M. C. C., II: 151. See Sept. 29, 1700; Sept. 29, 1702.

" A serious factional dispute regarding election returns occurs. Complaints from inhabitants of several wards having been made to Lieut.-Gov. Nanfae of "undue Elections & Returns of Aldermen," he issues a warrant appointing William Sharpas and another "to examine the Lists of Elections of Aldermen" and "the Directions of the Charter. . . . Relating to the Choice of the same and to Reporte to him in writing what they Shall finde therein Relating to the Legality of the said Elections." This warrant is read to the common council, which orders that the recorder (Abraham Gouverneur) and Alderman Johanne de Peyster be a committee "to Acquaint his Honour that the Common Council . . . are the sole Judges of the due Elections and Returns of the Magistrates and Other Officers for this Corporation and that it is un-presidential for this Corporation to be Served with Such A Warrant," and to ask him to recall it.—M. C. C., II: 151. The next day, the committee reported that they gave Nanfae the opinion of the common council, and returned the warrant to him; and that he put this "into his pocket and told them he would Consider the matter, and give an Answer in A day or two." On Oct. 4, complaint was made by William Morris and Jeremiah Tothill, inhabitants of the East Ward, that on Sept. 29 De Peyster made an "undue Return of the Alderman and Assistant and Other Officers Elected for the service of the said Ward for the Year Ensueing;" and they asserted their claims to the offices of alderman and assistant. "In order that Right & Justice may be done," a committee was appointed by the common council "to Examine the Lists of Election of the said Wards wherein Complaint has been made of undue Returns," and report as soon as possible "what persons are duly Elected."—Ibid., II: 152-53. They reported on Oct. 10 that the returns were right, and the court approved. At the same time, the mayor produced six writs of mandamus (presumably issued by Nanfae), requiring the mayor, aldermen, and recorder to swear into office the opposing candidates. In reply, the common council (acting as a court, evidently) ordered that the writs be returned with protest "of Misonner,—Ibid., II: 153-54. The mayor and common council thus directly opposed the lieutenant-governour and the Leislerian party.—Duallap, Hist. of New Neth., etc., II (1840): Appendix T, XLIX (foot-note).

The situation was reversed when Thomas Noell, the new mayor, was sworn in on Oct. 14. He stated at the next meeting of the common council, on Nov. 11, that from the day of his appointment, in the absence of a "settled Magistray" (or common council), he had kept a journal of the public events transpiring in the city. This, at his request, was read and entered in full in the Minutes. It reviewed the whole problem and some dramatic scenes regarding the establishment of a common council during the past month, resulting in a changed composition of that body, which now consisted of members named in writs of mandamus issued by the governour on Oct. 14.—Ibid., II: 157-83. See Dec. 30. For the charter prescription regarding swearing in new officials and its bearing in this controversy, see Peterson & Edwards, N. Y., as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 33-34. See also the transcription of the original records of the transactions in the controversy, printed in Man. Com. Coun. (1857), 515 et seq. The continuance of this factional strife was felt in the election of the next year (see Nov. 4 and Dec. 1, 1702).

Several inhabitants having petitioned the governour that the wharf between Wall St. and Burger's Path may be ordained "a common and publick Landing Place," the council recommends the petition to the assembly, and the assembly "agree his Honour may appoint such Landing Place if he think convenient, and they are very thankful to his Honour for the same."—Assemb. Jour., I: 134.

" The city treasurer is ordered to pay Gabriel "Tomson" £48:6:4, "itt being for house Rent for the Courts, Expences for the New City Hall Expences about farming the ferry and Expences att severall Vendues about selling Land. . . ."—M. C. C., II: 155. Gabriel Thompson was a tavern-keeper in Wall St., his house being distinguished by the sign of the "White Lion" (see Feb. 19, 1700). In an inventory of Thompson's estate, made Oct. 19, 1702, after his death, his house, which was "not finished," was valued at £280.—Abstracts of Wills, I: 311, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1892).

" The common council orders that the mayor be paid £6:4:6 for boards and labour "for the making the fence about the Burial place."—M. C. C., II: 154. See July 23.

" The provincial legislature passes "An Act for Encouraging the City of New York." The treasury of the city is exhausted, and large sums are required to build and maintain public buildings, particularly the city hall. A fund for this is to be raised by import duties on barrels of flour, bread, barrels of cider, and empty casks. Also the city ferry to the Island of Nassau shall have the benefit of its old standard of "Rates and prizes."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 449.

Nov. 6 The governour's council issues a warrant to Robert Walters for firewood for the fort. Another warrant followed under date of May 2, 1702.—Cal. Coun. Min., 160, 168. There are preserved in the State Library at Albany some "Observations on the New York Act<sup>s</sup> which are to be Rectified," from which we know that the first warrant was for £32:8:3 "In part of 1702-83 for 3 months firewood," and the second, £33:6:4 "For one months firewood," which charges, says the auditor-general, "are so excessive, as that the Same will not be allowed by the L<sup>d</sup> Treasurer."—Col. MSS., XLIX: 16 (Albany). An account for candles for the fort, of later date (see April 1, 1703), met the same criticism.

18 "Resolved, That application be made to our most gracious Sovereigne Lord the King for a new Charter to our Church under the great Seal of England, and Letters be prepared for that purpose to his Grace the Arch Bishop of Canterbury the Bishop of London & to Col Rob<sup>t</sup> Quarry who is to be desired to sollicite this matter, that a Copy of our present Charter be sent to Col Quarry & that a Committee be appointed to Consider of what alterations may be proper [sic] to be made in our Constitution & what Additions may be proper to be desired in the new Charter.

"Ordered, The Reverend Mr Vesey, the present Church Wardens Mr Emot Mr Jamison and Mr Anderson be a Committee to consider of what alterations & amendm<sup>ts</sup> may be of Advantage in this new Royal Charter."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Sept. 29
Oct. 4
13
18
Nov. 6

- 1701 Work on the fort has continued until now, as evidenced by an order of the executive council on Feb. 17, 1703, to pay Dirck Nov. 20 Vandenberg, a bricklayer, £142:13 for work on the fort from May 16, 1699 to this date.—Coun. Min. (MS.), IX: 379-80 (Albany). See also Jan. 8 and Feb. 17, 1702.
- Dec. 30 The feud between the Bayard and Leisler factions breaks out afresh. About 800 Protestants sign and send to the king a petition complaining of the late Earl of Bellomont's treatment in turning them out of places in the government, in branding them "with character of disaffection and infamy," etc. They ask for relief.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 933-42; and see Jan. 20, 1702.
- 1702
- In this year, Cotton Mather's Magnalia Christi Americana; or, The Ecclesiastical History of New-England, containing a map of New England, was published at London. It is "the most famous book produced by any American during colonial times."—Church Catalogue, No. 806.
- A New York inventory of this year mentioned "a billiard table £3."—Lockwood, Colonial Furniture in Am. (1901), 227.
- Jan. 6 William C. Compton of New York, merchant, petitions the governor and council for compensation for damages done to his house, which has been used as a hospital for soldiers.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 289.
- " The general accounts of the province show a payment of £13:15:3 "for bricklayers and Plasterers work done in her Majesties fort."—Conveyances, Liber XXX (register's office).
- 16 The lieutenant-governour and council take up consideration of certain papers reflecting on the government, which are being circulated. On Jan. 17, Nicholas and Samuel Bayard were put under bonds and John Hutchins is ordered to produce the papers. An examination of the charges was held on Jan. 19. This was continued on Jan. 21, and Col. Nicholas Bayard was committed to prison, charged with sedition. On Jan. 24, a proclamation was issued concerning the disaffection expressed in these inflammatory papers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 162. The N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin (1903), 61, errs as to its date. See Jan. 27, Feb. 4, March 2, 16.
- 20 The lieutenant-governour writes to the lords of trade that there is "a conspiracy to raise sedition and mutiny here and to defame the Administration of the Government of this Province under his Majesty which appears to have been carried on by a factious party, the head of which is one Coll Bayard," etc.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 942-43.
- 21 Adolph Meyer, Isaac de la Metie, and Johannes Waldron take the oath of office as overseers of Harlem.—M. C. C., II: 186.
- 24 Nanfan issues a proclamation, printed by Bradford, against Col. Nicholas Bayard, Alderman John Hutchins, and others, who are "disaffected to this his Majesties Government," and "have in contempt of his Majesties Laws, and to the manifest Disturbance of the Peace, conspired to defame the past & present Administration."—From N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin, (1903), 61. He issued another, of similar import, on March 10.—Ibid., 62.
- 27 The anti-Bayard outbreak develops, the Leisler faction being in control. Samuel Bayard (son of Nicholas) writes to Adderly and Lodwick, their agents in London, that he and his father have been "bound over in 1500 pounds Recognizance" each, for being subscribers to treasonable papers. He states that these papers were intended "to set us to Rights in the eyes of the Court, that we are no Jacobites Pyrats or Ill men as represented." The crime for which they are put under bonds is that they "were present at the Coffee house" when the petition to the king of Dec. 30, 1701 (q. v.), and other addresses were signed. Nicholas Bayard is in prison. He wrote on Jan. 28 to the London agents that the recent outbreak was occasioned by three addresses, one to the king, one to parliament, and one to Cornbury. Although the attorney-general gives his opinion that Bayard has been committed to jail without cause, a company of militia guards the jail as if to prevent rescue.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 944-48. See further March 2.
- This is one of the earliest references to a coffee-house in New York. Conference committees of the two houses of the legislature met at the "Coffee House" on Oct. 5, and again on Oct. 11, 1705.—Assemb. Jour., I: 205, 206. The site of this early coffee-house was mentioned on Feb. 16, 1706, as on the north side of the dock (Pearl St.). It may have stood next to the custom-house, where a tavern was kept prior to 1716 by Johannes d'Honour.—See Nov. 20, 1716.
- The governor's council orders that a commission of oyer and terminer be prepared to try Nicholas Bayard and John Hutchins for high treason.—Cal. Coun. Min., 163.
- Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan gives new commissions to Abraham Gouverneur and William Sharpas as recorder and town clerk, respectively, of the city of New York. They "took the Oaths Appointed by Act of Parliament Instead of the Oaths of Allegiance and supremacy and subscribed the Test and Association."—M. C. C., II: 186. On May 26, Gouverneur was succeeded as recorder by Sampson Shelton Broughton.—Ibid., II: 191. Broughton had been attorney-general since Aug. 4, 1701 (q. v.).
- There is a record, of this date, of an account of the expenses of the buildings in Fort William Henry, New York; an account of the firewood delivered at the fort from Jan. 17, 1699, to Jan. 27, 1701; an account for furnishing the officers' chambers in the fort; and an account of Stephanus van Cortlandt's disbursements for repairing the house of Col. William Smith for lodging the soldiers in 1700.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 298.
- Capt. Thomas Clarke swears that everything on board Capt. Kidd's sloop has been delivered to the governor with inventory.—Cal. Coun. Min., 164.
- Bayard's trial begins. See Jan. 16, 20, 24, 27; Feb. 4. On March 9, a verdict of "Guilty" was brought in. He was sentenced on the 16th (q. v.).
- Queen Anne's reign begins, on the death of William III. She was the second daughter of James II. The news of her accession to the throne reached New York three months later.—See June 18. Her reign ended Aug. 1, 1714.—N. Y. Col. Docs., III: Introd., p. viii.
- The fort, which had been called Fort William Henry, became Fort Anne, and was often called also as "the Queen's Fort." See Sept. 8, 1664; Aug. 17, 1673; Oct. 31, 1674; June 3, 1689; March 24, 1691; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 944.
- Sentence of death and dismemberment of the body is pronounced against Bayard by Chief-justice Atwood.—See An Account of the Illegal Prosecution and Trial of Coll. Nicholas Bayard (printed by Bradford, 1702), in the N. Y. Pub. Library. A document bearing this date in the public record office, London, is entitled A Narrative of the Treatment Coll. Bayard Received From the Time that Sentence was passed against him to the Time of his giving that Petition which the Lieut. Governour & Council caused to be printed and published in justification of their Proceedings against him.—From N. Y. Pub. Library, Bulletin (1903), 63.
- After sentence of death, Bayard petitions the governor for a reprieve from execution of the sentence until the king's pleasure shall be known.—An Account of the Commitment, Arraignment, Trial and Condemnation of Nicholas Bayard Esq; for High Treason (London, 1703), 30. See March 30.
- There is preserved at Albany, although much damaged by fire, an account of Col. Abraham de Peyster, containing, among other items, one for "madera wyw" furnished the troops in the fort and city on the occasion of the king's birthday.—Col. MSS., XLV: 88d (Albany). There are two earlier records (see Nov. 4, 1694; Nov. 2, 1700) of the celebration in New York of the natal day of an English sovereign, but no such expense as this was incurred. The municipal government soon caught the idea from the provincial authorities, and supplied wine and beer, as well as a bonfire, on Queen Anne's birthday the following year (see Feb. 6, 1703).
- Four officers lodged in two chambers in Fort William Henry request for their beds "Linnen Necessary as all other officers have had." They complain that they have "No Linnen fit to Lye in."—N. Y. Col. MSS., XXXV: 77 (Albany). An account of R. Walters, of April 14, indicates that the officers' request received favourable attention. The items of the bill include "Linning" for pillow cases, sheets, towels, and for "tape & making y<sup>e</sup> Same."—Ibid., XXXV: 96d (Albany).
- There are preserved at Albany the fire-scarred remnants of a proclamation issued by Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan, offering a reward of "sixty pieces of eight" for the discovery of the person or persons who cut down the gallows erected in the city. The imprint reads: "Printed by William Bradford, Printer to the King's most Excellent Majesty, New York 1702." The proclamation proper ends with "God Save the King" in large type. Soon after the proclamation was posted some one wrote directly beneath this benediction the words "and hang John Nanfan." This stirred the council to issue a second proclamation for the discovery of the Handwritten text in a Gothic script, likely Latin or Dutch, covering the left side of the page. The text is dense and difficult to read due to the cursive style and some fading.

BEGINNING AND END OF THE DUTCH CHURCH CHARTER, MAY 11, 1696. SEE P. 394.

1702 author.—Col. MSS., XLV: 88; Cal. Coun. Min., 165, where the
 Mar. first proclamation is erroneously given under date of March 30.
 29 See April 9 and May 13.

30 Bayard, to save his life, signs a confession that the evidence against him at his trial was true,—namely, that he endeavoured to subvert the government of the province by certain addresses to the king, parliament, and the governor.—An Account of the Commitment . . . of Nicholas Bayard (N. Y., 1703), 32. He thus acknowledged himself guilty in the seventh of the several humble petitions which he had made, after he had been for days "loaded with Irons," and after the day of his execution had been appointed and he had been notified of it. He thereby obtained a reprieve.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 956.

Bayard's Account (op. cit.), written and published by himself, closes with the statement that Atwood and Weaver, apprehensive that Cornbury would call them to account "for their Illegal Proceedings," made their escape to Virginia, and sailed for England under assumed names.—Ibid., 32. This was in Sept., 1702.—See Sept. 27, 1702. See also The Case of William Atwood, Esq. (London, 1703). Bayard wrote to the lords of trade on April 24, reviewing his case.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 951-53; see also Howell, State Trials, XIV: 471-516; Chandler, Am. Criminal Trials, I: 269-94; Hildreth, Hist. of the U. S., II: 204. The Bayard trial involved the question of liberty of speech and opinion.

Apr. 9 George Clarke, destined to become secretary of the province (see July 30, 1703) and lieutenant-governour (see Oct. 30, 1736), declares that Eden Burroughs (a 13 year-old boy) wrote the insulting words on the governor's proclamation (see March 29). The records show that Clarke shared the reward offered for discovering the writer.—Cal. Coun. Min., 165, 167. See May 13.

14 The council orders that wine and beer be laid in for Lord Cornbury, and that the house in the fort be put in order for him.—Cal. Coun. Min., 166.

15 The proprietors of East and West Jersey draw up a deed surrendering "their Power of the Government of those Plantations" to Queen Anne. This was presented to the queen on April 17.—N. J. Archives, 1st ser., II: 452-62. Under Cornbury (after May 3, q. v.), New York and New Jersey were united under one government. The union continued 36 years, with a single executive, but two separate assemblies.

16 In a memorial to the lords of trade, Adderly and Lodwick (merchants in London) review the circumstances leading up to the arrest of the two Bayards on the charge of treason. Nicholas Bayard is threatened with execution, until the arrival of a ship at New York bearing news of Cornbury's coming. This memorial asks that the lords will put a stop to these "violent and unaccountable Proceedings which are carried on purely to gratify the Revenge of a restless faction in the Province."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 949-51.

See A. 20 May The governor signs a bill "for declaring Confirming and Explaining the Liberties of the City of New York relating to the Electing of their Magistrates."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 174.

" It is ordered by Lieut-Gov. Nanfan and the council "that Abraham Gouverneur who hath been appointed by the Lieut Governor to be Corrector of the press in this province have and receive a salary for his trouble in the said office of Thirty pounds  $\text{£}$  annu from the date of his comission or warrant."—From the Colonial State Papers, series 5, vol. 1184, Public Record Office, London. The original M. S. Council Minutes containing this entry (see Cal. Coun. Min., 168) were destroyed in the Capitol fire at Albany. For a list of the burned council minutes, which at their various times of record were sent to the home government, and are now preserved in the Public Record Office, see the Report of the Am. Hist. Assn. (1908), I: 478.

" The published Colonial State Papers (America and West Indies), for this period contain a number of references to Gouverneur, whose appointment as speaker, notwithstanding the fact that he was an alien, led to much controversy. There is no reference in the indexes of the published volumes, to any "Corrector of the press." From its apparent meaning, the duties of the position seem to have been to handle government documents in their course through Bradford's press, and also to correct proof. This is further evident from Bellomont's report to the lords of trade on May 15, 1699 (q. v.), that a correct copy of the provincial laws could not be sent to England because the printer "had nobody to correct the presse at the time he printed them." The phrase is also used in modern times, as, for example, in A Treatise on English Punctuation;

designed for letter-writers, authors, printers, and correctors of the press, by John Wilson (Boston; 1856).

1 Edward, Lord Cornbury, arrives. Having published his commission at the fort and city hall as captain-general, gouverneur-in-chief, and vice admiral, he is sworn in at the house of the sick-chief-justice, Atwood.—Cal. Coun. Min., 168. He writes to the lords of trade the same day reporting these facts, and that he has sworn the new council appointed in his instructions. He finds Col. Bayard under sentence of death for treason; many eminent merchants who fled "into the Jersey's" have returned on his coming.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 955, 1152; Diary of Samuel Sewall, II: 55-56.

Cornbury is met on his arrival by the rector of Trinity Church. The wardens and vestrymen welcome him with an address, referring to him as a "healer & restorer amongst us."—Dix, Hist. of Trin. Church, I: 135-36.

The common council orders that the soldiers of the garrison at Fort William Henry in New York be made freemen of the city, gratis.—M. C. C., II: 190. The next day (q. v.), Abraham Gouverneur, the recorder, who belonged to an opposition faction from that of the mayor, petitioned the governor "against the usurpations of Thomas Noël," the mayor.—Col. Hist. MSS., Eng., 293. At the next meeting of the common council, however, the order was reiterated and the reasons recorded. The ordinance provides that "all the Officers and soldiers (who are his Majesties Natural born subjects" be made freemen of the corporation, gratis. These forces had been sent over by the king "during the Late War" to protect and secure the province "from the Insults of our Enemies the French of Canada and their Indians." The cost of "all manner of Provisions and Apparel" is "much dearer in this City than in England whereby the said soldiers Cannot Conveniently subsist of their pay only," but most of them being "Tradesmen" they would be enabled to live comfortably if they could exercise their trades. Desertions would be less frequent, they would be encouraged in their duty, and others would be led to enlist. At present "by the By Laws of this Corporation No person whatsoever Can Keep Shop or Exercise any Handy Craft Trade or Occupation but such as are Freeman thereof under the penalty of five pounds for each offence." Also, by this ordinance, the common council aims to repay the many "princely favours" of the king.—M. C. C., II: 193-94. See also July 11.

An address to Cornbury, prepared by order of the common council, is approved, and is ordered to be engrossed and presented. It congratulates him on his safe arrival, and expresses gratitude to the king for sending "A person of so great and Noble birth Skillful in the Art of Warr and Acquainted with the English Laws and Government to heal our Divisions to secure us from the danger of the Enemy Abroad and Cause us to flourish with peace plenty and Tranquility at home," etc.—M. C. C., II: 189. It was presented on May 14.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 294. The news of the king's death, on March 8 (q. v.), did not reach New York until June 18 (q. v.).

13 Mary Burroughs petitions the governor in behalf of her 13-year old son Eden. Because he appended the words "and hang John Nanfan" to a proclamation (see March 29), he was taken into custody on April 10, and still remains in the custody of the sheriff. By such confinement the child's health has been impaired and he is now dangerously ill and "likely to turne to the Smallpox." She adds that the boy is too young to be "capable of any evill Intention against the Governments," that he "at play did Subscribe the said words," and, perhaps, "by Encouragement of Some other Children;" and that surely it was not "by any instigation Encouragmt or direction" of the petitioner or her husband. She seeks his discharge and release from all "prosecution & punishment for the Said Offence."—Col. MSS., XLV: 118 (Albany).

The recorder and five members of the common council petition the governor, stating that Mayor Noel, in his desire to make "free Citizens" of the soldiers of the garrison, intends to make a by-law to set aside the charter provision in that regard. They put before him the language of the charter involving the granting of freedoms, and look to him to disapprove any such measure.—Col. MSS., XLV: 115 (Albany).

Cornbury writes the lords of trade that "the small Pox is very much here, but except that the Province is very healthy."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 959.

The city having paid  $\text{£}5$  to Phillip French on May 12, to re-

May
1
3 12 12 13 13 20 13
18
20

- 1702 linquish his lease of the dock (M. C. C., II: 190), the dock and slips of the city are now "farmed" (leased), "att the sign of the Kings Arms Near the Custom house," to James Spencer, (see 27), who secures them for £25 per annum for the term of seven years. Besides cleaning the dock and the slip (a task which French had apparently failed to fulfil—see April 13, 1700), Spencer is required to build, within the next 18 months, at his own expense, "the Wharfs Next the River Incling the said Dock." That is, he is to make them "one foot and a halfe English Measure higher then they now are in the highest place thereof with good and sufficient stockades and timber." This reconstruction is "to begin at the Privy house and from thence the whole length of the said Wharfs to White hall," and "after the said Wharfs are made soe much higher with Stockades &c: the said purchaser Shall Cause the same to be well Loaded with Ballast Gravel or Stones," and upon this the wharfs are "to be well Covered Over with the Dock Mudd to secure the said Wharfs from being broken or Damniyed by the Violence of any Storme or sea." The other part of the wharfs, "Incling the said Dock Next to the River," the lessee shall repair; and he "Shall Cause Eight substantial posts to be fixed on the said Wharves," thirty or forty feet apart, "Convenient for the hauling [hauling] Down Vessells thereby to Creen" (to careen there).—Ibid., II: 191-92. For the construction and location of the great dock, see Nov. 10, 1676. The custom-house (near which was the King's Arms tavern, as above stated) stood at the present 33 Pearl St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 987.
- 24 The consistory and church-masters of the Dutch Church, finding "that the 'Arms' of the late Jacob Lysler and Jacob Milborne are now placed in our church, and have been there for four years past," resolve that these insignia shall remain as long as the friends of the deceased shall think proper. It is also judged expedient that, so long as the customary fees are paid and the bodies of these men are buried in the church, their bodies shall remain undisturbed.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1490.
- 5 In a letter to the governor and council of Connecticut, Col. Nicholas Bayard writes: "Since it has pleased Gods Infinite Goodnesse, Weh I must ever Adore, to rescue my life out of the hands of bloodthirsty men, by the happy arrivall of his Excellcy our Govern<sup>r</sup> my Lord Viscount Cornbury by Whose Impartial Justice, I hope to obtaine such release as the Innocency of my Case Deserves; I am now to returne my Gratefull acknowledgem<sup>t</sup> for yo<sup>r</sup> Charitable Intercessions towards my release, by yo<sup>r</sup> recomendary Lett<sup>r</sup>s to o<sup>r</sup> late L<sup>d</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> and tho' the same did not meet with yo<sup>r</sup> Candy Compliyance & Successe, as yo<sup>r</sup> Christian endeavors deserved, yet I am no lesse sensible of yo<sup>r</sup> Sincerity & favour therein, weh I shall ever retayne with a dutifull regard, untill I can be in a capacity to make some Suitable returns."—Winthrop Papers, X: 142, in Mass. Hist. Soc.
- 26 Thomas Weaver, the collector and receiver-general, and William Carter, the comptroller of the customs, memorialize the governor and council regarding the custom-house boats and the bad condition of the custom-house, whose roof and walls are so decayed as to render it "unfitt" for the receipt of customs.—Col. MSS., XLV: 128 (Albany).
- 28 The provincial council resolves to build a powder-vault.—Cal. Coun. Min., 170. On June 15, William Hodgson (Hudson) was named as the builder.—Ibid., 171. The general accounts of the province, under date of June 30, show a payment of £100 "towards the building of a Vault in the Fort Wm Henry for Powder."—Conveyances, Liber XXX, unnumbered page 86 (register's office). On Dec. 18, there was another payment of £60 "for Bricklayers work into the fiort for a Vault under one of the Bastions for the security of the powder."—Ibid.; Cal. Coun. Min., 177. Another warrant was issued to Rip van Dam, on March 6, 1703, undoubtedly for work on the same vault, then referred to as in Fort Anne.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 308; Cal. Coun. Min., 180. See also April 13, 1700; June 16, 1703. Apparently this vault was supplementary to the "Magazeen for Powder" over the fort gate, which work of his predecessor the new governor speaks of so disparagingly in his report to the lords of trade on Sept. 24 (q.v.). There does not appear to have been any depository for powder outside the fort until Nov. 21, 1728 (q.v.), when a new powder-house was completed "on the Island Adjoining the fresh water pond."
- In some "Observations on the New York Act<sup>s</sup>" (accounts "which are to be Rectified"), between June 10, 1702, and March 25, 1703, made by Wm. Blathwayt, auditor-general, the charges
- "for finishing the work over the fort Gate" and "for making a Vault for powder," he says, "ought to be more particularly made out."—Col. MSS., XLIX: 16 (Albany).
- The governor and council allow house rent to Rev. William Vesey.—Cal. Coun. Min., 170.
- John Bridges, LL.D., who came to New York on May 3 with Lord Cornbury (M. C. C., II: 197), is appointed by the governor to be second justice of the supreme court and judge of the admiralty court. He was sworn in on June 15.—Cal. Coun. Min., 171. See, further, April 1, 1703.
- Cornbury issues an ordinance for suspending the proceedings of the high court of chancery.—From N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin (1903), 63; Cal. Coun. Min., 171.
- Cornbury grants permission to Nicholas Bayard to print an account of his (Bayard's) trial. This fact was stated later in the printed work, for title of which see Sept. 27.
- Cornbury informs the lords of trade that he has suspended from the council Mr. Atwood (the chief-justice), Mr. Weaver, Col. De Peyster, Dr. Staats, and Mr. Walters.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 959-60. Weaver made his escape, "as having been concern'd in a Violent and Maltitious Prosecution for High Treason against two persons of Note" (Bayard and Hutchins).—Blathwayt Jour. (transcript), II: 315; cf. Roberts, New York, I: 225-26. See Sept. 27.
- On news of the accession to the throne of Princess Anne of Denmark, she is proclaimed Queen of England by Cornbury at New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 172; N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 960. A hint as to the ceremony of proclamation appears in a letter from Duncan Campbell to Gov. Winthrop of Connecticut, dated June 18: "The forces are to be all in Armes; at ten of yo<sup>r</sup> Clock yo<sup>r</sup> Kings Death is to be solemnized with firing of Guns at 11 of yo<sup>r</sup> Clock yo<sup>r</sup> queen is to be proclaimed with all yo<sup>r</sup> solemnity that may be. Most people will be in moqulrning yo<sup>r</sup> next lords day."—Winthrop Papers, XI: 112.
- Gov. Lewis Morris write (evidently after June 18) to the secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts: "The Queen has a Farm of about 32 Acres of Land, weh Rents for £36 p. Ann: Tho' the Church Wardens & Vestry have petitioned for it and My Ld fourth month since gave you a promise of it the proceeding has been so slow that they begin to fear the Success wont answer the expectation. I believe her Maty. would readily grant it to the Society for the asking. N. York is the Center of English America & a Proper Place for a College,—& that Farm in a little time will be of considerable Value, & its pty such a thing should be lost for want of asking, weh at another time wont be so Easily obtained."—Dix, Hist. of Trin. Church, I: 145, footnote, citing Archives, S. P. G., I: 171. See June 13, 1705.
- The Lord Bishop of London wrote an appeal to the lords of trade to "take into Consideration the Twenty Six pounds allow'd annually by his late Majesty for . . . providing of an house for the Minister of Trinity Church . . ."—Extract from the Lambeth MSS., made by Rev. Francis L. Hawks, D.D. in 1836, filed with Hawks MSS. in Church Mission House, N. Y. City.
- Nicholas Bayard is permitted by the queen and council at St. James's to appeal his case to them.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 961-62. Regarding the result of the appeal, see June 19, 1703.
- James Spencer, dock-master (see May 20), is authorized by the common council to arrest and bring before the mayor any person who is indebted to him for dockage. The occasion for granting such special power was thus explained by the dock-master: "sundry Boats frequently Come into the Dock & Slips of this City and the Masters thereof Refuse to pay unto him the Customary Rates for Dockage & before he can gett the Mayors Officer to summon them before the Mayor to Cause them to make payment as Aforesaid they weigh Anchor and are gone."—M. C. C., II, 197-98. Spencer had served previously as high constable and these elusive skippers would naturally try his patience. Messrs. Symes, Denne, and Vanhore, to whom the great dock was leased, in 1703, made haste to secure the same authority.—M. C. C., II: 257. See Oct. 19, 1685.
- The common council for the first time makes an honorary gift of the freedom of the city. It is "Resolved that this Court in the Name of this Corporation doe Compliment his Excellency Edward Viscount Cornbury Cap<sup>t</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> And Governour in Chiefe of this Province &c: with a Freedom of this City and that the Mayor Execute the same and Cause the seal to be Covered with A

- 1702 Gold Box." Alderman Boelen is directed to "make the said Box Covenient for the use," and the mayor is required to issue his warrant to the treasurer to pay for it.—M. C. C., II: 197. On Dec. 1, it was ordered that "this Court forthwith waite upon" the governour to make the presentation, Mr. Broughton, the recorder, being appointed to "make A speech to his Excellency suitable to the Occasion."—Ibid., II: 212.
- It is also resolved that John Bridges, LL.D, Robert Wilward, Charles Congreve, Edward Rich, Phillip Rookeby, William Lovell, John Freeman, John Pierson, Peter Fauconnier, Henry Swift, Mr. May Bickley, William Carter, Mr. Mott, and "such Others of the household as Came into this Province with his Excellency the Lord Cornbury be made Freeman of this City Gratis Any Law of this Corporation to the Contrary Notwithstanding Provided they be all her Majesties Natural borne subjects or Naturalized or Denized as by the Charter of this City is Required."—Ibid., II: 197.
- It is resolved further "that all persons that are now dwellers within this City that are his Majesties Natural borne subjects or Naturalized or Denizid that are poor and not able to purchase their Freedoms be made Freeman of this City Gratis." The mayor, recorder, and aldermen are required to "Administer unto such the Oath of A Freeman," and the mayor to "Execute Certificates therefor under the seal of the said City."—Ibid., II: 197.
- These transactions show whatever difference existed in the substance of the gift to Corbury on the one hand, and to the poor of the city on the other. Apparently, the same gift was conferred upon both, but in a different form and by a different method.
- The power of the city magistrates to make free citizens, conferred by the Dongan Charter and continued by the Montgomerie Charter, "has ceased to be of any importance, and is used only as a testimonial of respect or gratitude, on the part of the corporation, towards persons in high stations, or who may have entitled themselves to the honor by personal merit, or some distinguished service."—The Charter of the City of New York, with notes by Chancellor Kent (1835), 152. For further account of the proceeding of conferring "the freedom of the city," historically considered by Chancellor Kent, as well as the records of such events in New York, see N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1885), 420, passim.
- The old English custom is thus described: "In exercise of their power to admit burgesses by election, it is the custom for the magistrates of the more important cities and towns of the United Kingdom . . . to admit persons of distinction, whether residen-ters or strangers, to the position of honorary burgesses. This is popularly known as 'presenting the freedom of the city.' The names of such honorary burgesses are entered in the Burgess list or register of municipal electors, but they are not entitled, when not resident or carrying on business in the particular city or town, to exercise the municipal franchise, or be inducted to the town-council."—Chambers's Encyclopaedia (London, 1888), II: 554 (title "Burgess"). The following is an American account of the same subject: "The practice of conferring the freedom of the city, which at present amounts to little more than an expression of esteem on the part of the public magistrates, may be traced back to mediæval times, when the principle of freedom of domicile was by no means universally recognized, and cities partook almost entirely of the nature of private corporations, admission into which was hampered by many restrictions. . . ."—New International Encyclopaedia (N. Y., 1915), IX: 219-20 (title "Freedom of the City").
- 29 Thomas Weaver, collector of the royal revenue in New York, is suspended from office by Lord Cornbury. Wm. Blathwayt, the auditor-general of accounts (see Sept. 29, 1701), presents an "Abstract of Mr Weaver's Acc<sup>ts</sup>" from Jan. 6, 1700, "when he enter'd upon his Office of Rec<sup>er</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup>," to the date of his suspension. The total amount received from "Customs, Excise, Quitt Rents & Casual Revenues" was £6,345:14:14.—Blathwayt Journals (transcript), II: 122-24.
- July The common council orders the repeal of "the Third Printed 11 Law of this Corporation Called (Concerning Freeman)."—M. C. C., II: 198. The text of this law is not available at the present day, no copy of the city ordinances printed by Bradford in 1694-5 (see Oct. 25, 1694, and Jan. 16, 1695) being now (1922) extant.
 A new and brief statement of the law or regulation on the subject of freemen is supplied by the common council. No person or persons whatever, in the city or its "Liberties," shall engage in retail trade, or exercise any craft or occupation, unless he is a freeman, or "soe Admitted by the Mayor Recorder & Aldermen or by the Mayor or any three or more of the Aldermen." As before, there is the penalty of £5 for each violation after a warning; but there is a new scale of charges for being made a freeman, every merchant, trader, or shopkeeper being required to pay 20 shillings, and every "handy Craft Tradesman" six shillings "with Customary fees on being made free," and those not able to pay "Shall be made free Gratis."—Ibid., II: 198-99. The soldiers of the fort, who may be "Natural borne," had been made freemen gratis on May 12
 (q. v.). In the list of the laws, orders, and ordinances ordered on Feb. 15, 1703, and Dec. 21, 1706, to be continued in force, there are five separate regulations relating to freemen: "Freemen to be Inrolled," "Oath of Freeman," "Who are to be deemed Freeman," "Freemen made by the Mayor and Aldermen," and "Law concerning Freeman" (the last named evidently being the one enacted July 11, 1702).—Ibid., II: 223, 314-15. When the city laws and ordinances were again ordered to be printed, March 28, 1707 (q. v.), these various regulations relating to freemen were combined into one, entitled "Freemen and Apprentices."—Ibid., II: 210.
- It is ordered "that the Front of the City Hall be forthwith 23 pav'd."—M. C. C., II: 200. This work was paid for Nov. 2, 1708, more than six years later.—Ibid., II: 365.
- Roger Baker, vintner, in a petition to the common council, represents that he is about to build in the Smith's (William)
 St. (where he lives) a large house of brick and stone, "which will be of great beauty And an Ornament to this City," and asks for a strip of ground at the north-west corner of his house.—M. C. C., II: 199.
 Baker was a tavern-keeper, who kept a public-house known as the King's Head, at the south-west corner of Pearl St. and Maiden Lane (see Feb. 3, 1701). It is not certain that he finished the house on Smith's St. or took the sign there, as he died in the same year, 1702.—Bayles, Old Taverns of N. Y., 84. See Jan. 18, 1694.
- The common council appoints a committee "to Lett to farme the Old Marketk house in the broad way" for not more than five years.—M. C. C., II: 200-1. See Sept. 25, 1694.
- Aug. 6 "Mr Vesey & Mr Wenham Reported that Mr [Matthew] 3 Deekled one of the Tennants of the Kings Farme before his Death & after the granting of a new Lease from the Right Honble Edward Viscount Cornbury did relinquish his right & Interest in the Lease thereof to the Church. Capt Wilson in Consideration of a peece of Plate to be given him by the Corporation of Trinity Church within twelve months next ensuing, doth Surrender his Interest & right in the said Lease for the terme to come to the Church & bears the Charges he has been at in defending & maintaining the Churches right hitherto.
- "It is agreed by this Board, that George Ryerse have the Farme the remaining part of the year till the first of May next that he shall have Liberty to take off his Winter & Summer Grain, provided he plant no Indian Corne next Spring therein that he Sew no more Summer Grain next Spring than Winter grain that he Comitt not any waste, leave the Fences in repair & good order he paying for the same the Sum of Thirty five pounds to the Church Wardens for the use of the Church in manner following that is to say Twenty pounds the first of November next and fifteen pounds the first of May next Ensuing."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 27 The governour's council orders that a proclamation be issued for a day of fasting and public prayer on account of sickness in the city.—Cal. Coun. Min., 173.
- Sept. 8 The governour and council, meeting at "Cheer Hall," Orange Co., consider England's declaration of war upon France and Spain.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 173; N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin (1903), 63. The meeting out of town was undoubtedly due to the sickness in New York.—See Aug. 27, and Sept. 17.
- 12 The governour and council hold their meeting at Kingsbridge, Westchester Co.—Cal. Coun. Min., 173.
- 17 The governour and council, at Kingsbridge, order a proclamation to be issued convoking the assembly to meet at Jamaica, L. I., on account of the sickness in New York, and adjoining the supreme court to the same place. A proclamation is to be issued regarding the quick burial of persons dying from the "malignant distemper," and concerning other sanitary measures, also appointing a weekly day of fast and humiliation.—Cal. Coun. Min., 174;
Bulletin, N. Y. Pub. Library (1903), 63. See Sept. 27.

1702
Sept.
24

Regarding the condition of the soldiers and fortifications, Cornbury informs the lords of trade that there are two companies occupying the garrison at New York, one of 80 men and the other of 76 men, besides officers. They are "naked," he says, and there are only 27 muskets, 12 swords, and 12 bayonets.

"The Fort at York I found in a miserable condition the parapet which is of sodd Work being fallen down in many places, not one platform good but most of them quite rotten many of the guns dismounted most of the Carriages rotten and some of the guns so honey-combed that they are not fit to be fired. . . . The Magazine of the Fort at York is a building of Brick made by my Lord Bellomont over the gate going into the fort [see June 27, 1701]. It cost eight hundred pounds, and was built under Coll Romer's directions. But I am well satisfied that a better building might have been made for two hundred pounds. Besides that it is the most improper place in the world for a Magazine for Powder because of the great storms of thunder and lightnings which are very frequent in this country. Besides many people that live near the fort have been very earnest with me to remove the powder from thence it being very certain that if the Magazine should by any accident blow up it would destroy many houses as [well as] the Fort."

Regarding coast defences at New York, he states: "there lies just over against the town a small Island of about four score Acres of Land, called Nutten Island, which lies on the South East side of the town. A Bomb Vessel may lie behind that Island and Bombard the City as they please and all the guns we have cannot hurt them. The way to prevent this will be to erect two stone Batteries at a place called the Narrows. One upon long Island and the [other] upon Statan Island." The sea is but "a little mile" across in this place, and "Batteries being placed there of twenty Guns each it will be impossible for any body to hurt us by sea. I would have these made of stone because stone is cheaper here than brick and there is no turf to be cut in this Country besides that would be a continual charge always repairing. . . ."

"I look upon this to be the more necessary to be done because in Summer 1701 Mons<sup>rs</sup> D'Iberville came into the Port of New York to a place called the watering Place within the Narrows and sight of the City. He was in a french man of war of fifty Guns. . . . He was suffered to stay there upward of a month during which time he sounded all the harbour from the City of New York to Sandy Hook; so that for the future he will want no Pilot to conduct him in."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 967-69. It was in July, 1700, not in the summer of 1701, that D'Iberville was in the harbour.—See July 9, 1700.

27

Cornbury sends to the lords of trade the two original addresses made by inhabitants of the city to the king and parliament, upon which Bayard was pronounced guilty of high treason. He also sends copies of all papers relating to Col. Bayard's trial, obtained from the clerk of the council. There were no court minutes, however, as Justice Atwood who presided in the case would not permit any to be taken. "Coll Bayard has lately printed his trial upon such Minutes as he was able to take himself while he was at the Bar which I likewise send to your Lordships."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 972. The printed case is entitled An Account of the illegal Prosecution and Tryall of Coll. Nicholas Bayard, in the Province of New-York for supposed high treason in the year 1703. Collected from several memorials taken by divers persons privately, the commissioners having strictly prohibited the taking of the trial in open Court. New York, 1702. The trial is reprinted in Collection of State Trials, XIV. Cornbury appeals to the lords of trade in Bayard's behalf.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 954.

Cornbury reports to the lords of trade: "In ten weeks time, sickness has swept away upwards of five hundred people of all ages and sexes. Some men of note and amongst the rest Capt: Stapleton dyed two days ago, he was Commander of her Majestys Ship Jersey and brought me into this Province."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 972. In December the sickness was "quite over."—Ibid., IV: 1004.

Cornbury informs the lords of trade that Thomas Weaver, the collector and receiver-general, who served as solicitor-general in the trial of Bayard, took the account books when he ran away (see June 16), and he can make no report regarding the state of the revenues.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 973. Chief-Justice Atwood and Collector Weaver are traced to the Jersey coast but are not captured.—Ibid., IV: 1003. Cornbury gives his reasons for suspending from the council Atwood, Weaver, De Peyster, Walters, and Staats, because (briefly stated) of their unlawful prosecution of Bayard and Hutchins, whom they condemned to death until relieved.—Ibid., IV: 1010-17. Atwood in England answered the allegations against him.—Ibid., IV: 1022. But an order in council at St. James's, on Jan. 21, 1703, reversed the sentence passed in New York by Atwood against Bayard and Hutchins, and another order of the same date removed Atwood and the others from the council.—Ibid., IV: 1023-24. Weaver's account-books were afterwards returned to Cornbury.—Ibid., IV: 1039. See also Sept. 25, 1701; June 19, 1703; Jan. 13, 1709.

Sept.

27

The governor, with the consent of the council, appoints Philip French to be "Mayor Coroner Clerke of the Market & Water Bayliff of the City of New Yorke for the year Ensuing." The former mayor, Thomas Noell, is on the point of death, the alderman of the South Ward (Brandt Schuyler) is already dead, and the rest of the aldermen and assistants are very sick or in the country to avoid the "Pestilential distemper."—M. C. C., II: 203. For a brief sketch of the life of Philip French, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 400.

29

The common council, consisting at this meeting of merely the recorder, one alderman, and three assistants, unanimously agrees that Johannes Jansen be treasurer of the city for the next year. The smallness of the board was due to the fact that "Almighty God hath for our Manifold sins Immorality & profaneness been pleased to Visit us at this time with great sickness and Mortality whereby great Numbers of the Citizens of this Corporation are Dead and Many at this time lye in A Languishing Condition."—M. C. C., II: 203. Jansen was succeeded by William Anderson (see Oct. 14, 1703).

"

George Keith, A. M., missionary from the Society for Propagating the Gospel, preaches, at the request of Mr. Vesey, "at the Weekly Fast, which was appointed by the Government, by reason of the great Mortality that was then at New York, where above Five Hundred died in the Space of a few Weeks; and that very Week, about Seventy died."—Keith, Jour. of Travels (1706), 50. He also preached in New York in November, 1702 (ibid., 55), and a year later (ibid., 76, 77). See also Nov. 24.

30

An address to Cornbury, signed by 346 inhabitants of New York City and by deputies from the other counties, expresses confidence in his "great prudence justice, courage and conduct," and they expect to "enjoy safety and protection from our enemies abroad, Liberty of conscience, Peace and tranquility at home, and that the name of Party and Faction may henceforth vanish with every thing contradictory to the true English Interest."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1005.

Oct.

2

From this date until Nov. 14, inclusive, the council met at Jamaica, L. I., where Gov. Cornbury and family had gone to escape the "great sickness and mortality lately happening in the City of New York."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 176-83. The change of venue produced confusion in the return of legal processes, and the supreme court adjourned sine die. A law was passed by the provincial legislature on Nov. 27 making processes returnable at the next session, in April, at New York.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 522.

Cornbury, in his first address to the assembly, recommends erecting public schools.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 177. On Oct. 30, the assembly approves erecting "a publick Free-School."—Assemb. Jour., I: 148. See Nov. 27.

20

It is ordered by the governor and council that a message be sent to the house of representatives, acquainting them of the usage and custom of parliament to appoint a chaplain to read prayers to them every morning before they proceed to business, and desiring them to do likewise.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 177.

Cornbury recommends to the assembly that they provide for the defence of the city and port of New York, "which seem . . . much exposed."—Assemb. Jour., I: 145.

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

Nicholas Bayard is required by the governor and council to give bail for his appearance before the queen.—Cal. Coun. Min., 174.

28

174.

Philadelphia is incorporated in England by William Penn. "David Provost Bolter" and "Nicholas Roosevelt Cordwainer" are presented to the court of general sessions for "falsely & Maliciously" returning themselves aldermen "Contrary to the Plurality

Nov.

4

1702 of Voices to the utter Overthrow of the Liberties & Privileges Nov. of this City."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 72. The 4 factional strife so apparent in the election of the year before (see Sept. 29, 1701), and again in the recent election (see Dec. 1, 1702), creeps thus unexpectedly into the proceedings of the general sessions court. In the election returns, as given in the Minutes, the name of David Provost appears as alderman elect in the North Ward, but, on Oct. 14, when other officers were sworn in, there is recorded a "Caveat Ag<sup>t</sup> the Swearing Dually Provost Elected Alderman of the North Ward as not being duly qualified to serve in that Station for sundry reasons."—M. C. C., II: 201-2, 204. Both Provost and Roosevelt were remembered by their enemies for their "Very Violent and Passionate Expressions" against Mayor Noel (ibid., II: 180), and their indictment by a grand jury may be readily understood. Provost did not presume to be sworn or take his seat during the year, and he was discharged by the court at the August sessions, in 1703.—*Min.
 Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.)*, 81. The North Ward does not appear to have had an aldermanic representative on the bench during the year, but the confidence in Provost on the part of his fellow citizens is shown by his election as alderman for six terms in succession beginning in 1703.—M. C. C., II: 239, 271, 286, 308, 259, 361. If Roosevelt did return himself as alderman of his ward (South Ward) in 1702, it is not his name, but that of John Corbett, which appears on the list of elected officials (M. C. C., II: 202).

" Evert Beyvanke (see Sept. 29, 1700) having refused to render " an Acc<sup>t</sup> of the Revenue of this City and the publick Moneys of the same by him Received during the time he was Treasurer thereof together with the Books Accounts and Other papers and writings," the common council orders that a lawsuit be commenced against him "to Oblige him to Acc<sup>t</sup> for the same."—M. C. C., II: 208-9.
 See Jan. 15, 1703.

10 The general accounts of the province show a payment of £710 "to Rob Crannell Cockswaine of her Majesties Barge for y<sup>e</sup> Salaries for him self & the rest of the Barge crew."—Entered in Conveyances, Liber XXX (register's office).

22 Rev. George Keith preaches again at the request of Rev. Mr.
 Vesey of Trinity Church (see Sept. 30), and dines with Cornbury at Fort Henry.—From Keith's letter of Nov. 29 to the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, in Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 251. Keith was the second minister of the Church of England sent over by this society, the first having been Rev. Patrick Gordon, who, earlier in 1702, went to Jamaica, L. I., and died there soon afterward.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1452.

24 Rev. John Talbot writes from New York that a convocation of seven clergymen has been held "at the instance and charge" of Gov. Nicholson of Virginia, to consider ways and means to propagate the Gospel. A "Scheme of the present State of the Church in these provinces" has been drawn up. He states: "We have great need of a bishop here to visit all the Churches, to ordain some, to confirm others, and bless all."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 251; Eccles. Rec., III: 1507.

25 William Carter and James Everts petition the governour and council that a chimney be erected on the custom-house.—*Cal.
 Hist. MSS., Eng.*, 301. On Dec. 24, Mr. Everts presented his account for the work.—Ibid., 303.

26 The queen signs a commission to Richard Ingoldesby to be lieutenant-governour of New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1002.
 Regarding its receipt by him, and the queen's revocation of it, see March, 1704; Apr. 11, 1706; Sept. 17, 1709.

27 The provincial legislature passes "An Act for Encouragement of A Grammar Free School in the City of New-York." The act provides for an annual assessment of £50 for seven years to maintain a schoolmaster. If chosen from England, he is to be licensed by the Lord Bishop of London and approved by the governour.—
Col. Laws N. Y., I: 516. See Jan. 22, 1706.

" The legislature passes "An Act for the better Settling the Militia of this Province and making it more usefull for the Security and Defence thereof and for the Repealing of all former Acts heretofore made in this Province Relating to the Same." Its preamble is the same as that of the last Militia Act, of May 6, 1691 (q. v.). Although the act of 1691 is repealed, most of its provisions are reaffirmed in nearly the same language. The draft age is fixed between 16 and 60 years inclusive, and the new law supplies regulations for listing the youth as they come to the age of 16 years. This law specifically asserts that it is not to be construed "to allow or give Liberty unto any Negro, or to any Indian Slave or Servant to be Listed or to do any Duty in the Militia of this Province." It provides also that three months shall elapse after any offence before suit or seizure of the offender's goods. When the legislature passes an act to raise and pay men for the defence of the frontiers, the captains shall detach as many men of their companies as required by the captain-general and other superior officers to leave "a Note in writing at their respective Houses or last place of abode Signifying when & where they shall appear ten dayes Inclusive . . ."—under penalty of £6 for failure so to appear, which shall be recovered by court proceedings and given to the person summoned to serve in place of the offender.—

Col. Laws N. Y., I: 500-7. This law was extended by successive reenactments, until repealed by a new Militia Act on July 27, 1721 (q. v.)

" The common council having represented to the general assembly that, in the recent "Calamitous Distemper," the number and needs of the poor have greatly increased, an act is passed for their better support.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 507.

Dec. 1 Four "bellmen" or watchmen are appointed, whose duty is to go "Every hour in the Night through the severall Streets of this City and publishing the time of Night and also to Apprehend all disturbers of the peace Felons &c: also to take Care that No Damage be done in the City by fire or Other Casualties." They are to be paid £44 for their services from Nov. 1, 1702, to April 1, 1703, and are to be provided with "A Lanthorn Bell and hour Glass" at the city's expense.—M. C. C., II: 209-10. See Oct.
 17, 1698.

" The governour's council issues a warrant to pay Michael Hawdon, a tavern-keeper (see Sept. 24, 1700), for the rent of his house by the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 177. Another warrant was issued for the same purpose on July 1, 1703.—Ibid., 186.
 The occasional occupation of taverns for the regular meetings of the assembly was the practice until 1704.—See June 27, 1704.

" The common council orders "that the Arms of the Late Earle of Bellomont and Cap<sup>t</sup> Nanfan which are fastened in the Wall of the City Hall be by the Marshall of this City forthwith pulled down and broken that the Wall be filled up," etc.—
M. C. C., II: 212.—See March 17, 1701.

" The officials of the East Ward who were returned as elected (M. C. C., II: 202) are declared by the common council irregularly chosen and a different set "sworne into the Respective Offices."
 This action was taken in consequence of the report, rendered by a committee that "Inspected and scrutiny'd the Voices," to the effect that Isaac de Riemer and the other officials returned as elected received the votes of 19 persons whose dwellings were in the North Ward, but who voted in the East.—M. C. C., II: 211-12.

5 Queen Anne signs at Westminster a new commission to Gov.
 Cornbury, whose first commission (see June 13, 1701), bearing date
 Nov. 26, 1701, was given to him by the late King William III.
 Neither has ever been printed in full.—See Prof. Chas. M. Andrews's voluminous "List of Commissions [etc.] Issued to the Royal Governors and Others in Am.," in *Ann. Rep., Am. Hist.
 Assn.* (1911), I: 495; see also Dir. Hist. of Trin. Church, I: 137.
 The commission of this date, differently engrossed on two large sheets of parchment, its ornamental border having in the upper left-hand corner a beautifully drawn portrait of Queen Anne (see Pl. 27, Vol. IV), is now owned by the N. Y. Hist. Soc. It was purchased on Nov. 1, 1890 (for $500), and presented to the society by six of its members, together with Cornbury's instructions (two documents, both dated Jan. 29, 1703; q. v.), and the original border which contained them (a wooden box, about 11½ in. long, 8½ in. wide, and 2½ in. deep, covered with old tooled calf-skin, and lined with black-and-white figured paper).

Although no attempt has hitherto been made in this Chronology to give more than a very brief reference to governours' commissions or instructions, a fuller digest of the contents of this hitherto unpublished document and the accompanying "Instructions" may be found interesting. As Prof. Andrews, op. cit., observes:

"The commissions and instructions issued not only to the royal governors, but to the proprietary governors also, are among the most important constitutional documents of our colonial history. In the case of the royal provinces especially they formed the chief constitutional basis of the Government and became

Nov.
27

Dec.

1

"

"

5

1702 the medium through which the mother country declared its
Dec. policy. . . .

5 "The governor's commission was issued under the great seal. It is a long document couched in general phrases, and it underwent but few changes, during the eighteenth century. . . .

"The instructions are more important than the commissions, for they are specific and not general, and contain, when studied chronologically, a complete exposition of British policy. They were prepared in the plantation office, as a rule, but frequently underwent revision at the hands of the committee of the whole council and the secretary of state. They were customarily submitted to the attorney general, and certain parts of them went to the treasury, the admiralty, the commissioners of customs, and the Bishop of London for inspection and criticism. Frequently these same boards and individuals were invited to make suggestions, and did so, particularly the commissioners of customs and the bishop, and they and others were in the habit also of making proposals on their own account, which were submitted in the form of drafts. Most of the trade instructions were drawn up by the treasury or the customs commissioners, and many additional instructions originated with the privy council or the secretary of state.

"An interesting feature of this early process of drawing up the governor's instructions is the advice obtained from unofficial sources. A rough draft of the instrument was generally submitted to the appointee, if in England, and he was invited to send in recommendations and to suggest changes and improvements. In one case a prospective governor was allowed to search the files of the plantation office that he might post himself on the affairs of the colony. . . .

"The governor generally took his instructions with him when he sailed for the colony. . . . The governor did not publish the instructions as he did the commission, and as a rule did not make them known even to his council. He might read one or more clauses in his address to the assembly, and such would be printed in the sessional papers or, may be, found in the proceedings of the assembly as kept by the clerk. In fact, the instructions were secret orders, intended only for the governor's use as the guide to his administration. . . .

Queen Anne's commission to Cornbury, written without paragraphs or punctuation, and in the old English style of engrossed lettering, difficult to decipher, has been skillfully transcribed by an expert on colonial land grants, Mr. Aloys Maerz, for the purpose of establishing in court that Cornbury had power to grant land with whatever quit-rents he saw fit, not being limited in any way, as has been claimed; also for the purpose of establishing the fact that patents for land were required to be recorded. From the typewritten carbon-copy of this transcription, owned by the N. Y. Hist. Soc., the following digest of the commission has been prepared. Separating the various subjects into paragraphs, for clearness, the document begins:

"Anne by the Grace of God of England Scotland France and Ireland Queen Defender of the Faith & To Our right Trusty and Well beloved Edward Hyde Comonly called Lord Cornbury Greeting.

"We reposing especial trust and Confidence in the prudence Courage and loyalty of you the said Lord Cornbury of our especial Grace certain knowledge and meer mocon have thought fit to Constitute and appoint and by these presents doe Constitute and appoint you the said Lord Cornbury to be Our Captain General and Governor in Cheife in and over our Province of New York and the Territories depending thereon in America

"And We doe hereby require and command you to doe and execute all things in due manner that shall belong unto your said Command and the trust We have reposed in you according to the several powers and directions granted or appointed you by this [present] Commission and the Instructions and Authorities herein given you or by such further Powers Instructions and Authorities as shall at any time hereafter be granted or appointed you under our Signett and Signe Manuall or by our Order in our Privy Council and according to such reasonable Laws and Statutes as are now in force or hereafter shall be made and agreed upon by you with the advice and consent of the Council and assembly of our said Province under your Government in such manner and forme as is hereafter expressed"

Then follow the queen's orders that Lord Cornbury, after publishing "these our letters Patents," shall take five different oaths. These are: 1, "the oaths appointed by Act of Parliament to be taken instead of the Oathes of Allegiance and Supremacy;" 2, "the Oath mentioned in the Act entituled an Act to declare the alteration in the Oath appointed to be taken by the Act entituled an Act for the further Security of his Majestie's person and the Succession of the Crown in the protestant line and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales and all other pretenders and their open and secret abettors and for declaring the association to be determined;" also, 3, "The mentioned in the Act of Parliament made in the five and Twentieth year of the Reigne of King Charles the Second entituled an Act for preventing dangers which may happen from Popish recusants;" together with, 4, "an Oath for the due execution of the Office and Trust of our Captain General and Governor in Cheife in and over Our said Province of New York and the Territories depending thereon as well with regard to the equal and impartial Administration of Justice in all Causes that shall come before you as otherwise;" and likewise, 5, "the Oath required to be taken by Governors of plantacons to doe their utmost that the laws relating to the plantacons be observed." All these oaths "our Council of our said Province or any three of the members thereof have hereby full power and authority and are required to administer unto you and in your absence to our Lewtenant Governor if there be any upon the Place." Cornbury is required to administer to each member of the council and to the lieutenant-governour the oaths numbered 1, 2, 3, and 4 in the above summary.

The queen gives Cornbury "full Power and Authority to suspend any of the members of our said Council from sitting voting and assisting therein," if he finds just cause for so doing.

Three councillors shall constitute a quorum. In case of a vacancy in the council, due to death, departure from the province, suspension, or otherwise, Cornbury is required to "signify the same unto us by the first opportunity that Wee may under our Signett and Signe Manuall constitute and appoint others in their Stead But that our affaires at that distance may not suffer for want of a due number of Councillors if ever it shall happen that there be lesse than seven of them residing in our said Province," authority is given to him "to choose as many persons out of the Principall Freeholders Inhabitants thereof as will make up the full number of our said Council to be seven and no more." Such appointees shall be councillors until confirmed by the queen or others are appointed "under our Signe manuell and Signett."

Power and authority are given to Cornbury, "with the advice and Consent of our said Council from time to time as need shall require to summon and call generall assemblies of the said freeholders and Planters" within this government, according to the usage of this province. The persons, "thereupon duly elected by the major part of the freeholders of the respective Counties and Places and so returned," having taken the oaths before sitting (those numbered 1, 2, and 3 in the enumeration given above), "shall be called and held the Generall Assemblies of that our Province and Territories depending thereon."

In order that he, with the advice of the council and assembly (or the majority of each), shall have full power and authority "to make constitute and ordaine Laws Statutes and ordinances for the Publick welfare and good Government of our said Province . . . and for the benefit of us our Heires and Successors" (which laws are not to be repugnant but agreeable to the laws of England), it is provided that such laws, statutes, and ordinances shall be transmitted to the queen ("under our Seale of New Yorke"), within three months after they are made, for her approbation or disallowance; and duplicates of them shall be sent by the next conveyance. In case of them that are "disallowed and not approved," and Cornbury or the commander-in-chief of the province, is so informed "by us our Heires or Successors under our or their Signe Manuall and Signett or by order of our or their Privy Council," those so disallowed shall "therefor cease determine and become utterly void and of none effect." That "nothing may be passed or done by our said Council or assembly to the prejudice of us our Heires or Successors," Cornbury is allowed "a negative voice" in the making and passing of all laws, statutes, and ordinances; and he may likewise, from time to time, as he shall judge necessary, "adjourn prorogue and dissolve all Generall Assemblies."

He shall keep and use "the Publick Seale of our Province of New Yorke" for sealing "all things whatsoever that passe the Great Seale of our said Province" under his government.

Dec.
5

1702
Dec.
5

He is empowered, as is also anyone authorized by him, to administer "the Oath of Allegiance and Supremacy" to residents in the province.

He is authorized, with the advice and consent of the council, to establish "Courts of Judicature and publick Justice," both criminal and civil, according to law and equity; also to appoint fit persons in the several parts of his government to administer the oaths numbered 1, 2, and 3 in the above enumeration; to appoint judges, and, in requisite cases, "Commissioners of Oyer and Turnier Justices of the Peace and other necessary officers and ministers in our said Province for the better administration of Justice and putting the Laws into execution," and to administer or cause to be administered to them the usual oaths. He is also given pardoning power in criminal cases, and power to remit fines and forfeitures, "Treason and Willfull murder only excepted," in which cases he may grant reprieves "untill and to the intent our Royal pleasure may be knowne therein.

"And Wee doe by these presents authorize and impower you to collate any person or persons to any Churches, Chappells or other Ecclesiastical Benefices within our province and territory aforesaid as often as any of them shall happen to be void."

He and the "Captaines Commanders" authorized by him are given full power and authority "to Levy Armes muster command and employ all persons whatsoever residing within our said province of New Yorke and other the territories under your Government and as occasion shall serve them to transfer from one place to another for the resisting and withstanding of all Enemies Pirates and Rebels both at Sea and Land and to transport such forces to any of our plantacons in America if necessity shall require for the defence of the same against the invasion or attempts of any of our Enemies and such Enemies Pirates and Rebels if there shall be occasion to pursue and prosecute in or out of the limitts of our said province or plantacons or any of them and if it shall so please God them to vanquish apprehend and take and being taken either according to law to put to death or keep and preserve alive at your discreon and to execute Martiall Law in time of invasion insurrection or war and to doe and execute all and every other thing and things which to our Captain General and Governor in Chief doth or ought of right to belong."

He is also given full power and authority "to erect raise and build . . . such and so many forts and platformes castles cities boroughs townes and fortifications" as he, with the council's advice and consent, shall judge necessary; and to fortify and furnish them with "Ordnance Ammunition and all sorts of armes fitt and necessary" for the security and defence of the province; also "to demolish or dismaunt" any of them as may be most convenient.

Inasmuch as "divers mutinies and disorders may happen by persons shipped and employed at Sea during the me of warr," Cornbury is authorized "to constitute and appoint Captaines Lieutenants Masters of Ships and other Commanders and officers," and to grant them commissions "to execute the law martiall during the time of Warr and to use such proceedings authorities punishment coercion and execution upon any offender or offenders which shall be mutinous seditious disorderly or any way unruly either at Sea or during the time of their aboarde or residence in any of the Ports harbours or bayses of our said province," excepting "any Captaine Comander Lieutenant Master officer seaman soldier or person whatsoever who shall be in actual service and pay in or on board any of our shippes of Warr or other vessells acting by immediate comission or warrant from our High Admirall of England under the Seale of our Admiralty;" such captain, commander, etc., so offending, "to be proceeded against and tryed as the merits of their offences shall require either by comission under our great seale of England as the Statute of the Twenty eighth of Henry the Eighth directs or by comission from our High Admirall of England or from our Commissioners for executing the office of our High Admirall of England for the time being according to the Act of Parliament passed in the thirteenth year of the reigne of the late king Charles the Second entituled an Act for establishing articles and orders for the regulating and better government of his majesties Navy's Shippes of Warr and forces by sea;" provided, nevertheless, that when disorders and misdemeanors are committed on shore by any such captain, etc., the offender "may be tryed and punished according to the laws of the place where any such disorders offences and misdemeanors shall be so committed," notwithstanding such offender is in actual service on a ship of war, or other vessel, by commission of the high admiral, and he "shall not receive any protection for the avoiding of Justice for such offences committed on shore from any pretence of his being employed in our service at Sea."

Dec.
5

All "publick moneys" raised in the province and the territories depending upon it shall "be issued out by Warrant" from Gov. Cornbury with the advice and consent of the council, and disposed of by him "for the support of the Government and not otherwise."

He is given power and authority, with the advice and consent of the council, "to settle and agree with the inhabitants of our province and territories aforesaid for such lands tenements and hereditaments as now are or hereafter shall be in our power to dispose of," and to grant them to any persons for such terms and under such moderate quit-rents, services, etc. "to be reserved unto us" as Cornbury (with the council's consent) shall think fit. Such grants shall be sealed with "our Seale of New Yorke," and when recorded "shall be good and effectual in law against us our heires and successors."

He is given power, with the advice and consent of the council, to appoint "Faires marts and markets;" also ports, harbours, bays, havens, etc. for the convenience and security of shipping.

All officers, etc., both civil and military, and all inhabitants, are commanded "to be obedient aiding and assisting" to Lord Cornbury in the execution of this comission. In case of his death or absence from the province, they are to be likewise obedient to "our Lieutenant governor or Comander in chief," and to him is given, "by these presents," all the powers and authorities granted by Cornbury's comission, "to be by him executed and enjoyed during our pleasure or until your arrival within our said province and territories." If, in the event of Cornbury's death or absence "out of our City Province and Territories," there is no person "upon the place" commissioned or appointed "by us" to be lieutenant-governour or commander-in-chief, "then the present Council of our said Province do take upon them the administration of the government and execute this comission . . ." and such councillor who, at the time of Cornbury's death or absence, shall be residing within the province "and cominated by our instructions to you", before any other at that time residing there, "doe preside in our said Council with such powers and prehemincias as may be necessary in these circumstances for the due and orderly carrying on the publick Service in the administration of the government as aforesaid until our pleasure be further knowne or until your arrival."

Lastly, Cornbury is to execute and enjoy the office of "Captaine General and Governor in Chief in and over our Province of New York and the Territories depending thereon . . ." As there are "divers colonies adjoining to our Province of New York for the defence and security wherof it is requisite that due care be taken in the time of war," Lord Cornbury is appointed "Captaine General and Commaoder in Chief of the Militia and of all the forces by sea and land within our colonies of Connecticut and of East and West New Jersey and of all our forts and places of strength within the same," and, for this purpose, he is given (or, in his absence, the commander-in-chief of the province is given) "all and every the like powers as in these presents are before granted and recited for the ruling governing and ordering our Militia and all our forces fforts and places of strength within our province of New York . . ."

"In Witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made Patents Witness our Selfe at Westminster the 5th day of December in the first year of our reign." (The great seal of England attached.)

For Cornbury's instructions, see Jan. 29, 1703.

The aged Peter Peiret, minister of the French congregation, is granted a pension of £60 by Cornbury and council, in response to his petition, in which he recites that Bellomont ordered a yearly pension to be given to Vesey and himself, to May 1, 1699, out of the revenues of the province.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 250. See Sept. 2, 1704; Dec. 13, 1709.

Cornbury describes, in a letter to the lords of trade, the difficulty of communication with England: "I intreat your Lordships to consider that but few shippes goe directly from this port in England, so that I must depend upon the Boston and Philadelphia Posts for conveying my letters to such shippes as may be going to England; And some times both those Conveyances fail."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1017.

1702 The council orders that a proclamation issue forbidding the
 Dec. distilling of rum in New York City, or within a mile of the city 18 hall.—Cal. Coun. Min., 177. See Dec. 24, 1702, and June 19, 1703.

19 The chaplain and surgeon (probably of the troops) reside in the fort, as appears from a council order of this day to supply furniture for their lodgings there.—Cal. Coun. Min., 177.

23 The common council resolves to petition Gov. Cornbury to recommend to the Bishop of London, in behalf of the city, "to send Over hither A person of good Learning of pious life and Vertuous Conversation of English Extract and of good and mild temper" to be schoolmaster. There is no person in the city at present qualified and available to take the position. The governor is also to be requested "to Recommend the further Encouragement of the said free school to the society for propagating the Gospell in foreign parts;" and likewise to recommend to the queen to "Appropriate A parte of the . . . Kings farms lying within this City for the further Encouragement of the said free school."—M. C. C., II: 213. This address, when duly drafted and approved by the common council on Jan. 15, 1703, recited the act of Nov. 27 (for this purpose), and stated that it was doubtful whether either this or "the Neighbouring Countrys" could supply
 New York with the desired person for schoolmaster.—Ibid., II:
 215-16.

24 Benjamin Faneuil, in a petition to the governor and council, states that he has purchased a building for distilling rum from molasses, on the marsh of the Fresh Water, and asks permission to continue this business, notwithstanding the recent proclamation (see Dec. 18, 1702), and to erect a wharf on the waterside.—
Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 304.

"Christo. Denn" (a carpenter) is paid £100 "for work done and materials provided by him for the Publicke Building in her Majesties Fort at New York."—Conveyances, Liber XXX, unnumbered p. 92.

In the same general accounts of the province, is a payment of £30:19:2 "for y<sup>e</sup> making of a chimney in the Custom house where there was none before."—Ibid.

1703

— A census of the city of New York was taken "about the year 1703." It shows the names of 818 "Masters of Families," by city wards; and the number of "Males from 16 to 60," of "females," of male children and of female children, respectively, of male and female negroes, and male and female negro children, respectively, and "all above 60." The total number of these inhabitants was 4,436. This number is computed; none of the totals for the different family enumerations appearing in the record.—Doc.
Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 395-405. The same figure for the total population is given in A Century of Population, 11. See also the same or a similar census list in Valentine's Hist. City of N. Y.
 (1853), 344-65. This census shows an apparent loss in population since the census of 1698 (q. v.).

— Elias Neau calls the attention of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts to the great number of slaves in New York who are "without God in the world," and of whose souls there is "no manner of care taken." He proposes the appointment of a catechist to undertake their instruction. "He himself finally being prevailed upon to accept this position obtained a license from the Governor [see Aug. 4, 1704], resigned his position as elder in the French church and conformed to the Established Church of England. . . . He was later licensed by the Bishop of London."—Jour. of Negro History, ed. by Carter G. Woodson (1916), I: 356, citing Pascoe's Digest of the Records of the S. P. G., 55-57. For earlier references to Elias Neau, see the order of the provincial council on Sept. 7, 1699 (Cal. Coun. Min., 142), and his enlistment as a voter on Sept. 29, 1701 (M. C. C., II: 174, 177).
 See also An Account of the Endeavors Used by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, To instruct the Negroe
Slaves in New York. Together with Two of Bp. Gibson's Letters on that Subject (n. d.), an extract, now very scarce, from Dr.
 Humphrey's Historical Account of the Incorporated Society from its foundation to 1728 (London, 1730).

— At this time, Benjamin Wynkoop, silversmith, was living in the South Ward. Between 1703 and 1732, he served as collector and assessor at various times. For information regarding his life, and descriptions and illustrations of his work, see Met. Museum of Art Catalogue of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South, with notes on early New York silversmiths by R. T. Haines Halsey (1911), 65-67.

Inventories of this year mention "8 leather cheares very old," and "2 large elboe leather chairs £7." The high value placed on these latter leads authorities to think that they were of the fine Spanish leather variety.—Lockwood, Colonial Furniture in Am. (1901), 134, 146. Leather chairs, as first used in Europe, were really of Italian design, coming to England through Holland during the Commonwealth. The colonists who came directly from Holland may have used them even before that time.—
Ibid., 134.

The consistory of the Dutch Church agrees to sell the poorhouse (which stood at the present No. 34 Broad St.) to Franz van Dyk. This purchase seems not to have been completed, for, in Sept., 1709 (?), the consistory record reads: "The Poor House in the Schape Wytje, which was sold to Isaac Kip was deeded to him."—Church Records, Liber 41. See Eccles. Rec., III: 1802; Castello Plan, II: 246-47; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 953.

The common council orders that, "for the better Encouragement of the Ferry of this City," a petition be made to the governor and council for a grant of "all the Vacant Land from High water to Low water Marke fronting the harbour of this City from the Red hooke upon Nassaw Island to the Wallabough . . . for the better and more Convenient taking in and Landing Passengers Corne &c."—M. C. C., II: 216. This petition was passed upon by "this Court" on Feb. 15, and entered in the minutes.—Ibid., II: 221-22. An order was issued on it by the governor and council on March 11.—Cal. Coun. Min., 180; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 308. But a caveat by the town of Brookland against a patent to the city of New York was discussed in the council on Mar. 25, special attorneys appearing for each side.—Cal. Coun. Min., 181. There were other hearings on April 17 and 22 (ibid., 182, 183); and evidently the patent did not issue at that time.—See Jan. 23, and March 3, 1708.

The common council orders the clerk to deliver to William Anderson (see Oct. 14)—clerk of the committee on auditing the public accounts—the "Booke of Acc<sup>ts</sup> of M<sup>r</sup> Evert Beycnaw late Treasurer of this City" (see Sept. 29, 1700).—M. C. C., II: 217.

George Clarke's deputation and instructions as deputy auditor of revenues in New York are signed and sealed. On March 29, further instructions were issued to him, and Abraham Depewster's commission as such officer is revoked.—Blatway's Jour.
 (transcript), II: 129.

Queen Anne signs "Instructions for Edward Hyde Esq<sup>r</sup> commonly called Lord Cornbury (Son and Heir apparent y<sup>e</sup> Earl of Clarendon) Our Captain Generall and Governor in Chief of Our Province of New York and the Territtories depending thereon in America." The original document, comprising 28 pages, legibly written, signed, as usual, at the top of the first page, "Anne R," and on the last page, "AR," and sealed with the royal seal, is owned by the N. Y. Hist. Soc. These instructions, in 100 paragraphs, briefly stated are:

With the instructions Cornbury will receive "Our Commission under Our Great Seal of England" (see Dec. 5, 1702).

He is to take upon himself "the execution of the place and Trust" reposed in him, and "forthwith to call together the Members of Our Council for that Province."

He is, "with all due and usual Solemnity to cause Our Said Commission under Our Great Seal of England . . . to be read and published at the Said meeting of Our Council."

After this, the governor shall himself take, and administer to each of the council members, "the Oaths appointed by act of Parliament to be taken instead of the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy . . . as also the Test . . . together with an Oath for the due execution of your and their places and Trusts, as well with regard to the equal and impartial Administration of Justice in all causes that shall come before you, as otherwise, and likewise the Oath required to be taken by Governours of Plantations to do their utmost that the Laws relating to the Plantations be observed."

He is immediately "to communicate unto Our Said Council
 Such and So many of these Our Instructions wherein their advice and consent are mentioned to be requisite."

As the inhabitants of the province "have of late years been unhappily divided, and by their Enmity to each other Our Service

1703
Jan.
29

And their own general welfare have been very much obstructed," Cornbury is to avoid engaging "in the parties which have been formed amongst them, and to use Such impartiality and moderation to all, as may best conduce to Our Service and the good of the Colony."

The members of the council are to "have and enjoy freedom of debate and Vote, in all affairs of publick concerne."

Though the commission directs that three members shall make a quorum, "It is nevertheless Our Will and pleasure that you do not Act wth a Quorum of less than five members."

In order that the queen "may be always informed of the Names and Characters of persons fitt to Supply the Vacaneys which shall happen in Our Council at New York," Cornbury is to send "with all convenient Speed the Names and Characters of Six persons inhabitants of the Said Province . . . whom you shall esteem the best qualified for that trust."

In the choice and nomination of council members and other officials, he is to take care "that they be men of good life, and well affected to Our Government, and of good Estates and abilities, and not necessitous people, or much in debt."

The number of members in the council is to be neither increased nor decreased, and no one is to be suspended unless the reasons for such action be entered upon the minutes and also transmitted to England.

Any member of the council who is absent from the province for more than a year without permission is to lose his place.

The "Style" of enacting laws is to be "by the Governour, Council and Assembly and no other."

In passing laws, Cornbury is to see that matters entirely separate and distinct from one another be treated in different acts, and "to take care that no Clause or Clauses be inserted in, or annexed to any Act, which Shall be Forreigne to what the Title of Such respective Act imports."

Copies of all laws passed are to be sent to England within three months of their passage, unless some unexpected circumstances shall retard the shipping.

In all acts "for levying money, or imposing Fines and penalties," there is to be a specific mention "that the Same is granted or reserved to Us, Our heirs and Successors for the publick uses of that Our Province and the Support of the Government thereof."

No money is to be granted to any governour or lieutenant-governour, except according to the style of parliamentary acts,—i. e., the money is to be nominally granted to the crown "with the humble desire . . . that the same be applied to the use and behoof of such Governour," if the queen "so think fitt."

When the governour is absent from the province, "One full moiety of the Salary and of all perquisites and Emoluments whatsoever, w<sup>ch</sup> would otherwise become due" to him are to be paid to the acting head of the government.

Under no circumstances is Cornbury to leave New York "to come to Europe," unless he first obtains permission "under our Sign Manual and Signet."

A detailed account of all receipts and payments is to be kept and transmitted semi-annually to the treasurer of Great Britain.

No public money is to be paid except on warrants signed by the governour, but the assembly may from time to time examine into the disposition made of the money appropriated by them.

All laws relating to taxes on wines or liquors are to hold for less than a year, and other acts are to be made "indefinite and without limitation of time."

Cornbury is not to pass any law "whereby the price or Value of the Current Coyne within your Government . . . may be altered."

And no law which might tend to lessen the queen's revenue is to receive his consent.

No fines above £10 may be remitted without permission from England.

At the first opportunity, Cornbury is to send "a Map with the exact description of the whole Territory under your Government, with the severall plantations upon it, and of the Fortifications," and likewise a map "of all y<sup>e</sup> Indian Country in the neighbourhood of Our Plantations in those parts, marking the Names of the Severall Nations . . . and the places where they inhabit."

He is also to send a list of all government officials and an account of the present revenue.

Jan.
29

The governour is ordered to examine the "capacity and behaviour" of holders of offices "granted under the great Seal of England," and to report thereon to the crown.

All the goods and money taken from pirates are to be safely secured, until he has received instructions for their disposal.

The laws of England regarding pirates and trials for piracy are to be strictly enforced.

Cornbury is to send a detailed account of all courts, their officers, powers, fees, etc.

A court of exchequer is to be called, in order that the queen's "rights and dues be preserved and recovered, and that Speedy and effectual Justice be administered in all cases relating to Our Revenue."

All the inhabitants, "except papists," are to be permitted liberty of conscience.

An annual report of the population is to be sent to England, together with an account of the number "fitt to bear Arms in the Militia."

All "Planters & Christian Servants" are to be provided with arms, and trained in the use of them, so that they may be ready to defend the province in case of need.

Military law is not to be established without permission from England.

The colonists are ordered to draw up a law for punishing mutiny and desertion and for "the better preserving of good Discipline amongst . . . Soldiers."

Upon application made by ships of war for additional seamen, the governour is to see that such ships be furnished with the number necessary for good service.

Cornbury is warned not to exercise, too extensively, his power of suspending commanders of warships.

He is to demand an account of all the arms, ammunition, and stores received or bought at New York, and to send a report of the disposition of them, together with an inventory of all such stores now in the garisons of the province.

He is likewise to send an exact account of all the goods and ships that enter the port.

The parliamentary acts concerning trade and navigation are to be put into execution in order that all illegal trade may be stopped.

Cornbury is to take special care "that God Almighty be devoutly and duly Served . . . the Book of Common prayer, as by Law established, read each Sunday & Holiday, and the blessed Sacrament administered according to the rites of the Church of England . . . that the Churches already built there be well and orderly kept, and that more be built as a Competent maintenance to be assigned to the Minister of each Orthodox Church, a convenient house be built at the Common charge for each Minister, and a competent proportion of Land assigned him for a Glebe, and exercise of his Industry."

No minister is to be assigned to an ecclesiastical benefice unless he has "a certificate from . . . the Bishop of London, of his being conformable to the Doctrine and Discipline of the Church of England, and of a good life and conversation."

A schoolmaster without a license from the Bishop of London is not to be allowed to teach in the province.

A "Table of Marriages, established by the Canons of the Church of England," is to be hung up in every church and duly observed.

"Drunkeness and debauchery Swearing and blasphemy" are to be "discountenanced & punished."

Merchants, who bring trade to the province, or in any way "contribute to the advantage thereof, and in particular to the Royall African Company of England," are to be invited to settle at New York.

An annual account of the number of negroes shipped, and of the rates of shipping is to be made to England.

The governour is also to give, from time to time, a general report of the province, its products, needs, improvements, etc.

Appeals from the courts of the province may be made to the governour and council, provided the amount of the case exceeds £100. In cases where the amount is more than £500 further appeals may be made to the privy council of England.

A law "for the restraining of any Inhuman Severity, which by ill masters or Overseers may be used towards their Christian

1703 Servants and their Slaves, and . . . that the willful killing of Jan. Indians and Negroes may be punished with death," is recom-29 mended to be passed.

Cornbury is directed to use every means "to facilitate and encourage the conversion of Negroes and Indians to the Christian Religion."

He is "to provide for the raising of Stocks and building of publick workhouses in convenient places for the employing of poor and indigent people."

He is to call upon the neighbouring provinces for the money which the late King William III ordered them to raise to help build forts on the frontiers of New York, and also to recommend to the New York assembly that provision be made for "what further Shall be requisite for repairing erecting and maintaining of such Forts."

In case the frontiers should ever be in danger, the neighbouring provinces are to be called upon for specified numbers of men to help in their defence.

The forts at Albany and Schenectady are to be kept in good repair, as well as new ones built.

Cornbury is to transmit, as soon as possible, a report of all the forts and fortifications in Connecticut as well as in New York.

He is "not to suffer any Innovation within the River of New York, nor any goods to pass up the Same, but what Shall have paid the duties at New York, to the end the chief benefit of that Trade may be preserved to the Inhabitants and Traders of New York and Albany."

He is to call upon the Five Nations to renew "their Submission to Our Government," and to assure them "that we will protect them as Our Subjects against the French King and his Subjects."

He is to prepare an account "of what goods, Arms and other stores &c have been Sent from hence to the two last Governors to be distributed as presents to the five Nations of Indians aforesaid, and how the Same have been distributed."

As the queen has been informed that New York "does abound with Vast Numbers of pine trees proper for the production of pitch and Tarr . . . and that there are likewise great Numbers of Oaks and other Timber Trees fit for Beams, planks and other uses in Our Navy Yard and it being highly for Our Service and the advantage of this Kingdom that all Sorts of Naval Stores be as much as possible produced in Our plantations in America, and from thence imported hither," Cornbury is directed to apply to his "utmost care and diligence towards the promoting of So necessary a work."

He is to see "that no person keep any press for printing nor that any Booke pamphlet or other matters whatsoever be printed without a license, as "great inconveniencies may arise by the liberty of printing."

The queen ends by saying that as she considers "the good of Our plantations and the improvement of the Trade thereof, by a Strict and punctual observance of the Severall Laws in force concerning the Same, to be of So great importance to the benefit of this Our Kingdom and to the advancing of the duties of Our Customes," any failure in the observance of those laws within New York, due to Cornbury's neglect, will be looked upon as a breach of the trust reposed in him and be punished "with the loss of your place in that Government, and Such further marks of Our displeasure as Wee Shall judge reasonable to be inflicted upon you."

Additional orders and instructions to Cornbury, bearing the same date as the foregoing, and forming a separate document of 30 pages of manuscript (on 16 leaves), accompany the "Instructions." It forms part of the Cornbury items purchased and presented to the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (see Dec. 5, 1702). This document, in the same handwriting as the "Instructions," begins, likewise, with the royal seal and signature, and bears the title: "Orders and Instructions to Edward Hyde Esq<sup>r</sup> commonly called Lord Cornbury (son and Heir apparent to the Earle of Clarendon) Our Captain General and Governour in Chief of Our Province of New York in America; And in his Absence to the commander in Chief of the Said Province for the time being, in pursuance of Severall Laws relating to the Trade and Navigation of this Our Kingdom of England, and Our Colonies and Plantations in America. Given at Our Court at St James's the Twenty ninth day of January, 1702 [3]. In the first year of Our Reigne." These provisions are as follows:

1. Gov. Cornbury shall inform himself of "the Principall Laws relating to the Plantation Trade." These laws are enumerated by titles. He is required to "take a Solemn Oath" to do his utmost to cause these acts of parliament to be observed.

2. He shall take care that the "Navill Officers," appointed by him under the "Act for the Encouragement of Trade," shall give security for faithful performance of their duty.

3, 4, 5, and 6. He shall see that the "Act of Navigation," which restricts shipping to British-built vessels, with certain exceptions, and requires bonds of shippers, is enforced in this province in certain details, for the regulation of plantation trade and the prevention of frauds.

7. He shall, "every three Months or oftener, or otherwise as there shall be opportunity of Conveyance to England, transmit to the Commissioner of the Customes in England a List of all Ships and Vessells Trading in Our Said Province of New Yorke according to the form and Specimen herewith Sent to you;" and he shall "cause demand to be made of every Master at his Clearing of an Invoice of the Contents & Quality of his Lading . . ."

8 and 9. "Whereas by the aforesaid Act for the Encouragement of Trade, no Commodities of the Growth, production or Manufacture of Europe, except Salt for the Fishery of New England and Newfoundland, Wines of the Growth of y<sup>e</sup> Maderas or Western Islands or Azores, Servants and Horses from Scotland or Ireland, and all Sorts of Victuals of the Growth and production of Scotland and Ireland, shall be imported into any of Our Colonies or Plantations, but what shall be Bona fide and without fraud Laden and Shipped in England, Wales or at Berwick and in Ships duly qualified; You shall use your utmost Endeavours for the due observance thereof . . ."

9. This order provides against forged certificates of English lading.

10. He shall "not make nor allow of any By Laws, Usages, or Customes in Our Said Province of New Yorke, which are repugnant to any of the Laws herein before mentioned, . . ."

11. He shall "be aiding and Assisting to the Collector and other Officers appointed, or that shall hereafter be appointed by the Commissioners of the Customes in England, by and under the Authority and direction of the Lord high Treasurer of England or Commissioners of the Treasury in England . . . in putting in Execution the Several Acts of Parliament be fore mentioned . . ."

12. In case of actions at law, on any law or statute "concerning Our Duties, or Ships or Goods to be forfeited, by reason of any unlawful Importations or exportations," the jury shall be composed of natives of England, Ireland, or the plantations.

13. If he shall "discover that any persons or their Assigns claiming any right or Property in any Island or Tracts of Land upon the Continent of America, by Charter or Letters Patents, shall at any time hereafter Alien, Sell or dispose of any of the Said Islands Tracts of Land or Properties, other than to the Naturall born Subjects of England, Ireland Wales or Berwick without the License and consent of Us, Our Heirs and Successors, Signified by Our or their Order in Council first had and obtained," he is commanded to "give Notice thereof to Us, Our heirs and Successors or to the Lord high Treasurer of England or Commissioners of the Treasury in England . . ."

14. He shall "take care that all places of Trust in the Courts of Law or what relates to the Treasury of Our Said Province of New York to be in the hands of the Native born Subjects of England or Ireland or the Plantations."

15. Persons of "known Loyalty, Experience, Diligence, and Fidelity" shall be appointed to fill vacancies in office.

16. He shall "from time to time Correspond with the Commissioners of Our Customes in England," and advise them regarding negligence of customs officials, etc.

17. He shall enforce certain provisions of the "Act for preventing frauds and regulating abuses in the Plantation Trade," particularly with reference to the registry of ships, prize ships etc.

18. He shall also enforce certain provisions of an "Act to prevent the exportation of Wool out of Our Kingdoms of Ireland and England into foreign parts, and for the encouragement of the Woolen Manufactures in Our Kingdom of England . . ."

19. Likewise, an act relating to duties upon sweets, vinegar, wines, etc. and the shipment of tobacco in casks (the full text of which forms part of this instruction).

1703 20. Lord Cornbury is particularly charged to carry out his instructions, and it is added that if there is any failure to do so, due to his "Willfull fault or Neglect," it will be looked upon "as a breach of the trust reposed in you by Us, which we will Punish with the Loss of your Place in that Governmt and Such further Marks of Our Displeasure as We shall Judge reasonable . . ."

Feb. 6. These orders and instructions are signed "AR," and following them are forms for making reports regarding ships entered and cleared; the shipment of tobacco; the list of ships trading to and from any plantation, with an enumeration and description of those entering inward and clearing outward; and a registry of prize ships.

6. Queen Anne's birthday. The city magistrates incur for the first time a considerable expense for such an occasion (G:1613, for which Mayor French was ordered reimbursed on Feb. 15).—M. C. C., II: 221. Later in the year, the governor's council ordered that Lancaster Symes be paid £27 for wine "for the Militia Regiment and Troops of the City and County of New York" on this occasion.—Ex. Coun. Min. (MS.), IX: 346 (Albany). Once before they had provided a banquet for the sovereign's birthday (see Nov. 2, 1700). For such celebrations at the expense of the provincial authorities, see Nov. 4, 1694; March 17, 1702. For later celebrations of Queen Anne's birthday at the expense of the city, see Feb. 6 in the years 1704, 1711, 1713, and 1714 (the year of her death). See also May 28, 1715.

11. The trustees of New Haven notify the governor's council that they wish the guns returned to them which were sent to New York in 1689.—Cal. Coun. Min., 179.

15. The petition of the "Rector, Wardens & Vestry men of Trinity Church" for the permanent use of the burial-place belonging to the city is granted by the common council. The original petition, which is not entered in the Minutes of the Common Council, states: "That there is a certain antient burial place in this City nere and adjoining unto the grownd of Trinity Church in New York, w<sup>ch</sup> y<sup>e</sup> petition<sup>rs</sup> do understand to belong to y<sup>e</sup> Said City as well by a long and contiud use of the inhabitants thereof to bury therco, as by and in right of their Charter of incorporation. That the petition<sup>rs</sup> are given to understand that some perquisite arising from burials therein, accustomed to be paid to y<sup>e</sup> Elders and Deacons of the Dutch Church in this City, before the date of the said Charter, have hitherto been Continued, to y<sup>e</sup> use of y<sup>e</sup> Said Dutch Church.

"The petition<sup>rs</sup> being lately incorporated by Charter for y<sup>e</sup> Worship of God according to the Church of England, as by Law Established, the principall inhabitants having Contributed largely towards the Erecting of y<sup>e</sup> Said Church and the assembly having provided for y<sup>e</sup> minister thereof 100 lb <sup>⁹</sup>/<sub>16</sub> ann. towards his maintenance Levied by tax upon the inhabitants thereof as their parochial Minister, they therefore humbly pray, that towards keeping the Church yard, and fences, in repair, and other incidental Charges.

"The Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen & Comon council of the Said City, will be pleas'd to grant unto the said petitioners for y<sup>e</sup> use of Trinity Church the said burial place for Ever, under such regulations, as to them in their prudence shall seem meet and y<sup>e</sup> petition<sup>rs</sup> as in duty bound Shall Ever pray &c." The petition bears 13 signatures, including "Willm Vesey Rector," "Tho: Wehman," etc.—From the original MS., preserved in metal file labelled "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room. It is endorsed "Granted febr 1703."

The order of the common council concerning this grant stated that the burial-place was "to be by them [the Rector, etc.] Appropriated for the publick Church yard and burial place of this City for Ever they & their successors always Keeping the same in good fence well Repaired and taking only for breaking of the Ground for Each person from twelve years of Age and Upwards three Shillings and for each Child under twelve years of Age One Shilling and six pence And no Other or greater duty Whatsoever for breaking the said Ground And that Mf Mayor Execute A Grant for the same Accordingly."—M. C. C., II: 221. The grant bears the date of April 22, 1703, and conveys "the burying place of the said city Nere and Adjoining to the Ground of Trinity Church on the West side of the broadway as itt Now standeth in fence."—Ibid., II: 232; City Grants, Liber B: 47 (comptroller's office). There was a further grant in 1751.—See March 19, 1751. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 927; and Pl. 174, Vol. III.

Gerardus Beekman petitions the common council "for A Grant of A slip of Ground in Queen Street in Order to make A publick Slip," and a committee is appointed to examine the subject.—M. C. C., II: 220. What appears to be the original MS. of this petition, although not dated, is filed with the "Misc. MSS." in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. It shows: "That adjoining to his Land fronting to Queen-street there lyes A small slip of Land belonging to the City the front whereof to Queue-st [free] would be sufficient in breadth for A street or slipp but at the south end thereof it Comes to noething abutting upon the Land of Coll<sup>d</sup>. Courtland as by A small draft thereof hereto affixed will appere. So that to make A Convenient Slip, there must be Added as much of y<sup>e</sup> petitioners land as the City hath there vacant, which your petition would be very willing to Comply with: on Condition that the City would ley y<sup>e</sup> slip at their own Charge and grant him the Land before his Lott to Lowwater key if any belonging to y<sup>e</sup> City." Only a fragment of the draft of the land is enclosed with the petition. The common council rejected the petition on April 22 (M. C. C., II: 221), but it was renewed with modifications on May 26 (ibid., II: 235), and granted on July 16. With this decision, the common council made an order appropriating a slip of ground "between the two Slaughter houses in Queen Street" for a public slip "for the use of the Corporation for Ever."—Ibid., II: 237. The grant was not executed, however, at this time, and on April 17, 1719, Beekman made application again.—Ibid., III: 200-1. The committee, then appointed to survey and lay out the land, made its report on April 24, 1722, when, again, the mayor was directed to execute the grant under the seal of the city.—Ibid., III: 285-86. The ground between the slaughter-houses which the city desired to reserve for a public slip, and which Beekman acquired, became known as Beekman's Slip. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988.

The common council orders that part of Queen St. be paved, "beginning at the house of Mf Adams the Stationer and Running West Ward along the Said Street to the Corner house of Geesie Lewis."—M. C. C., II: 224.

"It being moved which way the Kings Farm which is now 19 "vestry in Trinity Church" shall be "let to Farm," the vestry agrees that the rector and church-wardens shall "wait upon my Lord Cornbury the Gov<sup>t</sup> to know what part thereof his Lord [ship] did design towards the Colledge which his Lord designs to have built and thereupon to publish placarts for the Letting thereof at the public outcry to the highest bidder."—From the original Trin. Min. (MS.), not in vestry-book. Cf. Eccles. Rec., III: 1516-17, citing Dis. Hist. of Trin. Church, 145, 146, 149, where it is stated that "The movement culminated in the founding of Kings (now Columbia) College, fifty years later." See also Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 3.

"Ordered, that Capt Wilson, Capt Willet & Mf David Jamison 20 "do meet with Mf Isaac De Riemer and treat with him concerning the Lot of ground which he has lying [near?] to Trinity Church and agree with him for the same upon the most easy Terms they can for the use of Said Church."—Trin. Min., op. cit.

"Ordered, Capt Tothill and Capt [Lancaster] Sims wait upon Maj<sup>r</sup> de Brown and get him to Execute the Deed for parcell of Ground he pretended to, now within the bounds of Trinity Church Charter."—Ibid. This was the house of Cornelis Jansen Pluiver, described as in Block A, No. 17, Castello Plan, II: 224-25; C. P. 82. See, further, May 17, 1703; Feb. 3, 1708.

It is also ordered that Tothill and Sims, "with Capt Morris and Capt Wilson do also meet with the managers of the Dutch Church and endeavour to get them to Sign the Resignation of that piece of Land which they lay pretensions to, but is Contain'd in Trinity Church Charter."—Trin. Min. (MS.) This was the house and ground purchased by Samuel Driusius, then "Minister of the place," Nov. 5, 1654.—Liber Deeds, A: 9 (New York); see also Block A, No. 18, Castello Plan, II: 225-26, and C. Pl. 82. Wardens (managers) of the Dutch Church probably advanced some part of the money to buy this house for Driusius—they were also interested with him in the houses on his grant at the rear of the churchyard (Block A, Nos. 12-13, Castello Plan, II: 220-21; C. Pl. 82). Isaac de Riemer, a grandson of Margaret Driusius, usually represented the Driusius heirs in real estate transactions, after the death of the domine and his widow.—See Block K, No. 1, Castello Plan, II: 286, and C. Pl. 82. Isaac de Riemer, for the Driusius family, and the managers of the Dutch Church (who evidently were to "re-

- 1703 sign" or release their mortgage on the land) were the necessary
Feb. parties to this transaction.
- 19 "Ordered, That the Rector with [the] two Church Wardens and Mr Jamison treat with my Lord [Cornbury] concerning some money that was Collected for the Redemption of some Slaves out of Salley [Salee] which has been given to Trinity Church by order of Council, which now lyes in Holland for want of orders."— Trin. Min. (M.S.). See Aug. 4.
- 24 The governour having received advices from England of the victory of the British fleet and forces against the French and Spanish at Vigo, Spain (in taking and destroying 17 French men-of-war and 17 Spanish galleons, and also in taking the town and castles of Vigo), as well as the success attending the Confederate arms in Flanders against the French and Spanish, the common council orders "that A publick bonfire be made this Night within this City att the usual place that ten Gallons of wioe And A Barrell of Beer be also provided," at the city's expense, "to Drinke to her Majesties health, the Prince's and success to her Majesties Arms." It was also ordered that notice be given to all the housekeepers of the city "that they make publick Illuminations this Night as A further demonstration of their Joy for the said Victory."
—M. C. C., II: 227. The cost of the bonfire, beer, and wioe was £9:5—Ibid., II: 231.
- 25 Sir Jeffrey Jeffreys, in England, proposes that packet-boats be established between the Isle of Wight and New York. He offers to furnish two ships, each of 150 tons, carrying 14 guns and 40 men, "well built for sailing and provided with oars." He also proposes that they make regular trips, carrying packets, passengers, and freight. The charge for the undertaking is left for the consideration of "the Officers of the Navy and Post Office." The proposal has the queen's approval.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1030-31.
The lords of trade, however, see no benefit to the public unless the stay at New York is limited to five days.—Ibid., IV: 1031-32.
There is no record in these documents or elsewhere that this proposal was put into effect, even experimentally. We find, that, on July 1, 1708 (q.v.), Cornbury wrote to the board of trade: "I wish with all my heart that Packet Boats were Estab-lish'd to some port of this Continent." He described at that time the only ways then open for communication.
- 26 Francis Darvall petitions the common council for "A Grant of Confirmation of A Parcell of Land lying Near Mr sacketts formerly Called the Cherry Garden which was bequeathed to her by her Grandfather Thomas Delavall Merch deceased." A committee is appointed to have the land surveyed and a draught made.—M. C. C., II: 228. Cf. 1701; and June 4, 1701.
- " The new city hall not being completed, the common council meets during the winter "att the house of William Davis for the Conveniencey of A Warme fire Room and fire which the said William Davis furnished. . . ." A warraot for £2 to pay for the room and firewood is accordingly issued.—M. C. C., II: 229.
The tavern of William Davis (see July 31, 1700) stood at the present 65 Pearl St., next to the old Stadt Herbergh.
- Mar. The revenue of the ferry is appropriated toward finishing the city hall.—M. C. C., II: 230. See Jan. 11, 1699.
- 9 "The common council orders "that Elias Desgrange Peruke maker who Came hither with his Excellency the Governour be made a Freeman of this Corporation Gratis."—M. C. C., II: 231.
- 11 The tavern-keepers of the city of New York petition for compensation for having had soldiers billeted on them.—Cal. Hist.
MSS., Eng., 308.
- 16 The queen, at Westminster, gives a commission to George Clarke to be secretary of New York Province, in the place of Matthew Clarkson, deceased.—See Voyage of George Clarke, Esq., to America, with Introduction and Notes, By E. B. O'Callaghan (J. Munsell, Albany, 1867), xxv-xxx. See, further, July 23.
- Apr. The governour's council issues a warrant to Elias and Joho Pelletreux "for candles to the fort;" also, on the following day, a warrant to Peter Schuyler for firewood.—Cal. Coun. Min., 181.
The auditor-general, in the course of his "Observations" previously referred to (see Nov. 6, 1701), showed that these charges were "after the Rate of" £400 per year, and "will not be allowed by my Lord Treasurer."—Cal. MSS., XLIX: 16 (Albany).
- " News is received that Mr. Bridges, the second justice (see June 13, 1702), is appointed chief-justice by the queen. He was sworn in on April 5.—Cal. Coun. Min., 181. See, further, July 6, 1704.
- 8 The council meets at "fort Anne." This is the first mention in the Journal of the change of name from Fort William Henry to Fort Anne.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 188-89.
- Cornbury informs the members of his council: "since your Adjournment, I have received Information, that the French intend to attack this Place, by Sea this Summer." The best way to prevent this, he thinks, is "to erect two Batteries of Guns at the Narrows, one on each Side."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 190. After due consideration of the proposal by both the house of representatives and the council (Assem. Jour., I: 163, 164-65, 170; Jour. Leg.
Coun., I: 198; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 312), an act of the general assembly was passed on June 19 (q.v.), to raise money for this purpose.
- The minister and elders of the French Protestant Church present a petition to the assembly "praying Leave, to bring in a Bill, for enabling them to sell their present Meeting-House [see 1688], and Lot of Ground, and to purchase a larger Tract of Ground, to build a larger Meeting-House."—Assem. Jour., I: 159. A bill for this purpose was passed by the legislature on June 19 (q.v.).
- Because "several inconveniences have arisen" to the government in the colonies, by gifts made to governours by the general assemblies, the queen orders that neither the governour, the lieutenant-governour, the commander-in-chief, nor the president of the council of New York, shall give consent to the passing of any law for any gift to be made to any of them by the assembly, and that none of them shall receive any gift "from the Assembly or others on any account or in any manner whatsoever." The queen also orders that the governour's salary of £600, which is paid out of the provincial revenue, be increased by an additional £600 from the same source. This, she states, will enable the general assembly to apply to the defence of the province the sums which it is customary to give in presents.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1040-41. This letter was read by Cornbury to his council on Sept. 2 (Cal.
Coun. Min., 188), and to the house of representatives on Oct.
14.—Assem. Jour., I: 173-74. See, however, Oct. 28, 1710.
- This is the anniversary of the queen's coronation, for which, the day before, the common council ordered that there be a bonfire, with "two Barrells of Beer & An Anchor of Wioe to Drinke health to her Majesty."—M. C. C., II: 233. It cost the city £16:11:3 "for Wood Wine & beer &c. for A Bonfire."—Ibid., II: 234. See April 23, 1705.
- Major (Joho H.) de Bruyn promises to obtain a conveyance of a certain lot belonging to the Lutheran Church from the widow Pluvier.—MS. Records of Lutheran Church, (Protocol Buch), vol. for 1703-1705. See also Graebner, Hist. of the Lutheran Church (1892); Castello Plan, II: 225; C. Pl. 82, Vol. II; and Chronology, Feb. 19, 1703; Feb. 3, 1708.
- It is resolved "that the Choir (Trin. ch.) shall be decently restored in Lutheran Style."—Protocol Buch, of the Lutheran Church. This refers to the Lutheran "Trinity Church;" see 1729.
- The general assembly presents an address to Cornbury, defining the boundaries of the province and explaining how the natural features of this territory contribute "to our Calamities." The Hudson and St. Lawrence Rivers afford an easy passage for the French of Canada; and the Five Nations of Indians, who live
"contiguous," compel an "extreme Charge" (great expense) to gain their friendship. "The late War, drained us of the greatest Part of our Youth, who to avoid being detached to serve on the Frontiers forsake their native Soil, to settle in the neighbouring Colonies."
- The address positively states that, "Since the Peace" (which was obtained Sept. 10/20, 1697, q.v.), the province has raised over £22,000 in public monies, "a great Part of which has been lavished so profusely, misapplied contrary to the Ends for which it was given, and against the express Letter, of both the Letters Patents and Instructions of the late Governour (Bellomont); That it must be no Wonder, if the People (were they able) should be averse to giving, having fresh before their Eyes, such apparent Examples, of the unjust and unaccountable disposition of their Monies."
- Mention is made of the "Languishing and decay of Trade," due possibly to duties laid on goods here while "our Neighbours are Free," and possibly to the unlimited fees taken by the customs officers. Under these circumstances, the address says, the govern-our is "a most competent Judge . . . how capable we are of contributing to the Charge of erecting those Batteries, your Excellency intends for our Defence, . . ." The address then makes a plea for Cornbury's "Intercession with her most Sacred

1703 Majesty, to extend her gracious Bounty to these impoverished
 May Ports, in bestowing what in her Royal Pleasure, she shall judge 27 requisite, towards the finishing the intended Fortifications," the neighbouring colonies assisting in proportion to the benefits they receive.—Assem. Jour., I: 166-67. The legislature made allusion to this address on Oct. 9, 1718 (q.v.).

29 Cornbury writes to the lords of trade: "I have directed the Acts of Assembly which Her Majesty has been pleased to disallow to be taken out of the Secretary's Office, and to be destroyed."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1044. On July 29, they replied: "We can not approve of that method; it not being proper to destroy any Record, which for some time was in force, and to which recourse ought to be had upon occasion tho' not longer in force, nor has this method been practiced in any other of Her Majesty's plantations."—Ibid., IV: 1066.

June 1 An evidence of the "draft" and of the acceptance of "substitutes" in the second intercolonial war appears in the court records of this date, when Moses Levy, the plaintiff, asserts that he paid George Jewell, the defendant, five pounds to "goe and serve in the Room and Stead of him the said Moses at Albany in the quality of a soldier."—M. C. M. (MS.), June 1, 1709.

3 Trinity vestry orders "That Col Wenham pay M<sup>r</sup> David Jamison, what is reasonable for his pains & trouble in drawing the Deed for y<sup>e</sup> Burial place granted from the City of New York to Trinity Church."—Trin. Min. (MS.). The deed is dated and recorded April 22, 1703, in Liber City Grants, B: 47.

" It is agreed by Trinity vestry "with M<sup>r</sup> Ebets Bricklayer that he point the Steeple, y<sup>e</sup> Western part of y<sup>e</sup> Church, make middle Brick pillars in y<sup>e</sup> Windows & plaister them sufficiently to be finished on [or] before the 15th day of Sep<sup>r</sup> next, for which he is to have six pounds by y<sup>e</sup> following payments, viz: Fifteen pounds presently, fifteen pounds when y<sup>e</sup> worke is half done & the remaining thirty pounds at the finishing thereof, the Church is to find y<sup>e</sup> Iron Work."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See July 3, 1697; Feb. 27, 1706.

16 Col. Robert Quarry, judge of the admiralty in Penn., reports to the lords of trade regarding the state of all the English provinces. He refers to "Your Lordships directions for a meeting once a year of all the Queens Governors," which, he says, "would be of very great service upon several accounts and more especially in order to the removing all scruples and objections which may be raised against that general good of bringing all the Governments under one systeme form and Constitution."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1050. A congress of governors, to be held in New York, was proposed again, six years later.—See Sept. 26, 1709. Compare this early suggestion with the conferences of state governors eventually held in Washington in 1708, 1909, 1910, 1911, and 1912, and described in Harper's Encyc. of U. S. Hist., IV, title "Governors."

Quarry's report to the lords of trade states, further, that Cornbury "hath for a small charge built an extraordinary vault [see May 28, 1702] which will effectually secure the powder from those accidents [which might happen to the magazine over the entrance to the fort], and hath already put the Fort into some order, and in a little time designs to compleat that work."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1053.

17 The provincial legislature presents to Cornbury an address to the queen regarding the state of the province, with request that he convey it to her. It refers to "the great Hardships and Difficulties this poor Province hath laboured under during the last War." This "hath rendered it utterly impossible for us to support and defray so great a Charge as must necessarily arise, from the building, erecting and repairing such Fortifications only, as will be absolutely necessary for the Safety and Defence, not of this Province alone, but of all other your Majesty's Territories in North America, especially, when it comes to be considered, that through the great Neglect, ill Management, and Misapplication of the Revenue, by those who lately exercised the Power of Government, in this Province, the Fortifications on the Frontiers are totally decayed and ruined, and your Majesty's Revenue here burthened with very considerable Debt," etc. They ask assistance, therefore, from the crown.—Assem. Jour., I: 171-72.

19 The first act of the provincial legislature establishing a standard of sizes for casks, weights, and measures, is passed.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 554. A resolution of the assembly, on May 8, provided that the standard of England should be followed.—Assem. Jour., I: 162.

The provincial legislature passes "An Act for the Laying out Regulating Clearing and preserving Publick Comon highways thro'out this Colony." Among the roads mentioned, it is directed "That there be laid out preserved and kept for ever in good and Sufficient Repair one Publick Comon & General highway to Extend from the now Site of the City of New York thro' the City and County of New York and the County of West Chester of the breadth of four Rod English Measure at the least, to be Continue and remain for ever the Publick Comon General Road and highway from the said City of New York to the adjacent Collony of Connecticut." The act also applies to the preservation of trees along highways; against encroachments, and to the repair of highways by the townships and manors through which they pass. Commissioners are named to carry out the various provisions of the act. Those for the city and county of New York are William Anderson, Clement Elsworth, and Peter Oplenous (Oblinus).—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 532. The survey made by these commissioners was filed on June 16, 1707 (q.v.). The act of 1703 was explained by Hoffman, another act, passed Oct. 30, 1708.—Ibid., I: 612. See also Treatise upon the Estates and Rights of the Corporation, II: 249 et seq.

" The legislature passes "An Act Declaring the Illegality of the Proceedings agst Coll Nicholas Bayard & Alderman John Hutchins for pretended High Treason, and for Reversing and making null and voyd the said Judgments and all proceedings thereon." The act refers to this prosecution (see Dec. 30, 1701; Jan., Feb., March, and Apr., 1702) as "Crafty and Malitious," and states that the case was examined by the queen in council at St. James's on Jan. 21, 1703 (see N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1023), when it was ordered that the attorney-general here should consent to a reversal of the sentence against them and to their reinstatement in their honours and property. The act carries this order into effect.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 531, 530.

" The legislature passes a bill for raising £1,500 toward erecting two batteries at the Narrows, the passage between Staten Island and Long Island "leading from the main Sea into the bay or harbour of the City of New York." The object is to gain security for the city. The open passage "hath some time since given Encouragement to Strangers in a bold and warlike manner to enter our port and sound our Channells to the Surprise and Terror of this City." The money is to be raised by special levy upon the different classes of inhabitants. For example, members of council shall pay 40 shillings, but representatives only 20 shillings; lawyers, 20 shillings, but "Every person wearing a Peruwig" only 5 shillings, 6 pence; a bachelor who is a freeman of 25 years or over, 3 shillings, but if only 16 years or over, 9 pence; and the master or mistress of every slave of the age of 16 years and under, one shilling for each slave. Also a tax is laid of three pence per gallon of liquor, distilled during the next year.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 550. By July, 1704 (q.v.), the erection of the batteries had begun, but two years later the money had not been collected, and the batteries had not been completed.—See May 29, 1706.

" The legislature passes an act to enable the minister (Pieter Pieret or Peiret) and elders of the French Protestant Church to erect a larger building. The act describes the church lot (see 1688) as follows: It is situated on the south side of Petticoat Lane,—that is, "butting ootherly" to the street. It is bounded on the south by the ground of Jaspas Nissepat, deceased; on the west by that of Isaac de Forest, deceased, and on the east by that of Henry van Feurden. It is 48 ft, 9 in. long; has a street frontage of 27 ft, 7 in., and measures 28 ft, 6 in. in the rear. On the west side, from front to rear, there is taken off from this width a strip 3 ft, 3 in. wide for a common alley. The act enables the minister and elders to sell this ground and the church that stands on it, and to purchase other ground on which to build a larger church and dwelling-house for the minister. The money derived from the sale shall be used for no other purpose. They shall hold such new property in the name of "The Minister and Elders of the French Protestant Church in the City of New York."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 526. See July 8, 1704. It is interesting to observe that the Huguenots who settled at Westchester and other places around New York for a time resorted to the French church in New York.—Dunlap, Hist. of New Neth. (1840), II: Appendix, cliii. Those residing in New Rochelle, before the erection of their own church, came on foot, a distance of 18 miles, for Sunday morning service.—Waldron, Huguenots of Westchester, 43-44; citing John Pintard's Recollections.

June 19

"

"

"

- 1703 The legislature passes an act increasing the fund for the maintenance of Rev. William Vesey from £100 to £160. This is necessary because the collections intended for "perfecting" the church and steeple have been diverted toward supplying the deficiency in the rector's fund.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 543.
- June 19 The legislature passes "An Act for Prohibiting the Distilling of Rum and burning of Oysters Oyster shells or Stone into Lime within the City of New York or within half a miles Distaccoe of the City Hall of the said City."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 538. See Dec. 18, 1702. Corbary stated on April 13, in urging the passage of the bill, that he believed that these industries contributed to the "fatal Distemper" in New York during last summer.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 190. An unsuccessful effort was made in 1713 to amend this law.—Ibid., I: 365.
- 25 Various inhabitants of the South, Dock, and North Wards petition the common council that a common sewer may be made in Broad St., as directed by the act of Oct. 1, 1691 (Col. Laws N. Y., I: 269), "for Regulating the building Streets Lanes Wharfs & Docks and Alleys of the City of New York." The common council appoints James Evetts and Johannes d'Honneur to be "the surveyors Or Supervisors of this City by vertue of the Said Act."—M. C. C., II: 235. By Nov., a sewer existed in part of the street.—See Nov. 19 and 29, 1703.
- Mr. "D' Houeur" (D' Honneur), one of these appointees, occupied, prior to 1716, the building adjoining the custom-house in Pearl St. and in that year it was sold by Catharine Staats to Obadiah Hunt, a tavern-keeper.—Liber Deeds, XXVIII: 270-75; see also Nov. 20, 1716. He was later proprietor of the Black Horse Tavern in William St.—See Oct. 9, 1727.
- 30 Corbary writes to the lords of trade that he hopes "to get one of the Batteries [at the Narrows] up this summer."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1058. See June 19; May 29, 1706.
- Corbary informs the lords of trade that Kippis Bay "is the usual place for any of the Queen's ships to lay up in, in Winter for fear of the ice which drives down here in winter with great fury."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1061.
- July 12 Corbary sends to the lords of trade the twelve acts of the general assembly passed last spring, and outlines their provisions. One is "an Act to enable the Minister and Elders of the French Church to build a larger Church." See June 19. Their congregation is much enlarged.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 164-65.
- 16 The common council, on considering a petition of Gerard Beekman, orders "that the Ground between his Lott and Low Water marke lyiing in Queen Street fronting the East River on the West side of Beekman's Slaughter house be Granted unto him and to his Heirs and Assigns for Ever upon the Conditions following (Viz<sup>t</sup>) That the said Gerard Beekman Shall make A Wharfe or Street fronting the East River of thirty foot broad in Manner and forme & under such Covenants as the Other Wharfs & Streets in Queen Street Are or ought to be made, And also at his own proper Cost and Charges make a Slip on the West side of his Said Lott of Ground twenty four foot wide And A Wharfe of twelve foot wide And to Keep the same in Repair for Ever att his or their own Charge And that the surveyors Lay itt out and make A draft thereof and that M<sup>r</sup> Mayor Execute A Grant for the same Accordingly."—M. C. C., II: 237. This was the beginning of Beekman's Slip. See Jan. 7, 1772.
- Mayor French informs the common council of his intention to go to England. It is ordered that he deliver the charter and seals to the recorder, Samson Shelton Broughton, "till A New Mayor is Sworne."—M. C. C., II: 237-38. See Sept. 29.
- 29 George Clarke (see April 29, 1702) arrives in New York from England by way of Virginia.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1066; Voyage of George Clarke (cited under March 16, q. v.), xxxi. For brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 571. See also July 30.
- 30 George Clarke is sworn in as secretary of the province.—Cal. Coun. Min., 187.
- Lord Corbary is sworn in as captain-general and governor.—Cal. Coun. Min., 187. By his commission, the command of the militia of Connecticut and the Jerseys is granted to him.—Diary of Samuel Sewall, II: 84. Corbary was originally sworn in at the time of his arrival.—See May 3, 1702. He later had a so-called "secret" commission and instructions (see Jan. 29, 1703), which do not appear of record. Probably it was under these that he was again sworn in, together with the members of his new council.
- Thomas Byerley is appointed and sworn in as collector and receiver-general.—Cal. Coun. Min., 187. A warrant is issued to Caleb Heathcote, Thomas Wenham, and Peter Fauconier, commissioners for managing that office, to deliver to Byerley the custom-house and all pertaining to the revenue.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 314.
- The governor's council orders that the collectors of the £1,500 for erecting batteries at the Narrows be summoned.—Cal. Coun. Min., 187. See June 19.
- "Ordered, That M<sup>r</sup> David Jamison & M<sup>r</sup> James Emet be feed as Attorneys for recovering of the money that was Contributed for the Redemption of some who were Slaves in Sallee."—Trin. Min. (MS.). For the history of this case, see June 8, 1693; June 24, 1696; Sept. 6, and Dec. 2, 1697.
- "Ordered, That y<sup>e</sup> Reverend M<sup>r</sup> Vesey Rector, Coll: Wenham & Capt Willet C:Wardens Coll:Peartree Capt<sup>r</sup> Tothill & Capt<sup>r</sup> Lurting be a Committee to meet with M<sup>r</sup> Regnier M<sup>r</sup> Britt Lieut<sup>r</sup> Hobson & M<sup>r</sup> Carter & they to Confer with & discourse M<sup>r</sup> Henry Neering Organmaker, about making & Erecting an Organ in Trinity Church in New York, & if they shall think meet agree with him on as easy terms as possible."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- The governor's council orders that repairs to the custom-house be made.—Cal. Coun. Min., 188. A warrant was issued on Nov. 3 to pay Thomas Byerley for the work.—Ibid., 190.
- William Carter is appointed controller of the customs and sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 188.
- Corbary, with the council's advice, appoints Col. William Peartree mayor for the ensuing year.—M. C. C., II: 240. Peartree was reappointed mayor in 1704, 1705, and 1706.—Ibid., II: 272, 288, 310; Cal. Coun. Min., 211. For a brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 401.
- The new city hall is occupied by the common council.—M. C. C., II: 240; and see Oct. 16, 1699.
- William Anderson (see Jan. 15) is appointed treasurer of the city and sworn in.—M. C. C., II: 240, 241. On Sept. 11, 1705, he was reelected, "he giving sufficient sureties in the sum of one Thousand pounds for the due Execution of that office and he Stating and Posting the Citys Accounts in the Booke in due form."—Ibid., II: 287. Anderson continued in office until Sept. 29, 1706 (q. v.).
- In an address to the council and the assembly at the opening of a new session, Lord Corbary says: "I must now acquaint you, Gentlemen, that the great Queen of England, my Mistress, has been pleased to ease this Province of a Burthen, which by Custom, has long lain upon it, I mean, that of Presents to the Governors or Commanders in Chief of this Colony; her Majesty has been graciously pleased to confirm that Act, by which the last Fall you were so kind as to give to me a very great Present [see Col. Laws of N. Y., I: 508-13] but at the same Time, her Majesty has commanded me to acquaint you, that she has given the necessary Orders, for preventing any Governor, Lieut. Governor or Commander in Chief, from receiving any Presents for the Future."
- On the same day, the messenger of the council takes the "oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy" and subscribes "the Test" (see March 29, 1673), and the speaker and the members of the assembly take "the Abjuration oath."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 205-6. The oaths of allegiance and supremacy are also administered to the officers of the independent companies.—Cal. Coun. Min., 189. See also Brodhead, Hist. State of N. Y., II: 628, footnote.
- The governor's council orders that Marshall Hawdon "do produce to this board the Lease granted to part of the said Custom house."—Coun. Min. (Albany).
- By order of the common council, four "poor Tradesmen" are made free-men gratis.—M. C. C., III: 243. This order was a violation of the Dongan Charter.—See May 23, 1698.
- The common council resolves "that A Cage Whipping post pillory and Stocks be forthwith Erected before the City Hall."—M. C. C., II: 244. These are doubtless ordered built to replace those which stood before the old city hall and which, at the time the old city hall was ordered sold, Aug. 17, 1699 (q. v.), were to be removed within 12 months.—Ibid., II: 81. See Pl. 23-a, Vol. I. See also Nov. 2, 1710.
- This is Gunpowder Treason Day. The city provides a bonfire and wine for the celebration.—M. C. C., II: 256-57.

1703 Rev. George Keith preaches in Trinity Church, having now
 Nov. come to believe in the doctrines and form of worship of the Church
 7 of England after a widely different career in his religious theories.
 His sermon on this occasion was published in 1704 by Bradford, with the title The Notes of the True Church with the Application of them to the Church of England, and the sin of Separation from her.
Delivered in a Sermon preached at Trinity Church in New York, before the Administration of the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper
the 7th of November, 1703. In his "Epistle to all Unprejudiced Readers in these American parts," Keith makes violent charges against "those called Quakers and their Leaders, who abound in these American parts, and who most insolently in their assemblies, traduce and calumniate, vilify and reproach the Manner of Worship and Sacraments, in the said Church, with notorious Lyes and Falsehoods that the Quaker Teachers belch out against her, especially in their Meetings on Long Island."

There was also published by Bradford in 1704, probably at the same time as the above item, another sermon of Keith's, entitled
The Great Necessity and Use of the Holy Sacraments of Baptism
and the Lords Supper, delivered in a Sermon preached at Trinity Church in New York the 28th November, 1703. This contains no address to the reader, but has an appendix attacking the Quakers, and stating that many people of Pennsylvania were deserting their meetings on account of the "vilest and grossest Errors" taught by them.

19 The great dock and slips are leased to John Ellison for the term of nine years. He is required to clean the dock "to the hard Sandy foundation" within two years; also "to build A Common shoar [sewer] upon his own Cost and Charge in the broad Street joining to the South End of the Common shoar that now is and running from thence in length to the North End of the fish bridge in Said Street and the Said Shoar to be made of good two Inch board or of hard brick." This common sewer is to be completed by the following June. Ellison is also required "to make A head on the End of the North End of the Said Bridge of good Stockadoes or Stone Wall to the full height of the New Street."
 His rental is to be one pepper corn per annum for the first three years, and £25 per annum for the last six years.—M. C. C., II: 247.
 On Dec. 9, Ellison having "fallen from his Agreement," the common council leased the dock and slips to a trio of lessees, Lancaster Symes, merchant, Gerrert Vanhorne, bolter, and Christopher Denne, carpenter, for 12 years from Nov. 4, 1703. The conditions about cleaning these properties were the same as those formerly agreed to by James Spencer. The new lessees were also required "at their own proper Cost and Charge" to make "A Common Sewer from the fish Bridge to the Other Common sewer in the broad Street," to be finished by the following June; and "to make A head of stone or Stockadoes the height of the Bridge at the North End thereof." The lessees were to have liberty "to fill up A Corner of the Dock Next Alderman Cortlands and also A Slip of the Dock on the West Side thereof Next to white Hall or to Clean the same at their discretion."—Ibid., II: 250-51.
 Vanhorne soon retired from the combination (Feb. 13, 1705), and the lease was changed accordingly.—Ibid., II: 278. A combination of lessees proved no more satisfactory than a single one.— See Feb. 15, 1706; also Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent.
Municipality, 120-22. See diagram of the dock, Addenda, 1700.

29 A city ordinance is passed providing that no carman shall "drive his Cart Over the Common Sewer at the Lower End of the broad Street of this City upon penalty of three Shillings."—M. C. C., II: 249. It remained in force until 1712.—Ibid., II: 257. See
 Nov. 6, 1704.

"The sum of £10 is appropriated by the common council "for the Covering of the Markett house by the Custom house Bridge." Workmen are to be employed to "Cover and Shingle" it.—M. C. C., II: 249. On Dec. 9, an additional sum of £6:17:9 was appropriated "for the Shingling the Markett house by the Custom house."—
Ibid., II: 251.

Dec. "Ordered, That M<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Bradford & his Wife do sit in that 10 half of the Pew w<sup>ch</sup> was formerly M<sup>r</sup> Sam<sup>l</sup> Burts along wth M<sup>r</sup> Dirck Vanderburgh until the said Burts Male children are of years to use the same."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

1704

— Capt. Congreve, writing in this year to the Soc. for the Propagation of the Gospel regarding the "State of the Church in

New York, 1704," said that "Before Coll: Fletcher was Gov<sup>t</sup> of the Province of New York there was no provision made for the Maintenance or Support of a Minister of the Church of England, nor Church erected in any part of the Province . . ." Fletcher obtained contributions from "Coll: Nicholson Gov<sup>t</sup> of Virginia" and others, founded and erected Trinity Church, and granted a charter to "the Rector, Church-Wardens," etc. He also procured the passage of an act which settled a maintenance of £100 per annum on the minister, who had also £26 per annum paid "out of his Majesty's Reveue" for house rent (stopped by Bellomont, but restored by Corbuary); but no "Parsonage House" had yet been built. Lord Corbuary, "who religiously promotes the true interest of the Church & generously protects her Servants & Members," also obtained an act to increase the minister's maintenance £60 per annum.—From transcript in Library of Congress of Clarendon MSS. (in Bodleian Library, Oxford), cited 102, f. 152 ("Extracts in Letters and Memorials relating to Lord Corbuary while governor of New York, 1702-1707"); this extract is also among those from the Lambeth MSS. made by Rev.
 Francis L. Hawks, D.D., in 1836, and filed with Hawks MSS. in Church Mission House, N. Y. City.

"Mr. Bradford, the printer, was obliged to borrow of Trinity Church about forty pounds to buy paper upon which to print the book of Common Prayer. Chaplain Sharp became his security."
 —Ecles. Rec., III: 1560, citing (Trinity) Records, I: 49, and Dix, Hist. of Trin. Church, 156-58.

A free Latin school was established, with George Muirson as instructor.—Ecles. Rec., III: 1552. An assessment, levied on July 21, to raise £50 for his maintenance, showed the assessed valuation of each of the several wards as follows: Dock Ward, £10,500; East Ward, £9,930; South Ward, £7,765; North Ward, £4,550; West Ward, £3,665; Bowersy, £1,705; Harlem, £745;
 Total, £38,900.—Tax Book, 1073 to 1709.

In this year, the Lutheran church was repaired, and a building fund for a new church started.—Kretzmann, The Oldest Lutheran Church in Am., 18.

Anthony Aston, "commonly call'd Tony Aston," an English actor, passed the winter of 1703-4 in New York, where, as he said, he spent his time in "acting, writing, courting, fighting."— See Vol. I, 265-66; also Sonneck, "Pre-Revolutionary Opera in America," in The New Music Review, VI: 438-44; Sonneck, Early Opera in Am., 4-7; and Daly, "The First Theater in New York" in Hist. Mag., July, 1864 (or ibid., pub. by the Dunlap Soc., 1896). See also May 6, 1709. For the first published mention of a play-house in New York, see Dec. 11, 1732.

One of the first law libraries of which we have any account was that of Samson Shelton Broughton, the attorney-general. It contained 35 volumes.—See "Hist. of the Domestic Affairs of the Inhabitants of N. Y.," in Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 503.
 But see Oct. 30/Nov. 9, 1674.

For a list of New York privateers, all of them having from 18 to 20 guns, fitted out at New York, between 1704 and 1708, see
Man. Com. Coun. (1870), 867.

William Blathway reports favourably to the lord treasurer (see May 23) regarding a new grant to the Trinity church-wardens of the Queen's Farm and the Governour's Garden "without reserving any acknowledgment to the Crown." He speaks of the farm as containing about 100 acres, already granted to Trinity Church, and for which the crown receives a yearly acknowledgment of six bushels of wheat amounting to £12 a year. He values the entire farm at £200.

Of the Governour's Garden, which lies before the church in a convenient location for the minister's house, he says: "This half acre "does now lye waste, and is of the smallest Value to be Sold."
 —Blathway Jour. (transcript), II: 236-37.

In negotiating with Dirck Benson for continuing his lease of the ferry, the common council requires him to "Land all Flower brought Over to this City in the ferry Boats at the Slip at Burgers path and also to Land passengers and Other Commodities brought Over one tide at the said Slip at Burgers path and the Other tide at Countess Key."—M. C. C., II: 254. See Jan. 27, 1701; Aug. 15, 1704; April 11, 1705.

William Brickley is fined 20 shillings "for prophaneing Christmas" by keeping "open shop," although he pleads that he "did it Conscientiously and not Contemptuously." Brickley was a Quaker (see Feb. 6, 1705).—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 86.

1704

Jan. 27

Feb. 1

- 1704 This is the queen's birthday. A bonfire and wiae are provided Feb. at the expense of the city to celebrate it.—M. C. C., II: 257. See 6 also Feb. 6, 1703.
- 23 Dirck Vanderheyden presents his account for wine furnished Lord Cornbury. His excellency gives his promissory note.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 320. The transaction is significant of the character of this governour, who became bankrupt in New York (see Mar. 9, 1709), and whose young son died a drunkard later in Europe (see April 15, 1712). For a description of Cornbury's character and foibles, see Man. Com. Coun. (1869), 763.
- Mar. Ingoldesby, writing from New York to Lord Nottingham on — June 14, stated that, having arrived at Virgolia with the fleet on Jan. 9, he returned to New York the beginning of March. Corn-bury ordered his commission as lieutenant-governour published the next day in the council.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1089-90. The commission had been granted by the queen Nov. 26, 1702 (q. v.).
It was revoked April 11, 1706 (q. v.).
- 8 This being the anniversary of proclaiming "her present Majesty Queen Anne," a celebration, consisting of a bonfire, with wine provided for toasting the queen's health, is held. A similar celebration was held on April 23 (erroneously recorded "the thirteenth of April"), on the anniversary of her coronation. Payment, amounting to £11:6, was made on July 11 to cover the expense.—M. C. C., II: 265.
- 17 The common council orders "that the Sheriff of this City doe forthwith Provide Materials & Employ workmen for y<sup>e</sup> making of A Convenient & sufficient Prison for debtors on the upper Story of the City Hall at the East End thereof and that the Same be of the bigness as this Court."—M. C. C., II: 256.
- " Hendrick Vanderhule is granted permission by the common council "to make A Cellar under ground before his dwelling house in Dock Street twelve foot into the Street." He is required to complete it "in six working days after he breaks up the Street," and to make it "Soc Strong that the way be secure."—M. C. C., II: 257. This is the first street vault in New York of which we find record. Cf. Report of the Chief Engineer of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the year 1909.
- 23 It is ordered by the common council that it shall be lawful for any person "to Kill any Swine that Shall be found Running at large in the Streets or Commons of this City on the south side of the fresh water."—M. C. C., II: 258; VI: 152.
- " It is also ordered that persons shall be subject to fine who "dig any holes in the Commons of this City on the south side of the fresh water or take or Carry away any earth or Mould or Shall Cut take or Carry Away any sods or Turfe of any part of the said Commons."—Ibid.
- " The common council issues a peremptory order that all the wharves on the north side of the great dock must be completed (raised and paved), as required by the terms of the grants of the lots fronting them. Likewise, the owners of the lots fronting the dock are required to have the "Said Street" raised, levelled, and paved as this street now is "before the door of M<sup>r</sup> John Vanhorne."
All these improvements must be finished by May 1 next.—M. C. C., II: 258.
- 24 Col. Richard Ingoldesby, appointed lieutenant-governour of the province, is sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 193. See Nov. 8, 1694; March, 1704.
- " A warrant is issued to pay Lancaster Syms "for Bristol stones to the fort."—Cal. Coun. Min., 193. Permission is given to him and to Christopher Denn, the dock-masters (see Dec. 9, 1703), to put up lading cranes.—Ibid., 194.
- Apr. The common council, being informed "that the Widow 3 Rombouts and sundry Other persons on the West side of the Broad way are levelling the fortifications and about to fence in the Street fronting to Hudsons River," threatens them with prosecution.—M. C. C., II: 260.
- " It is resolved by the common council "that John Marsh have Liberty to Experiment the draying of the Cellars of this City at his own Charge and y<sup>t</sup> if he bring the same to perfection in A year and A day after the date hereof that then he have a grant for doing of the same Excluding all Others from making any benefitt or Advantage of the said projection."—M. C. C., II: 260.
- 11 The new city hall on Wall St. is completed about this time.—M. C. C., II: 261. For an account of the building of the hall, see Oct. 16, 1699.
- 19 Trinity vestry orders "That Col Wenham be desired to write to M<sup>r</sup> Thrale to procure the Plate & furniture given by her
- Maty to Trinity Church and that he order Money to M<sup>r</sup> Thrale for paying the Fees of the Officers for the effectual obtaining the same & that his word will satisfie Col Wenham what he shall dis-burse on that acoc."—Trin. Min. (MS).
- " The first number of The Boston News-Letter, being for the week ending April 24, is published. This was the first permanent newspaper printed in America.—See An Historical Digest of the Provincial Press (1911), 53, 61. The second number, for the week ending May 1, contained the following item of news from New York, dated April 24: "The Dreadnought with Coloeo Seymour, Governour of Maryland Arrived the 10th. Instant. The Virginia
Fleet will Sail the latter end of May for London."—Ibid., 68.
- " The first printing-press in the English-speaking colonies of America was set up by Stephen Daye, in Cambridge, Massachusetts-Bay, in 1639 (q. v., Mar.). Fifty years later, the earliest product of the press having the character of a domestic news-sheet made its appearance. This was a journalistic broadside, called The Present State of the New-England Affairs, bearing the imprint "Boston, Printed and Sold by Samuel Green, 1689." It may fairly be called "the precursor of the American newspaper." A specimen of this scarce sheet is preserved in the Massachusetts Archives, State House, Boston; the only other known copy is in the author's collection. Following this, and prior to the appearance of The Boston News-Letter, there were other sporadic papers of a news character published: Publick Occurrences both Foreign and Domestick (Boston, Sept. 25, 1690); Letters Written by John Campbell, Postmaster of Boston, and sent to the Governours of New England (April-Oct., 1703); and Letters Written by Duncan Campbell of Boston and sent to Governor Winthrop of Connecticut (May, 1700).—See An Historical Digest; Green, Ten Fac-simile Reproductions (1901); ibid.
(1903).
- " It is ordered by the governour and council that the following warrants be issued: to pay William Smith for use of his house as soldiers' quarters; and to pay the commissioners of the revenue for fitting up the chaplain's and surgeon's quarters in the fort, and for mending the governour's barge.—Cal. Coun. Min., 195, 196.
- " The common council orders that Thomas Byerley, the receiver-general, and George Clarke, the secretary of the province, "be Complimented with the freedom of this City."—M. C. C., II: 263.
- " It is ordered by the governour and council that warrants be issued to pay Daniel Ebbetts for bricklayer's work in the fort; and Anne Daniels and Elizabeth Stokes for nursing sick soldiers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 196.
- " The governour's council assigns a committee to "agree with workmen as Cheap as possible . . . for the making of such reparations and doing of such things and finding Materials for the same in and ab<sup>t</sup> her Majties Fort in New York as were yesterday reported to this board to be of most absolute necessity to be done at present." Christopher Denn, the carpenter, had presented to the council "to Consider off," at the meeting on May 4, a detailed estimate of the cost of repairs totalling £935. The governour ordered the council to inspect the same and report what seemed "absolutely necessary to be done at p'sent." The report called for the expenditure of £100 only, including the "Glazing of the fort windows," three "Centry Boxes," 24 "Carriages for the Great Guns," and repairing "the Barracks and "the fence round the fort."—Col. MSS., XLIX: 69, 70 (Albany). There is a misleading entry in Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 325, under date of May 8, Denn's estimate of work for the council "to Consider off" being labelled "For carpenters' work, &c., done." See, further,
May 13.
- " The committee of the council appointed to let a contract for repairs to the fort, makes a report of the difficulties encountered.
No glass has been found in town "for Glazing of the Windows."
Failing to find any one to undertake the mason's work "by the Great," they have arraged with Daniel Ebbetts as "the most proper man to performe the Same" on a day basis. He does not wish to undertake it "unless the money his Work Shall amount to be paid him Weekly" (see Nov. 1). For the gun-carriages and the fence around the fort, they think it best to arrage with Thomas Dyer on a similar basis.—Col. MSS., XLIX: 71 (Albany).
- " William Blathwayt, the auditor-general, writing to Sec. Clarke from Whitehall, states that he has received the draught of the Queen's Farm and of the Governour's Garden; he reports thereon to the lord treasurer, and comments on the public accounts of the province of New York.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 325, citing XLIX: 79, of Eng. MSS. in sec. of state's office, Albany; and Blathwayt's

CHARTER

Whereas Some former & Antient Proprietors of this City made in the first place in the County of Middlesex in the Parish of St. Martin a great Sum of Money for the Encouragement to increase the said City and to build a Church for the use of the said City of our Province of New York the said Proprietors might have been the Rates and Expenses of our Province
New York & the said City of New York in Church matters by the said and other have likewise religiously observed Dedmon have been Employed and laid out for the Worship and Service of God in manner aforesaid might be more Subjers. Col. Caleb Denning One of our Council of our said
William Morris Robert Livingston Thomas Clarke Ebenezer De Witt
Covell and a William Livingston our said Inhabitants of our said City of New York have by their Petition presented unto us of our said Province of New York and Certifying Depositional that they have built within our said City of New York an our heart to a Church within the north Gate of our said City and at the end of the said Church the same Church Thomas and Decades And from thence towards the west in three hundred and thirty five feet all of English Measure and where first begun. And that the said Church together with the to the Publick worship and Service of God according to the Days Church and Decades Church together and being within well beloved Johann Adam One of our Council and City And whereas Our said City of New York in their moderation and Encouragement of the Inhabitants of our said City of New York in such and other ways by the name of the said Church as that they and their Successors may have and other ways as they shall see cause to be further granted Dowry Church by the aforesaid Act and make the same into the said Church in such and other ways as Our said that Our said Church and well beloved Subject Johann Adam Inhabitants within our said City of New York have been at in the that must unavoidably arise for the purchasing the said Church of our said City of New York for the habitation of a Minister prebend propriety and Encouragement of our said
according to the reasonable Rates and Expenses of our said

- 1704 Jour. (transcript), II: 262-65. This has reference to the desired
 May transfer of these properties to Trinity Church.—See Jan. 27 23 and June 27, 1704; and June 13, 1705.
- 25 Thomas Coddington having desired to purchase of the city
 "A Certain Gore of Land Situate and being between the Rear of his fence and the Common Road or highway Containing about forty Acres," the common council resolves that the land "be not Sold but Leased for A Terme of years."—M. C. C., II: 264.
 On Oct. 3, it was resolved that 60 acres be leased to Coddington for 21 years at six pence per acre per annum. The land is thus described: "beginning where the North West Line between William Hooms and the said Coddingtons Lots End that Line Extending itf Self to the Road or highway thence along and between the Road and the Harlem Line Running North till itt makes up the Number of Sixty Acres which Shall be Confin'd by Another Line Running North West and south East between and A Cross from the Road to the Said Harlem Lice."—Ibid., II: 273. This marks the beginning of the city's policy of leasing (rather than selling) the public lands, which has resulted in great advantage to the municipality.
 —Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality,
 88-90. See also Oct. 3.
- " The common council orders "that M<sup>rs</sup> Jael Ratier Widdow of Jacob Ratier late of this City Mariner deceased have Liberty to follow any Lawfull Trade or Employment within this Corporation for the better Obtaining A livelyhood for her and her family during her well behaving her selfe any former Law of this Corporation to the Contrary Notwithstanding."—M. C. C., II: 264; and see the same provision regarding "Mary Lawrence Widdow."—Ibid., II: 278. The corporation law called for a payment of £3:12 from "every Merchant Trader or Shop Keeper."—M. C. C., I: 222.
- " The common council orders "that Wall Street from the Corner of Smiths Street to the Corner of the Broadway near the English Church on the South Side of the Said Street be forthwith paved ten foot into the Said Street." It is also ordered that the pavement of Stone St. be taken up, "and the Said Street New paved with the Channell or Gutter to run through the Middle of the street and that the same be Completely finished on or before the first day of August Next."—M. C. C., II: 264-65.
- June "Last Week arrived Capt. Feaver and Moyon from Hundoras 12 in 2 Sloops. We hear 500 French and Indians are Marched from 12 Canada, to attaque some parts of New-England."—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, June 12-19, 1704.
- 14 Lieut.-Gov. Ingoldesby reports to Lord Nottingham that the consumption of flour, the staple manufacture of New York Province, having ceased in the Spanish West Indies on account of the war,
 the inhabitants within his jurisdiction are much impoverished.
 —N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1090.
- 27 "An act of provincial legislature is passed appropriating the room in the south-east part of the city ball, where the mayor's court is usually held, for the general assembly's sessions, and the room in the north-east part for a lobby. To fit up these for the purposes intended, the act provides for raising £143:10:10 by taxation before the last of October. The city and county of New York are required to pay £311:5:8 of this.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 569. The amount raised by this act is to pay workmen's bills, buy furniture, and buy Alderman Tothill "a pair of Gloves, for his care and Trouble in the Surveying the Work."—Assemb. Jour., I: 180-81. On June 30, Cornbury wrote to the lords of trade that he signed this bill because "till this time the Assembly has always sat in a Tavern," which he thought was "a scandalous thing."— N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1114-15. For example of such occupation of a tavern, see Dec. 1, 1702.
- " The legislature passes "An Act Granting Sundry Priviledges and Powers to the Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New York of the Communion of the Church of England as by Law Established."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 564. On account of imperfections in the first charter (see May 6, 1697), this act reincorporates Trinity Church.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1563. The property owned by Trinity at this time is described in the act as follows:
 "Trinity Church . . . with the Cemetery or Burying-place, and a certain tract of land belonging there unto, bounded easterly upon the street commonly called the Broad-way, containing [sic] in Breadth, on the West side of the said street, three hundred and ten foot, or thereabouts, from the north-east corner of the ground commonly called the Queen's Garden, to the land of John Hutchins, Esq.; thence by a straight line along the north side of the said Burying Place, continuing to Low Water Mark of Hudson's River;
- thence by a Line Southward along the said River three hundred ninety and five foot, all English measure; and from thence by the line of the said Garden easterly, to the place where it begun."
Ibid. The next year, Queen Anne granted to Trinity Corporation a patent for the Queen's Farm (formerly called the King's Farm), and the Queen's Garden.—See Nov. 23, 1705.
- "On the 28th I went to New-York; and, the Day after, had a good and comfortable Meeting there [Quaker]; and though I had heard . . . that the Lord Cornbury had threatened, that if ever
 I should come into his Government he would confine me, for some Words falsly alleged to have been spoken by me in my Testimony, some Time before in Maryland, (with which he had no Business at New-York) about the National Church of England, her Sacraments, Order, and Catechism; yet I did not go one Step out of my Way, nor at all shun him about it."—Jour. of the Life of Thomas Story, 370.
- Cornbury again complains to the lords of trade (see Dec. 12, 1702) of the difficulty he has in communicating with England:
 "The post that goes through this place [New York] goes Eastward as far as Boston but Westward he goes no further than Philadelphia, and there is no other post upon all this continent, so that if I have any letters to send to Virginia, or to Maryland, I must either send an Express who is often retarded for want of boats to cross those great Rivers, they must get over—or else for want of horses, or else I must send them by some passengers who are going thither
 —The least I have known any Express take to go from hence to Virginia, has been three weeks, so that very often, before I can hear from Coll: Nicholson what time the fleet will sail, and send my packets, the fleet is sailed—I hope we shall find a way to remedy that shortly, for Coll: Nicholson and Coll: Seymour have wrote me word, that they will be here in September, and I do then intend to propose to them the settling of a Post, to go through to Virginia, by which I shall have opportunity to write Your Lord<sup>ships</sup> by every Ship that sails from this Continent."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1113. Circumstances later prevented the proposed meeting with Nicholson and Seymour, whereby Cornbury had intended to arrange for "laying a Tax in each province by Act of Assembly, for the settling and defraying the charges of the post, which then might have gone from Boston to North Carolina."—Ibid., IV: 1120.
- Charles Congreve reports to the lords of trade about the condition of fortifications, etc. Of the fort at New York, he states: "The wall thereof is faulty in many places, many of the guns are remounded with new carriages and others repaired. The magazine for the powder lately built is large and secure, but the Store Room for the Armes is ready to fall, and all sorts of stores wanting."
 There are 200 men in the fort. The province is £10,000 in debt, without credit, and poor "by reason of the decay of Trade which was the chief support." Congreve asks that for the future 100 recruits be sent over every two years, and the same number discharged. The assembly has given £1,500 towards building the two batteries at the Narrows, but £2,025 is necessary to finish the work.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1123-25.
- John Bridges, LL.D., the chief-justice, dies.—Boston News- Letter, July 10, 1704. The governor appointed Roger Mompesson on July 13 to succeed him (Ibid., July 17-24, 1704; N. Y.
Col. Docs., IV: 1119-20), and inducted him into office July 18.—Cal.
Coun. Min., IV: 189-99. Bridges was the owner of the first gold watch of which we have any mention "in our papers."—Mar. Com. Coun.
 (1858), 502. He also possessed a considerable library.—Ibid., 503.
- Lord Cornbury lays the corner-stone of "Le Temple du Saint Esprit."—Wittmeyer's Introduction to Collections of Huguenot
Soc. of Am., I: xxvii. As stated in 1763, when making application for a charter, the church was erected on a lot of ground "situated on the North East side of King's [now Pine] Street and is in Breadth in the Front to the said Street Seventy Feet and in the Rear Seventy Five Feet and in Length extending from the Front on both sides to Little Queen [now Cedar] Street on the Easterly Side one hundred & fifty four Feet and on the Northwesterly Side one hundred and fifty Seven Feet and one Half Foot English Measure." Part of the lot was devoted "to the use of the Cemetery or Church Yard for the Interment of their Dead."—Doc. Hist. N. Y.
 (4to ed.), III: 295-96. The building "was built of stone and plastered on the outside; its dimensions were fifty by seventy feet, and in its quaint steeple was a musical bell."—Mag. Am. Hist., XXII: 186-87. The site was the present Nos. 18-22 Pine St.—
 See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 932.

- 1704 July Rip van Dam petitions the common council for "A Grant or Lease of the swamp lying to the Northward of Mr Beckmans Orchard," and a committee is appointed to examine the city's title to the property.—M. C. C., II: 266. They reported on Aug. 25 that, after examining "several Antient Patents," they found "that the Right and property thereof is in this Corporation," and a committee was appointed "to treat with Mr Van Dam or any Other person or persons about farming of the said swamp for the Terme of twenty one years."—Ibid., II: 269. On Oct. 3 (9. v.), it was resolved to lease the Swamp to Van Dam at an annual rental of 20 shillings.—Ibid., II: 274.
- " The common council pays the executors or administrators of John Cooley, blacksmith, "for Iron worke done to A Battery of Guos under the Trees on the East Side of Burgers path in the year—"(sic)—M. C. C., II: 266. It was constructed prior to 1695.—See "Half-moon at Burger's Path (second site)," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945.
- 18 A petition to Cornbury is read in council from the rector, etc., of Trinity Church, asking that certain funds, raised for the redemption of captives in Barbary, may be applied toward "finishing the building of s<sup>d</sup> Church."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 251-52. On Aug. 14, a committee reported favourably on the petition.—Ibid., III: 255.
- 19 The governour sails from New York for Albany, with forces to strengthen the frontiers. More will follow in a few days.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, July 24-31, 1704.
- 22 The Rev. Mr. Mott, chaplain of the forces at New York, dies.—Boston News-Letter, July 24-31, 1704. See Oct. 20.
- 24 Trinity vestry orders "That a Convenient place be fitted in the lowest floor [sic] in the Steeple for the Rector to retire in & that the same be left to the Discretion of the Church Wardens."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 25 A French privateer, having overtaken and plundered several sloops, comes to anchor at Sandy Hook, where she continues her depredations. A Dutch privateer, commanded by Capt. Claver, engaged the French vessel on July 28, but "without affecting any thing." On July 29, "Capt Evertson and Capt Penniston in two good Sloops" started in pursuit of the French privateer.—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, July 31-Aug. 7, 1704; Cal. Coun. Min., 199. See also July 26, 1705.
- " Peter van Dyck's name appears in the "list of men that have signed to goe with Capt. Nicholas Evertson on an expedition against a french privateer which appeared off the coast." Van Dyck ranks as one of the most expert of American silversmiths. He was an active participant in the factious strife which kept the city in a state of political unrest during the administration of Gov. Cosby. For a sketch of his life and work, see Met. Museum of Art Catalogue of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), xxviii-xxx, 58-60.
- 27 The militia is called out because of the report that ten large ships, supposedly French, have come within Sandy Hook. On the following day they were found to be prizes of Capt. Claver (see July 25), who was allowed to bring them into port.—Cal. Coun. Min., 199.
- 30 Capt. George Rogers of the man-of-war "Jersey" refuses to obey an order for cruising, except by request in writing. Such a letter to him is signed the next day by order of the governour's council. On Aug. 7, he went in pursuit of the French privateer (see July 25), which, it is reported, intends to go toward Boston. The council warns Gov. Dudley of Massachusetts.—Cal. Coun. Min., 199.
- 31 There is a still-house, owned by Augustus Lucas, a mile from New York (i. e., north of the Fresh Water Pond). It is offered for sale.—Boston News-Letter, July 31-Aug. 7, 1704.
- Aug. 4 Rev. Elias Neau (see 1703) is licensed as catechist in the city of New York.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1949, citing "Deed Book," X: 27. See also Aug. 29.
- " The Society for Propagating the Gospel opened "a Catechising School for the Slaves at New York, in the year 1704, in which City there were computed to be about 1500 Negro and Indian Slaves." They recommended that "The Legislature in the Colonies, would, by a law, oblige all Slaves to attend for their Instruction." A teacher was found in "Elias Neau a Layman, then living in New York City as a Trader." He commenced his labours "in the year 1704, with great Diligence," the schoolhouse being "the uppermost floor in Mr. Neau's House."—From An Account of the Endeavours used by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign parts, to instruct the Negroe Slaves in New York, together with Two of Bp. Gibson's Letters on that Subject (London, 1730), reprinted in A Short Account of that Part of Africa, inhabited by the Negroes, Extracted from divers Authors, in order to show the iniquity of that Trade, and the falsity of the Arguments usually advanced in its Vindication (3d ed., Phila., 1762). London, reprinted, 1768. See also Chronology, April 7, 1712; March 11, 1713. Regarding Elias Neau's religious activities, see Eccles. Rec., III: 1559. "The most effective work of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among Negroes of the Northern colonies was accomplished in New York."—Jour. of Negro Hist. (1916), I: 356. For other references to Neau's work, see Doc. Hist. N. Y., III: 75, 78, 82, 84, 566; and a brief reference to his career in Man. Com. Coun. (1862), 683-84.
- 12 Gov. Cornbury returns to New York from Albany, "which place with the rest of the Frontiers, he found in a very good posture of Defence. . . ."—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 14-21, 1704.
- 15 Trinity corporation petitions the common council for "A Release of the Title of this Corporation to the Land Adjacent to the Church & burial place &c.," and a committee is appointed "To Examine into the Quantity of the Land Desired."—M. C. C., II: 268.
- " A new lease is granted by the common council to Dirk Benson, "the farmer of the ferry," on his application, which shows "the great decay of the Revenue thereof Occasioned by the late sickness, by Another ferry being Settled at yellow hooke, and by the Transportation of the Come of long Island Another way and by Several Other ways and means," etc.—M. C. C., II: 267-68. See Jan. 27, 1701; Jan. 27, 1704; Aug. 11, 1705.
- 29 Elias Neau (see Aug. 4) writes from New York to Mr. Chamberlayne: "I went with Mr Moor to His Excellency's [Cornbury's] House, & we spoke to him concerning the Designs of the Society [for the Prop. of the Gospel], for the Instruction of the Indians & Negroes, who promised to assist us both with his Authority . . . If Mr Vesey had as much affection for ye Illustrious Society as my Lord Cornbury, I should not meet with ye least difficulty."—From transcript in Library of Congress of Clarendon MSS. (in Bodleian Library, Oxford), cited 102, f. 150 ("Extracts of Letters and Memorials relating to Lord Cornbury while governor of New York, 1702-1707").
- 30 In accordance with the act of the general assembly to enable the city to raise money to defray the annual public charges, the common council resolves that £200 be raised by taxation "for the making of sufficient Goals," to pay the city's share of the expense "for the finishing the Assembly Room and Lobby," and to pay salaries and other necessary charges.—M. C. C., II: 269.
- Sept 2 The late Mr. Prevet (Peiret), minister of the French congregation, is buried.—Boston News-Letter, Sept. 4-11, 1704. See Dec. 10, 1702.
- 8 A ship, supposed to be a French privateer when seen off Sandy Hook on the 6th, is brought to the city. The crew was ordered examined, and on the 12th it was ascertained to be a prize taken by Capt. Rene Tongreton (commander of a privateer) from one "L'Roux," who had been trading illegally with the Spaniards.—Cal. Coun. Min., 200. A letter from Martinique written earlier in the year mentioned a "M. Laroux" who was connected with the Spanish trade there. The similarity of his activities and those of the above-mentioned L'Roux make their identity seem probable. "There is lately arrived a small Spanish ship of 6 guns from Laverdecruse with about 800,000 pieces of eight, they have two French-men-of-war, each 50 guns, going richly laden to the coast of New Spain . . . and the convoy of this fleet has 50 guns richly laden with money and merchandize, which has been trading on that coast this two years and commanded by M. Laroux."—Cal. State Papers: Am. and W. Indies (1704-5), 184. See Oct. 10, 1693.
- 20 A warrant is issued by the governour and council to Capt. John Riggs, the commander of the fort, to permit the burial of Mary Slaughter, widow of the late Gov. Henry Slaughter, in a vault in the fort beside her husband.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 331. The coffins deposited here were removed when the fort was demolished.—See June 18, 1790.
- Oct. 3 Jacob Regnier, barrister-at-law, is accorded the freedom of the city.—M. C. C., II: 273.
- " The city leases more outlying lands. Twenty-one year leases are given of Beckman's Swamp and of 60 acres in Harlem.—M. C. C., II: 273. See May 25 and July 11.

- 1704 The city pays John Ellison £4:16:7<sup>1</sup> "for Plank Nails and
 Oct. work done about the Rails Round the market house by the 3 Bridge."—M. C. C., II: 274. See May 17, 1700.
 5 There is laid before the clergy of the English Church, convened at New York by Lord Cornbury and Col. Francis Nicholson, a "Summary Account" of the state of the church in the province.
 Among the benefactions of Trinity Church, enumerated by Rev.
 William Vesey, is the gift of a bell, valued at £60, from the Bishop of London. Vesey also states that Cornbury, in view of the past and present expense of the parishioners of Trinity "in raising the Edifice and steeple to that perfection they designed it," recommended to the queen "to bestow a farm within the bounds of the said City, known by the name of the King's Farm, to the use & benefit of the said Church, with half an acre of ground adjoining to the said Church designed by his Lordship [Cornbury] for a Garden and a house to be built for the said Incumbent." Cornbury has also "contributed to the building a French church." He has been instrumental "in enacting a law for establishing a Latin free school, and to endow it with a salary of Fifty pounds per Annum, to which station his Lordship hath preferred the ingenious Mr George Muirson, who for sometime discharged that function with approbation & Success. Two other Schools are likewise established in this City by his Excellency's care, . . ." Vesey continues (and this portion of his "Account" appears to be addressed to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel) by recommending that "the Worthy and ingenious Mr Muirson" be appointed, instead of "the pious and deserving Mr Elias Neau," to the position of catechist.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 74-
 75. The original MS. of this "Account" is with the Clarendon MSS., in the Bodleian Library, Oxford.
 20 John Talbot writes from New York to Mr. Keith that Cornbury on this day has signed the commission of Mr. Sharpe to be "Chaplain for Her Mty's Fort & Forces at N York," in place of "Mr. Mott who dyed about 3 Months ago" (see July 22).—From transcript in Lib. of Cong. of Clarendon MSS. (in Bodleian Library, Oxford), cited 102, f 151 ("Extracts of Letters and Memorials relating to Lord Cornbury while governor of New York, 1702-1707"). The text of the commission is in Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 150. Sharpe continued in this capacity until March 11, 1713 (q.v.).
 Nov. Daniel Ebbetts, a bricklayer employed to make repairs on 1 the fort (see May 13), petitions the governor for the payment of his account of £41:02:07, which, he says, "has been audited and found Just." Having procured "materials for the said work, on his promise to pay for them in a very short time," he is every day "threatened to be arrested and putt in prison for the Victuals he & his family eat while he was working in the said Garrison, & for the materials he used about the work." He adds that he has no other recourse than "to fly to your Excellency" for assistance
 "in this Extremity or else he shall inevitably Starve in Goale this winter and his family perish for want of Sustenance."—Col. MSS., L: 27 (Albany). The records give us no information regarding the outcome.
 6 Cornbury reports to the lords of trade that, since his last letter of June 30, a French privateer of 14 guns has taken a ship just outside Sandy Hook, bound from England to New York, on which were packets addressed to him by the lords.
 He refers to his intention of proposing the introduction of a bill in each province to lay a tax to maintain "the post" (the post-riders), "which then might have gone from Boston to North Carolina."
 He explains "how necessary it is to have a standing Force in this Province, where we are exposed to the invasions of the Enemy by sea," adding: "I have not a hundred and twenty barrels of powder left, and several of them are spoiled, I have no small arms at all, no Cartouch boxes nor paper, not one bed for the men to lye upon, but what has been peiced over and over again, not a sword in the Garrison, nor a dagger [if the Enemy should attempt any thing upon our frontiers this Winter, we shall not have powder enough left for salutes."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1120-23.
 " Ebenezer Willson, the high sheriff, is paid £100:16:9<sup>1</sup> "for the fitting and making sufficient the Goals of this City."—M. C. C., II: 276.
 " Alderman Jeremiah Tothill is paid £31:5:8 by the common council as "the Quota and proportion of the City and County of New Yorke for fitting and furnishing A Room for 'the Genall Assembly with A Lobby in the City Hall of New Yorke Pursuant to the Act of Genall Assembly for Raising of the same."—M. C. C., II: 276. See June 27, 1704.
 " Carmen are forbidden to drive their carts "over the Common Sewer in the broad Street near the Little Bridge upon penalty of Six Shillings."—M. C. C., II: 277. This action was probably due to the fact that the sewer was not extended through to the dock, but was open and covered with plank at the foot of Broad St.
 On Aug. 20, 1709 (q.v.), the sewer was ordered extended and the open space beneath the little bridge filled in. For location of the little bridge and the development of the adjacent water front between 1648 and 1730, see diagram, Addenda, 1700.
 7 The court of chancery is revived by Cornbury's order.—*Cal.
 Coun. Min.*, 202. See also An Ordinance of His Excellency, Edward Viscount Cornbury, Captain General and Governour in Chief in and over the Provinces of New York, New Jersey and Territories depending thereon in America, and Vice-Admiral of the same, &c. in Council (printed by Bradford, 1704). This court had been suspended by a previous ordinance, June 13, 1702 (q.v.).—*Cal. Coun.
 Min.*, 171.
 Dec. A proclamation is received in Boston, signed by the queen, 5 affecting the rates of all foreign coins in the English colonies, and specifying their value in shillings and pence. These coins include "Seville Pieces of Eight," old and new, "Ducatoons of Flanders," "Crusados of Portugal," "Old Rix Dollars of the Empire," etc.— N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Dec. 4-11, 1704. This proclamation reached New York Jan. 22, 1705.—Ibid., Jan. 29-Feb. 5, 1705.
 7 "The Cittie of New York is a pleasant, well compacted place, situated on a Commodious River w<sup>ch</sup> is a fine harbour for shipping.
 The Buildings Brick Generally, very stately and high, though not altogether like ours in Boston. The Bricks in some of the Houses are of divers Coullers and laid in Checkers, being glazed lunk very agreeable. The inside of them are neat to admiration, the wooden work, for only the walls are plastered, and the Summers and Gist are plained and kept very white scow'd as so is all the partitions if made of Bords. The fire places have no Jambs (as ours have)
 But the Backs run flush with the walls, and the Hearth is of Tyles and is as far out into the Room at the Ends as before the fire, w<sup>ch</sup> is Generally Five foot in the Low'r rooms, and the peice over where the mantle tree should be is made as ours with Junyers work, and as I suppose is fasten'd to iron rods inside. The House where the Vendue was, had Chimney Corners like ours, and they and the hearths were laid w<sup>ch</sup> the finest tile that I ever see, and the stair cases laid all with white tile which is ever clean, and so are the walls of the Kitchen w<sup>ch</sup> had a Brick floor. They were making Great preparations to receive their Governour, Lord Cornbury from the Jerseys, and for that End raised the militia to Gard him on shore to the fort.
 "They are Generally of the Church of England and have a New England Gentleman for their minister, and a very fine church set out with all Customary requisites. There are also a Dutch and Divers Conventicles, as they call them, viz. Baptist, Quakers, &c.
 They are not strict in keeping the Sabbath as in Boston and other places where I had bin, But seem to deal with great exactness as far as I see or Deal with. They are sociable to one another and Curteous and Civill to strangers and fare well in their houses. The English go very fashoonable in their dress. But the Dutch, especially the middling sort, differ from our women, in their habit go loose, were [wear] French muches w<sup>ch</sup> are like a Capp and a head band in one, leaving their ears bare, which are set out wth Jewells of a large size and many in number. And their fingers boop't with Rings, some with large stones in them of many Coullers as were their pendants in their ears, which You should see very old women wear as well as Young.
 "They have Vendues very frequently and make their Earnings very well by them, for they treat with good Liquor Liberally, and the Customers Drink as Liberally and Generally pay for't as well, by paying for that which they Bidd up Briskly for, after the sack has gone plentifully about, tho' sometimes good penny wryths are got there. Their Divisions in the Winter is Riding Seyls about three or four Miles out of Town, where they have Houses of entertainment at a place called the Bowery, and some go to friends Houses who handsomely treat them. Mr. Burroughs cary'd his spouse and Daughter and myself out to ooe Madame 1704. Dowes, a Gentlewoman that lived at a farm House, who gave us a Dec. handsome Entertainment of five or six Dishes and choice Beer and 7 metheglin, Cyder, &c. all which she said was the produce of her farm. I believe we mett 50 or 60 shays that day—they fly with great swiftness and some are so furious that they'll turn out of the path for none except a Loaden Cart. Nor do they spare for any diversion the place affords, and sociable to a degree, they'r Tables being as free to their Neighbours as to themselves.

Thursday, Dec. 21, set out for New Haven with my Kinsman Trowbridge, and the man that waited on me about one [in the] afternoon and about three came to half-way house about ten miles out of town, where we Baited and went forward, and about 5 come to Spiting Devil, Else Kings bridge, where they pay three pence for passing over with a horse, which the man that keeps the Gate set up at the end of the Bridge receives.—The Journals of Madam Knight, and Rev. Mr. Buckingham. From the Original Manuscripts, Written in 1704 and 1710 (N. Y., 1825).

22 Richard Harris, who had married the widow of Roger Baker, a tavern-keeper in William St. (see Feb. 3, 1701), is allowed the sum of £10:18:6, by the common council "for an Entertainment given by this Corporation to his Excellency the Lord Cornbury upon his Arrival here from his Governm<sup>t</sup> of New Jersey."—M. C. C., II: 278. For a number of years, Harris's tavern was a favourite public-house. See Nov. 24, 1710.

1705

Rev. William Vesey, in writing (probably this year) regarding the "Benefactions of Trinity Church of New York," mentions that Lord Cornbury "hath contributed to the building a French Church [see July 8, 1704]. And since the death of the late minister of the French congregation [see Sept. 2, 1704] resolves to use his interest to introduce a French minister that shall have Episcopal ordination and conform to the constitution of the church."—Eccles. Rec., III: 1552. See June 12, 1804.

A New York inventory of this year mentions "a fine chest of drawers of walnut and olive wood £15."—Lockwood, Colonial Furniture in Am. (1901), 53. Chests of drawers were mentioned in the earliest New England records. The first mention, in America, of a tea-table is in a New York inventory of this year.—Ibid., 229.

Jan. "About to days ago Cap. Claver, & Capt. De Wint Sayled a
1 Privateering."—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Jan. 8-15, 1705.
15 Sampson Shelton Broughton dies. He was "Her Majesties Attorney General, Judge Advocate, and of the Council of this Province."—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Jan. 29-Feb. 5, 1705. See Aug. 4, 1701.

Feb. A Protestant declaration is signed by the "Justices by y<sup>e</sup> City 5 & County of New York" on Feb. 5, and by the "Aldermen & Assistants of New York" on Oct. 14 (all signatures being on the same document), stating: "I doe believe that in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper there is not any Transubstantiation of the Elements of bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ at or after the Consecration thereof by any Person whatsoever and that the Invocation or Adoration of the Virgin Mary or any Other Saint and the sacrifice of the Mass as they are now used in the Church of Rome are superstitious and Idolatrous. . . ."—From the original declaration, in metal file labelled "Filed Papers 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room.

A proclamation from the queen "for settling and ascertaining the current rates of the Coin in the Plantations" is published in New York, and the city is soon drained of ready money, causing Cornbury to write a protest to the lords of trade.

This being "the day the Boston Post sets out from hence,"
as soon as the proclamation was published "several persons here (pursuant to the directions sent to them from Boston) sent away as much money by the Post, as he could carry, and for four or five days all manner of Trade was stopped; there was no Market, nor one could [sic] buy anything with ready money." Cornbury recites several instances to show how the proclamation has injured trade.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1131-33.

6 "The Meeting house within this City Commonly Called and known by the Name of the Quakers Meeting house" is recorded as "the place of her Majesty's Protestant subjects dissenting from the Church of England Commonly Called Quakers to assemble and meet together for the worship and service of Almighty God."

Such certification is signed by three members, one of whom is Feb.
William Brickley (see Feb. 1, 1704). The recording of religious meeting-places is in conformity with the "Act of Parliament made in the first Year of the Reign of King William and Queen Mary Entituled an Act for Exempting their Majesty's Protestant subjects dissenting from the Church of England from the penalty of Certain Laws."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 93-94.
The act referred to was passed May 17, 1689.—Parl. Hist., V:
263-66; Statutes of Great Brit., III: 401-4.

The sum of £6:17 is paid for hanging the bell of Trinity 14
Church.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1768.

Trinity vestry orders "That the Church Yard be Inclos'd;" " 11 also that "Casem<sup>s</sup> [probably storm sash] be made in all the Church Windows."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

On this day occurred the death of "the Honourable Col. Wil- 17 liam Smith Esq. (the first of Her Majesties Council of this Province) at his House at Brookhaven."—N. Y. Corresp. in Boston News-Letter, March 5-12, 1704 (5). Col. Smith was formerly governor of Tangier, and had been a member of the council here since 1691, longer than any of his colleagues.—Cal. Coun. Min., 8, 63; see also Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 612-13; M. C. C., VIII: 416, 417.

The common council orders that the mayor permit the in- Mar. habitants of the city "to secure their Gunpowder in the small Magaz- 3 ine of the Garrison in order to prevent future damage."—M. C. C., II:
279. The order appears to have been prompted by a petition (undated) made by R. Walters, Leonard Lewis, and others, living near "Burger path," complaining "That of Late Great Quantities of Gunpowder has been Imported and housed in the Said Neighberhood, . . . whereby the said neighbourhood is extremely affrighted. . . ." They ask that the governor "may be Solicited that the powder may be Lodged [lodged] in the Kings Stoor or that Some other Convenient house may be Elseware appointed out of the Towne untill the City Can build a Convenient house for that purpose."—From the original petition in file labelled "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room. See also April 13, 1700; May 28, 1702; June 16, 1703.

The governor's council orders that the east "bastian" of Fort 14
Anne be repaired.—Cal. Coun. Min., 202.

The common council orders "that two pair of Stairs be made 23 in the Deck on each Side of the litle bridge, that the said litle bridge be mended and the benches put up, and that two posts be put up in the Market house by the great bridge in Order to Keep out the Cows."—M. C. C., II: 279. See May 17, 1700. The "litle bridge" covered the sewer at the foot of Broad St.

The common council orders that the great bridge be repaired.— Apr.
M. C. C., II: 280. 11

The common council permits Dirck Benson to repair the ferry house and deduct the amount of the expense from his rent.—
M. C. C., II: 280. He was paid on Oct. 11 the sum of £30 "for Bricklayers work Bricks Lime Nails, the use of siffs and Ladders, Carmen, meat & Drink for workmen scaffold Iron work boards Gutters Plank and Glass &c;" in connection with these repairs.—Ibid., II: 287. See Jan. 27, 1701; Jan. 27, 1704.

It is ordered by the governor and council that a proclamation 17 be issued forbidding the importation of "'clipt' bits and double bits."—Cal. Coun. Min., 203-4.

John Vielt is paid ten shillings, sixpence, "for painting the 20 Queens Arms upon the Constables Staves."—M. C. C., II: 281.

The anniversary of the queen's coronation was to be celebrated 23 on this day, with a bonfire and "three Gallons of wine to drink health to her Majesty."—M. C. C., II: 281. This event was first celebrated on April 23, 1703 (q. v.). Later references to the anniversary occur in 1706 (ibid., II: 299), where it appears the coronation took place on St. George's Day; in 1711 (ibid., II: 442); and in 1713 (ibid., III: 33).

The queen sends a new provincial seal to Cornbury, which she May thus describes: "the same being engraven on the one side with 3 our Royall Effigies, and two Indians Kneeling and Offering presents unto us, with our Royal Titles round the circumference of the said seal, and on the other side with our Royal arms, with the Garter, Crown, supporters and motto, and this inscription round the circumference "Sigillum provincie nostrae novi Eboraci in America."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1141. On July 28, Secretary Popple wrote Cornbury that the lords of trade required the old seal to be broken.—Ibid., IV: 1157. The new seal was received Sept. 6 (q. v.).

- 1705 The governor's council issues an order that guard-rooms for the town militia be prepared in the city hall.—Cal. Coun. Min., 204.
- My17 The common council orders that the following streets and June 12 places be paved "before the fifteenth day of July next" (July 15, 1706, is meant, doubtless): From the custom-house to the corner house of the Widow Kierstead; the street leading down to the custom-house bridge; the street fronting the dock (later Water St.), between the great and little bridge (i. e., between the present Moore and Broad Sts.), the south end of Broad St. to the little bridge, on both sides of the way; from the new house of Contraert Teneyck to the south end of the wharf, and from thence along the wharf fronting the river to the corner house of Martin Clock; Queen St. as far as Mr. Beckman's; the New St.; and Verletts Hill to Broad St.—M. C. C., II: 282. As usual, each citizen was made responsible, under penalty, for paving in front of his own building or lot; but it is apparent that the penalty was not exacted, because an order for the pavement of the same streets, with one addition, viz. "the Street Commonly Called the Broadway . . . from Trinity Church to the Market house," appears under date of May 1, 1707, with Aug. 1 as the time limit.—Ibid., II: 320-21, 326. Further, it was reported on May 20, 1708, that former orders for paving the streets had been "much Neglected." Another ordinance was, therefore, passed, to which citizens were required "to render an Entire Compliance."—Ibid., II: 355-56. See May 20, 1708.
- " The common council appoints a committee to "Cause Grates to be put up before the Common sewer in the broad Street." As soon as this is done they are to "Cause the Grate at the End of the Common sewer Next the Dock to be pulled down that the water may have A free passage."—M. C. C., II: 283. On Aug. 2, this committee was required to employ persons "for the making of A Convenient Grate at the North End of the Common sewer in the broad Street."—Ibid., II: 284.
- 13 Trinity vestry orders "That the Church Wardens get an Address drawn, to be presented to his Excellency [Cornbury] to Grant the Queens Farme & the Queens Garden to Trinity Church, & that the Vestry present the same."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See June 18, 24 July 5 and 18, 1705.
- See A. The governor and council order that a warrant issue to the attorney-general to prepare letters patent to Trinity Corporation "for y<sup>e</sup> parcel of Land Commonly known & called by y<sup>e</sup> name of the Queens Farm, & also for y<sup>t</sup> lot of Ground lying & being in y<sup>e</sup> City of N. York, near Trinity Church commonly called & known by y<sup>e</sup> name of y<sup>e</sup> Queens Garden."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 226. A similar order was given on July 18 (q. v.). The conveyance bears date of Nov. 23, 1705 (q. v.).
- 8 Cornbury writes to the lords of trade: "I must acquaint you that this place suffers very much from want of a man of War—there has been a French privateer upon this Coast, he lay four days off of Sandy-hook . . . I ordered a ship of ten guns that was in this Port, a Brigantine of ten guns, and two sloops, one of four guns the other of eight guns; I put on board these four vessels, three hundred fifty men, who were all well armed . . . they were victualled for two days, they Cruised as far as the Capes of Delaware to the Westward, and as far as Block Island to the Eastward, but they could not get sight of the Privateer, so they returned into this port."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1147-48. Col. William Peartree, the mayor, seems to have had command of the expedition.—Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 401; and Cal. Coun. Min., 204.
- 15 "The Trade of this Province consists chiefly in flower and bisclett, which is sent to the islands in the West Indies, in return they bring Rum, Sugar, Molasses, and some times pieces of Eight and Cocao and Logwood; to Europe our People send Skins of all sorts, Whale Oyle and Bone, which are the only Commodities this Country sends to Europe, of its own produce as yet, but if they were encouraged, the people of this province would be able to supply England with all manner of Navall stores in abundance of all sorts, Pitch, Tarr, Rosie, Turpentine, Flax, Hemp Masts and Timber of all kinds and sizes, and very good in their kinds."—Cornbury to the lords of trade, N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1150.
- Cornbury also reviews the history of the province and city of New York in the above-mentioned report to the lords of trade, concluding that "the people here have no claim of right to General Assemblies," but that they have them only by "the grace and favour of the Crown." He adds: "I believe if Her Majesty is not pleased to signify her pleasure how farr they shall be at liberty to proceed, they shall be claiming New Rights every day."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1151-55.
- The governor's council orders "that a Warrt Issue to the Attorney Gen<sup>l</sup> to prepare a Draft of Letts & Patents unto y<sup>e</sup> Rector & Inhabitants of the City of New York in Communion of the Church of England as by Law Establish for that Tract or Piece of y<sup>e</sup> Queens Farm . . ." (rest of the record illegible).—Coun. Min., IX: 543-44 (Albany). See also July 5, and Nov. 23.
- "There is a great prodigious Tooth brore here, supposed by the shape of it to be one of the farr Great Teeth of a man; it weighs four pound & three quarters. . . . It was lately dug up, a great way under ground . . . at or near a place call'd Clavarack, about 30 miles on this side of Albany, and is lookt upon here as a mighty wonder, whither the Tooth be of Man or Beast; They also Dug up several Bones, which as they came to the Air crumbled away. . . . There is since another Tooth taken up in the same place, which is a Fore Tooth flat and broad, and is as broad as a mans Four Fingers, which I have not yet seen; but the other I did see, and was brought here by a Gentleman of the Assembly."—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, July 23-30, 1705.
- Cornbury informs the council that a French privateer came to the mouth of the harbour (see July 25, 1704), and that he ordered several vessels to be fitted to destroy it or drive it from this coast; but, as the people were unwilling to go on this expedition without reward, he issued a proclamation promising 2,500 "pcs of Eight" to be divided among the volunteers. The expedition failed to find the privateer; but Cornbury asked the council to consider rewarding the 350 officers and men who were employed.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 230-31. Cf. July 8.
- The common council pays Johannes Hybon £20:14:3 "for Planks Carting Nails hieges boards Staples workmen & Other Materials & Expences in making the Guard Room at the Custom house bridge."—M. C. C., II: 284.
- A provincial act is passed "for Enforcing and Contiouing the Act for Encouraging A Post Office in this Province of New York for three Years from the Month of October . . . 1704." It mentions the titles of previous acts to encourage a post-office, which has been found "Very Advantageous to the Inhabitants of this Province by the preseriving of Trade and Maintaining A Mutual Correspondence amongst our Neighbouring Colloony & Plantations."—Cal. Laws. N. Y., I: 580-81. This act expired Oct. 31, 1707.—Ibid. In his report to the lords of trade on Nov. 20, Cornbury said this law was "absolutely necessary, for without it the Post to Boston and Philadelphia will be lost."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1168. See, further, Nov. 26.
- An act is passed by the legislature "for y<sup>e</sup> better Explaining & more Effectual putting in Execution" the Ministry Act of Sept. 22, 1691 (q. v.)—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 234; Laws of N. Y. (Gaine ed.), Chap. 956.
- Four privateers arrive at New York, bringing with them "a Spanish Prize, which they took in sight of the Havaoona, bound in thither." It is described as "a Ship of near 300 Tons 20 Guas, and "a rich Prize," loaded with wine, brandy, oil, raisins, currants, anchovies, olives, and dry goods.—Boston News-Letter, Aug. 13-20, 1705. See Sept. 19, 1705.
- The council considers a statement of an account for repairs to the passage "between the chapel and fort distilling room." On Aug. 30, a warrant was issued to Adolph Philipps "for repairing passage."—Cal. Coun. Min., 206. No other reference to this room appears in the records of the period.
- A part of the English fleet, consisting of three ships and thirteen merchantmen, arrives at Sandy Hook, having encountered a "most violent Storm, whereio several of the Fleet perished, and those that escaped are most miserably shattered and dammified . . ."—N. Y. correspondence in Boston News-Letter, Sept. 3-10, 1705.
- The new provincial seal (see May 3) is received from England. On Oct. 3, Cornbury reported that he had it, and had ordered that the old one be broken.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1185. On March 26, 1707, the lords of trade wrote Cornbury that they had not received the old provincial seal.—Ibid., V: 2.
- The common council orders "that Alderman Vanderburgh be Surveyor of this City in the Room of M<sup>r</sup> Evetts deceased," and he is sworn in.—M. C. C., II: 285.

July 15
18
23 26
Aug. 2
4
10 16
Sept. 1
6 11

- 1795 The men of the brigantine "Dragon" (Capt. Ginks), one of Sept. the privateers which arrived with a Spanish prize on Aug. 10, 19 are leaders in a riot in front of the sheriff's house. They assault him, wound several persons, and kill Lieut. Wharton Featherstone-Hough of Col. Livesay's regiment "that came in the Jamaica Fleet," before the forces from the fort and others could form and resist the mob.—Boston News-Letter, Sept. 24, Oct. 1, 1795. One Erasmus Wilkins, being tried and convicted of murdering Lieut.
Featherstone-Hough, was executed on Oct. 26.—Ibid., Oct. 29-
Nov. 5, 1795.
- 24 Mayor William Peartree is given a warrant from the governour and council to impress carpenters for H. M. S. "None Such."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 339. On Oct. 30, it was ordered by the governour's council that carpenters be impressed by the mayor for making repairs to the man-of-war "Deal Castle."—Cal. Coun. Min., 207.
- Oct. A bill was brought before the legislature on Sept. 27, on 10 recommendation of Gov. Cornbury, to raise a sum of money to pay fuelizers and others for the defence of the frontiers, and was under consideration until Oct. 12. It involved the important question of personal and official responsibility for the disposition of public moneys. On Oct. 10, a committee of the assembly asserts in their report that "Though considerable Sums have been raised, and duly paid in for the Defence of Albany, the Frontier . . . yet it appears that several Hundred Pounds raised for that End, has not so much as been pretended to be applied to that Use." They define certain misapplications of funds.
These assertions are derived from their general accusations: "That they have experienced such an uninterrupted Animosity and Misunderstanding between the several Governours, and all the Receivers appointed immediately by the Crown, that not one of them as yet has been able to avoid a Suspension, which having hitherto been succeeded by a total Exclusion, all possibility of rendering any Account to, or viewing or examining any Account by Assemblies, has been illuded, and the Disposition of all publick Moneys left in the Dark."—Assemb. Jour., I: 206-7.
- Nov. The city furnishes a bonfire, with wine, on the celebration of 5 "Gun-powder Treason Day." The expenses, amounting to £4,106, were paid on Dec. 4.—M. C. C., II: 290. See also Nov. 2, 1700.
- 9 Caleb Heathcote, writing from the Manor of Scarsdale to the secretary of the Soc. for the Propagation of the Gospel, in answer to questions concerning the society's ministers, particularly commends the work of "that good man, M<sup>r</sup>. Neau, as Catechist to the negroes and Indians."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 82. See 1703; Aug. 4, 1704.
- 10 Ingoldesby reports to the lords of trade that Cornbury has refused to permit him to act as lieutenant-governour.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1162-63.
- 13 Mr. "Moor" (Moore) writes from New York to "y<sup>e</sup> Secretary:—"The suffering of w<sup>ch</sup> (viz Dutch Schole-Masters & Min<sup>rs</sup>)
my Lord Cornbury has told me does very soon has been & is likely to be of fatal Consequence: And His Excellency was pleased to tell me last night, that without a Commend, if y<sup>e</sup> Queen would give leave, He would never suffer another Dutch Min<sup>r</sup> to come over."—From transcript, in Library of Congress, of Clarendon MSS. (in Bodleian Library, Oxford), cited 102, f. 153 b ("Extracts of Letters and Memorials relating to Lord Cornbury while governour of New York, 1702-1707").
- " Daniel Ebbotts is referred to as a "Victualler" in a suit brought by him against Andrew Broughton for payment of wine and other strong liquors sold to Broughton.—M. C. M. (MS.). Ebbotts's tavern was probably in the Bowery, as he was elected, on Sept. 29, 1711, a constable of the Bowery Division.—M. C. C., II: 450.
- 19 A proclamation is issued relating to manning the galley "New York," a privateer.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 340.
- 20 It is customary, Cornbury states, for salutes to be fired from the fort in return for the salutes from vessels going in and out of the harbour. Salutes are also fired on the queen's accession to the throne, on "Her Majesty's Birth-day," and on "gunpowder Treason" day.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1166.
- 23 Cornbury signs Queen Anne's patent conveying the Queen's Farm and the Queen's Garden to Trinity Church. It describes the Queen's Farm as "formerly known as the Duke's Farme, and the Kio's Farme," and now occupied by George Ryser, "yeoman." It is "bounded on the east, partly by the Broadway, partly by the Common, and partly by the Swamp, and on the west by the Hudson's River." The Queen's Garden is described as "on the south side of the churchyard of Trinity Church . . . fronting to the said Broadway on the East, and extending to low water mark upon Hudson River on the West." The patent requires the yearly payment on Christmas Day of three shillings to the receiver-general, and, in case the governour fails to provide the yearly payment of £26 for the rector's house rent, the church shall pay the rent until a suitable house is built for the rector.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1597-98, citing "Book of Patents No. 7, page 338." See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 947. The history of the title to the Queen's Farm is printed in the case of Bogardus vs. Trinity Church, Sandford Chan. Rep., V: 632. The farm originally extended between Broadway and the river from Fulton to about Chambers St.; it was extended to about Reade St. on Broadway and to Christopher St. on the river.—Gerard, A Treatise on the Title of the Corporation (1872), 34. The condition of the Queen's Garden at about the time of the patent is thus described in a letter of June 17, 1708, from the vestry of Trinity to the Bishop of London:
"The Garden being about a quarter of a mile from the Fort, about half an acre of ground out of Fence, a common place for dung and rubbish, of no benefit to any Governour; but, adjoining upon the south side of the Church-yard, and very commodiously situated for a dwelling-house and garden to our Minister."—Eccles. Rec., III: 1704. Cornbury's grant was not placed on record in the office of the register of New York County until May 29, 1917.—See Liber Deeds, MMMXXIII: 129 (New York).
- It is announced that during the winter months of December, 26
January, and February, the "Southern Post" will set out from Boston every other Monday with the "Western Male for Connecticut and New-York," returning to Boston on Saturday.—
Boston News-Letter, Nov. 19-26, 1705. See Aug. 4, 1705.
- The governour and council of New York Province decide that they cannot agree to sign the articles of peace made by Gov.
Dudley (of Massachusetts) with Canada.—Cal. Coun. Min., 208.
- This Christmas Day was "the Coldest that was ever felt here," 25
Hudsons River was froze over and continued fast several days, the severe cold lasted three days.—Boston News-Letter, Jan. 14-21, 1706. Cf. ibid., Jan. 28-Feb. 4, 1706.

1706

Benjamin Franklin is born.—Report of the Record Commissioners of the City of Boston containing Boston Births from A. D. 1700 to A. D. 1800 (1894), 46.

Andrew Clarke, having petitioned the common council to be appointed "school master of this City," in accordance with the act "for Encouragement of A Grammar free school in the City of New York" (see Nov. 27, 1702), and having satisfied the common council of his "Sobriety, Learning and Integrity," is appointed to the position.—M. C. C., II: 291. See, further, Nov.
9, 1709.

The lords of trade require New York to provide arms and ammunition at its own expense "for the defence of the country."
They consider that the two frigates, "The Lowestaff" and the "Tri-ton's Prize," which were sent some time ago "to attend the service of New York," will be sufficient to protect the coast of New York from the French privateers. The queen sends Capt. Redknapp to succeed Col. Romer (see Oct. 12, 1698) "for the finishing and repairing the Forts and Fortifications in New England and New York."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1172-73, 1176.

The committee, appointed on Feb. 9 to determine whether the lessees of the dock (see Nov. 19, 1703) have performed their agreement to keep the dock clean, etc., reports that the dock is not "clean to the sandy Bottom;" also that the wharf on the west side is "not Covered with mudd."—M. C. C., II: 294. Regarding the latter condition, see the lease of Dec. 9, 1703.—Ibid., II: 250-51; also The Manatus Maps, II: 191-92. The committee further explains, regarding the wharfs on the north side of the dock (Pearl St.), that the boards of the dock are forced off, opposite the market-house, the ware-house of Col. Abraham de Peyster, and the house of Mr. Ellison, so that "great quantities of Dirt Runs into the Dock." Opposite the house of Thomas Roberts and "Near the Coffee-house [see Jan. 27, 1702] the Pavement is broke and the Earth sinks into the Dock." All along, the dock is very dirty.
There are several heaps of stones and trash on it, "which with the Rain is Carried into the Dock." The lessees complain that 1706 "the Common sewer by the Cage" (see March 29) is out of order.

 Feb. A "Dunghill made by the market house near the Custom house, 16 and another "by Whitehall," are carried into the dock by storms.
 This might be prevented "if the Inhabitants along by Whitehall Could be Obliged to make the wharfs before their doors and also to the south Ward of Whitehall fronting the River;" also by preventing "the Dirt from running of [off] the wharfs on the North-side into the Dock." The committee thinks "the Inhabitants ought to fix A piece of timber on the Wall Plate that Should rise about Six Inches above the Pavement."—M. C. C., II: 294.
 26 Robert Puddington and others have petitioned the governour and council (Cal. Coun. Min., 208) for a patent for a lot of ground at the ferry, known as the Cherry Garden. With the petition are now filed the codicil of the will of Thomas de Lavall, dated June 10, 1682, evidence of the sale of the garden to De Lavall on June 10, 1671, abstracts of title to the lot, and the report of Rip van Dam and others to whom the subject was referred.—
Cal. Land Papers, citing IV: 69 of "Land Papers," in sec. of state's office.

27 Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to agree for Stones & Lyme towards the Carrying on the steeple of Trinity Church."—
Trin. Min. (MS.). See also June 3, 1703.
 " Now Mr Jamison produc'd his Excell's Patent for the Kings Farme now call'd the Queens Farme & the Queens Garden wh<sup>ch</sup> was read & acquainted the Vestrey that his Excell. M<sup>r</sup> Attorney General Bickley, & M<sup>r</sup> Secretary Clark gave their Fees for passing thereof.
 Ordered, That this Vestrey do return his Lord<sup>sh</sup> thanks for his many great favours to the Church, particularly for his Excell's Patent for the Queens Farme & the Queens Garden."—Trin.
Min. (MS.). See Nov. 23, 1705.

Mar. A committee of the common council is appointed to agree with 29 workmen and also to "finde Materials for the Necessary Repair of the Common sewer near the Dock [see Feb. 16] and also for the Repair of the lile & great Bridges and that as soon as the same are performed that the Mayor Issue his warrant upon the Treasurer for the payment of the Charge thereof. That they also Cause A Beam to be laid att the head of the Stairs on the West Side of the lile Bridge in Order that the Streets Contiguous may be paved."—M. C. C., II: 297. The great bridge was in front of the custom-house, and the little bridge at the foot of Broad St. On April 6, a warrant was issued in the committee's favour for £7:13:2.
 —M. C. C., II: 297. A further payment of £14:16:1½ "for the Effectual Repairing of the Common sewer att the lower End of the Broad Street near the lile Bridge" was authorized on Jan.
 31, 1707.—Ibid., II: 318. See Addenda, 1700, for diagram.

" The common council makes payment of £11:9:9 for the expense of three bonfires with wine, already held this year, one every month, in celebration of events of the time. These were:
 on Jan. 8 (an unspecified event, perhaps the victories of the Duke of Marlborough, for which proclamation was to be issued on Dec.
 5, 1705—see Cal. Coun. Min., 207); on Feb. 6, Queen Anne's birthday; and, on March 8, her accession to the throne. A fourth bonfire was held the following month, on St. George's Day (April 23), on the anniversary of the queen's coronation, as ordered by the common council on April 19.—Ibid., II: 299. Regarding such celebrations generally, see Nov. 2, 1700.

" The common council appoints a committee "to View the land desired to be Leased by Henry Cordaz and John Ackerse lying near Incloambergh for the making of Bricks, that they Ascertain the quantity and boundaries thereof and upon what Terms and for what Term of Years it may be Convenient to farme the same." On April 19, they reported that the land lies "to the West of Incloambergh being Chiefly Swamp only A Small Spott of Upland." It was ordered that the mayor execute a lease to the persons named for three acres for 21 years at a rental of 40 shillings per annum.—M. C. C., II: 298.

Apr. The lords of trade report to the queen in council at Kensington 11 that Ingoldesby's two commissions, as lieutenant-governour of New York and New Jersey, cause "disorders and differences in those Govern<sup>ts</sup> with regard to the Gov<sup>r</sup> in Chief and otherwise."
 They recommend that his commission as governour of New York be revoked, because, in the absence of the governour to visit the Jerseys, "there is a president and Council in New York for the dispatch of business there." They also recommend that he be made a member of the council in New Jersey, where it will be his duty to reside. The queen approves, and it is ordered that a warrant to this effect be prepared for her signature.—N. Y. Col.

Docs., IV: 1174-75. Through some error in the office of the secretary of state, the warrant of revocation was not signed by the queen, and was not sent to Ingoldesby. This was discovered and rectified three years later.—See Sept. 17, 1709.

Cornbury issues to James Jaffray a license "to Keep and Teach 17 School Within the City of New York."—Col. MSS., LI: 111
 (Albany). This license is reproduced on Pl. 28, Vol. IV.

The city magistrats petition Gov. Cornbury to make arrange-8 ments for the city's defence against possible invasion by the French;
 the city being "unable of making A Vigorous defence by reason our fortifications are wholly out of Repair our Artillery dismounted and our Inhabitants not soe Completed Armed as soe great an Emergency Requires." The petition urges the repairing of the fortifications, the making of others in convenient places, the mounting of artillery, and arming the inhabitants.—M. C. C., II: 299-300. See May 9 et seq.

The governour and council agree that fortifications for this city 9 are necessary, and order that proclamations issue concerning the powder supply and the militia.—Cal. Coun. Min., 1209.

The council orders that Mayor Peartree cause the citizens to 11 aid in fortifying the city.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 348.

Cornbury has issued two proclamations, one commanding all 13 persons to appear in arms upon the first alarm, and the other to discover the quantity of powder now in the province and to prohibit its sale and exportation.—Boston News-Letter, May 13-20, 1706.

The common council arranges for the purchase of beams "for 14 the Making of Carriages for the Mounting of the Guns in this City."—M. C. C., II: 300-1.

It is ordered by the governour and council that the mayor shall receive the subscriptions of the inhabitants of New York for 15 fortifying the city.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 348.

" The city magistrats present a petition to Gov. Cornbury beginning with the following statement of the military situation:
 "The Consideration of the Extraordinary danger wee humbly Conceive this Province to lye under if Attempted by the Enemy, the poor posture this City is in att this time to make A suitable Resistance and the pressing Necessity there is for your Excellency dayly presence Advice Directions and Orders in the Arts of Warr as well for the Speedy and Compleat Arming of the Militia throughout the whole Province as for the Regular fortifying this City and Encouraging the Inhabitants to make A Brave defence if attacked by the French (who have boasted they Intend in A short time so to do),"—all compel them to urge him to defer going to New Jersey, as he intends, and to call the general assembly together to pass necessary laws to meet the situation, "that wee fall not under the like Calamities of our fellow subjects the Inhabitants of Nevis [an island in the West Indies taken by the French in 1706] but he put in such A Posture that wee may with Bravery & Alacrity defend our Country against all it's Invaders for the future tranquility of our selves & Posterity and the Honour of the English Nation."—M. C. C., II: 301. Cornbury defers his journey, and considerers ways and means for fortifying the city.—Cal. Coun. Min., 210.

Citizens of New York offer to lend money for fortifying the city, 15 and Lawrence Reed, David Provost, Robert Lutting, and Abraham de Peyster are chosen managers for buying material.—Cal.
Coun. Min., 210.

News having come from St. Thomas, West Indies, that the 20 French plan to come to New York, the inhabitants of this city have begun "to make all possible provision to give them a warm Reception." They have "provided themselves with Arms and Ammunition, and all hands are employed upon Fortifying this City, which in a short time will be put in a good posture of defence."
 They have also "voluntarily advanced large Sums of Money for the procuring of Materials," until the assembly sits on the 24th.
 "A great many new Carriages are already made by the Mounting of our Cannon, and a great number of Stockadoes and Plank brought to Town, for the making of Platforms, Breast-works, &c."—Boston News-Letter, May 20-27, 1706.

"We have above 200 at work every day on the Fortifications, 27 and a great number cutting and fetching of Timber, Stockadoes, &c. for making of Batteries, Platforms, &c. The Northside of this City from Hudsons River to the East River will be inclosed with Stockadoes and a very good Breast-work, with several Block-

- 1706 Houses at convenient places. One half whereof is already done, and we hope to have finished that Line this week. A breast-work is carrying on all along Hudsons River, and several Batteries will be made fronting the Harbour, there being Carriages ready for Mounting 40 or 50 heavy Cannon, & more making.
- May 27 "Most persons in case of any Attack from the Eoemy have provided Retreats in the Country, for their Wives and Children, &c. And a Computation has been made, that in less than 24 hours, we can have 4000 Men well Armed in this City; So that if the French should come, they are like to get little more than hard blows & Brick Walls, which will do them no extraordinary Service."—News from N. Y. in Boston News-Letter, May 27—June 3, 1706.
- 29 Cornbury, addressing the council, refers to the act of June 19, 1803 (q.v.), for raising £1,500 to erect batteries at the Narrows. This, he says, "would have been of very Great use at this time had that money been Collected, but it has not;" and he adds, "I am sensible that some malicious, ill minded People have Reported, that I have taken that money into my hands . . ."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 238. Regarding the misappropriation of funds by the colonial governors of New York, Cadwallader Colden wrote to his son in 1759: "There has been a mighty clamour at all times made in general terms of the misapplication of public money by Governors but when they were called upon to give particular instances I never heard of any except of £15000 pounds granted for fortifying the Narrows on the river below New York which Lord Cornbury applied to building a pleasure house on Nutten Island for himself and succeeding governors to retire to when he inclined to free himself from business."—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1868), 204. See also N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 460. See also Oct. 9, 1718.
- " Cornbury informs the house of representatives that "The repeated Advices our Merchants here have received from their Correspondents in the West-Indies, of the Design the French have of attempting this Colony," have led him to assemble them to take necessary measures "for the Defence of this Place, which as yet lies very open, naked and defenceless." He recommends providing one fund for fortifying the city, and another for repairing the fort, "which is extremely out of Order, and for mounting the Guns, most of the Carriages being rotten and unserviceable."—Assemb. Jour., I: 208.
- 30 The house of representatives resolves "That the City of New York be immediately fortified," and that on the following day they will "consider of Ways and Means, for the raising a Fund, for the defraying the charge of fortifying the City."—Assemb. Jour., I: 209.
- June 1 The assembly resolves that the sum of £3,000 be raised towards building the fortifications.—Assemb. Jour., I: 209. A law to this effect was passed on June 27 (q.v.).
- 3 "Our Fortifications are briskly carried on, we having some days 400 men at work, & seldom less than 200. The Country are very ready in their Assistance, and have sent us 150 men at a time to work, & we hope in a short time to be in a good posture of defence."—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, June 3-10, 1706.
- 14 "The common council resolves to petition the general assembly "for leave to prefer A Bill for the better fortifying of this City."—M. C. C., II: 302.
- " It is ordered by the common council "that the Inhabitants of Queen Street have Liberty at their own Charge to build A Bridge over the Slip at Countess Key at the south End thereof leaving A Draw Bridge for Boats to pass."—M. C. C., II: 302.
- 20 In obedience to an order of the common council of Sept. 6, 1699 (q.v.), authorizing the inhabitants of Queen St. (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1008) "to build A Convenient Market house at their own Charge for the publick Benefit at Countess Key for the Convenience and Ornament of the City," it is now ordered "that such Market house as the said Inhabitants Shall Erect and build at their own Charge betwixt the houses of Capt John D: Peyster and Bernard Smith at the North End of the slip in Countess Key Aforesaid be Appropriated and Continued A publick Market and Market house of this City for Ever."—M. C. C., II: 302-3. This was the beginning of the Fly Market.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958; also 1729; Oct. 21, 1736
- 27 The provincial legislature passes an act to enable the city of New York to carry on the fortifications there. It requires that the inhabitants for the next two years, "either by themselves or sufficient Labourers," shall work on the fortifications, at such times and places and in such manner as the common council shall direct, on penalty of six shillings "for every neglect, refusal or default." June 27
The penalties collected are to be applied toward the fortifications.—Cal. Laws N. Y., I: 592. See also July 11 and Oct. 21.
- " Cornbury says to the house of representatives: "I cannot help taking Notice to you, how much I am surprised to see, that you take no manner of Care for repairing this her Majesty's Fort, which wants it so much."—Assemb. Jour., I: 212-13.
- " The militia of this city and neighbouring counties appeared here under arms, to the number of about 300 men. The day before there were 700 under arms in New Jersey, who intended coming to New York, but "their Harvest obstructed." It is estimated that, in 24 hours' time, it is possible to have in this city between 4,000 and 5,000 men.—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, July 1-8, 1706.
- July 4 Definite advice is received of a French fleet coming to this coast.—Cal. Coun. Min., 201. Action was taken by the city on July 22 (q.v.).
- 11 The common council passes an ordinance "for the Carrying on the fortifications" of this city, as authorized by the act of June 27 (q.v.). It provides that "The Citizens Freeholders and house-keepers Inhabiting of the five Wards of the said City on the south side of the Fresh water Shall be Compell'd and Obliged by themselves or sufficient Labourers to Work at or upon the said Fortifications by Equal Turos & wards;" that the day before such labour is to be done, the city "Cryer" or other person appointed by the mayor is to give notice "by beat of the Drum," and inform the inhabitants of the wards when and where the labourers are to meet; that every one appointed to labour shall come provided with "A good Spade Shovel Axe Pickax or Other Necessary Tool or Instrument," and shall do the work as directed by the overseers or directors of the fortifications, under penalty in case of neglect.—M. C. C., II: 303-5. On each of the following dates ordinances were passed continuing the above orders in force for three months longer: July 26, 1707 (ibid., II: 325); Oct. 28, 1707 (ibid., II: 337); and Apr. 28, 1708 (ibid., II: 355).
- 22 A petition is read in common council, approved, and ordered signed and presented to the governor, which states that they have "Received Advice from Antegoa that four French Privateers are Slayed out of Martinique for this Coast and also that Monsieur Deberville with a Strong Squadron of Ships of War designs Speedily to Attaque this City and Province;" and they therefore ask him "to lay an Embargo in this Port . . . for the better Security of our City and Navigation."—M. C. C., II: 305-6. See July 4.
- 29 "Last week an Embargo was laid here for 60 days, and all persons forbid all manner of Labour, and all the Shops shut up until the Fortifications of this City be finished, so that we have near 1000 men at work every day."—From N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, July 29-Aug. 5, 1706.
- Aug. 5 "Our Fortifications we hope will be Compleat this week, and we shall have 100 Cannon Mounted in this City, besides the Fort, which is also put into very good Repair & Order."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 5-12, 1706.
- 7 Sods used in the construction of the fortifications of New York City are paid for.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 349. The payment indicates, doubtless, the progress of the operations, now nearly completed. See July 11.
- 11 Lady Cornbury dies in New York City. Her body was buried with much pomp in Trinity Church on Aug. 13.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 1183. See also A Sermon Preached at Trinity Church in New York, in America, August 13, 1706, at the Funeral of the Right Honourable Katherine Lady Cornbury, etc., by John Sharp, A. M., Chaplain to the Queen's Forces in the Province of New York (no date).
- Sept 27 The governor notifies the legislature that by consent of the queen they may appoint their own treasurer when they raise "Extraordinary supplies for particular uses."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 241.
- 29 Robert Lurting replaces William Anderson (see Oct. 14, 1703) as treasurer of the city.—M. C. C., II: 308. On Sept. 29, 1710, he was ordered to render to the board "A yearly Acc<sup>t</sup> of his Office during the time he has been Treasurer."—ibid., II: 417. He resigned his office on Sept. 29, 1711 (q.v.), and on Sept. 29, 1726, was appointed mayor.—ibid., III: 393.
- Oct. — The city treasurer opens Journal No. 2 of the city's accounts, now deposited in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- 1 The common council orders eight ladders and two fire-hooks and poles, to be used in case of fire.—M. C. C., II: 309. These were paid for (£192) on Jan. 21, 1707.—ibid., II: 316.
- 3 Cornbury reports to the lords of trade that, on Capt. Redknapp's

1706 being detained in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, the people
 Oct. of New York "ran a line of Stockades from the North River
 3 to the East River, which is about 45 chain; and raised a good Breastwork not only there, but along the River side." He adds:
 "We have raised three Batteries upon the East River one of two and twenty guns, one seven guns and one of eight guns; three Batteries on the North River, one of nine Guns, one of five guns and one of three Guns, and one Battery upon a point of Rock under the Fort of eleven guns. We had not guns enough of the Queen's to supply all these Batterys but the City have borrowed 18 guns out of a Scotch Ship which lay at Amboy, and some Merchants here who have some few guns for sale, have likewise lent them. I thought this a favourable opportunity to get the Fort repaired, which stood in great need of it, and I have got the walls repaired everywhere; the Parrapet (which is of sodd work) all new done and all the gunns that wanted carriages, new mounted and others repaired, so that now I have six and forty guns mounted upon the walls and the Courtines and Bastions of the Fort in as good repair as they can be without New building."—*N. Y. Col.
 Docs.*, IV, 1185.

21 The legislature passes an act for raising £3,000 by taxation toward defraying the expense of fortifying the city. The apportionment of the city and county of New York is £1,500.—*Col.
 Laws N. Y.*, I, 593. See also June 1 and 27, 1706.

Nov. — News reaches England that the province of New York has raised £3,000 "for fortifying that town" (New York); that 100 great guns have been mounted upon the walls, and 1,500 men put into the garrison.—Diary of Narcissus Luttrell, in Hist. Mag.
 (1868), 2d ser., III, 297.

8 The queen requires Cornbury not to give his consent to any bill of the assembly "of unusual or extraordinary nature and importance," wherein the queen's prerogative or the property of subjects may be prejudiced, without first submitting a draft of the bill for her assent.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV, 1188.

23 The treasurer is ordered to pay Joseph Prosser £100:7s for "Repairing the litle Bridge by the Dock of this City and the Wall that Supports the Same."—M. C. C., II, 312.

Dec. 21 A woman is appointed by the common council to hold public office. This is Rebecca van Schaick, widow, who is made poundkeeper of the Out Ward in place of John Brevoort. She is required, at her own expense, to make "A good and sufficient pound and keep the same in good Repair during the time She Shall be Keeper thereof;" to render an account under oath every three months, if required, to the common council, and to pay half the profits of the pound to the city treasurer. A pound-keeper's fees are prescribed as follows: "for the pounding Every horse Mare or Colt Nine pence, for every Bull Cow Ox heifer or Other Neat Cattle four pence halfe penny, and for every Sheep or hog three pence."—M. C. C., II, 315.

1707

Jan. 17 Presbyterianism is introduced into New York. Two itinerant Presbyterian preachers (Non-Conformist), Francis Makemie from Virginia and John Hampton from Maryland, come to the city, and, without asking Cornbury's consent, apply to the Dutch and French Churches for permission to preach in them. This is refused, in the absence of a license from Cornbury. On Sunday, Jan. 20, Makemie preached in the house of William Jackson, a shoemaker, in Pearl St., "in as public a Manner as possible, with open Doors," and Hampton preached in a public meeting-house, offered by the inhabitants of Newtown, Long Island. Cornbury, hearing of this on Monday (Jan. 21), issued a warrant to the Sheriff of Queen's County to bring them to New York. This warrant accused them of intent "to spread their pernicious Doctrine and Principles, to the great Disturbance of the Church by Law established, and of the Government of this Province." The sheriff returned with them on Jan. 23, and brought them before Cornbury at the fort. Corn-bury claimed, by advice of the attorney-general (May Bickley), that the Act of Toleration, which governed in their case, required that they should obtain a license before preaching, to satisfy the government that they were not Papists. Makemie maintained that they had properly qualified in Virginia, and that the queen gave liberty of conscience to all her subjects without reserve. But Cornbury found Makemie "so prone to bid Defiance to Governm<sup>t</sup>" that he ordered his imprisonment and prosecution. The grand jury indicted Makemie, but the petty jury acquitted him, and he was freed, but required to pay costs amounting to £83. Corbury reported the case to the lords of trade on Oct. 14.—*N. Y. Col.

 Docs.*, IV, 1186-87; and *A Narrative of a New and Universal American Imprisonment, of Two Presbyterian Ministers, . . .
 By a Learner of Law, and Lover of Liberty.* New York, reprinted by Hugh Gaine, 1755.

Cornbury bas his prosecution of Makemie upon an alleged clause in his instructions, as follows: "You are not to permit any minister coming from England to preach in your government without a certificate from the Right Reverend the Bishop of London; Nor any other minister coming from any other part or place, without first obtaining leave from you, our Governour."
 This clause was proved by Brodhead, in 1863, to have been a forgery.—Hist. Mag., VII, 329-31.

In the trial of Francis Makemie, "religious toleration was vindicated and sustained, and arbitrary conduct and attempt at tyranny were rebuked and foiled."—Street, The Council of Revision, 39-41.
 He was the organizer of the Presbyterian Church in America.—
Ecles. Rec., II, 877-79. Regarding the growth of Presbyterianism in New York, see ibid., III, 1671-73. For a list of the Presbyterian churches and ministers in New York from 1707 to 1736, see Am. Quarterly Register, VIII, 321. See also March 12, 1746.

The common council orders that the mayor "Execute the General Release now ready to MF William Anderson late Treasurer of this City [see Oct. 14, 1703] under the publick Seal of the same Corporation." This is to be delivered to Anderson after he has handed to the present treasurer (see Sept. 29, 1706) "all such sum and sums of Money Books papers Acc<sup>ts</sup> writings Deeds Leases Evidences and all Other matters and things whatsoever which are in his hands and possession belonging to this Corporation," and they have been examined to see that there are no
 "Mischarges or Omissions in the same."—M. C. C., II, 317.
 All the accounts were not settled until Jan. 15, 1715, at which time the treasurer was ordered to give Anderson the release.—
Ibid., III, 85.

Thomas Dyerley is restored to office as collector and receiver-general.—Cal. Coun. Min., 212.

A whale is killed in the Hudson River, and brought down to New York, "where she is exposed to view."—Boston News-Letter, March 3-10, 1707. De Voe, in The Market Book, 22, 110-13, discusses the subject of whales having been seen and taken about the harbour of New York. See also Pls. 19 and 20, Vol. I.

John Lovell and others petition the governour and council for a patent for the small island or great rock (Mill Rock), lying between Nassau and Manhattan Islands at Hell Gate. They recite the fact that John Marsh, the millwright, had formerly obtained the promise of such grant from the governour and council, had erected a mill there, and sold it to these petitioners. It is ordered that a warrant be issued to the attorney-general for preparing the grant.—Land Papers, IV, 108 (Albany).

The "Laws Orders and Ordinances" of the city, reassembled and simplified, with unnecessary ones omitted (cf. M. C. C., II, 223 and 314), are ordained and established, and publicly read and published, to remain in force for three months from this date;
 and the common council orders that they be printed.—Ibid., II, 319.
 Bradford did the printing, for the payment of which an order was issued on May 1 (q. v.).

Trinity vestry orders "That the Queens Garden granted to the Church be Inclos'd with a good Fence."—Trin. Min. (MS.), 19

The common council orders that Broadway, from Trinity Church to the market-house be paved, before Aug. 1.—M. C. C., II, 321. This was in addition to the streets ordered, on June 12, 1705 (q. v.), to be paved.

The common council authorizes a payment of £3 to William Bradford, "for Printing the Laws of this City."—M. C. C., II, 320.
 This was the second printed issue of the city ordinances. For the first, see Jan. 16, 1695. The 1707 edition is a quarto volume of 18 pages, a copy of which is preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library; it is entitled: Several Laws Orders & Ordinances Established by the Mayor, Recorder, Alder-men and Assistants of the City of New-York Conven'd in Common-Council, For the good Rule and Government of the Inhabitants of the said City. See also March 28, 1707.

The grand jurors report to the court of general sessions that "the highways and Bridges between Fresh water Near New York and Kingsbridge are in many places Very much broken defective and greatly out of Repair to the Common hurt and Nuisance of

Jan. 17
 19
 1 20 28
 Apr. 19
 May 1
 1
 7

1707 all persons Travelling to and from the said City." The alderman May of the Out Ward is ordered to "Cause the places and bridges 7 defective . . . Immediately to be Sufficiently mended and Repaired by the Inhabitants of the said Ward."—*Min. Gen.
Sessions of the Peace (MS.)*, 124 (now preserved in the clerk's office of this court, in the criminal court building).

"The court of general sessions" think it of Absolute Necessity
That A Bridewell be built and Maintained within the City of New York for the better Suppressing of Vice and Maintenance of the poor . . . and Recommend the Consideration of the same to the Common Council of the said City to make Application to the General Assembly of this Province to pass an Act for Raising a fund for the building and Maintenance of the same."—*Min.
Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.)*, 124. This appears to be the first suggestion of a bridewell. The common council was the first body to take any official action, but not until Nov. 21, 1765 (q. v.).

June Her majesty's ship "Triton's Prize" sails out of Saody Hook 2 and has an encounter with a French privateer. After almost a week spent in repairing damages, she went to sea again on the 8th.
An embargo was in force until her return.—Boston News-Letter, Jan 16-23, 1707. See also Cal. Coun. Min., 213; and Chron.,
June 13, 1707.

13 Trinity vestry orders "That the Church Wardens visit the Men that were wounded on board her Matys Ship the Trytons Prize cogged with a French Privateer on this Coast & Supply them & Families with necessaries not exceeding Ten pounds."—
Trin. Min. (MS.).

It is also ordered "That Capt Mathews hold & enjoy the Garden called the Queens Garden, (Granted to the Church by his Excellency the Lord Viscount Cornbury), for seven years, if he so long live, if the same be not demanded by the Church Wardens for the time being, to Erect a House thereon for the Incumbent of Trinity Church. Upon Condition the said Garden be Planted & Improv'd with good Choice fruit Trees & be laid out in Walks according to the Approbation of the Ch: Wardens for the time being & leave the same Improvements & the fence in good repair, when surrendered, & also to Level & make even the passage Lane or way, that Leads from the broad way between the Church-Yard & said Garden to the North River by the Locust Trees, standing by the said River."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

16 The commissioners appointed by the act of June 19, 1703 (q. v.), to lay out highways on Manhattan Island, render their report, which, according to two verified transcripts in the records of the court of general sessions, is in the language printed below, the bracketed insertions being added to indicate the present author's interpretations of the landmarks mentioned, and also to show the textual variations in the two transcripts:

"Return of the Commissioners for Laying out the Highways
in the City of New York

"Pursuant to an Act of Assembly made in the second year of her Majestys Reign Intituled an Act for Laying out Clearing & preserving publick Common high ways throughout this Province wee whose Names are underwritten being Appointed Commissioners by the said Act for the Island of New York have laid out the Roads thro the same as follows (Viz)

"To begin from the gate at Spring Garden [Broadway near Fulton] to the Fresh Water the Course E. by N. Also from the Gate at the End of Queen Street [near present Franklin Sq.], by a small turning Northerly till it meets with the Other Road at Fresh Water. From thence by a small turning to the Tree in the Highway upon the Hill [head of present Chatham Sq.]. So along the said Lane [Bowery] to the furthestmost house in the said Lane
the Course being about N.N.E.

"From the said [last] house the Road [for Kingsbridge] to run along the Fence upon the Righthand and [so] as the Road now lyes to Kips Run [the brook emptying into Kip's Bay]. From thence N.N.E. to the Bridge beyond the Hill; from thence by the Corner of Turtle Bay pond to the top of the Next hill about E.N.E. From thence to the Saw kill Bridge N. E. a little Northerly. From Sawkill Bridge along Mr Coddington's fence, taking in some of the Corner thereof to the half way house about N. E.

"From thence along the lane to the Next hollow about N.
From thence to Meyers N. E., and thence to the Run by Barnet Waldrons N. N. E. From thence along the fence on the left hand leaving John Kierses house on the Right and Cutting of the two Corners of the fence on the left [being taken in] and so along as the Road now lyes to Hendrick Oblius's, and from thence along the Road as it now goes leaving the Run of water on the left hand until you Come unto a [the] "Deep" Bridge over the same between the two Hills. From thence along the foot of the Hill to the left about half a Mile; then turning to the left hand and leaving the Swamp on the Right as the Road now lyes unto Nagel and Dyckman run. From thence as the way now lyes leaving the fence on the left hand through the Ground of the said Nagel ad Dyckman by the house where the said Dyckman doth now live and over his Bridge & so forward as the Road now is unto Kings Bridge the Main Course being North a litle Easterly.

"From the Bridge by the half way house the Road to turn to the Right hand and so Over the Creek to Harlem, and from Harlem by the Lane as it now lyes to Johannes Meyers where it meets with the Main Road.

"From the House at the End of New York lane [the present Bowery], there is likewise to lye a Road turning to the left hand the Course being Northerly and so by Great Kills & forward as the said Road now lyes unto Theunis Edis's [Dede] & Capt. D' Key's thro the said Edis's land.

"From Rebeckahs house in New York Lane leaving the house on the left hand there is to be a Road as it now lyes unto Greenwich the said Road leaving the house late of Capt. Dow deceased on the Right hand [the road to run to the leftward of the house]; and all the aforesaid Roads are to be and Remain of the breadth of four Rodds at least, according to the Directions of the said Act.

"Given under our hands in New York this 21th day of June in the 6th year of her Majestys Reign Annoq. Dom 1707. [Witness our hands in New York this 16th day of June in the 6th year of her Majesties Reign, Annoq. Dei. 1707.]"

"Will Anderson,
"Klem[m]ent Elsewert
"Pieter V. Oblienis."

—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 129-30.
The paragraph beginning with the words "From the House at the End of New York Lane . . ." was omitted from the original entry at pp. 129-30, and not until Nov. 1, 1726, was it supplied (pp. 470-71), at which time the following explanation was written into the record:

"The Surveyors of Highways in the year 1707 delivered into Court then held the sixth day of August 1707 A Return of their Survey of Highways in the City of New York which was Ordered to be Recorded in this Book of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the City & County of New York a Copy of which Survey was delivered to the Clerk of this Court to be Recorded, which accordingly was Recorded in this Book fol 129.130. And the Original Return of the said Survey being now produced to this Court it appears a Paragraph was wanting in the said Copy Recorded which is in the Original Return now produced & which Paragraph is in the words following (Viz) 'from the House at the End of New York Lane . . .' It is therefore Ordered that the Clerk of this Court do Record the said Paragraph with the Other Return of the aforesaid Survey & that it be Deemed & Esteemed a part of the said Return." The entire report was entered in full, at this later date (pp. 472-73), to include the missing paragraph, and the paragraph was also entered in the margin of the page of the original entry.

The difference in the date of the document shown in the two transcripts is particularly noticeable. The text of both, as printed above, has been modified by the introduction here of paragraphing, punctuation, and capital letters for geographical names and for the initial letter of sentences, in the belief that this slight editing will materially aid the interpretation of the document. No attempt has been made to locate the original report in the archives of the present court of general sessions, though it is quite likely that an examination of the earliest file-papers in storage there would reveal it.

The commissioners' report was printed in the Man. Com. Coun.
(1860), 568-69. This was apparently from the original text, as evidenced by the fact that Valentine supplied a word (and did so erroneously) which he stated was "torn out on margin;" whereas this word is perfectly clear in the transcripts. See also Feb. 26, 1735.

The foregoing description of the highways includes, first, the

1707 Harlem Road.—See Man. Com. Coun. (1862), 517-18. Harlem June Lane, also from McGown's Pass to Spuyten Duyvil, which was at 16 first an Indian trail, was laid out as a road pursuant to this report.
 It survives as part of St. Nicholas Ave.—Riker, Hist. of Harlem, 1900, 282a; Hoffman, Estate and Rights of the Corporation, II: 249.

It includes, secondly, the Kingsbridge Road, which was the post-road for New England, now re-surveyed and with new courses in some places laid down. Its direction is the same as that mentioned above for the Harlem Road up to the "half-way house;" its description beginning with the words (vide supra) "From thence along y<sup>e</sup> lane to y<sup>e</sup> next hollow about N.," and ending with the words "as y<sup>e</sup> Road now is unto Kingsbridge y<sup>e</sup> main course being N. a little easterly."—Man. Com. Coun. (1862), 518.

It includes, thirdly, the Bloomingdale Road, beginning with the words "From y<sup>e</sup> house at y<sup>e</sup> end of New York Lane," and ending with the words "thro' y<sup>e</sup> said Edis's land."—Ibid., 518-19; see also Nov. 25, 1751. Sometimes called "the Road to Blooming-1664," this road was the continuation of the Bowery or New York Lane, beginning at what is now the corner of 14th St. and Fourth Ave. It crossed diagonally what is now Union Square, and proceeded northerly to its junction with the "Old Post Road," which swerved north-easterly across the present Madison Square, and followed much of the bed of Third Avenue to Harlem. As stated in the preamble of the act of Nov. 25, 1751 (q. v.), which provided for keeping this road in repair, the Bloomingdale Road was opened in accordance with the act of June 19, 1703 (q. v.), and the road was laid out four rods in breadth from the house of John Horn (23d St. and Fifth Ave.), through the Bloomingdale District to the house of Adrian Hooglandt (115th St. and Riverside Drive), terminating at the barn of Nicholas de Peyster (about 116th St.).—Mott, The N. Y. of Yesterday, 4-5; Hoffman, op. cit., II: 252. John Randel, Jr., in Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 847 et seq., says that the route of the Bloomingdale Road was from a point in Union Square on a line with 16th St. (110 yards south-west of the Everett House, when that came to be built, as shown on later maps), northward through Manhattanville to near the corner of 147th St. and Ninth Ave., where it formed a junction with the Kingsbridge Road. In general, the line of the road was the existing line of Broadway, which superseded the Bloomingdale Road. See Pls. 175, 176, 177, 178, and 179, Vol. III.

The fourth road included in the commissioners' lay-out of highways was the road which, after 1761 (q. v.), was known as the Monument Road. This road was a continuation of the Sand Hill Road (see June 1, 1694), originally established in the times of the Dutch, and led to Sapocanican (afterwards called Greenwich). It was re-surveyed by the commissioners of 1707, and is referred to in their report in the description reading (vide supra): "From Rebeckahs house in New York Lane [Bowery] . . . there is to be a Road as it now lies unto Greenwich the said Road running to the leftward of the house late of Capt. Douwe, deceased."— Man. Com. Coun. (1862), 519; see also Feb. 11, 1768. (Under "Greenwich Lane," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1001, "northeasterly" should read south-easterly.)

For fuller consideration of the roads and landmarks referred to in the commissioners' report, see Hoffman, op. cit., II: 249 et seq.;
 and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1002 (Harlem Road); 1003 (Kingsbridge Road); 994 (Bloomingdale Road and Broadway); 1006 (Monument Lane).

The inspectors of highways received their instructions regularly from the court of general sessions of the peace for keeping these roads in good condition. For court orders of this kind, see May 7 and Nov. 4, 1707. See also July 21, 1709; Feb. 26, 1735.
 27 The justices deliver to the assessors of the city two warrants
 "for Assessing the Other Moyety" of the taxes to be raised in this city and county pursuant to two acts of the general assembly, one being for raising £3,000 towards fortifying the city, and the other for raising a fund to fortify the frontiers.—M. C. C., II: 324.
 See also Oct. 21, 1706.

On the petition of the inhabitants of Queen St., the common council orders "that all the Lotts from Burgers Path to Theobalds Slip fronting the East River be filled up and the wharfs Completed According to the Covenants in the Grants thereof on or before the first day of October Next."—M. C. C., II: 325.

The common council directs that a mayor's warrant be issued to the treasurer to pay "for fitting the Room in the City Hall for the Constables watch as Appears by his Acc<sup>t</sup>."—M. C. C., II: 325.

From this it seems safe to infer that the "Guard Room" of 1693-4
 July (ibid., I: 321, 351) was in the first city hall; also that the "Watch 26 house" of 1712 (ibid., III: 6) was not a separate building but another name for the room mentioned above in the new city hall on Wall St. It is referred to again in later times as the "Guard Room."—Ibid., III: 12. See also May 6, 1731.

The name Single or Cingle St., for Wall St., is still noted in public documents. Lidea Rose, widow, petitions for a patent for Aug. a lot "in the street formerly called Single street, now Wall street."— 14 Land Papers, IV: 103 (sec. of state's office, Albany). Likewise, in 1710 (March 21), Lancaster Symes sought a patent of confirmation for houses and ground "in the street formerly called Cingle street, now called the Wall street."—Ibid., V: 62. The "Cingel" was mentioned as early as 1657.—Rec. N. Am., VII: 166. The name Wall St. appeared as early as Dec. 16, 1685.—See Beckwith's survey, Land Papers, II: 145 (Albany).

Capt. Sheldon, "who was sent in April last from New-England with a Flag of Truce to Canada," arrives from Albany with a French flag of truce and seven New England captives.—N. Y.
 31 news in Boston News-Letter, Sept. 1-8, 1707; Cal. Coun. Min.,
 214. This was evidently an exchange of prisoners.

The common council appoints a committee to direct the paving
 Sept. of "the Street Commonly called the broad way lying in the West 10 Ward of this City."—M. C. C., II: 326. See June 12, 1705.

The common council orders "that the Inhabitants Near the Wall Street Slip have Liberty to fill up the same or such part thereof as they shall think Convenient provided the Lessees of the Dock & Slips Consent to the same."—M. C. C., II: 326.
 On May 20, 1708, this regulation was continued by order of "this Court," a petition opposing it being rejected.—Ibid., II: 355.
 Lord Cornbury sails for Albany "to view the Frontiers."— 13 N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, Sept. 15-22, 1707. He returned Oct. 14.—Cal. Coun. Min., 215.

"Order'd that Mr Wormstall and the persons Concern'd in 27 the house where Mr Macleano lives in the Bridge Street in the south Ward of this City doe forthwith Effectually repair the Street and wharfe belonging to the said house fronting to the Dock upon pain of being prosecuted for their Neglect or default."—M. C. C., II: 327-28. John Macleano, a tavern-keeper, had evidently removed into the East Ward by Sept. 29, 1709, when he was elected a constable of that ward.—M. C. C., II: 382. In 1714, he was elected a collector.—Ibid., III: 69. His tavern, in 1730, was "on the Dock," and its sign was the "Blue Anchor."—See
 Oct. 26, 1730.

The governor in council appoints Capt. Ebenezer Willson
 29 (see March 25, 1691) mayor for the ensuing year.—M. C. C., II: 329. Robert Lutting is reelected "treasurer and chamberlain" of the city.—Ibid., II: 330. Willson was reappointed mayor in 1708, and in 1709.—Ibid., II: 362, 384. For a sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 402.

The common council orders that "the Church Wardens of this City put A Badge upon the Cloths of such poor as are clothed with this City with this Mark N:Y in blew or Red Cloth."—M.
 30 C. C., II: 330. This mention of the church-wardens in connection with the care of the poor indicates a change in the city's administration of its charity work. See Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 188. For previous care of poor, see Oct. 19, 1685; Dec. 4, 1691; Oct. 20, 1695.

The common council orders that the city ferry between Nassau Island and this city, together with the new ferry-house, old house, barn, pen, etc., situated on Nassau Island, "be left to farm," on Oct. 10, for five years commencing March 25, 1708. The "house of Mr Harris" (Richard Harris, ironkeeper) is the place named for the venue. Conditions for leasing the ferry were adopted on Oct. 1. Among these was one requiring that the lessee should take on and discharge passengers and goods in New York at certain places; that is, every Monday and Thursday at "Countess Key" (Maiden Lsq.), every Tuesday and Friday at "Burgers Path" (Haover Sq.), and every Wednesday and Saturday at "the Dock Slip near Coll Cortlandts house" (Coetics Slip).
Cf. the "Passage Place" of 1661.—Duke's Plan, Pl. 10, Vol. I.
 Exception was made in the case of "Nest Cattle and horses or A single Person or two that shall Call after the said Ferry Boat is put off." The lessee was also required, at his own expense, to keep the "New Brick house Barn Well and Landing Bridge on Nassau Island" in good repair. The ferry was let to James Hardiog of

- 1707 New York, "Victualler," at a rental of £180 per annum.—M. C. C., II: 330-34. On Nov. 21, he was given liberty "to Land from and take on board the ferry boats all Passengers at the most Convenient place after Sun Set."—Ibid., II: 338. Harding, who was a constable in 1702 (M. C. C., II: 208), and a collector in 1705 (ibid., II: 285-86), figured as complainant in the mayor's court on Aug. 11, 1705, as a "Victualler," in a suit against Rebeckah Haene to collect his pay "for sundry quantities of victuals and strong liquors."—M. C. C. (MS.). See Pl. 25, Vol. I, for a view of the ferry-house, and I: 245-46, for a description of it under Harding's management. The ferry from Courtsey Key became known as the Fly Market Ferry.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 942. For extension of the ferry lease, ten years later, see Dec. 24, 1717; see also Man. Com. Coun. (1862), 542-45.
- Oct. Ebenezer Willson, who on Oct. 4 was appointed mayor, and 14 Sheriff William Anderson (Cal. Coun. Min., 215), are sworn in.—M. C. C., II: 335. Regarding the form of oath taken by the mayor, see Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 355. According to custom (see Oct. 14, 1698), the common council pays the Rev. Mr. Vesey, rector of Trinity Church, £5 "for preaching A sermon to this Corporation," it being "the Anniversary day" when, each year, the newly appointed and elected officials of the city are inducted into office.—M. C. C., II: 337.
- 28 The common council orders that "the Butchers Shop in the Broadway now in the Occupation of Jeremiah Callcutt" be demolished, and that he have liberty "to Convert the Materials thereof to his own use."—M. C. C., II: 338. This was the Broadway shambles or meat-market at Bowling Green, erected in 1684.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958; cf. De Voe, Market Book, 44.
- " A committee is appointed "to Assist the Treasurer [see Sept. 29, 1706] in bringing the Books of this Corporation to A Balance in Order the same be Stated and Adjusted and to make A List of the City Debtors."—M. C. C., II: 337.
- " The common council appoints a committee for "Lining and making Decent the Pew assigned for the Mayor and Magistrates in Trinity Church." Disbursement for the same was £5516:9.—M. C. C., II: 337, 338. See also June 29, 1698.
- Nov. "The Grand Jurors have presented the surveyors of the high- 4 ways between the fresh water and Kings Bridge for not keeping the Roads in sufficient Repair and pray the Court [of general sessions] to put it to form. Ordered that the same be put in form and that unless the said Roads be forthwith Repaired that Process issue against them."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace, 1694-1731 (MS.), 132. For later examples of the jurisdiction of this court in the matter of the repair of highways, see ibid., 161-62, 208, 260, 265, 267, 279, 489-90, 505-6, 520, 532, 546.
- 13 On the governor's return from "his Other Government of New Jersey," the common council gives him a dinner.—M. C. C., II: 338. See Nov. 21.
- 21 The common council orders that a warrant be issued on the treasurer to pay Henry Swift, "Vintner," £85, "it being for wine And A Dinner as A treat to his Excellency the Governour" on the 13th inst., on his arrival from his other government of New Jersey.—M. C. C., II: 338. Swift, who had come to New York at the time of Lord Cornbury's arrival, was voted a freeman June 27, 1702.—Ibid., II: 197. His tavern stood on Broadway in 1724, when Arent Schuyler bequeathed the house, then in the possession of Mrs. Swift, to his two daughters.—Abstracts of Wills, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1894), III: 118. Pelletreau, in a footnote to the above, says the tavern stood at the present 109 Broadway.
- " The common council orders that the "little Bridge by the Dock" be repaired at an expense of not above £4.—M. C. C., II: 339.
- Dec. The Bishop of London writes observations on the need of having a bishop in America, on account of the "present disorders now arising in some of y<sup>e</sup> Plantations." He refers to the licentiousness prevalent, and believes a suffragan bishop would be preferable to an archbishop or metropolitan.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 29-30.
- 1708
- "There are now above 800 Houses, the meanest worth 100 l. in this City, which for the Strength and Pleasantness of its Situation, may compare with any in the World . . . It has but one Parish Church, but that is large and beautiful; and the Minister has 100 l. a Year settled on him. The Council-House is a fair Edifice. James-Fort is a strong, regular Fortification, and commands the River. Besides this, it has a Wall to the Land, mounted with Ordnance, and seems to defy the Power of French or Indians. There is a Printing-Press in this Town. . . . The City of New-York is thought to contain near 1000 Houses ["above 800," as already stated], most of them very well built. The great Church was built in the year 1695. Col. Fletcher being Governour by the charitable Contributions of himself, Col. Nicholson, Governour of Virginia, and other well-dispos'd Christians. This Church is dedicated to the Holy Trinity. There are also a Dutch Church, a French Church, and a Lutheran Church; and a Free-school procur'd to be erected by the present Governour. The Minister of the English Church is the Reverend Mr. William Vesey . . ."—Oldmixon, The British Empire in America (1708), I: 119-20. He continues:
- "The Walls before-mention'd in the Description of this City were standing when 'twas call'd New-Amsterdam, but its chief Defence now is Anne Fort, and two new Batteries, one on each Side of the Narrows, to secure the Place by Sea. The Fort is in good Order; and there are now two Companies of Foot in Garrison in it . . ."—Ibid., I: 129-30.
- " A will dated at New York in this year specified that the wife of the testator should be allowed to take "a new cubbard [see 1702] that is now amaking by Mr. Shavelite."—Lockwood, Col. Furn. in Am. (1901), 104. An inventory refers to "an easy chair lined with red £2, 10s."—Ibid., 163. We find mention in America of easy chairs soon after 1702, and, as they are inventoried much higher than the other chairs, we conclude that they were rather scarce, and belonged only to persons of means.—Ibid., 162-64.
- " A silver wine-taster and a silver mug, made by Bartholomew Schaats, who was admitted as a freeman of New York in this year, are described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 47-48. Schaats died in 1758.—Ibid., 47.
- "The Pennsylvania Post is not yet come in, because the Bay Jan. 12 is full of Ice, & in several places quite fast, none dare venture over."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Jan. 19-26, 1708. See also "facilities of Travel between New York and Philadelphia, at Different Intervals," in Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 569-72.
- 23 A second ferry to Long Island is petitioned for by Cornelius Sebering (or Sebring). He asks Cornbury for a ferry to his farm on Nassau Island "directly over against the center of the City of New York." This, he believes, "can be of no hurt or damage to the old ferry it being not so convenient for that ferry to send their boats to the South end and Center of the City where he proposes to send his." He desires "Letters Patents" to establish a ferry which shall have its terminal on Nassau Island, between the old ferry and Red Hook, and its terminal on Manhattan Island, between Capt. Theobald's Slip and the great bridge. The petition is endorsed by 40 persons, who believe that the ferry will be of considerable advantage to the city and county of New York, if the prices for transportation are not excessive.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 255-56. A copy of this petition being produced by the mayor in the common council on Feb. 2, it was ordered that the board petition the governour that the Sebring petition be rejected.—M. C. C., II: 342. A draft of such petition was submitted to and adopted by the board on Feb. 4, and the engrossed copy bears date of Feb. 5. This petition recites that the present landing-place on Nassau Island "hath been Commonly Esteemed and Reputed for seaventy years past to Extend from A heap of Rock Stones Gathered together on A small wharfe or Landing bridge Near the ferryhouse on the Said Island unto the West End of the Hill to the Westward of the same and that from high water to low water Mark." It refers to the expenses paid for erecting the "several Public Buildings for the service thereof," the services rendered by the ferry, the low ferry rates charged, etc.; and states that the profits arising out of the present ferry "have always been Appropriated by this Corporation for the Publick Service of the Government of the said City and is the only Considerable Income left to Support the publick Buildings Gravel Gaults Landing places fire and Candle for their watches the Sallaries of their Officers Bellmen &c." The common council's petition explains to Cornbury that by granting Sebring's petition for a private grant he would ruin the city's present ferry monopoly which is a public benefit.—Ibid., II: 343-44; Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 256-57. The city was represented by attorney before the governour and 1708 council, and the Sebring petition was rejected.—M. C. C., II: 345.

Jan. 23 To prevent a repetition of any attempt to secure a private grant for a second ferry to Long Island, the common council took steps on March 3 (q. v.) to strengthen its own monopoly.

Feb. "Mr Jamison the late Church Warden delivered this day to Col Wenham a List of Writings belonging to Trinity Church viz
 "A Patent for the Queens Farme & Garden
 "A Lease of the Farme
 "A Conveyance of the ground behind the Church from Mr De Riemer.
 "A Counterpart of George Reyers Lease of the Farme.
 "The City's Grant of the Burying place.
 etc. including bills for timber, repairs, etc."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

3. "Ordered, That the Ch: Wardens pay Col de Brown Fifteen Pounds for his Lot of Ground wthin y<sup>e</sup> boundaries of y<sup>e</sup> Church & get a Deed from him for y<sup>e</sup> Same [see Feb. 19, 1703] & that y<sup>e</sup> Ch: Wardens Cloth[e] Jo<sup>n</sup> Welch & bind him to some Trade."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

9 Lewis Morris, writing to the secretary of state, complains of Cornbury's mismanagement of the government, of his accepting bribes, etc. He compares his administration with that of Gessius Florus, governor of Judea (who was appointed by Nero, and finding the country in a tumult added fuel to the flame, whose ruling passion was avarice, and who practiced every species of iniquity to aggrandize himself). Morris adds, regarding Cornbury: "I must say something w<sup>ch</sup> perhaps no body will think worth their while to tell, and that is, his dressing publicly in woman's cloaths every day, and putting a stop to all publique business while he is pleasing himselfe wth y<sup>e</sup> peculiar but detestable magot."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 33-8. See also, regarding the character of Lord Cornbury, Hist. Mag., Feb., 1868, 2d ser., 71; Man. Com. Coun. (1869), 763; Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 55; and N. J. Archites, 1st ser., IV: 24. "History has already exhibited Lord Cornbury as a mean liar, a vulgar profligate, a frivolous spendthrift, an impudent cheat, a fraudulent bankrupt, and a detestable bigot," wrote Broedhead in 1863, in an impeachment proving that Cornbury was also a forger.—Hist. Mag., VII: 331. See also Addenda, 1723.

Mar. 3. Cornelius Sebring's petition to the governor for a private grant of a second ferry to Long Island having been rejected through the plea of the corporation counsel (see Jan. 23), the common council immediately decides to petition the governor "for her Majesty's Grant of all the Vacant Land upon Nassau Island from High water to low water mark from the Wallabought into the Redhooke for a further Conveniency for the ferry of this City with power to establish one or more ferries if there shall be Occasion and A Confirmation of the same under A Moderate quit Rent and at Reasonable Rates &c." The common council further resolves to raise the sum of £300 to be used in procuring the grant. The reason for this petition was that there was need of increased accommodations so that transportation should not be carried by individuals across the river at other points than at the city ferry.—M. C. C., II: 346-47. On April 8, Cornbury granted this petition of the city for the enlargement of the bounds of the ferry, it being then ordered that a warrant be prepared for the attorney-general to draw a patent "for all the Vacant and unappropriated Ground on Nassau Island from High water to Low water marke frooting unto this City from the place Called the Wallabought unto the Red hooke against Nutton Island for the better Improvement and accommodation of the Said ferry," etc.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 258. The letters patent were issued by Lord Cornbury on April 19, 1708. The original document is preserved in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (in Box labelled "New York 1700-1760"). The common council, at its first meeting (April 13) following the announcement, on April 8, of the governor's consent, resolved to raise £300 by mortgaging the ferry, to pay the counsel fees and other charges incident to procuring the grant.—M. C. C., II: 351-52. This grant, known as Queen Anne's Charter, was embodied, entire, in the Montgomerie Charter of 1731. See Jan. 15, 1703, and Feb. 11, 1731; also Hoffman, Treatise on the Estate and Rights of the Corporation, 273-82; and "Importance of the Long Island Ferry Corporation," in Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 551 et seq.

" A committee of the common council, appointed to inquire what repairs are needed at the ferry-house on Nassau Island, reports that the glass windows of the house, the barn, the well, the fence of the pen, the stairs going out of the house, the chimneys, and the plaster of the house, all want repairs, and these are ordered to be made. The lessee, James Harding, is permitted to spend £30 on repairing "the little old ferry house of this Corporation on Nassau Island which is Contiguous to the New ferry house," this amount to be deducted from his rent.—M. C. C., II: 347.

The common council orders that lots in Dock St., sold by the city, be laid out.—M. C. C., II: 350.

The Earl of Sunderland (the principal secretary of state) writes from Whitehall (London) to the lords of trade: "Her Majesty having been pleased to Appoint the Lord Lovelace [John, the 4th Lord Lovelace] Governor of New York and New Jersey, I desire you will prepare a Commission and Instructions for him as usual."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 39. On April 22, an order in council approved the draft of a commission and required that it be prepared for the queen's signature.—Ibid., V: 40. On June 26, similar approval and order were given respecting instructions.—Ibid., V: 45, citing N. Y. Council Minutes, X: 304, where the instructions are recorded. Additional instructions were given on June 28 and July 20.—Ibid., V: 46, 54.

The common council grants permission to the inhabitants of Broadway to plant trees before their lots and houses.—M. C. C., II: 353.

The Cornbury or Queen Anne's Charter (relating to ferries) is granted by letters patent.—See March 3.

Former orders for paving certain streets having been "much neglected" (see June 12, 1705), the common council passes another ordinance for the purpose. The streets are to be paved with "good and sufficient Pibble Stones suitable for paving."—M. C. C., II: 355-56. "Pibble Stones" was the old spelling (see Evelyn's Diary, April 21, 1644) for the modern pebble-stones, which are stones somewhat smaller than cobble-stones.—Cent. Dict. "All the Respective Citizens Inhabitants and freeholders of the said City of New York are hereby required to render an Entire Compliance."—M. C. C., II: 355-56.

The common council appoints a committee to "Ascertain how far it will be Convenient to fill up the Eastermost Corner of the Dock . . . for a more convenient landing place and that the Lessees of the Said Dock do forthwith proceed to fill up the Same Accordingly."—M. C. C., II: 354.

In a letter to the Bishop of London, the vestry of Trinity writes: "Since the granting of this patent [see Nov. 23, 1705] for her Farme and Garden we put the Garden into Fence, and built therein a stone wall which cost us upwards of fifty pounds and have let it for ten years, without any rent, on condition to improve the same with fruit trees and walks against such time we shall be able to build a dwelling house in the front thereof for our Minister."—Eccles. Rec., III: 1704.

A "Warrant of survey" is issued "to lay out for Abraham Depeyster and others their severall . . . lots of land on Queen Street, in the city of New York, ranging in the slip where the new market house is erected, according to the boundaries mentioend in the grants thereof."—From "Land Papers," IV: 123, in sec. of state's office (as listed in Cal. Land Papers, 85).

The queen's order in council confirms the act passed at New York at the session of the legislature beginning March 2, 1699, "for Vacating, breaking and annulling several Extravagant Grants of Laod, made by Colonel Fletcher."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 48; see further, May 16, 1699. For the arguments leading to this order, see ibid., V: 7-16, 21-26. On July 20, the queen directed Lovelace to regrant "to the late Patentees of such Resumed Grants, a suitable number of Acres, not exceeding two thousand to any one person," with certain reservations to the crown.—Ibid., V: 54-55. This latter instruction did not apply to the King's Farm, the King's Garden, the Swamp, and Fresh Water Pond, which, by the terms of the act, were the demesne of governors, and could be alienated only for a goverour's term in office.—Ibid., V: 915.

Cornbury expresses the wish "that Packet Boats were Establish'd to Some part of this Continent," to give more frequent communication with England. He has not heard from the board of trade or the secretary of state in fifteen months. There are "but two safe ways of sendig into England, which are the Virginia Fleet and the Mast Fleet from New England." As there is no post from Virginia to New York, and it takes a letter sometimes six weeks or more to come that distance, the news of the expected

Mar. 3
 Apr. 19
 May 20
 June 17
 21
 26
 July 1

- 1708 sailing of a vessel from Virginia to England cannot reach New York in time to make that mail route to England always possible. July
- 1 "From Boston there is a Post by which we can hear once a week in summer time, and once a fortnight in Winter, so that we have a sure conveyance by the Mast Fleet." Another route in sending letters to England is by way of the West Indies, but this has proved uncertain, for "several of our Vessels have been taken Every Year during this War, besides that several of the Packet Boats from England [to the West Indies] have been likewise taken."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 55-56.
- " In a trade report of this date to the lords of trade, Cornbury states that families do not settle in New York to engage in business, but go to Philadelphia instead, where no duties are paid. He recommends that the most effectual way to prevent the removal of "trading men" from New York "would be to bring all the Colonies and Plantations upon the Continent of America under the same Duties and Customs, for goods Imported & Exported."
- The commodities produced in the province of New York and sent to England "are Peltry of all sorts, Pitch, Tar, Rosin and Trayn Oil; and if due encouragement were given good quantities of hemp, flax, timber, Masts, and Yards might be sent." Commodities obtained from the West Indies and sent from New York to England are "Sugars, molasses, Logwood, and other Dying woods, cochaneel, indigo, and Cocoa Nuts." To the West Indies are sent from New York "flower, biscuit, beef, pork, bacon and trayn oyl," etc.
- The trade of this province "is much decayed . . . for in the year 1693" (see under March 24, 1694) it received "its most fatal blow" by the act of assembly permitting all persons in the country as well as the city to bolt flour. Cornbury explains how this has affected trade in New York City, and recommends that either the queen reject the Bolting Act, or that New York City be allowed "to choose as many Representatives to serve in General Assembly as all the rest of the Province does." Thus the city may be able to repeal the Bolting Act.
- There is a second cause for the decay of trade of the province: The act of the legislature has expired which placed a duty upon imports, and it has not been renewed. Cornbury explains to the lords of trade the results of this lack of import duties. To supply the deficiency of an act of assembly he suggests that the queen "signify her pleasure, that an Order of the Governor in Council, shall be effectual in that Case, as it was in the time of Sr Edmund Andros."
- To stop illicit trading, which is still prevalent between New England, Connecticut, and the east end of Long Island, Cornbury recommends that "a small sloop cruise in the Sound," or that "a small Yacht" be built for the same purpose. He says that there is an uncertainty of finding a sloop fit for the service. "The number of Vessells belonging to this Port is much diminished of late years, I have been told that there has formerly belonged to this Port two and thirty top sail Vessels, besides Sloops; Now we can't reckon above Eight and Twenty Top Sail Vessels & Sloops; The number of Seafaring men is likewise Decreased. . . . I can't find above three hundred Seafaring men, of all sorts, belonging to this Port. All sorts of Vessels are built well in this place, but the Vessels most usually built here are Brigantines and Sloops, of both which sorts there are several built every year in this place, by Direction and for the use of the Merchants in Jamaica, Barbadoes and others of the Leeward Islands, besides those that are built for the use of the Merchants of this Place, which have been a pretty many of late, because our people have lost a great many Vessells this War, both going to and coming from the West Indies, And I don't believe there are above six Vessels belonging to the Place but were built here.
- "The Manufacturers settled in this Province are Linnen and Woollen; they make very good Linnen for common use, and I don't doubt but in time they will improve that considerably; As for the Woollen I think they have brought that to too great perfection already; And I must be of opinion that that will be a very great prejudice to England in a few Years, and ought to be taken care of in time; They already make very good Serges, Linsey Wolses, and in some places they begin to make coarse cloth, and without doubt in a short time they will so far improve in that, as not to want the Assistance of England to Cloth themselves." See June 22, 1715.
- Cornbury mentions a few other products of the province. Fish of all sorts, he says, "is so plenty in the Rivers, and in the Bay before this City, that our people will not take the pains to go to Sea." French privateers have recently captured ships on the coast, and Cornbury has sent the "Tritons Prize" to drive them off.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 55-60.
- It is decided to repair the Lutheran Church "before the winter," the cost to be paid out of rents of private houses belonging to the church. Under the same date a resolution is passed not to rebuild the church at the present, the times being too hard.—Records Luth. Church.
- "Lord Lovelace goes next month to his government of New York, in the room of lord Cornbury, recalled; and several German families, ruin'd by the French in the Palatinate, and come hither [to England], are preparing to goe with him, and settle there."—Diary of Narcissus Luttrell, in Hist. Mag., 2d ser., III: 297.
- Caleb Heathcote writes to the lords of trade concerning American colonial manufactures: "They are already so far advanced on their manufacturies that  $\frac{2}{3}$  of y<sup>e</sup> linen and woolen they use, is made amongst 'em; especially the coarser sort, & if some speedy & effectual ways are not found to putt a stop to it, they will carry it on a great deal further, & perhaps in time very much to the prejudice of our manufacturies at home. I have been discoursed with by some to assist them in setting up a manufactory of fine stuffs, but I have for the present put it by, & will for my own part never be concerned in y<sup>e</sup> nor any thing of y<sup>e</sup> nature, but use all the little interest & skill I have to prevent it."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 63. See June 22, 1715.
- The books and papers of Mr. Bogardus, the late notary public, which have been stolen, "to the Prejudice of many Persons in their Titles," are discovered in an old chest in a loft.—Assemb. Jour., I: 223, 229.
- The popular objection to the "prerogative" system of expenditure, by which the British government for many years endeavoured to support itself, finds expression in a resolve of the assembly, "That the raising of any Monies, for the Support of Government or other necessary Charge, by any Tax, Impost or Burthen on Goods imported or exported, or any Clog or Hindrance on Traffick or Commerce, is found by sad Experience, to be the Expulsion of many, and the Impoverishing of the rest of the Planters, Freeholders, and Inhabitants of this Colony, of most pernicious Consequence, which if continued will unavoidably prove the Destruction of the Colony."—Assemb. Jour., I: 224. See also Spencer, Phases of Royal Government (1905), 128.
- William Bradford, the printer, petitions the governour and council for salary and moneys due him totalling £540:8:1, and covering a period from 1699 to date. He goes into the story of his being invited "to Remove out of another Province" (see March 23, 1693), encouraged by a regular salary here, and cites an order of the council of Jan. 6, 1703, to the effect that he shall "receive his Salary quarterly as the rest of the Civil Officers of y<sup>e</sup> Governm<sup>t</sup>." However, Collector Byerly "takes no notice of y<sup>e</sup> Lordships Order, but has neglected and Refused to pay y<sup>e</sup> Lordships Pet<sup>r</sup>'s quarterly warrants in proportion to the rest of the Civil Officers." As a result, his family is now "near the brink of Ruin," and he seeks relief. He appends his account in detail, also a statement of the collector's payments to the "Civil Officers" during the last six quarters. On the 15th, Cornbury ordered the council to "inquire into the allegations;" report was rendered on the 17th, in which the petitioner's statements were confirmed and his account deemed correct, and the opinion expressed that "the said Mr Byerly ought to give his Reasons to y<sup>e</sup> Ex<sup>ty</sup> and Council" which he has not complied with their order. On the reverse of Bradford's petition appears the endorsement "Warr<sup>ts</sup> Issued."—Col. MSS., II: 163, 164 (Albany).
- "The Committee Appointed y<sup>e</sup> 20th of May last to Agree with A scavenger doe Report that they have agreed with Jacob Cousine Carman to be scavenger of this City," from June 2, 1708, to June 2, 1709, "to Carry away the Soyle out of the broad Street from the Garden Street to the little bridge at the south End of the Said broad street" for £12.—M. C. C., II: 359.
- The legislature passes "An Act for y<sup>e</sup> Encouragement of the Post Office within this Province." It states that the "General Post Office shall Remain, Continue and be in some Convenient Place within the City of New York." The details of its organization and operation are described.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 612. For the establishment of the post-office, see March 2, 1685.

- 1708 An order has been issued by Cornbury for rebuilding the front of the custom-house.—Assemb. Jour., I: 231.
- Oct. 6 A conference between the council and the house was arranged 9 to take place on this day at "the Coffee-House."—Assemb. Jour., I: 232. See Oct. 21.
- 11 The following notice, published in Boston, explains the colonial postal methods at this time:
 "This is to give Notice, that whereas several persons do refuse to take up, receive and pay for their Letters that come and go by Post, to the great detriment of the Post-Office: That for the future all such Persons Letters shall be rejected, whether Foreign or Domestic, (when tendered to be forwarded at every Post-Office;
 and for the better discovery of such; their Names, with the Places of their Abode shall be Inserted in the Publick News-Letter.
 "This is also to give further Notice, That whereas several persons do write upon their Letters Post paid, and then throw their Letters into the several Post Offices without ever paying the Portage of the said Letters; that for the future no person whatever do write Post paid upon any Letter, till the Portage is first paid, and the person that pays the said Portage may see the Officer that Receives the Letter and the Money with Post paid on the said Letter; All Letters that have Post paid writ upon them, that come not thus regularly into any Post-Office are to be thrown out."—Adv. in Boston News-Letter, Oct., 4-11, 1708.
- 16 The provincial legislature passes an act to enable the city of New York to raise £600 in two years to be applied as follows:
 —£150 "to Repair the Common Goals and the City Hall . . .
 and for Removing the Prison from over the Chamber where the General Assembly of this Colony now Sitteth to some other place;" £150 to repair "the Publick Bridges by the weigh House and the Stairs and Landing places of the said City," and £300 to pay the City's debts.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 625.
- 21 A conference committee is appointed to meet "att the Coffee house." On June 6 and June 25, 1709, committees were ordered to meet at "the Coffee house," but on Sept. 22, 1709, the place of meeting was designated as "ye New Coffee house."—Jour. Leg.
Coun., 270, 283, 285, 288. The early coffee-house stood on Pearl St. (see Jan. 27, 1702).
- 26 Complaints against Lord Cornbury are declared by the council grounds.—Cal. Coun. Min., 222. The council issued a declaration the next day concerning these complaints.—Ibid., 223. See also May 29, 1706; Feb. 9, 1708.
- Nov. The common council gives the inhabitants of the South Ward 2 liberty "to pull down the Boards about the Markett house by the Custom house bridge."—M. C. C., II: 364. Alderman Thong reported, on Feb. 1, 1709, that he had "sold the Boards of the Markett house by the great Bridge" as directed, and received £13:6. Of this sum he expended 18 shillings, 1½ pence, for 34 loads of sand and for labour "for mending the Street near the Custom house."—Ibid., II: 371.
- Dec. Lord Lovelace arrives on Long Island, and expects to be in 15 New York tomorrow.—Cal. Coun. Min., 223.
- 17 The council orders that a dinner be prepared for Lord Lovelace.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 224. On Oct. 21, 1709, Henry Swift's petition for settlement of his account of £466 "for a Dinner dressed at the Fort, to accommodate the late Lord Lovelace," was taken into consideration by the assembly.—Assemb. Jour., I: 263. Three years later, May 7, 1712, it appeared from another petition of Swift's that the bill was still unpaid.—Ibid., I: 310.
- 18 Lovelace publishes his commission, takes the oath, and swears in the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 224.
- " Lord Lovelace writes to the board of trade: "I very happily arrived here this morning, having been nine weeks and Odd days in my passage; The Kingsale in which I came being separated from the Fleet, got into Buzard's Bay in New England, and getting Pilots there gained our Passage through the Sound between Long Island and the Main, and landed at Flushing. I do not yet hear of the arrival of any Other Ship of our Fleet except the Unity, which struck on the bank at Sandy Hook; She was left by all her Seamen [seamen] but has since got off and has gone to sea again
 . . . Our Winter sets in very hard, the Ports and Rivers are full of Ice, I am in pain for the Germans and Recruits on board the Globe they wanting Water, and the Weather not permitting us to assist them. This coast is so terrible in the Winter I think no Ship ought to be sent hither from England after August at farthest;
 Our poor Seamen were so benumbed with Cold, that at last we
- had but twenty five men fit to do any Duty, and had not the Soldiers, which we had on board, assisted, the Ship had been in great danger."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 67.
- May Bickley takes office as recorder of the city. His commission from Cornbury in the name of Queen Anne, dated Nov. 10, shows that John Tudor, the former recorder, who was present at the common council meeting on Nov. 2, had recently died.—M.
C. C., II: 367.
- The mayor, aldermen, and commonalty of the city present an address to Lovelace, congratulating him on his safe arrival, praising his virtues, etc. They express gratitude to the queen for sending with him "two Ships of Warr and Such large Supplies of Soldiers and Stores" for the support of the province. They recommend that William Sharpas be continued as town clerk (see Oct. 14, 1692), a position he has held for 16 years.—M. C. C., II:
 367-68.
- 1709
- The governour's council orders that the powder magazine be repaired. On Jan. 20 a warrant was issued to Rip van Dam for repairing the new magazine.—Cal. Coun. Min., 224. See May 28, 1702.
- Trinity vestry orders "That the Christing Pew & that behind it be appointed for the use of his Excel the Lord Lovelace's Servants."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to treat with workmen relating to carrying on the Steeple & produce a Model or Models thereof & Report their proceedings therein to the next Vestry."— Trin. Min. (MS.). See Apr. 26, 1709.
- Lord Cornbury is asked for Thomas Weaver's bond, and other public papers. On Jan. 20, he wanted time in which to deliver the papers; and this was granted.—Cal. Coun. Min., 224, citing N. Y. Col. MSS., 53: 19-20. He was again called upon for public papers on May 10.—Ibid., 227. For earlier reference to Weaver, see Sept. 27, 1702.
- The common council resolves to give the freedom of the city, with seal enclosed in a box of gold, to Gov. Lovelace; also to "Compliment" Chief-Justice Roger Mompesson, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Cockerill, Col. Redknapp, and Mr. Thomas Wood with the freedom.—M. C. C., II: 370.
- James Harding, the lessee of the ferry, is paid £1:5, "for building an Oven & Making A Gallery upon the top of the house he now dwells in at the ferry," and £30 "for Repairing the little ferry house of this Corporation on Nassaw Island."—M. C. C., II: 369.
- George Clarke, who later became lieutenant-governour of the province (see Oct. 30, 1736), is sworn in as clerk of the council.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 225.
- The subject of rebuilding the great bridge is introduced in the common council, which appoints a committee "to View the Great Bridge by the Custom house" and report what repairs and "Amendments" are needed there.—M. C. C., II: 372. On June 22, it was resolved, with the consent of Christopher Denne, the lessee of the dock, "that the great Bridge by the Custom house be forthwith New built and Carried over the Dock to the wharfe," and a committee was appointed to determine the best way to do this.— Ibid., II: 378. On Aug. 20, 1709, this committee reported a recommendation "to fill up between the old frame with good Stockades & Continue it direct over to the Other wharfe with the same with substantial plates and Cross pieces and to board it between the Stockadoes and Whiteball to prevent the Dirt getting through filling up a lay of Mudd between," and a committee was appointed to engage workmen and obtain materials for the work. It was also ordered "that under the little Bridge by the Dock be filled up and yt the Common Sewer be Continued under the same to the Entree of the Dock, and that the place where the little Bridge now Stands be Covered with boards after the Manner it now is A little higher than the Street and that the Aforesaid Committee employ workmen to perform the same."—Ibid., II: 379-80. After payment, on Oct. 4, 1709, for "Makiog the little bridge & Common Sewer by the Dock," a committee was appointed on Dec. 6, 1709, to supervise the making of "the great Bridge near the Custom house," as required in the order of Aug. 20.—Ibid., II: 392. On Feb. 9, 1710, the committee reported that they had agreed with John Harris and Isaac Anderson to rebuild the great bridge for £70.
 Half was to be paid on Feb. 15 and the balance on the completion of the bridge, which was "to be performed by the last day of July next."—Ibid., II: 395. Full payment was made on Sept. 12,

- 1709 1710.—Ibid., II: 413; but see Feb. 3, 1711. See also diagram of the Ey 23 great dock, Addenda, 1700.
- Mar. The common council "waited upon his Excellency my Lord 1 Lovelace who was pleased to become A Member of this Corporation by Accepting of the Freedom thereof (which this Court presented to his Lordship the Seal being inclosed in A gold box) after which M<sup>r</sup> Recorder made A handsome Speech to his Excellency Suitable to the Occasion Assuring him of the Loyalty and affection of this Corporation &c: w<sup>ch</sup> his Lordship Received with great Satisfaction."
 —M. C. C., II: 372.
- " Queen Anne writes to Lord Lovelace, and to the governours
 of New England, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania, directing an expedition against Canada for the security of British subjects on the frontiers against incursions from the French.
 Lovelace is required to follow instructions given to Col. Samuel Vetch regarding the place of rendezvous (to be agreed upon by See A. Lovelace, Vetch, and Nicholson), the levy of soldiers, and the time 4 for action.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 70-71. See July 2, 1709.
- 9 In a petition to the queen, Cornbury, writing in the third person, relates that "the Misrepresentations his Enemies have maliciously made of him have soe farr obtained Credit with your Majesty as to Cause his Remouall," etc.; that he "is now hindered by some of his Creditors here" from appearing before the queen, and he asks that he "may be at liberty to return into great Britain where he is willing to answer for his Administration here."—From MS. in the Emmet Coll., item No. 10622. See also June 20.
- 12 The common council orders that the surveyors "do lay out all the Lots fronting to the East River from the Corner of Martin Clocks house upon the wharfe at the Wall Street Slip upon A Straight Line as Near as possible that A Regular Order and uniformity may be Kept & Observed in the buildings of the said Street and that they suffer no further Incroachments to be made upon the said Street.
 That the said Street be by them laid out thirty foot wide
 According to the Tenor of the Respective Grants to front thereunto and that they Report to the Next Common Council what Incroachments and by whom are made upon the said Street in that Order that Care be taken to Remove the same as the Law directs."—M. C. C., II: 374. On April 1, 1709, the instructions to the surveyors were "to begin at the Westernmost end of the said Street by Leonard Huygens foundation allowing the said Street or wharfe as it now is to be thirty foot wide and to run from thence upon A Straight line to Capt. Theobalds Corner house aforesaid and all Persons Concern'd are to Regulate their buildings Accordingly as they Shall be directed by the Said Surveyors."—Ibid., II: 374-75.
- Apr. Lovelace, in an address to the house, requires it "to provide 5 for the necessary Repairs of the Fortifications of the Province." The barracks, he says, "are so small and so much out of repair," that he has been obliged "to billet the Recruits," that came over with See A. him, "upon this City," although this has been a burden 6 to the inhabitants.—Assemb. Jour., I: 240.
- 7 Trinity vestry orders "That the Ch: Wardens do provide Materials for Building the Steeple."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Jan. 11, 1709, and Feb. 13, 1710.
- 28 The queen, "designing to fit out an expedition for the reduction of Canada and Newfoundland according to some proposals made by Coll. Vetch, to whom Her Majesty has given instructions" (see March 1), has ordered Lord Sunderland to send to Lovelace Col. Vetch's instructions, and to avoid any delay "in case the ship which carries Col. Vetch" should not reach Lovelace soon enough or should miscarry. If Lovelace receives these instructions before the arrival of Col. Vetch, he is directed to "dispatch an expresse to the sev<sup>l</sup> Governours of Pensilvania and Connecticut," to meet him with all expedition at New York to confer on the most proper and effectual methods of executing the instructions. Sunderland adds to the written instructions additional commands of the queen, outlining the plan of the expedition. Quebec is to be attacked by sea, and Montreal by land.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 72-73.
- May Vincent de la Montagne is ordered by the council of general 3 sessions to allow his wife and children to live in the great room of his dwelling-house "at Scлавonia in the Bowry Division of the Out Ward," in order to prevent their becoming a charge to the parish.—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 160. It appears 3 that "Ariantie Delamontagne the wife of Vincent Delamontagne late of the said City Brickmaker" was "A Woman of publick Notorious and Adulterous fame and behaviour."—Ibid., 193.
- 6 Gov. Lovelace dies. Thomas Cockerill, his secretary (*N. Y. Col.
 Docs.*, V: 90), notified Mr. Poppel, the secretary of the board of trade (ibid., IV: 266), by letter from New York dated July 2.
 He said that Lovelace "never had a well day in his Government," and attributed this "wholly to the cold & sickness he caught aboard the Man of War upon the Coast." He added: "One Son dyed before him and the Young Lord a fortnight after."—Ibid., V: 80-81. Thomas Byerly, writing to the lords of trade on June 30, referred to "the great loss we have sustain'd by the death of My Lord Lovelace . . . He was a Gentleman of those Qualifications, Excell<sup>t</sup> temper, and goodness, that, had he lived longer with us, he wou'd have reviv'd the Country from his former calamity."
 —Ibid., V: 80. For a summary of the Lovelace genealogy, see Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 94-96.
- " "Play acting and prize fighting" are forbidden by the governour's council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 227. This was perhaps intended, in part, as a mark of respect to the late Lord Lovelace. We know that Gov. Robert Hunter wrote a play which probably was acted in New York (see Aug. 1, 1714); and that Lieut.-Gov. Nanfan, who administered the government as lieutenant-governour from May 16, 1699 to July 25, 1702, and from May 19, 1701 to May 3, 1702, gave a license to one Richard Hunter and his company of players.
 —Hist. Mag. (1865), IX: 118. See also 1704.
- " The council orders that Col. Ingoldesby be informed of the death of Lord Lovelace.—Cal. Coun. Min., 226. Col. Peter Schuyler presides at the council meeting, and is required by the council to keep the keys of the garrison, until the stores are inven-toryed.—Ibid., 227.
- 7 The council directs that the body of Lord Lovelace be buried in New York. A warrant is issued to Lady Lovelace for her husband's salary. The New York regiment is placed under orders for the funeral, and is furnished with powder, etc.—Cal. Coun. Min., 227.
- 8 To prevent the news of the intended expedition to Canada reaching the enemy, the council orders that no vessels be cleared.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 227.
- 9 Lieut.-Gov. Richard Ingoldesby attends the council meeting, reads his commission, and is sworn in. Mr. Cockerill, Lovelace's secretary, is called upon to deliver the seals. Lady Lovelace is called upon for public papers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 227. Concerning Lady Lovelace's encounter with Ingoldesby, see June 4. Ingoldesby had received his first appointment as lieutenant-governour on March 24, 1704 (q.v.), having been commander-in-chief as early as July 26, 1691 (q.v.), and was recommended to be paid as lieutenant-governour Nov. 8, 1694 (q.v.).
- 10 Lord Cornbury is called upon by the governour's council for public papers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 227.
- 17 The council considers a letter from the queen to the late Lord Lovelace about the Canada expedition.—Cal. Coun. Min., 227.
- 19 A council order is issued to the mayor to prevent the exportation Sec A. of provisions.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 363.
- 24 The principal legislative passes "An Act for Regulating and Establishing fees." The fees of all public officials from governour to notary public are prescribed for all their official acts.—*Cal.
 Laws N. Y.*, I: 638. In the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (in box lettered "New York, 1700-1760") is a MS. list of fees paid in New York, dated Oct. 19, 1710. It includes: governour's fees for great seal to patents; attorney-general's fees for draft of a patent, confirmation, grant or charter; surveyor's fees for surveying, etc.; and secretary's fees for a confirmation of a patent for a house and lot formerly possessed, for a patent for new land, etc.
- 26 Col. Francis Nicholson and Col. Samuel Vetch issue a proclamation at New York, printed by Bradford (having been made public by order of Peter Schuyler, president of the council), assuring a supply of arms or their value in money to all such as shall volunteer for the expedition (against Canada).—From reproduction in the catalogue of Southey, Wilkinson & Hodge, London, of July 1 and 2, 1920, filed with broadsides in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- 31 In accordance with the act of June 8 (q.v.), a series of indented bills, the first to be issued in this province, bears this date.
- " The common council, as a court, being informed "that MF
 John Vanhorne and MF Evert Duyckinck of this City have lessened

HENRICUS Permissioe Divini Londinensis Episcopus, Dilecto nobis in Christo Salutem
 & Gratiam. Ad peragendum Officium in Archiepiscopatu & in Precibus Communi-bus sive Ministeriis Ecclesiasticis ad Officium in Parlamento
 juxta Formam descriptam in Libro Publicarum Precum Auctoritate Parliamenti hujus Inelyti Regni Anglie, in ea parte editi & provis, & Canones & Constituti-ones in ea parte legitime stabilitas & publicatas, & non aliter neque alio modo:
 Tibi de cujus Ecclesiastice, morum integritate, Literarum scientia, fidei Doctrina & Discretiva plurimum confidimus (prestito primas per te Juramento tam de ag-noscendo Regiam Supremam Majestatem, juxta vim, formam, & effectum Statuti Parliamenti dicti Regni Anglie in ea parte editi & provis, quon de Canonica Obedientia Nobis & Subsecratoribus nostris in omnibus lictis & honestis per te praestanda & exhibenda, subscripsique per te tribus illis Articulis mentionatis in Tractato sexto Capitulo Libri Constitucionum sive Canonum Ecclesiasticorum Anno Dom. 1604. Regis Auctoritate editorum & promulgatorum) Licentiam & Facultatem nostram concedimus & impartimus per presentes: ad nostrum Be-neficium dumtaxat duraturas: In cujus Rei Testimonium Signillum nostrum, (quon in limbus istiusque unius) prefatus appon licentiam.
 Dat. Abbatie 17. de quib. 1697

London

By His Excellency

Richard Earl of Bellmont, Captain General and Governour in Chief of His Majesties Province of New-York, &c.

A PROCLAMATION

WHERRAS is it of absolute Necessity for the Good and Prosperity of this Province, that our Principal and first Care be in Obedience to the Laws of God, and the wholsom Laws of Eng- land, to Duke of all sorts of Loosness and Prophaneness, and to unne and Pym in the first and Last of God, and of one another, by a Religious and Virtuous Deportment and Behav- iour, every One in his respective Rank and Calling, to the end that all Harts, Animosities and Disaffections may vanish, and the Blessing of Almighty God accompany our Our Honest and Lawfull Endeavours, and that we join our Affections to the true Support of His Majesties Governour over us, who has in this growing Power of Popery and Arbitrary Governour, and has by the Blessing of God procured our Virtuous Living, and in Honourable Peace, and is a great Example and Encouragement of Religion and Virtuous Living. I have therefore thought fit, by and with the Advice of His Majesties Council for this Province, and I do hereby strictly Prohibit all Inhabitors and Sojourners within this Province from Swearing, Immoderate Drinking, Sabbath Breaking and all sorts of Lewinities and Injuries Behaviours in Word or Action. And for the true and effectual Performance hereof, I do by and with the Advice aforesaid, strictly Charge and Command all Mayors, Aldermen, Justices of the Peace, made and provided for the Suppression of vice and encouragement of Religion and Virtue, particularly the Observation of the Lords Day be duly put in Execution, so they will answer the contrary at their Perill.

Given at New-York the Second Day of April, 1698. and in the Third Year of the Reigne of Our Sovereign Lord, WILLIAM the Third, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.

Bellmont.

God Save the KING.

Printed by William Bradford, Printer to the Kings Most Excellent Majesty in the City of New-York, 1698.

1709 Contracted Narrowed & incroached upon A Certain publick Street
 May and highway of this City Called the wharfe Street and thereon 31 have built and Erected several large houses and buildings to the great Inconveniency and Nuisance of the Inhabitants," etc., it is ordered that these persons be prosecuted "for the Removing said Nuisance."—M. C. C., II: 376-77.

June Lady Lovelace is reluctant to give up her late husband's 4 papers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 229. A conversation which Lady Lovelace had with Col. Ingoldesby, as told by her in a letter to the lords of trade on Sept. 3, reveals the following facts: It was soon after the death of Lovelace and of his eldest son. Ingoldesby called on her and demanded the papers she had in her hands.
 These, she told him, Lord Lovelace had intrusted to her to send to the secretary of state, Lord Sunderland, who had sent for them.
 He replied that "he did not value Lord Sunderland's letter," "was nothing to him, and in very ruff and threatening terms" told her she "shou'd not stir from New York" until she had given him the papers. "Notwithstanding his Hectoring me," she adds, "I did at midnight get the trunk of Papers and myself on Ship board.
 . . . Captain Symons belonging to one of the Companies in a very bullying manner wou'd not let me Remove several things that we put into the Fort and paid for . . ."

"The damage our goods received by Sea was very great, the Expence in repairing the House at New York, the Expence of my Dear Lord's Illness, from the time of our arrivall 'till his Death, and of two children, and their Funerals, and the Expences of our voyages amount to above £2000 more than my Lord received there, which was not above £400."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 89.

Lady Lovelace's eloquent story of Ingoldesby's disposition may be compared with an investigation made by the council of the province in 1692 regarding a report that one Mrs. Clapper had called Ingoldesby "a murderous rogue."—Cal. Coun. Min., 73.

8 The council directs that joint committees on the Canada expedition meet at "the Coffee house."—Cal. Coun. Min., 229.

" A legislative bill is passed, entitled "An Act for the Currency of Bills of Credit for Five Thousand Pounds."—Assemb. Jour., I: 252; Col. Laws N. Y., I: 666. This was the first issue of bills of credit (or paper money) by New York. It was to meet the expenses of the expedition against Canada. The expedition, however, was abandoned on the defeat of the allies in Spain, which prevented the coming of the fleet that was to cooperate in this expedition.—See July 2, 1709. See also Hickcox, Hist. of the bills of credit or paper money issued by N. Y. from 1709 to 1780 (Albany, 1866. See May 31, and Addenda.

" Joint committees of the council and house, on the subject of the Canadian expedition, plan to meet at the Coffee House.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 229. See also Sept. 21.

" Complaint is made that the ferry-man lands passengers from See A. the Island of Nassau near Coenties Key, contrary to the terms 16 of his lease.—Assemb. Jour., I: 252.

20 On Lord Cornbury's petitioning the council for a certificate that his creditors prevent his return to England, an order of council is issued that he is "being detained by some of his creditors."
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 229, and see the original MS. Council Minutes (Albany). This was signed next day.—Ibid. Some time later, Cornbury escaped from custody (see April 22, 1710), and was next heard from when about to sail for Europe (see April 29 and July 31, 1710).

22 The militia of New York City is ordered to do guard duty at Fort Anne. Shoemakers are to be impressed for making cartridge boxes.—Cal. Coun. Min., 229.

" By the Consent of M<sup>r</sup> Christopher Denne the Lessee of the Dock of this City it is Resolved by the common council that the great Bridge by the Custom house be forthwith New built and Carried over the Dock to the wharfe," and a committee is appointed "to View the same and Report to this Court what Method . . . will be most proper to build . . . the same for the publick benefit . . ."—M. C. C., II: 378. For the committee's report, see Aug. 20. See, further, diagram of the great dock, Addenda, 1700; see also April 13, 1700.

" John Michael Schut and Catherine Provoost are given permission by the common council "to take up the Pavement of part of the Street Called the Heergaft or broad Street" to lay "some wooden pipes therein in Order to drain their Cellars." No one in the neighbourhood shall "Presume to break up any of the said Street to place or Joyn any other Pipes into the Aforesaid pipes," without permission from the common council.—M. C. C., II: 378. June See also ibid., III: 342. 22

The New York City militia troop is ordered to make the night rounds.—Cal. Coun. Min., 230. See also "The Nat'l Guard and the Militia," by Chas. S. Clark, in Eve. Post, Feb. 26, 1916. 23

The vestry of Trinity Church writes to "the Most Reverend Father in God Thomas Lord Arch Bishop of Canterbury:" 24
 ". . . It is but of late years our Church had its being & is yet but very tender, the greatest part of the Inhabitants of this Province
 & the Dutch & French reformed Religion or Dissenters &
 Quakers & but 3 Countys within the province, would receive a Church of England minister, to wit Queens County, West Chester & Richmond & of these Countys but the smallest number goe to the worship. With much ado, we have overcome the Debts we had contracted by the building of our Church & Steeple, w<sup>ch</sup> latter is designed for a Ring of Bells, the Walls are of a good thickness & foundation above 30 foot square, it is got so high as the ridge poll of the Church, but for want of money, we were forc'd to leave it there, & for the present have hung in it a Bell of 6ad [?] weight, the free gift of his Lordp of London, the Bishp of Bristol in the year 1699 sent us over so many stoos as did pave all the Isles of our Church. Col<sup>d</sup> Fletcher, who was gov<sup>r</sup> of this Province from 1692 to 1698 gave the first Lile & being to it & was a large Benefactor out of his private Fortune. His Successor (Bellomont) in the Government (on the contrary) endeavour'd to ruin it, altho' sometimes he came thither to receive the holy Sacrament, w<sup>ch</sup> we hope God has forgiven him, the Viscount Cornbury next to him, during his governm<sup>t</sup> has endeavour'd not only to restore, but advance the Churches Interest, & made in this Grant w<sup>ch</sup> by the Acco<sup>d</sup> we had from his Successor the Lord Lovelace is shaken & rendred disputable, until Her most Sacred Maty shall be graciously pleas'd to reestablish us therein. Col [Francis] Nicholson has likewise been a Benefactor to our Church of the first Rank.
 A thousand pound will be required to finish our Steeple [see April 26]
 w<sup>ch</sup> we propose for our next task & are about making up that sum, there is much more wanted, viz<sup>t</sup> a Dwelling house for our Minister & a Vestry Room with a Ring of Bells & a sett of Organs, what we cannot effect our selves, we shall leave to God Almighty's good Providence & must recommend the worke to our Posterity, the Situation of our Church is very pleasant between two Rivers on Eminent Ground. We have a large burying place adjoining round it in good fence & adorn'd with Rows of Lime Trees w<sup>ch</sup> will make a pleasat shade, in a little time. . . . We want also a couple of large Branches of Candlesticks, to hang in the body of our Church; Communion Plate; Books and Vestments, which these last, we are credibly inform'd have been designed for us by the late King William, and since by her present Majesty, but by what ill fate or accident we know not, we are still without them."—
Trin. Min. (MS.); Eccles. Rec., III: 1768.

Nicholson and Vetch report from New York to the lords of trade on their safe arrival from England, and on the success of their negotiations with the governments of the other British provinces concerning the expedition against Canada. Only the Jerseys and Pennsylvania demur, the assembly of the former being half composed of Quakers, and that of the latter almost entirely so.—
N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 78. 28

Col. Vetch, the originator of the scheme for the reduction of Canada, writes to Secretary Boyle renewing a petition, previously made by him to the cabinet council, that, on the success of the expedition, he be made commander-in-chief of Canada "untill See A. the government should be regularly modelled."—Ibid., V: 78-79. 29

Thomas Byerly, writing to the lords of trade, states that, after the death of Lovelace (see May 6), "Col<sup>d</sup> Ingoldesby Our Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> succeeds in the Governm<sup>t</sup> and is so influenced by My Lord Cornbury and his party, that whatever his Lordp desires is put in Execution."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 80. See May 9. 30

The opinion of the chief-justice and the attorney-general, asked for by the council on June 18, is given to the effect that the lieutenant-governour cannot order the impressing of sailors from privateers and merchantmen.—Cal. Coun. Min., 229, 230. See A. July 2

Thomas Cockerell (secretary to Lovelace) writes to Mr. Popple (secretary of the board of trade): "We are bigg with Expectation of good Success from the Canada Expedition and shall raise in this Province £10,000, towards the charge of it. I can't say that we match the Zeal and Spirit of the Men of New England, Rhode Island and Connecticut; But we have already sent away all our

- 1709 forces both Regular and Militia, whom Col<sup>l</sup> Nicholson Commands Sept.
July in Chief: We have some against it but they have been outnumber'd. 6
I hope to hear of the Fleets' arrival with the Forces from England, for all Trade is at a stand until this expedition is over. Colonel 9
See A. Vetch is gone back this week for Boston, to receive them.—N. Y. Cal. Docs., V: 81. See also March 1 and Oct. 21, 1709.
- 5 The "Anglican Minister of this Place" receives "a very handsome Salary" of £160 per annum, "besides his Perquisites," and "is attempting to obtain from Her Majesty an allowance of twenty six pounds a year out of the Quit Rents, for his House Rent."—Lieut.-Gov. Ingoldesby, in giving this information to the lords of trade, adds: "And the Church has now in bank as I am informed, seven or Eight hundred pounds."—N. Y. Cal. Docs., V: 83. Whether the "bank" referred to was in New York or London, or the statement metaphorical, does not appear. It undoubtedly means merely a place of deposit. The first organized bank doing business in New York was opened in 1784.—See Feb. 12, 1784.
- " Ingoldesby writes to the lords of trade about the death of Lovelace, "whereby," he states, "the Government of this and Her Majesty's neighbouring Province of New Jersey devolved upon me."—N. Y. Cal. Docs., V: 82. See Sept. 17, 1709.
- 16 The council orders that grenadiers be furnished with red caps.—Cal. Coun. Min., 231.
- 21 The "Commissioners for laying out the highways" (see June 16, 1707) report to the court of general sessions, in regard to the request of "the Neighbourhood of the Bowry," that a road might be "settled from the Meadows upon the East River unto the Next publick way." They order that the new road "shall Come from the said Meadows by the path which now Comes from the same through the Land Commonly known by the Name of Leenders Land from thence Running Westerly till you Come to the Southermost Corner of the Land now in the Possession of Hendrick Brevort and from thence along the south side of the said Brevorts Fence thro' the Land of the widow Selyns till you Come to the Publick and Common highway near the house where Daniel Ebetts doth now live."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 161-62. This road no longer exists. It is shown on the Ratzler Plan (Pl. 41), and more plainly on Ratzler Plan (Pl. 42, Vol. I). It extended from Leander's Meadows westerly, a little northerly, in a curve, and then south-westerly to the Bowery at Broome (then called Bullock) St. Generally speaking, according to the modern map, it ran from the East River near the foot of Houston St. to the intersection of The Bowery and Broome St.
- 25 The council orders that iron and steel be sent to Albany for the Canada expedition.—Cal. Coun. Min., 231.
- Aug. "The Committee Appointed the last Common Council to 20 View the Great Bridge &c: [see June 22] Report . . . we have Viewed the great Bridge and do find that to fill up between the old frame with good Stockadoes & Continue it direct over to the Other wharfe with the same with substantial plates and Cross pieces and to board it getting between the Stockadoes and Whitehall to prevent the Dirt getting through filling up a lay of Mudd between which is humbly submitted . . ." A committee is appointed "to Agree with workmen and for Materials for the Speedy finishing of the Said Bridge."—M. C. C., II: 379. Another committee was appointed on Dec. 6 for "making and finishing the great Bridge near the Custom house . . ."—Ibid., II: 392. See, further, Feb. 9, 1710.
- " It is also ordered on this day that "under the little Bridge by the Dock be filled up and yt the Common Sewer be Continued under the same to the Entring of the Dock, that the place where the little Bridge now Stands be Covered with hoards after the Manner it now is A little higher then the Street and that the Aforesaid Committee employ workmen to perform the same."—M. C. C., II: 379-80. See also Feb. 23, and Oct. 24; and diagram of the dock, Addenda, 1700.
- " An ordinance is passed by the common council "that the Posts that are sett in several Streets of this City be forthwith pulled up and Removed by the Person Inhabiting the houses unto which they front."—M. C. C., II: 380, 382. These were perhaps hitching-posts.—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 535. Possibly they were so placed to prohibit vehicular traffic in certain very narrow streets, or to support chains which were stretched across the street on either side of churches to prevent traffic during services.
- Sept. The common council appoints a committee "to Agree with 6 workmen for the Removing the Goal Purchasing Materials Repairing the City Hall and making Cupulo time."—M. C. C., II: 381.
- The common council gives a permit to the inhabitants of the South and Dock Wards "to put A Covering or Roof over the little Bridge by the Dock" at their own expense.—M. C. C., II: 381.
- The Earl of Sunderland (British secretary of state) informs the board of trade that the queen has appointed Col. Robert Hunter "to succeed the late Lord Lovelace in the Governments of New York and New Jersey." He directs them to prepare a commission and instructions accordingly.—N. Y. Cal. Docs., V: 91. The commission bears the date Oct. 19, 1709, and is printed in ibid., V: 92-98. The instructions are unusually full and explicit, and bear date of Dec. 23, 1709 (q. v.).
- Col. Ingoldesby's commission as lieutenant-gouverneur of New York is duly revoked.—N. Y. Cal. Docs., V: 91. This is done in accordance with a representation from the board of trade to the queen, that no record exists in the secretary of state's office in London to show whether the queen signed the revocation of 1706, and whether it was sent to Ingoldesby.—Ibid., V: 89.
- The council considers matters relating to the French church at New Rochelle.—Cal. Coun. Min., 232. They were considered again on Nov. 4.—Ibid., 233.
- A conference committee of the two houses of the legislature is appointed to meet at "y<sup>e</sup> New Coffee house."—Jour. Leg. Coun., 238. On Oct. 10, and again on Nov. 12, meetings were held at "Bradford's," perhaps the same tavern.—Assemb. Jour., I: 260, 270. On Nov. 4, such a meeting was called "at Mr. Swift's."—Ibid., I: 265. It was Swift who served the welcoming dinner to Lovelace at the fort in Dec., 1708 (ibid., I: 263). There is no definite record of either the identity or location of this "New Coffee house," but the site of the only "Coffee House" indicated on the MS. map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I) was at Broad and Water Sts. The one in this location belonged to Philip van Cortlandt, by deed dated Nov. 28, 1710.—Liber Deeds, XXXVI: 131. In 1746, when Philip van Cortlandt bequeathed the house to his son John, he described it as "known by the name of the Coffee House," and in a mortgage on this same property (Milliner to Marston), dated May 1, 1764, it was described as "fronting the East River, formerly called the Coffee House."—Abstracts of Wills, IV: 202, 203, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1895); Liber Mortgages, I: 419 (New York). In 1729, this tavern was known as the Exchange Coffee House (see March 25, 1729). For a view of this coffee-house, see No. 43 on Pl. 25, Vol. I.
- Col. Samuel Vetch asks the governors of those colonies interested in the Canada expedition to meet at New London. It is the opinion of the council, however, that the congress of governors should meet at New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 232. This was the second time that a congress of governors at New York had been proposed.—See June 16, 1703; April 28, 1709.
- Alderman Thong is reimbursed in the sum of £401: "Money by him disbursd for Making the little bridge & Common sewer by the Dock . . ."—M. C. C., II: 385. See Aug. 20.
- Several inhabitants of the East Ward petition the common council for "leave to Erect A Market house at the south end of Clarks Slip at the end of the Wall Street so soon as their Convenience Shall permit," and it is ordered "that they have Liberty to erect the same at their own Charge provided it be finished within two years from the date hereof."—M. C. C., II: 385. The original MS. of this petition and order is preserved in the city clerk's record-room. This was known later as the Meal Market.—De Voe, Market Book, 242. It was removed in 1762 (see Feb. 23, 1762), and annexed to the Oswego Market.—M. C. C., VI: 287. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959. It was at "the Market House at the Wall Street Slip" that slaves stood to be hired, according to an ordinance of Nov. 18, 1731 (q. v.). See also Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 559; and May 12, 1762.
- Ingoldesby, addressing the assembly, says: "I am sensible the Money you have raised this year has been extraordinary, yet I cannot but desire you to provide for the Repairs of her Majestys Forts in this City, which very much want it. The Barracks are so far decay'd, that I doubt, unless some speedy measures be taken, they will in a short time require a far greater Sum to put them in a Condition to accomodate the Soldiers. Many of the Carriages are likewise much out of Repair, and without some care be taken of them, the Guns will soon want new ones."—Assemb. Jour., I: 260.
- A letter from the Earl of Sunderland, dated July 1, stating that the queen "had thought fit to lay aside at this Time, the said

- 1709 Expedition" (to Canada), is received by the lieutenant-governour and council at New York.—Assemb. Jour., I: 268-70. The letter itself does not appear of record in the N. Y. Col. Docs. Regarding the further progress of the expedition, see June 14, 1711. See also July 2 and Nov. 12, 1709.
- 29 Several "undue Grants of lands" having been made in the province of New York by Ingoldesby, since the death of Lovelace, the queen orders that no grants of land be made by the president of the council at New York (on whom the government temporarily devolves since Ingoldesby's commission was revoked).—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 110. See April 10, 1710. Among the several "undue" grants referred to is one to New York City of the land between high and low-water mark on Long Island; also "the house in the City of New York lately burnt down, said to belong formerly to Governour Lovelace," which was seized for the crown and granted privately.—Ibid., V: 110-11.
- Nov. 9 Andrew Clark, master of the "Grammar Free-School," petitions the assembly for a continuation of the act for encouraging his school.—Assemb. Jour., I: 266. See Jan. 22, 1706.
- 10 The council grants the petition of John van Horne and others, who asked "that the dock from Burgh's path, to Capt. Theobald's slip, fronting their lots, may be erected, and made a public landing place."—Col. Coun. Min., 233; Col. Land Papers, 92, 97.
- 12 The house of representatives, being informed that Col. Peter Schuyler intends by the next opportunity to go to England, resolves, with the concurrence of the lieutenant-governour and council, to send by him "the humble Address of the Lieut. Governour, Council, and General Assembly of this Colony, to the Queen, representing the present State of this Plantation." Schuyler had been commander-in-chief of the forces of New York Province in the last war with Canada, and had rendered satisfactory service in the present war. The address is a detailed account of the preparations made for the expedition against Canada. It informs the queen that the city had already taken the following measures before the receipt of her letter (see Oct. 21) postponing the expedition against Canada: "Twenty Ship and House Carpenters were immediately imprest, for making Boats, Storehouses, &c. and a sufficient Number of the Regular Forces and of the Militia, sent to cover them; Commissioners were appointed by act of Assembly, to buy and provide Provisions and other Necessaries, with Power to break open any Cellars or Doors to procure the same, and likewise to impress Men, Vessels, Horses and Waggons, for Transporting every Thing to such Place or Places, as should be thought proper . . ." One object of the address is to show the condition of the colony, since "All the Small Arms which were in this Garrison fit for Service, have been distributed to this and the neighbouring Colonies, pursuant to her Majesty's Commands; most Part of the Powder is consumed by the like Means, and several of the other stores impaired and lessened thereby." The address is intended especially to explain how heavy the financial burden has been upon the province, but which was readily assumed on the assurances of Col. Nicholson and Col. Vetch that the queen would reimburse the province for whatever should be expended "over and above the common Charge of their Quota." The province has raised £14,000 for the expedition, and, the address states, "we . . . are at a Loss, how to pay the Remainder, without mentioning that we labour under a Claim of many Thousand Pounds, due to several Persons in this Colony formerly."
- The address supplicates that, "in Case the present War continue," the queen will send "two Independent Companies more" of her regular forces, "for the Security of this Colony, that our Frontiers may have a sufficient Garrison to oppose any Attempts of the French by Land."
- On account of the danger of invasion by the French, the address continues: ". . . we humbly supplicate that your Majesty, shall not think fit to revive the Expedition, to effect the French, having upon the Intelligence fortified themselves all this Summer, then in Case there should be any Overtures of Peace, that the 16th Article of the Preliminaries, lately concerted for that Purpose, may be enlarged, so as to include Canada as well as Newfoundland, to be rendered into your Majesty's Hands, by which Means the French King, will not only be deprived of the greatest Nursery he has for Seamen, but your Majesty will thereby, bring to the British Nation, the Advantage of having all the French and Furr Trade to themselves."—Assemb. Jour., I: 268-70.
- John Cure is one of four bell-men appointed by the mayor, who receive £10 "to enable them to purchase fire and Candle."
 He later became a well-known tavern-keeper.—M. C. C., II: 390.
 See May 23, 1717.
- Col. Robert Quarry, writing to the lords of trade, says: "I will not trouble your honors about the present unhappy circumstances of the Northern Province, occasioned by the disappointment of that noble design against Canada [see Oct. 21], since the Honble Col<sup>l</sup> Nicholson's lately gone to London, who is a person the best able to set all those affairs in a true light."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 116.
- Following certain advice given by Hunter on Nov. 30 and
 Dec. 1 to the lords of trade, regarding the sending of 3,000 Palatine to New York Province, and their employment in the production of naval stores, the board of trade now report to the queen on the plans proposed. These plans include the building of a general store-house at New York City, and the appointment of a store-keeper or commissary there.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 112-14, 117-20. See April 13, 1710.
- In response to a petition from the Rev. James Laborie, minister of the French Church, the governour's council grants him a yearly salary of £20, payable out of the revenue of the province.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 267. See Dec. 10, 1702.
- "Mr Jamison presented to the Board [Trinity vestry] Mr Lodge his bill for making two Sun Dials on the Church amounting to three pounds Seventeen Shillings & 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>." It is ordered "that the Church Wardens pay Mr Lodge three pounds for the two Sun dials."—Trin. Min. (MS.). On Feb. 13, 1710, the vestry ordered the church-wardens to pay the remainder of the bill, "seventeen Shillings & 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> the full of his bill be Settling the Sun Dials on the Church in a true position."—Ibid.
- "Ordered, that all Children under fifteen years of age buried in the Church or Steeple shall pay the one half of the fee allotted to a grown person."—Ibid.
- The draft of instructions for Hunter (see Sept. 9, 1709) is submitted to the queen by the board of trade. The governour's council is to consist of Peter Schuyler, Samuel Skaats, Robert Walters, Gerardus Beckman, Rip van Dam, Caleb Heathcote, Killian van Raalsler, Roger Monpesson, John Barbarie, Adolphus Phillips, Abraham de Feyster, and David Provost.
- Among the other noteworthy provisions is one requiring the governour to give directions to merchants, planters, and others, to be "very cautious in giving an Account by letters of the publick state and condition of our said Province," lest such letters fall into the hands of the French; and "to give directions to all Masters of Ships, or other persons to whom you may intrust your letters that they put such letters in a bag with a sufficient weight to sink the same immediately in case of imminent danger from the enemy."
- The governour is not to accept any present from the assembly; his salary, however, is raised from £600 to £1,200 per annum. He is to send to the lords of trade a map of the province. He is to permit liberty of conscience to all persons except Papists. He is to submit a census of the inhabitants.
- The Bishop of London has ecclesiastical jurisdiction in the province; and the governour is to notify him if any minister preaches without orders. No schoolmaster will be permitted to keep school in the province without a license from this bishop. A table of marriages, established by the canons of the Church of England, is to be hung up in every orthodox church and duly observed. Drunkenness, debauchery, swearing, and blasphemy are to be discountenanced and punished; and no person is to be admitted "to publick trusts and employments whose ill Fame and Conversation may occasion scandal."
- Merchant-ships are to fly "no other Jack" than "such as is worn by our ships of war, with the Distinction of a White Escutelion in the middle thereof, and that the said mark of Distinction may extend itself one half of the depth of the Jack, and one third of the fly thereof." The instructions contain a sketch of this flag.
- In cases of errors in the trial or hearing of law cases, appeals are allowed to the governour and his council, if the sum appealed for exceeds £100 sterling. If the amount involved is over £300, either side may appeal from the governour's decision to the queen and her privy council. In additional instructions to Hunter, blank forms are prescribed to be used in keeping records of shipping at the port of New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 122-54.

- 1709 The lords of trade, writing from Whitehall to Gov. Hunter, refer to "the late Lord Cornbury now Earl of Clarendon."—N. Y. Dec.
- 23 Col. Docs., V: 154. When he became governor of New York in 1702, he was Sir Edward Hyde (by courtesy called Lord Cornbury), a grandson of the first Earl of Clarendon, and nephew, by marriage, of James II. He became Earl of Clarendon on the death of his father. It is said that his elevation to the peerage secured his release from prison in New York, where his creditors had placed him.—Harper's Encyc. of U. S. Hist., title "Cornbury"; Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 573; ibid. (1869), 763; but see April 22, 1710; April 15, 1712.
- 1710
- From this year until 1720, the South Sea Company, of England, sought to fund a floating debt of £10,000,000, the stockholders to have a monopoly of the trade with Spanish South America. The "South Sea Bubble" collapsed on the refusal of Spain to enter into a commercial treaty with England, and thousands were ruined.
- In the year 1710, five kiogs, or Sachems of the Iroquois went from hence to England, in order to Engage Queen Anne to make an alliance with them against the French. Their names, dress, reception at court, speeches to the Queen, opinion of England and of the European manners, and several other particulars about them are sufficiently known from other writings."—Kalm, Travels into Na. Am. (1770), I: 268. See also Addenda.
- "The portraits of the four visiting Indians (one of the number conducted by Colonel Schuyler having died) were painted, by order of the queen, by a celebrated Dutch portrait-painter, John Verelst . . . who had resided many years in London. The visit of the Indians had created such a great sensation at the capital and throughout the kingdom, that the artist found it necessary to guard against unlimited reproductions of his work . . . In the "Tatler" of November 14, 1710, . . . there appeared an advertisement as follows: "This is to give notice that the mezzotint prints by John Simmonds, in whole lengths, of the four Indian Kings, that are done from the original pictures drawn by John Verelst . . . are now to be delivered to subscribers and sold at the Rainbow and Dove in the Straad." But other hands could not be restrained from making copies of pictures that were so greatly in demand: none of the others, however, were recognized or authorized by the painter. It was the Simmonds mezzotint prints that were sent in such generous numbers to the "plantations" in America. A set of proof impressions is in the possession of Mrs. John Carter-Brown, and the illustrations in the text are derived from these. Another set is included among the collection of the American Antiquarian Society. The originals of Verelst are still preserved in the British Museum."—Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 146 (footnote). There is also a set of these rare mezzotints in the N. Y. Pub. Library, showing the names of "J. Verelst Pinx" and "J. Simoo fecit." They were "Printed for Jo<sup>o</sup> Bowles & Son, at the Black Horse in Cornhill Loodon."
- Bradford printed, this year, the second revision of the laws of the province of New York, with the title: The Laws, Of Her Majesties Colony of New-York, As they were Enacted by the Governour, Council and General Assembly, for the time being, in divers Sessions, the first of which began April the 9th, Anno; Dom. 1691. To which is Added, His Excellency's Speeches and Messages to the General Assembly, and a Journal of the Votes and Addresses of the House during the Administrations of the Rt. Honorable the Lord Cornbury, Lord Lovelace, and the honourable Coll. Richard Ingoldesby, Esq., Governours of said Colony, to the 12th of November, 1709. There is a copy of this edition in the N. Y. Pub. Library.
- The American Almanack for the year of Christian account 1711, published in New York in 1710, bore the joint imprint of William and Andrew Bradford. Andrew Bradford, however, continued his printing business in Philadelphia.—See Evans, Am. Bibliography, I: 207 et seq.
- Feb. The common council orders "that the Committee for Repairing the City Hall do direct the building of Convenient Seats on each Side of the Court Chamber . . . for the Accommodation of Grand and Petty Jurys."—M. C. C., II: 395.
- 9 "The Committee Appointed for Making the Great Bridge [see Aug. 20, 1709] do Report that they have Agreed with John Harris and Isaac Anderson for the Making of the same for the Consideration of seaventy pounds." Half (£35) is to be paid Jan the 15th, and the remainder "as soon as the Bridge is finished which is to be performed by the last day of July next."—M. C. C., II: 395. On Sept. 12, they received £35 "in full for their making the bridge over the Dock."—Ibid., II: 413. Apparently this somewhat ambiguous order refers to further filling in of the dock west of the custom-house bridge which was completed at this time. See, further, Feb. 1, 1712.
- "The city pays Col. Abraham de Peyster two years' interest (£60) on the ferry mortgage.—M. C. C., II: 396. See March 3, 1708.
- 13 It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that Mr Hobbs be the Undertaker [contractor] to build the Spire [steeple] of the Steeple of Trinity Church if the Church Wardens and a Comitee of the Vestry can agree with him for the Workmanship."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Feb. 5, 1711; Apr. 26, 1709.
- 25 The petition of James Harding asking for an abatement of his rent of the ferry, by reason of "the Great sickness of the small pox," is rejected by the common council. A second petition, on March 31, was also rejected.—M. C. C., II: 397, 398. For the contract with Harding, see Sept. 29, 1707.
- Mar. Warrants are issued to Thomas Byerley to pay for repairs to the fort made by Rip van Dam, Mr. Philippe, and Major Provost.—Cal. Coun. Min., 235.
- April The order of the queen of Oct. 29, 1709 (q.v.), stopping all further grants of land until the arrival of the new governor, Brigadier Robert Hunter, is received, and the council orders its publication.—Cal. Coun. Min., 235. Gerardus Beekman presides, as president of the council, in the absence of Lieut.-Gov. Ingoldesby, the revocation of whose commission by the queen on Sept. 17, 1709 (q.v.), is communicated to the council. Col. Ingoldesby, who has locked up the seals and public papers, is called before the council. A letter to the queen concerning land grants is prepared.—Ibid., 235.
- 13 There is a scarcity of bread at New York, due to the monopoly of all the wheat by several inhabitants of neighbouring colonies. It is realized that the arrival of 3,400 Palatinos from Great Britain, daily expected, will make the scarcity of bread "more Grievous." The common council therefore petitions President Beekman and the rest of the council to institute preventive measures.—M. C. C., II: 399. See Dec. 5, 1709; May 5 and 18, 1710.
- 17 Col. Ingoldesby comes before the council, the queen's letter revoking his commission having been received.—Cal. Coun. Min., 236.
- 22 John Cruger, Stephen de Lancey, and George Norton petition the president and members of the council that Sheriff William Anderson be dismissed from office for having allowed Lord Cornbury to escape from his custody. It is charged that he refuses to retake his prisoner; and that he has given no security to answer for the escape, nor does he possess any possible estate.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 370; and the original MS. in Albany. On April 29, Anderson addressed an answer to Gerardus Beekman, president of the council, denying the charges against him, and stating that he had performed his full duty, and was aowserable in the proper court of law. The attorney-general gave his opinion.—Ibid., 370. On July 31, Anderson was suspended from office.—Cal. Coun. Min., 239. Cf. Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 196, where it is stated that Cornbury remained in the debtors' prison in New York until his accession to the earldom of Clarendon furnished him the means for his release. He was Earl of Clarendon on Dec. 23, 1709 (q.v.), and was first so called in New York records on April 29, 1710 (q.v.).
- 29 The governor's council receives a letter from Lord Clarendon (Cornbury).—Cal. Coun. Min., 237. The original entry in the council minutes states: "A Lett from my Lord Clarendon to this Board Concerning the Petitions against the Sheriff of this City was delivered to y<sup>e</sup> President by Mr Bickley & read att the Board."—From Council Minutes (Albany), X: 491. See also April 22 and July 31, 1710.
- May On account of the expected arrival of 3,000 Palatinos, papers are refused to a shipmaster for the clearance of his ship laden with pork and peas.—Cal. Coun. Min., 237. See April 13, 1710. As to the number of Palatinos, cf. Dec. 5, 1709; April 13, July 24, and Nov., 1710.
- 13 The committee of the common council appointed Nov. 29, 1709 (M. C. C., II: 391), to audit and adjust the books and accounts of the treasurer, reports much "disorder of the City Affairs." In addition to £645:18:10 due the city "from Sundry Persons," there appear to be "Considerable Sums of Money belonging to the

- 1710 City . . . in the hands of former Mayors Aldermen Treasurers and Other Citizens." This disorder "hath Cost the Corporation May in Law suits &c," in their opinion, "upwards of £200." Their 13 recommendations for regulating the treasurer's (or city chamberlain's) office were, with slight variations, enacted into an ordinance June 6, 1710 (q.v.). One suggestion, that warrants drawn on the treasurer be numbered and "by him Kept and fyled," was put into effect immediately, and the first three of the numbered warrants appear in the Minutes of this date. The board appointed another committee to present a further statement of the debts due the corporation and "to demand the same from the several Persons that are indebted."—Ibid., II: 400-3. For the report of the second committee, see Jan. 19, 1711.
- 18 The governor's council orders that bread in the hands of commissioners at Albany be sent to New York and sold.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 237. See April 13 and May 5, 1710.
- June Hunter gives to the corporation of Trinity Church the use of the Queen's Farm during his term as governor.—N. Y. Cal.
 — Docs., V: 320. The validity of the patent of Nov. 23, 1705 (q.v.), had been questioned, hence this action of the governor. Litigation regarding the farm was still in process in 1714, but was settled by instructions to Gov. Hunter from the queen dated Apr. 14, 1714, directing "that immediately upon receipt hereof, you do stop the prosecution now carrying on in our Court of Chancery
 . . . against the said corporation [Trinity Church], and do not suffer any further proceedings to be had in that suit, until we shall signify our further pleasure to you."—Eccles. Rec., III: 2041-42.
- 6 In accordance with a committee's recommendations of May 13 (q.v.), the common council enacts a law to regulate the office of chamberlain or treasurer of the city. The person elected to this office shall be one of good ability and reputation, a resident of the city, and a freeman. He shall give a bond to the corporation with sufficient surety, in the sum of £1,000, to discharge the following duties of his office: He shall keep, in due order and method, in proper books, "A true Exact and Just Account of the several Branches of the Revenue Rents and Incomes of the said Corporation;" and "discharge the same by due and Orderly payments." Every three months, or oftener if requested, he shall render an account to the corporation of his receipts and disbursements, observing the common council's orders for making payments.
 Within 14 days after the termination of his occupancy of the office, he shall render a true account, turn over to the corporation the money remaining in his hands, and deliver up all the "Books [of] Accounts belong[ing] to the said Office with all Warrants Vouchers and Memorandums . . . Bills Bonds Specialties Leases Grants Deeds Patents and all Other Papers and Writings whatsoever in any wise belong[ing] to the said Corporation without any Concealment Imbecillment or fraud. . . ."—M. C. C., II: 405-7. Regarding the regulation of the city treasurer's office, see also Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 29-31.
- 13 "A Great Number" of the Palatines having arrived, the common council petitions the provincial council to so dispose of them as to prevent their coming into the city "until they shall be in a full State of health;" for "there is just Cause to believe there are many contagious distempers among them."—M. C. C., II: 408-9.
 See Sept. 5, 1711. President Beekman states to the provincial council that, in response to the mayor's petition, and in accord with the queen's command to "Provide Lodging and Provisions" for them, it is the opinion of the board "that Nutten Island [now Governors Island] is the properest place to put the Palatines on and that Huts should be made for them, and Doctor Law, Doctor Moore and Doctor Garra[n] be Desired to go on board the said ship" and examine them. Two carpenters are ordered to accompany the president of the council this afternoon to Nutten Island, to consult regarding building the huts, and obtaining the necessary boards. The supplies from the ship are to be stored in the fort.
 The goods of the Palatines are to be landed at once on Nutten Island.—Doc. Hist. N. Y., III: 333-34. "On their landing at New York they were quartered in tents on the Comna and divided in six Companies, over each of which was a Captain appointed to Command them. . . ."—Ibid., III: 423-24.
- The Palatines, whose original home was the Lower Palatinate of the Rhine, and who had espoused the faith of Luther, were fugitives from religious persecution at the hands of Louis XIV, of
- France, who destroyed their towns and farms. At the beginning of the eighteenth century they were wanderers over Europe, and a number of them had come to America under the protection of "the good Queen Anne."—Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 125-30.
- "A committee of the common council is appointed to determine "what Incroachments are made upon the highway from Crommeshe to freshwater."—M. C. C., II: 409. The order was repeated on Jan. 19, 1711.—Ibid., II: 429. The road referred to was the Bowery Road, the present Bowery, continued up Fourth Ave. to the neighbourhood of 20th St. Crommeshe has long been corrupted into Gramercy, and the park of that name is on the site of the old Crommeshe or Crommeshe swamp or pond, with a small stream which drained it.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, Addenda, Vol. V.
- "Brigadier" Robert Hunter, the new governor, arrives at New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 165. His commission is read and published; he and the members of the council present are sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 238.
- Hunter writes to Secretary Poppel that all but three of the ships bearing the Palatines have arrived, although "in a deplorable sickly condition."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 165.
- The common council resolves to "Compliment" Col. Hunter with the freedom of the city, the seal to be enclosed "in A Gold Box of the like Value as has usually been given to Other Governours."—M. C. C., II: 409.
- The council decides to issue a proclamation "to prevent Exactions and Extortions in the Price of Bread & other Provisions whereby the Palatines may be the better and easier Provided."— Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 334. See April 13, 1710.
- The common council presents an address of welcome to Gov.
 Hunter.—M. C. C., II: 410-11.
- The council receives a letter from the queen regarding a new seal.—Cal. Coun. Min., 239. The Council Minutes (MS), preserved in the State Library, record this letter in full. It is dated Oct. 29, 1709, and signed "Sunderland," but differs from the letter of that date in signature, as printed in N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 110.
 The description of the seal is identical with the description of the previous seal mentioned in ibid., IV: 1141 (for which, see May 3, 1705).
- Gov. Hunter issues a proclamation "prohibiting all persons to Engross any large quantities of all sorts of Provisions, and by so doing to exact extravagant prices for the same, whereby the Pala-tines which Her Majesty has been pleased to send to this Province for its benefit, to Settle and Improve great Tracts of Land, may be put to greater difficulty and hardships. And that all such person or persons as shall act contrary thereto, by Engrossing, Forestall[ing], Regretting, Rating or Increasing the price of any sort of Provisions above the usual Market price, shall incur the utmost severity the law can inflict, according to the Laws and Statutes in that case made and provided."—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter,
 June 19-26, 1710.
- Gov. Hunter intends to go to Albany to meet the Five Nations.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 239.
- Palatine orphans are to be provided for, by order of the council, and an advertisement to that effect is to be published.—Ibid.
- Gov. Hunter signs an ordinance for establishing courts of judicature on Nutten Island for the government of the Palatines.—
Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 335-36.
- "Ordered a Letter be written to the Bishop of London in answer to his of the 24th febr<sup>y</sup> last giving him thanks for his great Favours to the Church & to acquaint his Lordship what preparations are making to finish the Steeple."—Trin. Min.
 (MS).
- Gov. Hunter reports to the lords of trade that 470 of the Pala-tines (see April 15) have been left (by sickness). He is occupied with assigning lands on the Hudson River to the remainder.—N. Y.
Col. Docs., V: 166-68, 170-72. Their location, 100 miles up the river, is described in ibid., V: 180-81, 196; and in Wilson, Mem.
Hist. N. Y., II: 125-30; see also Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 325 et seq.
- The common council orders "that Mr John Keill & Mr Archibald Kennedy Gent be Complimented with the freedom of this Corporation."—M. C. C., II: 412.
- According to the agreement entered into with workmen to rebuild the great bridge (see Feb. 23, 1709), it was to be completed at this time (see M. C. C., II: 395); but according to a common

- council order of Feb. 3, 1711 (q.v.), for employing workmen to finish it, it is evidently not yet completed.
- 1710
 11. 31 Cornbury, over the signature "Clarendoo," writes from on board the "Maidstone," at Sandy Hook, to Gov. Hunter: "I would not let Colonel De Peyster go without troubling your Excellency with these few lines to return you my most hearty Excellency for all your favours, and particularly at my going off . . ." He commends to Hunter's protection the sheriff, Anderson.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 406. See June 20, 1709.
- William Anderson, nevertheless, is suspended from the office of sheriff (see April 22, 1710), and Francis Harris is appointed in his place.—Cal. Coun. Min., 239.
- Sept.—
 18 A large prize ship, the "Sto Christo del Burgo," loaded with cocoa, is brought into the harbour.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 232.
- A fleet of 36 vessels, commanded by Francis Nicholson, sails from Boston to conquer Acadia. Port Royal surrendered on Oct. 2, and the English immediately took possession. The province was formally ceded to Great Britain by the treaty of Utrecht (1713).—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 406-9.
- 29 The governor nominates Col. Jacobus van Cortlandt to be mayor for the ensuing year.—M. C. C., II: 416. He was sworn in on Oct. 14.—Ibid., II: 420. He became mayor again on Sept. 29, 1719 (q.v.). For a brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 402.
- Oct.—
 The common council made a payment of £10:0:2½ to "Hendrick Deforeest," on July 6, 1711, "for glazing the City Hall" this month.—M. C. C., II: 445.
- 19 An ordinance is passed by the provincial council to regulate official fees. It was printed by Bradford in 1710.—Evaas, Am. Bibliog., I: 210.
- 26 The governor and council having determined to apprentice "the Orphaas of the Palatines (and some of those other Children whose Parents have too many to look after them and mind their Labour) for a certain time," John Peter Zenger, at the age of 13, is apprenticed to William Bradford for 8 years. In the indenture Zenger promises to serve his master "well and truly," not to "absent or prolong him self" from his master's service at any time, and to behave "in all things as a good and faithful Servant;" while Bradford agrees to provide him with "good, sufficient and wholesome Meat, Drink and Cloathing," and at the expiration of the 8 years to "Surrender and deliver up the said John Peter Zenger, well Cloathed," to the governor of the province.—Hist. Mag., 1st ser., VIII: 35-36, citing "Indentures of Palatine Children," in secretary of state's office, Albany. The MS. volume containing these indentures was lost in the Capitol fire in 1911; but the names of the children, parents, and those to whom the children were apprenticed are printed in Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 339, 341, 342.
- 28 The assembly having resolved on Oct. 25 "That 2500 Ounces of Plate, be levied and raised towards defraying his Excellency's necessary Expence for one Year," the governor is obliged to communicate to them the instructions from the queen (see April 20, 1703) that the assembly should not make any such gift, or the governor receive it.—Assemb. Jour., I: 280-81.
- Nov.—
 The cupola of the city hall is painted during this month at an expense of £0:13:6.—M. C. C., II: 445. This completed the repairs on the cupola which had been going on for three months and for which over £25 had been disbursed for carpenter work, "sodder Charcole Caudles," boards, nails, sheet lead, and ironwork.—Ibid., II: 428-29.
- According to information given to the lords of trade by James du Pré on Dec. 6, 1711, the Palatines, by November, 1710, had "for the most part" been removed from the city of New York, "to the lands laid out for their settlement." Their number "then amounted to about 2200."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 289. See April 13, 1710.
- 2 The common council orders "that the Cage Pillory Stocks & whipping post be Removed to the upper end of the broad Street A little below the City Hall."—M. C. C., II: 425. The work was done in June following, and a bill of £31:8:6 for the same was paid on July 6.—Ibid., II: 445. See Nov. 1, 1703, and Feb. 19, 1720.
- 4 A bill "to lay a Duty on all Chimneys and Fire Hearths for the Support of the Government and Defence of the Frontiers" is introduced in the legislature, but fails to become a law.—Assemb. Jour., I: 282, 283, 285; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 375. A similar tax had been proposed in New Amsterdam (see July 1, 1666). The hearth tax in Somerset, Eng., in 1664, was one shilling annually per hearth.—Dwellej, National Records, Vol. I.
- A conference committee of the two houses of the legislature is appointed to meet at "Mr Harris's" (tavern—see Dec. 22, 1704), to consider an act entitled "An Act, to prevent the burning of Woods."—Assemb. Jour., I: 283. In 1712, other conferences were held at Harris's.—Ibid., I: 327, 330.
- Lewis Morris is expelled from the assembly for "falsely and scandalously" vilifying the "Integrity and Honesty" of the house.—Assemb. Jour., I: 283.
- Gov. Hunter informs the council that he is "directed by her Majesty to Naturalize the Palatines;" he recommends that they resume consideration of the bill lately brought into the house for a general naturalization.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 305. Such a law was not passed, however, until July 5, 1715 (q.v.).
- John Bridger, the surveyor of woods for the province, writes to the lords of trade to ask for the same allowance for travelling expenses (namely, 20 shillings) as is granted to "the Surveyor of Customs, the Engineer & Post Master."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 176. He was to instruct the Palatines in the process of making tar.—Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 125-30.
- In accordance with a request, of yesterday, a joint committee meeting of the council and assembly, is to be held this evening, at 9th house of Mr Swift" (a tavern), to consider the amendments to the bill entitled "An Act for laying a Duty on all Chimneys."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 306. See Nov. 4.
- A conference committee of the two houses of the legislature is appointed to meet "at Mr Swift's."—Assemb. Jour., I: 286. See also Nov. 21, 1707; Sept. 22, 1709; May 7, 1712.
- The house reports that it cannot agree to amendments made by the council to "An Act for the Treasurer's paying sundry Sums of Money," because such amendments would destroy "the very Essence and Intent of the Bill . . . The misapplication of the publick Money's of this Colony, have been to[o] apparent to avoid the Notice of the Assembly; to prevent the like is the Intent of this Bill."—Assemb. Jour., I: 286-87.
- A joint committee of the council and assembly is to meet "at 9th house of Mr Harris."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 309. Harris's tavern retained official favour for a number of years.—See Dec. 22, 1704; Nov. 8, 1710; April 6, 1711; Nov. 25, 1712; and cf. Sept. 19, 1715.
- Chaplain John Sharpe, writing to Sec. Clarke, says that the floor of the chapel in the fort is finished and "the Gov<sup>rs</sup> Gallery will be begun this week." As the officers at Albany "will give nothing" toward these repairs, he requests Mr. Clarke to pay the carpenter twenty dollars "out of his Excys Bounty towards the repairs of the Chappel," also to procure a contribution of £4 from Col. Ingoldesby, if possible.—Cal. MSS., LIV: 111 (Albany).
- "Ordered that Cap<sup>t</sup> Clarke agree with a Certain man that built the meeting house at Fairfield for his Charges to Come to New York about Building the Steeple not Exceeding £3."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Feb. 5, 1711.
- 1711
- The committee of the common council appointed on May 13, 1710 (q.v.), "for Stating the Debts due to this City," presents a detailed report. The total amount due is £835:10:9, about 40% of which is charged to Mayor Van Cortlandt and five ex-mayors. The treasurer is ordered to "demand & Receive of the several Persons D<sup>e</sup> to this Corporation the several sums of Money mentioned in the said Report."—M. C. C., II: 429-33.
- It is ordered by the court of mayor and aldermen that hereafter the clerk of the court may relieve the mayor by signing "all Process of this Court Except writs of attachment."—M. C. C., Jan. 23, 1711.
- A committee appointed by the common council is directed "to employ workmen and provide Materials for finishing the great Bridge by the Custom House and Making the same Convenient for the Shipping of and Landing of Merchadize," and also "Cause the Wall under the Market house at the South end of the broad Street near the Dock to be Repaired."—M. C. C., II: 434. See Feb. 23, 1709; July 31, 1710; June, 1711; June 1, 1714.
- The financial transactions of a mayor of the city of New York in 1710 are illustrated by the following items taken from a similar

1711 original report (MS.) of Mayor Van Cortlaed for the quarter
 Feb. ending on this date:
 3 "Nov. 3 From Evert Dayke for Refusing the Constables place 05:00:00
 Nov. 9 From Claes Bogard for Refusing of ditto 05:00:00 Decem 14 From Gerrit Onkelback for a Lyceos till the 25 of March Next 00:04: 6
 Jan 9 From Reynier Tongelie For his Freedom 01:00:00
 Jan 13 By a fine From Jobh Maeh for Importing a Young Whomen which he was obligd to Carry back
 For Road Island 00:16:06
 Feb 3 From Charles Tellies his Freedom 01:—:—
 ————
 ————
 13:05:"

It concludes with an item of expenditure:
 "1710 Paid to William Nicolls Now I for his advice in the City bill for Confirming the City Charte 01:10:00

Ballance Due 11:15:00"

—From the original, misplaced within a bundle of vouchers labelled "1815-16," in the comptroller's office.

5 "Ordered that the Church Wardens pay Mr Thomas Clarke the thirty Shillings he paid Mr Lewes for his Charges in Coming from Connecticut to undertake the Spire of the Steeple."—*Trin.
 Min. (MS.)*. See Feb. 13, 1710, and June 16, 1711.

6 At the celebration of the queen's birthday, for which a bonfire has been ordered by the common council, there is to be only "so much Wine Expended thereat as the Mayor Shall Direct."—M. C. C., II: 434. See also April 23.

10 A committee appointed to examine "the ferry-house and bridge at the ferry" reports "that the Mantle piece in one of the Rooms is broke," and that the "landing bridge" is "too Short by twenty foot." It is ordered by the common council that a new mantelpiece be made and the bridge be lengthened.—M. C. C., II: 435, 456.

Mar. 27 Jean Cast (a Frenchman), writing to Hunter regarding the Palatines, states, among other things, that the people "persuade themselves that Canada will be taken this campaign, and that upon the conquest of that country, as a security for that settlement, they will be established on the lands destined for them."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 214.

Apr. 6 Mason work calling for an expenditure of £1:8 is done "in the Dungeon at the City Hall."—M. C. C., III: 26.

6 The common council orders that "the Treasurer forthwith purchase Eighteen Rush bottom Chairs and an Oval Table for the use of the Commoo Council."—M. C. C., II: 406.

" Richard Harris, the tavern-keeper, petitions for leave to lay a drain "from his house into the broad Street and to Open the Ground to lay the same and that no body bring in any Other into itt without the Petitioners leave." Harris is permitted to lay the drain "from his dwelling house through Princes [Beaver] Street into the broad Street at his own Charge he fill up and paving the Street again." It is ordered that no one be permitted to use the drain without bearing a part of the cost of building it.—M. C. C., II: 441. For the tavern of Richard Harris, which stood in William St., see Dec. 22, 1704.

23 At the celebration of the anniversary of the queen's coronation on this day, for which a bonfire has been ordered by the common council, there is to be only "such A quantity of wine as The Mayor shall direct."—M. C. C., II: 442.

27 Plate belonging to the chapel is to be delivered to Mr. Sharpe, chaplain of her majesty's forces.—Cal. Coun. Min., 241. This date probably marks the completion of Hunter's refitting of the building for its original purpose, it having been used for various secular purposes since Fletcher's time.—See Feb. 20, 1712.

May 1 John Basford, who "for the Space of Six Months now last past hath kept A Common Alehouse or tipping house in the West Ward," is fined 20s. by the court of general sessions for keeping one set of weights "heavier than they Ought to be," which he used when he "did Receive and take in his way of trade and dealing," and another set of "false weights which were to[o] light," when delivering.—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 199-200.

June From June to September, inclusive, the great and little bridges were repaired.—M. C. C., III: 1. See Feb. 3, 1711.

1 A law is passed in England for "establishing a General Post Office for all Her Majesties Dominions," which provides a "Chief

Letter-Office" at Edinburgh, Dublin, and "at New York in North America," as well as at other convenient places, the law to be effective after June 1, 1711. Rules and regulations governing the cost of "portage" are made. For a single letter, London to New York, or vice versa, the charge is to be one shilling; for a double letter, two shillings; for a "treble" letter, three shillings, and for a letter weighing an ounce, four shillings. Rates of postage are also prescribed for communications between the colonies, and between the various cities of the colonies in America. Thus, the cost of sending a letter from New York to any place not exceeding 100 miles, is sixpence for a single letter; one shilling for a double or treble letter; and two shillings for a letter weighing an ounce.—Boston News-Letter, Jan. 28-Feb. 4, 1712. See June 23

" Ariantie Douw, widow of Andries Douw, is appointed by the common council to be "Continued Scavenger [see March 31, 1696] of the Broad Street" for one year, at £11 per annum, payable quarterly from June 11.—M. C. C., II: 443. Her husband had been the scavenger.—Ibid., II: 441.

14 Gov. Hunter, who is 100 miles up the Hudson on his return from an interview with "the Five Indian Cantons," receives from Secretary St. John the queen's instructions and commands relating to "the Expedition against her enemys in these parts." These have been forwarded by Lieut.-Gen. Nicholson who has just arrived at Boston with two men-of-war and transports destined for New York. Hunter thereupon dispatched an express back to Albany with orders "to detain two Sachins of each Canton till further orders." At New York, he gave orders for bread and other provisions; ordered the "Feversbam" to go to Virginia and Maryland for pork, "this country affording none;" and then went to New London, Conn., "to concert matters with y<sup>e</sup> Council of Warr constituted by her Majesty for that purpose. . . . I dispatch Coll. Schuyler from New London, with orders to y<sup>e</sup> Sachins above mentioned to bring downe immediately all their fighting men with their arms and cannoes to Albany." On his return to New York, Hunter, besides obtaining provisions, had to secure and build bat-teaux for the transportation of forces and supplies (see June 27, 1711).
 The assembly of New York raised £10,000 and their quota of 600 men. So well did Hunter's preparations prosper that, by the end of July, he reported "I had the troops levy'd, clothed, accoutred and victualled and upon their march for Albany, had ready made 330 batteaux, capable of carrying each six men with their provisions and had sent round to Boston a sufficient quantity of bread and a very considerable stock of other provisions, the pork from Virginia not being then arrived; and on y<sup>e</sup> 9th of August went in company wth Lieut<sup>nt</sup> Generall Nicholson to Albany.

"I was troubled to find no news of our Indians at Albany. We made however our other troops flye off as they came upp. They arrived at last on y<sup>e</sup> 24th of August, a jolly crew, about 800 in number. . . . and on y<sup>e</sup> 30th of August they followed y<sup>e</sup> troops. . . .

"Upon my arrivall at New York on y<sup>e</sup> first of September, I received advice by a letter of Admirall Walkers, that the fleet which had sailed y<sup>e</sup> 28th of July was upon y<sup>e</sup> 14th of August in y<sup>e</sup> Mouth of S<sup>t</sup>. Laurence River in good condition."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 252-54, 257-61. See also Aug. 22, Sept. 12 and 29, 1711. Regarding the expedition of 1709, see March 1, 1709.

16 Preparations are under way for the expedition against Canada.
 Gov. Hunter is going to New London to meet other governors.
 An embargo is laid on outgoing vessels.—Cal. Coun. Min., 241.

16 "Mr Westerton and Mr Prosser attending without were called in and adged to work Masonry work on the Steeple at Six Shillings and Six pence  $\frac{3}{4}$  day & find themselves drink and to find Labourers to tend themselves the Church paying the Labourers two Shillings and three pence  $\frac{3}{4}$  day and to take of Mr Prosser fifty Load of Lime at the market Price."—Trin. Min. (MS.). Up to 1709, the steeple had been built up "so high as the ridge poll of the Church," and £1,000 were required to finish it.—Trin. Min. (MS.), June 24, 1709. By March 1, 1712 (q.v.), the steeple was finished. See also
 Feb. 5, 1711; and March 1, 1712.

A subscription paper, dated May 1, 1711, showing contributors and amounts paid "towards the finishing the Steeple of Trinity Church in New York in America," was entered in the minutes of the vestry. The total subscription was £3,121:13:7. In addition,
 "The Jews Contribution" was £5:12:3.—Trin. Min. (MS.). The list of subscribers is published by Bernia in his *Hist. Sketch of Trin.
 Church* (1847), 321. This item corrects Wilson's Mem. Hist. of N. Y., I: 500-1, as to date of subscription; also Eccles. Rec., II: 1168.

June

1

14

16

See A.

16

- 1711 Queen Anne issues a proclamation "For Enforcing the due June Execution of the Act, Intituled, An Act for Establishing a General 23 Post-Office for all Her Majesties Dominions, and for Settling a Weekly Sum out of the Revenues thereof, for the Service of the War, and other Her Majesties Occasions," this act having been passed in the last session of parliament. It establishes the postoffice in America. It provides for one general post-office in London, "from whence all Letters and Packets may be with speed and expedition sent into any Part of the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or to North-America, the West-Indies," etc. There is to be a postmaster-general, appointed by the queen. See
"Royal Proclamations," in the Am. Antiq. Soc. Transactions (1911), XII: 167, citing Statutes of the Realm, IX: 393 (9 Anne, Chap. 11; Chap. 10 in some editions). For rates of postage prescribed in the act, see June 1.
- 27 The governor's council orders that carpenters be impressed for work on bateaux for the expedition.—Cal. Coun. Min., 241.
On the next day they ordered the common council to direct "that all ye Markett houses in this Towne Except that at Burghers Path be sett apart for ye Carpenters to Build their Battoes in."
MS. preserved in metal file case in city clerk's record-room; reproduced as Pl. V in Peterson & Edwards' N. Y. as an 18th Cent.
Municipality. Compliance on the part of the common council was immediate.—M. C. C., II: 444. John Walters was ordered to procure materials for building the boats.—Cal. Coun. Min., 242.
See June 14, 1711. See also De Voe, Market Book, 252. For similar measures in King George's war, see June 13, 1746.
- 28 Gov. Hunter communicates to the council the resolutions of the council of war at New London.—Cal. Coun. Min., 242. See A.
- 29 Proposals looking to the building of 120 bateaux (see June 27) in 22 days are made by the carpenters. They include the delivery of all materials "at Mr Beekman's Orchard," where also a grindstone must be set up; the employment of 45 or 50 carpenters and at least eight sawyers, and the allowance of "a Barrel of Beer a day five gallons of Rum & 6 lb. of Sugar."—Col. MSS., LV: 64 (Albany).
- 30 The governor's council directs that the independent companies of militia be formed into a regiment. John Walters is ordered to procure materials for building bateaux.—Cal. Coun. Min., 242.
- " The inhabitants of New York petition the council that measures be adopted for the defence of the city.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 383. Instructions were issued in July for that purpose, and for the removal of the women, children, and public records, in case of invasion.—Ibid., 384.
- July The council arranges that French officers sent from Albany
2 are to be entertained by Mr. Bradford.—Cal. Coun. Min., 242.
- 11 The provincial legislature passes "An Act for raising forces [600 men] to assist in the Expedition to Canada" (see June 16).
New York City's quota is 55 men.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 723. On July 26, an act was passed for levying £10,000 to pay these forces, this city's apportionment being £2,030 (ibid., I: 730); and an additional sum of £3,040 was to be raised in the city by another act, for the better rewarding of volunteers (ibid., I: 732). See June 14.
- 12 The house resolves to petition the queen for relief from the burden the colony has been under by reason of the "present Undertaking to reduce Canada," setting forth "our own Wretchedness and Poverty, and the Inequality of the Proportions expected from us, in the Expeditions, compared with the neighbouring Colonies and Plantations."—Assemb. Jour., I: 291.
- 16 The merchants of New York petition the governor and council to remove the embargo (see June 16) on the exportation of provisions.
—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 387. The embargo was nevertheless continued.—See Aug. 10.
- 23 It is ordered by the general assembly "That the Forces to go on the present Expedition, be allowed 12d. per Man every Day they stay in the City of New-York, in Lieu of their Provisions, not exceeding 4 Days, that come from the neighbouring Counties."
—Assemb. Jour., I: 294.
- 28 The legislature resolves "That the Commissioners for providing Necessaries for the Expedition, do defray the Charges of Building the Battoes [see June 27] for the Transportation of the Quota of Forces, raised in this Province for the Expedition, and that the Treasurer do furnish them with money to pay the same."— Assemb. Jour., I: 296. On Aug. 2, the house resolved to limit this expense to £300.—Ibid., I: 297.
- Aug. The general assembly passes "An Act for the Security & defence 4 of this Colony during the Expedition to Canada." Beacons are to be set up in Richmond and Kings Counties, near the Narrows, and at Rockaway.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 741. A committee report, which on July 28 was approved by the governor and council, provided for the following plans: One or two vessels were to act as a coast patrol, and beacons were to be established to give intelligence to New York of the approach of the enemy's ships, "at each of which there ought to be a Great Gunn ready loaded, and primed to be fired off at the time of firing each Beacon." The locations recommended for these were: "One at ye high Lands of Never Sinks One other at ye Inside of Sandy hook that may be Seene from thence;" "One other upon some Eminence on Staten Island that may be Seene from the last mentioned, and that may be Seene from thence on Long Island;" and "One other at ye Narrows on Long Island." At each beacon there was to be a constant watch kept by at least three men; and at the beacons on Long Island there "must be Troopers with their horses ready Equip to Post away to ye fferry the Minute the Beacon is light to Give intelligence here." On sight of the lighted beacons, the militia were to appear at once "in their proper Arms at their Usual Rendezvouze." Also, messengers were to be sent to the counties of Westchester and Orange, "for getting their men in Arms and Sending them hither forthwith."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 318. See also June 14, 1711.
- "Last week all the Inhabitants of this City appeared under Arms, none excepted that were able; And an Act is past, obliging all persons whatsoever (the Council, Clerk of the Council & Ministers excepted) to Lift [list] themselves in 14 days, under penalty of Six pounds. The Regiment here are now under Arms; and his Excellency designs frequently to Exercise them himself; and we lose no time in mounting our Cannon, and repairing the Fortifications, and other necessary precautions are taken, in case of an Invasion."—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 6-13, 1711.
- Gov. Hunter and Gen. Nicholson start for Albany. All the 9 forces, except a few men from New Jersey, have left.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 13-20, 1711. See June 14.
- This day is observed as a "Day of Fast and Humiliation, pur-10 suant to the Governours Proclamation, to procure the Divine Aid on the Expedition [see July 11]; we are hard at work on our Fortifications, and a strict Embargo is continued here."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 13-20, 1711.
- The council issues an order to Francis Vincent, gunner, con-10 cerning the position of guns about the city.—Cal. Coun. Min., 242.
- Gen. John Hill, on H. M. S. "Windsor," at the mouth of the 22 St. Lawrence, wrote (on the 25th) to Gov. Hunter "a melancholy account of the disasters" that have happened to the fleet. As a result of gales and fogs on Aug. 22, eight transports and a ship laden with provisions were lost on the North Shore. The men-of-war narrowly escaped. On Aug. 23 and 24, the work was carried on of "gathering from the Shore the Scattered remains of Almost Six and twenty Companys of Seamounts, Kanes, Claytons, and Windness's Regiments which we find are all perisht to a very Small Number that we have Saved and are now Saving." The loss is estimated at nearly 1,000. The decision of Admiral Walker and the captains of the ships of war, on account of the ignorance of the pilots, is to return to Spanish River, since they can "proceed no further on the Execution of her Majestys Comands at Quebec." Gen. Hill therefore requests that Hunter: ". . . with all imaginable hast[ic] send an Express to Mr Nicholson wth the inclosed Letters for his acting or returning, with the forces under his Comand to N. York . . ."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 277. See also June 14 and Sept. 12; and Walker, Jour. of the Canadian Expedition, 124-26.
- A French privateer off Sandy Hook is the subject of the coun-29 cil's deliberations and orders on Aug. 29 and 31.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 243.
- An act of parliament establishing a general post-office through-Sept. out her majesty's dominions is published in New York.—N. Y.
3 letter in Boston News-Letter, Sept. 3-10, 1711; Cal. Coun. Min., 243. See June 1 and 23.
- Peter Romers petitions Gov. Hunter for payment of £59 for 5 making 250 coffins for the Palatines that died here.—Doc. Hist.
N. Y. (4th ed.), III: 342. See June 13, 1710.
- The common council passes an ordinance for appointing a 7 market-place in Broad St. It requires "that the North end of the Broad Street between the City Hall of this City and the Cross Street which goes from the Broadway to the Dutch Church" (Garden St.), be established as "A publick Market place of this

1711 City is as full and Ample Manner as Other publick Markett places Sept. 7 in this City are or lawfully Ought to be." It is also ordered that "the Inhabitants in and about the broad street have Liberty to Erect and build Such Stalls and sheds and Other Conveniencies to the broad Street Markett place According to such Regulations and directions as they shall Receive from the Clerk of the Markett."
—M. C. C., II: 446-47. See also De Voe, Market Book, 252-53.

12 Gov. Hunter, not having yet heard of the disaster to the fleet (see Aug. 22), writes to Secretary St. John an account of the preparations for the expedition, and the promising outlook, including a favourable report which he received on Sept. 1 from Admiral Walker. He says: "The Admirall presses much the sending after him more provisions, for feare of being obliged to winter there [at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River]. I have now in this port [New York] the Feversham [see June 14] with transports having on Board a thousand and odd barrills of pork, and as much bread, flower, butter, pease rum and tobacco as they can carry; which are to saile for Quebec the first wind that offers . . ." Hunter also reports upon the independent attitude of the provincial assemblies, and what, in his opinion, it portends.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 255-56.
Regarding the fate of the "Feversham," see Nov. 12.

13 Abraham de Lucaena, "Minister of the Jewish Nation Residing at the City of New York," petitions Gov. Hunter to be excused from "bearing any Office Civil or Military within this City," and also "from several Duties and Services Incumbent upon the Inhabitants," just as his predecessors had been, "by reason of their ministerial function." The petition was read in council on Sept. 18 and referred to a committee to examine and report.—
See A. Doc. Hist. N. Y., III: 263.

17 Col. Caleb Heathcote is nominated mayor. On Oct. 15 he & 18 was sworn in.—M. C. C., II: 450, 451. He was continued in office for three years.—Ibid., III: 17, 48. For a brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 403; ibid. (1864), 665.

29 The mayor informs the board "that Mr Robert Lurtjng the present Treasurer of this Corporation [see Sept. 29, 1706] is willing to Resign that Office his private Affairs not allowing him Leisure to Execute the same." Samuel Bayard was appointed in his place.
—M. C. C., II: 450. Bayard held the office until Sept. 29, 1718
(q. v.).

"The land expedition against Canada is about to return to Albany.—Cal. Coun. Min., 243. See Aug. 22.

Oct. 1 In a report of the "Gen<sup>l</sup> State of y<sup>e</sup> Plant<sup>d</sup> Revenues," William Blathwayt, surveyor and auditor-general, says this of New York:
"In the Province of New York by Act of Assembly pass'd in the year 1692 a Revenue was granted to the Crown for the Support of that Govern<sup>mt</sup> to be raised by An Excise upon Liquors by Q<sup>t</sup> Rents & by an Impost upon Goods & Merchandize Imported upon Furrs exported & upon the Indian Trade for two years which Duties have been continued by divers and Subsequent Acts to y<sup>e</sup> 18th of May 1709 when the same expired; Since which time the Assembly hath made no Provision for paying the Civill List nor for defraying the other Incident Charges of the Govern<sup>mt</sup>." These Revenues before the expiration of the Acts of Assembly produced about £4,000 <sup>per</sup> Annum.—Blathwayt's Jour. (MS.), Oct. 11, 1711.

See A. 3 Hunter was asked by the house if it was his pleasure that the sentinels and guards at the several beacons be discharged, "the Reason of their being posted there, seemig to be ceased." He replied that "he was of the same Opinion."—Assem. Jour.,
I: 299.

6 Hunter sent a message to the house that "the Magazine in Fort Anne, was defective, and the Powder therein dammified, desiring this House to take Care for remedying the same."— Assem. Jour., I: 300. William Bord, the store-keeper in the fort, in a memorial to the council on Feb. 15, 1710, had proposed that some means be taken for the better preservation of the powder, which he found very much damaged by dampness, the hoops of the casks having almost fallen off.—Col. MSS., LIII: 154a (Albany).

See A. 9 The common council passes an ordinance providing that "the 16 Country People who frequent the Market of this Corporation have Liberty to Expose their Meat to sale in the Publick Market by the Joynt or Otherwise as they Shall see Convenient, first paying the fees of the Clerk of the Markett for the same . . ."—M. C. C., II: 453.

"The common council directs the treasurer to buy "A tin Box for Containing the Charter of this Corporation."—M. C. C., II: 453.

It is ordered that "Alderman Bayard as Treasurer of this City [see Sept. 29] do send to London for A Standard of Troy weights and scales and Measures for the use of this Corporation and that upon the Delivery thereof this Corporation will pay unto him one hundred and fifty <sup>per</sup> Cent upon the Prime Cost."—M. C. C., II:
454. He was paid £40:7 for these on June 17, 1715.—M. C. C.,
III: 94.

Hunter writes to Lord Dartmouth: "On Tuesday last [Nov. 6] fishermen brought into this harbour the poor remains of Her Majesty's Ship Feversham's crew, which with the three transport ships laden with provisions for the expedition [see July 11] was cast away upon Cape Britton the 7th of October in the night; all the Officers except the Lieutenaut & Master are perisht & only fourty eight, of one hundred & fifty saylors, saved.

"Since the fatal miscarriage of the intended expedition our fronteers have been infested . . ." It is proposed by the council and assembly to recover it.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 284-85.

The colony is too much involved in expese to offer any compensation to Henry Beys, missionary at Harlem, who has petitioned for support.—Assem. Jour., I: 308-9. Beys was an Episcopalian, and served in the Harlem Reformed Dutch Church, (third site) at the present Third Ave. and 121st St.—Corwin,
Manual of the Reformed Church, 1001; Landmark Map Ref. Key,
III: 935.

In this year, there was prepared a summary of the revenues of the province of New York, the conditions existing in the matter of collection, etc.—See the original MS. (23pp., folio), in N. Y. Pub.
Library.

The common council passes the following law, appointing a place for the more convenient hiring of slaves: "That all Negro and Indian slaves that are lett out to hire within this City do take up their Standing in Order to be hired at the Markett house at the Wall Street Slip untilt Such time as they are hired, whereby all Persons may Know where to hire slaves as their Occasions Shall require and also Masters discover when their Slaves are so hired and all the Inhabitants of this City are to take Notice hereof Accordingly."—M. C. C., II: 458.

The "Western Post" from Boston, for Connecticut and New York, sets out once a fortnight during December, January, and February.—Boston News-Letter, Nov. 26, 1711. That this is a winter custom is shown by similar notices in ibid., Dec. 1, 1712, and Nov. 30, 1713.

1712

In this year, Valentine Wightman, of Groton, came to New York to preach to a few Arminian Baptists. In 1714, Wightman appealed to Gov. Burnet for protection against the people while performing the rite of baptism at the water side, and such protection was given by the governour. The members increased so that a private house would not hold them; accordingly, a lot on Golden Hill was purchased and a church erected in 1728 (q. v.). It was still in existence in 1774, but "by mismanagement had become private property."—Benedict, Hist. of the Baptist Denomination,
I: 537.

One of the last references to the "great Bridge" or "Custom House Bridge" is recorded in the M. C. C. (see earlier mentions under April 13, 1700; June 22, and Aug. 20, 1709; Feb. 9, 1710; and later mentions under Mar. 3, and Oct. 24, 1713). Johannes Jaosen is paid £52, "out of the Six hundred pound Tax," for the repairs
"of the great and little Bridges in the Months of June July August and Sep<sup>r</sup> last."—M. C. C., III: 1. The Burgis View of 1717-8 (Pl. 25, Vol. I) shows no trace of the old custom-house bridge.

The grand jurors present to the consideration of the court of general sessions "the insufficiency of the Common Gaol & also the want of the Reparation of the Highways through the Island to Queens Bridge" (Kingsbridge).—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace
(MS.), 208.

The merchants of New York complain to the queen that the English ships of war go from New York to the West Indies and return carryig cargoes of merchaodise. This deprives the merchants and traders of carrying in their own vessels, and discourages ship-building. The ships of war should be used only as convoys and cruisers, they claim. On June 5, the lords of trade, by direction of the queen, ordered this practice stopped.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 331-32.

Oct. 30
See A. Nov. 9 12
24 30
Dec. 3
—
Feb. 1
5
20

1712 Feb. 20 Col. Morris writes to John Chamberlayne that the Chapel in the Fort, from Fletcher's time to that of Hunter, was "put to the several uses of Store house, Bear house, and work house;" but that Hunter "took care to have [it] decently fitted up [see April 27, 1711] and applied to the use it was built for, and the Soldiers who before were carried out of the Garrison [to Trinity Church], and during the service stood for the most part in the Steeple, where they could but imperfectly hear are now very well accommodated with Seats in the Chapel, where the Service is regularly performed, and there is yet room for persons to build Pews who want [have no] Seats in the church of New York [Trinity], and who are inclined to build would the Governour admit them, which he has hitherto declined." He further states that the rector of Trinity, Rev. Mr. Vesey, opposed Hunter's improvements in the chapel, claiming it gave evidence of a schism in the church.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V, 318-24. Hunter's own account of his controversy with Mr. Vesey was told on Feb. 25, 1712, in a letter to the secretary of the Society for Propagating the Gospel.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III, 156. Hunter also wrote to the Bishop of London on March 1, 1712, that "The ancient Chappell in the Fort . . . for many years past a Bear Garden" he had "at a great expence put in repair so that it is now one of the most decent & most constantly frequented Houses of Prayer in all America."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V, 315.

Hunter's friends wrote to the Bishop of London against the Rev. Mr. Vesey, about 1714, stating, among other things, that "After Coll. Fletcher had obtained of the Dutch to build themselves a Church in the town, he pulled down the old one in the Fort, and in its room built a chapel for the use of the Garrison and his own family, which Chapel after his removal from the Government, remained at some time neglected, and at others converted into a store house for fire wood, till the arrival of his Excellence Brigadier Hunter, who soon repaired and beautified it, and caused divine service to be constantly performed in it by the Reverend Mr. Sharpe, Chaplain to the forces; which gave great satisfaction to many of the Church of England, and especially such who wanted accommodation in Trinity Church, (where Pews are not to be purchased but at a very high rate), and were forced sometimes to absent themselves from divine service; which now they need not doe, having now a place of worship to resort unto where all degrees are seated without price or reward."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III, 267. See also "Church in the Fort," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 934.

Mar. 1 Hunter reports that the steeple of Trinity Church is finished.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V, 311. See June 16, 1711; June 11, 1712.

Hunter writes to the lords of admiralty, transmitting an address of the merchants of New York relative to buildiog a galley for the better defence of trade, together with some proposals of Col. Heathcote for providing naval stores.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 404.

15 In an address to Gov. Hunter, the grand jury says in part: "Your Excellency has fitted up the Chapel for Divine Service, and we are Credibly inform'd you have giv'n Assurances not to Molest or Disturb the English Church in the Enjoyment of the Queecs Farm, During all the time of your Administration, altho' the Same has been Claimed as a perquisite by all preceding Governours. . . ."—Boston News-Letter, March 17-24, 1712.

Apr. 7 An insurrection of negroes in the city occurs, and measures are taken to suppress it.—Cal. Coun. Min., 246. The following summary presents the principal events: "Some Cormentine Negroes to the number of 25 or 30 and 2 or 3 Spanish Indians having conspired to murder all the Christians here, and by that means thinking to obtain their Freedom, about two a clock this morning put their bloody design in Execution," and having fired a house, murdered all who ran to it. An alarm was sounded and the slaves escaped into the woods, some being captured.—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, April 7-14, 1712.

The earliest official record of the details of this conspiracy is found in Hunter's report to the lords of trade, June 23, 1712. He refers to it as "a bloody conspiracy of some of the slaves of this place, to destroy as many of the Inhabitants as they could." Their reason was "to revenge themselves, for some hard usage . . . from their masters,"—that is, Hunter could find no other cause. His narrative continues that "they agreed to meet in the orchard of Mr Crook the middle of the Town, some provided with fire arms, some with swords and others with knives and hatchets." This, he said, "was the sixth day of April, the time of meeting was about twelve or one o'clock in the night." He stated that about 23 of them met; one set fire to an outhouse of his master, and when 20 alarm brought the citizens toward it, the slaves shot and killed about nine of them, and wounded five or six. Hunter soon ordered soldiers from the fort "to march against them, but the slaves made their retreat into the woods."

The next day he caused the militia of New York and of Westchester "to drive the Island." By this means and searching the town, they found "all that put the desigo in execution." Six of these had "first laid violent hands upon themselves," and the rest were brought to trial. Of these, 27 were condemned, and of this number 21 were executed, "one being a woman with child, her execution by that means suspended." Of those executed (see April 28), "some were burnt others hanged, one broke on the wheele, and one hung a live in chains in the town [see April 11 and April 15], so that there has been the most exemplary punishment inflicted. That could be possibly thought of." This, he says, was only justified by so act of assembly. (Compare the "Act for the Security & defence of this Colony," in Cal. Laws N. Y., I, 741. The act for punishing slaves was not passed until Dec. 10, 1712). Hunter then detailed the prosecution against particular negroes, for whom he had obtained stay of execution pending his appeal to the queen for a reprieve for them.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V, 341-42. For the expense attending their execution, see Feb. 4, 1713.

Another account of this so-called "negro plot" was written on the same day (June 23, 1712) by Rev. John Sharpe, chaplain of the garrison, to the secretary of the Society for Propagating the Gospel, in whose archives in London Sharpe's letter is still preserved. His statement supplies the following facts: "Some Negro Slaves here of ye Nations of Carmantee & Pappa plotted to destroy all the White[s] in order to obtain their freedom." He names the time of the occurrence as "Sunday night Apr. 1 [probably misread for Apr. 7] abt 2 a Clock about the going down of the Moon they Set fire to a house." The rest of the account agrees, except in minor details, with that of Hunter. Sharpe added that the occurrence made many persons oppose "Negroes being made Christians." He also stated that "M<sup>r</sup> Neau [see Aug. 29, 1704] durst hardly appear his School was blamed as ye main Occasion of it, and a Petition had like to have been presented [against him] if ye Govern<sup>r</sup> had not Stood to his Cause." But, Sharpe stated, only two of the negroes were members of Neau's school, one of whom was executed while declaring his innocence, and who was afterwards generally pronounced innocent. Sharpe comments further upon the Christian, or unchristian, character of those executed.—From transcript of Sharpe's letter made by Rev. R. R. Hoes, U. S. N., in N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record, Vol. XXI (1890), 162-63. There was published in London, in 1730, An Account of the Endeavours used by the Soc. for the Prop. of the Gospel in Foreign parts, to instruct the Negroe Slaves in New York, together with Two of Bp. Gibson's Letters on that Subject. The information given by Sharpe is contained in this Account, and is, in turn, reprinted in the third ed. of A Short Account of that Part of Africa, inhabited by the Negroes . . . Extracted from Divers Authors . . . (Phila., 1762; London, reprinted, 1768). See also other references to the negro plot of 1712 in Man. Coun. Conn. (1869), 775-76; and Headley's Great Riots of New York (1873), 24 et seq. For a general account of the institution of slavery in New York, see Man. Coun. Conn. (1858), 506-7. For the trial of the negroes involved, see Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace, 1694-1731, (MS.), 212-24, 228-46.

This is the first instance recorded of the court of general sessions holding a special sessions "for the trial of Negro and Indian slaves." The occasion was the negro plot of April 7 (supra). Three negro slaves, Clause, Robin, and Quaco, were found guilty of murdering Adrian Hoghlant, Robin's master, and were visited indeed with the wrath of the court. Clause was ordered to be taken "to the place of Execution and there to be broke upon A Wheel & so to Continue languishing untill he be dead and his head and Quarters to be at the Queens Disposal." Robin was ordered to "be hung up in chains alive and so to Continue without any sustainance untill he be dead." Quaco's penalty was to "be burnt with fire untill he be dead and Consumed."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), April 11, 1712.

By this time, 70 negroes are in custody, and it is feared "that most of the Negro's here (who are very numerous) knew of the Late Conspiracy to Murder the Christians." Six of the negroes committed suicide; three were executed—"one burnt, a second 1712 broke upon the wheel, and a third hung up alive." Nine were to be Ap.14 executed on the following day, April 15.—Ibid., April 14-21, 1712.

 15 The young Lord Cornbury, who probably had been one of the "household" of Gov. Cornbury, in New York (see M. C. C., II:
 197), now, like his father (regarding whose departure, see July 31, 1710), came into unfavourable public notice. A letter of this date, written at Utrecht by G. St. John, brother of Lord Boling-broke, makes this curious comment upon his career: ". . . My Lord Cornbury dines with Mr. Menager he has not been cow [sober] since we left you. He has drunk ye consul out of house and home, and he is retreated to a summer house upon a Bastion out of ye Wall of the town, but my Ld has found him Lay'd Siege to his Cellar and drunk him almost dry already."—From the original in the Lossing sale of books and MSS. at The Anderson Galleries, New York, Jan. 29-30, 1917. Edward Hyde (styled Viscount Cornbury), here referred to, was the only surviving son and heir apparent of the third Earl of Clarendon (the former governor of New York). On his mother's death (see Aug. 14, 1706), he became Lord Clifton of Leighton Bromswold.
 He died of a fever "got by a surfeit of drinking," at the age of 21, and was buried in Westminster Abbey Feb. 20, 1713. In his will he styled himself "Lord Viscount Cornbury and Baron Clifton."—
The Complete Peerage, III: 268. See also Man. Com. Con. (1864), 573; ibid. (1869), 795.
 " A terrible penalty is imposed on "Tom, the Negro man slave of Nicholas Rosevelt." Found guilty of the murder of Adrian Beckman, and "having Nothing to Say for himself why Judgment of death should not pass ag' him," Tom is "burned with a slow fire that he may Continue in Torment for Eight or ten hours & Continue burning in the said fire until he be dead and Consumed to Ashes."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), Apr. 15, 1712. The usual penalty, of course, was to be "hang'd by the Neck till they are dead."
 21 By this time, 19 negroes have received sentence, and most of See A. them have already been executed.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-
 My 1 Letter, April 21-28, 1712. See April 7.
 7 Hunter, in a message to the assembly, says: "The Late Hellish Attempt of yo<sup>r</sup> Slaves is sufficient to Convince you of the necessity of putting that Sort of men under better Regulation by Some good Law for that purpose, and to take away the Root of that Evil to Encourage the Importation of White Servants."—Jour. Leg. Coun.,
 I: 333. See April 7.
 " Hunter states in a message to the assembly: "if Speedy care be not taken to Repair the Magazines that great quantity of powder of Several thousands of pounds value must Inevitably be spoilt . . . I hope you'll take into yo<sup>r</sup> Consideration that matter with the Repair of the fort wall which is in a bad condition by the Report of M<sup>r</sup> Ebbetts whom I appointed to Survey it Lately."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 333. A committee is appointed to investigate.—Assemb. Jour., I: 311. On May 17, "Mayor Provoost, reported that . . . he and Mr. Livingston, had viewed the Magazines, and presented to the House, an Estimate of the Mason and Carpenter's Work, about the old and new Magazines within Majesty's Fort Anne," amounting to £315, "and the Charge of removing the Powder, Cooperage and Stowage," £140.—Ibid., I: 312.
 " Henry Swift, a tavern-keeper (see Nov. 21, 1707), presents a petition, setting forth "That he prepared a Dinner for the late Lord Lovelace, on his Arrival," amounting to £467:6, "and that he hath also a Warrant," for £16:14, "for boarding of French Prisoners from Canada." He prays that "a Method may be taken, for paying the said Sums." It is ordered that the petition lie "on the Table."—Assemb. Jour., I: 310.
 14 The clergy of the province of the Church of England, in an address to Gov. Hunter (Mr. Vesey not signing), express thanks for his offers to concur with them in promoting the interests of the church, and for what he has already done. Special reference is made to the encouragement he has given "to the labors of the Society's Catechist, the pious Mr. Elias Neau, and still continues, notwithstanding of the attempts made against him [see April 7, 1712] upon accounts of the late bloody designs of the Negroes."—
Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 84.
 27 A bill is introduced in the assembly for employing an agent to represent this province in Great Britain.—Assemb. Jour., I:
 313. It was not passed, however, until July 21, 1715 (q. v.).
 " William Huddleston petitions the assembly for the introduction of a bill settling a yearly income on him "for teaching the Children of the poor Inhabitants of the English, Dutch and French in the City of New-York."—Assemb. Jour., I: 313. Such a bill was introduced, and reached its second reading (ibid., I: 316); but no such statute appears in the Col. Laws N. Y.

 There is prepared a "List of the inhabitants and slaves in the city of New York," bearing this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 407.
 See June 23.
 John van der Heul and John Rosevelt, having "Erected in the City of New York a Mill for Grinding Flax seed and making Liatseed oyle," are given the monopoly of this business in the province for the next ten years by act of the general assembly.—Col. Laws
N. Y., I: 752. The manufacture of linseed oil was introduced to enable Isaac Lanser to set up a mill to make it.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 339; Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 63.
 A similar monopoly was given to John Parmiter on June 26
 1712, for the making of "Lamb black" for the next five years (ibid., I: 755), and on Dec. 23, 1717, the time was extended for five years more (ibid., I: 995). On July 24, 1724, Parmiter's widow was given the sole right for a period of ten years.—Ibid.,
 II: 242.
 David Jamison is made recorder of the city in place of May Bickley; his commission was entered in the Minutes on June 13.—
M. C. C., III: 8-9.
 Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to agree with any person or persons that will undertake the Raising the Ball and Spindle upon the Steeple of Trinity Church."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See March 1.
 The city having brought an action against the lessees of the dock for breach of contract, a committee of the common council reports proposals for settlement. These include the provision that the lessees shall "sufficiently Repair the Breaches of the Wharfs made in the late Storm with Stockadoes Cover the same first with Stone then with Mudd or sand and bind the same with Wall Plates."—M. C. C., III: 4, 9. This in a measure shows the construction of the early wharves, which, when extended and filled in,
 built up the city's waterfront at its southern end.
 Hunter reports to the lords of trade that he has had difficulty in taking the census (see June 5), "the people being deterr'd by a simple superstition and observation, that the sickness follow'd upon the last numbering of the people." The population of New York City and County is found to be 5,840, an increase of 1,404 since 1703.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 339.
 He also states: "As to births and burials [there] has never been any Register kept that I can hear of neither is there any possibility of doing it until such time as the Couontys are subdivided into Parishes, great numbers remaining unchristen'd for want of Ministers."—Ibid., V: 340. The lords of trade replied on April 23, 1713, by asking "what provision can be made at New York for the support and maintenance of such ministers there."—Ibid., V: 360.
 Hunter's report also contains the observation that the forts and barracks of the province are in need of thorough repairs; "one half of the Governours House, ready to fall down," and ten flags are needed for the forts, of which there are five.—Ibid., V: 340.
 In a petition to Gov. Hunter for a license to teach school, Allane Jarratt (Allen Gerard) says that he has had "an experience and practice of the Art of Navigation and other parts of the Mathemat<sup>s</sup> for the space of fourteen Yeeres after an early education in the most usefullest parts thereof . . . and being sensible how much the youth brought up in this City are at a loss in goeing to sea without a sufficient Instruction in writing and Arithmetick and in the Art of Navigation with other usefullest parts of the Mathe-maticks that might be abundantly serviceable to them in the discharge of their duties at sea . . . Your Petitioner Humly begs yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency's Lycence."—Col. MSS., LVII: 190 (Albany).
 Although this name does not appear in the list of schoolmasters teaching in this city between 1695 and the Revolutionary War, as published in Valentine's Hist. of the City of N. Y., 398, Gerard had a notable record as a surveyor (see Cal. Coun. Min., 296, 270), and, in 1719, was made surveyor-general.—Ibid., 277.
 A truce is made between England and France.—Winsor, Nar.
 & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 110. The news reached New York on Oct. 27 (q. v.).
 John Marsh petitions for a patent for a mill which he has invented for dressing flax and hemp.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 408.
 It was the same inventor who, on May 17 and Sept. 19, 1700 (q. v.), was granted permission to erect tide-mills.—See also Feb. 11, 1701.

May 27
 June 5
 6
 10 11 12
 23
 July 15
 19
 Aug. —
 Sept. 4

- 1712 A Spanish prize, laden with gunpowder and soap, is brought
St. 25 into the harbour.—Boston News-Letter, Oct. 6, 1712.
- Oct. Teunis Tiboutot petitions the assembly for permission to introduce 15 a bill "to erect a House Mill within the City of New-York, (never before seen in these Parts[!]) for 20 Years."—Assemb. Jour., I: 325; Riker, Hist. of Harlem, 442.
- 25 The common council orders that a carpenter be employed "to Repair the Inside of the wharfe Crossing the Dock from the Custom house."—M. C. C., III: 19.
- 27 Capt. Graves, who arrived yesterday on the British Ship "Dunwich," brings a proclamation of the cessation of arms between England and France, and this is published at the city hall, in the presence of the governour, council, city corporation, and others.—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Oct. 27-Nov. 3, 1712. The council ordered, on Oct. 27, that the news be sent to Canada.—Cal. Coun. Min., 249. See Aug. 18, 1713.
- Nov. Permission is given by the common council to level "the Street 1 Called broadway between Mr. Delanceys house and the Well towards Spring Garden."—M. C. C., III: 20. The Man. Com.
Coun. (1856) 535, is in error in stating that this was between the present Maiden Lane and City Hall Park. Etienne de Lancey lived, not near Maiden Lane, but in a fine house he built for himself on the plot now known as No. 115 Broadway. Spring Garden gate was at the present corner of Ann St. The earliest mention found of Spring Garden occurs in this record.—See "Spring Garden House," Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 980. Spring Garden house is shown on Pl. 27, and is called Spring Garden on Pl. 30, Vol. I. The tavern, or house of entertainment, stood at the southeast corner of Broadway and Ann St., and behind it, in this block, was a large garden where meat and drink could be enjoyed out-of-doors, after the manner of that day. It had probably ceased to exist as a tavern before 1763, when it was called "Old Spring Garden House."—Weyman's Gaz., Sept. 19, 1763. By 1769, only a part of the old building still remained, which "had not been improved as a tavern for many years."—Du Simitière's MSS., in Ridgeway Branch, Library Co. of Philadelphia. By 1771, it was the blacksmith shop of Andrew Hopper.—M. C. C., VII: 294.
It was later the site of Barnum's American Museum. The St.
Paul building now occupies this site. See Landmark Map Ref.
Key, III: 980; Pl. 174, Vol. III.
- 22 One of the "Carmen" of the city, "by reason of his Indisposition and Infirmities of body," not being able to walk and drive his cart, as required by the city ordinances, is permitted to ride in his cart, "provided he at no time Ride faster than A foot pace."
—M. C. C., III: 21. A similar case was treated in like manner on July 2, 1713.—Ibid., III: 38. On Dec. 1, 1714, however, an ordinance was passed that "no Carman whatsoever" should thereafter "presume to Ride or sitt in his Cart in any of the Streets of this City by Vertue of any Lycense or Liberty whatsoever."— Ibid., III: 80.
- 25 A committee is appointed to let the ferry, on Dec. 17, at the house of Richard Harris.—M. C. C., III: 24. Harris was paid £7:10:9 for his expenses on this occasion.—Ibid., III: 25. His tavern stood on William St. (see Dec. 22, 1704).
- Dec. The provincial legislature passes "An Act for preventing Sup-10 pressing and punishing the Conspiracy and Insurrection of Negroes and other Slaves." Persons are forbidden to trade with any slave without the consent of the master or mistress. It is made lawful for a master or mistress to punish a slave "at Discretion, not extending to Life or Member." On account of the daily increase in the number of slaves, and their being often found guilty "of con-federating together, in running away, or other ill practices," it is made unlawful "for above Three Slaves to meet together at any other Time nor at any other place than when it shall happen they meet in some servile Employment for their Masters or Mistresses profit, or by their Masters or Mistresses Consent, upon penalty of being whipt upon the naked back, at the Discretion of any Justice of the Peace, not exceeding forty lashes." A person who shall "employ, harbour, conceal, or entertain other Men's Slaves at their House, Outhouse or Plantation," without consent of the master or mistress, shall forfeit £5 "for every night or day they are so entertain'd and conceal'd." Among the various other provisions detailed in this act is one "that no Negro, Indian or Mallatto, that shall hereafter be made free, shall enjoy, hold or possess any Houses, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments within this Colony, but the same shall Escheat to Her Majesty Her Heirs and Successors."
- Because "the free Negroes of this Colony are an Idle slothfull Dec. 10 people and prove very often a charge on the place where they are," the master or mistress who manumits a slave is required to pay the slave £20 a year during the slave's life-time.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 761. See April 7, 1712.
- 1713
- A criticism of the assembly for not giving financial support to the British government, and threatening punishment if the revenue is not granted, headed "To All whom these Presents may Concern," is printed as an anonymous broadside and sold by William Bradford. There is a copy in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. See also Catalogue (item No. 1611) of the library of the late George H. Moore, LL.D.
sold May 10, 1893.
- Charles Le Roux, American silversmith, worked in New York from this date until 1745. He was long the official silversmith of the city. The records show that, from 1720 to 1743, to him alone was entrusted the making of the various gold and silver boxes, which, engraved with the arms of the city, inclosed the city seal and accompanied the freedom of the city granted for noteworthy service or to highly honoured visitors. For reproduction of such a box, see Pl. 33, Vol. IV. In 1735 (July 8, 9, 10), Le Roux also engraved the seal of the mayoralty of New York City. For further information concerning him, see Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), xxxi-xxxv, 35-36. For reference to Le Roux as possibly the engraver of the Bradford Map (Pl. 27, Vol. I), see I: 254.
- Mayor Heathcote is reimbursed for money he has expended for Feb. 4 "Iron work Gibbitts Cartidge Labourers firewood and Other Materials and Expenses for the Execution of several Negro slaves for Murders by them Committed in April last."—M. C. C., III:
27. See April 7, 1712.
- This being the queen's birthday, "His Excellency attended by 6 the Council, and all the Officers of the Government," meets with them in the council chamber to celebrate the event. At noon all the fort cannon are discharged, and in the evening "every House in Town was Illuminated, a Bonfire and variety of Fire works were placed in a large Square fronting the Fort gate; Her Majesties health was drunk with Loud Acclamations of Joy," and all the ladies and gentlemen were entertained by the governour "with a very Splendid Supper" in the fort.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Feb. 16-23, 1713.
- Thomas Clark petitions for a patent of confirmation for "a 9 part of the wharf and dock fronting the river against his land on the east side of the slip at the end of Wall street" (called Clarke's Slip in M. C. C., II: 385), which the city granted to him in 1692; also for the part of this wharf adjoining on the east, granted by the city to him and Ebenezer Willson in 1694. Together, these parcels "make in length along the river or harbour 81 feet." He asks
"the privilege of loading and unloading goods, &c. on the same, by the name of Hunter's Key."—From "Land Papers," V: 136, in sec. of state's office, Albany (see Cal. Land Papers, 104).
- The court of mayor and aldermen rules that in the future "Reason-17 able Expenses" be allowed witnesses summoned from without the jurisdiction of this court.—M. C. M., Feb. 17, 1913.
- The Hudson and East Rivers are full of ice, so that "our 23 Men of War" are unable to leave; but "they" Sale next Month, for Great Britain.—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, March 2-9, 1713.
- Gov. Hunter, having called a meeting of the clergy of the pro-27 vince, asks that he may be advised regarding necessary measures for promoting the interests of "the Church in gen<sup>d</sup> in these parts."
In an address to him (the date of which is not recorded, but evidently about Feb. 27 or 28, or March 1), they stated that the "establishment of the Church here by Act of Assembly" was "so precarious" that they thought it necessary to ask whether it might not be proper for them "to address her majesty to settle it on a surer foundation."—Doc. Hist. N. Y., III: 157-59. In a letter to the Bishop of London, dated March 1, in which he referred to his speech to the clergy and enclosed their address, Hunter advocated the appointment of a bishop.—Eccles. Rec., III: 1917. The dates
"March 2" and "Mar. 3," assigned to the speech and address, respectively, in ibid., III: 1919 and 1920, are obviously erroneous, as both documents were referred to in Hunter's letter of March 1.
- The lessee of the dock is ordered by the common council
Mar. 3 "to Repair the wharfe Inclosing the Dock from the Peer head

1713 on the West side to the wharfe that leads to the Great Bridge."— Mc,<sub>3</sub> M. C. C., III: 30.

Agreeable to an order of the common council on Feb. 28, an ordinance is passed "to prohibit Negro and Indian slaves above the Age of fourteen years from going in the Streets of this City after Night without A Lanthorn and A lighted Candle therein." The law applies to streets south of the "Fresh water," and to those parts of the city "within the Stockadoes or Fortifications." The penalty for violation of the law is arrest and confinement in the "Common Goal" until the master, mistress, or owner shall pay eight shillings "to the person or persons who Apprehended and Convicted" the slave; and every such slave before release is to be "whipped at the publick whipping post fourty lashes save one if desired by the Master or Owner."—M. C. C., III: 30-31; IV: 51-52, 86-87. This was, in effect, forbidding the negroes "to go to Mr. Neau's school [see Aug. 4, 1704], for none of them could get Lanthorns or come to him before Sunset." Mr. Neau departed, and his work was continued under the patronage of Trinity Church. The teachers in Trinity's school were Wetmore and Colgan, successively.—From An Account of the Endeavours used by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, to instruct the Negroe Slaves in New York (London, 1730), cited under April 7, 1712. Regarding Mr. Neau's school, see March 11, 1713.

11 John Sharpe, "Chaplain to her Majesties Forts and Forces in the Province of New York in America" (who has been here 12 years), on the eve of his departure for England, draws up a paper, in which he portrays the needs of the province in matters of education, and proposes measures which will contribute "to the glory of God and the good of his Infant Church in these parts." He says: "I am resolved . . . when I arrive in England to promote to the Utmost of my power these three things.

- "1 A Publick School
- "2 A Publick Library
- "3 A Catechising Chapel.

"There is hardly any thing which is more wanted in this Country than learning there being no place I know of in America where it is either less encouraged or regarded.

"The City is so conveniently Situated for Trade and the Genius of the people so inclined to merchandise, that they generally seek no other Education for their children than writing and Arithmetick. So that letters must be in a manner forced upon them not only without their seeking, but against their consent. . . . It is usual at this time to send Children from Albany and Esopus 100 & 150 miles distant to New York to be taught English and it would no doubt increase the number of such if they could at the same time have the opportunity of learning Latine &c, and a Regular or Academical formation of their principles and manners. This would reconcile them early to the National Church and we might hope that in the rising Generation there would be Unity, Uniformity, Loyalty, and Brotherly Love."

To this end, he states, four things would very much contribute: a proper person to teach; a convenient house for a school; a well chosen library; and a set of rules and orders. His proposed establishment is completely described under these four heads. After describing the type of man required for a teacher, he considers the place thus:

"The second thing is the place than which none is more fit than the City of New York. All will acknowledge this who have not particular views or by ends to serve. The air is serene and healthful, the country round is well settled, and there is greater plenty of all things necessary for life and better convenience of boarding than in any other place on the Continent, besides a collateral advantage of learning both Dutch & French which are very useful accomplishments to scholars, as well as to travellers or traders.

"It is possible also to learn Hebrew here as well as in Europe, there being a Synagogue of Jews, and many ingenious men of that nation from Poland, Hungary, Germany, &c.

"There are several fit places to build on about this city, as a vacant space between the English Church and the Stadt house, another within the stockadoes of the fort, a vacant Lott belonging to the Queen at the Fort gate all within the walls, also a large common without the walls, having the advantage of a higher situation and the vineyard belonging to my Lord Limerick to be sold on easy terms.

"1. The house I would have of a convenient bigness to contain at least 150 with a wall round it to prevent gazing from doors and windows and so situated as not to be lyable to the noise of the Streets to draw off their attention.

"2. One side of the area may be a lodging for the master, i. e. an upper and lower room with a small kitchen.

"3. On the other side a lower room of the same dimensions kept furnished as a lodging room for the Clergy when they come out of the country, the key to remain with the school master.

"4. The room over this having a stair on the outside may be proper for the publick library." This library, he states, "may be the same with the publick or provincial Library hereafter mentioned."

After presenting his proposed "rules and orders for the better Government of this school and forming the minds and manners of the youth," he considers the library thus:

"Another thing which is much wanted here is a publick Library, which would very much advance both learning and piety. Such there are at Charles Town in Carolina, Annapolis in Maryland, at Philadelphia and Boston. Some books have been formerly sent to New York but as parochial they remain in the hands of the Incumbent." He describes the regulations of his proposed library. Among these are the following provisions:

"This Library I would have to be publick and provincial and to be open every day in the week at convenient hours.

"That any person borrowing a book shall be obliged to deposit a certain sum of money which shall exceed the value of it and in case the book is not restored at the limited time, this money to be forfeited to buy another.

"In this Library also may be a Repository of all such Rarities as the Country produces, or are brought hither from other places to be communicated to the Ingenious in Europe. There may be also a small garden of rare and exotic plants to send yearly some to the curious in England and have others in exchange."

Following his analysis of the operation of the library, he states:

"For a foundation or beginning of this Library I have long since resolved to give all my own books, which I now have or may have at the time of my decease or leaving that country, which shall be put up in it how soon it is fitted to receive them, and appropriated by a deed of gift under my hand to the Trustees for the Library, carrying on the title page or cover such inscription, badge, or impression as the Trustees shall approve, reserving to my self during life or stay in the country free access to the Library and leave to borrow of such as I want to my own house, under the same restrictions and limitations as others are or may be by subsequent rules or orders. . . . A Catalogue of my books is at the End.

"To these a considerable addition may be made by buying in the best books found in the Library's of the Reverend Mr. Lydius deceased, Mr. Selyns, the Rd. Mr. Bays. There is a small collection of Physick and Surgery in the hands of the Heirs of Dr. Gaudeneau deceased, and a certain expectation of many volumes by donations, legacies &c. when there is a place to put them in, and a beginning once made. An Act of Assembly can be also easily obtained to secure them as shall be thought proper."

The Rev. Mr. Sharpe's observations concerning the third feature of his scheme—the catechising chapel—begin thus: "It is about ten years since the Venerable Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, out of their tender concern for the souls of the Indians and negro's who are Slaves at New York appointed M Elias Neau [see Aug. 4, 1704] to instruct them in the knowledge of Jesus Christ and Salvation thro' him.

"Mr. Neau . . . is certainly the best qualified for it of any [that] could be found upon these accounts." His qualifications to have charge of the proposed chapel are considered at length; also the difficulties in the way of accomplishing this design. The chief of these impediments are: The unwillingness of the masters to have their slaves made Christians; the inconvenience of the time allowed to attend classes; the smallness of the meeting-place; and the want of zeal in many of the slaves "which proceeds from the slender regard had to them." The meeting-place "is inconvenient, tho the best that can be got." It is "the upper floor of Mr. Neau's own house—which tho as large as most in the city is not capacious enuff for such a number as often does come nor for the sixth part of the Negro and Indian Slaves in Town besides children and apprentices both English, Dutch and French who constantly attend and receive instruction there."

Mar. 11

1713 In closing, Mr. Sharpe says: "I will give for myself with a Mar. cheerful heart to carry on the building of the Catechetical Chapel for Negroes and Indians, the sume of fifty pounds." There is 11 added:

"A Catalogue of Books belonging to John Sharpe intended to be given as a foundation of a Publick Library at New York." It consists of 132 items, mostly religious.—From N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1886), 341-63, citing the original MS. (No. 841) in the Lambeth Palace Library, London.

The remarkable history of the collection of books left by Rev. Dr. Sharpe to New York is told by Keep, in Hist. of the N. Y. Society Library, 43-64. The collection survives, almost intact, in the archives of that society.

14 Hunter reports to the lords of trade that the assembly has affirmed that the governour's council has no right "to meddle in money bills," but that the assembly may raise money by ways and means of its own, exclusive of the council. They have placed the public moneys "in the hands of a Treasurer of their own," who is to dispose of it only by their direction. They have suspended the receiver-general who was, constituted by "Royal Letters Patents." Hunter has dissolved the assembly for their disrespectful behaviour. There is no hope, however, in a new election; as "they have fixt the name of slavery upon the supporting the Government in the manner her Majesty has been pleased to direct, and that of liberty on their own rash resolutions and practices."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 356.

Gov. George Cloton, writing March 19, 1750, to the Duke of Bedford, stated: "that the first encroachments on the Royal prerogative, begun under Mr Hunter's administration, that the Assembly took advantage of the necessities the Administration was then under (by the war with France and an expedition then set on foot in America against Canada) to claim a right of appointing their own Treasurer, and refused to support the Govern<sup>r</sup> unless this was yielded [sic] to them. Mr Hunter struggled under these difficulties for four years from 1710 to 1714 without any support, in hopes that the Ministry would think it incumbent on them effectually to support His Majesty's authority and prerogative in his Colonies, but after all was not only forced to yield [sic] to this demand, but likewise to consent to a large emission of paper money, which remains without being sunk to this day."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 551. Lewis Morris, writing to the lords of trade in 1752, stated that a similar "dangerous attack upon the prerogative of the Crown" was attempted in Gov. Montgomerie's time.—Ibid., VI: 767. See also To All whom these Presents may Concern (printed by Bradford, N. Y., 1713), an anonymous pamphlet, relating to the objections of the inhabitants to being taxed for the support of the English government, and asking the colonists to show more respect for the mother country. It threatens punishment if the revenue is not granted.

24 The following is the city's first pauper list, as given in the Mayor's Court Minutes under this date:

"Daniel Butts	Catherine Reade
Effe a blindwoman	Anne Shuttleworth
Sarah an old Maid	Mrs. Hope
Mrs. Cooley a soldier's wife	Mrs. Taylor
Cornelius Van Vlierden	Mrs. Carlse
Mary Cooley	Margaret Key
Elizabeth Dragon	Mary Brown
Effe Bluett a blind woman
Philip Battin & Pasco Battio
(two fatherless & motherless children)."

March 24, 1713.

On March 20, 1716, the church-wardens were ordered to "Strike Mary Brown out of the list of the poor of this city She being a lewd woman as the Court is informed."—Ibid., March 20, 1716.

28 "Greenwich" is for the first time noted by name in the city records. "Falkert Van Hoes of Greenwich in the Bowry division of the Out Ward" is required by the common council to remove a fence which he has erected "upon the Land of this Corporation from High water to low water Marke whereby the Cattle of several of the Neighbourhood Cannot pass to their Respective Pastures."—M. C. C., III: 33.

31<sup>m</sup> The Treaty of Utrecht gives Acadia to the English, makes its Ap. 11 Five Nations subject to England, and confirms Portugal in its See A. possession of Brazil.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., IV: 135;
Ap. 2 154; V: 6, 110, 408, 475, 476, 484; VI: 572; VII: 83; VIII:

27, 28, 206, 236, 242, 356. The queen's proclamation announcing this reached New York Aug. 18 (p. v.).

The grand jurors recommend to the court of general sessions "the Injecting into Weights and Measures [see May 1, 1711] and to Prevent Forestallers of the Markett &c and that the Streets be kept Clean & that the Laws ag<sup>t</sup> the Breach of the Sabbath be put in Execution all which this Court Resolve to see Executed with all Expedition." The highways "between this City & Kingsbridge" are reported again in "Great want of Repair" (see Feb. 5, 1712), as well as "the Queens Bridge."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 260.

12 Anthony Ham is appointed dock-master and ordered to "Collect and Receive all the Revenue of the Docks and Slips and Account to this Corporation for the same as often as he shall be thereunto Required."—M. C. C., III: 35. See July 27, 1728. This represents a change in policy on the part of the common council; previously the position of dock-master was "farmed" or auctioned off to the highest bidder for a term of years, the successful bidder being required to "Keep the Said Docke in good and sufficient repair." Dock-masters, however, without exception, failed to keep their agreement. The dock was found to be either "foul," or "much out of repair," or else the keeper was lax in his quarterly payments to the city. Hence the change in policy, above mentioned, was inaugurated. Anthony Ham's salary was £30 per year.—Peterson & Edwards, N. Y., as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 111-23. See Oct. 19, 1685; July 12, 1720.

Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to secure the Steeple, & for building, & take care for Sounding Board." June 29, the committee reported they could not perform the order, owing to want of money. It was ordered "that the Church wardens take up one hundred pounds upon Interest for Carrying on Said work."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Jan. 21, 1714.

Trinity vestry orders "that the Church Wardens let the Queens farme and Queens garden Severally to the highest bidder for three years & that good Security be given by the Tenants to the approbation of the Church wardens to pay the rent quarterly, and to leave the fences of both in good repair."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

17 Gov. Hunter, in a message to the legislature, says: "You are a new Assembly, and so are not accountable for the wrong steps in the former or concerned in y<sup>e</sup> vindication of them, so what I am about to say must not be otherwise construed than as a caution to you, that you walk not in their ways, so displeasing to her Majesty & so justly resented by her; You are called together in order to settle a revenue for the support of her Majesties Govern<sup>mt</sup> not to settle y<sup>e</sup> Govern<sup>mt</sup> for that is already done by the only authority upon Earth, that has a right to do't."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 354.

19 June It is ordered by the assembly "that Mr. Bayard do search in the Secretary's Office for Proclamations, Commissions and other publick Papers, that relate to the first Settlement, or settling of this Colony, and make report thereof to this House."—Assemb. Jour., I: 339-40. June 29, it was ordered, "that the Secretary do lay before this House, To-morrow Morning, the Books of Record wherein is contained King Charles's Grant to the Duke of York, the Duke's Commission to General Nicoll, The Treaty and Articles of Surrender, The Duke's Commission to Sir Edmund Andros, and Sir Edmund Andros's Proclamation."—Ibid., I: 340. See also the later order of May 26, 1715.

30 David Lyell, the sealer of the province, whose duty is "to mark and seal all Weights and Measures in this Colony," states in a petition to the assembly that there have been "great Complaints of the Measures or Standards, . . . for measuring Grain." To correct this he has sent for and just received from Great Britain some copper standards for this purpose, which he wants adopted as standards for the colony.—Assemb. Jour., I: 340. See also March 24, 1714.

July The provincial legislature passes "An Act to Impower Frederick Phillipse, a Minor, to Remove Kings-Bridge [erected in 1693, p. v.] to a more commodious Place, and for Confirming the Toll thereof." The will of the late Frederick Phillipse, under which the then owner of the manor has title, was dated Oct. 26, 1700. The act further states that, "by means of Spring-Tides, not only the Causey leading through a Meadow from Manhattans, or York-Island, to the Bridge erected in pursuance of the said Grant, but likewise the Bridge itself is often difficult and unfit for Travellers to pass." The act therefore enables Phillipse, the younger, "to

Mc. 3
An. 11
May 5

12

26

"

27

June

27

30

July

1

- 1713 Erect and Build another good and sufficient Draw-Bridge between the Neck, or Island of Papparinemo, and York or Manhattans-Island, at such place or Places to the Westward of the present Bridge, as to him or them shall be thought most proper and convenient, and to joyn and affix the same to or in any Land on York-Island, and to dig away or level any Part or Parts thereof, both to secure the Bridge, and to make the Path or entry thereof commodious and convenient for Travellers. And when another Bridge shall be so Built (which is to retain the Names of Kings-Bridge) it shall and may be Lawful for him and them to pull down the Bridge heretofore Built." A table of the toll rates, mentioned in the manor grant, "shall be hung or fixed up in the Ferry or Toll-house." On account of depreciation in specie, the payments of tolls are to be ascertained in Troy weight, and are to be paid "in good Mexico or Seville Plate." That is, according to the schedule given in the act, payment of tolls is to be made in a certain number of grains according to the person or thing passing over the bridge. Thus, the toll for every man and horse passing in the daytime is 15 grains; for each head of neat cattle, 15 grains; for each score of hogs, calves, or sheep, two pennyweight and a half; for every boat, vessel, or canoe that shall pass the bridge and cause it to be drawn up, 1 pennyweight and 21 grains; and so forth. Free passage over the bridge, as the manor grant provided, is given to the British sovereign, and to any forces and war supplies.—Col. Laws N. Y., I, 982. See June 12, 1693; Jan. 2, 1759. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 926.
- 15 The receiver-general having instituted a suit against Peter Oblicnis and other inhabitants and freeholders of the town of New Harlem, "for great sums pretended to be due from the said inhabitants, whilst they held under the Duke of York," they enter a petition.—Cal. Land Papers (1864), 106, citing "Land Papers" (in office of sec. of state), V: 167.
- 18 That the postal system between the northern colonies (see April 4, 1692) was in successful operation at this period, and sufficient to convey official correspondence, appears from a letter of this date in which Hunter informs the lords of trade that "the post from New England has brought me her Majesty's letters."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 367.
- 20 "One Berry a Taylor and one James Mark who lately came from Boston and Rhode-Island, are in Goal for Counterfeiting" paper money, a "Felony without benefit of Clergy."—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, July 20-27, 1713. Both men were tried, found guilty, and sentenced to death.—Ibid., Sept. 7-14, 1713. On Sept. 15, Col. Stephen Thomas wrote from New York to John Winthrop at New Loodon concerning these men, one of them "a German Graver who 'tis thought will have the Govern<sup>r</sup>s pardon."—From a letter in the Winthrop Papers, in Mass. Hist. Society. Both men were pardoned by the governor, however, at the intercession of "most of the Gentlewomen" of the city, who addressed him "with Prayers and Tears" for the lives of the two men.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Sept. 14-21, 1713. This counterfeit money was, apparently, one of the earliest pieces of printing from an engraved plate made in New York. See description of Pl. 27, I: 254.
- 21 "A Bill was filed in the Court of Chancery [on this date] by the then Attorney General here, against the Said Rector and Inhabitants, for a Discovery of the Lands they held, and particularly the Said farm and Garden, to which they appeared, but before any further proceedings were had her Majesty by her letter of the 14th April 1714 directed General Hunter then Governour to Stop the Said prosecution, and not Suffer any further proceedings thereon, . . . and accordingly a Stop was put thereto and the Said Rector and Inhabitants have not hitherto had any other proceedings against them."—Trin. Min. (MS.), under date of April 25, 1735. See also Dec. 5, 1732.
- 30 Hunter presents a history of quints, as levied in the province since Nicholl's time, and the attorney-general answers his queries as to how collections are to be made for the queen.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 368-71.
- Aug. "Her Majesties Royal Proclamation of Peace between Great Britain and France [see March 31/April 11], was Published here with all imaginable demonstrations of Joy, the Garrison and Militia were under Arms, the Cannon were fired, and at Night a soble Bonfire and Illuminations and a Ball at the Fort, where his Excellency made a very fine Entertainment."—Boston News-Letter, Aug. 31, 1713; Cal. Coun. Min., 252. The bonfire was made "on the Green before the Fort," and was at the city's expense, having been ordered the day before by the common council, with 25 gallons of wine for the occasion. The cost to the city was £150660.—M. C. C., III: 41, 42.
- "The petition of Coll Abraham De Peyster and M<sup>r</sup> samuell Bayard" is read in the common council setting forth that part of the city hall stands on their land, and a committee, including the recorder, is appointed "to make diligent search and Enquiry how the City Hall Came to be built upon the said Ground."—M. C. C., III: 42. The complainants brought an action of ejectment against the city on Oct. 29.—Ibid., III: 46. For full account of the title to this land, see description of Pl. 24, I: 238; see also July 18, 1715.
- "The governour's council orders that a proclamation be issued for a day of thanksgiving.—Cal. Coun. Min., 253. This was on account of Gt. Britain's peace with France.—See Aug. 18, 1713. The original MS. order in the State Library, Albany, shows that the celebration is to be observed "this day month" throughout the province.
- "The petition of Abraham de Lanoy is read in the common council," praying Liberty to build an Oven under Ground in the Street fronting to his house in Queen Street near Burgers Path he undertaking that the same Shall not be prejudicial to the Street or the Neighbourhood and that he will keep the same Street in good Repair over the said Oven." The permit is granted, the petitioner to pay "A Nine penny loaf of bread on the first day of May yearly for the use of the poor."—M. C. C., III: 46-47.
- "The common council orders that the pound be removed "from John Brevorts at the Bowry to the top of the Hill near fresh water by the Domine's farm." Isaac de Riemer, formerly mayor, is made pound-keeper.—M. C. C., III: 47.
- A hundred soldiers, to recruit the four companies here, arrive from London.—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, Oct. 26, 1713.
- 23 The provincial legislature passes "An Act for Mending and keeping in Repair the Post-Road from New-York to Kings-Bridge." It states that the highways and post-roads through "Manhattens" Island, from New York to Kingsbridge, "are become very Ruinous, and almost impassible, very dangerous to all Persons that pass those Ways, occasioned chiefly by reason of divers Disputes hapening and arising among the Inhabitants." The inhabitants are to do the work and bear the expense in their respective wards, except in the Out Ward. There, the inhabitants of the Bowery Division shall keep the highway in repair from Fresh Water to the Saw-Kill; but, from the Saw-Kill (including the Saw-Kill bridge) to the limits of the Harlem Patent, it shall be mended by the inhabitants of the several wards within the city; and "from the Limits of Harlem Patent, to the Cawse-way of Kiogs-Bridge," the highway is to be mended by the inhabitants of the Harlem Division. The said post-road and highway "shall be laid out the breadth of Four Rod, and cleared the breadth of Two Rod at least."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 792.
- "The lessee of the ferry is required, at the city's expense, to "load the Bridge at the ferry with five scow load of Stones in Order to secure the same from the Ice."—M. C. C., III: 50.
- 24 The common council Minutes record for the first time the appointment of a "publick Whipper." Richard Cooper, "for his Encouragement for the due Execution of that Office," is to be allowed an annual salary of £5.—M. C. C., III: 49. Cooper held the office for five years, as the warrants issued periodically for his salary show.—Ibid., III: 56-187, passim. For two years thereafter no incumbent of the office appears. On Nov. 16, 1720, the common council felt compelled to make such an office more attractive, if possible, by doubling the stipend, and resolved "that Advertisement<sup>s</sup> thereof be published."—Ibid., III: 245. Dennis Mahany became the "Publick Whipper" the following year.—Ibid., III: 257. The office was still in existence after the Revolution.—M. C. C. (1784-1831), I: 148.
- 29 The text of the Treaty of Utrecht is received, and the governour's council orders that it be printed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 253. See also Oct. 27, 1712; March 31 and Aug. 18, 1713.
- "The speaker having communicated to the assembly a letter received from Rip van Dam, stating that he desires the pictures in the assembly room returned to him, or else that he may receive an order on the treasurer in payment for them, it is ordered that the door-keeper deliver them to him."—Assemb. Jour., I: 345. On June 18, 1714, it is resolved that £40 he allowed him.—Ibid., I: 358.

1713 The following receipt, of this date, is indosed, on the Dongan
Nov. Charter, now preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library:

5 "Recd<sup>d</sup> of Mr. Sam<sup>l</sup> Bayard, the City Treasurer, twenty seven Beaver skins in full for Twenty seven years quit rent of y<sup>e</sup> within Charter to y<sup>e</sup> 27 of April last as Witness my hand

"T. Byerly, Collr."

Thomas Byerley was the collector at New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 232, 264, 335, 408.

1714

— An order was obtained from Queen Anne for the draught of a bill for an American Episcopate. With her death on Aug. 1 (q.v.), the matter seems to have been dropped for a considerable time.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 473, footnote; Eccles. Rec., VI: 4084, citing Sedgewick, Life of Wm. Livingston, 128. See Feb. 20, 1767.

Jan. Trinity vestry orders that £100 more be "taken up" to pay 21 the remaining charges for the steeple, spire, sounding boards, etc.—Trin. Min. (MS.). See May 26, 1713.

Feb. "Pursuant to the Directions of an Act of General Assembly
2 of this Colony Entituled An Act for Mending and keeping in Repair the Post Road from New York to Kings Bridge Teunis Quick Garrett Onclough & Peter Oblinis are by this Court Nominated and Appointed to be the surveyors of the several Highways Bridges and Causeways Mentioned in the said Act for the year Next Ensuing."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 265. Such surveyors were appointed annually thereafter for many years.

6 The common council orders "that there be a Bonfire on Saturday Next [Feb. 6] at the usual place in this City before the Arch at the Charge of this Corporation being the Anniversary of the Queen's Birth day and that the Treasurer provide five Gallons of wine to be Expended thereat in drinking her Majesties health."—M. C. C., III: 55-56. Prior to this the place of the bonfire is referred to in the Minutes as "the usual place." When the queen's birthday celebration was first mentioned in 1703, no place was designated.—Ibid., II: 221. For an analysis of the references in the Minutes to public bonfires ordered by the common council, see Nov. 2, 1700.

10 Early this morning (Shrove Tuesday), it is discovered that Trinity Church has been broken into, through the north window of the steeple and the window of the vestry-room, surplices cut and torn, prayer-books and psalm-books strewn about the yard, and the sacred vestments scattered. Addresses to the governor's council from the English, Dutch, and French ministers and congregations urge investigation and punishment. Such investigation produced testimony showing that the rector of Trinity, the Rev. William Vesey, had been ridiculed and even threatened. In the address of the rector and vestry to the council, on Feb. 19, they stated that, "notwithstanding his Excellencies Proclamation against Immorality & profaneness [and] the great dilIGENCE of the Magistracy of this City in their several Stations, there are some Busey mockers & scoffers of Religion, who Ridicule both sacred things & Orders by their profane Lampons thereby vilifying the Ministers of Christ, & Exposing them & their Holy Function to Reproach & Contempt; And it is with y<sup>e</sup> greatest Concern that we find these Vices so Flagrant That y<sup>e</sup> Innocent & unblameable Life & Conversation of our Reverend Rector for many Years among us, have not been able to Protect him from y<sup>e</sup> false Calumnies and Barbarous Reproaches & Threatnings of such Irreligious & wicked persons, which we humbly conceive hinders the Word of God, & naturally tends to Infidelity & Atheism." They offered a reward of £30 for the conviction of the offender. On the council's recommendation, Hunter issued a proclamation on March 3, offering a reward of £55 to any one, not guilty, who discovered the offender, and £55 with indemnity and pardon to any guilty person who would reveal his accomplices.—Dec. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 269-77. The offender was not discovered, and no one was punished for this impious act. It is worthy of note, however, that the governor's own proclamation contained reflections against Rev. Mr. Vesey (ibid., III: 276-77); and, in a satirical play, which Hunter wrote, and published on Aug. 1, 1714 (q.v.), he freely lampooned him. For other information regarding Hunter's quarrels with the rector of Trinity, see Dec. Hist. N. Y., III: 264-68.

23= By the Treaty of Rastadt, Emperor Charles VI accepts the Mar. terms of peace agreed by the other allies at Utrecht (see March 6 31, 1713).

24 A committee of the common council is appointed "to Consult with the Mayor about the building of A poorhouse and house of Correction in this City," and "to Consider of A Convenient place to Erect the same, of the Demensions and Materials and of Ways & Means for Raising A fund for the Compleating thereof."—M. C. C., III: 59-60. No report of this committee appears in the Minutes, and apparently no further action was taken by the city to build an almshouse until Nov. 15, 1734 (q.v.).

A city ordinance is passed "that no Oyster Shells or Lime be burnt on the Commons of this City on the south side of the Windmill Commonly Called Jasper's Mill."—M. C. C., III: 57. Cf.
Dec. 17, 1723.

An agreement has been made between the corporation and Samuel Bayard, the city treasurer, for him to send to London
"for A set of Weights and Measures According to the Standard of her Majesties Exchequer in England to be a Standard of Weights & Measures for this Corporation (to witt) An half Bushell A Peck and an half peck Made of Copper. A set of Troy weights of Sixty four Ounces and A Beam and scales. A Yard of Brass or Iron. One quart pot of Beer Measure, and of Wine Measures from A Gallon to A Gill to be made of Copper, That the said Measures be Marked (City of New York) and That a Certificate be procured from the Lord Mayor of London under the City seal or seal of his Mayoralty that the aforesaid Weights and Measures are According to the Standard Aforesaid."—M. C. C., III: 56-57. These were paid for June 17, 1715.—Ibid., III: 94. See also ibid., I: 3; and June 30, 1713.

The council considers a rumour that Lord Slane has been appointed governor of New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 254.

The ill consequences of oppressive regulations regarding the entry of vessels into this port are described by Samuel Mulford to the assembly. His address is a plea for methods of government which shall be for the good of the subjects as well as for the benefit of the queen.—From photostat (in N. Y. Pub. Library) of Mulford's speech, taken from the original printed speech in the Mass.
Hist. Society's archives.—See July 22, 1714.

The common council undertakes for the first time to institute a regular night-watch in the summer season.—M. C. C., III: 61.
Hitherto watchmen had been employed from about Nov. 1 to May 1. Although the new arrangement provided for six men for the summer season, only two men appear to have served for the whole six months, a third man being paid for service "during part of that time."—Ibid., III: 62, 79. See Dec. 1, 1702; Dec. 14, 1731.

The post-road to Kingsbridge is again the subject of an order of the court of general sessions (see May 5, 1713). "From Spring Garden Gate to Kingsbridge," it is ordered to be "laid out the breadth of four Rodd & Cleared the breadth of two Rodd at least."
The surveyors are to fill up the hole at "Spring Garden Gate," and "from thence proceed to fill up the holes level the Hills Repair and Amend the Bridges Cutt down the Trees and brush and in all things well and Sufficiently Amend Repair and Clear the said Highway."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 267.

Joseph Morgan presents to the assembly a petition, stating that he has invented "a Machine, whereby to row a Ship or Boat with much Swiftness against Wind and Tide," and asking for the passage of a law to entitle him "to the sole Benefit of said Invention, for a certain Number of Years." Permission to bring in such a bill is granted by the assembly.—Assemb. Jour., I: 351. The bill was introduced during that session or the next.

The common council orders that the "Markett house fronting June the Dock at the south end of the Broad Street [see Feb. 3, 1711;
1 Dec. 1, 1719] and the Markett house at the south end of the Wall Street [see Oct. 4, 1709] be Repaired at the Charge of this Corporation," at an expense not exceeding £30.—M. C. C., III: 63.
Payment of £1:17:6 was made Aug. 4, 1714 for the repairs at the latter (ibid., III: 66); and £7:10, on March 20, 1717, "for Levelling the Ground on the West side of the Dock near the Weigh house," from April 1, 1716 to April 1, 1717, and "for Repairing the Markett on the south end of the Broad Street" (ibid., III: 137).

The common council orders that Capt. Richard Willett deliver to the treasurer of the city "all such Iron Work Stores and other Materials as are in his Custody belonging to this City or to the Great Guns and fortifications," and that the treasurer "Cause such place in the City Hall to be fitted and partition'd off for securing the said Stores &c. . . . and that the same be kept under Lock and Key."—M. C. C., III: 62.

A joint committee, appointed by the two houses of the legisla-
17 Recorded For the Church Wardens & Vestry min of Trinity Church 9

William the third by the grace of God King of England Scotland France and Ireland Defender of the faith &c. To all to whom these presents shall come or may concern greeting - WHEREAS our loving Subjects, the Church Wardens & Vestry min of Trinity Church within our City of New York in America have upon their humble Relation presented unto our trusty and well beloved Councellor Benjamin Fletcher our Cap<sup>t</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> and Govern<sup>r</sup> in chief of our Province of New York and Territories depending thereon in America &c. prayed a lease of our farms situate lying and being upon New York Island on the west side thereof called & known by the name of the Kings farms at a moderate rent for the term of seven years Next Next yee that as well for an consideration of the yearly rent of them as after reserved as also for divers other good causes and Considerations at those unto, whereas we have desired sell & let farms letten and by their present des desires we and to farm lett unto the Rector and Inhabitants of our said City of New York in Commision of our Protestant Church of England at now established by our Lawe and to their Successors all that our afores<sup>d</sup> farms with all the houses Doelands and buildings upland and meadows ground feeding pastures, Swamps, ways, Enclosures passages, Immunities Liberties, priviledges and appurtenances that so ever to it pertain in any manner of ways appertaining or therewith all used, occupied possessed and enjoyed, or accept<sup>d</sup>, reputed or taken as part parcel or member thereof To have and to hold the afores<sup>d</sup> farms and all and singular them & heron appurtenances it intended to be here by demised premises unto the Rector and Inhabitants of our City of New York in Commision of our Protestant Church of England at now established by our Lawe and to their Successors from the first day of August next to come in the year of our said ones thousand six hundred & ninety eight for and during the term & space seven years from thence next ensuing & fully to be completed & ended yielding and paying thereof yearly & every year unto us, our heirs & Successors on the first day of the Annuntiation of our blessed Virgin Mary at our said City of New York the yearly rent of sixty Bushells of good and merchantable winter wheat in leas & head of all the rents misset, Dues, Duties, and Demands to receive & leaving of said farms at the Reparation of the said tenne in a good repair at that that do whine possession & labor by the above said Corporation In the which we have caused the great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed Witness our trusty and well beloved Councellor Benjamin Fletcher our said Cap<sup>t</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> and Govern<sup>r</sup> in chief of our said Province of New York and the Territories and parts of Land depending thereon in America and Vice-Royall of the same our said Province and Commisioner in chief of the militia &c. all & fours by sea and land within our Colony of Convoient - and of all & parts &c.
 places of strength within & about all our said New York the ninth day of August in the ninth year of our said ones dominion 1697 - Ben<sup>g</sup> Fletcher
 By his Excellencies Command - David Jamison

1714 ture to confer on the subject of regulating and settling the fees of June the government officials, is ordered to meet on Monday next at 17 "the Boat."—Jour. Leg. Coun., 372. This tavern site is unknown.
 18 John Hybon, having petitioned the assembly on May 10 for compensation for himself and other carpenters who repaired "the Fortifications in her Majesty's Fort in New-York," in 1706, on Cornbury's order, is allowed £33.—Assemb. Jour., I: 352, 358.
 July It is ordered that Thomas Byler report to the assembly the 22 amount of cash received from duties paid on goods "brought unto her Majesty's Beam, in the Weigh-House in New-York," during the time he has been receiver-general.—Assemb. Jour., I: 364.
 See April 2, 1714.

Aug. The reign of King George I begins, on the death of Queen 1 Anne. It ended June 11, 1727.—Cobbett's Parliamentary Hist. of Eng., VI: 1369. See Oct. 4 and 11.

" The first play published in English America comes from the pen of Gov. Robert Hunter of New York. It is entitled: Androboros A Biographical [sic] Farce In Three Acts, Via, The Senate, The Consistory and The Apotheosis. By Governour Hunter. Printed at Monroepolis since 1 August, 1714. For description and history of the book see Bibliography. It lampoons some of the most conspicuous personages in the city at this time, particularly Rev.
 William Vesey, rector of Trinity Church. The play was probably written for and acted by the governour's official household and immediate friends. In the only copy of the book known to be extant (in the library of Henry E. Huntington, Esq.) the names of the inhabitants of New York, thus parodied, have been written by a contemporaneous hand (probably by the author himself) opposite the printed names of the "Drammatic Personae." Thus, "Androboros" —"Col<sup>o</sup>. Nicholson;" "Keeper" (of the great seal)—"Col<sup>o</sup>. Hunter;" "Deputy"—"G. Clarke;" "Speaker" —"Nichols;" "Aesop"—"Jamison;" "Doodlejack"—"Lake-man;" "Tom of Bedlam"—"Assembly;" "Babillard"—"Bayard;"
 "Mulligrab"—"Mullford;" "Cobus"—"Cortlandt;" "Solemn"— (Justice) "Morris;" "Fizzle"—"Vesey;" etc. Manuscript additions and alterations, in the same hand, include the change of the word "Monoropolis," on the title-page, to "Moropolis." In explanation of this, a former owner of the volume has written the comment at the beginning of the book: "Whoever made the correction meant, I suppose, to imply that it was printed at [word illegible]—Fool's town."

"Hunter was not only a soldier and a courtier, but a scholar and wit as well. His literary attainments had won him the friendship of Addison, Steele, Swift, and other wits and literateurs of his day. He was a good Latin and French scholar, and wrote both languages fluently; most of his letters while in New-York, and some of his drafts of council minutes, now among the State papers at Albany, having been written in French."—Charles Burr Todd, in Wilson's Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 122.

4 The vacant ground on the west side of the custom-house bridge is levelled, and is to be kept so under contract.—M. C. C., III: 66.

" A committee of the common council is appointed to meet the mayor "at the fighting Cocks to settle the Affairs of the Dock."—
M. C. C., III: 66. The Fighting Cocks was a tavern at the present 28 Water St., next the Coffee House. It was destroyed in the great fire of 1776.—See Sept. 21, 1776; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 978. The house was owned by Philip van Cortlandt.
 —See Aug. 1, 1746. Cf. Bayles, Old Taverns of N. Y., 123.

Sept. The provincial legislature passes an act for preventing the multiplicity of law-suits, and another act for shortening law-suits and regulating the practice of law.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 827, 841;
N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 390.

Oct. Gov. Hunter, returning from Albany, informs the council of the death of Queen Anne (see Aug. 1, 1714) and the accession of George, Duke of Brunswick. The council orders that King George be proclaimed "in the most solemn manner" on the following Monday, Oct. 11 (q.v.).—Cal. Coun. Min., 256. Hunter had learned of the accession of George I from private, not official, sources.— See N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 380-81, where the date of the celebration is erroneously given as Oct. 18.

6 The governour having notified the corporation of the death of Queen Anne, and expressed his intention of proclaiming, on Oct. 11, that Prince George is King, the common council, in order to "demonstrate their Great Joy for so great a blessing as that of a Protestant successor to the Crown of Great Britain &c: in the Most Illustrious house of Hanover," orders that on that evening

"there be A Bonfire at the usual place within this City of seven or Eight Cords of wood with several Tarr Barrells, that there be twenty Gallons of wine at the said Bonfire to drink the Kings health His Royall Highness the Prince &c: That the City Hall be illuminated in the best manor that may be, That the Alderman of each Ward direct his Constable to give Notice to the Inhabitants to illuminate their Respective houses on that Night and that all the Charge thereof be defrayed by this Corporation."—M. C. C., III:
 71-72. See Oct. 11.

King George I is proclaimed at the fort and city hall. The governour, council, and secretary (Clarke) take the oath.—*Cal.
 Coun. Min.*, 256. Regarding the character of the celebration on this day, see Oct. 6. A news report gives the following account:

"This Morning at Eleven, the Funeral Obsequies of our Late Sovereign Lady Queen Anne of Blessed Memory [see Aug. 1, and Oct. 4] was performed here with great Decency and Order, The Flag in His Majesty's Fort George being Hoisted half Mast high;
 The Garrison and Militia of this City, both Horse and Foot under Arms, His Excellency our Governour being attended by the Gentlemen of His Majesty's Council, the Corporation of this City, and the Principal Gentlemen and Inhabitants of the Place, 50 Pieces of Cannon were discharged at half a Minutes distance, which were followed by His Majesty's Ship Seaford, and the other Ships in the Harbour.

"At One a Clock the High and Mighty Prince George Elector of Brunswick Lunenburg, was Proclaimed King of Great-Britain, France and Ireland &c. at His Majesty's Fort George, and afterwards at the City Hall, The Regular Forces Marching after His Excellency, and the Corporation, with Hoboys and Trumpets before them. The Militia making a double Guard for Him from the Fort to the City Hall, all the Guns of the Garrison made a Triple Discharge, The Regular Forces add Militia Twice Three Volleys, with Huzzas & great Acclamations of Joy. The Shipping in the Road did the like.

"On His Excellency's return from the City Hall to the Fort were drank His Majesty King George's Health, His Royal Highness the Prince, Royal Family, and the Lords Justices, &c. At Night
 His Excellency makes a Ball, and a fine Entertainment, and on the Parade before the Fort will be Fired several Mortars, and variety of Fire Works, where is a large Bonfire at the Charge of the Corporation, and Wine to Drink the King's Health, &c. The City Hall and the whole Town will be fully Illuminated. And the Joy is Universal for His Majesty's Happy Succession to the Crown."—
N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Oct. 11-18, 1714.

A glazier had been employed to repair the windows in the city hall (presumably for this occasion).—M. C. C., III: 72. The city's expenses for the celebration included payments of 18 shillings each to John Vergereau and John Noble, and 24 shillings to Dennis Hall and his son, "for Attending this Corporation as Musick on the Kings proclamation day." Further, on Oct. 23, Samuel Bayard, the city treasurer, was reimbursed £38:8:11½ for payments made by him "for Illuminations Bonfire Musick Wine &c." and Richard Harris (tavern-keeper on William St.—see Dec. 22, 1704) was paid £84 "for Expences of this Corporation at his house."—
Ibid., III: 76-77. On Dec. 21, John le Chevalier was paid £68 for his work and materials "for fixing Illuminations in the City Hall."—Ibid., III: 82.

Fort Anne becomes Fort George.—Ibid., M. C. C., III: 73; and see Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 380-82. It was so called until its demolition in 1790. For earlier names of the fort, see March 24, 1691.

The city constables sign the following declaration against Roman Catholicism: "I, A. B., do Solemnly and sincerely in the presence of God, Profess Testify and declare, that I do believe that in the Sacrament of the Lords Supper there is not any Transsubstantiation of the Elements of Bread and Wine into the Body and Blood of Christ at or after the Consecration thereof, by any Person whatsoever. And that the Inocuation [sic] or Adoration of the Virgin Mary or any other Saiot and the Sacrifice of the Mass as they are now used in the Church of Rome are Superstitious, and Idolatrous. And I do solemnly in Presence of God profess Testify and Declare that I do make this Declaration and every part thereof in the plain and Ordinary sence of the words read unto me as they are Commonly understood by English Protestants without any Evasion . . . or Mental Reservation whatsoever and without any dispensation already Granted me for this purpose by the Pope or . . . or person whatsoever or without any hope

Oct.

6

11

- 1714 of any such dispensation from any person or Authority whatsoever
Oct. or without thinking I am or can be acquitted before God or Man or 11 absolved of this Declaration or any part thereof Although the Pope or any other person or persons or Power whatsoever should dispense with or Annul the same or declare that it was Null and Void from the begetting." The dots represent a defect in the original parchment document, owned by T. Bailey Myers, Esq., and reproduced in facsimile in Man. Com. Coun. (1869), opp. p. 588.
See Oct. 14.
- 14 The same declaration on parchment which was signed by the constables on Oct. 11 (q. v.) is signed on this day by the new aldermen and assistants. The same document was signed by later appointees in the city government, as well as by three military officers and an attorney at law, at different dates, as late as Oct.
15, 1716.
- " Dr. John Johnston, who was nominated mayor Sept. 29 (*Cal.
Coun. Min.*, 256), takes the oath of office.—M. C. C., III: 73.
He "made a very fine entertainment for the governor, Council, the corporation & a great many gentlemen."—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, Oct. 25, 1714. He was continued in office for five years, a longer period than any previous mayor had served.
—M. C. C., III: 101, 129, 150, 185. For further reference to his career, see Man. Com. Coun. (1863), 404. He occupied the residence in which Mayor Rombouts lived in 1679 (q. v.), which was originally the home of Burgomaster Van der Grift.—Ibid. (1865), 511.
- 16 The common council having decided to "Address his Majesty King George on his happy Accession to the Crown," passes favourably on the draft of the document. This is to be given to the governour by the mayor who is to "pray the favor of his Excellency
. . . to convey the same to his most sacred Majesty."—M. C. C., III: 74-75, 77.
- Nov. Lieut. Archibald Kennedy (adjutant of his majesty's regular 2 forces in New York province), Lieut. John Scott (of Col. Weems' company of fusiliers), Lieut. Fletcher Mathews (of Col. Mathews' company of fusiliers), and James du Pre (one of the clerks of the court of chancery) take "the Oaths to his Majesty King George," and subscribe "the Abjuration Oath and the Test as Appointed by an Act of Parliament made in the Sixth year of our late sovereign Lady Queen Anne [see Statutes of Gr. Brit., IV: 265-70] Entitled an Act for the security of her Majestys Person & Government and of the succession to the Crown of Great Britain in the Protestant Line."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 275-76.
- 8 The province owes Hunter, "of arrear of salary and money laid out for the publick," more than £5,000. Debts of all sorts, some to large amounts, are charged against the revenue and cannot be met. Hunter repeatedly appealed to the lords of trade for relief.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 455. See March 28, 1715.
- 14 A fire breaks out about one o'clock in the morning "in Mr.
Monevil's house in Wall Street; it burnt that house, a good brick house of Capt. D'Honeur and two others down to the ground."—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, Nov. 29, 1714. On May 26, 1715, Abraham Brasier petitioned for relief on account of damages which he sustained "by breaking down his House to prevent the further Progress of the late Fire in the City of New York."—Assem. Jour., I: 371.
- Dec. John Parmyter petitions for permission "to lay A Drain from 1 his house in Beaver Street into the Drain in the broad Street and that no person have Liberty to make use of his Drain without contributing to the Charge thereof." The petition is granted, on condition that Parmyter contribute to the expense of the drain in Beaver St.—M. C. C., III: 80. Parmyter was a tavern-keeper on the north-east corner of Beaver and New Sts. On Aug. 13, 1723, his widow, Elizabeth, conveyed the house to Cadwallader Coldeo.
—Liber Deeds, XXX: 357 et seq. (New York).
- " The common council passes an ordinance against trading with soldiers for their clothes, arms, or accoutrements.—M. C. C., III: 79.
- 6 The postmaster-general of North America (Hamilton) publishes a notice that from this date the western post between Boston and New York sets out once a fortnight during the winter months, going from Boston to Saybrook and Hartford on alternate trips to meet the rider from New York. The public is notified "to Pay the Portage" on letters before posting them.—Boston News-Letter, Dec.
6-13, 1714.
- 1715
- In the archives of the Reformed Dutch Church of New York
"is a small manuscript volume, containing the signatures each year of the new Elders, Deacons and Church Masters to the calls of the respective ministers, and running from 1715-1767."—Ecles. Rec., III: 2746.
- The common council orders that the freedom of the city be bestowed upon Capt. Henry Holland, Lieut. Garland, and Capt.
Charles Pinkethman. The last named did "many Considerable services for this City in the late Warr as Commander of A Private Ship of Warr Called the Hunter Gally."—M. C. C., III: 84.
- The king appoints Hunter to be governour of New York, and Secretary Stanhope directs that a new commission and instructions be prepared for him. The commission bears date of March 17.
The instructions "are to the same purpose as the last he had."—See A.
N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 390, 391-97, 411. These were laid before the king by the lords of trade on May 6.—Ibid., V: 402.
- Hunter appoints Lewis Morris, chief-justice of the province.—See A.
N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, March 14-21, 1715. Chief-Justice Mompesson, whom Morris succeeded, died Jan. 2.—Ibid., Jan. 10-17, 1715; N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 400. The original parchment letters patent, with large seal pendant, from George I to Lewis Morris, to be chief-justice of New York, dated July 1, 1718, is now preserved in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (with "Miscellaneous MSS."). In Cosby's time, Morris was dismissed, but subsequently reinstated.
- Hunter experiences great difficulty in raising a revenue to support the government. He urges parliament to come to the relief of the province.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 400-1. See Nov. 8, 1714.
- In a list of freemen admitted to the corporation by the court of mayor and aldermen appears the name of a woman, Agnes Boyce, "a Spinster."—M. C. C., March 29, 1715. It was not then that a woman petitioned for or received this right. The common council minutes of the city of Philadelphia show that four women were made freemen on July 13, 1705.—See M. C. C., July 13, 1705.
- The common council resolves to grant to Jeremiah Callcutt the water lot fronting his premises, on condition that he will make "A Wharfe or Street fronting Hudsons River . . . of forty foot wide to Remain A publick Street for ever."—M. C. C., III: 90.
A grant for this was ordered to be executed on May 25.—Ibid.,
III: 93. The street to be built was part of the present Greenwich St.
- This being a day appointed by the governour for "General
Thanksgiving for his Majesties [George I] happy and Peaceable Accession to the Throne," the common council orders that a bonfire be made and wine provided for the celebration.—M. C. C., III: 91. Cf. Boston News-Letter, April 11-18, 1715. For the coronation celebration, see Aug. 1.
- The common council orders that Susannah Wood be granted
"A Licence to Retail Strong Liquors Gratis being an Object of Charity."—M. C. C., III: 91. This is the earliest case recorded where the "tapster" got his license without paying a fee. The amount of that fee had been fixed by ordinance of March 22, 1715, at 30 shillings.—M. C. C., III: 87. The same fee in Dutch times was "one pound Flemish" ($2.40).—Rec. N. Am., I: 28. The common council, of April 24, 1686, decided that the fee should "Exceed not 5 pounds."—M. C. C., I: 178.
- The assembly calls for the proclamations, commissions, and records of King Charles II's grant to the Duke of York, the duke's commissions to Governour Nicolls, the treaty and articles of surrender, the duke's commission to Sir Edmund Andros, Sir Edmond's proclamation, and such other public papers as relate to the first settlement of this colony.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 425. Cf. June 27, 1713.
- This is King George's birthday, an order to celebrate which was entered in the Minutes of the Common Council on May 25.
This order provided that "their be A Bonfire at the usual place within this City and ten Gallons of wine and the City Hall Illuminated at the Charge of this Corporation & that the Treasurer provide and take Care the same be performed."—M. C. C., III: 92;
N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, May 30-June 6, 1715. The expense incurred was £7:17:9 for entertainment at the house of John Parmyter, and £10:3:17 for the bonfire, wine, illuminations, etc.—Ibid., III: 94. For the first reference in the Minutes to the celebration of the birthday of an English king, see Nov. 2, 1700.

1715 The queen's birthday was first celebrated on Feb. 6, 1703 (q. v.).
 May For a fuller description of the ceremony of celebrating the king's 28 birthday, see May 28, 1723.

June The assembly votes £300 per annum for five years for the 21 repairs of the fortifications and barracks.—Assemb. Jour., I: 375.

" The assembly resolves "That all Goods . . . weighable, 21 that shall be exported from this City, or that shall be bought, sold, bartered or exchanged, within the same, shall be brought unto his Majesty's Beam, and there weighed, and for weighing the same, there shall be paid such Sum of money as were formerly established."—Assemb. Jour., I: 374. This provision was embodied in the Revenue Act of July 5, 1715 (q. v.), with reference to the exportation of bread and flour especially.—Col. Laws N. Y.,
 I: 847.

22 The lords of trade write to Gov. Hunter: "We find by a letter from the Lord Corobury [see July 1, 1708] and Mr Heathcote [see Aug. 3, 1708] that the linen and woolen manufactures are greatly increased at New York, in so much that near two thirds of what is used in that Province is there made, which if not prevented will be of great prejudice to the trade of this Kingdom. We desire you therefore to give us as particular an account as possible of this matter, both with regard to the quantity and goodness of the said Manufactures, with your opinion what may be proper to prevent that growing evil, in order to our taking such measures here, as may be found convenient. In the mean time it is necessary that you give these undertakings all the legal discouragements you can."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 413-14. For Hunter's answer, see
 Nov. 12.

July A naturalization act is passed by the legislature.—Col. Laws
 5 N. Y., I: 858. This was in accordance with Hunter's recommendation of Nov. 11, 1710 (q. v.). The original abjuration oath and oath of allegiance, taken pursuant to this act, are in two long parchment rolls, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.—See the Society's Bulletin, July, 1919.

" The legislature passes a revenue act for the support of the government for five years. Duties are to be levied upon imports (including slaves) and exports. "Bread & flour exported from this City of New York" shall "be brought to his Majesty's Beam & weighed," at a charge of "ten Grains of plate" for "every hundred weight," or else the shipper shall deliver his shipping list (or "entry") and pay a prescribed tariff to the weighmaster. Cocoa, likewise, shall be brought to "the Beam" and weighed, whether imported or exported. Every shipmaster coming to trade in this province shall make entry of his cargo at the custom-house. The act also provides for the issuing of bills of credit to the total value of 15,000 ounces of plate. These bills are to be "impressed" with the arms of the city of New York, and to be used to pay the expenses of the government, because the revenues from duties do not come in fast enough to meet the demands of government creditors.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 847. See June 21, 1715.

" The court of mayor and aldermen orders Elizabeth Burger, 4 "Keeper of the poor house," to be paid £6 for supplying her with necessaries for the use of the poor and for her care and trouble about them for one year.—M. C. M., July 5, 1715. This does not mean that an almshouse had been constructed at this early date, although such a structure was contemplated (see March 24, 1714), but that Elizabeth Burger took into her house (see April 26, 1736) such of the poor as the magistrates ordered. It was in the home of Garret and Elizabeth Deboagh that some paupers were maintained in 1717-8.—M. C. M., Aug. 13, 1717; Aug.
 19, 1718. The larger part of the paupers, however, were cared for outside of the poorhouse. Beginning with 1713, the municipal authorities considered petitions for charity when the officials were sitting as a court rather than as the common council. It was the regular practice of the court to refer these petitions to the churchwardens to investigate and provide the necessary relief. The aged and crippled were naturally the most numerous dependents.
 —Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 188-91.

12 An unusually large number of men were "made his Majesties Natural born Subjects" at this and the following meetings of the court of mayor and aldermen.—M. C. M., July 12, through April 3, 1716. An explanation of this is that the legislature of the province had recently (July 5) passed an act "for Naturalizing all Protestants of Foreign Birth now Inhabiting within this Colony."—Col.
Laws N. Y., I: 858.

The legislature passes "An Act for Appointing an Agent, and directing the Treasurer of this Colony to pay the Sum of five hundred Ounces of Plate yearly to John Champanty, Agent to negotiate the Affairs of this Colony at the Court of Great Britain." By this act Champanty receives his appointment. His duties will be "to attend upon His Majesty and Ministers of State, pursuant to such Directions and Instructions as he shall, from time to time, receive from the Governour and Council, or the General Assembly of this Province." He is to receive 375 ounces of plate as yearly salary, and 125 ounces to be disbursed for "Fees, Solicitations, and other necessary Charges for the Service of this Colony."—Col. Laws
N. Y., I: 881-82.

Several merchants of New York petition the assembly to provide a store-house near the weigh-house at the king's expense.—
Assemb. Jour., I: 380.

By act of the legislature, the inhabitants of a ward who have chosen a dishonest collector or constable must make good the loss "by a fresh levy upon themselves, and not upon the Inhabitants of the whole City." The preamble of this law states that some collectors and constables, "having got the Money into their possession, have with-drawn and removed into other parts with the Mooney, and that others "have converted great part thereof to their own private uses."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 877-78. For an example of community responsibility a half century earlier, see
 Aug. 25, 1676.

Hunter asks the lords of trade to recommend George Clarke to the king to fill the place in the council of the late Mr. Mompsen (chief-justice).—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 419. Clarke received his appointment on May 30, 1716 (q. v.). He later became president, and then lieutenant-governour, of the province.—See March 10 and
 Oct. 29, 1736 (q. v.).

The common council passes an ordinance that all fences in the Bowery Division of the Out Ward shall be made and maintained as follows: "The Outside fences to be four Rails and four foot and A half High and the Partition fences to be of three Rails and four foot high and not Otherwise and that all the fences without the Stockadoes of this City be According to the same Regulation."—M. C. C., III: 97.

The common council passes an ordinance establishing fees for the "Inviters to funerals," these being from eight to eighteen shillings according to the age of the deceased.—M. C. C., III: 97.

The city of New York celebrates George the first's "happy Aug. Accession to the Crown of Great Britain, &c" —From N. Y. letter
 1 in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 1-8, 1715.

Gov. Hunter takes the oath of office again.—Cal. Coun. Min., 260. See June 14, 1710. His commission as captain-general and governour-in-chief of the province of New York, and commander-in-chief of the militia of the colony of Connecticut, is published at New York, "to the great Joy and Satisfaction of the Inhabitants, the Garrison and Militia being under Arms." He goes immediately "to the Jerseys to Publish his other Commission for that Government."—From N. Y. oews in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 8-15, 1715.

This week, Gov. Hunter goes to Albany to meet the Five Nations of Indians and "renew the Covenant Chain, &c."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 15-22, 1715. At this meeting, the governour "Engaged them to make War upon the Carolia Indians, or oblige them to make Peace with His Majesties Christian Subjects of that Colony."—Ibid., Sept. 12-19, 1715.

The king's assent is given to an act of parliament, entitled "An 20 act for the further security of his Majesty's person and government, and the succession of the crown in the heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being protestants; and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and his open and secret abettors." It recites the titles of the previous Acts of Succession, (namely, those of 12 & 13 Wm. III, Chap. 2; 13 & 14 Wm. III, Chap. 6; 1 Anne, Stat. 1, Chap. 22; and 4 Anne, Chap. 8); also the triple oaths:
 first, of allegiance to King George I; second, of abjuration of Papal authority; and, third, of abjuration of the Pretender, for whose seizure within the king's dominions £100,000 reward was offered.
 Among the persons required to take these oaths are all civil and military officers, ecclesiastical persons, schoolmasters, etc.—Jour. of House of Lords (1714-1718), 176; 1 Geo. I, Chap. 13, in Pickering, Statutes at Large (1764), XIII: 187; Leadam, Pal. Hist. of Eng., 1702-1760, 243. The charter of King's College required that its officers should take the oaths prescribed in this act.—See Oct. 31, 1754. A set of the three oaths, with signatures, is reproduced in Man. Com. Coun. (1859), opp. p. 445. Cf. the abjuration oath, signed by 125 persons between July 12, 1715, and April 3, 1716 (as required, evidently, by one of the prior acts cited in the act of 1715), which is printed in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Bulletin (N. Y., 1919).

- 21- On this day, Louis XIV ascends the throne, succeeding Louis XIII as king of France.
- 8 Doctor John Livingston is killed in a duel at New York by Thomas Dongan, nephew of Gov. Dongan. On Sept. 10, Dongan was "Tried for that Fact in our Supreme Court, and found Guilty of Manslaughter."—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, Sept. 12-19, 1715.
- 19 Mary Harris (wife or widow of Richard Harris—see Dec. 22, 1704), now described as "Late Mary Baker Widow of Roger Baker late of the City of New York Inholder," by an indenture made on this date, to her son-in-law George Cocke, relinquishes, for a certain consideration yearly, her third interest in a "large brick Dwelling house and Lott of Land . . . in Smiths [William] Street within the City of New York in the East Ward . . . and now in the possession of the said George Cocke." This house had been bequeathed by Roger Baker to his wife, soon after daughter, by will dated Sept. 18, 1702, "soon after the making of which" Baker died.—Liber Deeds, XXVIII: 198-202 (New York). In a mortgage given by Cocke on this property on July 10, 1716, he described the house as on east side of Smith St. bounded south by the ground of Lawrence Thomas, east by ground of Johannes Vanburgh, west by Smith St. and on the north by persons unknown.—Ibid., XXVIII: 241-45. On July 18, 1716, Mary Harris sold her interest outright for £150 to Cocke, and relinquished the yearly rent.—Ibid., XXVIII: 274. We have no other record of George Cocke's occupancy of the old King's Head Tavern.
- Oct. An order is issued by the governor's council, on the memorial of Charles le Roux, to pay him for engraving hills of credit.—Cal. Conn. Min., 260. Warrant for payment was issued March 1, 1716.—Ibid., 261.
- 25 Some time between this date, when Adolphus Phillips of New York and Thomas Dongan of London, a kinsman, are given power of attorney to sell "the large Messuage Tenement or dwelling house known by the Name of Whitehall with the Ware house Bakehouse or Bolting house and the Ground or Yard thereunto belonging" (Liber Deeds, XXVIII: 81, 195-97), and the date when the Burgis View (Pl. 25, Vol. I) was drawn (probably in 1717-8), this famous "Great House" of Gov. Stuyvesant and Gov. Dongan (see Nov. 12, 1677; March 11, 1686; April 22, 1697) was destroyed by fire. In the Burgis View only the walls remain, and, in the Key beneath, the building is described as "The Ruines of White Hall." See reference to "Whitehall" (with no mention of ruins) under date of Feb. 23, 1716; see also Oct. 29, 1709. The building stood at what is now the north-west corner of Whitehall and State Sts.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952. In 1917, when the building at No. 1 State St. was torn down, to make room for the office building which now (1922) occupies the site, the author picked up an oyster-shell five inches long on the rilled sand beach then still clearly visible in front of the old house, at a depth of six feet below the present street. He also found heavy old adzed timbers extending out under the street, on the beach level, from a point near the corner of Whitehall St.
- Nov. In a report to the lords of trade on the state of the province, 12 Hunter writes, among other things: "The trade of this Province has consisted chiefly of provisions;" but it has considerably decreased "since the late Peace." To prevent "the total decay of trade, and consequently the ruin of the Provinces," he proposes to go on with the production of naval stores (masts, yards, tar, etc.)
- He sends "a list of the number of ships, Vessels & mariners belonging to this Province, almost all of them having been built here."
- He confirms an earlier estimate of the proportion of homespun used in New York (see Aug. 3, 1708), so far as it applies to "the planters and poorer sort of country people," stating that the computation "is rather less than more, but the several sorts are coarser than what come from England." He adds that he has never known homespun to be sold in the shops, and that "The people of this Town and Albany, which make a great part of the Province wear no clothing of their own manufacture." There is "no currency but of silver and bills of credit, the smallest of which is of two shillings." He proposes the coining of copper farthings from native copper, for which purpose he asks the grant of a patent.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 460-62. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1852), 442.
- The vestry of Trinity Church passes a resolution regarding the king's command that the increase in the Rev. Mr. Vesey's salary shall be paid by the justices of the peace and vestrymen of the city.—From the original minute, in metal file labelled "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room.
- An explanatory note, supplied by the late E. T. Corwin, and citing various authorities, states that the Rev. Mr. Vesey was in England from June, 1714 to Nov., 1715, for the purpose of securing some relief from the opposition to the Episcopacy in New York which grew out of "its pretended legal establishment." Although the church charter asserts, "about a dozen times, that the Church of England was established by law," the Ministry Act of 1693 (q. v.), "did not establish the Church of England." Moreover, "the Legislative Assembly in 1695 positively declared—"that the Vestrymen and Church Wardens had power to call a dissenting Protestant minister, and that he is to be paid and maintained as the law directs." Gov. Fletcher, however, asserted that the law meant what the Assembly itself declared it did not mean." When Vesey went to England, the city vestry, which was elected by the people at large, "took advantage of their legal position, and refused to transfer the funds to the Church Vestry, as they were never intended specifically for them; but had only been collected and paid before because of official pressure." The claim had always been considered a perversion, as it really was.—Eccles. Rec., III: 2053, citing Heathcote's letter of Feb. 25, 1716 to the Lord Bishop of Bristol in ibid., III: 2105. While in England, Vesey was made a "Commissary" of the Bishop of London; and obtained a letter from the king to Gov. Hueter, directing Hunter to secure the back payments of Mr. Vesey's salary. This was accordingly done.—Ibid. See, further, ibid., III: 2107-8; VII: 376, footnote; Berrian, Hist. Sketch of Trin. Church, 32-33, Appendix E.
- Thomas Kearney is made a defendant in a suit in the mayor's court brought by Messrs. Dugdale and Searle, flour merchants. The plaintiffs alleged they had been brought "into great Discredit" because, out of 100 half barrels of flour which Kearney delivered to them as "good and Merchatable," and which they sold at Bridgetown, Barbados, as such, 57 were found to be "bad and mixt flower." Kearney had to pay £205:11 in damages and costs.—M. C. M., Dec. 19, 1715. For legislative action concerning the sale of flour, see Oct. 24, 1750.
- The governor, council, mayor, and city corporation, as well as the ministers and principal men of the city, sign an "Association" to uphold King George's title to the throne against the Pretender.—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Dec. 26-Jan. 2, 1716. The occasion of this was the attempt of the "Popish Pretender," son of James II, with the assistance of adherents, to wrest the throne from King George I.
- This "Association," recorded in the Minutes of the Common Council of the next day, reads: "His most Sacred Majesty King George our Sole And undoubted Rightfull and Lawfull Sovereign, having from the throne Informed his high Court of Parliament that he had full Assurance that the late Rebellious Tumults in Great Britain were only the prelude to the Intended Invasion of his Dominions by a Popish Pretender to his Crown and his Associates. We Who have hereto Subscribed our Names, in Duty to God and our King and due Regard to our Holy Religion our Country And Posterity do solemnly Declare and promise that we will to the utmost of our Power And Ability Support Maintain and Defend his Majesties Rightfull & Lawfull Title to the Sovereignty of Great Britain And all other the Dominions and Territories thereto Belonging against the Said Pretender and all other Pretenders whatsoever their Associates and Abettors, And we do further in the most Solemn manner promise and Engage to one Another that we will Cheerfully and Readily Joyn together when thereto Requird by Lawfull Authority at such place within this Province & in such manner as Shall be by the Said Authority Appointed to Oppose and Suppress all such Efforts as Shall be made by the secret or Avowed friends or Abettors of the said Pretender and their Adherents to the Disturbance of his Majesties Government and the Peace and Tranquility of his Subjects. In Testimony of the Sincerity of our hearts we have hereto Affixed our hands."—M. C. C., III: 107.

1716

From the period of 1716-8 dates the well-known Burgis View of New York from Brooklyn Heights, reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 25. See also Oct. 25, 1715. This is the most important, as well as the finest view of the city, and shows in detail every building along the East River water front as far north as the present Catherine Street, as well as many of the buildings and other landmarks back from the river. The drawing was probably made after June 18, 1717 (q.v.), as it shows the long bridge at the foot of Broad St., which, on that day, was ordered to be constructed.

About this time, John Horn built a house upon the tract which he had acquired "in conjunction with his brother-in-law Cornelius Webber, the latter's sister Rachel having married the former three years previously. The house, which became the starting point of the Bloomingdale Road [see Nov. 25, 1751] was located between 22d and 23d Streets, in the present centre of Fifth Avenue, on the exact spot where the 'Isle of Safety' has been placed, and immediately west of the Flatiron Building. It became later the residence of Christopher Milderberger, a merchant in the Swamp, who had married Margaret Horn in 1808 and removed to this dwelling in 1820 from Vandewater Street . . . Fifth Avenue was ordered opened in 1837 . . . In 1839 . . . the homestead was removed to the north west corner of the avenue and street where the Fifth Avenue Hotel stands."—Mott, The New York of Yesterday (1908), 6; Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 652. See Fifth Avenue Hotel in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 978.

Feb. 7 "At a General quarter sessions of the peace," held on "the first Tuesday of february 1715" (1716), the "hired house" of "Nicholas Eyers brewer a baptist teacher," which is "situate in the broad street of this City between the house of John Michel Eyers and M<sup>r</sup> John Spratt," is "registered for an anabaptist meeting house within this City."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 290. This was the beginning of the Baptist, or Anabaptist, congregation in New York, with their own meeting-house.—Ibid., III: 291. As early as 1652, however, there were one or more anabaptists in this city.—Eccles. Rec., I: 300, 318, 709. See also 1712; Jan. 19, 1727; and 1728. The year 1716 has been determined by the entry in the Min. of the Gen. Quarter Sessions Court (1694-1731), 317.

23 "Trinity vestry orders that a lease of "the Churches Garden" be granted "to M<sup>r</sup> May Bickley (or to Such person in trust for him as he shall appoint)," for the term of three years, at 20 shillings a year.—Trin. Min. (MS.).

"A committee of the common council, which has waited upon Stephen de Lancey to thank him for presenting £50 (his salary as assemblyman) to the city, being advised by him that the money may be well expended for a public clock, the common council directs the committee to order a clock made, with four dial-plates.—M. C. C., III: 108. On April 26, the committee reported that Joseph Phillips, a clockmaker, would make "a good substantial Towo Clock for the public use," having its largest wheel nine inches in diameter, and with two dial-plates of red cedar painted and gilt, each six feet square; that he would provide workmen and material for the clock and pendulum, place it in the city hall within six months, for £60 on the completion of the work; and would keep it in good order for 20 shillings per annum, after the first year for which he would make no charge. It is ordered that the committee "agree with him Accordingly."—Ibid., III: 114-15. On May 23, part payment of £30 was made to Phillips by the treasurer, on the mayor's warrant, "out of the Money given by M<sup>r</sup> Delancy to this Corporation" (ibid., III: 117), and final payment on March 20, 1717 (q.v.).

"A committee of the common council is appointed to employ workmen "to Levell the Ground between the Great Bridge And Whitehall," and also to repair the wharf "by the Markett house at the south end of the Broad Street."—M. C. C., III: 109.

Mar. 9 The common council gives a dinner to the governor at the house of John Parmyter. This tavern was then the favorite resort for corporation gatherings (see May 28, 1715). Expenses amounting to £30:13:14 were paid for entertainment there Nov. 20 and 25 last, and on March 9.—M. C. C., III: 94, 111, 113-14, 119-20, 128.

Apr. 20 Gov. Hunter reports to the lords of trade that the number of militia in the province is 5,060.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 469. The city expends £13:13:6 for a model of an engine, to be obtained from Holland, for cleaning the dock.—From original MS.

Journal of the City Chamberlain, II: 101, deposited in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc.

John Law, a Scotchman, founds the Banque Générale in Paris; later projecting the "Mississippi Scheme," the failure of which, in 1720, ruined thousands of French families.

This being the king's birthday, preparations are made for celebrating it in the usual manner.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, May 28—June 4, 1716. See May 28, 1723.

Gov. Hunter is made vice-admiral.—Cal. Coun. Min., 261. King George's letter is received by the governor's council, appointing George Clarke one of the council, in place of Mompesson, deceased.—Cal. Coun. Min., 261. See July 25, 1715. He was sworn in on June 4, as was also Thomas Byerley, the collector of customs.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, June 4-11, 1716.

Gov. Hunter states in a message that "The strength of this flort [Fort George] is very little proportion'd to it's use, wh<sup>ch</sup> I take to be not only y<sup>e</sup> Security of this province but in a great measure that of this Continent."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 397.

John Parmyter is allowed by the common council £615:3 for "Expences of this Corporation for the Committee for agreeing with the Clock Maker for Expences of this Corporation On Kings Birth Day on the 28 of May last," and for other expenses.—M. C. C., III: 120. Parmyter's tavern stood on Beaver and New Sts.—See Dec. 1, 1714.

The common council passes an ordinance to regulate the practice of midwives. An oath is required of them that they will not "Leave the poor Woman to go to the Rich," or commit various other false and unfaithful acts that are enumerated in the ordinance.—M. C. C., III: 121-23.

In a letter of this date from New York, it is stated that "On Thursday [Aug. 9] at Amboy dyed the Right Hon. my Lady Hay [the governor's wife was so called because her first husband was Lord John Hay], much Lamented by all that knew her, being a Lady of rare Endowments and Vertues, one of the best of Wives, and a most Excellent Mother, and has left His Excellency Brigadier Hunter our Governour the most afflicted Man alive. She was Inter'd here in the Chappel in Fort George."—From N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 13-20, 1716. See also N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 477.

A letter from the king appoints Mayor Johnston to the governor's council, and he is sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 262.

His majesty's coronation day is celebrated in the usual manner, "by Fireing of Guns, Illuminations, a Large Bonfire at the Charge of the Corporation, with Wine . . ."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Oct. 22-29, 1716.

John Fontaine, who arrived off Sandy Hook on Oct. 22 in a sloop from Virginia, and came to the city by ferry by way of Staten Island and Long Island (both of which he describes), mentions in a "Journal" many interesting details of his daily experience. The following extracts indicate the physical appearance and life of the city at this period. The social life of New York seems to him to have largely centred about an Irish club and a French club.

"Oct. 27th. About nine I went and breakfasted at the Coffee-House, and at eleven I waited upon Governor Hunter, who . . . invited me to dine with him. After dinner I walked with him about the fort, wherein he lives. It is a small square situated upon a height above the town, and commanding it. The one side of it fronts the harbor, and hath a small curtain and two bastions; the land side hath but two half-bastions to it, so that it is a square composed of two whole and two half-bastions. There is a ravelin towards the land that lies on one side of the gate. It is but a weak place, and badly contrived. There is a regiment here, and the Governor always hath a guard, and this is all the duty they have, which is very little. From the Governor I went to see the Mayor of the town, one Doctor Johnson, and was kindly received by him; thence to Colonel Delorty, and at night I went to the tavern and was there with the Irish club until tea, . . .

"Oct. 28th. About eight in the morning, Mr. Kearney and I we hired horses, and went about seven miles out of town to one Colonel Morris's, who lives in the country, and is Judge or Chief Justice of this province, a very sensible and good man, . . . and he showed us several rare collections of his own making. He lives upon the river that comes down to New York.

"Oct. 29th. About ten of the clock we left Colonel Morris's, crossed the river, and arrived at New York at twelve. The roads are very bad and stony, and no possibility for coaches to go, only in the winter, when the snow fills up the holes and makes all

Apr.

May

—

28

30

June

5

21

July

27

Aug.

13

18

Oct.

20

22

- 1716 smooth, then they can make use of wheel-carriages. There are but
 Oct. 22 two coaches belonging to this province, because of the badness of the roads, though there are many rich people . . . There are three churches, the English, the French, and the Dutch Church;
 there is also a place for the Assembly to sit, which is not very fine, and where they judge all matters. The town is compact, the houses for the most part built after the Dutch manner, with the gable-ends towards the street; the streets are of a good breadth;
 the town is built close upon the river, and there is a fine quay that reigns all round the town, built with stoe and piles of wood outside.
 There are small docks for cleaning and building small ships.
 At high-water, the vessels come up to the quay to lade and unlade.
 In winter the river's frozen, sometimes all over, and such abundance of ice comes down, that it often cuts the cables of ships, but cannot hurt those near the quay. The town is built on ground that gradually rises from the water, so it is amphitheatre like. The French have all the privileges that can be, and are the most in number here, they are of the Council and of the Parliament, and are in all other employments. The chief produce of this province is beef, flour, pork, butter, and cheese, which they send to the West Indies, and sometimes to Lisbon. They drive a great trade with the Northern Indians for skins and furs. There is plenty of all sorts of fish, oysters, and water fowl. The climate is very cold in winter, a great deal of snow and frost for four months, and very hot in the latter part of the summer.
- "Oct. 31st At ten, I went to the Coffee-house, and walked upon the Exchange [see Burgis View, Pl. 25, Vol. II.], which is a small place that is planked, and hath pillars of wood all round, which support the roof and leave it open on all sides. I dined with Mr. Andrew Freneau, . . . and at six to the French Club . . .
 "Nov. 4th Sunday—At ten I went to Mr Freneau, and with him to church. . . . which is after Calvia's way. The church is very large and beautiful, and within it there was a very great congregation, . . .—From "Journal of John Fontaine," in Memoirs of Huguenot Family, translated by Ann Maury (1853).
- Nov. 20 Catharine Staats conveyed to Obadiah Hunt a house "agaist
 a place formerly Called the Great Bridge and next Adjoining unto the Custom House," with all its appurtenances "now late in the Tenure or Occupation of One Johannes Honohour" and now in the "Tenure or Occupation of the said Obadiah Hunt."—Liber Deeds, XXVIII: 270-75. This was a tavern, and stood at the present 33-35 Pearl St., occupying the site of the old Heermans warehouse, for a history of which see Castello Plan, II: 266.
- 21 According to an affidavit of this date, the Bowery Lane was at this period used for horse-racing. It is the affidavit of William Bicken in the case of Anthony Byvanck vs. George Elsworth, heard in the mayor's court, and begins: "William Bicken mariner of full age Deposeth & saith that about five weeks ago on a Saturday he was at a horsrace in the bowry lane where M<sup>r</sup> Byvancks horse run agat the horse of M<sup>r</sup> Johnston [Mayor Johnston?] and that M<sup>r</sup> Byvancks horse win the race by about six horse length . . ."
 —From the original MS. in box labelled "New-York, 1700-1760," in archives of N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- Dec. 26<sup>a</sup> A triple alliance is formed by England, France, and Holland, to check the ambition of Spain.—Particulars were published in the Jan. 7 Boston News-Letter, July 29-Aug. 5, 1717.
- 1717
- At about this time, the whale fishery began in New England.
 — Auction sales of books began in Boston in this year with the sale of the library of the Rev. Ebenezer Pemberton.
- Feb. 20 Benjamin Peck petitions for leave to remove a decayed block-house from his premises near the east gate of the city.—Cal. Hist.
MSS., Eng., 433. It seems clear that this was the Fly blockhouse, which stood at the foot of Wall St.; the Miller Plan (Pl. 23-a) shows this blockhouse at the location mentioned. A year later, Jan. 29, 1718, the common council rejected a petition of Peck's for a grant of water lots, near "the Block house in the East River between M<sup>r</sup> Beckmans and M<sup>r</sup> Sacketts."—M. C. C., III: 165.
 Curiously enough, no Beckman has been found of record as receiving a water grant south of Beckman's Slip (Fulton St.). Between Fulton St. and Peck's Slip, Gerardus Beckman and Johannes Beckman received grants of land under water, as recorded in Liber City Grants, B: 70, 83; as did also William Beckman, recorded in ibid., B: 491, and C: 181; and likewise Benjamin Peck, recorded in ibid., B: 515. Between Peck Slip and James
- Slip, Richard Sackett received such a grant, recorded in ibid., B: 1. Feb.
 Notwithstanding these records, the Fly blockhouse is evidently 20 here referred to.
- Final payment (£55) is made by the city to Joseph Phillips, Mar.
 clockmaker, on his completion of the public clock which he has 20
 "fixed in the City Hall of this City for the use of this Corporation," the gift of Stephen de Lancey (see Feb. 23, 1716).—M. C. C., III:
 158. See also Journal of the City Chamberlain, II: 102, 117. Appropriations were afterwards made for the care of it.—See Aug. 27, 1718. Sec.A.
 Meotton of the clock does not appear in the city records after 27
 June 29, 1734.—M. C. C., IV: 211. Apr.
 In a petition by the common council to the assembly, to have 19 the dock cleaned and the course of the common sewer altered, it is stated that it is desired also that the wharves enclosing the dock be repaired, "that the Dock may be capable to shelter Vessels from Danger of the Ice, who are obliged in the Winter to be carried to Kipp's Bay and Turtle Bay."—Assemb. Jour., I: 391. See May 14.
 A memorial of Robert Jenney, master of the grammar school, 30 is referred by the council to the house, with the recommendation
 "that a sufficient Fund may be raised, for building a School-House and Dwelling House for the Master, and to allow him a Salary of Seventy Pounds per Annum, for teaching 53 Boys."—Assemb.
Jour., I: 393.
- Agreeable to the resolution of the common council of March 20 May (M. C. C., III: 158), the provincial legislature passes an act to 14 enable the city to raise £500 "for Altering the Course of the Common Sewer at the End of the Broad-Street, and for Cleansing and Scowering the Dock of this City." The act recites the fact that "Violent suddain Rains and the great confluence of water from Several Streets of the City, unto the Broad-street, and from thence unto the Dock, brings such Large Quantities of Dirt, Sand, Rubbish, Ouze and Mudd, which Settles and Lodges itself in the Basin of the said Dock," that there is an insupportable expense for "Cleansing and Scowering the Same." The plan now is to prevent this by "Extending or Altering the Course and passage of the said Common Sewer, to Convey the Same Clear of the said Dock into the East River."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 907. For the action of the city on this law, see June 18, 1717.
- The common council permits Gideon Kerstine, a ropemaker, 22
 "to Exercise his Trade in the Street called Fairstreet [Fulton St.], lying between Spring Garden and the house and Ground of M<sup>r</sup> Cure and Running away Easterly he taking Care that no persons horses carts &c. be Obstructed in passing and Repassing the said Street &c."—M. C. C., III: 141. Spring Garden stood between Ann and Fulton Sts. on the east side of Broadway (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 980), while Cure was proprietor of a tavern on Fulton St.—See Oct. 14, 1713.
- The king's birthday is celebrated: "the Gartison [sic] and all 28
 the Militia of this City were under Arms, the Artillery of the Fort, and from all the Shipping in the Harbour were fired, and at Night there was a fine Bonfire and Fire-works, and Wine where His Majesty's Health, the Prince, Royal Family, Prince Fredrick, and a great many other Loyal Healths were toasted; after which his Excellency Brigadeer Hunter our Governour had a Ball, at Fort George where he made a very Noble Entertainment for the Ladies and Gentlemen there; all the City was finely Illuminated, and the Night Ended with all the Demonstrations of Joy Imaginable."— N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, June 3-10, 1717. The date of his event is erroneously given in the description of the Burgis View (Pl. 25), I: 241, as June 10.
- Gov. Hunter sets out for Albany, "to Renew the Covenant 29 Chain with the five Nations of Indians, &c."—N. Y. news in Boston
News-Letter, June 3-10, 1717.
- A pirate vessel, the "Paul Williams," follows a ship into Sandy 2 Hook, causing considerable uneasiness in and about New York.
 The pirates, however, knowing that they are pursued by two sloops from Rhode Island, do not linger, but put to sea.—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, June 3-10, 1717. Just before leaving, a part of the crew, which had been impressed into the pirate's service, rebelled without success, "five or six being dangerously wounded, and 'tis thought dyed within a few Days of their Wounds."— Ibid., June 10-17, 1717. Later reports were received of vessels plundered by this pirate ship, but it was stated "none dyed of their wounds" in the scuffle at Sandy Hook.—Ibid., June 17-24, 1717.
- For the account of the king's birthday referred to in descrip- 10
 tion of the Burgis View, I: 241, see May 28.

1717 The following New York advertisement is published in Boston: Sept.
June "This is to give Notice to all Persons that have Occasion for a Bell 17 or Bells in Churches or Meeting-houses, that in New-York they may be supplied with New Bells, or if they have an Old Bell broke they may have it new Cast at a reasonable Price, and warranted good for Twelve Months, that if it Crack or Break it shall be new Cast for nothing: And all new Bells shall be made of better Metal than any that comes out of Europe for Churches or Meeting-houses.
All Persons that have Occasion may apply themselves to Joseph Phillips who is now building a Furnace for that purpose, and hath already agreed with some Persons, and is ready to do the same with any that are disposed."—Boston News-Letter, June 10-17, 1717.

18 The common council passes a resolution "that the Common sewer at the End of the Broad Street be Carried through the Dock to the Outside thereof so that it may Empty it self into the River.
That the Overseers Appointed for Making the said Common sewer, Cleaning the Dock and Repairing the Wharfs &c: do with all Convenient Expedition purchase Materials, Employ Workmen and Labourers for the Making of the said Common sewer Repairing of the Wharfs and Cleaning of the Dock, and that they Cause A Good and substantial Bridge to be made and Erected Over the said Common sewer from the Market house fronting the Dock to the Dock's Mouth and that they from time to time Consult and Advise with proper Artificers and Workmen for the better Effecting the said Work and that there be an Entrance into the Dock on each side of the Common sewer."—M. C. C., III: 143. This action is in conformity with the act of the general assembly (May 14, 1717), authorizing the city to raise £500 by levying upon the real and personal property of all the freeholders and inhabitants, for which purpose, a resolution of the common council was passed on June 5, 1717.—Ibid., III: 141-42. Payments aggregating £2000 were made Sept. 30, 1717, for work and materials.—Ibid., III: 149.
The auditing committee, for examining the accounts of the treasurer of this fund, made his final report Jan. 3, 1719.—Ibid., III: 190-92.

24 "There is now Published, and to be Sold at Mrs Jeanne Perry, Bookseller's Shop in King-Street near the Town-House, in Boston, Capt. Scyram Southack's large and Correct Chart or Map of all the Sea Coast in the English America, on the Continent, viz from Newfoundland, to Cape Florida, the like never yet Extant, of great Use to all, but especially Mariners."—Boston News-Letter, June 17-24, 1717. This map is not listed in the catalogues of the British Museum, the Library of Congress, or the N. Y. Public Library.
Later (c. 1730), William Herbert of London published a Southack map of the sea-coast from New York to the "I. Cape Briton," which contains accounts of two explorations made by Southack along the coast of America, one in 1690, and another in 1717.— Winsor, Mem. Hist. of Boston, II: liv. The results of the explorations made in 1717 were probably used by Southack in a later and probably more detailed chart on which he was working in 1718 (see May 26, 1718).

July The "Phœnix," the new station ship for New York, commanded 30 by Capt. Pearce, arrives.—N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug.
5-12, 1717.

Aug. "Upon application made to this Court [general sessions] by 7 Mr Patrick Macknight and Mr Gilbert Livingston it is Ordered that the house Situate in the East Ward of this City Commonly Called & known by the Name of Venovs's house be & is hereby Recorded a Publick Meeting house for the Conogregation of Dissenting Protestants Called Presbyterians for the Publick Worship of Almighty God."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 334.
A different meeting-place was recorded on May 3, 1721 (q.v.).
A plot of land for a church was purchased Jan. 5, 1718 (q.v.). Daniel Venovs was living on the waterside between Old Slip and Wall St. in 1694.—M. C. C., I: 363-64. In 1717, he resided at the present
No. 144 Pearl St., 83 ft. south of the corner of Wall St.—See recitals in Liber Deeds, XXV: 366; also ibid., XXVI: 52, 72 (New York).

21 That John Parmyter's tavern continued to be the favourite resort of the city magistrates is shown by a common council order to pay him £55 "for divers Expences at his house by this Corporation on several publick days Ending the first day of August last."—M. C. C., III: 146. See also March 9 and June 21, 1716; and Oct. 20, 1717.

Sept. Gov. Hunter writes to Col. Spotswood of Virginia, by advice
5 of the council, declining to attend the meeting of governors at Philadelphia proposed by Spotswood.—Cal. Coun. Min., 265.

26 James Dixon is appointed by royal order, and is sworn in as collector and receiver-general of the revenues and collector of Sept.

customs, in place of Thomas Byerley, removed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 265. See Nov. 30, 1717.

Elizabeth Jourdain petitions the general assembly, which is considering from day to day the debts of the province, that her accounts may be settled as "amongst the publick Debts of the Government." One of these is "for lodging Soldiers, and entertaining the Gentlemen of her Majesty's Council at her House, on the Affair of the Expedition against Canada" (the date of which, whether 1709 or 1711, does not appear).—Assemb. Jour., I: 402.
The law, passed Dec. 23 (q.v.), to pay the debts of the province,
does not provide for this payment.

Elizabeth Jourdain, the tavern-keeper, first appeared in the city records when she received letters of administration, April 13, 1703, on the death of her husband, a seaman on the Ship "Dolphin," who died at sea.—Abstracts of Wills, I: 368, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
Collections (1892). On Sept. 10, 1706, she sued one Charles Wolley in the mayor's court for £5:2:9 in payment for rum and sugar supplied to him as a shipowner.

On Oct. 28, 1727, she applied to the assembly to be relieved from the penalties of four recognizances, entered into by her for payment of the excise, alleging her "extream Poverty." The petition was denied, and the commissioners were reprimanded for failure to collect the excise.—Assemb. Jour., I: 565-66. Her tavern was still in existence on March 31, 1736 (q.v.), but its location is not now known.

The common council orders that the representatives of this city and county in the assembly "use their utmost Endeavours to procure the passag of a Bill in the Said Assembly for Regulating the Ferry between the City of New York and the Island Nassaw."—
M. C. C., III: 150. It seems surprising that the assembly should be requested to pass such a bill when the ferry privilege rested solely with the corporation. Perhaps it was desired that anyone who infringed on the privilege should realize that he was violating public, as well as municipal, authority.—See Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 143. Such a bill was passed on Nov. 2 (q.v.); and the ferry was offered for lease accordingly, on terms prescribed by the common council on Dec. 24, 1717 (q.v.).

Gov. Spotswood of Virginia and Gov. Keith of Pennsylvania, Oct. 1. accompanied by several gentlemen, arrive in New York. The garrison and militia, under arms, having formed as a guard on both sides of the street, "when their Landing to the Fort . . . His Excellency the Governour & most of the Gentlemen of the Town received them on their Landiag at the Water-side and conducted them to the Fort."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, Oct.
7-14, 1717.

Henry Wildmao, coroner of the city, memorializes the assembly 4 for "Satisfaction, for making nine Inquisitions on the Bodies of Persons murdered, in the horrid Conspiracy and Insurrection of the Negroes in 1712." (see April 7, 1712).—Assemb. Jour., I: 403.

The king having signed a warrant for the use of a new seal for the 11 province of New York, the lords of trade send both warrant and seal from Whitehall to Gov. Hunter.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 428.
See, further, July 1, 1718. See also Pl. 25, Vol. I, and I: 241.

In making arrangements to celebrate, as usual, "his Majesties 14 Coronation," with "the usual Quantity of Wine," it is ordered by the common council that the treasurer provide also "A Close hamper with lock and key to secure the same from Imbezzlement."
—M. C. C., III: 151. See Oct. 20.

For expences of the corporation on the anniversary of the 20 king's coronation, on Oct. 20, John Parmiter, the tavern-keeper
(see Dec. 1, 1714), was allowed, on Dec. 21, the sum of £5:17:3.—
M. C. C., III: 156. See also Aug. 21.

The common council is of the opinion "that there is an Absolute 22 Necessity of A Convenient Magazine or powder house within this City," and it is ordered "that Advertisementes be put up" asking for proposals to build it.—M. C. C., III: 152. Nothing further on the subject appears of record until June 1, 1721 (q.v.).

Since the time of the Dongan Charter (see April 27, 1686), Nov. 2.
the whole subject of ferries was controlled by the common council, including the adjustment of ferrage (cf. Ref. N. Am., VI: 83-84).
The Harlem ferry had been so controlled since 1667 (q.v.). Now, however, the legislature passes "An Act for Regulating the Ferry between the City of New-York and the Island Nassaw," which establishes a certain "Catalogue" of ferry rates. This has become necessary because the ferry-man has made himself "sole Judge" of 1717 the proper charges for carrying goods not listed in the official list

Nov. of charges established by the common council (see Feb. 2, 1699), 2 and has exacted "Extravagant Prices." Penalties are prescribed for charging more than the law allows. The rates designated in this act are principally reckoned in multiples of a grain's weight of plate; thus, every person transported one way across East River is required to pay 1½ grains' weight of plate, and double that sum after sunset (unless the ferry-man neglects or refuses to transport the passenger sooner). For a horse, 60 "Grain Weight of Plate" is exacted; and other amounts for a calf, a hog, a sheep or lamb, a barrel of rum or sugar, or molasses, a dead hog, an empty barrel, an inch board, a wagon, etc., in numerous variety. For every 100 eggs, four eggs are taken for ferriage.

The act also provides that the ferry-man shall "be Obligated to Come and go with the Ferry-Boats, to and from such places in the City of New York, between the Great Dock and Beckman's Slaughter-house, and by such Turns as are Appointed and prescribed him in the former Regulations, for Encouraging the Markets of the said City (Wind and weather permitting)." New York City's monopoly is reasserted, it being permitted by this act to "Establish and keep one or more ferries between New York and the Island Nassau." The ferry-man "Established in the City of New York" shall receive into his ferry-boats on Nassau Island (when there) "all sorts of Goods and Passengers (horses and Cattle only Excepted)" and transport them to New York at the prescribed rates. Persons residing at or near the ferry on Nassau Island (that is, "between Kycukyut and Red-hook") may transport their own goods in their own boats without payment of ferry rates.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 925; and cf. provisions of Montgomerie Charter relating to ferries; for the steps taken by the common council, following this enactment, see Dec. 24, 1717.
When this act expired of its own time limitation, it was renewed by an act of June 17, 1726, until June 12, 1728 (ibid., II: 298); but, on Nov. 25, 1727 (q. v.), it was amended by another act which moderated the rates for ferriage and made them payable in English currency.

The mayor was reimbursed on Jan. 29, 1718, to the amount of £22, "Expended at the house of Mr Thomas Brasier (evidently a tavern-keeper) upon Committees of the Council upon the passing the Act of General Assembly lately made for Regulating the ferry between the City of New York and the Island Nassau."—M. C. C., III: 165.

30 James Dixon, the collector (see Sept. 26), states in a memorial to the governor's council "that his Majesties Custome house being Intirely out of Repair and in Danger of Falling insomuch that a presentment of the Grand Jury has lately been made against it," he desires provision for repairs.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 420.
Such repairs were made.—Assemb. Jour., I: 435. See June 16, 1719.

Dec. 23 The provincial legislature passes an act to raise and place in the hands of the treasurer "Several quantities of Plate," and to make bills of credit to the value of 41,517½ ounces of plate, with which to pay the debts of the province. The "Plate" here referred to as the standard of value for the bills of credit is the "Spanish Coynes of Sevil, Mexico or Pillar Plate." The bills shall be "imprest in the middle with the Arms of the City of New York, and on the Top of each of them shall be printed the Quantity of Plate they shall go current for." The form of the bills is prescribed; they are to be signed and numbered by Robt. Walters, Johannes Jansen, David Provost, and John Cruger, or any three of them, or by the major part of them who survive. Provisions are made for retiring these bills; and exact accounts are to be kept of payments under the act. Among the debts directed to be paid, numbering over 500, some of which date back to Dongan's time, are the following:

To John White, for joiner's work done in 1698 in the fort at New York; to Abraham Kip, for beer delivered in 1700 on Bellomont's order to H. M. S. "The Fortune"; to the widow of John Conraet Codwise, who made "a fair Copy" for the assembly of the book of debts due from the province; to Lady Lovelace, for firewood used at the fort during the Lovelace administration; to Captains Jansen and Lewis, for services in the expedition against the French at Albany in 1692; to certain "Out-Scouts" at Sandy Hook in 1690; to John Harris (on a claim of £19:4), "for bringing Several Boat Loads of Timber for Carriages, and Several Boat Loads of Sods, and for ferrying horses from Amboy to New York;"
to John Crook (to discharge his account of £134:14:48), for work done at the fort from 1701 to 1704; to Jacobus Bayard (£26:9), for "Several Casks of Beer deliver'd by his father . . . for the Dec.

use of his Majes Garrison at New York, by Order of Jacob Leisler, Esq'r.;" to Anthony Lisenard (£9), "for fetching three 23 Load of Stockadoes for his Majes's fiort at New York;" to Robert Crannell (£7:10), for services "as Cockswain of the Governours barge;" to Justice Bosch (£24:15), "for hire of his Sloop, which assisted the unloading of Capt. Jones's Ship, which was taken in the Colony Service;" in 1705; "in an Expedition ag't some french Privateers then infesting this Coast;" to John Theobalds, for discharging a warrant, drawn by Cornbury, May 8, 1704 (for £7:9), payable to Elizabeth Stokes, "for working Sick Soldiers;" to Richard Chapman (£6:16:3), for carpenter's work done in the fort; to Jonathan Whitehead, "for Victualing the Soldiers that March'd from the East End of Long Island to go to Albany in Coll. Dongas Expedition" in 1688; to Johannes Janse, Isaac d'Riener, and Gerrit Viele, for bringing 2,800 pounds of powder from Philadelphia to the fort in the time of "the late happy Revolution" (the Leisler rebellion); to Johannes Johase, "for his Expences in Proclaiming King William & Queen Mary, of Blessed Memory;" to Samuel Provost (for the account of Capt. Partridge), "for his Majes's King George his Picture;" to repay Gov. Hunter, 2,525 ounces, 7½ pennyweight of plate, for his extraordinary disbursements; to repay various members of the council for their services and expences;
to the corporation of the city of New York, 500 ounces of plate,
"for the Repair of the City Hall;" to Thomas Dyer (£46:4), for carpenter's work in the fort from 1704 to 1706.

Certain soldiers and officers (their widows or children) are to be paid for services in the fort under Leisler in 1689-90, among whom is Hartman Wessells, who was surgeon of the fort. "Certain British officers, which carried here at the Request of this Colony," are to be paid a total of 600 ounces of plate. The owners of the frigate "Horn," which was taken from them by Gov. Slaughter for the use of the government, are to be compensated for the loss of their shares. Certain carmen are to be paid "for carrying Stockadoes, Sand, Sods, &c., for his Majesties fiort at New York" in 1702-3. Other persons are to be paid "for sundry Arms left in his Maties fiort at New York, And taken from Some of the Inhabitants of this City, and Carried to the said fiort," in 1691; "for Service of their Maties King William & Queen Mary, of Glorious Memory." Still other inhabitants are to be reimbursed for provisions, ammunition, and other war materials, delivered for the use of the fort in 1698-90, and for services performed at that time during "the late happy Revolution." Among these, Abraham Gouverneur is to be paid £100 for his services as clerk in the fort, and £160:6 for the services of his predecessor, Jacob Milburn, deceased, as a commissioner for the expedition against Canada, and as a major of the forces, in those years. The owners of the 19 negro slaves executed for the conspiracy of 1712 are to be paid "the Satisfaction Intended" by the "Act for preventing the Conspiracy of Slaves." The treasurer is to pay to James Dixon, the collector and receiver general of the province, bills of credit amounting to 250 ounces of plate, to be applied "for the Repairing his Majesties Custome house in the City of New York."

The act further provides that: "Whereas the place which has been for many Years Last past Assigned ad made Use of for the Secretaries Office of this Colony, In Which the Publick Records Original Wills, and other papers and Writing of Great Concern and Consequence both to his Majesty and his Subjects of this Colony, is So Small and otherwise So Inconvenient, that his Excelency the Governour has been pleased to Appropriate the Building over the fiort Gate for that Service, Where in the Records and other papers Mentioned will be better preserved, and the Office more Conveniently kept." George Clarke, the secretary of the province, is to be paid in bills of credit and is to apply them for materials and labour in fitting up the building. Cf. description of Burgis View, I: 244.

The bills are to be printed by Bradford. He is to be paid for this service in such bills, and also for "Cutting & Engraving the Stamp" (but see June 12, 1719).—N. Y. Col. Laws, I: 938-91.

The common council conceives the idea of leasing the Long Island ferry in two parts and conditions are drawn up accordingly.
The ferry-man on the Manhattan side was privileged to carry no cattle, only passengers and goods; and was required, therefore, to provide only two small boats. The ferry-man on the Brooklyn side had to furnish both large and small boats, and was not restricted as to his cargo. He alone had charge of the tavern and all the ferry

1717 appurtenances (see Sept. 29, 1707), and derived the benefit there-
Dec. from. Other conditions were similar to those of 1707, and the lease 24 prescribed the same landing-places (on the Manhattan side, "at or between the Great slip at Burgers Path and the Great Dock"), a five year term (beginning March 25, 1718), and quarterly payments of rent. The lessees were required to give bond and to impose on other rates than those established by act of assembly (Col. Laws N. Y., I: 925-27).—M. C. C., III: 157-62.

As was recorded on Jan. 15, 1718, a former ferry-man, James Harding, having offered the mayor £155 per annum "for that part of <sup>ye</sup> ferry houses and Appurtenances Established on Nassau Island," and £85 per annum "for that part of the Said Ferry to be Established on New York Side," with suitable security, no one offering to pay more, and Gov. Hunter having written a letter expressing preference for Harding, the common council leased these two parts to him.—Ibid., III: 163.

William Sharpas was paid on April 10, 1718, for having advertisements printed, and for drawing and engrossing the leases for the ferry; and, at the same time, Mrs. Catherine Post was paid £35:5:9, for the expenses incurred "at her house," when the leases were signed (evidently for use of her rooms, and probably for refreshments).—Ibid., III: 170.

For a representation of the ferry on Long Island at this period, see the Burgis View, Pl. 25, Vol. I; and, for its early history, see description, I: 245. For an account of the various transactions relating to ferries since the passage of the Dongan Charter, see Feb. 2, 1699; Dec. 27, 1700; and Sept. 29, 1707. See also the chapter on "The Ferries" in Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 124; and "Importance of the Long Island Ferry Question," in Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 557 et seq. For the later history of the "Fly Market Ferry to Brooklyn" (from foot of Maiden Lane), which was established under this ordinance, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 942. The ferry to Brooklyn from Burgers' Path, also established under this ordinance, became known as Old Slip Ferry.—Ibid., III: 943.

An ordinance is passed by the common council for preserving the bridge and common sewer in the dock (see May 20, 1702 and March 26, 1759). It provides that "No Ship Barque Sloop or Other Vessell whatsoever do make fast unto or haul Down by or Careen by the Bridge in the Great Dock of this City (after Notice given to the Contrary by the Dock Master) or Unload any Ballast or Other Lumber on the Same."—M. C. C., III: 156-57.

15 Sixty-four ships (4,330 tons) have cleared from England for New-York in the three years since Christmas, 1714. The total value of England's exports to New York during this period was £503,144; the total value of England's imports from New York was £22,607, showing a balance of trade in favour of the mother country of over £25,000.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 601, 613-16. See also Sept. 25, 1701.

1718

— In this year, Baskett's edition of the colonial laws was published, in London.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: v ("Explanatory Note").

Jan. Abraham de Peyster and Samuel Bayard (son of Nicholas)
5 sell a plot of land, 88 feet wide, lying on the north side of Wall Street between Broadway and Nassau St., to the trustees of the Presbyterian Church,—viz., John Nicols, Patrick Macknight, Gilbert Livingston, and Thomas Smith,—for £350.—Libert Deeds, XXVIII: 473-75. A copy of a partition and deed map, between De Peyster and Bayard, for land near Wall and Nassau Sts., dated Jan. 3, 1718, is filed in the bureau of topography, department of public works, Manhattan, as map No. 101. On July 1, 1720, Smith and Livingston made a further deed of the same plot to the Rev.
James Anderson and three other trustees. It has been stated by some historians that the property was sold to the Presbyterian Church by Gabriel Thompson, but Thompson, while he may have been a lessee of the property, did not own it.—Ibid.; see also Proceedings of the Trustees (MS.). Title to this land was examined by the common council nearly 100 years later. See Nov. 14, 1808.
Here the First Presbyterian Church was erected in 1719.—See
Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 931. See April 16, and July 18, 1719. For the first recorded meeting-place of Presbyterians in New York, see Aug. 7, 1717.

21 Gov. Hunter issues a proclamation forbidding all persons within his government, "either directly or indirectly, from carrying on any Illegal Trade to the French Settlements in America such Trade being contrary to the Treaty of Peace and Neutrality in America, 1686 . . ."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter,

Feb. 3-10, 1718.

The court of general sessions discharges James Jamison "from being any longer an Apprentice" to Henry Brughman, having been convinced of "very Immoderate Correction" being given by the latter to Jamison, whereby "the said Apprentice is Grievously Disfigured in his face & was in Danger of loosing his Eyes."
Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 343. See also May 4, 1731.
The merchants and inhabitants of New York having petitioned the governor and council "for leave to [build a] dock on the East river, in front of the lots between the Burgher's path and the foot of Wall street," a warrant is issued for a survey for such a dock.—*Cal.
Hist. MSS., Eng.*, 435.

A warrant is issued by the mayor on the city treasurer to pay
Apr. 10 Mrs. Catherine Post £3:5:9 "for Expences at her house by this Corporation March last on their Executing the Leases of the ferry of this City to James Harding."—M. C. C., III: 170. The location of Catherine Post's tavern is not known, but for ten years it was a popular meeting-place for committees of the city corporation and the legislature because of its "Convenience and Accommodation" (see Nov. 10, 1725).—Assemb. Jour., I: 530.

The common council orders "That any Wharfs or Other Buildings upon this City's Land on Nassau Island from High Water to Low Water Mark be pull'd Down."—M. C. C., III: 171. This evidently refers to privately owned structures on city property.

The use of the city hall is granted to the Presbyterians. 16
The petition of Gilbert Livingston, Thomas Grant, Patrick Macknight, and John Nicols, "in Behalf of themselves & the Congregation of Disenting Protestants within this City Called Presbyterians," was read in the common council, "Setting forth that they have purchased A piece of Ground within this City Contiguous to the City Hall or near thereunto [see Jan. 5, 1718] with Desigo Speedly to Erect thereupon A Convenient Meeting house for the Said Congregation for the Publick Worship and Service of Almighty God & praying that this Corporation will grant unto the Said Congregation the use and Liberty of the City Hall of this City therein to Assemble and Meet together for the Publick Worship and Service of Almighty God until their Meeting house aforesaid be built and finished." Granted, "Provided they do not Interfere with or Obstruct the Publick Courts of Justice to be held from time to time in the Said City Hall."—M. C. C., III: 172.

Mr. Bickley presents to the vestry of Trinity Church "an 17 Account of William Hobbs for making & Setting up the Ralles before the Church amounting to about £26."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that M<sup>r</sup> Lodge do paint the Ralls and pallisado's before the Church at two shillings p pound of a Lead Colour."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Trinity vestry arranges to build a gallery "from the Old Gallery over his Excellency's pew and the Batchelors pew to the Wall."—
Trin. Min. (MS.).

"To my Fellow Marriners, Gentlemen, I have now finished My general Chart of the Sea-Coast, from Cape Canter to Sandy-Point, 26 of New-York in North America, with the Harbours, Towns, Bays, Roads, Rocks, Sands, Fishing-Banks, Shoals and Shelves, Depths of Water, Latitudes, Bearings and Distances from Place to Place, the make of the Land, and the Variations, My Intent in putting out this Advertisement is for the Good of the Navigation, and that my Chart may be as Correct as possible before it is engraven Therefore, lest my Chart should be imperfect, if any Gentlemen will let me wait upon them at my House, and will assist me in any Thing they shall find uncorrect, or will inform me of any Discoveries they may have made, which my Chart makes no mention of, they will very much oblige their humble Servant,

Cyprian Southack"

—Boston News-Letter, May 19-26, 1718. See June 24, 1717.

The assembly considers passing a bill "to prevent the landing
June . . . any Person sick of the Small Pox, Measels, or any other 20 pestilential or infectious Distemper, and to prevent the spreading the same, in the City of New-York"—Assemb. Jour., I: 417-18.
No quarantine act, however, was passed until May 3, 1755
(q. v.).

Expenses amounting to about £50 are paid for repairs made 24 this month to the ferry-houses, well, pen, etc., on Nassau Island.—
M. C. C., III: 174, 182.

Gov. Hunter communicates to the council the letter of the lords J. I.

- of trade of Oct. 11, 1717 (q.v.), relating to the use of a new seal.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 428. See, further, July 7.
- George Clarke is appointed deputy auditor general by Mr. Walpole.—Cal. Coun. Min., 267.
- Gov. Hunter writes to the lords of trade that he has received "the New Seals," and with his letter sends "the old one of this Province broken in Council according to His Majesty's Command."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 511. See also description of Pl. 25, I: 241.
- Pursuant to a common council order of June 24, the committee, appointed to see what repairs are needed to the city hall, reports: "first. That the Cupelo be Well Secured and Mended and the City Arms be Affixed thereon. 2<sup>d</sup> That the floors of Each End below be made New & the Middle part thereof be laid with Bristol Stones. 3<sup>d</sup> That the City Hall below be Inclosed with Bannisters & Rails and a gate for Passage to be on Each End and on Each Side. 4th That a Balcony be made fronting Broad Street of the Dimensions formerly Intended. 5th That the City Hall be Repaired with Masons work where Needfull. 6th That the Insides of the Common Council Room be made with Glasses & Casements 7th That all the City Hall be Painted where it is Needfull for Preservation thereof." The report is approved and it is ordered that "the Treasurer Provide the Materials & Employ Workmen and Labourers for the Speedy and Effectual doing thereof by and with the Advice of the aforesaid Committee & pay for the Same."—M. C. C., III: 176.
- Col. Abraham de Peyster and Samuel Bayard enter into a deed of partition of their land adjoining the city hall (see Jan. 5). The deed states that there is left undivided between the following ground: "On the East-side of the City Hall fronting Wall Street, from the Hall to Lot No<sup>o</sup> 14 in breadth about 27 feet 9<sup>in</sup> and in length along the No<sup>o</sup> 14—about 48 feet, also about 21 feet some Inches from the North side of the City Hall to Lot No<sup>o</sup> 18 and in length from Kip Street Eastward, on the Backside of the City Hall about 63 feet 8<sup>in</sup> also about 16 feet in breadth on the West side of the City-Hall, fronting Wall Street—Besides the Ground belonging to said De Peyster & Bayard Whereof part of the City Hall is built upon." The foregoing statement is endorsed on the back of a MS. plan of the estate of Abraham de Peyster in Wall Street, which was presented to the N. Y. Hist. Society by C. Auguste de Peyster, great-great-grandson of Abraham de Peyster. This plan shows the location, dimensions, and abutting lots (numbered) of the city hall and Presbyterian Church in Wall Street, and the lots of Samuel Bayard on "Kips Street . . . Now Called Nassau St.," and his lots and De Peyster's lots on Wall Street, surrounding the city hall, which is on Wall opposite Broad Street.—From original MS. plan filed with Misc. MSS. in N. Y. Hist. Soc. For a description of the De Peyster estate, see Pl. 24, I: 238, and for a plan of it, see Lamb, Hist. of City of N. Y., I: 505.
- Gov. Hunter sends an account of the number of families of Germans (Palatines) settled on the Hudson River. There are 394 families, containing 1,601 persons, of whom 30 families of 150 persons are at New York City and adjacent places.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 470. Regarding the arrival of the Palatines, see June 13, 1710.
- French immigrants arrive at Dauphine Island, and found New Orleans.
- John Wright, a watchmaker, is allowed a salary by the common council of £3 a year "for keepin in good and Sufficient Repair and Order the Publick Clock of this City."—M. C. C., III: 180. His services lasted 16 years, to June 29, 1734; and during the later years he was paid £10 a year.—See, for example, ibid., III: 461; IV: 211. The clock was in the city hall, bought with the Stephen de Lancy fund.—See Feb. 23, 1716.
- It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that a New Gallery be built over the west Gallery if the Charge thereof can be defrayed by Subscriptions and when built the front pews to be Appropriated to Housekeepers & their wives, Masters of Vessels and their wives and Schoolmasters & their wives and the range of pews at each end of the Said Gallery for M<sup>r</sup> Jenneys & M<sup>r</sup> Huddlestons Schollars, M<sup>r</sup> Jenney to have the first Choice, the two range of pews in the middle to be in Common."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- "Ordered that the two hindermost pews to the Eastward in the New Gallery be allotted for M<sup>r</sup> Jenneys Schollars to Sit in & the two hindermost pews over the North door in the West Gallery be allotted to the Schollars of M<sup>r</sup> Huddleston, untill a New Gallery shall be built."—Ibid.
- Capt. Coraelius de Peyster is appointed "Chamberlain or Treasurer of this Corporation" by the common council.—M. C. C., III: 182. He was continued in office for the rest of his life, almost 32 years (see Jan. 9, 1750).
- Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to view the Farm belonging to the Church & report to this Board what part thereof may be laid into Lotts and what to be Let as a farm and for how much Annual Rent & the terms for Improvement."—Trin. Min. (MS.). Report was made by the committee March 4, 1719 (q.v.).
- The provincial legislature delivers an address to Gov. Hunter, reminding him of the difficulties experienced in Corbuary's time about the misuse of public moneys. It is in part as follows: "Before we enter into any Remarks on their Lordships Objections or rather Observations, on the Act, for Support of his Majesty's Government here, we beg your Excellency to call to Mind, the Circumstances of this Colony at the Time of passing this Act, both with Respect to the Inhabitants themselves and to the Government of it. . . . As for the payment of the publick Debts, though often recommended by the Earl of Clarendon [Corbuary] and your Excellency, and at last happily effected; yet the Bulk of them was known to be occasioned by the Misapplication of the public money and the Sense of the Colony was fully expressed by my Lord Corbuary by the Assembly of that Time" (see May 27, 1703).—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 434. Regarding Corbuary's misappropriations, see May 29, 1706.
- The tavern of Obadiah Hunt is chosen as the house of entertainment by the corporation of the city, on the anniversary of the king's coronation. It was again resorted to on Nov. 5, 1718.—M. C. C., III: 192. Hunt had acquired title to this property on Nov. 20, 1716 (q.v.). It was in Dock St., or Custom House St., next door to the custom-house (now No. 35 Pearl St.).—See Liber Deeds, XXVIII: 270, 275; M. C. C., III: 343. Recitals in his deed indicate that the tavern was kept before Hunt's time by one Johannes Dehonour. On Aug. 2, 1735 (q.v.), he advertised his house for sale or rent, and by Jan. 13, 1736 (q.v.), William English had become the lessee of the tavern. Hunt had other property in the neighbourhood, where he continued to live for many years. See June 14, 1729; June 4, 1739, and March 12, 1752.
- Cases involving sailors and masters of vessels were frequent in the mayor's court of the early eighteenth century. For example, on the above-mentioned date the master of the "Henry and Margaret" was sued by four of his "mariners" for wages due them.—M. C. M., Nov. 25, 1718.
- England declares war on Spain.—For particulars see the Boston News-Letter, April 13-20, 1719. France did so Dec. 29, 1718/Jan. 16, 1719.—Ibid., Aug. 17-24, 1719.

1719

In this year, Thomas Fleet published at Boston the nursery tales of Mother Goose.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 121.

In this year, Andrew Bradford, son of William Bradford, began to publish the American Weekly Messenger, the earliest Pennsylvania newspaper.—Ibid., V: 248.

The First Presbyterian Church was in course of erection during this and the following year, on the north side of Wall Street about half way between Broadway and Nassau St., on the land purchased on Jan. 5, 1718 (q.v.).—Session Book; Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 278-81. The original drafts of letters, petitions, etc. relating to the erection, etc. of this church are filed with Misc. MSS., relating to churches, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. It stood on ground known in 1685 as Stoutenberg's garden.—See Dec. 14, 1685; and Landmark Map. Ref. Key, III: 931. For meeting-places of the congregation before this church was completed, see Aug. 7, 1717, May 3, 1721, and Feb. 7, 1722.

A petition from William Dugdale and John Searle is read in the common council, stating that they desire to set up the trade of ropemaking, in which Searle was trained in England; that it is impossible for them "to purchase Such a loog tho' Narrow piece of Ground as the Said Trade will require;" and they ask "the liberty of building A boarded house on the North East end of the Blockhouse Standing on the Northwest Side of Spring Garden Gate not Exceeding the breadth of the Said Blockhouse and of about thirty five foot in Length as also the Liberty of Erecting Posts or Stakes for the Space of about two hundred fathoms North Eastwards from the Said Blockhouse and not to Exceed the breadth thereof from the fence of the Ground there Called the Kings farme towards the Kalk booke, which Said work as we doubt not but

1719 that it will Very Obviously Appear to your Worshipps to tend to A
 Jan. Publick as well as a Private Advantage by Giving Encouragement 3 to the Raising of Hemp Tarr &c: as also by Employing of Journey men and Labourers and bringing up of Boys." The petition is granted "from year to year until the Petitioners Shall be forbid or forewarned from Making further use of the Said Ground they Remaining Tenants at Will to this Corporation."—M. C. C., III:
 193. This ropewalk, which was the first in the city (*Man. Com.
 Court.*, 1856, p. 536), continued many years in the same location, changing its name to Van Pelt's ropewalk in the latter part of its existence, prior to 1742.—See May 22, 1722, and Jan. 27, 1726.
 It is shown on the Bradford Map (1730), Pl. 26, and the Grim Plan (1742-4), Pl. 32, Vol. I.

Mar. The committee of Trinity vestry, appointed Oct. 3, 1718, "to 4 view the Farm belonging to Trinity Church," reports "that they are of Opinion that that part of the farm within the Stockadoes may be laid out into Lotts without prejudice to the other part & the Remainder to be Lett for a term of Seven Years at thirty pounds  $\frac{1}{2}$  Annum the Tenant that shall take it to be Obliged to build a Convenient Dwelling House & plant a Sufficient Number of trees for an Orchard, to keep and deliver the fences &c in repair giving Sufficient Security for performance of the whole." This committee, with one of the church-wardens, is "Impowered to agree with any person that will take the farm from the Stockado's for Seven Yeares or a lesser term or to Lett the whole not Exceeding three Years & report the same to this Board & that the Comitttee give notice to the Tenant in Possession Accordingly."—*Trin. Min.
 (MS.)*. See Aug. 9, 1720.

"Abraham de Peyster and David Schuyler sign articles of agreement for the rental by Schuyler from De Peyster of "a Certain house & Ground Fronting to the Slip by Counties Key with the New Warehouse or Salt house which stands at the End of Said Lot fronting Fletcher Street (which is now in the possession of M<sup>r</sup> Anthony Rutgers)."—From the original agreement, filed with
 "Misc. MSS." in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. archives.

Apr. The common council appoints Edward Blagge pound-keeper, 2 and orders that the pound be moved to the vicinity of his dwelling-place.—M. C. C., III: 198.

9 "Ordered that the Church wardens M<sup>r</sup> Bickley M<sup>r</sup> Vernon &
 M<sup>r</sup> Wileman or any three with one Church warder be a Committee to Enquire into the title of a plantation called Kykont bequeathed to Trinity Church by M<sup>r</sup> Regnier in trust and all Members that Come to have Views report their Opinion thereof to this Board."—
Trin. Min. (MS.). For committee's report, see April 13.

13 Trinity vestry sells to Mr. Sebring the church's interest in a farm called "Coycote Farm" ("Kykcont," in the vestry-book), at Bushwyck, Kings Co. For the records in this transaction, see
Trin. Min. (MS.) under this date; also N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1893), 142-43; 153.

14 Capt. William Boed is at this time a city surveyor, and is given "Dockage free for his good Services to this Corporation."—M. C. C.
 III: 206.

"Upon Application of M<sup>r</sup> De Lancy that a Small Slip of Ground be Granted unto him upon the Corner of the Broad Street and Dock [Pearl] Street upon [the] Range of the Coffee house for the making more regular the Said Broad Street and Dock Street & a large Brick house [later Frances Tavern] which he is now going to build upon his Lott of Land Contiguous to the Ground of M<sup>r</sup> Samuell Bayard on the South Side and the house and Ground late of M<sup>r</sup> French on the East Side thereof which Slip of Ground is on the North Corner of the Said Lott of M<sup>r</sup> De Lancy & is in Breadth there, three foot and a half and runs from thence Southerly to Nothing along the Said Broad Street to the Ground of the Said M<sup>r</sup> Bayard." The common council grants the strip of land "to the Said M<sup>r</sup> Stephen De Lancy his heirs and Assigns for Ever for the Better Regulatung the Said Street and Building."—M. C. C., III: 199-200. The original draught of the survey for the alteration made for Stephen De Lancy on this site is preserved in the city clerk's record-room. For a brief history of the plot, see April 11, 1700. See also I: 269.

28 Gov. Hunter advises the council that "for the better Defence of this city, there is a necessity of Renewing and Repairing the two Low Batteries at the entrance of this Haven which are entirely Ruined by the Injuries of time and Tempests."—Jour. Leg. Coun.,
 I: 440.

My 2 William Pell, Nicholas Mattyse and others have recently laid out and sold land belonging to the city "at or Near the old Cherry Garden between Sacketts & Beekmans." The common council appoints a committee to investigate their claim to the land.—

M. C. C., III: 202. Cf. 1701; Feb. 26, 1703.

"A Person last Week was committed to Goal here for uttering Counterfeit Pieces of Eight, he was taken with 31, and a double Bitt, they are aicely Counterfeited, he brought them from Simsbury in Connecticut, from the Copper Mines, where 'tis believed they are made, he had bought Quiver Silver, Crude Tartar &c. for making more."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, May 11-18, 1719.

The declaration of War against Spain, and a proclamation pardouing all "Piracies Committed before the 1st of July ext." are published, and, "it being His Majesty's Birth Day" as well, the city celebrates in the usual manner. There is a "Noble Bonfire," a "great deal of Wine at the Charge of the Corporation," a ball in the fort, and the discharge of guns from the fort, and from the three men-of-war and other ships; there are also "the finest Fire works ever seen in New York."—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, June 1-8, 1719; Col. Coun. Min., 270.

June Charles le Roux, in a memorial to the assembly, states that 12 William Bradford was allowed £30 for engraving copper plates for printing the best bills of credit; that Bradford received this sum but did not pay Le Roux, as Bradford made use of plates formerly engraved for that purpose.—Assem. Jour., I: 434. The committee appointed to consider the memorial reported, on June 19, that they found the statement correct; also that the old engraved plates had been paid for.—Ibid., I: 436. On June 24, Bradford was ordered to repay the £30 to the treasurer of the colony.—Ibid., I: 438.

A report having been made to the council as to the sufficiency of the repairs to the custom-house, recently made by the collector, James Dixon (see Nov. 30, 1717), it is conveyed to the assembly with the statement that, on account of the space needed for offices for clerks and other persons, and for storing goods, it would require about £90 to complete the work.—Assem. Jour., I: 435.

A committee appointed on June 12 (M. C. C., III: 204), to 17 prepare a plan of the water lots at the lower end of Queen St., in front of the premises of Johannes Beckman, John Cannon, Gilbert Livingston, and John Ellison, to whom said lots are to be granted, now makes its report (see the original report and plan in the city clerk's record-room); and a resolution is passed by the common council that this ground, from high-water to low-water mark, be granted to them,—a specified width to each. Each grantee is to pay the city £28 on delivery of the grant, and "they are to make a Street of thirty foot fronting to the River According to the Covenants of the Other Grants in Queen Street to be Completed on or before the first day of September 1721."—M. C. C., III: 206. These water lots ran from Peck Slip to Fulton St., and the new street to be made was the present Water St.—See City Grants, Liber B: 59, 57, 64, 70 (comptroller's office).

24 For the protection of the coopers of this city, a duty is laid upon empty casks imported into the colony.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 1022.
 The law was revised Nov. 13, 1734 (ibid., II: 852), and Sept. 21, 1744 (ibid., III: 440).

The colonial legislature passes an act for supporting the government by levying import taxes on wine, distilled liquors, cocoa, European goods, and negro or other slaves. A duty is placed on tonnage, the act to operate for the year ending July 1, 1721.—*Col. Laws
 N. Y.*, I: 1013.

The colonial legislature passes "An Act to authorize the Justices of the Peace to Build & Repair Goales & Court Houses in the Several Countys of this Province."—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 1025.

Gov. Hunter returns to England, on "His Majesty's Ship Pearl," leaving the affairs of the provinces in charge of the presidents of the councils.—From N. Y. letter in Boston News-Letter, July 13-20, 1719; N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 529. He had announced on June 24 his intention to do so, stating the cause to be his ill health and the care of his family and private affairs "on the other Side."
 He also stated he would return if it was the king's pleasure.—
Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 447. He reached England Sept. 24.—*N. Y.
 Col. Docs.*, V: 531.

Cornelius Clopper, Jr., drawn to serve on a jury, is challenged but declared "a fair Tryer."—M. C. M., July 14, 1719. The privilege of challenge as well as the qualifications of jurors was established by a law of the province 20 years earlier. Also a penalty of 13s. 4d was exacted to guard against absence from jury duty.—*Col.
 Laws N. Y.*, I: 387-88.

May
 2
 11
 28
 June 12
 16
 17 24
 24
 25
 July 13
 See A.
 25
 July 13
 14

- 1719 Peter Schuyler presides at the council meeting, and is sworn in as president after the reading of Gov. Hunter's commission and instructions.—Cal. Coun. Min., 271.
- July 21 "Ordered that the Farm belonging to Trinity Church (reserving the Ground within the Stockades) be Let to Mr Balme for ten Years at thirty pounds  $\frac{2}{3}$  Annum to be paid quarterly and at the expiration of the term to leave the same within good & Sufficient fence & that the draft of a Lease be prepared to be approved of by Mr John Reade Mr John Moore Mr Bickley Mr Barberie & Mr Soumaine or any three of them . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- Aug. 24 Vessels arriving at New York report that a Spanish privateer of 12 guns and a crew of 100 men is off the coast. Nine vessels have already been captured by this vessel. Capt. Pearce, in "His Majesty's Ship Phoenix," having given chase, "narrowly mist taking of her."—Boston News-Letter, Aug. 24-31, 1719.
- Sept. 29 The president of the council, Peter Schuyler (see July 21), appoints Col. Jacobus van Cortlandt mayor for the ensuing year.—M. C. C., III: 211. Van Cortlandt had previously served in 1710-11.
- See A. Oct. 13 See Sept. 29, 1710.
- 14 Contract Tenyck, a baker, is given permission by the common council "to build an Oven under Ground in the Dock Street fronting his Now Dwelling house." In acknowledgment of the favour he is required to give a nine-penny loaf of bread once a year for the use of the poor.—M. C. C., III: 215.
- 20 The anniversary of the king's coronation is celebrated. "M<sup>rs</sup> Catalina Post Widow" was paid, on Oct. 28, £5:11:10 $\frac{1}{2}$  by the common council for its expenses at her tavern on this occasion.—M. C. C., III: 216. See also Nov. 2, 1700. The assembly, on Nov. 18, 1720, used this public-house for committee meetings.—Assemb. Jour., I: 449. See April 10, 1718.
- 31 An estimate is made of repairs needed on Fort George.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 447.
- " Peter Schuyler writes to the lords of trade that he has ordered a commission to be prepared appointing Allan Jarratt (Gerard) to be surveyor-general in the place of Col. Graham, deceased.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 532. He granted the commission, after the approval of the council of Nov. 12.—Ibid., V: 533; Cal. Coun. Min., 273. See, however, Feb. 18, 1720.
- Dec. 1 A committee appointed by the common council on Oct. 28 (M. C. C., III: 216) "to treat with the Printer for Reprinting the By Laws of this Corporation & the Charter & to Deliver to this Court Sixty Copies thereof for the Publick use" reports that Bradford will do this for £10. This offer is accepted, and the clerk is directed to give Bradford a copy of the laws.—Ibid., III: 218. At the same time, the laws and ordinances of the city are "Made Ordained Renewed Established and Published (after the Ringing of three Bells)," and are entered by titles in the Minutes.—Ibid., III: 219-20. Bradford was paid on March 1, 1720.—Ibid., III: 223. These laws were continued in force by enactment of the common council every three months. For page references to these renewals, see the Index to the M. C. C., VIII: 328. A later edition of the corporation laws was printed in 1749.—See Feb. 17, 1749.
- " A committee of the common council is appointed to examine "the Wall fronting the Dock which Supports the Market house at the south End of the Broad Street," with a view to having repairs made.—M. C. C., III: 218. See Feb. 3, 1711; June 1, 1714.
- 1720
- In this year, Herman Moll published his New Map of the North Parts of America, etc. The original measured 20 x 40 in.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 80.
- A list of the city's annual expenses and revenues, and the city's rent-roll, are prepared. They are undated, but appear to be for 1720, as printed in Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 595-96.
- Gov. Hunter reports in person to the lords of trade that the number of militia in the province was about 6,000.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 469.
- "There are five Printing Presses in Boston, which are generally full of Work, by which it appears that Humanity and the Knowledge of Letters flourish more here than in all the other English Plantations put together; for in the City of New-York there is but one little Bookseller's Shop, and in the Plantations of Virginia, Maryland, Carolina, Barbadoes, and the Islands none at all."—Neal, Hist. of New-England (London, 1720), II: 587. In Philadelphia, which is not referred to in this observation, there was one press,—that of Andrew Bradford, who succeeded Jacob Taylor in 1712. See Hildeburn, A Century of Printing—The Issues of the Press of Penn., 1685-1784, I: 45, 46, 54-56; Evans, Am. Bibliography, I: 446. For further comparative view of the printing done in different parts of the United States at this time, see Thomas, Hist. of Printing in Am., I: 209-10.
- John Hutton, silversmith, was admitted as a freeman of New York in this year. A tankard made by him is described in Met. Museum of Art Catalogue of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 35.
- Although Valentine states in his "Hist. of the Domestic Affairs of the Inhabitants of N. Y.," in Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 501, that Japanned tea-tables, gilt-french-glasses, and the great eight-day clock were introduced at about this time; and that, after this date, hangings of camlet, coloured hareline, and other expensive goods came into customary use in houses having any pretension to style; nevertheless, by more recent researches made by Luke V. Lockwood, we find that tea-tables began to be mentioned about the beginning of the eighteenth century—"one at New York in 1705 (the first mention we have found),"—Colonial Furniture in Am., 229. This authority also states that a New York inventory of 1696 mentioned "a looking glass with a gilded frame and one with an ebony frame."—Ibid., 285. See July 26, 1731. The finest collection of eighteenth century American furniture is the Bowles collection in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.
- "On the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th Instant great Numbers went over Hudson's River upon the Ice, from New-York to New-Jersey."—Boston News-Letter, Jan. 25-Feb. 1, 1720. See also, Jan. 29, 1728.
- Jan. 9 Capt. Thomas Clarke, Gerritt Vanhorne, John Reade, Isaac Gouverneur, and several others, having petitioned the president of the provincial council for letters patent to the water lots "between the Corner house of Rip van Dam Esq<sup>r</sup> by the End of Maiden Lane slip and the Corner by Capt Thomas Clarke Next to the Market house at the Low End of Wall Street," 130 feet into the river fronting their respective freeholds, with the privilege of erecting cranes, buildings, etc., the common council orders the recorder to oppose the grant.—M. C. C., III: 221. The question involved here seems to be the title of the city to the water lots, under the Dongan Charter grant, after the city became gradually extended by the process of filling in along the water front. The common council at its next meeting, Feb. 19, resolved to petition the president and council of the province "for his Majesties Grant to this Corporation of all the Land that may be Gained out of the Rivers Round this Island Manhattans being the bounds of this Corporation under such Regulations and Restrictions as to his Honour and Council shall seem Reasonable."—Ibid., III: 222.
- Feb. 18 Letters written in London on Feb. 18, which were received by the council at New York on April 21, describe Gov. Hunter, who has "perfectly Recovered his Health," as being in great favour with the Court, and about to return "with fuller Power than heretofore;" they also record the appointment of Francis Harrison as one of the king's council, and of Cadwallader Colden as surveyor-general of New York in place of Col. Graham, deceased.—From N. Y. letter in Am. Merc. (Phila.), April 21, 1720; Cal. Coun. Min., 275. See April 19 and 21.
- 19 The common council resolves "that a Cage Pillory and Stocks be made at the Charge of this Corporation & be set up where the old One Now Stands."—M. C. C., III: 221. See Nov. 2, 1710. These, and a whipping-post, were paid for on May 24.—Ibid., III: 227. They were again given a new location by order of the board on Sept. 16, 1731 (q. v.).
- Mar. 3 Rev. James Anderson, a Presbyterian minister, in behalf of his congregation, petitions the governor and council for a patent of incorporation. On March 17, May Bickley, the attorney-general, entered a caveat on behalf of Trinity Church against the patent.—Cal. Coun. Min., 274. The council issued an order on Sept. 19.—Ibid., 278. For a later petition, see Sept. 19.
- Apr. 9 Payment is made by the city to Philip van Cortlandt and Johannes Roosevelt "for Repairing the Publick Walk at the lower End of Wall Street Pursuant to an Order of Common Council made the first day of December last."—M. C. C., III: 224.
- " The common council orders "that Alderman Kip & Mr Marschalek be a Committee to Agree with Able Workmen for Compleating and finishing the Stair Case at the West End of the City Hall from the Ground floor to the Garrett & for purchasing Materials & that the Same be performed with all Convenient Expedition."—M. C. C., III: 225.
- The king appoints William Burnet governor of the province 19

1720 of New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 536-37. Gov. Hunter was
Apr. appointed to succeed to Burnet's post in England as comptroller-19 general of the accounts of the customs.—Upcott Coll., I: 21, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. See, further, June 6.

21 The appointment of Dr. Cadwallader Colden as surveyor-general is announced to the council by a letter from Sec. Craggs. His commission was given him by Schuyler, president of the council, on April 27.—Cal. Coun. Min., 275; N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 537. See
Oct. 31, 1719; Feb. 18, 1720.

May A New York privateer, Capt. Hixford commander, sails for 6 that city from Fisher's Island with "five Vessels as Prizes, which he took on the Coast of New Spain, who were trading there." A sixth capture the captain "fitted for a Privateer having put on Board 30 Men and 8 Guns."—Boston News-Letter, May 9-16, 1720. The arrival of these vessels in New York is recorded in an unidentified clipping, dated May 7, in the Upcott Coll., I: 17.

19 The king in council forbids all colonial governors to pass any laws sanctioning the issue of paper money.

22 A storm, described as the most terrible "in the Memory of Man," visits New York, destroying life and property.—From N. Y. letter in Am. Merc. (Phila.), May 26, 1720.

24 Payment of £1:4:6 is made "for Making A Window in the City Hall in the Upper Prison."—M. C. C., III: 227.

28 This day "being the Anniversary of his Majestys Birthday, the Garrison and Militia of this City were in Arms, who fired three Volleys after the Fort, Man of War and other Vessells had fired their Great Guns, and at Night there was a Bonfire at the usual place, the Houses were Illuminated, and the whole was Concluded with firing of Guns, and other Marks of Joy."—From N. Y. letter in Am. Merc. (Phila.) June 2, 1720.

" Thomas Farmer is appointed by the governor and council
"eschator general," in place of Augustus Graham, deceased.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 276.

June H. M. S. "Bidford," Captain Gregory commander, is reported
6 to sail from London "with his Excellency William Burnet Esq; Governour of this Province, who has Exchange'd with Coll.
Hunter our late Governour."—From N. Y. letter in Am. Merc.
(Phila.), June 9, 1720. For Burnet's appointment see Apr. 19.
The news was conveyed to George Clarke, secretary of the province, by letter dated at New York, June 24, from his private secretary, Isaac Bobin.—Letters of Isaac Bobin (pub. by J. Munsell), 26.

28 In a short historical review regarding the British revenues, Horace Walpole informs the lords of the treasury that Gov. Hunter, arriving in New York in 1710, applied himself "with all possible address to procure & settle a Revenue but the Assembly resolving to enlarge their power, not only demand the nomination of a Treasurer but the appointment of all officers necessary to the Collection & management of the Revenues to the utter exclusion of the crown officers, & likewise of all Salaries not excepting the Gov<sup>r</sup>s to be issued by Acts of Assembly." Walpole protests against this conduct, and against the revenues being diverted from "their ancient channell."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 545-48.

July The common council appoints a committee to act with Anthony 12 Ham, the dock-master, to employ persons to repair "the Wharves Inclosing the Great Dock," and for removing 60 scow loads of mud out of the dock. The number of scow loads was then increased to 100.—M. C. C., III: 228, 231. This work follows very soon after the more extensive work of the kind begun three years before and completed in 1718.—See June 18, 1717. Payment of £86 was made for this work, when completed, Sept. 26, 1720.—Ibid., III: 233, 238.

The need of cleaning the dock was frequent and troublesome for many years, the mud from it being used as early as 1691 to fill up lots.—Ibid., I: 259. See also ibid., II: 80, 97, 101-2; III:
291, 305, 339, 441, 444; IV: 422, 456, 461-2; 488; V: 325-26, 396. These references carry to 1753 the records regarding cleaning the dock by the city. Lessees of the dock and slips were likewise required to have them cleaned.—See, for example, ibid., II:
191-92, 247, 259, 294. See also May 12, 1713.

Repairs, too, were needed from year to year on the great dock, or parts of it.—See, for example, ibid., II: 191-92, 247, 259, 294;
III: 325-26; 349, 443-44; IV: 254, 327, 482-83; V: 56, 87, 117, 199, 401; VI: 163, 402; VII: 21, 114, 115-16. These references to repairs bring the records to 1768.

" The common council orders "that some small Prisons be made at the West End of the City Hall in the Garretty;" also that the entrance into the court room be arched, and the king's arms for the court room be made new.—M. C. C., III: 229. In September, the arms were "Affixed in the Court Room."—Ibid., III: 234. See July also Sept. 26, 1720. 12

The anniversary of King George's accession to the throne is celebrated. "At Noon the Artillery of the Fort, his Majesties ships of War, and of several Merchant men were fired. The Honourable the President of the Council the Mayor ad Corporation of New York, and most of the Gentlemen of the City met at his Majesties Garison Fort George where they Drank King George's the Prince, Royall Family, and many other Loyall healths, at night there will be a fine Bonfire and Wine thereat at the Charge of the Corperation, and the City will be finely Illuminated."—From
N. Y. letter in Am. Merc. (Phila.), Aug. 4, 1720.

Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to see that part of the Church farm that lyes between the Bank where the Stockado's lately Stood and the house and load now in the possession of francis Ryerse be Surveyed & laid into Lotts by M<sup>r</sup> Bond the City Surveyor and the draft thereof be presented to this Board." The same committee is directed "to lay out the ground behind the Church yard into Lotts and present the draught thereof to this Board."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See March 4, 1719; July 20, 1721.

It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that the Church be Enlarged as far as the Street," and a committee is appointed "to consider what forme may be most proper & report the Same to this Board."
The subscription paper is dated Aug. 12.—Trin. Min. (MS.).

" Brigadier Hunter," the former governor, now in London, 11 answering queries regarding the city of New York, states, among other things, that it is in latitude 40 degrees, 38 minutes; but that its longitude has not been determined with certainty, "for want of Artists & instruments fit for observing the Eclipses."

The inhabitants of the province are increasing daily, chiefly from New England and lately from the north of Ireland.

There is "Very little Trade with any foreign Country or Plantation [Europe besides Gt. Britain] chiefly with S<sup>t</sup> Thomas Curazoe & Surinam no returns but Gold or Silver at least that are avowed & discovered." The natural produce and staple commodities of the province are corn, flour, tar, whale oil, and pork, "but no sort of Manufacture that deserves mentioning."

The fort at New York has "4 regular Bastions 50 Guns mounted, Faced with Stone with neither Fosse or out works."

"There is a supreme Court at New York held by a Chief Justice & second judge who goes Circuits also through all the Several Provinces, there is besides in each County one Judge & three or more assistants Justices of the peace in number proportionable to the extent of the Country one Sheriff for each Corroer and Constable. The Cities of New York, Albany & Westchest<sup>r</sup> have their respective Mayors & Aldermen & Common Council. The Sec<sup>y</sup>, Attorney General & Receiver Genl are all the Officers held by Patent."—
N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 555-57; see also 600-2.

The laws and ordinances of the corporation of the city, made Sept.
and published Dec. 1, 1719, and renewed March 1, 1720 (together with a law for marking of butter), are again reevised and published,
"after the Ringing of three Bells," and are to continue in force for three months more; also "A Law for Repairing the Highway between Fresh Water & Kingsbridge."—M. C. C., III: 232.

Gov. William Burnet arrives at Sandy Hook in "his Majesties Ship Sea Horse." He "came to Town about 10 a Clock the same Night in the Man of Wars pinnace and the Next Day the Garrison and Militia being under Arms his Commission was published with the usual Ceremonies."—From N. Y. letter in Am. Merc. (Phila.), Sept. 22, 1720; M. C. C., III: 234. Burnet informed the lords of trade, Sept. 24, that he published his commission "on the 17th day after my landing."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 573. On the 17th, also, oaths were administered to him; the seal and keys to the magazines were delivered to him; and he ordered a proclamation to be issued continuing all officers in their places.—Cal. Coun. Min., 278.

The Presbyterian congregation petitions the governor in coun-19 cil to be incorporated "by the Name of the Minister Elders and Deacons of the Presbyterian Church in the City of New York."
The petition states "that they have adventured to Purchase a Piece of Ground for a Church and Cemetry & have Erected thereon a Convenient Meeting house to Worship in after the manner of the Presbyterian Church of North Britain."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 278. This church was the one in Stoughtenburgh's garden, on the north side of Wall Street, west of Nassau St.—Ibid. (footnote). Objection is made, however, by Gilbert Livingston and Thomas Smith, in a memorial to the president of the governor's council, that the grant of the charter to the persons who petitioned

1720 for it "will Confirm the Meetinghouse now building to the actual Sept. possession of the Reverend Mr James Anderson as Sole minister 19 therein, and wholly bring it under the Command of these that adhere to him." Several have left the congregation on his account, deeming him unsuited to his office, but do not wish to be excluded from the grant of the charter, as they have exerted themselves to advance the work; they are also bound in the sum of £550 toward the purchase of the land, and the congregation is indebted to them to the amount of £600. They ask the grant of a charter, and that the meeting-house may be confirmed to them and to the minister procured by them, on equal terms with those who first asked for the charter; or else, they ask to be discharged from all the debts and encumbrances, and they will then give up all title to the premises, "only Reserving two pews," etc. The council asks the governour to refer the question to the lords of trade, to obtain, through them, "the opinion of his Majesties Learned Council on the subject matter of the said Petition."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 278-81. Regarding the unsuccessful outcome of all efforts for charters for churches, except the Church of England and four Dutch churches, see March 18, 1766.

At this time the Rev. Mr. Anderson was charged with exercising a spirit of ecclesiastical domination, and improper interference in the temporary concerns of the church. "On these accounts, the uneasiness of the dissatisfied party became at length so great that, in the year 1722, they drew off from the body of the congregation; formed themselves into a distinct society; and worshipped, it is believed, in a small building in William-street, between Liberty and Wall-streets, for a number of months."—Miller, Memoirs of the Rev. John Rodgers (1813), 136.

A dinner is given by the common council to Gov. Burnet. A warrant to the treasurer was issued, on Sept. 26, to pay Obadiah Hunt, the innkeeper, £21:6:6 "for a Dinner, Wine, Beer, Cyder & Other Expences at his house by this Corporation on an Entertainment to his Excellency the Governour on the 20th Instant Soon after his Arrivall in this his Government &c. . . ."—
M. C. C., III: 234. The tavern of Obadiah Hunt was on Pearl St.—
See Nov. 20, 1716.

The common council plans to present to Gov. Burnet "the Freedom of this City with the Seal thereof in a Box of Gold."
The address, adopted by the common council to accompany the gift, expresses confidence that Burnet will exert himself "in a Conspicuous Manner to make us a happy people And that this City will flourish in its wealth, Buildings & Number of Inhabitants."—
M. C. C., III: 233, 234-35. Charles le Roux made the gold box at a charge of £19:3.—Ibid., III: 239. William Sharpas, the town clerk, was paid £1:5:3 for engraving the freedom, and for the parchment and silk lace.—Ibid., III: 240.

Payment of £1:14 is made for affixing the king's arms in the court room of the city hall.—M. C. C., III: 234. See July 12.

The dock-master is ordered by the common council to have the crane repaired at the city's expense.—M. C. C., III: 233.

The governour nominates Robert Walter to be mayor for the ensuing year.—M. C. C., III: 237. Walter was continued in office for five terms—until 1725.—M. C. C., III: 267, 298, 329-30, 357.
For a brief reference to his career, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 404.

William Bond appears of record as a city surveyor, making a report this day of a survey which, on July 26, the common council ordered him to make.—M. C. C., III: 240-41. He was superseded March 24, 1727 (q.v.).

The petition of John Kelly is read in the common council "praying that this Corporation will Grant him Liberty to Erect New Slaughter houses Near sacketts on the Terms therein Mentioned the present slaughter houses becoming A Nuisance &c;" and a committee is appointed to examine and report upon the subject.—
M. C. C., III: 241. See Nov. 9, 1698. The committee reported on Feb. 9, 1721, that the allegations were true, and they were "humbly of Opinion that the Present slaughter houses fronting the East River at the East End of Queen Street in the East Ward of this City now and late belonging to the Widdow Cortlandt & Johannes Beekman are become A public Nuisance and Ought in A short time to be Removed in Order more Convenient and Ornamental Buildings may be Erected there and in that Neighbourhood which now are Retarded by Occasion of the said slaughter houses." They also approved the petitioner's selection of a new location "for the Erecting Publick slaughter houses and Penn upon the East River of this City A little to the Westward of the now dwelling house of Mr John Deane in the said East Ward;" and were of the opinion that he should have a grant for erecting three or more slaughterhouses there at his own expense, "at which all Persons whatsoever shall and may slaughter their Neat Cattle paying to the said John Kelly or his Assigns one shilling or the Tongue of each Neat Cattle so slaughtered," etc.; and also "that no Other slaughter houses from thence forward shall be built or Erected on the East River Aforesaid as Publick slaughter houses during the said Term of one & twenty years" (as proposed), except in case of necessity.—Ibid., III: 249-51. The grant was made accordingly on Feb. 14, 1721 (q.v.).—City Grants, Liber B: 76 (a real estate bureau, comptroller's office). For a later lease to Nicholas Bayard, see Sept. 12, 1750. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 962, regarding Beekman's slaughter-house.

The common council resolves that Wall Street, from the city hall to Broadway, be 41 ft. wide "from the fence of the Meetinghouse [Presbyterian] to the Corner of New Street," according to a "Draft thereof, this day produced to this Court by Mr Samuell Bayard."
—M. C. C., III: 241.

Tennis Tiebout, carpenter, is paid £66:10:10 for work and materials used "in finishing the Stare Case the Arches in the Court Room & Making several Rooms and Partitions in the Garretts," etc. in the city hall.—M. C. C., III: 239.

The assembly is addressed by Gov. Burnet, who especially urges the strengthening of the frontiers against the French, who are advancing farther into the country daily, building trading houses, and endeavouring to gain the allegiance of the Five Nations of Indians away from the English.—Assemb. Jour., I: 439.

The court of mayor and aldermen makes provision that the church-wardens shall receive back with interest whatsoever moneys they advance for the support of the poor.—M. C. C. (MS.), Oct.
18, 1720.

The anniversary of the king's coronation is celebrated with bonfires, illuminations, and drinking of healths.—From letter in Am. Merc. (Phila.), Oct. 27, 1720.

The common council resolves "that the Inhabitants of the south Ward have Liberty to Remove the Old Market house near the Custom house to A more Convenient place near the water side at their own proper Cost and Charge, Provided they do the same within ten days which if Neglected to be done that the said Market house will be pull'd down According to an Order of the Supreme Court; it being presented as A public Nuisance."—M. C. C., III:
244-45. The market-house was accordingly removed to Coenties Slip, at Pearl St. (see modern map), as shown on Pl. 27, Vol. I. It was known as the "Fish Market."—See June 30, 1701; March 15, 1763; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958.

It is also ordered "that the Neighbourhood of the Wall Street Market house have Liberty to Remove the said Market house higher up into the said Street, or Repair it where it now Stands at their Own proper Cost and Charge," provided they do so on or before Dec. 14.—Ibid., III: 245. This order was repeated on Oct.
21, 1721.—Ibid., III: 270. The market-house was evidently not moved, for on Dec. 29, 1727, Philip Cortlandt was paid by the city "for Materials and Workmanship for Repairing the Market House and Street at the End of Wall Street," etc.—Ibid., III: 427.
This was after the Wall Street market had been restricted to the exclusive sale of grain.—See Jan. 24, 1727.

A city marshal is paid £2:18 for a quarter's salary, and to reimburse him for horse-hire, including the expenses of a constable
"for Carrying A Hue & Cry to Kings Bridge."—M. C. C., III: 245.

After an inspection and survey which disclosed certain encroachments "upon the Commons of this City on the East side of the sawkill Bridge" (M. C. C., III: 229-30, 240-41), the common council orders "that no Brickmaker or Others within this City & Corporation Cutt any firewood or timber upon the Commons of this City along the East River from Turtle Bay [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 967] to Madam Coddingtons [see M. C. C., II: 273] for the Burning of Bricks upon this Island upon pain of being prosecuted at Law as Trespassers."—M. C. C., III: 245.
The rule is also applied to "Charcoal Burners."—Ibid., III: 247.
The Sawkill Bridge was on the Post Road, east of the present Fourth Ave., south of 76th St.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 926. Mrs. Coddington's lease was renewed Dec. 20, 1726.—
M. C. C., III: 401.

Catharine Post, the innkeeper, is allowed £6 by the assembly
"for the use of her house for the sittings of Committees."—Assemb.

1720 Jour., I: 449. It was a regular custom, apparently, even at times when repairs were not in progress at the city hall, for committees to meet at some tavern, and this one became a favourite at this time. On Nov. 24, 1722, the city paid Catharine Post £3,167½ for expenses of the corporation at her house "on Examinations taken about A Riot," and for the meeting of an assembly committee "About passing A Law for the Ferry."—M. C. C., III: 301. See also July 6, 1722.

19 The general assembly passes "An Act to Enable Garret Van Horne and Cornelius Van Horne Son of Said Garret Van Horne to Sell and Dispose of a Certain House and Ground . . ." This act recites that the Van Hornes have been appointed agents, by children of the late Gabriel Thomson, innkeeper, to sell Thomson's real estate to pay his debts. The property referred to is described as "fronting Southerly, to Wall Street, Easterly to Thien Hovens Street, Westerly to Land belonging to Mr. Samuel Bayard and Northerly to Land Belonging to Coll Abraham De Peyster."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 13. See Oct. 13, 1701.

The legislature passes "An Act to Lay a Duty of two Pounds on every hundred pounds Value Prime Cost of all European Goods Imported into this Colony."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 32. Writing to the lords of trade on Nov. 26, Burnet said: "The Duty their laid of 2 per cent on European goods was the main support of Government for 18 years which appears by the following Acts which are not to be found in the New Book of New York Laws because they are now expired but will be found in Rolls lying in the Office." He here refers to the law, first passed in 1691 (see ibid., I: 248), "for establishing a Revenue for the defraying the public charges of the Province where this duty of 2 Per Cent on all merchandize imported (except Rum & wines before taxed in the same Act) is laid for two years." This law was continued by acts of 1692, 1693, 1699, and 1702; it expired in 1799. Burnet adds: "I know of no Reason why this Act has not been continued since but that my Lord Clarendon [Cornbury] made so ill a use of the publick money by misapplying it & squandering it away that the Assembly would not repose that trust and confidence longer in a Governor & indeed would not give any Revenue for four years after Brigadier Hunter arrived & then but a scanty one Whereas now his prudent and just administration has brought the Assembly which he left into a better temper, and they are come into this to support the Government in all its parts for five years to come and because this law relates to the trade of great Britain it has a clause in it declaring it of no force till confirmed by His Majesty, so that I hope no objection will lie against it, it being an easy trifling duty on the importer and of the greatest Service to the Province."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 581. The act was repealed by the king on April 30, 1724.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 32.

By an act of the legislature, all persons are forbidden to sell to a French subject the following articles, designated as Indian goods: "any of the Cloaths known by the Name of Stroud waters, Duffles or Trucking Cloth, Indian blankets, Indian Coates, halfticks, Gunns Kettles, Stokins, Shirts, steele Steeles, all blades, Swords, pistols, Powder, Lead or any other Goods . . . known by the Name of Indian Goods." Such a provision was necessary because the Canadian French, by means of goods purchased from this province and then sold to the Indians, have almost "wholly Engross'd" the Indian trade, and have likewise largely "withdrawne the Affections of the five Nations of Indians from the Inhabitants of this Province and rendred them Wavering in their faith and Allegiance to His Majesty."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 8-9.

27 Gov. Burnet asks the lords of trade to dismiss Peter Schuyler, president of the council, and Adolphus Philipps, another councilman, who advised Schuyler in making grants of land with the great seal affixed, contrary to the king's instructions. He recommends that Cadwallader Colden and James Alexander be appointed in their places.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 578-79. This is approved.—Ibid., V: 647. See March 9, 1721.

Dec. 13 Thomas Hooke petitions the common council for a lease of laod "between the Kings highway and his Lott lying near the saw kill Bridge [see Nov. 16, 1720] on A Reasonable Annual Rent in Order to preserve the Timber growing thereon from being Cutt down and destroyed & for preserving the Stream running to his Mill." In granting the petition, the common council appointed a committee to "lay out an Highway from the Kings Highway to the Mill of the said Thomas Hooke."—M. C. C., III: 247-48.

1721

1721

Gov. Burnet, this year, ascertained the latitude of the fort, and found it to be 40° 42' N.—See description of Pl. 46A-b, I: 357.

"This Board do agree with Mr Robt Harrison to let out to him the remaining part of the Kings farm not otherwise already appropriated for the terme of Ten Years at the Rent of twenty Six pounds per Ann payable Quarterly on Condition that the Said Harrison do Annually during the Said term give Sufficient Security for the Rent and performance of the Covenants upon the Conditions made to him by the Committee of this Board."—Trin. Min. (MS.), Jan. 17.

The lease of "the Public slaughter houses" to John Kelly (see Oct. 11, 1720) is approved.—M. C. C., III: 252. Feb. 14

"This Day was a famous Horse Race, run for the Sum of Sixty Pounds, between the Inhabitants of Queens County on the Island of Nassau, and Samuel Byard of the City of New-York, Merchant, where the latter gained but little."—Am. Merc. (Phila.), Feb. 21—March 2, 1721. The race-course is not mentioned. 24

Upon application of Dr. John Nicolls, exclusive use of a well, to be dug in Gold St. in front of Dr. Nicolls' lot of ground, is granted by the court of mayor and aldermen to those who shall contribute toward its construction.—M. C. M. (MS.), Feb. 28, 1721. Owners of private wells were thus protected by the court on many occasions. 28

Caleb Heathcote, a member of the council, having died on Feb. 27, Gov. Burnet asks the lords of trade to appoint Lewis Morris, Jr., in his place.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 584. Mar. 9

The common council appoints a committee to employ workmen to repair "the South End of the Wall Street about the Market house," it having been found by the grand jury to be a common nuisance.—M. C. C., III: 253, 262. Apr. 18

The city marshal is reimbursed for "an Iron Back for the Chimney of the Common Council Room," etc.—M. C. C., III: 253. "

The common council appoints a committee to "Cause the Wall at the End of the Broad Street fronting the Dock on the East and West side of the Market house to be built up and Covered with Boards," like that of Mr. Joonneau and Coraelius Depeyster.—M. C. C., III: 254, 262. "

Elias Charveine, an innkeeper, is paid by the common council £1:12:4½ for the expenses incurred at his house "by the Justices and Others in Enquiring into the Report & Taking Examinations of A supposed designed Insurrection of the Negroes within this City."—M. C. C., III: 254. "

"The house of John Barberie Situate in the Broadway in the South Ward of the City of New York Near his Majesties Garrison Called Fort George" is recorded by the court of general sessions as a place for "the English Presbyterian Congregation to Assemble and meet together for the Publick Worship & Service of Almighty God."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 390-91. For an earlier place of meeting, see Aug. 7, 1717; Feb. 7, 1722. May 3

The mayor's court authorizes the payment of forty shillings to Sarah Meals, an object of charity, "to Remove herself" out of town.—M. C. M. (MS.), May 9, 1721. See Dec. 30, 1721. 9

The gouverneur of Canada, according to a communication before the council, lays claim to Niagara. On July 1, the French were building a fort there.—Cal. Coun. Min., 280, 281.

The council receives depositions about ships commanded by Capt. Braddick and by Capt. Norton, seized at Southold. Gov. Spotswood of Virginia reports that Roberts, the pirate, is on the coast with two ships. Capt. Braddick is called before the council, and on being examined is committed for complicity with pirates.—Cal. Coun. Min., 280. 19

It is resolved by the assembly "that Care be taken to prevent the keeping great Quantities of Gun-Powder within the City of New York;" and to build a "convenient Place, at a proper Distance from the said City, for a Store to lodge and secure such Quantities of Guo-Powder as shall be imported into the same."—Assemb. Jour., I: 452. The same condition was complained of four years before.—See Oct. 22, 1717. On June 21, it was ordered that a bill be introduced to accomplish the desired purpose.—Ibid., I: 456. See July 24. June 1

That Secretary Clarke, who resided at Jamaica, L. I., possessed at least one of the fashionable carriages of the period is attested by a letter to him from Isaac Bobin, his private secretary, who says: "I am sorry for your misfortune in breaking the Wheele of your Chaise . . . I will observe what you wrote me in Relation to Chariot Wheels, Lead, &c." Again, on March 14, 1724, Bobin 6

- 1721 wrote: "The Coach maker has better than half finished the June Wheels . . ."—Letters of Isaac Bobin (Albany, 1872), 82, 180.
- 6 Mr. Geo. W. W. Houghton, editor of The Hub, says: "The early "post-chaise" and "chariot" were almost identical in construction, the chief difference being that the post-chaise was simpler and intended for hard usage in traveling; while the "chariot" was a state or show carriage, suggestive of luxury and elegance, and elaborately carved, gilded and ornamented with blazonry. Both were, in fact, cut-down coaches, or gigantic coupés, suspended very high on thoroughbraces or leather straps, with lofty coachman's-seat in front, often covered by a hammercloth, and a standard for one or two standing footmen at the rear."—Coaches of Colonial N. Y., 19-21, citing Felton, Treatise on Carriages (1794), 26. For Houghton's definition of the chaise, see May 28, 1744.
- 12 The opinion of council is obtained on a letter from the governour of New England relating to a naval rendezvous; Sandy Hook is considered preferable to Nantasket.—Cal. Coun. Min., 280.
- 19 An indenture deed on parchment conveyed from Jacob Leisler, Jr., son of Capt. Leisler, to his sister, Francina Staats, 20 lots of ground, described as "in the street there [in New York] newly laid out and Called Frankford Street." It also mentions "a Street there newly laid out and Called Duck Street;" "a Street there newly laid out Called King Georges Street;" and "the Street there newly laid out and Called Princes Street." It also refers to a Beekman survey in the following words: "in the East Ward nigh to the Lands of the heires of William Beekman and others and the Commons of the said City which he lately caused to be laid Out in sundry Lots by William Bond Surveyor of the said City and caused the same to be numbr'd in a Certain Chart or mapp thereof." —From the original deed, filed with Misc. MSS. in the library of the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- July The common council orders that a wharf be built "on the West 4 side of the Dock as far into the River as Conveniently may be done between the Dock and Whitehall According to the Draft thereof made by Cap<sup>t</sup> Bond the surveyor of this City."—M. C. C., III: 257.
- 5 In the will of Jean Cottin appears this bequest: "I leave to Messres. Jean Barberie, Stephen DeLancy, Abraham Juineau, Elias Pelletreau and Jean Cryalls, of New York, merchants, a certain obligation, dated October 1, 1716 whereby is due to me . . . the sum of £214, with interest. And they are to put the money out at interest, and pay the interest yearly forever, for the maintenance of the French Church in New York. I also leave to them a certain obligation dated February 16, 1719, whereby is due to me . . .
£109, 9s, 6d. and they are to distribute the interest among the poor of the French Church."—Abstracts of Wills, II: 238.
- 8 The common council grants to Josiah Quinby, on his petition, 150 feet of ground, between high- and low-water marks, between the old and new bridges on Manhattan Island at Kingsbridge, for 13 years, for the purpose of a fishery, for which he is required to give "yearly on Every fourteenth day of October to this Corporation A good dish of fresh fish." According to his petition, no other person is to "have Liberty to sett up or Carry on any Other fishery Contiguous to him or so Near to him as may prejudice the fishery to be Carried by the Petitioner, by means whereof the Petitioner proposes to Supply the Market at New York with fish Very fresh and at Very Easy Rates, and that he will not Stop up the Channell so as to Obstruct hinder or Retard the passage of Sloops Boats or Can-noons through the said River."—M. C. C., III: 257-58. On Feb.
13, 1723, the Mayor was ordered to execute the lease to Quinby, the place being referred to as the "fishing place at Kings Bridge."—
Ibid., III: 312.
- 20 "The King's Farm," known at this time as Trinity Church Farm (see Nov. 23, 1705), is leased by Trinity Corporation to Robert Harrison for a term of 10 years. The lease recites that the land was lately demised to Francis Ryser; it excepts six acres leased to W. Lake.—Sandford's Chancery Rep., IV: 692. See Aug. 9, 1720.
- 24 The assembly having appointed a committee on July 11 (*Assemb.
Jour.*, I: 465) "to find A piece of Ground on which may be built A Magazine to Stow Gunpowder for publick use in Order Encouragement may be given to any Person that shall undertake the Building of the same," the common council, acting as a "Court," soon "Viewed and Traversed the Commons and Other Grouod to the southward of fresh water," and now report that they are "of Opinion, that a small Island to the southward of fresh water Contiguous to the Pond is the Most Convenient place for Buildg of A Magazine or powder house for the securing and well keeping
- of all Gunpowder within this City of New York." A committee is appointed to confer with the committee of the assembly.—M. C. C., III: 258-59. On the following day the common council resolved that "this Corporation" would undertake to build the powder-house, with the "Encouragement" of the assembly, and that they would petition the assembly for leave to bring in a bill for this purpose.—Ibid., III: 259-60. Such petition was presented the following day (July 26), stating that "the Corporation are willing to contribute one Moiety of the charge of building thereof."—*Assemb.
Jour.*, I: 468. The proposal was rejected. For further developments, see June 5, 1722.
- A new act is passed "for Settling the Militia of this Province and the making of it usefull for the Security and Defence thereof and for Repealing all former Acts Relating to the same." For the last Militia Act, see Nov. 27, 1702. The same provisions, which were in the old law are found in this, better defined by paragraphing. There are fuller provisions for recovering and disposing of fines and forfeitures imposed for infractions of the military regulations.
Where the offender has no goods, punishment by imprisonment is imposed. When a "Commission Officer" is legally superseded, he shall not thereafter be obliged to do duty as a private soldier,
"unless he be Cashiered by order of a Court Marshal for Cowardice or some other Notorious Offence." To be thus free he is required to serve in commission for at least 15 years.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 84-92. Burnet explained, in a letter to the lords of trade, Oct. 16, that this act was "particularly intended to regulate the Militia of the Town of New York who used to be the most remiss of the whole Province and now by increasing the fine for non appearance at the Musters have immediately upon this Act appeared in Arms to near double the number as formerly."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 631.
The act was repealed by another of the same title, July 24, 1724
(q. v.).
- The provincial legislature passes "An Act to prevent Lotteries within the Province of New York." The lottery of one William Lake is excepted, he having a license from the government.—*Col.
Laws N. Y.*, II: 61. See Aug. 8, 1721.
- "By Letters from New York we learn that his Excellency Aug.
William Burner [Burnet], Esq., the Governor, was lately married to the Daughter of M<sup>r</sup> Vomhorn [van Horne], an eminent Merchant there."—Upcott Coll. in N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 29. Gov.
Burnet married Mary van Horne, the daughter of Abraham van Horne, of New York.—See Original Docs., relating to the Life and Administrations of Wm. Burnet, compiled by Nelson (Paterson, N. J., 1897), 62.
- 3 Cadwallader Colden and James Alexander are sworn in as members of the provincial council, the latter being appointed attorney-general in place of David Jameson.—N. Y. letter in Am. Merc.
(Phila.), Aug. 3-10, 1721; Cal. Coun. Min., 281.
- A lottery case demands the attention of the mayor's court.
8 John Jourdain sought to dispose of certain merchandise "by way of subscription," selling tickets to subscribers at six shillings each and advertising 231 prizes ranging from eight shillings to fifteen pounds. Frederick Williams and John Blake both brought suit; the latter charged that he bought three tickets, drew a £6 prize, but received only a periwig worth five shillings. Williams said he took out 24 tickets and won seven prizes, one of £14 and six of eight shillings each, and received goods worth only £6. The defence offered was that Jourdain was "within the age of one and twenty."
The court awarded equitable damages to both subscribers.—
M. C. M. (MS.), Aug. 8 and 15, 1721; Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 21. See July 27.
- "The same year (1721) in which private lotteries were suppressed by statute in England they were also suppressed in New York. Private lotteries flourished from time to time in the colonies; but they existed for the most part in defiance of law."—Ross, "The History of Lotteries in New York," in Mag. of Hist. (1907), V: 1433;
but see Feb. 17, 1746.
- A counterfeit "forty shillings Paper Bill" is brought into the 15 court of mayor and aldermen by the mayor. It is "burnt to Ashes in Open Court."—M. C. M. (MS.), Aug. 15, 1721.
- 22 On the petition of Albertus Bosch (or Bush), a blacksmith, the common council orders that the street or passage-way (now Liberty Place) which leads from Crown (now Liberty) St. to the Quaker meeting-house shall be widened at one end and narrowed at the other, so as to be of a uniform width of 20 feet, the abutting owners, Edward Burling, George Talbot, and Bush, agreeing to the plan,

1721 and making certain concessions of land.—M. C. C., III: 261. The present Liberty Place was formerly Little Green St., and later Liberty Alley.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 928, and 1004.

22 The common council, having just ordered that Tennis Tiebout be paid £317:6:3 "for workmanship and Materials for Repairing about the Market house at the Lower end of Wall Street" (see April 18), now appoints a committee to examine his accounts and determine "what part thereof Ought to be paid by Mrs Child" for these repairs; also what part ought to be paid by Alderman Cortlandt and Cornelius Depyster "for Repairs done on the East and West sides of the Market house fronting the Great Dock."—M. C. C., III: 262-63.

"Catheriae (or Catalina) Post, a tavern-keeper, is allowed 18s, 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d., for her expenses in serving at her house a committee of the common council when "settling the Accts of Tennis Tiebout &c: for Repairing the City Hall &c."—M. C. C., III: 262.

29 "Two Quarter Casks and Twenty-one half Quarter Casks of French Brandy" are adjudged forfeited and condemned by the court of mayor and aldermen because they had been imported "from foreign parts beyond the Seas and not Directly from England into this Province."—M. C. C. (MS.), Aug. 15, 1721. See Sept. 19, 1677. The same prosecutor, Francis Harrison, "Surveyor of his now Majesties Customs of the Porte of New York," reported to the court, April 3, 1722, more smuggled merchandise of various sorts from "toy looking glasses in tin boxes" to "mens felt hatts" and razors. At the meeting of April 17, they were ordered to be condemned.—Ibid., April 3 and 17, 1722.

Sept. 8 In a representation to the king regarding the state of the provinces, it is explained that the government of New York "is in the Crown;" that the king "appoints the Governor, & Council, which consists of twelve persons;" and that "the Assembly is chosen by the people, & is composed of nineteen members."—N. T. Col. Docs., V: 600.

29 A petition, signed by Nicholas Eyres and others, is presented to the common council, asking that Eyres, a Baptist minister (see Feb. 7, 1715), be exempt from serving as a constable of the North Ward, to which office he has been this day elected.—From the original petition in metal file labelled "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room. On Oct. 21, he was excused and a new election ordered.—M. C. C., III: 270. See also Jan. 19, 1722.

"The council issues a warrant to pay Catharine Post for the use of her house by assembly committees.—Cal. Coun. Min., 282.

Oct. 3 The common council appoints a committee "to lay out the Street or Highway leading from the house of John Smith the Currier in Queen Street to Fresh water."—M. C. C., III: 266. This has reference to the continuation of Queen St. northwestwardly, later called Magazine St., and now part of Pearl St.—See Pl. 27, Vol. I.

"Payment is made for stone, sand, and paving around the city hall.—M. C. C., III: 265-66, 272.

30 For the first time, the birthday of the Prince of Wales is celebrated by the city, this being in the usual manner with bonfire and wine.—M. C. C., III: 273.

1722

— In this year, Bonner's map of Boston was published.—Green, Ten Fac-simile Reproductions (1901), 35.

— Rev. Mr. Vesey, writing to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, states, among other things, that his parish is 14 miles in length (the length of Manhattan Island), and that in it there are supposed to be 1,600 families, English, Dutch, and Jews; also 1,362 Indian and negro slaves. He has no house or glebe, but the rental of the farm yields £26 annually, which is made a special payment to him until the parish can provide "a convenient dwelling house." He also gives a brief account of the "parish school" under Mr. Huddleston.—Dix, Hist. of Trin. Church, I: 199.

Jan. 14 Letters from New York tell of an "unhappy Accident" which "fell out on the Lord's Day, the 14th of January last, the River being Froze, some Hundreds of their Youth went presumptuously upon the Ice, and the Ice withdrawing from both sides, they could not get to either shoar, and had not the People been extraordinarily diligent with their Boats to save them, many or most of them, must of necessity have been lost, and perished one is said to be frozen to Death, and another very bad, what Damage others have sustained, we know not yet. However it may be a fair warning to them and all others not so prophantly to abuse the Lord's Day, in turning it into a Day of Sport and Diversion as these did."—Boston News-Letter, Feb. 5-12, 1722.

"It is excessive cold, and the River full of Ice from the Narrows to New-York. Yesterday a great many People went upon the Ice from New-York to the Ferry on Long Island."—From New York news in Am. Merc. (Phila.), Jan. 16-23, 1722.

Nicholas Eyres, a brewer and Baptist teacher (see Sept. 29, 1721), petitions Gov. Burnet for a permit "to Execute the ministerial function of a minister within this City to a Baptist congregation," and he asks the protection of the king's "gracious indulgence extended towards the protestants dissenting from the established church," etc. His petition shows that his hired house was registered as an Anabaptist meeting-house on the first Tuesday in February, 1715 (i. e., 1716—see Feb. 7, 1716); that he hired a house of Rip van Dam on Jan. 1, 1720 (i. e., 1721) to be a public meeting-house of the Baptists, and that he was their preacher. The permit was granted on Jan. 23, 1722.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 249-91.

22 Mayor Walter informs the common council that on Jan. 18 a petition was presented to Gov. Burnet and council by "Garrett Vanhorne, Thomas Clarke, John Reade, Thomas Bayeux, Henry Cuyler, Rip van Dam Jun<sup>r</sup> and Stephen Richard," in behalf of themselves and others, "praying his Majesties Letters Patents for all the Land that may be Gained out of the East River from the Corner of MF Rip Van Dams house at the lower End of Maiden lane to the Coroor of Thomas Clarkes to Extend into the Said River two hundred foot with Liberty to Erect Buildings Cranes Stairs &c: And to Receive the Profits and Wharfage thereof." This petition, the mayor says, was referred to a committee of the council by the governor's order. The common council considers "the great prejudice the Granting thereof may be to the Publick in General and this Corporation in particular," and they order that a petition to the governor be prepared asking for a grant "of all the Land that may be Gained out of the River, Round this Island Manhattans."—M. C. C., III: 271-72.

On Feb. 2, 1722, the mayor informed the common council that he had presented to the governor the following petition in opposition to the proposed patent, and that the governor had it read in council and referred to a committee to consider and report upon: It first recites the grant to the city, by the Dongan Charter of 1686, of "the whole island Manhattans and all the Ground round the Same to Low water mark;" that this ground, so far as built upon, has been "So Order'd & Dispos'd of that the Inhabitants fronting to high water had the Offer of the Ground before them to low water Mark upon Easy and Moderate terms to the great Advancement of their Interests;" that some of these grantees "have taken Confirmations from the Crown" for their grants; that others, "particularly those between Burghers Slip and the Corner of Captain Theobalds, finding the Streets reserved by the Corporation towards the Wharf to be too Narrow for Common & publick use and for the passing and repassing of Carts and Carriages," obtained a grant for extending their wharves 25 feet and 130 feet farther into the East River, with the privilege of erecting cranes and charging cranes and wharfage; and that now the grantees of the best parts of the city, "between the Corner of the Slip by the End of Wall Street and the Slip at the End of Maiden Lane," are making petition for the privilege of "taking in and filling up of two hundred foot Out of the East river before their wharfs & promising to make a Wharf of forty foot broad before that ground for a Street. Providing they may have a grant of the free Simple thereof and to build and Erect thereon Cranes & Other Conveniences for loading & unloading of goods & Merchandizes Provided they be thereby Entitled to receive Dockage and Wharfage." The petition expresses alarm at this last proposed development, alleging that, if granted, it would set up a right independent of the city, which has by charter "the whole and Sole power of regulating and laying out of Streets alleys lanes Wharfs and Docks;" that it would "Monopolize to a few the whole Convenience of loading and unloading," and the rest of the merchants and inhabitants of the city would depend upon the caprice of those who now seek the exclusive grant; that the water front would lack uniformity, and the grantees would claim a privilege of being exempted from the city's jurisdiction; and, as "Mischiefs of this kind are much Easier prevented than remedied afterwards," the petitioners ask that the proposed grant be rejected. The common council appoints a committee to confer with the committee of the governor's council, in opposition to the

Jan. 14 15

19

22

- 1722 proposed grant, and "to make a handsome Entertainment for Said Jan. Committee of Council."—M. C. C., III: 274-76, 278. See March 30, 22
- The minutes of a committee of the council are on record (evidently the committee here referred to), showing, under date of Feb. 25, 1722, that they decided upon "the opening of a new street . . . to be called Burnet Street, and the continuation of King Street;" also a wharf on Burnet St., to be called Burnet's Key; and also fixed the width of these streets and the riparian privileges granted to the owners of the lots, and the quit-rents payable therefor.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 467.
- A patent was given to Rip Van Dam and others on March 7, 1723, of "all that space of ground of the East River of N. Y. now lying under water from the present wharves or low-water mark between the corner of the slip that leads from Wall Street called Clark's corner and the S. E. most corner of the lot of Rip Van Dam, Jr., which joins to the slip that leads from Maiden Lane,"—which is more particularly described in the patent,—there being 16 feet along the wharves reserved for a common highway or street (with 29 feet additional, making 45 feet), to be called Burnett Street.—From Book of Patents, IX: 13, in secretary of state's office. See also Cal. Land Papers, 134 (Dec. 23, 1719, Jan. 15, 1720); 156 (Jan. 18, 22 and 23, 1722); 157 (Jan. 26, Feb. 1, 5 and 13, 1722); 164 (Dec. 16 and 20, 1722); 166 (Dec. 6, 1722); 167 (Feb. 12 and 22, 1722); 168 (Mar. 7, 1723).
- " Payment of £15:6 is made for 18 leather chairs for the common council room.—M. C. C., III: 272. See also April 6, 1711; Dec. 22, 1722. Fragmentary records of this kind taken together might enable us to-day to picture fairly accurately the interior of the city's old common council chamber in the city hall on Wall St. Compare description of Pl. 101-b, Vol. III, showing this room in the present city hall about 100 years later, and at the present time. See also the description of the David Grim drawing of the old city hall, Pl. 32-b, Vol. I.
- Feb. 7 A "New House lately erected and Built on the East side of Smiths Street in the East Ward" is recorded as "A Publick Meeting house for the Congregation of Dissenting Protestants Called English Presbyterians."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 399. It appears from this record, as well as from that of May 3, 1721 (q. v.), that the meeting-house in course of construction on Wall St. in the North Ward (see 1719) was not yet ready for worship.
- 20 A city ordinance is passed prohibiting gambling by slaves.—M. C. C., III: 277-78.
- " The Burgis View (see Pl. 25, Vol. I) is advertised for sale in Philadelphia: "A Curious Prospect of the City of New York, on 4 sheets of Royal Paper, to be sold by Andrew Bradford."—Am. Merc. (Phila.), Feb. 13-20, 1722. See also description, I: 241.
- Mar. 30 A warrant is issued to pay "Daniell Boutecou" £6:10:10½ for expenses at his house by the common council in "treating" a committee of the governour's council in connection with a petition by the city.—M. C. C., III: 281. Boutecou (Bounticow, or Boutecou) was a tavern-keeper in the North Ward, of which he was elected a collector in 1724.—Ibid., III: 354. In 1759, he advertised property for sale in Gold St., Montgomerie Ward.—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 24, 1759.
- Apr. 11 It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that the Church wardens . . . be a Committee to agree with workmen and to provide Necessarys for the Carrying on the New Building of the Church."
The same committee is further ordered to "lay out a Sufficient way and passage thro' the Churches farm from M<sup>r</sup> Lakes."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 24 A grant is made to Gerardus Beekman of land in the East Ward, at the lower end of the Smith's Fly (Queen St.), between high- and low-water.—Liber City Grants, B: 83-92; M. C. C., III: 285-86. Towards Queen St., the grant is only 35 feet wide, although the grantee agrees to make and keep a public slip 24 feet wide, with a street on the west of 12 feet wide, and a street facing the river of 30 feet wide. The latter was the modern Water Street. The slip was at the river where subsequently Fair (Fulton) Street was cut through. It is well shown on Pl. 27, Vol. I. The slip was partly filled in 1772 (M. C. C., VII: 341-42, 363), and subsequently was entirely filled and paved. It was part of the modern Fulton Street. Beekman petitioned for this grant on Feb. 15, 1703 (q. v.); the slip was not built until now (III: 988 being in error).
- May 22 William Dugdale and John Searle are given leave "to Continue their Roap Walk where it now is [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 962] during the Pleasure of this Corporation;" and also "Liberty to Remove their work house and Cover A part of the said Rope Walk."—M. C. C., III: 288. See Jan. 3, 1719, and Jan. 27, 1726.
- Preparations are being made to celebrate the king's birthday "in the most splendid Manner [of which] we are capable," with illuminations, fire-works, a ball, and an entertainment at the fort, planned by the governour.—N. Y. News in Am. Merc. (Phila.), May 24-31, 1722.
- " Upon reading of an Order of the General Assembly . . . with the proposals made by M<sup>r</sup> William Dugdale for Building of A Powder house within this City," the common council appoints a committee to draw up a petition to the assembly "praying leave that this Corporation may bring in A Bill to Enable them to build A sufficient Magazine or Powder house . . . on such Reasonable Terms and proposals as may Induce the Legislative of this Colony to pass the same into A Law."—M. C. C., III: 288-89. Such a bill was introduced on June 12, and passed on its third reading, June 18 (Assemb. Jour., I: 472; 474); but on June 22 it was rejected by the council.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 480. The magazine was not built until 1728.—See July 6, 1728. See also July 13.
- Catalina (or Catherine) Post, a tavern-keeper, presents to the assembly her account "for white washing and cleaning the Assembly Room, and Lobby, and for mending the Glass Windows thereof," amounting to £8:12; and "for Diet and Expenses of Mrs. Monteur, and other Indians; upon their Examination by Order of his Excellency," £4:7, making a total of £12:19. The account is approved.—Assemb. Jour., I: 482. Again, on July 6, 1723, she was allowed £5 for whitewashing and cleaning the "Assembly Chamber and Lobby."—Ibid., I: 499. See also April 10, 1718; Nov. 18, 1720; Aug. 22, 1721; July 13, 1722.
- Catharine Post is allowed £13:7:6 by the city for "Expences at her house in Treating the Assembly on the Passing the Bill for A Powder house" (see June 5).—M. C. C., III: 290. Again, on Nov. 24 of this year, she was allowed £3:16:7½ for "Expences of this Corporation at her house on Examinations taken about A Riot, and On A Committee of General Assembly About passing A Law for the Ferry."—Ibid., III: 301.
- Archibald Kennedy is appointed to be collector and receiver-general of the province.—Cal. Coun. Min., 286.
- Gov. Spotswood of Virginia arrives on his "Majestys Ship Enterprize." On the 12th, "His Excellency Sir William Keith, Bart. Governour of Pennsylvania, and his Lady" arrived.—N. Y. News in Am. Merc. (Phila.), Aug. 9-16, 1722. This repeats their visit of five years before.—See Oct. 1, 1717. Their conference with Gov. Burnet on the present occasion related to Indian affairs, a subject which they and the governour took up with the chiefs of the Five Nations at Albany on Aug. 27, and which continued to Sept. 8.—Cal. Coun. Min., 287.
- After leaving £20 to the poor of the French Church, "being Refugees, residing in the city of New York," and making various other bequests, Elias Neau, in his will of this date, adds: "I give the sum of £50 for and towards the printing of 152 Hymns, composed by myself; which said sum of money I desire may be deposited in the hands of Rev. Mr. Lewis Row, minister of the French Church in New York, for the better effecting, and printing said Hymns in the French Language."—Abstracts of Wills, II: 255.
- From Aug. 27 to date, Albany has been the scene of an inter-colonial congress. It was one of the series of such meetings which had the result of developing the idea of an inter-colonial union.—Winsor, Nat. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 485, and 611, citing N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 567. On this occasion, New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia joined to renew the league with the Five Nations.—Cal. Coun. Min., 287. See also 1684 and 1694.
- Gov. Burnet receives additional instructions from England relating to trade, on which he orders a proclamation to be issued.—Cal. Coun. Min., 287.
- On this day it is officially recorded that, "in a Certain Street Called the Broadway," Thomas Braine stole William Butler's milch cow.—M. C. C., III: 292, Oct. 2, 1722.
- A city ordinance is passed requiring "That all Negroes and Indian Slaves that shall Dye within this Corporation on the South side of the Fresh Water be buried by day light at or before Sunsett."—M. C. C., III: 296.
- City land between high- and low-water mark, "from the West side of the slip Near the House of Andries Hardenbroeke," is to be fenced. To determine the high-water limit, a committee of the 1722 common council is appointed to take the affidavits of such "Antient Oct. 6 honest Inhabitants as Can best Inform them."—M. C. C., III: 298. Hardenbrooke's land was probably between Peck Slip and James Slip, but there is no water grant of record here to him.

" The proprietors of lots between high-and-low-water, "between the Land late of Sacketts & Beekmans at the lower End of Queen Street," are required to complete "their Wharfs or Streets," mentioned in their respective grants, on or before May 1, 1723.—M. C. C., III: 298. Cf. April 24.

" Alderman Edward Blagge is paid for the expenses (horse-hire) for a committee to lay out the land in the Out Ward around the magazine.—M. C. C., III: 297.

Dec. 18 The Rev. William Vesey, writing to Mr. Humphreys, secretary of the Society for Propagating the Gospel, in behalf of the vestry of Trinity Church, asks that, on account of the death of Elias Neau, "the late Catechist of this City" (see Aug. 4, 1704), the society appoint "a Presbyter of the Church of England to officiate in his stead," and give him directions to assist "our Minister" (Mr. Vesey himself), "who, in his declining age, is not so able as formerly to perform all the duties of his calling, which daily Increase on his hands." (Mr. Vesey continued rector 24 years longer, until his death in 1746.) His stated reasons for this request are: "We have lately been obliged, by voluntary subscriptions, to enlarge our Church, but the subscriptions being insufficient, we have been under the necessity of taking up money at Interest to compleat the new building, which, by a modest computation, will cost more than £1200, and have no prospect of being discharged of the debts thereby contracted in some years; and, therefore are not in a condition of allowing a complete maintenance to an Assistant, tho' one is absolutely necessary." He also states that there is "a vast Increase of Children, and Indians, and Negro servants, who cannot, without such assistance, be so well instructed in the principles of Christianity."—Berrian, Trin. Church (1847), 38.

22 A committee is appointed by the common council to farm out the Long Island ferry, on Jan. 10, 1723, and to meet for the purpose at the house of Obadiah Hunt.—M. C. C., III: 305. See also June 14, 1729.

" The common council orders that Alderman Jacobus Kip provide "a handsome large table" for the common council chamber, and that the treasurer send to London for fine green broadcloth to cover it.—M. C. C., III: 307. On June 22, 1723, Kip was reimbursed to the amount of £4:2:6 for this table, "by him bought of Joseph Kingston Joyner as Appears by his Act."—Ibid., III: 317. On Feb. 18, 1724, the broadcloth was paid for at 20 shillings per yard.—Ibid., III: 338. See Jan. 22.

1723

— The population of New York City (and County) is 7,248; of the province, 40,564.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 471. It appears by the Chalmers MSS., relating to the city (in N. Y. Pub. Library), that the population of the city this year was 7,282, and that of the province 40,580, the original of this record being in the public record office, London. For the names of the principal inhabitants, in this year, see N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Rec., XLIX: 369 (Oct., 1918).

— About this time, Anthony Rutgers erected his handsome residence on the westerly half of the Kalkhook, the 40-acre tract of land originally granted in 1646 by Gov. Kieft to Jan Damen. The site of the house was at the present 232-236 Church St. "He surrounded his habitation with elegant shrubbery in the geometrical style of rural gardening of those days. Long walks bordered with box-wood, and shaded and perfumed with flowering shrubs, extended in various directions in the parterre, fronting the house. The favorite orchard extended along the southerly side of the mansion, while the pasture lands and cultivated fields extended toward the north."—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952; Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 575.

Jan. 10 The Long Island ferry is again leased in two parts (see Dec. 24, 1717) "by publick Outcry." James Hardings, who had secured both leases five years earlier, receives now the Manhattan privilege only, the ferry on the Brooklyn side being awarded to John Deane.—M. C. C., III: 307-8. Harding declared he would not live in New York, and proposed to construct a separate "Landing Bridge and a Penn" on the Brooklyn shore. This the common council deemed "directly Contrary to the true Intent & Meaning" of his lease, and Harding was released "from his Agreement for the said ferry" on Jan.

22. William Wibling became his successor, with the distinct understanding that he "be Obliged to live with his family at New York and to keep his Boats there."—Ibid., III: 309, 310. The two new ferry-men, Deane and Wibling, had serious differences regarding their rights under their contracts.—Ibid., III: 320. Wibling having failed to tend the ferry, and having refused to pay his quarterly rent, the common council again took possession on Feb. 18, 1724, and appointed a day for letting the ferry to the highest bidder "at the house of Theophilus Elsworth."—Ibid., III: 337. Failing to lease it on that day, a committee was appointed to do so.—Ibid., III: 339. On May 13, 1724, suit was begun by the city against Wibling for breach of his covenants.—Ibid., III: 343. Wibling, having been imprisoned for the debt, was released on June 19, 1724, on giving bond to pay his arrearages of rent in one year, and the costs of the prosecution immediately.—Ibid., III: 345. For a return to the former policy of one lease and one ferry-man, see Feb. 5, 1728.

" The governour having granted "A Special Commission of Oyer & Terminer and General Gaol delivery for this City and County;" and having appointed the chief-justice, the second judge of the province, the mayor, recorder, and aldermen as justices of the commission, the chief-justice notifies the high sheriff that he expects the corporation to attend him at the town of New Harlem, "to wait upon him to the City Hall to hold the Court aforesaid," and that he intends to start from New Harlem at 11 o'clock the next day. The "Corporation" therefore arrange to start for New Harlem from the city hall at nine o'clock, and that the marshal shall give notice to the treasurer and all the members of the common council, the high constable and three other constables to accompany them.—M. C. C., III: 308.

Richard Hill and wife convey to Anthony Rutgers more than ten acres of land (Liber Deeds, XXXI: 115-16, New York), situated, according to modern maps, west of Broadway, on both sides of Church St., from about Thomas to Leonard St. By or before 1730, Rutgers built his mansion upon this estate, on the site now covered by Nos. 232 to 236 Church St., between Worth and Leonard Sts.—Records of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co.; Filed map No. 456, Register's Office. This house, with its gardens, was subsequently conducted as a pleasure resort, under the name of "Ranelagh" or the "Rangelagh Gardens." See June 3, 1765.

Jacobus Roosevelt, Abraham van Wyck, Abraham Lefferts, and Charles Sleigh petition the common council for "A Grant to them and their Heirs & Assigns for Ever of the Lots of Land belonging to this Corporation fronting Hudsons River to low water Mark to the Green Trees near the English Church," on certain conditions. It is ordered that "all the Inhabitants & Freeholders of the West side of the Broadway" be given notice of the petition, that they may show cause, if they so desire, on March 25, why the petition should not be granted.—M. C. C., III: 310-11. On June 22, the time for filing protests was extended by the city to Sept. 1.—Ibid., III: 319. See also March 29, 1701.

A patent to Kip van Dam and others finally establishes Burnet Street and Burnet's Key.—See Jan. 22, 1722; and Bradford Map, Pl. 27, Vol. I.

The common council establishes brand marks for use on Virginia pork and Carolina pork, respectively, when repacked at New York. Public packers are ordered not to put the "N: Y" brand on either of these or on any other pork unless it is "good sound well fed and Merchantable."—M. C. C., III: 314.

Catalina Post is allowed £4:5:7½ "for Expenses of this Corporation at her house on Leasing the Ferry . . ."—M. C. C., III: 314. On Nov. 22 of the same year, she was allowed £3:1:9 for expenses at her house "in paying Boatmen Carmen Labourers &c: for Repairing the Dock."—Ibid., III: 334. See, further, July 24, 1724; Nov. 10, 1725; May 9, 1727.

Daniel Bontecou is allowed £2:6:8½ for expenses of the corporation at his tavern (see March 30, 1722) at various times in "Examining and settling the Assize of Bread and Other Publick Affairs."—M. C. C., III: 314. On May 17, a conference committee of the two houses of the legislature was appointed to meet "at the House of Mrs. Bonticow," to prepare an address to the king from the governour, council, and assembly of New York.—Assemb. Jour., I: 491. Conference committees were again held on June 29 of the same year, and on Sept. 13, 1725.—Ibid., I: 497, 516. Bontecou's tavern was also favoured by the city corporation in 1724, as a place for committee meeting.—M. C. C., III: 431.

The celebration in New York of the king's birthday on this day

Jan. 10
Feb. 3
Mar. 7
Mar. 23
" "
" "
" "

My 28

- 1723 is thus described: "At noon upon Drinking his Majesties, the Prince and Royal Family's Healths, a Round of the Guns in the Garrison was fired and was answered by the Vessels in the Road, the Soldiers (who with the Officers all in new Cloaths made a handsome Appearance) fired three Volleys, as did our Militia who were under Arms, together with a new Artillery Company, being all in blew Cloaths with Gold laced Hats, the Company consisted of Masters and Mates of Vessels, at night there was a Bonfire and Plenty of Wine at the charge of the Corporation, there were Rockets and other fire Works fired from the Walls of the Garrison, the whole Town was illuminated, and the whole was concluded with a fine Ball and handsome Entertainments by his Excellency our Governor."—Am. Merc. (Phila.), June 3, 1723. See May 28, 1775.
- June For many years (M. C. C., III: 12, 13, 19) labourers were employed to level the ground on the west side of the dock where dunghills and rubbish accumulated. Now, the common council orders that all persons shall be prohibited from throwing rubbish, etc. "on the West side of the Dock between the Dock & Whitehall."—Ibid., III: 318.
- 25 Burnet sends to the lords of trade two "discourses" prepared by Colden, the surveyor-general; one concerns the trade, the other the climate, of the province. The latter is the first thorough review of the health conditions of this part of America.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 684-92.
- July On Feb. 13, "The Petition of Mess<sup>rs</sup> Jacobus Roosevelt, Abraham van Wyck, Abraham Lefferts and Charles Sleigh" is read a second time in the common council, "praying A Grant to them and their Heirs & Assigns for Ever of the Lots of Land belonging to this Corporation fronting Hudsons River to low water Mark to the Green Trees near the English Church."—M. C. C., III: 310-11, 319. See also March 29, 1701. On July 23, 1723, it is resolved "that the Land between high water Mark and low water Mark on Hudsons River from the house of M<sup>r</sup> Gaebeck near the Fort to the Green Trees Commonly Called the Locust Trees near the English Church be Granted to the Respective Inhabitants and Proprietors of the Lotts of Land on the West side of the Broadway at the Annual Reot of three pence  $\frac{3}{4}$  foot (if they see Cause to Accept of A Grant of the same on those Terms) and if they Refuse that the same Land be Granted to any Other Person or Persons who Shall purchase the same at the Annual Reot of Six pence  $\frac{3}{4}$  foot payable to this Corporation." It is ordered "that M<sup>r</sup> Recorder, Alderman Cortlandt, Alderman Philippe Alderman Stuyvesant, M<sup>r</sup> Teller, M<sup>r</sup> Maerschall & M<sup>r</sup> Roosevelt or any five of them whereof the Recorder to be One be A Comtee to Cause the Said Lands to be surveyed and laid out; leaving Convenient Streets Wharfs and Slips; and to Ascertain and appoint when, in what Manner and by whom the same Streets Wharfs and Slips are to be made Completed and finished & kept in Repair."—M. C. C., III: 320. See also June 27, 1729, and March 19, 1751.
- 25 The common council passes a resolution giving to Capt. Peter Solgard, "Commander of his Majesties Ship Greyhound the Station ship of this Province," the freedom of the city, handsomely engrossed on parchment and with its seal enclosed in a gold box. On one side of the box are to be engraved the arms of the city, and on the other side a representation of the "Greyhound" in its fight with pirates, with the motto "Quaesitos Humani Generis Hostes debellare Superbum 10<sup>o</sup> Junii 1723." The event which this commemorated was the gratitude of the city to Capt. Solgard, who pursued and engaged two pirate sloops commanded by a notorious pirate, one of whose sloops he captured (see July 29). Twenty-six of the pirates so taken had been lately executed in Rhode Island.—M. C. C., III: 321-22. The presentation of the freedom was made on Aug. 6.—Ibid., III: 322-24. Charles le Roux was the maker and engraver of the gold box containing the seal of the corporation, for which he was paid £23:19.—Ibid., III: 323.
- 29 A north-east storm of wind and rain "broke up the Wharfs from one end of the City to the other, drove all the Vessels ashore, except three, and broke three Sloops to pieces: the Tide higher than ever known here. Sugar and Goods in Ware-houses and Cellars were damaged; the market-House with several others were blown down, Tyles & Covering of Houses blown off. Vast quantities of Boards, Timber, Staves, Boats, Canoos, and Rubbish lies in heaps." It was necessary to cut away the mast of the pirate sloop captured and held as a prize by Capt. Solgard.—Boston News-Letter, Aug. 22, 1723. See also July 25, and Aug. 10, 1723.
- Aug. The common council appoints a committee to see what damage was done to the docks and wharves of the city by the great storm
- of July 29, and to decide upon the best way to make repairs, calling to their assistance "Able Workmen and Skillfull Artists." On Aug. 17, the committee reported that they had examined "the Wharfs Inclosing the great Dock," and found that they had been "almost Intirely Ruined and washed Away," and the repairs will cost about £300. They were ordered to employ workmen and see that the repairs were quickly made.—M. C. C., III: 325, 326. On June 15, 1724, the common council, in an address to Gov. Buroet, referred to the "late great and almost insupportable Charge which has fallen on this Corporation by the Ruinous Condition of the Great Dock and of all its Walls Occasion'd by the Storm in July last and oow repair'd or rather rebuilt . . ."—Ibid., III: 349.
- 22 The provincial council passes an ordinance relating to the recording of deeds, and orders that it be sent to county clerks.—Cal. Coun. Min., 292. This was published by Bradford, with the title: An Ordinance for Regulating the Recording of Deeds and other Writings. By his Excellency William Burnet . . . In Council, this twenty second day of August . . . One thousand seven hundred and twenty Three. 1723.—From copy in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- 23 Increase Mather dies in Boston.—Winsor, op. cit., V: 125.
- Sept. William Bradford announces that he takes "Philadelphia Paper Money, and on Reasonable Terms, supplies Travellers, and others, that want the said Paper Money."—From N. Y. letter in Am. Merc. (Phila.), Sept. 5-12, 1723.
- Oct. Benjamin Franklin, a boy of 17, arrives by sloop from Boston, on his first visit to New York. As stated in his autobiography, addressed to his son in 1771, he was "without the least recommendation to, or knowledge of, any person in the place, and with very little money." He offered his services to "old M<sup>r</sup>. William Bradford," who, however, could give him no employment, but said: "My son at Philadelphia has lately lost his principal band, Aquila Rose, by death; if you go thither, I believe he may employ you." When Franklin arrived at Andrew Bradford's shop in Philadelphia, he found the father, William Bradford, there before him. Andrew Bradford referred Franklin to another printer, Keimer, who engaged him at odd jobs as a press hand.—The Complete Works of Benj. Franklin, compiled and ed. by John Bigelow (1887), I: 57-66. See also "Benjamin Franklin, His Sojourns in New-York," by John W. Francis, in Man. Com. Coun. (1850), 417. See April, 1724.
- 14 A payment of £153:8:1 $\frac{1}{2}$  is made by the common council to Cornelius de Peyster, the city treasurer, to reimburse him for money advanced for repairing the great dock, which was damaged by the storm of July 29.—M. C. C., III: 330. A year later, £216:16 was paid to him on the same account.—Ibid., III: 358. The rebuilding of the dock was completed before July 14, 1724.—Ibid., III: 349.
- 24 "There is a School in New York, in the Broad Street near the Exchange, where Mr. John Walton late of Yale-College, Teacheth Reading, Writing, Arithmatick, whose [wholc] Numbers and Fractions, Vulgar and Decimal, the Mariners Art . . . all or any of them for a Reasonable Price. The School for the first of October till the first of March will be tended in the Evening."—Am. Weekly Merc. (Phila.), Oct. 17-24, 1723.
- Dec. A census of the province of New York for this year shows the total number of inhabitants for the city and county of New York to be 7,248. The total number of white persons is 5,886, of whom 1,460 are men, 1,726 women, and 2,700 children. The total number of "Negroes and other Slaves" is 1,362, of whom 408 are men, 476 women, and 478 children. The total number of inhabitants of the province is 40,564.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 702. Burnet sends the report to Lord Carteret on Dec. 16, and explains that the census has been prepared by the sheriffs of the several counties, according to the return made to them by the constables.—Ibid., V: 704.
- 24 Burnet sends to the lords of trade "a map of this province, drawn by the surveyor Gen<sup>l</sup> Dr Colden, with great exactness from all the surveys that have been made formerly and of late in this province, which are in his hands, and from the French map of the lakes, corrected by some late informations in those places that lie near this province."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 704. Undoubtedly this map was the same as that contained in Colden's printed book or tract, entitled Papers relating to An Act of the Assembly of the Province of New-York, published in 1724 (g. v.). See also A. Fl. 2-b, Vol. III.
- 17 A committee is appointed by the common council "to Assist Alderman Kip in surveying and laying out A Tract of Land lying Near the Common of this City, near the late Widdmill of Jasper Nessepot According to his Patent of Confirmation bearing date the 1723 tenth day of April 1696 and that in laying out the same they take

 Dec. Care the Street Called the Broadway be Continued of the breadth it 17 now is."—M. C. C., III: 335. The ground was known as the Negroes' Burying Ground, for a brief history of which see April 10, 1696. The extension of Broadway was partly along the present City Hall Park. The reference to the "late Windmill of Jasper Nessepot" shows (cf. March 14, 1714) that it was now no longer standing.
 See also Landmark Map. Ref. Key, III: 962.

1724

— Probably somewhat earlier than this year, May Bickley built his house on the Bowery.—Fernow, Index to Wills, 14. This was subsequently the residence of James de Lancey, the chief-justice and lieutenant-governour. See Aug. 21, 1730; Sept. 15, 1744;
 April 27, 1791; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 949.

— About this time, Cadwallader Colden made a map of the manorial grants along the Hudson. It exists, in a mutilated condition, in the State Library at Albany.

— An Anabaptist meeting-house was erected this year.—Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches, 224. An unrecorded deed by Thomas Thong and wife to John Bowne, dated April 14, 1732, set forth in an abstract made by the late Peter de Witt (a copy of which is in possession of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co.), locates the "Anne Baptist Meeting House" on a site now covered by Nos. 9 and 11
 Cliff St. The meeting-place was recorded at court, on Nov. 6, 1728 (q. v.). The congregation removed from this site in 1760, having built another church at the present Nos. 35 and 43 Gold St. This was the First Baptist Church, which was opened March 14, 1760.—
Greenleaf, op. cit., 226. See also March 14, 1760; 1865; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 928; Pl. 174, Vol. III; and Pls. 26, 27, 27-a, and 34, Vol. I.

— Cadwallader Colden was the author of a book of 26 pages, folio, published this year, bearing the following long title: *Papers relating to An Act of the Assembly of the Province of New York; For Encouragement of the Indian Trade, &c. and for Prohibiting the Selling of Indian Goods to the French, viz. of Canada. I. A Petition of the Merchants of London to His Majesty, against the said Act. II. His Majesty's Order in Council, Referring the said Petition to the Lords Commissioners for Trade & Plantation. III. Extract of the Minutes of the said Lords, concerning some Allegations of the Merchants before Them. IV. The Report of the said Lords to His Majesty on the Merchants Petition, and other Allegations. V. The Report of the Committee of Council of the Province of New-York, an Answer to the said Petition. VI. A Memorial concerning the Fur-Trade of New-York, by C. Colden, Esq; With a Map. Published by Authority.
 Printed and Sold by William Bradford in the City of New-York, 1724.*
 The map is entitled "A Map of the Country of the Five Nations
 . . ." it is here reproduced as A. Pl. 2-b, Vol. III, and described on
 p. 862, Vol. III. It is, perhaps, the first map engraved in New York City. See also Bibliography, Vol. V.

Jan. Land is granted by Catherine van Huse to Maritje Mandel 16 "at a place called Bassin Bowery Alias Greenwich."—See the original grant in Warren Papers, at N. Y. Hist. Soc.

Feb. The will of John Haberdinck (Harpending), dated April 23, 7 1722, is proved. He bequeaths to the Dutch Church his interest in the "Shoemakers' Field," which he describes as "on the north east side of Maiden Lane or Path, which leads into a certain street called Queen street, which said tract contains by estimation about 16 acres, and by Agreement of all the proprietors some years past was surveyed and laid out into 164 lots, with convenient streets and lanes, as may appear by a certain instrument and chart, bearing date September 14, 1696; The said John Haberdinck's share being 35 lots." He stipulated that the income from this property was to be used only to pay the salaries and maintenance of the minister or ministers of the church.—From Abstracts of Wills, II: 284 in N. Y.
 Hist. Soc. Collections (1893). At first it would hardly pay one minister; by 1861, it paid the salaries of four and left a surplus of $70,000 a year.—Eccles. Rec., III: 2228-29. For Shoemakers' Field, see Pl. 24, Vol. I; also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 947.

17 "The Committee Appointed to carry on the Enlargement of the Church having laid before this Board Several drafts or plans for Erecting and Ordering the Scituation of the pews to be Erected in the Same And this Board having Approved of one of the Said drafts or plans It is [so] Ordered."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Mar. An estimate is made by Daniel Ebhets, mason, and John Bell, 23 carpenter, of the expense of the repairs needed in the chapel, the old house, and the officers' and soldiers' barracks in the fort.—*Cal.

 Hist. MSS., Eng.*, 483. See further, May 15.

A committee is appointed in the common council "to Cause the Land belonging to this Corporation lying on the West Side of the Weighhouse and the Great Dock to be Surveyed and laid out in Convenient Lots in Order to Erect Buildings thereon. that the same may be Lett to firmare on A Ground Rent for such Term of Years as Shall be Agreed on by this Court."—M. C. C., III: 341.
 On May 13, the committee reported they had "Caused A Draft to be made of ten Lots, of the Part thereof Next the Street fronting the Custom House;" and it was ordered that "the said Ten Lots of Land be Lett to farm by Publick [outcry] to the highest bidder," on Tuesday, June 16, "at the House of M<sup>r</sup> Obadiah Hunt [the tavernkeeper] Next to the Custom House," at an annual ground-rent for 41 years, and that the proposed sale be advertised.—Ibid., III: 343.
 On June 15, the day before the proposed sale, certain residents of the South Ward entered a petition with Gov. Burnet against leasing part of this ground. They were Jacob Leisler, Stephen Richards, Obad. Hunt, Benj. Wynkoop, Robt. Crooke, Thos. Roberts, Paul Richards, and Isaac de Peyster, who, being inhabitants of that part of the South Ward "near the southeast bastion of the fort, which fronts the place where the dock and one of the market houses were formerly situed," opposed "leasing the ground on which the latter stood."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 485. This petition, "praying A Stop be put to the Letting to firm the ten Lots of Land on the West side of the Dock & Weigh House," was read on June 19 in the common council with an order from the governour (probably directing them to consider it). That body approved an answer that had been prepared and ordered that it be engrossed for presentation to the governour.—M. C. C., III: 345, 346-47. This answer, entered in the Minutes on July 14, stated that the apparent reason for the petition of the residents of the South Ward lay in the fears which they expressed "Concerning the south East Bastion of His Majesties Fort being rendered Useless;" the loss of the outlook they now enjoy there, and their interest "in that Ground where the Old Market House Once Stood and that Space where the Old Dock is filled up." These fears were answered by the common council in the statement that they "did not foresee that any Buildings which might hereafter be Erected thereon would have Obstructed the Guns or weakened that Bastion, which Ranges over those Lots because Buildings upon Leases are seldom of such or Costly Structure but that they may be Soon removed upon any great Emergency." The common council therefore sought to correct the oversight of not asking leave of the governour to erect buildings here, before advertising the lots for rent; and, while maintaining their right to the soil in this locality, they now asked the governour's permission "to dispose of these Lots in Order to build thereon, or to lay them out," as the governour might think convenient. The answer also called the governour's attention to the fact that the houses of some of the petitioners in this locality had been "design'd for Generations yet to Come;" and that the petitioners had personal reasons for desiring no change in their surroundings,—as M<sup>r</sup>. Hunt (see Nov. 20, 1716), for example, who had recently made a garden "behind the Ruins of Whitehall."—Ibid., III: 348-50. This answer was presented to the governour on July 14.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 486. See Aug. 24, 1724. For the location of Whitehall and the other sites and buildings here referred to, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952.

About the end of April, Benjamin Franklin leaves Philadelphia 30 by boat on a visit to Boston, and, returning, stops at New York (presumably early in May). In his autobiography (written in 1771) he states: "The then governor of New York, Burnet (son of Bishop Burnet), hearing from the captain that a young man, one of the passengers, had a great many books, desir'd he would bring me to see him. I waited upon him accordingly . . . The gov<sup>r</sup>. treated me with great civility, show'd me his library, which was a very large one, and we had a good deal of conversation about books and authors. This was the second governor who had done me the honor to take notice of me," the other being Sir William Keith, of Pennsylv-17 ania.—Works of Benj. Franklin (ed. by Bigelow), I: 73-74. See
 Oct., 1723.

The justices of the peace order that certain counterfeit bills of various denominations, "produced to the court" by the mayor ad 6 others, be "burnt to ashes" in open court. This method was the usual way of disposing of such counterfeit money.—*Min. Gen.
 Quarter Sessions of the Peace* (1694-1731), 437, 443, 448, 453.

"Ordered that the two Church wardens M<sup>r</sup> Noxon M<sup>r</sup> Drydale 14

Mar.
 23 Apr.
 23

- 1724 and Mr Crook Iconf (?) or any three of them (whereof one of the July Church wardens always to be One) be a Committee for Carrying on 24 May 14 the New Buildings or addition lately made to the Church and that they have full power and Authority to direct provide and find all things necessary for Compleating and finishing the Said Building."
—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- "Ordered that those persons who have patents for pews in the Old Building and shall purchase pews in the New Building have Liberty to Sell Such pews in the old Building for their own use & Benefit and that Such Sale of the Said pews shall be Confirmed by a patent from the Corporation And it is also Ordered that no patent pass the Seal for any of the pews in the Church until the persons purchasing the Same pay for Such pews . . . —Ibid.
- 15 Gov. Burnet, in a speech to the assembly, informs them of "the ruinous Condition of the Buildings of this Fort, (which is the only Strength of this Town and Harbour)," and advises making "an immediate and sufficient Provision to repair it."—Assemb. Jour., I: 500. One estimate of the repairs needed was made on March 23 (q.v.); another was reported to the assembly on May 19, amounting to £1,427;39 (ibid., I: 501); and, again, on May 20, another estimate was ordered made by a committee with the assistance of carpenters and masons (ibid., I: 502); and, on June 3, they reported an estimate of £2,343;5—Ibid., I: 502. On June 4, the house resolved that a sum not exceeding £2,000 "be granted to his Majesty, for repairing the ruinous Buildings of the Fort."—Ibid., I: 502. An act of the legislature embodying this was passed July 24 (q.v.).
- June Francis Harrison's commission as recorder of the city, granted by 25 Buroet in the king's name, and signed by the provincial secretary, is entered in full in the Minutes. It is dated June 22, 1724.—M. C. C., III: 346.
- July An old chest, still belonging (in 1920) to the Dutch Church, is 2 believed to have been in use as early as 1724. The following action, recorded in the Minutes of the consistory July 2, 1724, probably refers to this very chest: "All Church papers which shall be deemed of importance shall be put in a roll in order and be placed in the Church Chest at the house of Do. Du Bois, the key of which shall remain in the Church room; and nothing shall be taken out of it but by direction of the Consistory. And in the Chest there shall be a book, in which whoever takes anything out of the Chest shall record the fact. Likewise, when anything is deposited, that also shall be noted therein."—Eccles. Rec., III: 2221. The "chest" in which money was kept is referred to, in 1665, in Rec. N. Am., V: 253.
- 6 William Bradford petitions the assembly for the sole right of making paper in the province of New York for a certain number of years. A bill granting this privilege passed the house, but failed in the council.—Assemb. Jour., I: 508, 509, 510; Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 512, 514. Some time prior to 1729, Bradford obtained possession of, and operated, a paper-mill at Elizabethtown, N. J.—Weeks, Hist. of Paper Manufacture in the U. S. (1916), 17.
- 23 The common council passes a "Law Appointing Proper Places for Unloading of Hay." It provides that "no Hay be unloaded within this City but at Hudsons River near the House of Thomas Eld and to the Northward thereof, and at Beckmans Slip at the Lower End of Queen Street and to the Eastward thereof and that no Carman within this City do presume to load any Hay into his Cart or Ride the same from any Other place within this City on the south Side of the freshwater under the Penalty of three Shillings for each Offence."—M. C. C., III: 351.
- 24 A new Militia Act presents again the provisions of the old laws (see May 6, 1691; Nov. 27, 1702; July 27, 1721), but better assembled, and revised by the introduction of several new features. Every three months, or oftener as occasion requires, "Each Regiment and the Troops of horse and unregimented Companies of the Several Countys" are required to be mustered and exercised. Each soldier "belonging to the horse" is to appear provided with "a Good Servicable horse not Less than fourteen haods high Covered with a Good Saddle, Hostlers, hanger Brestplate and Cropper a Case of good Pistolls a Good Sword or hanging halfe a pound of Powder and Twelve Sizeable Bullets a Good hatt Laced with Silver Lace a Black bagg or Ribbon for the hair or peruke a Scarlet Coat Trimmed with Silver a pair of Large boots with Suitable Spurs and a Carbine well fixed with a Good beltt swivel and buckel [later militia acts read "bucket"]. Provided that so much hereof as relates to the Apparel of Troopers Shall Extend to the City and County of New York only." As before, each troop shall number 50 men, "fit for the horse Service and of ability to Equip themselves for the horse service." The foot soldier is to be provided, as before, with "a Good well fixed Musquet or fluzee a Good Sword belt and Cartridge box Six Cartridges of powder and Six Seizable bullets." His uniform is not prescribed in this act. It being the experience of the colonel and other officers of both foot and horse in New York City "that the Severall Corporalls ad Serjeants of said Regiment and Troop, who are often Considerable Tradesmen doe Lose much time and are too Long taken from their Shops or other Necessary care by Levying the fines and forfeitures by this Act Imposed," it is now enacted "that there shall be one Martial in the City and County of New York appointed by warrant from the Commander in Chief or Captain General . . . who shall have full power to make such Levies. He shall retain one-third of each "Distress" as his fee, not exceeding to shillings each.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 187-97. This act was revived and continued by subsequent reenactments until a new Militia Act was passed Oct. 3, 1739 (q.v.).
- The provincial legislature passes an act to raise £6,630 by taxation, and to issue bills of credit to that value, to be expended for various purposes. One of these is to pay for the repair of the buildings in the fort, which, at the act states, are "very much out of Repair and will Some of them fall down and become ruins if not timely prevented."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 173, 174. See, further, Sept. 15, 1725.
- Catharine Post is allowed £6 "for the Use of her House, for the Assembly in Committees."—Assemb. Jour., I: 513. See July 13, 1722; March 23, 1723; Nov. 10, 1725; May 9, 1727.
- The "Loestaff," the station ship for New York, Capt. Norris, Aug. commander, arrives from London by way of Madeira.—From N. Y. 16 letter in Boston News-Letter, Aug. 20-27, 1724.
- "Ordered that the Subscription paper now before this Board and 21 Subscribed by most of them be carried round to the Inhabitants of this City to receive their Subscription towards Supporting the Said M<sup>r</sup> Wetmore, as catechist, or lecturer, to the India and negro slaves, and as assistant to Rev. M<sup>r</sup>. Vesey.—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- Cadwallader Colden, the surveyor-general, reports upon a survey 24 (or "view") with, a map of the lots "laid out by the corporation in the vacant spot between weigh house and Leisler streets, New York, showing how the same will obstruct the range of the cannon of the fort."—Col. Hist. MSS., Eng., 488. See April 23 and Oct. 14, 1724.
- An upholsterer is paid £1:5 "for Making A silk Covering for the seat of Justice in the Court Room in the City Hall and putting on the same Covering and Carpets."—M. C. C., III: 353-54.
- Dr. William Douglass, of Boston, writes to Cadwallader Colden: 14 "It is with pleasure I understand that you incline to oblige the World with a correct Map of N. America, I am sorry that it is not in my power to contribute towards it by sending you a good Map of the Provinces of N. Eng<sup>l</sup>, there is not one extant but what are intolerably and grossly erroneous." He sends hiots which may enable Colden to make his map "far more exact than any hitherto published."—From the original MS., with Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- William Sharps, the town clerk, is reimbursed for his expenses Oct. "for Printing Advertisements for Letting to farme the Lotts on the 14 West side of the Great Dock."—M. C. C., III: 358. On Oct. 24, Cadwallader Colden, the surveyor-general, is paid £12 for surveying and making a "Draft" (plan) of the lots.—Ibid., III: 359. See Aug. 24.
- The common council takes into consideration a representation 24 which the grand jury made to the justices of the last supreme court "Complaining of the Gaol of this City being incommodious and not sufficient to accommodate the Prisoners."—M. C. C., III: 359. See Sept. 11, 1725.
- Theophilus Pell, of New York, a rope maker, by his will of this 27 date leaves an estate in houses and lands. His ropewalk extended west from Broadway in the middle of the block between Dey and Cortlandt Sts.—From note by Pelletreau in Abstracts of Wills, II: 328, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections.
- Colden presents to Burnet "A Memorial concerning The Fur Trade of the Province of New York," and Burnet sends it to the lords 10 of trade. It is an important contribution to the history of this valuable source of wealth to this province.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 725-33. See also ibid., V: 745-57. In a representation made by the lords of trade to the lords justices on June 25, 1725, Colden's "Memorial" is referred to as printed at New York in a book "with a Map of the Country of the five Indian Nations."—Ibid., V: 760. This book was Colden's Papers relating to An Act of the Assembly of the Province of New-York, which was published in 1724 (q.v.).

1724 James Alexander (see Aug. 28, 1735) is paid £6:0:10½ for Dec. "flower'd Damask, Shallon Skane Silk Gold Lace and ferretting 8 by him sold & delivered for the use of this Corporation."—M. C. C., III, 361.

1725

— A book was printed in New York this year, in Low Dutch, bearing the joint imprint of William Bradford and J. Peter Zenger. —See Evans' Am. Bibliography, I: 339; and Rutherford, John Peter Zenger His Press, His Trial, and a bibliography of Zenger imprints (1904), 137. A copy of this scarce Bradford-Zenger publication was sold with the De Puy library at Anderson's, Jan. 27, 1920. The title reads: Klagte Van Eenige Leeden der Nederdajste Hervormde Kerk, Woonende op Raretans, &c., in de Provincie van Nieu-Jersey, in Noord-America, Onder de Kroon van Groot-Brittanje. Over het Gedrag, Aldaar en Elders, van Do. Theodorus Jacobus Frilighuysen, Met syn Kerken-Raaden. Ten Antwoord Op huwre Band-dreghende Daag-Brieven, &c. The Rev. Theodorus Frelinghuysen, pastor of the Dutch church at Raritan, N. J., was accused by some of his congregation of preaching Labadist doctrines or advocating principles akin to those of the early Quakers, resulting in four being excommunicated by their pastor. They published the Klagte as their defence. Rev. Bernardus Freeman wrote from New York to the classis of Amsterdam, April 27, 1725, defending Frelinghuysen, and sending a copy of this "Complaint-Book."—See Eccles. Rec., III: 2197, 2201, 2244, 2309, 2312, 2317, 2330, 2332, 2333, etc. The controversy continued many years.

Jan. Felons and others who are prisoners in the "Common Gaol" 9 having "several times lately Attempted to break the said Gaol and to make their Escape" two more "Watchmen or Bellmen" are added to the four already appointed. All the "Watch & Bellmen" of the city are required to "keep their Watch at the City Hall . . . and be diligent . . . that None of the Prisoners do break Gaol or make any Attempts thereunto."—M. C. C., III: 362-63. See Sept. 11. No other jail, outside of the fort and the city hall, had yet been built. See Oct. 16, 1699.

Apr. The governor's council directs Mr. Wileman, formerly deputy 19 secretary, to search for missing acts of assembly. He wrote on May 13, that he was unable to find them.—Cal. Coun. Min., 298.

May A small-pox patient is landed from a ship from Madeira, and the 25 council orders an investigation, and adopts quarantine measures.—Cal. Coun. Min., 298-99. See also cases of June 16 and 23.—Ibid., 299.

Sept. The revenue of the city "being already Exhausted in Repairing 11 the . . . Prisons, the City Hall the Wharfs and Other Public Structures," the common council decides to petition the assembly for leave to bring in a bill "to Raise Money to Repair the said Prisons & Gaols and to make Necessary Additions thereunto, to keep the same in sufficient Repair and Annually to defray their Publick and Necessary Charge."—M. C. C., III: 369. See Oct. 24, 1724. Such petition, adopted by the common council on Sept. 14, was based upon the difficulties which the high sheriff experienced on account of "the Weakness and Insufficiency of the Common Gaol in this City," and the consequent necessity of putting prisoners of all kinds (debtors, criminals, diseased, and both male and female) in the same apartment (or "hold")—Ibid., III: 370-71. This petition being presented to the house on Sept. 19, leave was given to the city to bring in a bill "to enable the Corporation to raise a Sum sufficient for the building of a new Gaol, or enlarging the Old one," and also to enable them to raise "such annual Sums, as may defray the extraordinary Charges of this City and County, as is usual in all other Parts of this Province."—Assem. Jour., I: 517. The common council deemed it "impracticable to Repair the Present Publick Prisons and Gaols of this City so as to Render them usefull and Convenient." They therefore resolved, on Sept. 23, "that a New Prison & Common Gaol be built within this City on some Convenient Piece of Land belonging to this Corporation;" that £600 will be sufficient "to build and Compleat" it, and that a bill be drawn to raise this sum; also that the money to be raised to defray the extraordinary charges of the city do not exceed £200.—M. C. C., III: 372. The bill with these provisions was introduced in the house on Oct. 6; but, after consideration in and out of committee, it does not appear to have been reported after Oct. 29.—Assem. Jour., I: 523, 526, 527. See, however, Oct. 9, 1727.

15 Gov. Burnet, in a speech to the council, says that the provision they have already made "for renewing the Decayed Buildings of the Fort" has been "frugally and Effectually Employed." He urges them to pass a resolution to provide "what is Still wanting to Sept.

15 29
Compleat it."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 519. See Sept. 29.
Gov. Burnet nominates Johannes Jansen to be mayor for the ensuing year.—M. C. C., III: 374. Jansen was installed on Oct. 14 (ibid., III: 375), and served one year. For a brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 405.

It is reported from the "Committee of the whole House" that the managers of the repairs on the decayed Buildings in the fort should be required to give an account of their expenses for this object and state what sum is needed to "compleat the Buildings which are already brought under Roof." A resolution to this effect is passed accordingly.—Assem. Jour., I: 521. See Sept. 15. On Oct. 1, Alderman Kip, one of the managers, reported that out of £1,000 received from the treasurer, there still remained in his hands £48:13:4; and Cornelius G. van Horne, another member, reported that, out of the £1,000 which he received, there remained £7:3:23.—Ibid., I: 521-22. On Oct. 15, Capt. Van Horne reported the following estimate of expense to complete the buildings:

"For Masons Work and Materials (excepting the Marble and Tiles for the Hearths)	} £94:14:0
"For Carpenters and Joiners Work, Materials and Liquor
"For painting the same,	300: 0:0
	120: 0:0

"Sum Total £514:14:0"

—Ibid., I: 524.

Mr. Le Heup, agent for the province at the court of Great Oct. Britain, writes from London to Gov. Burnet, informing him "of an Address presented to the King by the Government of Boston, to desire that New-York be required to send a Quota of Men and Money to their Assistance, in their War with the Eastern Indians." This letter was submitted to the assembly of New York Province on April 6, 1726.—Assem. Jour., 531.

According to Bradford's own statement, this was the date when Nov. he began to publish The New York Gazette.—See the issue of June 10-17, 1728; also Early New York Newspapers, II: 420, and Bibliography, Vol. V. For fuller discussion of this point, see Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), 416. The earliest issue now known to be in existence is No. 18, published March 7, 1726.—For photographic reproduction, see C. Pl. 88, Vol. II. The Gazette was the first newspaper printed in New York City.—Cf. Evans, Am. Bibliog., I: 348, item No. 2688. The last issue of the paper appeared on Nov. 19, 1744.—Hildeburn, Sketches of Printers and Printing in Colonial N. Y. (1895), 15. Bradford's press, "At the Sign of the Bible," established in 1693, was in Burger Jorissen's second house, built in 1657, at the north-west corner of the present William and Stone Streets, on Hanover Square.—See C. Pl. 82e, Vol. II, and The Castello Plan, II: 331; Innes, New Amsterdam & Its People, 233; and 8th Ann. Rep., Am. Scenic and Hist. Pres. Soc., map opp. p. 106. The N. Y. Cotton Exchange now covers this site.—See "New York Gazette" and "Printing Press," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 963; and Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 248.

The governor, on Nov. 4, desired that the repairs on the fort 6 (see Sept. 29) be completed without delay; but "the House being informed, that if (besides the Rooms already finished in the new Buildings) the Sashes are hung, and the two Rooms are finished, which are now almost compleated, his Excellency is very indifferent whether any more Rooms are finished out of Hand; it is the Opinion of this House, that the Remaider ought to be deferred until next Spring, especially since the Days are now so short that the Workmen can do but little Work in them." They resolve that, at their session next spring, they will "provide a suitable Sum for compleating and finishing the new Buildings in his Majesty's Fort George."—Assem. Jour., I: 529. See April 6, and June 17, 1726.

"The House taking into Consideration, the Convenience and Accommodation which the Members of this House have every Session, as well in the Meeting of Committees, as otherwise, at the House of the Widow Post's, and that the Trouble and Expence which is occasioned to her upon these Occasions, far exceeds her Gains," she is exempted from paying the excise until Nov. 1 next.—Assem. Jour., I: 530. See Oct. 28, 1719. The same resolution was passed on Nov. 9, 1726.—Ibid., I: 555.

The common council makes it clear to certain violators in the 27 Out Ward that any slaughtering in "House Barn Stable Out House Yard Orchard Garden Field or Other place within the Said Ward 1725 (Except for his her or their Own proper use)" will meet with penalty.

 Nv. 27 —M. C. C., III: 380. See Nov. 9, 1698.

Dec. The common council orders that, if the sheriff "will Order A Gallows to be Erected at the usual place of Execution on the Commons of this City," the city will defray the expense.—M. C. C., III: 381. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 972. On April 18, 1726, the sheriff was paid "for Making A Public Gallows on the Commons."—Ibid., III: 385. As in modern times, the erection of a gallows was apparently for only temporary use, as more definitely appears from an order issued in 1727.—See June 20, 1727.

25 The custom-house records of imports and exports at the port of New York between Christmas 1724 and Christmas 1725, show there were 23 incoming vessels, from London (8), Bristol (7), Cowes (7), Liverpool (2), Weymouth (1), Dover (1), and Lancaster and Cork (1), carrying wolen goods, linen, silks, "Hbhry," calicos, cordage, earthen-ware, glassware, bottles, iron and steel, coal, tiles, and brick, grindstones and millstones, lead, chalk, junk and oakum, and salt. The account of beaver and other furs, "with deer-skins," shipped from New York to Great Britain, between Nov. 21, 1724 and Dec. 23, 1725, shows these went to London, Bristol and Cowes. Beaver, etc., has been "wrought up for hats and furnished the People of this Province," and also "Manufactured for Others on Account of the Trade to the West Indies and Neighbouring Provinces."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 774.

1726

— In this year, the French built Fort Niagara (at Lewiston).
 — Bradford printed and sold, in 1726, a volume entitled Acts of Assembly Passed in the Province of New-York, From 1691, to 1725. Examined and Compared with the Originals in the Secretary's Office. There is a copy of this book in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

— The printing-press of John Peter Zenger was established this year, "near the City-Hall."—See Rutherford, John Peter Zenger His Press, His Trial and a bibliography of Zenger imprints (1904), 37-39.

— John Hastier, admitted as a freeman of New York in this year, was one of the early American silversmiths. Two mugs and a tankard made by him are described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 31-32.

Jan. John Rodman, of Flushing, L. I., makes a will, leaving to his son Joseph all the land which he "purchased of the Mayor and Aldermen of New York, with all the buildings, except the tenement, or house and land with the yard belonging to it, now in the possession of Joseph Ledder. Which said land was adjoining to the King's house in New York, and was commonly called the City Hall."—From Abstracts of Wills, III: 46, N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections, 1894.

27 The common council passes an ordinance prohibiting cutting down any "Hoop Sticks" or saplings on the Commons.—M. C. C., III: 383.

" The common council appoints a committee "to Agree with Mr John searle for an Annual Rent for the Roap Walk which he now Occupys on the Commons of this City by the Lyceance of this Court and that if he Refuses to Agree for such Annual Rent that they give him Notice to Remove his Buildings and Conveniencys for Rope making from the same without delay."—M. C. C., III: 383. See Jan. 3, 1719; May 22, 1722; May 28, 1734.

Feb. On account of the increase in the number of those who have no seats in the Dutch Church, a committee of the consistory is appointed to inquire of each person belonging to the congregation "what he would be willing to give for himself, or his family, for the building of a new church on a proper spot elsewhere in the city, or, if not consenting to this, what he would contribute for the enlargement of the old church."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2343-44. This plan of raising funds for this object was altered the following year.—Ibid., IV: 2375; and see Jan. 26, 1727.

Apr. Gov. Burnet, addressing the assembly, says: ". . . the Repairs of the Buildings in the Fort, stand in need of your immediate Care, that the Season proper to finish them, may not be lost."—Assemb. Jour., I: 530. See Sept. 27.

12 "Ordered that two Church wardens . . . [and 3 vestrymen] . . . be appointed a Committee to Settle and ascertain the partition fence between the Churches farme and the Land of Doctor James Henderson . . .

"Ordered that the Church wardens do provide a handsome velvet pawl for the use of this parish and that the fee for the use of the Said pawl be twelve shillings.

"Ordered that all Such persons as have purchased pews in the New Building or Addition made to Trinity Church do take out their respective patents for the Same within the Space of three Months . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Another act of the legislature is passed (see July 24, 1724) to discharge the debt, now amounting to £500, "for finishing & Completing the New Buildings in his Majestys Fort George."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 273, 276. See, however, Sept. 27.

There remain in the keeping of Cornelius van Horne, "one of the late Managers to buy Materials and employ Workmen for the Repairs of the Buildings in his Majesty's Fort George," 805 pounds of nails. He is permitted to buy these at the current rate of "Seventeen Half-penny a Pound." Also, "a pretty large Quantity of Boards are left," and the common council arranges for the sale of these.—Assemb. Jour., I: 543. See Sept. 29, 1725.

Trinity vestry writes to the secretary of the "Venerable Society" (for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts) explaining the need of a "Catechist" in New York: ". . . We humbly pray that he may be One in Orders and directed to Assist in our Church . . . besides this will be an Act of Charity to us who being deeply Involved in debt enlarging our Church and at present having but small hopes of discharging it are unable of our Selves to raise a Sufficient maintenance for one to assist our Rector in his declining Age [The Rev. William Vesey continued his ministrations just 20 years longer] and to preach an afternoon Sermon tho' it is of absolute Necessity and great Importance in this populous City a place of considerable trade and resort and the Center of America; A good English preacher of Such a clever Audible voice as may reach our large Church and the Eares of the numerous Hearers will by the Divine Influence very much advance the Glory of God the Interest of our Holy Church and Religion at this time . . . Were it possible for the Society to have a perfect View of this Infant Church planted among many different nations & Several Meeting Houses we persuade our Selves that her Interest would lye as near their Hearts as it does want their Assistance."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

The "Great Consistory" of the Dutch Church resolves "That the ground of Mr. [David] Jameson should be purchased, for the purpose of erecting thereon a second Church edifice" for their congregation. The great consistory having retired, the consistory appoints a committee to buy the land, and "pay for it out of the Deacons' Treasury." It was immediately bought for £575, payable in three years.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2358. This was the site on the east side of Nassau Street, between Cedar and Liberty Sts. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 935.

It is ordered by the common council that "A Convenient Lodging Room with A Chimney be forthwith made in the East End of the City Hall above Stairs Contiguous to the Great Goal for the use of the Gaoler to lodge in for the better and more safe Keeping of such Prisoners as are or may be Committed to the said Gaol or Prison."—M. C. C., III: 391. See Sept. 11, 1725.

The wording of the oath administered to a freeman, although established in 1695, was not entered in the common council minutes until this date, when it appears as follows:—

"The Oath of a Freeman of the City of New York
 "Ye shall Swear that Ye Shall be good and true to our sovereign Lord King George and to the Heirs of our said sovereign Lord the King. Obeysant and Obedient shall ye be to the Mayor and Ministers of this City. The Franchises and Customs thereof Ye Shall Maintain and this City keep harmless, in that which in you is. Ye shall be Contributing to all Manner of Charges within this City as summons Watches Contributions Taxes Tallages Lot and Scot and all Other Charges bearing Your Part as A Freeman Ought to do. Ye shall take no Apprentice for a less Term than for seven Years Without fraud or deceit, and within the first year ye Shall Cause him to be Enrolled or Else pay such fine as Shall be reasonably Imposed upon you for Omitting the same, and after his Term Ends within Convenience Time being Required ye Shall make him free of this City if he hath well and truly served you. Ye Shall know of no gatherings Conventicles or Conspiracies made against the Kings Peace but you Shall warn the Mayor thereof or lett it to your power. All these Points and Articles ye Shall well and truly keep According to the Laws and Customs of this City. So help you God."—M. C. C., III: 392. Although the form of the oath was not previously recorded, a change in it as regards apprentices was ordered, Oct. 30, 1711.—M. C. C., II: 455. In the oath as approved Nov. 18, 1731, the apprentice clause was omitted.—Ibid., IV: 121.

1726 For the text as used in the early part of the nineteenth century, see Feb. 23, 1819.

27 Gov. Burnet, in addressing the general assembly, states that he hopes that by frugal management "the Repairs of the Roof of the Chapel and the Barracks, which are in a Condition entirely ruinous, will require no very large Sum." He urges that the work be not delayed until next spring, as the cost would then be greater.—Assemb. Jour., I: 546. But see Nov. 10, 1726.

29 Gov. Burnet appoints Col. Robert Lutting mayor of New York.—M. C. C., III: 394. Mayor Lutting was serving for his tenth term when he died on July 3, 1735 (q.v.). For a brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 405; Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 178.

Nov. The governour's council orders that a certain Indian deed for the beaver hunting country as far west as Tegerhunkerode (Detroit, Mich.), which has been received, be recorded.—Cal. Coun. Min., 302.

10 The assembly empowers Capt. Rutgers and Capt. Van Horne to buy materials and employ workmen "to new Shingle the Chapel and such Part of the Barracks in his Majesty's Fort George, as may require the same, and that they Cause the same to be done the next Spring or Summer."—Assemb. Jour., I: 555. But see Sept. 30, and Nov. 24, 1727.

14 Trinity vestry orders "that the Church Wardens doe wait on the Mayor Recorder and Aldermen of this City and Acquaint them that the Vestry will readily Appropriate either the pew in the East Gallery in which the former Mayors used to Sitt or the pew in the west Gallery of the Church (in which his Excellency the Governour lately Satt) for the use of their Corporatioo which of the Said pews they shall be pleased to accept of and appoint."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Dec. Archibald Kennedy, the receiver-general and collector of customs of the province (N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 768), prepares an account, from the custom-house books, of the number of negro slaves imported each year into New York. There was a total of 2,395, from 1701 to 1726, inclusive, all of whom were imported by private traders, none by the Africa Company. The numbers ran from 8 in the year 1704 to 447 in 1718, from the West Indies; from 24 in 1705 to 266 in 1717, from the coast of Africa, and 117 in 1721 from Madagascar.—Ibid., V: 814. See also Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. (Dec. 16, 1724), 490.

1727

— In this year, William Tennant, a Presbyterian, established the first theological school in America, commonly called the "Log College," at Neshamioy, Pa.

— Thauvet Besley, admitted as a freeman in this year, was one of the early American silversmiths. A tankard made by him is described in Met. Museum of Art C. C., an Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 12.

Jan. A committee of the Dutch Church consistory is appointed to ask the approval of the governour of their undertaking to build a new church. They obtained his consent the next day.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2375. See Jan. 26.

24 The common council passes a law appointing "the Market House at the lower End of Wall Street near the East River Commonly Called Wall Street Market House" to be a market "for the sale of all sorts of Corn, Grain & Meal;" and requiring that, after March 25, "No Corn Grain or Meal be sold in Publick Market within this City at any Other place (but at the Aforesaid Wall Street Market House)."—M. C. C., III: 404. This came to be designated as the "Meal Market."—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959.

26 "The ruling consistory" of the Dutch Church resolves that instead of asking for voluntary subscriptions (see Feb. 12, 1726) for building the new church, it shall be commenced with funds out of the church treasury.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2375-76. See, further, March 9.

Feb. An "Indenture Grant" of the ferry, bearing this date, from the city to Theophilus Elsworth, a "Victualler," describes it as "That Certain ferry Between the City of New York and Nassau Island Commonly Called the Ferry of New York." The grant includes "the New Brick house Old house Pen Land and well," etc., situated "at the place Commonly Called the Ferry," in the "Township of Brookland."—From the original lease, filed with Richard Varic papers, among Miscell. MSS. in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

Caldwallader Colden publishes his well-known book entitled The History of the Five Indian Nations Depending on the Province of New-York in America. Printed and Sold by William Bradford in New-York, 1727 (138 pp., 12mo.). An "Advertisement" (opp. p. 1) states, "There is now Published a MAP of the great Lakes, Rivers and Indian Countries mentioned in the ensuing History. Printed and Sold by William Bradford in New-York." This was the map entitled "A Map of the Countrey of The Five Nations . . ." which first appeared in 1724 (q.v.).—See description of A. Pl. 2-b, III: 862. The book was the result of a dispute between the governour of New York and some merchants, and is mainly a legal argument. It was the first general history of the Iroquois, and the first historical work printed in New York.—Church Catalogue, No. 905; Sabini, IV: 222, item No. 14270.

Not more than four copies of this original edition are now known in the United States. It was reprinted at London, with large additions (8vo.) in 1747 and 1750, and in 2 vols. (12mo.) in 1755.

"Dr. Colden, of Scotch descent, came to America in 1710, and settled in Pennsylvania, where he practiced medicine. In 1718 he was induced by Governor Hunter, of New York, to remove to that colony, where he was appointed Surveyor General, and soon after Master in Chancery. Four years after he was raised by the crown to the important place of a Member of the Legislative Council; and a large grant of land was made to him. In 1746 he was made Lieutenant-Governor of New York. He is said to have been the best informed man in the colony."—From Bibliotheca Americana (catalogue of the library of James Carter Brown, Providence, R. I., 1870), 108-9, citing the earliest biography of Colden, that written by John Gilmory Shea in his introduction to the reprint of Coldeo's History, pub'd by T. H. Morrell, N. Y., in 1866.

The "Great Consistory" of the Dutch Church resolves: (1) that the new church building "shall be begun out of the money in the Deacons' chest," to which shall be added £2,200 if that sum can be obtained; (2) that it "shall be a four-sided oblong;" (3) that it "shall be built on the ground bought for it, to the north of the French Church" (which was on the north side of Pine Street, east of Nassau); (4) that it shall be 100 ft. long and 78 ft. broad, inside measure (but see May 31); (5) that the "Great Consistory" will leave the direction of the undertaking to the "Ruling Consistory," and "that the earliest progress be made with the building of this New Church."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2378, citing "Liber B. 65." The "Ruling Consistory" appointed John van der Heul director of the building operations; Teunis Tiebout master-carpenter; and Cornelius Turk master-mason.—Ibid., 2378-79. On April 13, it was agreed that Tiebout and Turk were to "receive daily as wages, for their care and pains and direction of those who are under them: viz., seven shillings daily, and six pence for drink."—Ibid., IV: 2390.

The grand jury having brought in a presentment of the "Incommodiousness and Insufficiency of the Goales of the City and County of New York," the supreme court orders that the mayor and aldermen have a sufficient number of men employed to guard "the Prisons in this City" to prevent escapes. On March 24 the common council gave suitable orders to the watch and bellmen, and appointed a committee to look after repairs to the goals to be done under the direction of the high sheriff. They also resolved to petition the next assembly for leave to bring in a bill "for making and Erecting sufficient & Commodious Common Goals for the Said City and County." They directed the mayor or recorder to inform the chief-justice and attorney-general that they had then taken "all the Effectual Measures in their power" to repair and guard the goals; that they intended to petition the assembly; and that they desired no prosecution to be brought against "this Corporation and the Justices of the Peace of this City & County," they "Humbly Conceiving" that they had no authority, by any law then in force, "to Levy Money upon the subject for the Making or Repairing of Goals." To defend themselves, in case prosecution were commenced against them, they engaged the recorder (Francis Harrison), and Joseph Murray and John Chambers, attorneys at law (see July 30, 1728), each of whom was paid £5 as a retaining fee.—M. C. C., III: 405-7, 411, 412. See also the order of April 25, for making a prison out of "the West End of the City Hall Over the Common Council Chamber &c."—Ibid., III: 410. Regarding the proposed bill in the assembly, see Oct. 9.

"This is to give Notice to all Gentlemeo and others, That a Lottery is to be drawn at Mr. John Stevens in Perth Amboy, for £50 of Silver and Gold work, wrought by Simeon Soumain of New

- 1727 York. Gold-Smith, all of the newest Fashion. The highest Prize consists of an Eight square Tea-Pot, six Tea-Spoons, Skimmer and Tongues, Valued at £18 7s. 6d. . . . the said Goods are to be valued and appraised by Mr. Peter Van Dyke, and Mr. Charles Leroux [see 1713], two Goldsmiths in the city of New York."—Am. Merc. (Phila.), March 23, 1727. Some specimens of Soumaine's work are described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 48-50.
- 24 The common council orders that Robert Crooke be appointed "the Surveyor of this City in the Room of Mr William Bond who by Reason of his Age & Infirmities has Resigned that Office," and that the mayor issue a warrant to Crooke under his seal.—M. C. C., III: 407.
- " The recorder (Francis Harrison), Joseph Murray, and John Chambers, attorney at law, who were later the authorities chiefly instrumental in drafting the Montgomerie charter (see March 23, 1730; Feb. 11, 1731), are retained by the city as counsel in certain cases.—M. C. C., III: 406-7. See also March 21.
- " "The Butchers and Other Inhabitants of this City Superabound in a Very great Number of Mischievous Mastiffs Bull Dogs and Other useless Dogs who not only Run at Coaches Horses Chaise and Cattle in the day time whereby much Mischief has Ensued, but in the Night time are left in the Streets of this City, and frequently Bite Tear and Kill several Cows and Render the passage of the Inhabitants of this City upon their lawful Occasions Very dangerous in the Night time through the Streets thereof by Attacking and flying at them." The constables of each ward are required to go from house to house and warn the inhabitants who have dogs to keep them in their houses or yards at night.—M. C. C., III: 407-8.
- Apr. 13 A royal mandate, appointing Archibald Kennedy to the council, in place of Thomas Byrley, deceased, is received by the governor's office, he is sworn in, and takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 303.
- 25 The common council orders that a committee of aldermen and assistant aldermen, with Mayor Lotting and Recorder Harrison, "Cause the Partition Line between the Lands of this Corporation and those of Harlem to be Run surveyed and Ascertaind on the fourth day of May next," and that they "take the surveyor of this Corporation or any Other surveyor to their Assistance," giving notice to the trustees of Harlem that they may be present with a surveyor on their behalf; also that as soon as the survey is made the committee shall inspect and inquire "what Encroachments are made upon the Lands of this Corporation in the Out Ward," and shall remove them.—M. C. C., III: 409-10. On May 9, the committee reported the surveying partly done on May 4, "Most of the Inhabitants of Harlem and Mr Clowes their Surveyor being present;" it was ordered that they finish the survey "with all Convenience Expedition."—Ibid., III: 411. On Dec. 29, 1727, a payment of £3 was made to the executors of Lawrence Kortright (a tavern-keeper), "in full of Expenses of this Corporation at his House in April and May last on Running the Harlem Line."—Ibid., III: 426-27. From another payment on the same day, it appears the work was again in progress in October (q. v.). Obadiah Huut, who was one of the committee appointed on April 25 (vide supra), was allowed £5:8:11 on July 6, 1728, for expenses of this committee at his tavern.—Ibid., III: 441. See also "Harlem" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 987.
- " The common council orders that the west end of the city hall over the council chamber be made into a prison.—M. C. C., III: 410. For the prison in the east end, see under Sept. 1, 1726; also Pl. 32-b, Vol. I. Although a committee was appointed to make application to the assembly for a law to secure the necessary funds, no action resulted. A similar application to the assembly, July 22, 1730, mentions "Gaols" (M. C. C., IV: 18), and a committee was named Aug. 26, 1731 (q. v.), "to Cause A Strong Gaol to be made at the West End of the Said City Hall on the upper floor thereof."
- May 9 Mrs. Catalina Post is paid £2:16:9 "for Expenses of the Committee in Agreeing with Bellmen & Other Expenses at her house by Other Committees on the publick Affairs of this Corporation."—M. C. C., III: 411. This is the last record in the Minutes of this tavern, which had been a favourite meeting-place since 1718. See April 10, 1718; Aug. 22, 1721; July 13, 1722; March 23, 1723; July 24, 1724; Nov. 10, 1725.
- 22 At a meeting of the Lutheran Church officers, to consider the proposed new building (see July 3, 1708), Hans Rome and Mr. Tibout are appointed carpenters (the latter serving alone later;
- and Cornelius Turk and Abraham Aalsteen, masons. The plan is to be made by Mr. Chevalier. The ground measures four rods square. The building is to be 46 ft. long, 30 ft. broad, 25 ft. high up to the nave(?), and 23 ft. to the top (all inside measurements). There are to be ordered in England 200 lbs. of nails, a chest of double glass, and a good church door-lock, etc. Mr. Van Bokkelt is to supervise the steeple. Wood from the Kinderhook saw-mill is to be delivered, consisting of 24 boards of 14 in. fir wood for the pulpit. Mortar is to come from Lassing(?). The flat measures shall be the same as the old church, but so that a gallery can be built in, and a steeple built on, the new church. The cost is to be £600. A collection taken up yielded £165:15:3 for this purpose (of which £70:11:6 is in cash, and the balance to be paid in July). It is resolved that the old church be broken down as soon possible.—Lutheran Church records (M.S.). See Oct. 2.
- 31 At a meeting of the consistory of the Dutch Church, it is proposed to reconsider the conclusion reached at the meeting on March 9 (q. v.) of the "Great Consistory" (that the church should be 100 ft. long, and 75 ft. broad, on the inside), and to see if it would not be possible to make the rest the outside measures. "1. This was unanimously approved. 2. As soon as the Church is begun, the foundations of the Tower shall be laid, and it shall be carried up along with the Church, as far as the wall (of the church) goes. 3. The Church shall be placed exactly in the middle of the (plot of) ground, South and North. That is to say, to be as far from the West as from Barberie Strion [her house] and on the North, to begin ten feet from the straight line of the lot. 4. If it should be judged expedient to have the Tower two or three feet broader, on account of the doors, or the staircase, the matter is left to the 'Ruling Consistory'."—Eccles. Rec. (1902), IV: 2390-91. Referring to No. 3, Dr. Corwin stated that, in 1844, the church stood about 30 ft. east of Nassau St., the intermediate space being filled with graves. The tower was at the Liberty St. end of the church, ten feet from the "present" (1902) southerly house line on that street. The main entrance was from Cedar St., where there was a large yard.—Ibid., IV: 2391.
- June 11 The reign of King George II begins, on the death of George I. It ended Oct. 25, 1760.—N. Y. Col. Docs., III: Intro'd., p. ix; ibid., V: 825.
- 20 The common council orders that "there be A Publick Gallows made and Erected upon the Common of this City at the usual place of Execution."—M. C. C., III: 412. It was paid for on Aug. 8, 1727, "for the Execution of Moses Soussman."—Ibid., III: 414. See also Dec. 23, 1725; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 972.
- July 17 Notice is published cautioning masters of vessels, sailors, passengers, and others not to violate the act of parliament "for Establishing a General Post Office" (see June 23, 1711), which provides that they "shall immediately upon their Arrival in any Port, deliver the Letters & Paquets on Board to the Post-Master or his Deputy, under the Penalty of Five Pounds of British Money, for every several Offence."—N. Y. Gaz., July 10-17, 1727.
- Aug 12 Lord Townshend notifies the lords of trade that the king has appointed John Montgomerie to be governor of New York and New Jersey, and directs them to prepare his commission and instructions.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 823. The commission is dated Oct. 4, 1727.—Ibid., V: 834-41. Regarding his instructions, see ibid., V: 833-34, 841.
- 21 Gov. Burnet proclaims King George II at New York, having received "by a private hand the printed Proclamation and Declaration of His present Majesty."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 824; N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 21-28, 1727; Cal. Coun. Min., 303. After proclaiming the king at Perth Amboy, N. J., on Aug. 25, he wrote to the Duke of Newcastle asking the latter to recommend him "to be continued in these Governments."—Ibid., V: 825. Evidently, word had not yet arrived of the appointment of Montgomerie. See Aug. 12.
- 24 The governor and members of the council present take the oaths of allegiance to the new king, and they order that a proclamation be issued requiring all officers to do likewise.—Cal. Coun. Min., 303. The oath of allegiance (or the abjuration oath) to King George II declares: "I AB do swear that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure, as impious and heretical that damnable doctrine and position that princes excommunicated or deprived by the pope or any authority of the See of Rome may be deposed or murdered by their subjects or any other whatsoever And I do declare that no foreign prince person prelate state or potentate hath or ought to have any Jurisdiction power Superiority preeminence or Authority Ecclesiastical or Spiritual within this Realm." The oath, further,

1727 acknowledges this king to be the lawful and rightful king of his realm; that "the person pretended to be prince of Wales during the life of the late King James" has no right to the crown; that the person taking the oath will defend the present king against "Traitorous Conspiracies and Attempts" which may be made against "his person Crown and dignity;" that he will disclose all treasons, and will maintain the succession of the crown, which (according to the parliamentary "Act for the further Limitation of the Crown and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject") is limited to "the princess Sophia Electress and Dutchess Dowager of Hanover and the Heirs of her Body being protestants."—From facsimile (with signatures added), in Man. Com. Cans. (1859), opp. p. 445.

Another north administered to office holders under the crown professed belief that "in the sacrament of the Lords Supper there is not any Transubstantiation of the Elements of Bread and wine into the Body and Blood of Christ at or after the Consecration thereof by any person whatsoever And that the Invocation or Adoration of the virgin Mary or any other Saint and the Sacrifices of the Mass as they are now used in the Church of Rome are superstitious and Idolatrous."—Ibid., opp. p. 448.

Sept. Bradford advertises that he has for sale "Very good Pressed Papers for Fullers and Fulling-Mills." From time to time he advertised other commodities which he or his son William Bradford, Jr., sold, such as coffee (N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 9-16, 1727); "Mill'd Stockings" (ibid., Oct. 30-Nov. 6, 1727); "Bohe Tea" (ibid., May 27-June 3, 1728); lamplblack (ibid., April 21-28, 1729), etc.

19 The inventory of the effects of Thomas Selby, who died on this day, included "one map of New York." For discussion of this subject, see description of Pl. 25, I: 241-42.

30 Gov. Burnet, in addressing the assembly, says: "There has been so much already done, to beautify and repair the Buildings in the Fort, that I am persuaded you will not Leave that work imperfect. The Soldiers Barracks are in a very ruinous Condition, and will require a much greater Charge if what is necessary to keep them from falling, be not done without Delay."—Assem. Jour., I: 58. The work on the barracks dragged along for several years.—See Nov. 24, 1727; Aug. 23, 1728; Oct. 16, 1733; Apr. 5, Sept. 2, 1737; Sept. 5, 1738.

Oct. The Harlem Line is again being surveyed (see April 25), as appears by a payment of £41:6:4 $\frac{1}{2}$ , on Dec. 29, 1727, to Edward Blagge (tavern-keeper) "for Wide Run Beer Pipes Tobacco and Other Expenses at his House by A Committee of this Corporation in October last."—M. C. C., III: 427. That the line was twice surveyed was stated when payment of £2 was made, Feb. 5, 1728, to Robert Crooke, the city surveyor, "for Surveying twice the Division Line between the City and Harlem."—Ibid., III: 431. See, however, Jan. 27, 1749; July 12, 1750. This line does not appear to have been shown on any map of this early period. In the office of Francis W. Ford's Sons, city surveyors, formerly at No. 8 James St., was a map of 1750 (see under Jan. 9, 1750) by Maerschchalck, showing the line between the New York and Harlem Commons (reproduced on Pl. 36, Vol. IV); and, in the Banker Cell. (in N. Y. Pub. Library), box G-H, folder "Harlem," is a description of the "Harlem Line," surveyed by Banker and F. & A. Maerschchalck on April 11, 1773 (q. v.). This map or description was prepared after the line had been established by the legislature, on March 24, 1772 (q. v.). The line is also shown on the Goerck Map of the Common Lands (1785), reproduced on A. Pl. 9-a, Vol. III.

1 At about this date, "the Honourable John Montgomerie, Esq; who is appointed governor of New-York" (see Aug. 12), is expected to leave London and "come away in a Man of War" to this city.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 6-13, 1727.

2 Work on the new Lutheran Church (see May 22) stops, until subscriptions are increased. This condition continued until the end of 1728.—Lutheran Church records (M.S.).

7 The common council presents two addresses to Gov. Burnet, both prompted by the death of King George I, which occurred June 11 (q. v.). The first expresses their great esteem for the late king, and compliments the governor on his administration. The original draft of this address is preserved in metal file No. 4, city clerk's record-room. The second is an address to the throne, to be transmitted by Burnet to the new sovereign, George III.—M. C. C., III: 419-21.

9 A bill is again introduced in the assembly (see Sept. 11, 1725) to enable the city to raise £600 "to build a convenient Goal and Prisons within the said City," and also to raise an annual sum, not exceeding £200, to pay the city's necessary public charges.—M. C. C., III: 419; Assem. Jour., I: 560. It was read a second time on Oct. 10, and referred to a committee.—Ibid., I: 561. As in 1725, however, it does not appear that the bill was reported out of committee. See also March 21, 1727.

A conference committee of both houses of the legislature is appointed to meet on Oct. 10 "at the House of John De Honneur."—Assem. Jour., I: 560. De Honneur was proprietor of the famous Black Horse Tavern, which stood on the west side of William St., south of Exchange Pl.—Liber Deeds, XXXVIII: 93; N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 4-11, 1755; Du Simitière MSS., in Ridgway Branch, Library Co. of Philadelphia. His tavern was a favourite meeting-place for committees of the lower house, and was the headquarters of the liberal faction. It was here that Andrew Hamilton, Zenger's attorney, was entertained after the trial on Aug. 4, 1735 (q. v.). In 1740 the tavern was referred to as "the late Black Horse Tavern."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 19, 1740. By 1750, the Black Horse had moved to Queen (Pearl) St., and was being run by Jonathan Ogden. See July 23, 1750.

10 Jason Vaughan presents a petition to the assembly stating "that he has set up a School in the City of New-York, to teach the Greek and Latin Languages," and "is willing to instruct a certain Number of Poor Children therein," if the house will allow him "a consideration for the same."—Assem. Jour., I: 561. No law appears to have been passed to compensate or aid him.

19 The flour exported from New York having lost much of its reputation abroad, and it being "the staple Commodity" of the colony, the assembly orders that a bill be brought in "to prevent the Exportation of unmerchantable Flour."—Assem. Jour., I: 563. See Dec. 19, 1715. The subject came up again on July 30, 1728 (ibid., 577), but a law to this effect was not passed until Nov. 24, 1750 (q. v.).

29 On this night occur "two Shocks of an Earthquake at New-York, and at Long Island the same."—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 30-Nov. 6, 1727.

Nov. The new Dutch Church was evidently under construction by this time, for the account of the director, Van der Heul, shows transactions amounting to nearly £900.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2395.

10 A letter of this date from "Whitehall" states that "His Majesty hath been pleased to appoint John Montgomery Esq; to be Governour of New-York and New-Jersey in America, in the room of William Burnett Esq; who is appointed Governour of the Massachusetts-Bay and New-Hampshire in America, in the room of Samuel Shute Esq;."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 29-Feb. 5, 1728. See Aug. 12. See also N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 356-58, 572-73, regarding Burnet's transfer.

15 Gov. Burnet permits the Jews to omit the words "upon the true faith of a Christian," in taking the abjuration oath, as when giving testimony under oath in the courts.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 560.

16 The consistency of the Dutch Church agrees to pay Van der Heul, "for his trouble as Director of the building of the New Church," £130, in three payments,—the first as soon as possible, the second when the church shall be under roof, and the third when it is completed. The finishing of the tower may be postponed for two years, in which case he shall be released from the oversight of it.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2396. The consistency also resolves that the seats and pews "shall be of native wood," to be delivered the latter part of 1728, and paid for the early part of 1729. Van der Heul "shall also contract for 40,000 shingles, two feet long, an inch thick, and six inches broad, to be paid for on delivery, or afterward," according to the best bargain that can be made.—Ibid., IV: 2396-97, citing "Liber B. 75."

18 Sarah Varick and others, the proprietors of certain grounds and wharves in the Dock Ward, petition for a patent, with privilege of extending their wharves 200 feet into the East River.—Cal. Land Papers, 186. The report of the committee of the governor's council, rendered Nov. 19, is favourable to their erecting a dock and wharf "on a street to be forever hereafter called Burnet street."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 500.

24 Agreeable to the resolutions of the assembly of Nov. 10, 1726 (q. v.), Capt. Rutgers and Capt. Van Horne lay before the house an account of expenses for materials and labour "in new Shingling the Chapel and such Part of the Barracks in his Majesty's Fort George, as required the same," amounting to £1121:6 $\frac{1}{2}$ , towards which they have received £100 from the treasurer. The house votes the balance due the committee, being of the opinion that the 1727 amount needed to complete the barracks ought to be taken from the £200 which the colony has annually appropriated for the repair of fortifications.—Assemb. Jour., I: 571. In Sept., 1728, the barracks had not been fully repaired, and an act was passed to raise the sum required for that purpose.—See under Aug. 23, and Sept. 20, 1728.

25 Rip van Dam and others petition for six years further time for completing their wharves on the East River.—Cal. Land Papers 186-87. See Jan. 22, 1722.

" The assembly resolves "That the erecting or exercising in this Colony a Court of Equity or Chancery, (however it may be termed) without Consent in General Assembly, is Unarrantable, and contrary to the Laws of England, a manifest Oppression and Grievance to the Subjects, and of pernicious Consequence to their Liberties and Properties."—Assemb. Jour., I: 571.

" A new ferry act is passed by the general assembly moderating the ferry rates established ten years before, and making them payable in English currency.—Gf. Nov. 2, 1717. For transporting any person one way across the East River, to or from Nassau Island, the rate prescribed is "Ten Grains of Sivil Pillar or Mexico Plate or two Pennys in Bills of Credit made Current in this Colony," and double that after sunset (unless the ferry-man neglects or refuses to transport the person sooner). Any "Portable thing which A Man or Boy Carrys under his Arme or A Woman under her Arme or in her Apron" shall be "Included in their Ferriage." For a horse the ferriage is "one Shilling in like Money;" a calf, "four pence in like Money," etc., a large variety of articles being specifically catalogued,—a pipe of wine, a bushel of salt, a fikin of soap, etc.—the list of which is to be pasted on a board by the ferry-man and hung up "in the Porch of the Ferry-houses, or at the most Publick place there."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 407-10. The next and final colonial revision of the Ferry Act was on Oct. 14, 1732 (q. v.).

Dec. 5 " To Morrow Morning [Dec. 5] the Eastern and Western Posts set out to perform their Stages once a Fortnight during the three Winter Months."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 27-Dec. 4, 1727. See also Dec. 2, 1728.

12 David Wallace and David Willson, having been convicted of "a Cheat, in passing some Bills, which were made Counterfeit Bills of Credit of the Province of New-Jersey," are now "brought to the Bar," and given an unusual sentence. On Dec. 12, they are to be "placed in a Cart, so as to be publicly seen, with Halters about their Necks, and Carted thro' the most Publick Streets in this City; and then be brought to the publick Whipping-Post," where Wallace is to receive 39 stripes and Willson 28. The sheriff is then to deliver them "at the Ferry-house in Kings County." They are to be "set on the Pillory" at Flatbush late in January and again receive 39 and 28 stripes respectively. A similar punishment is to be inflicted at Jamaica in Queens County, in February, and then in Westchester County, in March, after which they are to be delivered to the high sheriff of New York at Kingsbridge. They are then to remain in prison six and three months, respectively.—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 4-11, 1727.

15 Gov. Burnet having presented an organ to the Dutch Reformed Church, and it having been placed in position "in our old church" (in Garden Street), the ministers, elders, and deacons appoint Hendrick Michael Kock (or Cook) organist. Among the terms of the appointment is the provision that he shall teach John Peter Zenger, "the present organ-blower" and future printer, to play the organ. The sum of £100 a year is to be paid to Kock for playing, and £12 to Zenger for blowing, the organ.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2397-99.

29 The common council resolves to farm the ferry for five years, from March 25, 1728, and appoints a committee to meet for the purpose on Jan. 18, 1728, at the house of Obadiah Hunt "near the Custom House" (Pearl St., between Whitehall and Hanover St.).—M. C. C., III: 428. The expenses of the committee, on this occasion, were £6:15.—Ibid., III: 434. On the same day, the common council allowed Hunt £2:11:9 for expenses of other committee meetings at his house.—Ibid., III: 427.

1728

— About the year 1728, a Baptist congregation, organized in 1724, erected its own house of worship, on "Golden Hill" not far from the later Baptist Church on Gold Street.—Greenleaf, Hist. of Churches in City of N. Y. (1846), 224, 226. About 1732, the building was sold as private property and the congregation disbanded. The church was described as being about 20 feet square, with twelve-foot posts, and a pyramidal roof running up to a sharp point.

It was said to be still standing in 1865.—Disosway, Earliest Churches in N. Y. (1865), 309. See 1712; Feb. 7, 1715, and March 14, 1760. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 928.

Mayor Lurtwig was reimbursed, in 1734, for the expense of "Carting of Timber out of the Parade before the Fort in the year 1728."—M. C. C., IV: 228.

Harmanus Rutgers comes into possession of his farm "near the Fresh Water Hills on the East side of the Bowry Lane in the outward," which he acquires from the heirs of Hendrick Cornelisen van Shaick. This is part of the original grant to Cornelis Jacobsen Stille on March 18, 1647 (q. v.). There was an old farm-house, as well as baros and out-buildings, on this land at the time of the conveyance.—Liber Deeds, XXXIII: 19-29 (New York). As "Rutgers," the house is shown, north of the Jews burying-ground, on the manuscript map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I). The new Rutgers mansoion was begun in 1754 (q. v.) on ground bounded by the present Rutgers Pl., Clintoo, Cherry, and Jefferson Sts.

Many people cross on the ice from New York to Long Island.—Am. Merc. (Phila.), Feb. 6, 1728. See also Jan. 9, 1720.

Trinity vestry orders "that the Church wardens do let out that part of the Churches farme opposite to Spring Garden [see Nov. 1, 1712] from the South Bounds thereof which is not Comprahended in M<sup>r</sup> Lakes & Harisons Lease for any number of yeares not exceeding three . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS).

Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to lay out the Churches ground behind the Church yard into Soe many Lotts as they shall think most beneficial for the Churches Interest and that when it shall be Soe laid out into Lotts that they Lease the Lotts out for any Number of Yeares not exceeding forty under full Yearly ground rents Covenants and Restrictions as they shall think most proper . . ."—Ibid.

The ferry to Long Island is leased to Theophilus Elsworth for five years at a rent of £258 per year.—M. C. C., III: 430-31. After ten years' experience leasing the ferry in two parts, an experience attended with much friction between the ferry-men and, indeed, with litigation (see Jan. 10, 1723), the common council reverts to its former policy of one lease and one ferry-man. For "Entertaining of this Corporation at his House on the delivery of Possession of the Ferry," Elsworth was subsequently reimbursed by the board.—Ibid., III: 460.

Cotton Mather dies in Boston.—Winsor, op. cit., 129. The common council appoints a committee, who, with the city surveyor, are "to lay out and survey on the West Side of Incloakbergh [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 966] two Acres of Land for a Brick Kiln &c," which are to be leased to Wessell van Norden at 20 shillings a year.—M. C. C., III: 434.

The consistency of the Dutch Church resolves "That the movable sashes [of the new church] shall be made with iron frames, and a broad groove, that will close well; and the panes shall be five inches broad and seven long: that the South and North sides of the inner ceiling shall be hipped, as well as the East and West [sides]; that on the West side shall be two open windows at the end; that on the South and North sides shall be as many as can be: that on the East side, on either side of the pulpit shall be two loose sashes in each window."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2406. On April 18, it was resolved "That the glass windows above the South door, shall begin four feet above the door, be three panes wide, and run up two and twenty feet by . . . [sic] and above shall be another glass . . . of six feet long, then, in the high place above, a round glass in the middle."—Ibid., citioq. "Liber B. 73."

The new governor, John Montgomerie, arrives "with his Majesty's Letters Patents."—Assemb. Jour., I: 573; N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 855. He lands "near Whitehall . . . about one A Clock afternoon." Soon after, he "Published his Commission in Council in his Majesties Court and took the Oaths, then Swore the Council;" and then "Published his Commission at the City Hall the Corporation waiting on his Excellency and the Garrison Militia Horse and foot being under Arms and making A Double Guard from the landing to the Fort and from the Fort to the City Hall."—M. C. C., III: 436-37. The seals were delivered to Gov. Montgomerie by the retiring governor, Burnet, and a council order was issued for a proclamation to be published continuing officers in their places.—Cal. Conm. Min., 306.

The common council orders, prepares, and delivers an address to Gov. Montgomerie expressing their felicitations on his safe arrival, their fealty, and their submission to his patronage and pro-

1728

—

—

—

Jan.

9

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

29

—

—

Feb.

5

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

13

Mar.

21

—

—

—

Apr.

14

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

15

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

16

—

—

1728 tectio. They resolve also to "Compliment" him with the freedom Apr. of the city, and that "the Seal be Enclosed in A Box of Gold." The 16 address and the governour's reply are entered in full in the Minutes.
—M. C. C., III: 434-36. The freedom of the city, dated May 2, was delivered to him on May 3. Charles le Roux was paid £26:6:6
on the same day for making the gold box.—Ibid., III: 439.

18 Montgomerie dissolves the assembly by proclamation to "reconcile all animosities."—Cal. Coun. Min., 306. On May 6, writs were prepared to summon a new assembly "to meet after harvest."
—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 855.

20 The common council of "Corporation" gives an entertainment at the tavern of Obadiah Hunt (see Oct. 20, 1718), "for treating his Excellency the Governour." Hunt was paid, on May 3, the sum of £15:6:6 for this and "some Expences on his Excellencies landing in this City."—M. C. C., III: 439.

May The "Minister, Elders, and other Members of the French 6 Church in this City" present an address to Gov. Montgomerie, expressing their joy at his safe arrival, and asserting: "We promise
Our selves all the Favour and Protection that our hearts can wish from a Person of your Excellency's Birth and Character, who hath so long attended on a Prince, and with Universal Acclamations, at the head of the Protestant Interest. . . ."—N. Y. Gaz., May 13-20, 1728.

8 The court of general sessions having proposed to the grand jury, etc. to join with them in an address "to his Excellency to Congratulate him on his safe arrival to this his Government," and this being "readily accepted," such an address is drawn, approved, and ordered to be engrossed and siged "by this Court his Majesties
Attorney General the High Sheriff, Clerk of the Peace Coroner Grand Jurors and the Attorneys at Law then Attending this Court."
They wait upon "his Excellency with the said Address at his Majesties Fort George;" it is presented by Robert Lutting, and read by Francis Harrison.—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 493-95.
They express in this address their "great and very just Joy" at his "Safe Arrival." They state that, "Upon these Occasions, it has been usual for those who had the Honour to Address their Governours, to join their Prayer for the Preservation of their Rights, Liberties and Properties, with their solemo Assurances of Endeavouring to deserve so great a Blessing;" but add: "your Excellency has anticipated even our Wishes, and by your publick Declarations of your Noble and most Generous Intentions towards this Province, left us nothing to Petition for, except it be, That your Excellency will believe, that you have filled our Hearts with Esteem and Gratitude. . . ." They close by asserting their loyalty to the king and crown of Great Britain. Montgomerie acknowledges this with thanks, promising to support them in their "Rights and Authorities," and hoping that, as magistrates, they will exert themselves "in putting the Laws in Execution for his Majesty's Service, and the good of the People of this City and County."—Ibid.; also
N. Y. Gaz., May 6-13, 1728.

28 Until this time, there has been spent in building the new Lutheran church (see May 22, 1728), £99:7:4½.—Lutheran Church records (MS.).

30 Montgomerie recommends to the lords of trade that James de Lancy be made a member of the council.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 856-57.

June There has recently arrived at New York, from Dublin, a ship-load of men and women "Servants." Many of the men "are Trades-men, as Black Smiths, Carpenters, Weavers, Taylors, Cord-Weavers, and other Trades." They remain on the vessel, "lying over against Mr. Reads Wharff," and are to be "disposed of by John & Joseph Read, on reasonable Terms."—N. Y. Gaz., June 3-10, 1728. See April 28, 1729.

19 The tavern on the north-west corner of Wall and Water Sts., later famous as the Merchants Coffee House, an institution which helped to mould the future commercial character of Wall St., was, at this period, and probably earlier, in possession of John Dunks, whose sign was the "Jamaica Pilot Boat."—N. Y. Gaz., June 24-
July 1, 1728. In an account of a fire which occurred there on Jan.
18, 1736 (q. v.), the tavern was described as the "Corner-House by the Meal-Market." The building was offered for sale in July, 1736, and again on Jan. 30, 1738, the advertisement stating that it had been a "well frequented Tavern for several Years past."—*N. Y.
Jour.*, July 26, 1736 and Jan. 30, 1738. Daniel Bloom purchased the house in June, 1738 (Bayles, Old Taverns of N. Y., 128), and changed its name to the "Merchants Coffee House."—N. Y. Post

Boy, Jan. 16, 1743. After the death of Bloom, the tavern was kept by Capt. James Ackland, and later by Luke Roome, who sold it to Charles Arding in 1758.—Bayles, op. cit., 130, 154. In 1771, when Arding offered the house for sale, it was in the possession of Mrs. Mary Ferrara, a widow.—N. Y. Merc., June 10, 1771. By April 27, 1772 (q. v.), Mrs. Ferrara had removed from the old building and "open'd the spacious elegant new Coffee-House on the opposite corner." After Mrs. Ferrara's departure, the old coffee-house was evidently given up as a tavern; for, under date of April 26, 1773, we find an advertisement of hats manufactured by Nesbitt Deane, who "resides in the Old Coffee House, facing the new built one."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 26, 1773. It was still a hat store in 1790, when the building was offered for sale: "That corner house which makes the corner of Wall and Water Street, with the adjoining tenement, in Water Street, commonly called the old Coffee House, occupied at present by Mr. Cusick, the Hatter."—
Daily Adv., Feb. 5, 1790. On Jan. 31, 1792, the Tontine Association, which had already purchased adjoining property, bought the old coffee-house of Dr. Charles Arding and Abigail, his wife, for £1,970, and later added to their holdings by the purchase of the estate of Mordecai Gomez.—Stone, Hist. of N. Y. City, 318-30.
The old buildings were at once torn down and the Tontine Coffee House was erected on this site. See April 14, 1792.

A number of indentured Irish servants arrive on the ship
"George," commanded by John Anthony Adamson. Persons desiring to purchase the "times" of these servants (a term of service to pay their passage-money) are directed to the captain on board the ship, or to the super cargo, Samuel Moore, "at Mr John Dunks at the Sign of the Jamaica-Pilot upon the Dock."—N. Y. Gaz., June 24-July 1, 1728. For other instances of this character, see Nov. 14, 1728; April 23, 1739; June 9, 1746; Aug. 19, 1751; 1759;
June 3, 1774.

The governour's council makes record of the fact that George 20 Clarke is confirmed by the king in his office of provincial secretary.
—Cal. Coun. Min., 306.

The consistency of the Dutch Church appoints Jan. Bogardus 27 and Peter Brouwer master-masod of the new church in place of Cornelius Turck, who has died, and they are to divide his pay.—
Eccles. Rec., IV: 2415.

The common council resolves "that A Powder House be 6 Erected," and a committee is appointed to find a convenient location.—M. C. C., III: 442. They reported, on July 30, that a piece of ground, 100 or 120 feet square, "upon the Common near the place where the Gallows now Stands," was the proper place.—Ibid., III: 445. On Aug. 23, it was resolved that it be "forty foot long and twenty foot broad within the Walls thereof, that the same be built of good Stone and Lime Nine foot high under the Beams with A good Roof Covered with Pantiles."—Ibid., III: 446. The location was changed by resolution of the common council on Sept. 5, 1728, to "a little Island in the fresh water," which was considered "a proper piece of Ground and the most Convenient place."—Ibid., III: 449. Instead of building the house entirely of stone, it was found, on Sept. 10, that enough stone could not easily be procured, and it was decided to use both brick and stone.—Ibid., III: 450.
For date of completion, see Nov. 21. The erection of this powder-house had been contemplated 11 years earlier (see Oct. 22, 1717).
For subsequent action concerning it in common council and assembly, see June 1, 1721, and June 5, 1722; see also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 923; Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 600; and Addenda.

A committee of the common council, appointed the day before 27 to inspect the great dock, long bridge, and common sewer, promptly reports that the dock is so "Choked up" with sand and mud at its mouth as to be rendered useless. They find that both ends of the dock should be raised with "Stockadoes," new "Wall Plates" laid thereon, and the ground behind levelled so as to prevent the water of violent rains running into the dock; also that the bridge and sewer need a good deal of repair. They recommended that Anthony Ham, the dock-master (see May 12, 1713), be removed, and that Capt. Andrew Law be appointed to succeed him. Ham is immediately discharged, and required to account for the profits of the crane, dock, and slips during his continuance in office, and pay the balance to the treasurer. Law is appointed, his duties being to keep the accounts and collect the rents and profits of the crane, dock, and slips, taking care that the orders and regulations of these properties be executed effectually. His salary is to be £30 a year from Aug. 1.—M. C. C., III: 441, 443-45.

- 1728 Joseph Murray and John Chambers, attorneys at law, are voted the freedom of the city, each being "A zealous Assertor of the Rights and Privileges of this Corporation." They had declined to accept a retaining fee, and expressed "their zeal and Affection for the good and Welfare of this Corporation."—M. C. C., III: 445-46. See March 21, 1727.
- July 30 Col. Abraham de Peyster, an influential member of the Reformed Dutch Church, and member of the council of the province, dies. He directed in his will that a bell be procured at his expense from Holland for the new Dutch Church, on Nassau St. The bell which was made in Amsterdam in 1731, was inscribed: "Me fecerunt De Gravæ et N. Muller, Amsterdam, Anno 1731."
- Abraham De Peyster, geboren den 8 July, 1767, gestorven den 8 Augustus, 1728.
- Een legaat aan de Nederduytsche Kerke Nieuw York." (A legacy to the Low Dutch Church at New York.)
- A Discourse*, by Rev. Thomas De Witt, D.D., 97; Man. Com. Coun. (1861), 562, 575. This bell now hangs in the tower of the Collegiate Reformed Church, at the north-west corner of Fifth Ave. and 48th St., having first hung in the Middle Dutch Church on Nassau St., and later in other Dutch churches "in the march northward."—A Brief Account of an Historic Church (pub. by the consistory, 1904), 36.
- 9 The committee on grievances of the assembly meets every Thursday evening at the "House of John d'Hooveur."—Assemb. Jour., I: 579. See also ibid., I: 603.
- 14 The Dutch Church consistory contracts with H. Van der Spiegel to make the windows of the new church.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2438.
- 23 Gov. Montgomerie informs the assembly that he has "carefully inspected the Fort here, where the Fortifications, the Carriages of the Cannon, the Barracks and the Magazines are all in a bad Condition." The house orders that Col. Myadert Schuyler, Capt. Rutgers, and Major Philippe inspect and report an estimate of the expense of the needed repairs.—Assemb. Jour., I: 583. For the committee's report, see Sept. 13.
- " A petition is read in the common council from the "Principal Inhabitants of this City of the Hebrew Nation," stating that some years before they purchased "A Small piece of Land beyond the fresh water for A Burying place for the Said Inhabitaunts;" but that the "Said-Burying place being now Adjoining," the petitioners "would have purchased some more Land fulljoining thereto, but it being in dispute they Could not have A Title to the same." Whereupon, they "were Obliged to purchase two Lotts of Land lying near the Cripple Bush or Swamp being the Numbers 84 & 85 which Contain fifty foot in breadth and one hundred and twelve foot in length;" but they "would not presume to make A burying place thereof without the leave and Licence of this Corporation," and this they now ask. The petition is granted with the understanding that the burying-ground will be kept "very well Inclosed and Fenced."—M. C. C., III: 447-48.
- The author is informed by Mr. Samuel Oppenheim that the land "near the Cripple Bush or Swamp" was on Gold St., between Beckman and Ferry Sts.; and that, "though the petition was granted this land was not used, as the land adjacent to the then existing burying-ground became available through the purchase from Roy Willey [see Dec. 17, 1729] of his land, which had been in litigation." See Liber Deeds, XXXI: 319 (New York), which included the old burying-ground there.—From Mr. Oppenheim's letter to the author. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 927; Pl. 174; cf. Feb. 22, 1656; 1682; and Dec. 17, 1729; 1784; 1805; 1855.
- Sept. 5 Obadiah Hunt, the tavern-keeper (see Oct. 20, 1718), is permitted to lay a drain "through the Street Commonly Called Custom House [Pearl] Street into the Common Sewer in the Broad Street," no other person being allowed to use the drain without his permission.—M. C. C., III: 449-50.
- " The common council orders "that Mr Jacobus Roosevelt have Liberty to Open the Slip fronting the East River Commonly Called Hardenbrookes Slip and to Carry away the Soil incumbering the same to such Vacant place or places as he Shall think fit without detriment to the Neighbourhood."—M. C. C., III: 449.
- " The common council resolves "that ten Lotts of Land lying in the Swamp or Cripple Bush in the Rear of Beckmans Land on the North East Side thereof "be granted in fee simple to Jacobus Roosevelt for £100.—M. C. C., III: 449. In the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (in Box 1 of MSS. labeled "New York") is a package containing papers regarding the land at Beckman's Swamp (the "Cripple Bush"). One of these is a survey of the ten lots laid out, by order of the common council on this date, by Robert Crooke, city surveyor; also a petition from James Roosevelt in regard to a street to his ten lots in the Cripple Bush, and the report thereon by the common council. The grant of Sept. 5 was succeeded by a grant of the entire swamp, July 20, 1734 (q. v.). See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 967.
- On Sept. 20, the board ordered "that Mr Jacobus Roosevelt pay the Consideration Money to the Treasurer of this City for the use of this Corporation, for the ten Lotts of Land lately Granted unto him in the Cripple Bush and that the said Treasurers Receipt shall be unto him A sufficient discharge for the same, and that those Moneys be Applied to the use of Building the Powder House of this Corporation [see Sept. 21] and to no Other use whatsoever, whereof the said Treasurer is to take Notice." At the same time, the treasurer is directed to keep account of the money received from Roosevelt, and of the payments from this fund to the powder-house committee, so the expenses may be paid as soon as the house is finished.—M. C. C., III: 451.
- Col. Schuyler, one of the committee appointed on Aug. 23 (q. v.) to inspect the fort, reports "that for repairing the Soldiers Barracks, the Timber, Nails, Boards, and other Materials belonging to Carpenters Work (his Labour included)" the cost will be £14616;9; and that they "have not enquired what the Masons, Smiths nor Glaziers Work will amount to, for completing the said Barracks." It is resolved to raise £200 by taxation for repairing the barracks in Fort George.—Assemb. Jour., I: 588. A law to this effect was passed on Sept. 20, 1728 (q. v.).
- The legislature passes an act to raise £200 by an "Extraordinary Levy" to repair the barracks in the fort. The quota of the city and county of New York is £55. Daniel Goutier is named in the act to be the "Manager" for buying materials and employing workmen; he is to report his expenditures to the governor.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 498; N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 874. See Nov. 24, 1727.
- The inhabitants, living near the "Market House at the slip Near Burgers Path" (Old Slip), are given permission by the common council to repair the market-house at their own expense.—M. C. C., III: 458.
- " Capt. Cowil Mayne, commander of the king's ship "Biddesford," is given the freedom of the city for dispersing the forces of a Spanish privateer which had "made barbarous havocks and depredation upon the Coasts of this Province."—M. C. C., III: 458. The seal was enclosed in a silver box, made by Le Roux, costing £1259.—Ibid., III: 460.
- Nov. 6 The new meeting-place (see 1724) "for the Congregation of Dissenting Christians Called Baptists to perform Religious Worship" is recorded at the court of general sessions, on the petition of Nicholas Eyres, Richard Stillwell and Cornelius Stephens. It is described as "A House Erected upon a Lott of Ground in the East Ward . . . upon the Hill Commonly Called Golden Hill fronting to Orange Street."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 502. This is one of the earliest references found to both Golden Hill and Orange Street.—Cf. Landmark Map. Ref. Key, III: 966 and 1007.
- See A. 14 An advertisement states that the ship "Thomas," from London, has arrived in New York with "several Men, Women and Boys, Servants, amongst whom there are several Tradesmen, as Bakers, Weavers, Bricklayers, Carpenters, Shoemakers, Glaziers, Coopers, &c. Whoever inclines to purchase the Time of any of them, may apply to Peter Vallette at his House in New-York; the Master and Mate of said Ship having made Oath before the Mayor of this City, That the said servants, nor any of them, are not convicted Criminals, but that they are Persons that freely and voluntarily engaged themselves by Indentures, to serve a certain time for their Passage."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 11-18, 1728. See June 19.
- 20 The consistory of the Dutch Church agrees to pay £25 to the carpenter for completing the arched ceiling and the floor above the ceiling of the new church; and £16 to the masons for every 15 feet "of the timber which they split and nail in the ceiling."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2440-41.
- The committee of the common council appointed, on July 6, for building a powder-house reports that it has built it "on the Island Adjoining the fresh water pond," at an expense of £2241;7;9. This account is paid immediately.—M. C. C., III: 462-63. See July 6. For a quarter century prior to this date, the only place recorded as a repository for powder was a vault within the fort.—See May 28, 1720.

1728 Dirck Eghbertse, a baker, is permitted to build an oven under the street opposite his house "in Burgers path." His house and ground are "in the East Ward of this City Standing by the Street or Lane called Burgers path over against the House and Ground formerly belonging to the late Cap<sup>t</sup> Johannes Vanbrugg."—
M. C. C., III: 463-64.

Dec. "The Boston & Philadelphia Posts will set out to Morrow morning at 9 o'Clock, to perform the Stage, but once a fortnight till March next, and during the said 3 Months this Gazette is to come out every Tuesday Morning."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 25-Dec. 2, 1728. The announcement was a yearly one.—See Dec. 5, 1727.

19 Cornelius Clopper and wife sell the plot of ground where Evert Duycking's house had stood to the trustees of the Jewish congregation, Lewis and Mordecai Gomez, Jacob Franks, and Rodrigo Pacheco.—Liber Deeds, XXXI: 263. Here was erected, in 1729
 (q. v.) and 1730, the first synagogue built especially for Jewish worship. This congregation had been worshipping for many years in a house belonging to John Harpending (see 1695).—See Oct.
 30, 1700; Castello Plan, C. Pl. 82e, and pp. 299-300, Vol. II

1729

— The second Lutheran Church, begun in 1727, was completed early this year at a cost of £6114:5s.—Lutheran Church records (MS.). See also under 1676; and May 22, 1727. The present historian of the church, Rev. Mr. Karl Kretzmann, writes of this improvement: ". . . the old church in New York, built in the days of Domine Arensius, which was 'more like unto a col-shed than a house of God,' was replaced, on the same site (Broadway and Rector Street) [the south-west corner], by a substantial stone edifice, measuring 30 by 46 ft., with a spire 58 ft. high, furnished with a bell which Queen Anne had presented to the Palatines of Newburg in 1709. This church was dedicated June 29, 1729, and named 'Trinity Church.' It served the congregation as a place of worship until destroyed by the great fire of [Sept. 30] 1776."—The Oldest Lutheran Church in Am. (1914), 21. For view of the church (redraft), see ibid., 22.

— On the lot purchased from Cornelius Clopper on Dec. 19, 1728 (q. v.), was built, in 1729 (see the Castello Plan, C. Pl. 82e, and
 p. 300, Vol. II), the first synagogue constructed for Jewish worship, this congregation having previously rented the house of John Harpending (see 1695). This lot was 40 feet front on the north side of Mill Street, 40 feet in the rear, 110 feet in length on the western side (adjoining the property of J. M. Alexander), and 93 feet in length on its eastern side.—Liber Deeds, XXXI: 263. "Its southwestern corner was about 175 feet from the corner of Broad street.
 Subsequent purchases extended this lot to the east (46 feet) to the line of the ancient warehouse of Peter Golet, Esq. (Nos. 14 and 16 South William St.), and to the north to the old line of Princess street in the middle of the present Beaver street."—Dyer, "Points in N. Y. Jewish Hist." in Am. Jewish Hist. Soc. Publications, III: 52; ibid., Nos. 21 and 27, passim. The first building erected on the Cornelius Clopper lot was 36 by 58 feet. This synagogue, named Shearith Israel (Remnant of Israel), was consecrated in April 1730 (q. v.).—Ibid., VI: 127. See also Dyer, op. cit., Nos. 21 and 27 (Index). It was a small stone structure, separated from the street by a wooden paling having a gate at the eastern end; the entrance to the synagogue was in the rear.—Ibid.; see also illustration in ibid. It stood on the sites of No. 22 and parts of No. 20 and 24 So.
 William St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 929. In 1818, it was rebuilt; but on the removal of many families of the congregation from this vicinity, as business advanced and monopolized the lower part of New York, the Mill St. property was sold, and, in 1833
 (q. v.), Shearith Israel began the erection of its second edifice, at 56
 Crosby St.—Dyer, op. cit., Nos. 21 and 27 (Index); see also Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches in City of N. Y. (1846), 121; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., IV: 381.

Jan. A store-keeper is appointed for the new magazine or powder-house, built "on an island on the fresh water" (see Nov. 21, 1728).
 He is put under a bond of £200 for the faithful discharge of his duties, and is required to account under oath to the common council for the profits of his office every three months. At the same time, an ordinance is passed "for the better securing of the City of New York from the danger of Gunpowder." The house is to be used for the safe-keeping of powder belonging to private owners.—M. C. C., III: 465, 466-67. See, however, June 18. Bradford was paid 15 shillings, on April 10, for printing this "By-Law."—Ibid., III: 469.

14 The news is published at New York "that Sr William Keith has obtain'd the grant of a Commission to settle a Stamp-Office through North-America, for stamping all Bills, Bonds, Deeds of Conveyance, Writs, &c, as in England."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 7-14, 1729.

A letter is published calling attention to laxity in the city in regard to the prevention of fires: "The City of Philadelphia (as young as it is) have had two Fire Engines for several years past; and its a Wonder to many that this City should so long neglect the getting of one or more of them. People in London are not left to their own Fancies in their Buildings, but are regulated therein, so that their Houses may be most Defensible against Fire. But nothing almost of this Economy have we; and what we have we Neglect; for we have some Laws for Leather Buckets, but they are not put in execution. . . . The Shingling of Houses ought to be discouraged, and the Tying or Slating encouraged. . . . The Mundillions of our New Buildings seem to please the Eye, but I'm afraid if that piece of Vanity be not discouraged we or our Children will one day pay dear for it."—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 4-11, 1729.

The consistency of the Dutch Church, being "in a great need of funds to go on with the New Church," resolves to apply to each one of the congregation "for a free gift for the building. . . . and affectionately request a liberal subscription." Their written request to this effect was read from the pulpit on March 9 and 16.
 After it was read, however, "it was deemed best to delay carrying it out, because of the length of the winter, the very general sickness prevailing, and the many deaths." Meanwhile, the consistory requested Gov. Montgomerie to give permission "to make a collection in the City." He acceded and gave his consent in writing on April 25.
 The subscription paper was then taken around.—Eccles. Rec., IV:
 2450-54. The original document, consisting of the petition of the consistory, on which Montgomerie has written his consent, is now in the author's collection, and is here reproduced (Pl. 29). Like the petition, the governor's license for this object recites the needs of the church that led to building the new edifice, which is now "under Roof."—
Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 291-92; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 504.

"The Posts for Boston & Philadelphia will set out on Monday next [Mar. 10] at three a-Clock in the Afternoon, in Order to perform the Stage Weekly till December next."—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 25-
 March 4, 1729.

Sessions of the supreme court in New York City are temporarily suspended on account of the prevalence of measles.—*Cal. Coun.
 Min.*, 307. They were further adjourned on April 21, on the advice of Doctors Johnson and Colden.—Ibid.

James Alexander, writing from New York to Cadwallader Colden, says: "There was never so great a mortality here Since I came to this place as now, there no day but what there numbers of bury-ings, Some of the measles, but most of the pain of the Side, there's hardly a house untouch[ed] but what has Severals Sick of the one or the other of these Distempers, Some have half a Score at a time four of our children have had the Measles. . . . So you may Easyly think the town is not a little Distress. Our Supream Court was adjourned. . . . for Six weeks because of the Sickness of the town."—From the original letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

The Exchange Coffee House is mentioned in an advertisement.—
N. Y. Gaz., March 18-25, 1729. It stood at the present north-east corner of Broad and Water Sts., and was the property of Philip van Cortlandt.—See Sept. 22, 1709. As the "Coffy House," this tavern is shown and named on the MS. Map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I). It is also depicted in the Burgis View of 1715-17 (Pl. 25, Vol. I). In 1749, Andrew Ramsey succeeded David Cox as proprietor and moved the tavern into the house next door, formerly Wm. Todd's tavern, the present 101 Broad St. See May 28, 1735.

James Alexander again writes to Colden regarding the epidemic:
 "In all my days I never saw so generally a Sickness in a place nor a greater mortality."—From Box 2 of the Colden Papers, in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc.

Robert Crooke, the city surveyor, is paid £2:19:3 by the common council "for Surveying the Harlem Line the last year and for laying out ten Lotts in the Swamp behind Beekmans Land to be Granted by this Corporation to M<sup>r</sup> Jacobus Roosevelt."—M. C. C., III: 470. See Sept. 5, 1728.

Walton & Read advertise that a load of servants has been received from Dublin.—N. Y. Gaz., April 21-28, 1729. See also June 10, 1728.

An advertisement offers for sale "the House commonly called
 The Dancing School, which has a large Oven fit for a Baker, a good Yard and a Pump with Very good Water in said Yard; it is situate in the Broad Way near the Fort in the City of New-York."

Jan. 14

Feb. 11

Mar. 6

10

11

14

25

26

Apr. 10

See A.

23

28

11

1729 Prospective buyers are referred "to John Barberie, Merchant in New York."—N. Y. Gaz., Apr. 21-28, 1729. The "Dancing School" is at one time the "Royal Oak," for the history of which see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 980. It was on part of the site of No. 26 Broadway, now (1922) occupied by the Standard Oil Co. bldg. John Barberie owned the property from 1709 to 1732.—Cf. Liber Deeds, XXVI: 377 and XXXIV: 1. This was the "Theatre" shown on the map of 1735, Pl. 39, Vol. I.

" The office of the receiver-general is located in the custom-house, as appears in a proclamation of the governor's ordering quit-rents paid.—N. Y. Gaz., Apr. 21-28, 1729.

May The store-house of Cornelius van Horne (see June 17, 1726) is "on the Wharff, near the Old Slip," as appears in an advertisement for the sale of capers at 12 pence a pound.—N. Y. Gaz. May 5-11, 1729.

19 The "Market-house by Burgers Path" is mentioned in an advertisement for the sale of "European Goods."—N. Y. Gaz., May 12-19, 1729.

22 The consistency of the Dutch Church resolves: "1. That the north and south wall of the New Church, and of the Tower, should immediately be carried up as high as the ridge of the roof . . .

2. That the church shall be made close [tight?] all the way round, with doors, sashes and wooden windows. 3. That in place of more windows in the Tower, on each story, as they are now beginning to make them? and will proceed, east, west and north there shall only be openings in the Tower for light outwardly, six inches wide, and about three feet high; but inwardly, running wider. 4. That on the north church wall, on either side of the Tower, in front of [opposite?] the two lofts of the roof, where it will suit best, there shall be windows, each 18 inches broad, and 2½ feet high. 5. On the south side, in the second story of the roof and in the middle, shall be two moveable windows. And the oval there, on either side, in place of glass, shall be masoned up and wainscoted outside, with wood painted like glass. But the highest oval, in the midst of the top [near the peak] shall be of glass. 6. That lead color, for a priming, shall be laid on the frame of the ceiling." The consistency also resolves that "the wood-work of the Tower shall not be made until a model of the same has been shown to the Consistory."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 248-57.

June A committee of the governor's council meets "at Obadiah Hunt's."—Assemb. Jour., I: 598. Hunt's tavern, which was next to the custom-house, was a resort of the common council as early as Oct. 20, 1718 (p. 22). It was here that Governor Burnet was entertained on Sept. 20, 1720.—M. C. C., III: 234. It was here that the ferry had been leased at times.—Ibid., III: 305, 428. Hunt made a garden, in the spring of 1724 behind the ruins of Whitehall.—Ibid., III: 349. The place had therefore been a popular resort for at least 11 years. It continued so at least 13 years longer.—See Jan. 13, 1735.

18 The west end of the powder-house, which is partitioned off, is appropriated by the common council for the use of the governor, to store there the powder of the garrison, the key to be delivered to him.—M. C. C., III: 473. See Jan. 10.

24 Because the number of persons has greatly multiplied who have "set up to practice the Law," and many of them have encouraged "unwarrantable Methods," to the vexation and damage of "his Majesty's good Subjects," a committee of the assembly is appointed to consider ways to check the evil. They reported that a bill ought to be brought in for that purpose, and this was done the following day.—Assemb. Jour., I: 600-1. No law to this effect appears, however, to have been passed. But see July 28, 1729.

26 The governor's council receives a royal mandate appointing James de Lancy to the council; he is sworn in and takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 308.

Lewis Morris, Jr., is suspended from the council for reading a scandalous paper before it.—Ibid., 308. On April 23, 1730, a royal mandamus dismissed him from the council, and appointed Philip van Cortlandt to his place.—Ibid., 309.

27 A public, municipal, circulating library is founded. The mayor informs the common council that he has received a message from the general assembly (Assemb. Jour., I: 601-2) that the governor has received a letter from David Humphreys, secretary of the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, dated in London, Sept. 23, 1728, stating that the society has received a bequest of a library of 1,000 volumes from the late Rev. Dr. Millington, rector of Newtoning, and that the society has decided to place the library in New York, "it being their Intention it should be Established A Library from which the Clergy and Gentlemen of this Government and Jersey Pensilvania and Connecticut might borrow Books to read upon giving security to Return them within A Limited time." The society desires to have some thought given to the preservation of the books before they are sent over. The common council replies at once to the message, with thanks, and states that a large room will be provided.—M. C. C., III: 474-75.

On April 22, 1730, it was recorded in the Minutes that the society had "made A Present to this Corporation of twenty three Cases of Books Containing One thousand Six hundred and forty two Volumes for a Public Library for this City which are lately Imported into the same [in] the Ship Alexander[.] Dennis Downing Master and are now ready to be landed and delivered to this Corporation." A committee was appointed to place them in the city hall until a convenient place be made for them.—Ibid., IV: 10-11. On June 2, 1730, this committee reported that they had opened the cases, taken the books out, and placed them in the assembly-room, and were of the opinion that the room opposite the common council room would be a proper place for depositing them. It was ordered that the committee have this room fitted up for them, accordingly, "with Convenient Shelves and Desks Necessary thereunto."—Ibid., IV: 12-13. On July 22, 1730, the committee was required to have a catalogue (see June 8, 1730) of the books made, to clean them, and to place them in the room fitted up for them; also to prepare a letter of thanks to the society. A draft of such a letter was submitted by the recorder, acknowledging receipt of the books "By the hand of the Reverend Mr William Vesey," and stating that "a handsome large room" had been fitted for them; and this was signed by the mayor.—Ibid., IV: 17-18. The books were placed on the shelves during the month of August.—Ibid., IV: 61. The carpenter, Johannes Roome, was paid on Sept. 17, 1730, £70:17:7½ "for Carpenters and Joiners Work, Meas Labour, Materials Cartidge Liquor &c: done, found and Expended on fitting up the Library Room."—Ibid., IV: 25. Roome's original itemized bill, which includes £400:3 for beer and rum, is preserved among the old vouchers in the comptroller's office (in the package of vouchers labelled 1815-16, where of course, it is misplaced). See also the discussion in Keep, Hist. N. Y. Society Library, 69-70. Alexander Lamb began service as "Keeper of the Library" in 1734, at a salary of £3 per year, which was raised to £4 in 1739; he continued to serve until 1742.—M. C. C., IV: 304-5, 407; V: 55, 299.

The common council appoints a committee to cause the following lands to be surveyed and laid out, leaving convenient streets, wharfs and slips:—"The Land between Highwater Mark and Low Water Mark on Hudsons River from the House of Mr Gaebsack near the Fort to the Grant of Mr John Rodman and also all the Land between the Respective Purchases of the Several Inhabitants and Proprietors of the Lotts on the West Side of the Broadway and Highwater Mark on Hudsons River." The committee is also required "to Ascertain and Appoint when and in what manner and by whom the same Streets Wharfs and Slips are to be made, etc., and "upon what Terms the same Lands Ought to be Granted, and to Ascertain the Annual Rent to be paid by Every Purchaser."—M. C. C., III: 475-76. This committee reported, on Nov. 8, the terms on which Col. Gaebsack, Mr. Wileman, and Adolph Philipse were willing to accept grants from the city, adding their opinion regarding the laying out of streets. The report was approved, and the common council resolved that, "For the better utility of the Trade and Commerce of this City, Increasing New Buildings there-in and Improving the Revenues of this Corporation, . . . Two Streets be surveyed and laid out on Hudsons River from the South Side of the Purchase of Cott Gaebsacks House near the Fort to the south Side of the Purchase of Mr John Rodman on the same River, One Street of thirty foot in breadth at low Water Mark and the Other of forty foot in breadth at High Water Mark on Straight Lines that is to say the High Water Mark to be about the Center of the Said Street, that there be three Slips in the Said Streets (to witt) One fronting the Narrow Street which Runs through the Land of Adolph Philipse Esqf Commonly Called Goetsd Street, One fronting the Narrow Street Near the Land of Alderman Vangelder Commonly called the Alley that leads to Oyster Pasty and the Other fronting the Narrow Street which Runs from the Broadway on the south side of the English Church to the Locust Trees and that the Said Streets Wharfs and slips be made Completed & finished by the Respective Purchasers of the Lands fronting and Contiguous to the same within five years from and after the first day of May next Ensuing," etc. A committee was

By his Excellency William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, Secretary of State, to the Honorable the Board of Trustees of the Royal Academy of Arts, London.

Mr. J. G. Gwynne.

Sir,

I have the honor to receive from you a Letter of the 10th Inst. in relation to the Art of Printing, and Arithmetick, for and during the Year of the King of our Sovereign Lord, and by the Grant of His Majesty of Great Britain, Ireland, Wales, Town of Berwick, &c. &c. 1766.

Yours &c. &c. Wm. Pitt

51119

1729 appointed to have the streets surveyed and laid out.—M. C. C., III: 486-88. See also Feb. 13, 1723.

June 27 The two streets here provided for are the lower parts of Greenwich and Washington Streets of the present day. Golets Street is the present Morris Street, formerly known as Beaver Lane. "The Alley that leads to Oyster Pasty" is the present Exchange Alley, and the "narrow street which runs from the Broadway to the south side of the English Church to the Locust Trees" ran somewhat to the north of the present line of Rector Street, which, at first under the name of Robinson Street, took the place of the lane in 1739.—See April 4, 1739. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, under names of streets mentioned.

July 28 Certain prominent lawyers of New York City form a close corporation by articles of agreement bearing this date. The discovery of this important document in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. adds a most interesting original record, hitherto unnoticed, to the sources of colonial history in this city and province. The full text of the manuscript, which is in the handwriting of William Smith, the first signer of the agreement, is as follows:

"Agreement made among Lawyers

"We the Subscribers taking into Consideration the great number of persons who lately have obtained Licences to practise the Law, and many others who are endeavouring, or propose to obtain them, Several of whom are not sufficiently qualified for that business, and as they depend thereon for their Subsistence they naturally must as in fact they do, use low and undue methods for acquiring business to themselves which does & must tend to stir up litigious Suits and by their want of Capacity the Subjects are deceived abused and misled, and their undue practises will not be confined only to them who use them but will reflect a general Odium on the profession of the Law which renders it highly our Duty as much as in Us lies to prevent & remedy the Evils that do & may arise from such abuses in order whereto we have come to the following Articles of Agreement to wit

"1. That when any practitioner who has obtained his Licence since the last day of June 1725 is employed in any Cause We or either of Us shall not directly or indirectly be concerned on that Side, by advice or otherwise and if any such practitioner or his Client or any other person shall apply to either of us to be concern'd, such of us who shall be so applied to, shall absolutely refuse to be concern'd with such practitioner & immediately send word thereof to the rest of us.

"2<sup>dly</sup> When any person does actually employ any such practitioner as aforesaid in their common & easie business, but upon difficult matters comes to employ any of us we will desire him to apply to, or depend upon such practitioner usually employ'd by them and acquaint such person we resolve not to undertake any such cause for them while such practitioner is usually employ'd in their common business for them, and (unless such person shall declare or promise that he will not continue such practitioner in his common business) wholly to decline & refuse to undertake such Cause, and shall immediately send word thereof to the rest of us.

"3. We will even give no Advice to such person[s] who usually employ any such practitioner as aforesaid while they do employ them nor draw nor give them any Copies of Entries or proceedings or any ways assist in the doing thereof, but will wholly refuse so to do, and immediately send notice of such refusal to the rest of Us.

"4<sup>thly</sup> That by all other reasonable ways & means we shall endeavour to undeceive the people by exposing the ignorance and Inabilities of such practitioners as aforesaid

"5<sup>thly</sup> That we meet on the first Wednesday in every month at the house of Thomas Scurlock, or such other house as shall be agreed on by the major part of us the better to keep up to those articles and to concert such further measures as may be proper to remedy the growing mischiefs aforesaid Dated this 28th July 1729

W<sup>m</sup> Smith

S: Clowes

Jos: Murray

Ja: Alexander

J<sup>o</sup> Chambers

H Wileman

—From the original MS. in the Jay Papers (in package lettered "Twenty-eight Documents"), owned by the N. Y. Hist. Soc. See also June 24.

William Smith, who wrote this "Agreement," was the father of that other William Smith who wrote the History of the Province of New York (N. Y., 1757). He was born in 1697, was admitted to the bar of New York on May 20, 1724, and died in 1769. Thomas Scurlock, at whose house the lawyers agreed to hold their monthly meetings, was a "vintner" (evidently an Irish tavern-keeper) of New York City, whose will, dated March 21, 1747, was proved May 14, 1747.—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1893), 116.

Prior to the discovery of this "Agreement made among Lawyers," our knowledge was quite incomplete regarding the requirements for admission to the bar in the first half of the eighteenth century. In the Hist. of the Bench and Bar of New York, ed. by David McAdams and others, Vol. I (N. Y., 1897), 178, H. W. Jessup says: "Thus early [1756] do we find recorded, and much earlier doubtless there existed, a dissatisfaction in regard to the preparation of members of the bar for the work they were to engage in.

"There is no reason to believe that prior to the Revolution any particular scheme of legal education existed in the Colony of New York." W. H. Peckham states (ibid., 191):

"As early as 1744 the lawyers of New York entered into an association to free the judiciary from the exercise of the king's prerogative. Mr. H. B. Dawson, in his tract on the Sons of Liberty, traces the inception of that society in New York to the formation of this primitive "bar association." None of the records of the association (so-called) have come down to us; and, indeed, it probably never presented a public character as a formally officered body, but operated quite spontaneously, the bar as a whole readily following the leadership of a few active spirits." The efforts made by a group of lawyers, in 1744, to free the judiciary from the king's prerogative, may have been the inception of the Society of the Sons of Liberty, but it was not the earliest association of the bar in New York. That, we see from the foregoing "Agreement," dates from 1729, and had for its aim the maintenance of a high standard of legal education and efficiency.

The consistency of the Dutch Church resolves "that in the Tower, above the roof of the Church, a door shall be made in an opening about 8 feet high and about 4 feet broad, with or without glass; also, at the same height, on the other three sides of the Tower, shall be made a light, about 8 feet high and three broad, with small boards running down aslant, or a sash, as may be judged necessary; and that the cross, the ball and the weathercock on the Tower, be made proportional to one another."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2476.

William Burnet, former governor of New York, dies at Boston, aged 42. An Elogy Upon His Excellency William Burnet, Esq.; was the title of a broadside, printed in Boston, in praise of his wisdom, his learning, and other virtues. One of these broadsides is in the N. Y. Pub. Library. An inventory of his personal effects included a "Prospect of New York 10/ Ditto of Boston 10/."—See description of the Burgis View, I: 241-42.

The account of Henry Beekman, the high sheriff, dated Aug. 19, 1729 (q. v.), is paid by the common council, it being "for Repairs to the Prisoou of this City (when it was burnt)."—M. C. C., III: 483.

Charles Sleigh and Annatie, his wife, mortgage to Abraham de Peyster the property subsequently known as No. 1 Broadway; on May 31, 1734, they conveyed the property to him.—Libor Deeds, XXXI: 242-46. See Aug. 26, 1756, and dates cited thereunder for the history of plot No. 1 Broadway, the Kennedy House, &c. See Aug. 25, 1644, for the ground-brief of this plot, received from Director Kieft by Thomas Broen.

The estate of "M<sup>r</sup> Stephen De Lancey of the City of New York Merchant . . ." at his Country House at Bloemendall in the Out Ward "is mentioned in a court record.—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace, 517.

"The Narrow Street which Runs through the laod of Adolph Philippe Esq<sup>r</sup> Commonly Called Goeltes Street" is mentioned in the M. C. C., III: 487. This was the later ad present Morris Street, called on Pl. 64, Vol. I, Beaver Lane. It was regulated in 1789 (M. C. C., MS., IX: 249, and was called Morris Street before 1836, as shown on Colton's Topographical Map, Pl. 124, Vol. III.

Attorney-General Bradley makes a representation against the colonial assemblies, pointing out their tendency to act independently of the crown. He recommends that a commissioner, in behalf of the crown, be present in the assembly when business is transacted.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 901-3.

The city is debtor under the Dongan Charter for 16 years' quitrent per annum (originally a beaver skin), ten shillings being allowed for one skin.—Journals of the City Chamberlain, II: 275. On Dec. 11, "the Treasurer paid to Archibald Kennedy Esq<sup>r</sup> his Majesties

July 28

30

Sept. 7

Oct. 24

25

Nov. 4

8

22

29

1729 Collector and Receiver General of this Province Sixteen Bever Nov. Skins in full of the Quit Rent of the Charter of this Corporation to 29 the 27th of April last as Appears by his Receipt upon the said Charter Dated the Eleventh day of December, 1729 and at the same time paid unto the Said Archibald Kennedy Sixteen years Quit Rent (being four pounds Proclamation Money) for the Patent at the ferry in Kings County as Appears by his Receipt upon the same Patent dated the same day."—M. C. C., III: 488.

Dec. Richard Davis (surgeon of a war vessel on the New York sta-17 tion), acting under power of attorney from Roy Willey, of London, conveys to Luis Gomez and his three sons, Mordecai, Daniel, and David, for £30, a piece of ground described as beginning "at the south-east corner of the Jewish burial-place" and extending to the "Highway" (the present line of Chatham Square)—Liber Deeds, XXXI: 109, 319, 406. This transfer included the old Jewish burial-ground.—See also survey in Cong. Shearith Israel archives.
For history of the plot, with references to the litigation involved, see Daly, Settlement of the Jews in No. Am., 15, 39-44. On Nov.
24, 1739, Gomez and his sons executed a bond, reciting the conveyance to them, by purchase, "for a burial place for the use of the Jewish nation in general;" acknowledging that they held the land in trust, and promising that it should so remain.—Liber Deeds, XXXI: 374.

In this connection, Mr. Samuel Oppenheim informs the author that "These instruments show that the Willey land adjoined the then Jewish burying-ground. That this adjoining land was used as far back as 1683 is shown by the extant tombstone of Benjamin Bueno de Mesquita, who died that year.—See Pubs. Am. Jewish Hist. Soc. No. 1 (1893), 91-92; and ibid., No. 18 (1909), 93-122.
References are made in the latter work to many burials between 1683 and 1729 in this burying-ground.

The old burying-ground, adjoining the Willey tract was acquired from William Merrett and Margaret, his wife, by a deed dated in 1681-2 [see ibid., No. 1, 91-92, and No. 6, 125]. This deed was never recorded and no copy has thus far been found. It is referred to in ibid., No. 27, p. 39, as in existence in 1784. It is also mentioned in 1772, in an opinion of the congregation's counsel, as before him at that time, with a confirmatory deed of 1701 [see John Tabor Kempe's opinion, MS. in Cong. Shearith Israel archives].

"Daly's statements [op. cit.] about the location of the buryingground are nearly all from Valentine's Manual (1866), 547, 555-57, and ibid. (1866), 614-15. He did not know of the Merrett deed, and assumed that the land adjoining the Willey property was the 1656 grant by the Dutch. I have never been able to verify the statement that the Dutch grant related to this neighborhood, though both it and the Merrett land were 'outside of the city.'
The Dutch grant was of the free land of the company, and could not have been at this location, which was all in the hands of private owners.—See Hoffman, Estate and Rights, II: 226-30. The Jews' petition (1728), Willey deed (1729), and Kempe opinion (1772) make no reference to a Dutch grant.

"There is no record of a burial there prior to 1683, except an unauthenticated one of 1669, referred to in the article, supra, in Pubs. No. 18, where, in a list of names, that of Abraham De Lucena is given as of 1669, that man being among the early arrivals in 1656;
but I am skeptical as to that date, as I found in a MS. a reference to him as alive later (N. Y. Col. MSS., XXV: 189, Albany), and am sure this name refers to the Jewish minister who died about 1726.

"As to the power of the congregation to sell (Daly notwithstanding), see Pubs. No. 21, 185-196, and Gomez vs. The Tradesmen's Bank, A. Sandford's (N. Y. Superior Court) Reports, 102.
The congregation to quiet its title, purchased the claims of the surviving trustee's heirs—a joint tenancy, under the old law, giving them the right under which they could acquire all claims against the property. Also, the congregation, by its act of incorporation in 1784, held the title of the Jews of New York in these lands (see Chancellor Kent's opinion in archives, supra)."—Letter from Mr. Oppenheim to the author. Cf. Feb. 22, 1656.

For the later history of the burial-ground, see 1755; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 927. See also Pubs., No. 18, p. 94; No.
27, pp. 265-74, 299-301.

18 The consistency of the Dutch Church passes resolutions regarding the shape of the seats in the new church. They also decide that "Men and women shall sit separate, men by themselves, and women by themselves in the same manner as hitherto in our Old Church; and as is usual in all the Dutch Churches in Holland." Seats are to be sold to the highest bidder, and to belong to the purchaser for life, then to revert to the church and be sold again "according to the plan now pursued in the Old Church."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2489.

The following year (Oct. 6), however, other regulations were passed having reference to "family pews, for men and women together."
These were to be sold in perpetuity, on payment of a yearly quit-rent; or they might be sold for a life-time; or each one might sit separately and buy a sitting for life. In every case, payment must be made for the minister.—Ibid., IV: 2516. Further regulations on this subject were passed on Oct. 8 and 12, 1730, and April 14, 1731.—Ibid., IV: 2517, 2518-19, 2537.

1730

In this year was made the Lyne Survey, or Bradford Map, the most important early engraved plan of the city, which it shows, in much detail, at the time of the granting of the Montgomerie Charter (see summary under March 23). The plan is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 27. See also Pl. 26.

Although all likely available sources have been searched, no contemporary reference has been found to the making of this survey, or to the engraving of the plan, which was undoubtedly done in America. This silence is difficult to explain, as it seems highly probable that the plan, issued at this time, bore some official relation to the Montgomerie Charter. It is also strange that it should not have been advertised by Bradford in his own paper.

Observe on this map that Marketfield St. is so named, instead of Petticoat Lane as it was on the Miller Plan of 1695 (Pl. 23-a). See
July 6, 1658.

Before this date, the laying out of Cherry St. was begun, and it had received its name, probably from the Cherry Garden of Richard Sackett, on Cherry St. just beyond what is now Franklin Square.—
Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 996. See also May 28, 1790.

Before this date, Frankfort St. was also laid out. This street was named after the birthplace of Jacob Leisler. It was surveyed and regulated in 1761 (M. C. C., VI: 256); and was extended to Pearl St. in 1792 (Annals of N. Y., 1792, Chap. 49); and, further, to Skinner's St. (present Cliff St.) in 1793 (M. C. C., MS., X: 322, 335). See Pl. 174, Vol. III.

The former Van Clyf's Slip (see Aug. 9, 1692) is called Lyon's Slip on the Bradford Map. It was the subsequent Burling's Slip.
See also May 5, 1726; March 21, 1744.

Before this date, Fletcher St. (between Maiden Lane and Lyon Slip) was laid out; although shown, it is unnamed on the Bradford
Map. It was first mentioned as Fletcher St. in the records in 1736.
—M. C. C., IV: 322. See Pl. 174, Vol. III.

For some time before this year, the Bowling Green Garden and tavern was a place of resort, refreshment, and entertainment, near the North River, in the western part of the block now bounded by Greenwich, Chambers, and Warren Sts., and West Broadway.— See Pl. 36, Vol. I. See also March 29, 1738; Landmark Map Ref.
Key, III: 981; and 1700.

Before this year, the Countess Key Market had become known as the Fly Market.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958, 989, citing Bradford Map; see also Sept. 6, 1699; Oct. 21, 1736.

The Carwitham View, published c. 1735, also shows the appearance of the city at about this time, with all its streets and principal buildings, to a point north of the Collect Pond. See Pl. 27-A, Vol. I.

The first stone-ware kiln or furnace in the United States was built in this year in this city. Clarkson Crollius wrote of it in 1842:
"The lower part or arches are under the foundation of the house on the 5th lot from the corner of Centre and Reade Streets; the house is 17 feet wide. It was first called Crollius' Pottery, afterwards Crollius's Pottery; what was called Potters Pump, celebrated for the purity of its water, was taken into the large well now used by the Manhattan Company for City purposes; it was at the foot of the hill called Potter's Hill."—Man. Com. Coun. (1854), opp. p. 542, with sketch of the kiln.

In this year, or possibly a little earlier, Anthony Rutgers built his well-known mansion on the East River.—See Feb. 3, 1723.

The domestic establishment of a citizen in the middle walks of life, about 1730, is described by Valentine in an inventory of the personal property of Capt. John Dean, a sloop captain and lumber merchant.—See "Hist. of the Domestic Affairs of the Inhabitants of N. Y.," in Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 518-19.

Baltimore, Md., was laid out in this year by act of Assembly.
Proceedings commence, and continue for nearly a year, to Mar.
procure a new charter for the city. The common council appoints 23

1730 Mar. 23 a committee to consider provisions for a petition to Gov. Montgomerie "for his Majesties Grant of Confirmation of the Charter of this Corporation in the Royal Style and of all their Ancient Rights and Privileges thereunto belonging and for such Additional Grants Emoluments and Privileges as Can be Obtained for the Advantage good Rule & Government of the Inhabitants of this City."—M. C. C., IV: 4. This committee reported on March 23 its recommendations, which included several important new provisions. It was thereupon ordered that Mayor Robert Lutting and Alderman Frederick Philipse "wait upon" the governor to ask "his Excellency's Pleasure if this Corporation shall Petition him for the same."—Ibid., IV: 5-8. On April 6, 1730, they reported "that his Excellency was pleased to tell them that when the Privileges &c: mentioned in the Articles delivered unto him were Petition'd for, he should Refer the Petition to his Majesties Council for their Advice which he was Obliged to do by his Instructions." The common council ordered that the recorder (Francis Harrison) prepare the draft of a petition accordingly. After amendments, it was ordered to be engrossed and "signed by the Court" the following day. For full text, see Land Papers (Albany), pub. in Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 593-95. The recorder was also required to "prepare the Draft of A New Charter," etc., for the court's consideration. On signing the petition (presumably the next day), a committee was appointed to consider further proceedings.—M. C. C., IV: 8-9. This committee reported, on April 22, 1730, that, "by Reason of his Excellency's Indisposition and Resolution speedily to Remove to his Government of New Jersey," the "Obtaining of the End designed by this Corporation by their Said Petition Cannot be Effected" until his return. It was the unanimous opinion that £1,400 would "be Needfull to be provided by this Corporation for Obtaining the Said Charter," and it was ordered that the committee "Continue their Applications."—Ibid., IV: 11.

See A. On July 22, 1730, the recorder informed the "Court" that, pursuant to the order of April 6, he had drafted the new charter.—Ibid., IV: 18.

On Aug. 3, 1730, it was resolved that the corporation should borrow £1,000 "on interest for one year towards defraying the Expence of procuring A New Charter & Confirmation," etc., and a committee was given power "to Mortgage any of the Lands belonging to this Corporation on this Island Manhattans for the Repayment thereof," the mayor to execute such mortgage under the public seal. At the same meeting, the petition to the governor was read, approved, and entered in full in the Minutes; it was ordered that the committee just named to raise the £1,000 present it. Also, at this meeting, the recorder presented his draft of the charter. This was read, and the committee appointed, on April 7, to consider measures for obtaining the charter was given the draft to examine, with the advice of Corporation Counsel Joseph Murray, or some other counsel as they should think needful.—Ibid., IV: 18-22.

The city's petition was referred to the council by the governor on Aug. 6 (Cal. Coun. Min., 310), and a committee, of which James Alexander was chairman, took it immediately into consideration, and prepared a report the next day (for text of which see Man. Com. Coun., 1856, 596-97, citing Land Papers, Albany). It approved the petition, article by article, with a few interpretive and explanatory observations. It was agreed, among other things, that the city should have "the soil as prayed from Bestavers Killitie to the limits of the Fort of New York upon the North River. From thence leaving out for the use of the fort all the west side of the street that leads down to Whitehall. Again, it's agreed that they may have the soil from the west side of the said street eastward along the East river to the north side of Corlaers hook. Provided always, that nothing in the grant shall be construed to impower or intitle them to wharf out before any persons who have prior grouts from the Crown of keys or wharfs beyond low water mark, without the actual agreement of such persons, their heirs or assigns, owners of such keys or wharfs." It was also required: "That the wharfs towards the rivers to be made of fourty foot broad as well for the greater conveyencie of Trade as to plant Batteries upon in case of any necessity appearing for so doing, to do which power is hereby reserved."

This report (dated Aug. 7), which was rendered to the council on Aug. 13 (Cal. Coun. Min., 310), resulted in the following resolution: "Whereupon the Board do unanimously advise His Excellency to grant His Majesty's Royal Charter to the petitioners accordingly."—From the original MS. entry in the Council Minutes, State Library, Albany.

Montgomerie accordingly issued two important warrants or orders. The first was to Attorney-General Richard Bradley, "to prepare Lettjes patent for a Charter to the Mayor Aldermen and Comocoality of the City of New York, pursuant to the petition of the said Corporation and the report of his Maties Councill thereon made and by me allow'd and approved of, a copy of which said petition and report is herenuto annexed."—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 600, citing Land Papers (Albany).

The other warrant was to Cadwallader Coldeu "to survey, for the corporation of New York, 400 feet below low water mark, on Hudson's River from Bestavers Killitie to the limits of the fort, from thence (leaving out, for the use of the fort, all the west side of the street that leads down to Whitehall) eastward along the East river, to the north side of Corlaers hook."—Cal. Land Papers, 194. This warrant is printed in full in Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 599, from the original in Albany.

Coldeu ordered, on Sept. 2, that he had made the survey, beginning "at a certain place near High Water Mark on the South end of a piece of Upland which lyes between the said River and a piece of Meadow Ground or Marsh being the first piece of Meadow Ground or Marsh near Hudson's River to the Southward of Greenwich and from whence the said Bestavers Killitie runs into Hudson's River. From which place of Beginning to the South side of the said Street from before the Fort running South eighteen degrees thirty minutes west on a Straight line the Distance is One hundred and twenty five chains which line with the perpendicular breadth of four hundred foot from Low Water Mark into the River contains eighty two acres and one half acre." He also surveyed "The soil of the East River from the North side of Corlaers' Hook to Whitehall," and found it contained 127 acres.—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 598, citing Land Papers (Albany). See also Gerard, Treatise on the Title of the Corporation and Others to the Streets, Wharfs, Piers, Parks, Ferries, etc. (1872), 72-73. For Coldeu's payment for this service, see Sept. 15.

The above described territory is substantially that covered by the Lyne Survey or Bradford Map (Pl. 27, Vol. I).

On Oct. 13, 1730, "A Draft of the New Charter and Confirmation to this Corporation was read and Approved" by the common council, and the committee which had the management of it was instructed to have it "Engrossed finished & Completed and the seal Affixed with all Expedition."—M. C. C., IV: 48.

On Jan. 14, 1731, the common council resolved to borrow £200 on interest for one year "towards defraying the Expence of procuring A New Charter," and a committee was appointed to procure it. At the same session, the corporation resolved to "Address his Excellency the Governor for his great favours and Goodness Shewn to this Corporation in Granting their Petition Order'd & directing his Majesties Letters Patent for A New Charter."—Ibid., IV: 35. The recorder was directed to prepare a draft of this address, and, at a meeting of the common council on Feb. 8, 1731, it was read and approved, and an order was made to deliver it to his Excellency on the Receipt of the New Charter." It was entered in full in the minutes of that date.—M. C. C., IV: 37-38. Meanwhile, Gov. Montgomerie signed the charter on Jan. 15, 1731.—See Feb. 11, 1731.

The day chosen for the formal presentation of the charter by the governor, and the address of thanks from the city magistrates, was Feb. 11, 1731 (p. v.), under which date, in the Chronology, will also be found a digest of the contents of the charter itself.

The committee appointed on Aug. 3, 1730, to borrow £1,000 for use in procuring the charter reported on March 31, 1731, that this sum had been borrowed of James de Lancey on Oct. 1, 1730; to repay which with interest the committee had agreed on behalf of the city to mortgage to him "the Lots of Land Lying on the West Side of the Dock between the Weigh House Street [the present Moore St.] and the Broad Way, from the Custom House Street [the present Pearl St.] four hundred foot into the East River beyond low Water Mark," and also a tract of land in the Bowry Division of the Out Ward, for one year from Oct. 1, 1730. It was therefore ordered that the mayor execute the mortgage, "the Lease to bear date this day and Release tomorrow."—M. C. C., IV: 45-46. On the same day (March 31, 1731 q.v.), the committee which was appointed on Jan. 14 to borrow £200 toward defraying the expense of procuring the charter reported that they had obtained this amount from John Chambers, "at the usual Interest of Eight pounds  $\frac{3}{4}$  Centum

Mar. 23

1730  $\text{P}$  Annun for one Year," and it was ordered that the mayor execute Mc.23 two bonds for repayment.—Ibid., IV: 46-47.

Apr. The Jewish synagogue on Mill St. is consecrated.—Am. Jewish 1 Hist. Soc. Pubs., No. 21 (see Index). This was the first building owned by Jews used solely for religious purposes. See 1729.

22 The common council appoints a committee "to Employ Workmen & Labourers and Agree for Materials for making A Pier on the West side of the Mouth of the Dock in such Convenient place as they Shall see Needfull for preventing the further fillup [see July 27, 1728] of the said Dock."—M. C. C., IV: 11. On June 2, this committee reported that they had agreed with John Peck, a boatman, "to provide good and sufficient Wood of twenty foot long and to lay A Dock or Peerhead from the West part of the Great Dock into the River of forty foot long and twenty foot broad and twelve foot high in such A Convenient place as he shall be directed by the Corporation, the Said Peck to find all the Workmen and Materials to complete the whole work at his own Charge." The specifications provided that the wharfe was "to be well laid and of good and sufficient Timber of about fourteen Inches [wide] all of twenty foot long and to be well braced with Cedar Braces with good and sufficient Wall Plates upon the same at the Peer to be good and strong pieces for Tenders [fenders] at two foot distance all Round the Peer." At the other part of the dock the fenders were "to Stand at six foot distance," and Peck was required "to load the same sufficiently with good Stone Ballast." The work was to be finished by July 15, 1730, and the Corporation was to pay Peck £815 on completion. The report was approved and the committee ordered to "direct where the said Peer head Shall be laid and see the same Completed According to the said Agreement."—Ibid., IV: 14-15.
Peck was paid, on Sept. 17, 1730, £89 for "Compleating the Peer on the South West side of the Great Dock the same being Nine foot longer than was Agreed for by the Committee."—Ibid., IV: 25.

" The collection of books presented to the city by the Society for Propagating the Gospel is received from London.—See June 27, 1729, for full account of the founding of this corporation library in 1729-30.

23 Gov. Montgomerie takes the oath as chancellor.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 309.

May A subscription paper of this date aims to raise funds for 1 the support of Quintin and Alexander Malcolm, as schoolmasters. The text is as follows:

"Whereas there is a Gentleman well recommended to his Excellency for his Knowledge in all parts of the Mathematicks as also his Brother who Teaches Greek and Latin and both Together Philosophy and the Languages the want of which in the Education of our Youth of this place is too Evident, and its to be feared will be more and more so, if some private hands (till the publick take it into their Care) do not Interpose it is Therefore hoped that this opportunity will be embraced by all those whose Sentiments are,
that Letters are the greatest distinguishing mark between us and Savages, & who desire that their Children and posterity should not become such by their want of Letters

"We Therefore the Subscribers do each of us promise to pay to Quintin and Alexander Malcolms yearly the sums to our Names by us respectively Sett, for the term of three Years, after the time of their beginning to teach here.

"Provided the Said Quintin and Alexander Malcolm's for every five pounds  $\text{P}$  Annun Subscribed as Said is, into their School admit one Boy or Youth by the Said Subscriber recommended & him the Said Boy or Youth teach all or any part of the Several Sciences by them the Said Quintin and Alexander Malcolm's profess'd and Taught, as the Said Subscriber in his Discretion Shall require Witness our hands at New York in America this first day of May 1730."—From MS. in box marked "New York, 1700-1760," N. Y. Hist. Soc. The document shows the beginning of the secondary school of 1732-39 (see Oct. 14, 1732), and appears to be the first mention of Quintin Malcolm.

16 The land on which the First Presbyterian Church (on Wall St.) was built in 1719 (q. v.) is conveyed in fee simple to the moderator of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland.—Liber Deeds, XXXI: 348-51.

June A petition of Augustus Jay is laid before the common council, 2 reciting "That on the West side of the Broadway in the West Ward of this City the Petitioner is the lawful Owner and Proprietor of several Lots of Land lying between the houses of MF William smith and that late of Charles Phillips whereon lately Stood several Old Tenements (formerly the Estate of Balthazar Bayard deceased), which the Petitioner has Caused to be pulled down in Order to Erect several Houses thereon which when finished will be A Beauty and Ornament to the said Street, and for as much as the foundation of the Old Buildings for about Sixty seven foot in length were Beveling and not upon A Straight Line with the Other Buildings in the Said Street which Rendred the Said Street uneven and Ugly. The Petitioner therefore Humbly prays that this Court will direct the surveyor of this City to Survey and lay out the Said Street whereunto the aforesaid Lotts fronteth upon A Straight Line, Contiguous to which the Petitioner may lay the foundations of the Houses he forthwith Intends to Erect for the Beauty and uniformity of the said Street as the said surveyor Shall direct and Appoint." It is ordered "that the Said Street . . . be laid out upon A Straight Line," according to a survey laid before the common council.—

M. C. C., IV: 13-14. Mr. Jay built the fine houses long known as Nos. 9 and 11 Broadway. They became the Atlantic Gardien subsequent to 1836. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 976. This building was never Burns' coffee-house, as stated by Valentine in Man.
Com. Coun. (1854) 442-45; ibid. (1858), opp. p. 558; ibid. (1865), 513-14. See also 1656, and April 30, 1745.

Valentine states that an order was given in 1734 (apparently in the foregoing connection) for levelling or straightening Broadway above the Parade. No such order at this time, besides that above mentioned, is recorded in the Minutes. He states that, on the west side of Broadway above Morris St. stood four old buildings, adjoining each other, two stories high, with stepped gables facing Broadway, a sketch of which was attached to the order to show the straightening or levelling necessary at this point, and the consequent need of demolishing the buildings. The sketch is reproduced and the neighbourhood described in Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 511. The original order does not now appear to be in the city archives.

"There is advertised for sale "a lot of land lying on the South side of Queens Street, part of the ground at the old Slaughterhouse."—N. Y. Gaz., June 1-8, 1730. This was the slaughter-house order removed by the common council in 1721.—M. C. C., III:
250-51. See Oct. 11, 1720.

Montgomerie issues an order to the attorney-general to prepare letters patent for the new city charter; and an order to the surveyor-general (Colden) to survey the ground under water around the lower part of the island.—See summary under March 23.

Nicholas Bayard announces that he has erected a sugar refinery, 17 for making "double and single Refined Loaf-Sugar, as also Powder and Shop-Sugars, and Sugar-Candy," which he supplies at wholesale and retail, having procured from Europe "an experienced Artist in that Mystery."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 10-17; Oct. 19, 1730. The building stood north-east of the city hall, between Wall and King Sts., and midway between Nassau and William Sts.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 962. In 1773, this refinery was turned into a tobacco factory.—Stevens, Progress of N. Y. in a Century (1876), 27. It was demolished about the time of the Revolution, and handsome dwelling-houses were built on Wall St., covering its site.
—Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 560.

A letter from New York, dated Sept. 27 (error for Aug. 27), 22 states: "On Friday last [Aug. 21], our Garrison and Militia, Horse and Foot, were under Arms till after 6 at Night, in order to receive Governor Gordon [of Pennsylvania], who came not till the next Day [Aug. 22] and then was received by his Excellency our Govern-our with the Corporation and principal Gentlemen" at his Landing.
The Ladies were put into his Excellency's Coach drawn by 6 Horses, and the Governour walked up to the Fort, attended as above, and at the Entering the Fort Gate were saluted by a Number of Guos. Governor Gordon lodges in the Fort, and the Ladies at Col. Gilbert's at the Bowers, in the pretty House which Mr. Bickley built."—Penn. Gaz. (Phila.), Sept. 3-10, 1730.

Gov. Montgomerie, in a message to the council, asks that consideration be given to the "miserable State of the Officers Barracks in the Fort at New-York."—Assemb. Jour., I: 606. See Oct. 16.
Colden reports the particulars of his survey of the ground under water around the lower part of the island.—See summary under March 23.

A house and lot, advertised for sale, are described as extending from Hanover Square "to the Lane formerly called Drain-Ditch and now called The Sloat."—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 7, 1730. For location of Sloat Lane, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1009.

An advertisement states that on this day, "at the custom-house, in this City (where a convenient Room is fitted up), James Lyne designs to Teach in the Evenings (during the Winter) Arithmetick

June

2

8

Aug.

13

17

22

26

Sept.

2

7

15

1730 in all its parts, Geometry, Trigonometry, Navigation, Surveying, Sept. Guaging, Algebra, and sundry other parts of Mathematical Learning. 15 Whoever inclines to be instructed in any of the said Parts of Mathematical Knowledge, may agree with the said James Lyne at the House of William Bradford in the City of New York."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 31—Sept. 7, 1730. James Lyne was the surveyor whose name was signed to the Lyne Survey or Bradford Map of New York, made during this year.—See Pl. 27, Vol. I. In addition to the account of this engraver given in I: 257, mention should be made of his will, dated March 3, 1753, which was recorded at Trenton, N. J., Dec. 10, 1761, in Liber Wills, H: 46.

"The common council orders the treasurer to "pay to John Cruger ESq<sup>r</sup> or Order the sum of forty pounds Curr<sup>t</sup> Money of New York it being for the like sum by him disbursed and paid to Cadwallader Colden ESq<sup>r</sup> his Majesties Surveyor General of this Province as a Reward for his fees and service for the Return of his Survey and Certificate thereof, for the New Charter and Grant to this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 24. This survey was undoubtedly that referred to in the Minutes under date of Jan. 13, 1731, to determine "the Boundaries of the City from Bestivers Killitie to the Fort and from Whitehall to Corlears hook" (ibid., IV: 34), a confirmation of which was desired by the Montgomerie Charter. See March 23.

21 "A Large Dwelling House and Lot, with Stable, Coach-house, &c., in the Broad-way, being the House where Gabriel Ludlow now lives, is to be sold. It extends from the Broad-way back so far as High water Mark in Hudsons River."—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 14-21, 1730. The coach was by this time in general use in New York, by coach of the period. Houghton thus describes it: "The Colonial coach had a body not unlike the coach of to-day [1890], but larger, suspended much higher, and hung on thoroughbraces. The traoser coaches now used by the Fifth-avenue Hotel, in this city, are the best modern representatives of the Colonial prototype."—Coaches of Colonial N. Y., 21.

Oct. Frederick Morris is sworn in as deputy secretary of the province. —Col. Coun. Min., 311.

12 John van Aarnheim is appointed "clerk and foresinger in the New [Dutch] Church," and Arent van Hook is to be requested to be door-keeper and bell-ringer.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2518, 2563.

"By this date services were being held in the new Dutch Church (in Nassau St.), the minutes of the consistory stating that "the ministers preach twice, regularly, on Sundays in each church,"—that is, in the Garden St. and Nassau St. churches.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2518. The ministers preached in rotation in these two churches.—Corwin's Manual, 996. The date of the first service held in the new church does not appear definitely in the records. Greenleaf, in Hist. of the Churches, 13, gives the date of opening as 1729; so does De Witt in his Discourse, 28, 29. The church was "under roof" in March, 1729; the seats were first the subject of resolution of the consistory on Dec. 18, 1729 (q. v.). It is therefore possible that seats, at least temporary ones, were used in 1729, very near the end of the year, or early in 1730. The church was not completed until 1731.—See inscription on Pl. 28, Vol. I. "At its first erection it had no gallery, and the ceiling was one entire arch without pillars. The pulpit was in the middle of the east wall, and the entrance was by two doors in front, on the west (Nassau) side."—De Witt, op. cit., 28. In 1764, alterations in the interior were made.—See Dec. 7, 1763; June 29, 1764. The church was last used as a place of worship, Aug. 11, 1844 (q. v.), and was finally demolished Nov. 19-26, 1882 (q. v.). See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 935.

14 The city's annual receipts and disbursements for selected years between 1715 and 1739, compiled from reports in the Minutes of the Common Council (the fiscal year ending Oct. 14), were as follows:

Year	Receipts	Expenditures	Balance
1715	£320: 3: 5	321: 6: 11	£1: 3: 6 (deficit)
1719	495: 3: 6	252: 7: 5	242: 16: 1
1720	621: 17: 1	477: 12: 14	144: 5: 9
1721	569: 1: 0	215: 8: 4	353: 3: 5
1722	704: 10: 11	310: 6: 4	394: 4: 6
1723	730: 11: 6	604: 0: 6	126: 11: 0
1724	430: 4: 4	428: 12: 6	1: 11: 6
1725	256: 18: 6	248: 10: 10	8: 7: 7
1726	287: 15: 7	224: 8: 4	63: 7: 3
1727	271: 5: 3	230: 11: 3	40: 14: 0
1727-30	1199: 1: 11	1116: 8: 11	82: 2: 30

—M. C. C., III: 106, 217, 249, 266-7, 338, 363, 386-87, 416, 462; IV: 62. The statement compiled by D. T. Valentine, clerk of the common council, in 1859, and printed in the Man. Com. Coun. of that year, is only approximately correct.

The assembly resolves to ask for a sum not exceeding £150 for repairing the officers' barracks in Fort George. On the next day, the resolution was presented to the governor, who said "he would lay the same before the council, and cause the said barracks to be repaired in the most frugal manner."—Assemb. Jour., I: 617-18.—See Aug. 26, 1730, and Apr. 7, 1731.

17 The legislature passes an act to enable the common council of New York to raise a sum by taxation not exceeding £300, to repair the city hall, repair and enlarge the prisons and gaols, erect watch-houses when needed, purchase two fire-engines, and defray the contingent charges of the city.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 645.

"This is to give Notice, That the Mercator Chart Drawn by Phillip Cockrem, extending from the Lat. of 9 Degrees to the Lat. of 43 Degrees North; Easterly to the Island of Barbados, Westerly to the entrance of Massissipi: Is now entirely finished and printed on fine Royal Paper, and are to be seen and sold at the House of Phillip Cockrem in Princess-Street, near Smith-Street, or at John Macklenan's at the Sign of the Blue Anchor on the Dock, New York."—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 19-26, 1730. Macklenan was a tavern-keeper. In 1707 he lived on Bridge St.—See Sept. 27, 1707. His house was used for conference committees of the two houses of the legislature in 1710.—Assemb. Jour., I: 284. No copy of this chart is known.

29 The assembly votes £12:18 to Gabriel Ludlow, of which £3:14 is allowed Dirck Egberts for cleaning and white-washing the Assembly chamber and Lobby, Smiths Work and Glazing. It is also ordered that the table in this room be enlarged and "new covered with green or black Cloth."—Assemb. Jour., I: 622.

"The legislature passes "An Act for the more Effectual Preventing and Punishing the Conspiracy and Insurrection of Negro and other Slaves; for the better regulating them."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 679. See Feb. 16, 1756.

"An act is passed "for the relief of Insolvent Debtors within the Colony of New York with respect to the imprisonment of their persons."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 669. This was superseded by a new act for the same purpose on Dec. 17, 1743 (ibid., III: 312), and was subject to various modifications throughout the colonial period.—Ibid., III: 694, 822, 835, 866, 924, 939, 1019, 1099; IV: 10, 103, 533, etc.

"The Royal act, passed on this date, "to Defray the Charge of Victualing his Majesty's Troops Posted at Oswego . . ." lays a tax on every resident or sojourner in the province (with certain exceptions) who wears "a wig or Peruke made of Human or horse hair or mixt . . ." The method of collecting the tax is prescribed.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 683; Assemb. Jour., I: 624.

Nov. 3 The court of general sessions of the peace gives Phillip Wilkinson, "of this City Mariner," liberty "to bind his Grandson Isaac Bedlow aged fourteen years or thereabouts (and son of Isaac Bedlow) apprentice to John Dunscomb of the said City Cooper for the Term of seven years, Isaac Bedlow the father being somewhere beyond sea and the Boys Mother in the Province of New Jersey."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (M.S.), 529.

In a petition to the king, Capt. Anthony Rutgers asks for a grant in fee simple of the Swamp and Fresh Water Pond adjacent to the Duke's Farm. This petition and an affidavit supporting it set forth the following facts: This property was granted by William and Mary, Aug. 9, 1694 (see under Sept. 20, 1694), to Capt. John Evans, his heirs and assigns. It is thus described: Beginning "at a stake sett in the ground on the South side of the said pond and at the North East Corner of the land belonging to W<sup>m</sup> Merritt thence running along the south side of the said Swamp and pond by the Upland to the beach on the East side of Hudson's River so along the beach to the upland, thence crossing a small Gut of the said Swamp to the land on the East side thereof thence by the said land as it runs to the East side of the Tao Yards, and thence to the place where begun containing in all seventy acres as by a survey then taken therof appeared."

This grant to Evans was declared, on May 16, 1699 (q. v.), one of the extravagant grants, and was vacated, among others, by an act of assembly. It was further enacted that, in future, it should not be in the power of a governor to make a grant of "The King's Farme, the King's garden, The Swamp and Fresh water . . . for any longer than his own time in the Govern<sup>t</sup>."

Dec.

—

1730 Rutgers' petition further states that "the said Swamp is filled
Dec. constantly with standing water for which there is no natural vent
— and being covered with bushes and small Trees, is by the stagnation and rottenness of it, said water become exceedingly dangerous and of fatal consequence to all the inhabitants of the north part of this City bordering near the same, they being subject to very many deceases and distempers, which by all Physicians and by long experience are imputed to those unwholesome vapours occasioned thereby and as the said Swamp is upon a level with the Waters of Hudsons and the South Rivers, no person has ever yet attempted to clear the same, nor ever can under a grant thereof which is to expire with the next New Gov<sup>t</sup>; for the expence in clearing the same will be so great and the length of time in doing the same such that it will never be attempted but by a grantee of the Fee simple thereof, and as the same can be of no benefit untill it is cleared, so no person hath hitherto accepted a grant of the said land on the terms in the said Act mentioned, but the same hath ever since lain and still remains unimproved and uncultivated to the great prejudice and annoyance of the adjacent farms particularly to a Farm of your Petitioner's adjoining thereto, which Your Petitioner after having been at a great charge and expence in settling, cannot prevail on any tenant to take the same or get any servants to continue there for any time while the said swamp remains in its present state . . .

" . . . unless this swamp be drained and cleared it must for ever remain a Pest and a publick nuisance for the time to come as it hath done for 33 years past and as the City is now extended very near the borders of this Swamp and as the same continuing in the condition it now is may very prejudicially affect the labouring Men who live in that part of the Town nearest this Swamp where land is purchased at an Easy rate on account of this Swamp and who actually lose one third of their time in sickness, and your Petitioner being willing and desirous to be at the expence of draining and clearing the same on having a grant of the inheritance thereof your Petitioner therefore most humbly prays" (the king) to grant him the "Fee simple and inheritance of the said Swamp." An order by the king in council referred the petition to the lords of trade on Jan. 28, 1731.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 914-18. An order in council was issued on Aug. 12, 1731, empowering the governour to grant a patent to Anthony Rutgers "for a certain swamp and fresh pond, called the Fresh water, adjacent to the Duke's farm upon
New York Island, containing in all 70 acres."—Cal. Land Papers, 198. A letter dated Dec. 5, 1732, entered in Trinity Minutes under date of April 25, 1733, refers to this order. Rutgers apparently did not receive this grant until two years later. On Nov. 1, 1733, a statute was passed repealing the law of 1699 (see May 16, 1699) so far as it related to the Swamp and Fresh Water.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 823-25. This enabled Rutgers to take his grant from Gov.
Cosby on Dec. 31, 1733 (q. v.).—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 960-62. See April 6, 1733, for Rutgers' petition to drain this land into the Hudson. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1854), 529-35.

3 The French are building a fort at "Crownpoint," and intend to build one at "Tiederondequat."—Cal. Coun. Min., 311.

4 The number of vessels "Entered in and Cleared out of the Port of New York from December 1729 to December 4, 1730" was as follows:

"Entered Inwards, 211 Vessels, whereof 11 were from Antigua, 14 from Barbadoes, 13 from Bermudas, 28 from Boston, 5 from Bristol, 12 from Curaco, 5 from Dover, 50 from Jamaica, 3 from Madera, 7 from London, 4 from Newfoundland, 6 from North Carolina, 3 from Philadelphia, 17 from Rhode Island, 5 from South Carolina, 3 from Suranama; the rest from sundry other Parts.

"Cleared Out, 222 Vessels, whereof 3 were to Amsterdam, 18 to Antigua, 23 to Barbadoes, 26 to Boston, 29 to Curacao, 23 to Jamaica, 5 to London 1 to Madera, 8 to Newfoundland, 8 to South Carolina, 3 to Philadelphia, 12 to Rhode Island, 9 to South Carolina, the rest to sundry other Ports."—Man. Com. Coun. (1864) 680, citing N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 26, 1731. The amount of shipping at this port, compared with that of Boston and Philadelphia, is shown by the following report:

"At Boston, enter'd Inwards 533 Vessels, . . .
At Boston, clear'd out 628 Vessels . . .
In New-York, enter'd Inwards 211 Vessels . . .
In New York, clear'd out 222 . . .
In Philadelphia, enter'd Inwards 161 Vessels . . .
In Philadelphia, clear'd out 171 Vessels."

—L'pcott Collection, N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 107.

According to an advertisement, the Boston and Philadelphia
Dec. posts are to start on this day "to perform their Stages once a Fort'
6 night during the three Winter Months;" Also "this Gazette will be Published every Tuesday Morning during that Time."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 30, Dec. 5, 1730. On March 8, 1731, a weekly service replaced the fortnightly.—Ibid., March 1-8, 1731.

Montgomerie reports to the lords of trade that he has received 21 a new seal for the province, and is returning the old one.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 909.

1731

In this year, the French completed their fortress at Crown Point — on Lake Champlain. See Dec. 3, 1730.

"The City of New-York hath near as many Inhabitants as — Philadelphia, and is a more delightful Place. The Gentlemen here are exceeded by none in Kindness and Civility to Strangers; the Country one of the pleasanter [sic] in the Universe; the Climate temperate, the Air serene; for except about the latter End of August and September, they have no drisley, foggy or thick Weather; one of their Showers of Rain is generally over in two Hours, then are they blest with a clear Sky. Here are no Phisicks or Consumptions, and so very few Physicians and Apothecaries that People live to a very great Age. They have very few Clergy, and are signal for their Morals and Beneficence."—The Importance of the British Plantations in America to this Kingdom, London, 1731 (attributed by Sabin to F. Hall).

From this year, or the following, dates the engraved view of the — New Dutch Church, and its immediate surroundings, on the corner of Nassau and Liberty Sts., drawn by Wm. Burgis, and reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 28. This is the earliest view we have, made within the city.

"A View of Fort George with the City of New York from — the S. W.," drawn at about this period was engraved by I.
Carwitham some years later. It is reproduced and described in Vol.
I, Pl. 31.

The population of the city and province of New York, for — the year 1731, is found in two contemporary records. One of these, entitled "Abstract of the Accounts of the number of Inhabitants of the several Cities and Counties in the Province of New York, 2 Nov<sup>r</sup> 1731," and signed by Rip van Dam, gives the following figures: For the city, 7,045 whites, 1,577 blacks, total 8,622; for the province, 43,040 whites, 7,202 blacks, total 50,242.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 929. These same figures are found in an old MS.
now preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (in box labelled "New York, 1700-1760"). This shows the "Number of snuls on the Island of New York as taken by the constables in May, 1731."

The other source of authority is a MS. bound with a volume of the printed Laws, Statutes, Ordinances . . . of the City of New York (N. Y., 1749), now in the N. Y. Pub. Library. It is called an
"Acco<sup>t</sup> of the Number of Inhabitants in the Province of New York Taken by order of The Hon<sup>ble</sup> Rip Van Dam Esq<sup>r</sup> President &c &c—finished the 27th October 1731." The figures of this record are:
For the city, 7,045 whites, 1,577 blacks, total 8,622; for the province, 43,058 whites, 7,231 blacks, total 50,289. This account was printed by O'Callaghan in Doc. Hist. N. Y., I: 471 (where an obvious typographical error occurs in the figures for the total number of whites in the province, but which has been corrected here).

The number of houses in New York City is estimated at about — 1,400.—From old MS. bound with copy of the Laws, Statutes, Ordinances . . . of the City of New-York (pub'd Jan. 27 and Feb.
1, 1748; and printed by Parker, 1749), in N. Y. Pub. Library (having the signature of Brandt Schuyler on title-page).

In 1731 and 1732, the broad plaza known as Whitehall (see — Marekvelf, in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1005), was diminished by the laying out of a block bounded by the present Whitehall, Pearl, Moore, and Water Sts.—Liber B: 99, 109 (in comptroller's office). For a view of Whitehall before it was thus diminished, see Pl. 25, Vol. I.

In this year, Adrian Bancker, silversmith, was admitted as a — freeman of New York. He continued his trade for about 30 years.
Several specimens of his work are described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 9-11.

Two silver tankards, made by Peter Quintard, who was ad— mitted as a freeman of New York in this year, are described in
ibid., 42-43.

1731 William Huertin, silversmith, was admitted as a freeman of New York in this year. He had taken an active part in the controversy which arose among the congregation of the French Church, in 1724, when the consistory dismissed the pastor, Rev. Mr. Row. For a short sketch of his life and a description of a porridge made by him, see ibid., xxxv-xxvi, 34.

Philip Goelet, admitted as a freeman of New York in this year, was one of the early American silversmiths. For a short history of his life, and a description of some of his work, see ibid., 25-26

Jan. Jan de la Montagne is appointed door-keeper, bell-ringer, gravedigger, and watchman of the Dutch Church in Garden St., in place of his father, who has just died. His duties are prescribed in detail. Among these is the following: "You shall keep the bier in the shed made for it in the churchyard; and send it in due time to the house of the deceased." Changes are prescribed for the various expenses of a burial. He signed his appointment on Oct. 12, 1730.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2490-95.

13 The treasurer is ordered to pay John Cure for expenses of the corporation at his house "at the time of surveying the Boundaries of this City from Bestivers Killitie to the Fort and from Whitehall to Corlears hook . . ."—M. C. C., IV: 34. Cure was proprietor of a tavern in Fair (Fulton) St.—See May 22, 1717.

14 The common council appoints a committee to inspect the city hall and cupola, to see what repairs are needed, to employ workmen, procure materials, and see that the repairs are made as soon as possible.—M. C. C., IV: 35.

15 Gov. Montgomerie signs the new charter for the city, and it is attested by the attorney-general.—See summary of the proceedings to obtain the charter, under March 23, 1730; and digest of its contents, under Feb. 11, 1731.

Feb. 11 Gov. John Montgomerie formally conveys to the mayor and other city officials the so-called Montgomerie Charter (see PL 30, Vol. IV); this was the third English charter of the city of New York, the first being the Nicolls Charter of 1665, and the second the Dongan Charter of 1686. The so-called Cornbury or Queen Anne Charter, of 1708, which referred only to ferries, is not included separately in this enumeration. The following account of the ceremonies is recorded in the Minutes of the Common Council:

"Mr Mayor Attended by M<sup>r</sup> Recorder the Aldermen Assistants High Sheriff, Chamberlain, Town Clerk, Coroner, High Constable Petty Constables & Other Officers of this Corporation at the hour of ten in the Forenoon . . . went in their formalities from the City Hall to his Majestys Garrison Fort George and there waited upon his Excellency John Montgomerie Esq<sup>t</sup> Cap<sup>t</sup> General and Governour in Chief of this Province in Council who then was pleased in the presence of this Court (the Representatives of this Corporation) to deliver unto Robert Lurting Esq<sup>t</sup> the Present Mayor of this Corporation his Majestys Royal and most Gracious Charter to the Mayor Aldermen and Commonality of this City under the Great Seal of this Province and thereupon the Oaths of Allegiance and supremacy the Test and Abjuration Oath were Administrated to the Said Robert Lurting Esq<sup>t</sup> as Mayor, Clerk of the Market and Water Bayliff of the City of New York and one of his Majestys Justices of the Peace of the City & County of New York and also the usual Oaths of Office of Mayor Clerk of the Market and Water Bayliff and Justice of the Peace in the Presence of his Excellency the Governour and Council and in the Presence of all the Aldermen and Members of this Court."

This "Court" then presents to the governour the address, which was read and recorded in the Minutes on Feb. 8, and which is again entered in the Minutes in full at this time. The governour replies: "I am very glad that it has been in my power to promote the Prosperity and interest of the City of New York which I believe I have Effectually done by now delivering to your Mayor the Kings Royal and most Gracious Charter. It gives me great satisfaction, my being fully Assured that the Officers Named in the Charter are fit for their respective Trusts and will do their duty, with a strict regard for his Majesties service and the good of the City."

The mayor informs the governour that, pursuant to the authority granted to him under the charter he has appointed Alderman John Cruger as deputy mayor. The governour approves the appointment, and "after drinking the Kings health His Excellency the Governours and Prosperity to the Corporation," the city officials return to the common council chamber in the city hall; the mayor resumes the chair, and, as required by the new charter, administers the stated oaths appointed by parliament, "instead of the Oaths of Allegiance and supremacy the Test and Abjuration Oath," to the various new city officials named in the charter, for the faithful execution of their offices; "and soon after the Court went down to the Entrance of the City Hall and after the Ringing of three Bells and Proclamation made for Silence Caused the said Charter to be published."

On returning to the council chamber, it is ordered that the board return thanks "to Joseph Murray Esq<sup>t</sup> Attorney at Law" for amending and completing the draft of the charter, "in which he has given us a lasting Instance of his great Learning Ability and Integrity in his Profession as well as for his Regard to this Corporation." Thanks are also extended to Assistant Alderman John Chambers, attorney at law, "for his Great Care Diligence and solicitation he hath been at in Assisting the Procuring Expediting and finishing the Said Charter for the Seal." A resolution is passed, also, to "Compliment" James de Lancy, Peter Warren (commander of H. M. S. "Solebay"), James Alexander, William Jamison, William Smith (attorneys at law), and John Avery with "the Freedom of this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 39-44.

THE MONTGOMERIE CHARTER

(Description and digest of contents)

The text of the Montgomerie Charter was not entered in the Minutes of the Common Council, as was that of the earlier charters. The original document, consisting of 35 parchment leaves, with the large provincial seal attached, is still owned by the city, having been deposited for safe-keeping in the N. Y. Public Library by Comptroller Bird S. Coler in 1899, together with the Dongan Charter and several other public documents belonging to the city. The seal is that of George II received from England in 1730.—See Dec. 21, 1730; and Doc. Hist. N. Y., Vol. IV. For reproduction of the Charter, see PL. 30, Vol. IV.

On April 15, 1731, an entry in the Minutes shows that William Sharpas, the city clerk, was paid £5, "by him disburs'd and paid to M<sup>r</sup> Abraham Lodge for Entering fair in A Book the Charter of this City for the use of the Corporation with Margial Notes as Appears by his Acc<sup>t</sup> which was Audited by this Court and Allowed."—M. C. C., IV: 50. On July 15, 1731, Lodge was also paid £29:10:6, "in full of his Acc<sup>t</sup> for writing and fair Copying a Petition to his Excellency, Engrossing the New Charter, thirty-five Skins of large parchment, Silk Laces and for fair Writing an Address to his Excellency as Appears by his Acc<sup>t</sup> which is Audited & allowed." On the same day John Rousevelt was paid "for A tin Box for the New Charter."—Ibid., IV: 60-61. The charter was printed for the first time by John Peter Zeoger in 1735 (see Oct. 25, 1734), on 26 leaves, folio.

The Montgomerie Charter not only grants additional privileges, rights, and estate to the city, but it is in its terms confirmatory of prior grants, and of the Dongan and Cornbury charters. It recites in full these earlier charters, concerning the validity and force of which questions had arisen by reason of the diversity of the names of the grantees, and because prior grants and charters had been made in the names of the governours instead of the sovereigns, respectively. There was, therefore, question, as appears from the text of the charter, whether the city had been hitherto legally incorporated.

The charter recites the fact that since the granting of the Dongan Charter, in 1686 (q. v.), the citizens of New York have built at their own expense the "City Hall, and Goals, Rooms, and Places for the sitting of the Courts of Justice, and Chambers adjoining;" five market-houses; the crane and bridge; the common sewer leading through the great dock; a magazine or powder-house near the Fresh Water; several other public buildings and conveniences; and the new ferry-house on Nassau Island, with barn and pound adjoining. It states that by the increase in buildings and population the city had become "a considerable sea-port, and exceedingly necessary and useful to our Kingdom of Great Britain, in supplying our Government in the West Indies with Bread, Flour, and other Provisions." On this account the charter establishes the city as a body politic and corporate, under its former name of "The Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonality of the City of New York," with the right of perpetual succession, and to purchase, hold, and demise or sell lands, etc., in fee or otherwise.

It makes New York "a free City of itself;" with power "to sue and be sued," etc., in all courts, "in as full and ample Manner and

Feb. 11

"

Feb. 11

1731
Feb.
11

Form, as any of our other liege Subjects of our said Province;" with power also to purchase and hold lands, tenements, goods, and chattels; and to use a common seal, or "break, change and new-make the same, or any other common Seal, when, and as often as to them it shall seem convenient."

The boundaries of the city are specially fixed by the charter, as follows: "To begin at the River, Creek, or Run of Water called Spyt den Duyvel, over which King's-Bridge is built, where the said River or Creek empties itself into the North-River, on Westchester Side thereof, at Low Water-Mark, and so to run along the said River, Creek, or Run, on Westchester Side, at Low-Water Mark, unto the East-River or Sound, and from thence to cross over to Nassau-Island, to Low Water-Mark there, including Great-Barn-Island, Little-Barn-Island and Manning's Island, and from thence all along Nassau Island Shore, at Low-Water-Mark, unto the South Side of Red-Hook; and from thence to run a Line across the North-River, so as to include Nutten-Island, Bedlow's-Island, Bucking-Island and the Oyster-Island, to Low-Water-Mark on the West Side of the North-River, or so far as the Limits of our said Province extended there, and so to run up along the West Side of the said River, at Low-Water-Mark, or along the limits of our said Province, until it comes directly opposite to the first mentioned River or Creek, and thence to the Place where the said Boundaries first began." As Governor Clinton explained this provision (in 1750), "Coll. Montgomerie . . . erected the Town of New York, into a City and County, and extended their jurisdiction to the West side of Hudsons River opposite to the Town."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI 575.

The boundaries of the seven wards are also prescribed by this charter—the West, South, Dock, East, North, Montgomerie, and Out Wards. Regarding the division of the city into wards, see Du Simithiere's description of these bounds according to landmarks standing at the time he wrote, in June, 1769, and with reference to the Bradford Map (Pl. 27, Vol. D), printed in full in I: 257-58. See also the division in 1683, prior to the Dongan Charter.—M. C. C., I: 112-13. The "Soil four Hundred Feet, beyond Low-Water-Mark, on Hudson's River, from a certain Creek or Kill called Bestaver's-Killitie, southward to the Fort, and from thence, the same Number of Feet, beyond Low-Water-Mark, round the Fort, and along the East-River, as far as to the North Side of a certain Hill, called Corlaer's Hook," is specifically included in the grants conveyed by the charter, and also embraced in the description of the boundaries of the West, South, Dock, and East Wards.—See also Hoffman, Treatise on the Estates and Rights of the Corporation, 166-206.

The city government is established; officials are named, and their duties prescribed, with the manner of appointing their successors. For example, the governor is required to appoint the mayor, sheriff, and coroner, yearly. Freemen who are inhabitants and freeholders of each ward are to elect the aldermen and assistant aldermen for their ward; also two assessors, one collector, and two constables. However, in the Out Ward there are to be four assessors, two collectors, and four constables. As provided in the Dongan Charter (see Sept. 29, 1686), appointments and elections are to be held "on the Feast Day of St. Michael, the Arch-Angel," and the appointees, etc., are required to take oath of office on the 14th of October following. The common council is to consist of "the Mayor or Recorder, with four or more Aldermen, and four or more Assistants." They are given power to make "all such Laws, Statutes, Rights, Ordinances, and Constitutions, which to them or the greater Part of them" shall seem "good, useful or necessary," but not repugnant to the laws of England or the province; and such laws are to remain in force for one year only unless confirmed by the governor and council of the province.

The following appointees are confirmed by the charter to be the present city officials: Robert Lutting, mayor; Francis Harison, recorder; Cornelius de Peyster, chamberlain and treasurer; Richard Nicols, coroner; Edmund Peers, high constable; and Robert Crannell, marshal; John Cruger, alderman, and John Moore, assistant, for the Dock Ward; Hermanus van Gelder, alderman, and John Chambers, assistant, for the West Ward; Col. Frederick Phillipse, alderman, and Isaac de Peyster, assistant, for the South Ward; Gerardus Stuyvesant, alderman, and Samuel Kip, assistant, for the Out Ward; Anthony Rutgers, alderman, and Egbert van Borsom (Van Borsum), assistant, for the North Ward; John Rosevelt (Rosevelt), alderman, and Petrus Rutgers, assistant, for the East Ward; Johannes Hardenbrook, alderman, and Gerardus

Beckman, assistant, for Montgomerie Ward; constables, assessors, and collectors are also named. Feb. 11

The common council is given full power to establish and operate ferries around Manhattan Island for carrying people, horses, cattle, and goods between Manhattan and opposite shores, to let or otherwise dispose of them, and receive all fees and profits arising therefrom. Power is also given to the common council to build, repair, and lay out bridges, lanes, highways, streets and alleys, and to alter and repair them; and power to "have, hold and Keep Markets, at the five several Places (in the said City of New York, on every Day in the Week throughout the Year, except Sunday), as follows, to wit. One Market at Counties-Dock, one other Market, at the Old-Slip, at Burgher's-Path; one other Market at Countesses-Slip; one other Market at the lower End of Wall-Street; and one other Market by the Long-Bridge;" and as many more as the corporation may think fit to establish. (Gerard states that this authority to lay out streets, etc., "is one of a public character or direction, and not of private interest, involving ownership or franchise, and it has always been considered subject to legislative modification or control."—A Treatise on the Title of the Corporation, 17.)

The charter confirms to "all and every the respective Inhabitants and Freeholders," and to "their several and respective Heirs and Assigns forever," all the "respective Messuages, Tenements, Lands and Hereditaments" granted to them by former governors, lieutenant-governors, or commanders-in-chief of the province, or by any of the former mayors, etc., or by others having title under such grants, saving the quit-rents reserved by their grants. (These quit-rents, which were usually a merely nominal consideration in the early grants, have been extinguished, Gerard explains, "by commutation or by the operation of the statute of limitations, which commenced to run against quit-rents on Jan. 1, 1820."—Treatise on the Title of the Corporation, 37, citing Laws of N. Y., 1813, Chap. 119.)

The charter further gives full power to the corporation to purchase and hold, in fee simple, any manors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, in or out of the city, not exceeding "the clear yearly rent or value of £5000;" and this is to be without further letters patent or power from England's sovereignty. But see Chancellor Kent, The Charter of the City of New York, with Notes thereon (1854).

Finally, the charter gives and confirms to the mayor, aldermen, and commonality of the city of New York, and their successors forever, all public buildings and improvements, which the charter names in full; all the lands, ferries, docks, water-courses, etc., on Manhattan Island, including the soil under water 400 feet beyond low-water mark, between Bestaver's-Killitie and the fort on the Hudson River, and between Corlaer's Hook and Whitehall on the East River, as well as all the grants contained in former charters; exceptions being made, however, of silver and gold mines, Fort George and its grounds, the Governor's Garden near the English church, the King's Farm and adjoining swamp, and certain rights reserved to other persons. About 82½ acres are added to the city property by the 400-foot strip beyond low-water on the Hudson, and about 127 acres on the East River. The charter provides that the corporation shall not exercise its right to build wharves beyond low-water mark without the consent of persons who have prior grants of wharf-space. Space is reserved for exterior streets 40 feet wide, for the convenience of trade, and "to plant Batteries thereon, in Case of any Necessities."

All of these grants are made at an annual quit-rent of 30 shillings, "Proclamation Money, besides and over and above the yearly Quit-Rent of one Beaver Skin, or the Value thereof," as provided by the Dongan Charter, and also the yearly quit-rent of five shillings provided by the Cornbury (or Queen Anne) Charter.

This charter, which begins with the name of "George The Second," as grantor, closes with this paragraph: "In Testimony whereof, we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed, and the same to be entered of Record in our Secretary's Office of our said Province in one of the Books of Patents there remaining. Witness our trusty and well beloved John Montgomerie, Esq; our Captain General and Governor in Chief of our said Province of New York, and the Province of New Jersey, and Territories depending thereon in America, and Vice Admiral of the same, &c, at our Fort George in New York, the fifteenth Day of January, in the fourth Year of our Reign." It is endorsed by a certificate of examination, Jan. 15, 1731, signed by R. Bradley, attorney-general, who states that it con-

1771 tains "nothing therein prejudicial to the Interest of his Majesty."
 Feb. The Montgomerie Charter was confirmed by the general assembly 11 on Oct. 14, 1732 (q.v.). This charter has been the basis of all subsequent charters of New York City. It was specifically confirmed in the first constitution (of 1777) by the state government after the Revolution, and again by the constitutions of 1822 and 1846. The validity of the Doogan and Montgomerie Charters has been definitely recognized by the city charters of 1857, 1870, etc.— See Gerard, op. cit., 40. See also Kent, The Charter of the City of New York. Any question as to the charter's validity, because it did not receive the confirmation of the king at the time it was granted (see N. Y. Municipal Gazette, 1841, I: 58; and Chron., Dec. 15, 1733), Hoffman answers with the statement that the royal sanction was not necessary for charters and patents any more than for statutes. "They were valid until the king disaffirmed them." Hoffman, op. cit., II: 31. See also Lincoln, Constitutional Hist. of N. Y.

20 In accordance with the directions of the new charter, minor city officials—i. e., constables for all the wards, assessors for the Montgomerie and Out Wards, and a collector for Montgomerie Ward—having been elected, in obedience to warrants issued by the mayor to the aldermen, returns are made to the town clerk, and the names of those elected are recorded in the Minutes of the Common Council.
 Such officials are to serve until Oct. 14, or longer, until successors are elected, in accordance with the provisions of the new charter.—
M. C. C., IV: 44.

Mar. 8 A public vendue is advertised to be held on, March 24, at the "Exchange Coffee House."—N. Y. Gaz., March 1-8, 1731. This tavern stood at Broad and Water Sts. (see March 25, 1729). Numerous public vendues were held there in succeeding years.

" "The Boston and Philadelphia Posts set out this day, in order to perform their Stations once a Week till the first of December next; and this Paper will come forth every Monday Morning during that time."—N. Y. Gaz., March 1-8, 1731. Substantially the same advertisement made its appearance nearly every year at this season.

22 A Philadelphia writer says that inoculation for small-pox is beginning to be favourably considered there. A case is cited to show "how groundless all those extravagant Reports are, that have been spread through the Province [of New York] to the contrary."
 —N. Y. Gaz., March 15-22, 1731. Inoculation was not favoured in New York in 1747.—See Aug. 30, 1731, and June 9, 1747.

31 The common council orders that a committee, appointed for various stated purposes, "find out A proper place for the Erecting of a Warehouse for the use of this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 48.
 No further reference to this warehouse appears in the Minutes. Up to 1720, the old market-house had been in use partly as a warehouse.
 See May 24, 1684.

" The common council appoints a committee to "Revise the Laws of this Corporation," and "Report what Laws Ought to be Continued and Amended, and what New Laws are needfull to be made and Established." The committee is required to meet at the city hall on April 8, and at least once a week thereafter, "until they have Completed the same."—M. C. C., IV: 47. These laws were finally approved as amended, Nov. 18, 1731 (q.v.).

" The city issues its first municipal bonds. A committee appointed by the common council on Jan. 14, 1731 (M. C. C., IV: 35), to procure a loan of £2000 to be applied on the expense of procuring the new charter and its confirmation, reports that it has obtained the amount of John Chambers (assistant alderman of the West Ward, and one of the principal lawyers of the city: see ibid., III: 406-7, 479; and July 28, 1729). This was done "at the usual Interest of Eight pounds Centum Annuum for one Year." The committee expresses the opinion that the corporation "Ought to Execute A Bond or Bonds for the Repayment of the same with the Interest." The report is approved, and it is ordered that the mayor execute two bonds; these are therefore executed, "in Common Council," each bond being conditioned to pay Chambers £108 on or before March 31, 1732, under penalty of £216. John Chambers thus became the first holder of New York City bonds.—Ibid., IV: 46-47. Regarding the discharge of these bonds, see ibid., IV:
 142, 222. For a summary of all the business involved in procuring the Montgomerie Charter, see March 23, 1730.

Not until Nov. 5, 1750 (q.v.), did the city again issue bonds in payment of money borrowed for municipal improvements. See also April 26, 1750.

Apr. 7 Gov. Montgomerie communicates to the council his additional instructions concerning the ecclesiastical jurisdiction to be exercised by the Bishop of London.—Cal. Coun. Min., 312.

The barracks in the fort are reported as in need of repair and Daniel Gautier is appointed to perform the work, a warrant for paying him being issued.—Cal. Coun. Min., 311. See former orders of Oct. 16, 1730.

The common council passes a more searching ordinance to prevent strangers from becoming a charge upon the corporation. For former ordinances, see Jan. 20, 1676; March 15, 1684; April 22, 1691. Now, all housekeepers and inhabitants who entertain them for more than two days are required, before the third day, to report to the constable of the ward or division where such person is received the stranger's name, residence, trade, place of business, and
 "for what Cause he She or they Come to Reside."—M. C. C., IV: 52-53.

"The Post-Office will be Removed to Morrow to the uppermost of the two New Houses in the Broad-Way, opposite to the end of Bever Street."—N. Y. Gaz., Apr. 26-May 3, 1731.

The court of general sessions, after being convened by "seeing the Marks upon the head arm and body" of Alexander Magee, an apprentice, of his having suffered "Immoderate Correction" at the hands of his master, Thomas Hall, a cordwainer, discharge Magee from his apprenticeship.—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 535. See also Feb. 4, 1718.

The common council resolves to procure "two Compleat fire Engines with Suction and Materialls there unto belonging, for the Publick service," and "That the Sizes thereof be, of the fourth and sixth sizes of M<sup>r</sup> Newshams fire Engines." A committee is appointed "to Agree with some proper Merchant or Merchants to send to London for the same."—M. C. C., IV: 55. The complete account of procuring these engines is as follows: On June 12, the committee reported that they had proposed "to Mess<sup>rs</sup> Stephen De Lancey and John Moore Merch<sup>ts</sup> to send for two fire Engines to Loodoo by the Ship Beaver of M<sup>r</sup> Newshams New Invention of the fourth and sixth Sizes with suction, Leathern Pipes and Caps and Other Materialls thereunto belonging;" and that De Lancey and Moore would obtain them "at the Rate of one hundred and twenty Cent Advance on the foot of the Invoice (Exclusive of Commissions and Insurance)," payment to be made in nine months after delivery. The terms were accepted by the common council, and the committee was directed to give the order.—Ibid., IV: 56. See also an assessment levied May 25, 1731, for raising £300 for this purpose, showing the assessed valuation of the several wards.—
Tax Book (1721-34), 515, in comptroller's office. The engines arrived Nov. 27 (q.v.), and on Dec. 1 a committee was appointed "to Employ Workmen to fit up A Convenient Room in the City Hall
 . . . for securing the Fire Engines."—M. C. C., IV: 122. On Aug.
 17, 1732, De Lancey and Moore were paid £204:12 for the two engines "lately Delivered to this Corporation;" and a bricklayer and a carpenter were paid for labour and materials "for Repairs lately done to the City Hall," evidently to receive the fire-engines.—Ibid., IV: 149-50. Costello's statement in Our Firemen, 23-24, that these engines were housed in two sheds in the rear of the city hall appears impossible of proof. See, on the general subject of fire protection, the "Sketch of the Origin of the Fire Department, of the City of New York, as at present organized," in Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 521-29.

Elizabeth Delamontague, a widow, is paid £4 by the commo-council "for the Rent of her House and damages done to itt, lately hired of her for a Watch House."—M. C. C., IV: 55. On July 9, 1731 (q.v.), it was proposed to build a watch-house, and this was done.—Ibid., IV: 57. See also July 26, 1707.

A tax assessment shows the valuation of the different wards as follows: East Ward, £12,710; Dock Ward, £7,880; South Ward, £5,345; West Ward, £3,860; North Ward, £3,605; Montgomerie Ward, £3,070; Bowery, £1,425; Harlem, £685.—Tax Book (1721- 34), 515, in comptroller's office. For the purpose of this assessment, see May 6.

Anthony Duane, of New York, merchant, and Aeltie, his wife, convey to Peter Warren, commander of H. M. S. "Solebay," for £200, a parcel of land bounded, according to the modern city plan, as follows: northerly by a line from the corner of West 14th St. near Tenth Ave. to a point on 15th St. east of Eighth Ave.; westerly by the original line of the Hudson River (now diagonally south from 14th St. and Tenth Ave. to Little W. 12th St. and Washington St.); southerly and easterly by the old road which ran irregularly from the latter point to the north side of 14th St. east of Eighth Ave.—

Apr. 7
 7
 22
 May 3
 4
 6 11
 25
 June 18

1731 See original deed in possession of N. Y. Hist. Soc.; see also June June 4, 1737, and Aug. 18, 1741; and the Estate of Sir Peter Warren under Farm Titles, Vol. V.

21 "At the House of George Brownell, near the Custom-House, are taught Reading, Writing, Cyphering, Merchants Accounts, Latin, Greek, &c., also Dancing, Plain-work, Flourishing, Imbroi-dery, and various Sorts of Works. Any Person may be taught as private as they please."—N. Y. Gaz., June 14-21, 1731.

July Gov. John Montgomerie, dated Assemb. Jour., i: 623. Cor-1 response from New York, dated July 5, stated that his death occurred at Fort George, on Thursday, July 1, and that he was "interred in the King's Chapel on the evening of the Fryday following" (July 2).—N. E. Weekly Jour. (Boston), July 12, 1731; Boston News-Letter, July 8-15, 1731. James Alexander mentioned Montgomerie's death in a letter of July 3 to Cadwallader Colden.—See Colden Papers (MS.), in N. Y. Hist. Soc. No other particulars were published. See also "The City under Gov. John Montgomerie," in Wilson's Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 179.

" Rip van Dam presides at the meeting of the council. The commission and instructions of the late Gov. Montgomerie are read; it is ordered that a proclamation be issued announcing his death, and confirming all officers in their places. The council members not present are called to attend. The seal of the province, etc., are delivered to Rip van Dam, and he thereafter acts as governor until Cosby, the new governor arrives. George Clarke, Archibald Kennedy, James de Lancey and Charles Home, are directed to take an inventory of the governor's estate.—Cal. Coun. Min., 312;
N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 921. See July 10, and Oct. 12. For the original manuscript catalogue of his effects, which were sold at auction, see July 26; also Pl. 31, Vol. IV.

An authoritative memoir of the life and times of Rip van Dam was written by Frederic de Peyster, when vice-president of the N. Y. Hist. Soc., and read before that society, Nov. 4, 1862, on the occasion of the presentation by him of the portraits of Rip van Dam and his wife. This was published, with reproductions of the portraits, in Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 720 et seq.

2 Rip van Dam is sworn in as president of the council; James de Lancey as second justice, and Frederick Philipse as third justice, of the supreme court.—Cal. Coun. Min., 312.

9 The common council resolves to build a watch-house (see May
6) "on the South side of the Cage in the Broad Street;" and a committee is appointed to determine the proper size, materials, and the expense of erection.—M. C. C., IV: 57. This committee reported, on Aug. 26, that they were of the opinion that the building should be 28 feet long and 18 feet wide, with two rooms, one 18 feet and the other 10 feet long, with fireplace in each, with two doors at the southeast corner, one on the south and one to the east side of the corner, and with three lights in the large room and one small one in the small room. The materials required were listed, and the total expense estimated to be £60. The committee was ordered to buy the materials, and employ workmen to build promptly "at the upper end of the Broad Street near the City Hall."—Ibid., IV: 65-66.
On Nov. 18, it was paid for.—Ibid., IV: 76-77. For the exact location of this watch-house, see N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 3, 1757, in which are advertised for sale two dwelling-houses belonging to the estate of the late Teunis Tiebout, "in Broad-Street, opposite the Watch-House;" see also the map of David Grim (Plate 32, Vol. I), showing the city as it was in 1742; also De Voe's Market Book, 260, showing that the watch-house stood above the Flatten Barrack Market, which was next to the Lashby dwelling on the corner of Flatten Barrack St. (Exchange Pl.). A new watch-house was built in 1793, at the south-east corner of Wall and Broad Sts. (No. 1 Broad St.), and the old one was taken down.—See June 3, 1793; City Directory, 1796; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 973.

" Alderman Philipse, on behalf of several leading merchants and residents of the South and Dock Wards, proposes to the common council a plan for extending the pier head on the south side of the great dock 100 feet farther into the East River, and 40 feet wide, at their own expense, with the understanding that the city will repay the amounts thus advanced at the end of three years from the time of completing the work. The common council agrees to the proposal, provided the amount advanced is not more than £200, and a committee is appointed to complete the arrangement.—
M. C. C., IV: 57-58.

10 Letters of administration on the estate of the late Gov. Montgomerie, who died intestate, are granted to Charles Home.—Liber July Wills, XI: 146. For inventory and sale of the personal estate, see July 26, and Pl. 31, Vol. IV.

22 Steps are taken for the further development of the west side water front. The common council directs the mayor to execute a grant to John Chambers of "his House and Lott of Ground now in the Occupation of Nicholas Van Taerling Situate on the West Side of the Broadway from the Said Broadway to Highwater Mark on Hudsons River." It is also resolved to make a grant to him of "all the Ground under Water in the Rear of his Said Lott from high water Mark to Low Water Mark," "250 feet "into Hudsons River;" Chambers, his heirs and assigns to pay an annual rent of 25 shillings, or six pence per foot in breadth. He is required to leave "A Street of five and forty foot in breadth at the foot of the Bank the Center of which Street to be at high Water Mark, and also Another Street next and fronting Hudsons River of thirty foot in breadth;" and he is required to "Dock or Wharf out" 220 feet "from High Water Mark into Hudsons River within five years from the date of the Grant, and in Default thereof to pay the Annual Rent of Nine pence per foot to this Corporation until he shall Wharf and make the said Streets."—M. C. C., IV: 64. The street 45 feet in breadth, here provided for, was the present Greenwich St., and the one 30 feet wide was Washington St. The lots in the possession of which Chambers was confirmed by this grant were those lying between the present Morris St. and Battery Place.—See grant to Chambers, recorded in Liber City Grants, B: 357, comproller's office.

The common council resolves "that a Piece of Ground belonging to this Corporation lying on the West Side of the Great Dock Containing in front to the Custom House Street [the present Pearl St.] seventy two foot, in the Rear to Whitehall Street Ninety foot and in length on both sides one hundred and Eight foot bounded on the East by Weighouse Street [the present Moore St.], on the South by Whitehall Street and on the West by the Broadway, be forthwith Exposed to Sale Either in Parcel or in Lots."—M. C. C., IV: 64. On Aug. 26, a committee was appointed "to lay out the Land belonging to this Corporation lying on the West Side of the Dock," and to require the city surveyor to make a plan of it, "leaving the Broadway and the Custom House Street each Sixty foot in breadth, and Weigh House Street and Whitehall Street each forty foot in breadth."—Ibid., IV: 66. On March 24, 1732, it was resolved that this "Parcel of unimproved Ground" be laid out "in seven Lots and Exposed to Sale" "on Tuesday, April 25," by Public Outcry Auction or Vendue to the highest bidder at the House of Obadiah Hunt next the Custom House," and "that Advertisements of the Said Sale be forthwith Printed and Published."—Ibid., IV: 130, 134-35. On April 25, 1732, the sale occurred as arranged.
The buyers and prices paid were as follows: Lot No. 1, Stephen de Lancey, £155; No. 2, the same, £15; No. 3, David Clarkson, £156;
No. 4, John Moore, £276; No. 5, Stephen de Lancey, £192; No. 6, Robert Livingston, Jr. (son of Philip), £175; No. 7, Anthony Rutgers, £239; total, £1344; and it was ordered that grants be executed by the mayor accordingly.—Ibid., IV: 137-38, 140. This ground was a part of the lands mortgaged by the city as security for the repayment of £1,000 to James de Lancey on Oct. 1, 1730, when funds were thus obtained "for procuring A New Charter."—Ibid., IV: 45-46. See "Copy of a Map (in the Town Clerk's Office) of the White Hall Lotts, as they were sold by the Corporation in the year 1732," showing their location with regard to "Custom House Street," "Weigh House Street," "Broad Way Street" (the name there given to Broad Street), and the great dock. On the back of this map is "A Survey of the White Hall Lotts," made Aug. 28, 1772, by Gerard Bancker, in which "White Hall Street" appears as "Water St."—In Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library, in box
R-W, folder V-W. On May 19, 1732, Robert Lutting, as vendue master, was paid £30 "for Selling at Publick Vendue seven Lotts of Ground on the West Side of the Dock and Weigh House for this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 141.

26 An advertisement requests all persons who have any demands on the estate of the late Gov. Montgomerie to bring in their accounts. It is announced that, on August 5, there will be exposed to sale, "by way of Publick Vendue, Four Negro Men and Four Negro Women; The Times of two Men and one Woman Servant. Also several sorts of Fashionable wrought Plate; most sorts of very good Household Furniture. And after the Sale of the above Goods, will be Sold several fine Saddle Horses, Breeding Mares and Colts, Coach-Horses, and Harness, and several other things belonging to 1731 the Estate of his late Excellency Governour Montgomerie." Those July interested may view "any of the above Goods" at Fort George and 26 receive information concerning the conditions of sale.—N. Y. Gaz.,

July 19-26, 1731.

The manuscript inventory of Gov. Montgomerie's effects (see Pl. 31, Vol. IV), including the library (see June, 1732), made by Charles Home, administrator, in 1731, and attested before Lieut.-Gov. Clarke, in 1740, is now in the possession of the N. Y. Pub. Library. The articles are listed under the names of their purchasers, with the selling prices. The manuscript covers 304 closely-written pages, beautifully penned. This inventory presents to the mind a definite picture of the wardrobe, household furniture, and even the habits of Gov. Montgomerie, and serves to illustrate the manner of living of an English gentleman in the middle of the eighteenth century. His cellars contained Rhenish wines, "metheglen," Barbados rum, claret, "Persico," Citron Water," and over 2,000 gallons of Madeira. The governour had numerous "Caird Tables," dice, decanters, glasses, and dishes of all kinds. One item is "6 black Tye Wiggs and 3 plans of New York"—the plans, almost without doubt, being the Bradford Map of 1730.

The following items, with selling prices, are selected from the inventory as typical:

"a Bed with Blue China Curtains."	£3: 0: 0
"12 Leather Chairs and an Elbow D <sup>o</sup> ."	7: 2: 0
"4 p <sup>r</sup> Crimston Harralene Window Curtains."	6: 0: 0
"6 Yellow Chairs."	5: 8: 0
"a Yellow Easy Chair."	4: 4: 0
"3 p <sup>r</sup> Yellow Camblet Window Curt <sup>s</sup> ."	4: 10: 0
"a large Glass with Guilded frame."	8: 0: 0
"2 doz: hard Metall plates."	3: 6: 0
"a Demipeck Saddle, Bridle, Halsters &c."	3: 0: 0
"a Cloath Hooseing with Silver Lace."	5: 2: 0
"a Callicoe Quilt."	3: 0: 0
"a Sacken bottom Bedstead & blue Curtains."	1: 10: 0
"a fine yellow Camblet Bed."	3: 0: 0
"17 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub> y <sup>d</sup> s Camblette."	2: 14: 8 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub>
"40 y <sup>d</sup> s Bed Lace."	1: 0: 6
"a Silver Tankard."	19: 7: 10 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub>
"a Blue Easy Chair and Cushion."	1: 13: 0
"a large 3 footed Stove Chaffing Dish."	1: 1: 3
"4 hair Brooms."	0: 7: 0
"2 Gincen Bannians."	2: 10: 0
"6 Cane Chairs."	1: 18: 0
"a Round Table."	0: 18: 0
"a Travelling Desk."	1: 13: 0
"3 pair white Gloves."	0: 4: 6
"3 pair coloured D <sup>o</sup> ."	0: 12: 0
"a New Cam <sup>k</sup> ruffled Skirt & Stock."	2: 1: 6
"a Shag <sup>d</sup> Beaver Hatt with Case."	1: 12: 0
"2 pair Course threed Stockings."	0: 16: 0
"a Silver Candlestick with 3 Branches."	24: 3: 0
"2 pair princes Metall Candlesticks."	1: 19: 0
"3 dozen Indian looking Glasses."	0: 9: 9
"a pair Pistolls."	1: 13: 0
"a Guilt Fram <sup>d</sup> Chimney Glass."	4: 0: 0
"a very fine Saddle Stone Horse."	42: 10: 0
"a Dimity Squab and Bolster."	4: 0: 0
"a mourning Sword and Belt."	1: 9: 0
"a Negro Musitian Called Andrew."	85: 10: 0
"a Silver Coffee pott."	15: 14: 7
"a Cheese in a Leaden Cover" (129 lbs.).	3: 4: 6
"a Side Board."	1: 0: 0
"a round walnut Caird Table."	1: 0: 0
"a pair fine Rose Blankits."	1: 10: 0
"2 pair Sconces."	1: 3: 0
"2 fine old fashion Carv <sup>d</sup> Guilt Branches."	0: 11: 0
"12 Indian (round and square Ey <sup>d</sup> ) Hatchets."	0: 14: 9
"a Dumb Waiter."	0: 10: 0
"a Negro Boy Named Othello."	46: 0: 0
"6 New fashion black Leather Chairs."	12: 0: 0
"an Easy Black Leather Chair."	6: 15: 0
"a Japan tea Table and Compleat Sett of China."	5: 0: 0
"a Brass tea kettle Lamp and Stand."	3: 11: 0
"a Repeating table Clock."	10: 10: 0
"a Negro Boy Named Barbadoes."	52: 0: 0
"12 New fashion Matted Chairs."	9: 12: 0

"a Round Walnut tree Caird Table."	£9: 19: 0
"a pair large Sconces Guilded frames."	16: 10: 0
"a Cane Couch, Squab and Pillow."	2: 16: 0
"a pair Walnut tree fram <sup>d</sup> Sconces & Branches."	17: 0: 0
"an Incorporating Glass."	0: 2: 3
"35 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub> Y <sup>d</sup> s Blew Cloath."	23: 10: 0
"a large Tinn <sup>d</sup> fir Screen."	0: 15: 0
"a Mattress Cover <sup>d</sup> with White fustine."	2: 2: 0
"11 New fashion Matted Chairs."	8: 16: 0
"a half round Table."	0: 11: 0
"2150 Small Flints."	0: 16: 1 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub>
"18 Felt Hatts Edged with Fancy Lace."	4: 10: 0
"4 Dozen Small looking Glasses."	0: 10: 4
"2 brass Hand Candlesticks."	0: 9: 0
"12 pewther plates."	1: 12: 0
"a painted floor Cloath."	0: 14: 0
"5 pewther Dishes."	1: 15: 0
"a Blue Suite of Cloaths Lace & Butt <sup>s</sup> taken of."	5: 0: 0
"2 pair Silk window Curtains Vallens & Rnds."	2: 10: 0
"2 white Hatt feathers."	0: 10: 0
"1 pair black Silk Stockings with Gold Clokes."	1: 10: 0
"a Brass Scru for Seals."	0: 10: 0
"a padlock, Shoe-Stretcher, Nippers & Canister."	0: 5: 0
"a Walnut tree frame Sconce."	2: 10: 0
"an Oval Billesteete table."	1: 5: 0
"a pair Guilded frame Sconces."	1: 1: 0
"2 Yellow Dressing Chairs."	2: 10: 0
"a Streipt Easy Chair and Cushion."	2: 0: 0
"3 Corner <sup>d</sup> Elbow Chair."	1: 14: 0
"an 8th Day Clock."	15: 0: 0
"5 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub> Y <sup>d</sup> s Crimso Harralene."	0: 12: 3
"a feather Bed Bolster and pillow."	6: 6: 0
"a Bell Metall Mortar and Iron pestle."	1: 0: 6
"a large China tea pott and Silver Chain."	1: 17: 0
"a Stone Horse."	2: 1: 0
"a fine Brass hilted broad Sword."	2: 0: 0
"a brass Bullet Mold with a Claver."	1: 8: 0
"46 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub> Oz <sup>s</sup> Gold lace 65 Coat & 44 Vest Buttons."	20: 0: 0
"a field Bedstead and Green Curtains."	3: 2: 6
"a field Bedstead and blue Curtains."	3: 11: 0
"a pair Philadelphia Mill <sup>d</sup> Stockings."	0: 9: 0
"1 Cam <sup>k</sup> new Ruffled Shirts."	4: 0: 0
"1 pair Olive Coloured Stockings."	0: 12: 0
"2 wore Dimity Vests."	1: 4: 0
"4 pair Window Curtains Vallens & rods."	2: 13: 6
"a large India Screen."	4: 0: 0
"2 fine old fashion <sup>d</sup> Carv <sup>d</sup> Branches."	0: 8: 0
"a Guilt Leather Screen."	5: 10: 0
"a picture of Greenwich parke."	0: 9: 6
"2 old Buffet Stools."	0: 6: 0
"a Capparrison Cloath."	0: 4: 0
"a Mullatto Woman Called Emanda."	41: 0: 0
"2 Colour <sup>d</sup> Hancurch <sup>s</sup> ."	0: 4: 0
"an old Scarlet Clnak and old Laced Hatt."	3: 0: 0
"a 4 wheeled Chaise & pair Harnish &c."	55: 0: 0
"a Clokebag and Malpillion."	0: 12: 0
"2 Hoosings and 2 Holster Caps."	0: 3: 6
"a parat Cage."	1: 1: 0
"a field Bedstead and Yellow Curtains."	8: 5: 0
"a Muf and Silver Ring."	1: 15: 0
"a Scarlet Coat and Breeches with Gold <sup>d</sup> Buttons and Butt: holes, and Buff Colour <sup>d</sup> Vest with Gold lace and a Gold Laced Hatt."	25: 0: 0
"6 Dimity Night Caps."	0: 9: 0
"a Negro woman Called Betty."	56: 9: 0
"1 D <sup>o</sup> Called Jenny."	30: 4: 0
"4 Tycken Umbrellos."	3: 0: 0
"2 powdering Troffs."	0: 8: 0
"2 Cradles for Negrees."	0: 4: 0
"Severall Draughts of this Country &c."	2: 0: 0
"110 white Ozenbrig Shirts."	27: 10: 0
"121 Small Indian Guns."	90: 15: 0
"a large Silver Cup Guilded within."	5: 13: 1 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub>
"a pair Silver mounted pistolls."	12: 15: 0
"a Coach with a Sett of fine Harnish and 2 Sett travelling D <sup>o</sup> Barrass Covering, . . . &c."	81: 0: 0

July 26

1731	"a Barge with its Accoutrements."	£47: 0: 0
July	"a Gold Belt Buckle."	515: 6
26	"a fine New Suite of Cloaths with open Silver Lace with a pair Silk Stockings, Embroider'd Clokes"	40: 0: 0
	"a plain Hat wore."	11: 0: 0
	"2 pair Linnen Stockings."	0: 8: 0
	"2 pillow Biers."	0: 11: 6
	"a Holland Hamper and padlock."	0:10: 0
	"a Steel Handled Sword Guilted."	1:12: 0
	"a walnut tree Scripore."	12: 0: 0
	"a Steel mounted fouling piece."	5: 0: 0
	"a Gold Box with the Citys Arms."	14:17: 0
	"2 Silver Snuf Boxes."	2:16: 5
	"a triangle Steel Scall and Scall att Arms."	0: 4: 0
	"a Cornelian Scall Set in gold."	1: 4: 0
	"a Stone Ring with 8 Sparks round."	3: 0: 0
	"2 Gold Badges."	4:13: 0
	"a Silk and Silver purse."	0: 4: 0
	"3 Copper plates with Arms."	0: 3: 0
	"a Shagreen Case with knife Scissars & pen."	1:10: 0
	"a tortoiseshell pick tooth Case."	0: 2: 0
	"a Tree of the Seton family."	0: 5: 0
	"a wooden Snuf Mill & a wig Comb."	0: 11: 0
	"a Silver watch."	18: 0: 0
	"a Gold headed Cane."	7: 0: 0
	"1 pair Silver Salvers."	10:18: 8
	"a Negro Boy Called Pompey."	46: 0: 0
	"Thomas Barnet a white Servants time."	6: 0: 0
	"William Mooosie's time."	3:10: 0
	"a Negro Woman Nam'd Deliverance."	35: 0: 0
	"a Silver Tea Tray."	31: 9: 4
	"a Silver Standish."	16:10: 0
	"a flint Bottle and Shagreen Case."	0:12: 0
	"a round D <sup>o</sup> in Shagreen Case."	0: 8: 6
	"a Marble Mortar Lignum vitæ pestle & Block."	2: 1: 6
	"2 Scarlet Tabby fir Skreens."	1:14: 0
	"a Natural pacing Mare."	17:15: 0
	"2 Shirts with lace Ruffles and Lace turnovers."	11: 0: 0
	"a Silver punch Bowle & Monteith."	41: 8: 0
	"a Suite Scarlet Cloaths with Silver lace."	10: 0: 0
	"a Rattle Snake Skin in a box."	0:12: 0
	"a Tortoiseshell Box guilted within."	0:12: 0
	"a Corslet."	7:13: 0
	"a Suite of Silk Cloaths trimm'd with black."	10:10: 6
	"a powder Horn and Shott Bagg."	0: 4: 6
	"a pair Gaters."	10: 0: 0
	"a Cloath Suite with plate Buttons."	10: 0: 0
	"a pair black and p <sup>r</sup> Scarlet Silk Stockings gold Clokes."	1:16: 6
	"6 Sett of Men for Baggamon."	0:11: 7
	"4 Dice boxes."	0: 5: 3

In addition to the foregoing selected list, is the inventory of the library,—regarding which see June, 1732. See, further, Oct. 11, 1731; and Sept. 4, 1732.

Aug. Small-pox begins to spread in New York City. For some weeks there were but few deaths. As soon as burials increased, after Aug. 23, Bradford began (with issue No. 305) to publish each week in his Gazette a statement of the number of whites and blacks buried. From Aug. 23 to Nov. 15, a period of two months and three weeks, there were 478 whites and 71 blacks, or 549 in all.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 8-15, 1731. See Aug. 30.

23 Although the borrowing of money for both public and private objects has been a recorded incident in the life of the city, the business of negotiating loans, as a distinct private profession, is now, apparently for the first time, introduced in New York. A newspaper advertisement reads: "Whereas many Persons in this Province have often Occasion to borrow Money at Interest, and others have Sums of Money lying by them which they want to put out, Some want to purchase Houses, Lands, and other Things, and others frequently want to sell; but for want of knowing where to apply on these Occasions are often disappointed in their Designs, to their very great prejudice. Wherefore in Order that all Persons may know where to Apply, Publick Notice is hereby given, That Richard Nicholls, Attorney at Law, near the Fort, in New-York, (at the Request of several Persons of Note) Negotiates all such Affairs for such Persons as desire the same, for a reasonable Reward, and with the greatest Secrecy and Integrity. N. B. He Advertises, if desired (not otherwise) without Charge, unless Successful. A Person has four hundred Pounds to put at Interest. Another has Fifty Pounds to put out on good Personal Security."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 16-23, 1731. In the city's annals, up to this time, there had been no evidence of the existence of private bankers. The business of this loan agent is the nearest approach to it. Richard Nicholls was also post master.—Ibid., Nov. 15-22, 1731.

Nearly ten months have elapsed since the last meeting of the assembly, Oct. 29, 1730. At that time, it was adjourned to meet in March, but was postponed by several proclamations of Gov. Montgomerie. The governor died on July 1, 1731, and no business meeting of the assembly was held until Aug. 25. The members meet on this day at the house of Harmanus Rutgers "in the Bowry lane" (see Cal. Coun. Min., 313), occur "the Fresh Water."—Assemb. Jour., I: 623; Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 603. In the preceding May, "Capt. Fred" was reported to have brought from Jamaica negroes "who had the small-pox (Cal. Coun. Min., 312). The disease spread (see Aug., 1731), which doubtless accounts for the unusual place of this meeting.

The assembly meets in Rutgers' house, and, at the same time, the council, with its president, Rip van Dam, meets at "the House where Capt. Kippen for Kippin now lives," and to this house the assembly is summoned to hear the message of the president. The assembly then returns to the Rutgers house.—Assemb. Jour., I: 623. The location of the Kippen house (evidently a rented one) is not readily ascertained, if it is to be found of record. The assembly continued its sittings there until Aug. 31, when it adjourned to meet in the assembly chamber in the city hall. This was due to the fact that a rumour was "spread in the Country, that a Person is seized of the Small-Pox, in the very House they now sit," and because "the Members who have not had that Distemper (being above one third of the whole Number) are determined not to appear any more in the House during this Session."—Ibid., I: 624-25. On Sept. 30, Rip van Dam again adjourned the assembly because of the small-pox, which was now "spread amongst us," and such adjournments were repeated later, both by him and the newly-arrived governor, William Cosby, until Aug. 9, 1732.—Ibid., I: 633.

The common council appoints a committee to "Cause A Strong Gaol to be made at the West End of the Said City Hall on the upper floor thereof and the Other Gaols of this City to be Enlarged Strengthened and Amended as in their Shall Appear needfull."—M. C. C., IV: 66. See April 25, 1727.

The assembly decides to defer consideration of matters before it because meetings of the house have grown "very thin, and more likely to grow thinner than fuller, by Reason that the Small-Pox are very brief in the City of New-York, a Distemper which at least 9 of the Members never had."—Assemb. Jour., I: 624.

A letter from New York states that the only news is "the melancholy Scece of little Business, and less Money." Describing these conditions, the letter continues: "the Markets begin to grow very thin; the Small Pox ragio very violently in Town, which, in a great measure, hinders the Country People from supplying this Place with Provisions. I have not yet heard that any Persons have gone out of Town for Fear of it. The last week they began to inoculate; which Practice I have some reason to believe will very much be followed: The Distemper has been a long time very favourable, but now begins to be of the Confluc<sup>t</sup> Kind and very mortal."—Upcott Collection, in N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 113. See Aug., 1731.

See also Samuel Abbott Green's Ten Fac-simile Reproductions Relating to Old Boston and Neighborhood (1901), 25-26, for a broadside written by Rev. Thomas Thatcher, and dated "21.11. 1678" (Jan. 21, 1678), entitled "A Brief Rule To guide the Common People of New England How to order themselves and theirs in the Small Pocks, or Measels." Green calls this the "Earliest Medical Treatise Printed in this Country," and says that a second edition was printed in 1702. Dr. Mather was the author of a broadside, printed at Boston in November, 1721, which gives "Several Reasons proving that Inoculating or Transplanting the Small-Pox is a Lawful Practice, and that it has been blessed by God for the Saving of many a Life."

Rev. Cornelius van Schie, of Poughkeepsie, writing on May 7, 1732, to Messrs. Van de Wall, Beels, etc., of Amsterdam, said in regard to his visit to New York in September, 1731, that "there

Aug. 23
25
26
28
30

1731 were very few homes free from smallpox, of which disease, a large number of people died."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2590.

1 The consistory of the Dutch Church resolves to present a written request to President Rip van Dam for an amendment to the church charter, "after it shall be shown what defects it now has, and what further privileges the present state of the Church demands."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2551-52.

4 A committee of the two houses of the legislature is appointed to meet "at the House of Mr. John Cure's in this City."—Assemb. Jour., I: 626. Cure's tavern stood on Fulton St.—See Nov. 22, 1709.

11 "There is but a slender appearance of Members in the house [house of representatives] by reason of the Small pox which rage in the province, especially in the City which terrifies the rest."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 924. See Aug. 30.

16 The common council requires the committee which was appointed on July 9 for building a watch-house to "Cause the Cage Stocks and Pillory to be Erected on the North side thereof."—M. C. C., IV: 69. See Feb. 19, 1720.

27 "The Small Pox Fever and Flux prevails very much in this City." So many children and grown persons are dying that the country people are afraid to come to town. This makes the "Markets thin, Provisions dear" and deadens all trade. Contributions have been requested for the relief of the poor.—From N. Y. news in N. E. Weekly Jour. (Boston), Oct. 4, 1731.

30 The legislature passes an act "to Provide Able Pilots and to Establish their Pilotage between Sandy Hook and the Port of New York." This statute fixes the rates of pilotage, and refers all disputes arising under the act to the justices of the peace in New York.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 700-3.

Oct. 11 The number of deaths in New York for the week ending Oct. 11 is "70 Whites, whereof 61 dyed of the Small Pox, most of them Children. Blacks 9, whereof 8 dyed of the Small Pox." The school of Edward Gatehouse suspends because most of his pupils are ill (N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 4-11, 1731), and the supreme court adjourns because of the seriousness of the epidemic.—Cal. Coun. Min., 315. See Aug. 30.

" A public auction is advertised, to take place on Oct. 12, of additional personal effects of the late Gov. Montgomerie (cf. July 26), which are to be seen at the fort. The list includes: A "fine new yellow Camblet Bed, lined with Silk & laced which came from London with Capt. Downing with the Bedding. One fine Field Bedstead and Curtains. Some blew Cloth lately come from London, for Liveries; and some white Drap Cloth with proper Trimming. Some broad Gold Lace. A very fine Medicine Chest with great variety of valuable Medicines. A parcel of Sweet Meat & Jelly Glasses. A Case with 12 Knives and twelve Forks, with Silver Handles gilded. Some good Barbados Rum. A considerable Quantity of Cyton Water. A Flask with fine Jessem Oyl. A fine Jack with Chain and Pullies &c. A large fixt Copper Boiling Pot. A large Iron Fire-place. Iron Bar and Doors for a Copper. A large lined Fire Skreen And several other Things . . .

"And also at the same Time and Place there will be Sold One Gold Watch of Mr. Tompkins make, and one Silver Watch. Two Demi-Peak Saddles one with blew Cloth Laced with Gold and the other Plain Furniture. Two Hunting Saddles. One Pair of fine Pistols. A fine Fuzee mounted with Silver, and one long Fowling Piece."—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 4-11, 1731. For the next sale, see June, 1732.

14 The common council orders that "Henry Beekman ESq High Sheriff of this City and County be Complimented with the Freedom of this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 75.

Nov. 2 Pres. Van Dam writes to the lords of trade that since the taking of the census for this year "near eight hundred are lost by the small pox, and daily more dying."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 929.

11 Jacob Leisler and other freeholders of the South Ward present a petition relating to the markets at the great bridge (Custom-house Market) and little bridge (Exchange Market, foot of Broad St.), and remonstrating against the sale of the ground where the market-house near the old bridge (Pearl and Whitehall) stood.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 516. A similar petition had been made by Jacob Leisler, Obadiah Hunt, and others on April 23, 1724 (q. v.).

15 The following churches have burial-places in New York: The Church of England (Trinity), the Dutch Church, French Church, Lutheran Church, Presbyterian Church, Quakers, Baptists, and Jews.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 15, 1731.

In this city, 549 persons have died from small-pox since Aug. 23. —See August. Nov. 15 18

The common council approves a new set of the "Laws Orders and Ordinances" of the city, as produced by a committee appointed March 31, 1731 (q. v.) and as amended in several meetings of the board. It is ordered that they remain in force for one year after publication, and that they be printed. They are immediately "published" at the city hall, "after the Ringing of three Bells and Proclamation made for silence." They are entered in full in the Minutes.—M. C. C., IV: 77-121. A copy of these laws, of 37 pages folio, printed by Bradford, is in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. It bears the publication date 1731, and the title Laws, orders, & ordinances established by the mayor, recorder, aldermen, and assistants of the City of New-York convened in Common Council, for the good rule and government of the inhabitants of the said City. Bradford was paid for this printing on July 7, 1732 (q. v.).

One of the new ordinances is for "Appointing A Place for the more Convenient Hiring of Slaves." It provides "That all Negro Mulatto and Indian Slaves that are let out to Hire within this City do take up their standing, in Order to be Hired, at the Market House at the Wall Street Slip until such time as they are hired, whereby all Persons may know where to hire slaves as their Occasions shall require, and also Owners of Slaves discover when their Slaves are so hired."—M. C. C., IV: 85.

Among the many provisions of the revised "Law for Regulating of Carts and Carmen," adopted at this time, are the following:—The number of carmen, all to be licensed, is limited to 100; they are to mend the streets and highways "in and about the City when Required by the Mayor, Gratis, on Penalty of being turned out of their places;" each cart "shall be two foot Eight Inches wide, and three foot high;" no carman is to "Ride in his Cart in any of the Streets within this City, nor drive his Cart a Trot in the Street, but Patiently;" "Every Carman that driveth A Cart for Hire or Wages within this City Shall have the Number of his Licencé fairly painted upon each side of his Cart with Red Painé, easily to be seen on the after part of the shaft upon the Square thereof;" perishable merchandize must be carted before other things; a carman is not permitted to carry in his cart at one time more than "one Hoghead of Rum or one Hoghead of Malasses, One Hoghead of Sugar, one Pipe of Wine," etc., or more than 140 gallons in smaller casks. The law includes a detailed schedule of rates for cartage.—M. C. C., IV: 90-95.

"A Law Relating to Making Freeman" re-enacts the regulation of July 11, 1702 (q. v.), excepting that the "Price for Freedoms" is raised to £3 in the case of a merchant, trader, or shopkeeper, and to 20 shillings in the case of a "Handy Craft Tradesman."—M. C. C., IV: 96-97.

The common council adopts a new ordinance "for Regulating the Lying of Vessels in the Dock and Slips of this City." The new features in this ordinance which were not brought out in the earlier one of March 22, 1684 (q. v.), are as follows: The day appointed for payment of yearly dockage by vessels belonging to this port is March 25 (called "Lady day"). Instead of a fine of six shillings, imposed on a vessel that runs aground at the mouth of the dock and fails to move as soon as afloat, this fine is increased to six shillings for each tide it so remains. A vessel in the dock or slips that keeps a fire on board at night shall pay "what Damage may Easue" as well as a fine of 20 shillings. Likewise, damages, as well as the fine previously imposed, shall be paid for casting "Anchor, Grapling or Killick within or near the Mould, Dock or Slips," Stoves, earth, or ballast are not to be taken away or thrown off "the Wharfs," under penalty of ten shillings besides payment of damages due to the wharves. The former provision against a vessel's lying at the great dock longer than necessary to load and unload is now applied to "any of the Slips of this City." Dockage fees at "any of the Slips of this City" (belonging to the city) continue to be the same as those charged at the great dock (see Aug. 28, 1694).—Ibid., IV: 97-100. The regulation of the docks was further considered on March 26, 1759 (q. v.).

The fees to be charged by inviters to funerals (see April 18, 1691) are regulated by an ordinance according to the age of the deceased. Thus, "for Inviting to and attending at the Funeral of Every Person of Twenty years of Age and upwards Eighteen shillings;" for a person between 12 and 20 years, 12 shillings; and under 12 years, 8 shillings.—M. C. C., IV: 101.

The new ordinance regarding street cleaning, street occum-

- 1731
Nov. 18
" 19
" 20
" 21
" 22
" 23
" 24
" 25
" 26
" 27
" 28
" 29
" 30
" 31
" 32
" 33
" 34
" 35
" 36
" 37
" 38
" 39
" 40
" 41
" 42
" 43
" 44
" 45
" 46
" 47
" 48
" 49
" 50
" 51
" 52
" 53
" 54
" 55
" 56
" 57
" 58
" 59
" 60
" 61
" 62
" 63
" 64
" 65
" 66
" 67
" 68
" 69
" 70
" 71
" 72
" 73
" 74
" 75
" 76
" 77
" 78
" 79
" 80
" 81
" 82
" 83
" 84
" 85
" 86
" 87
" 88
" 89
" 90
" 91
" 92
" 93
" 94
" 95
" 96
" 97
" 98
" 99
" 100
- brances, and throwing rubbish, etc., into the streets, contains a specific provision against sweeping dirt into the channels of the streets during rains.—M. C. C., IV: 101-4. For other references to these subjects, see Dec. 31, 1675.
- " A Law for Regulating the Publick Markets within the City of New York," as established at this time (revising the law of 1684, q. v., as continued in the Dongan Charter), concerning market days, etc., provides: "Forasmuch as the Markets of this City of New York are Chiefly Supplied by the Country People with Provisions and Victuals by Water Carriage from the Neighbouring Counties and Colonies at Different times and seasons, as the Tides, Winds and Weather will permit, by Reason whereof no Certain Times or Days Can Conveniently be appointed for bolding the said Markets, without Manifest Hurt and prejudice as well to the Inhabitants of the said City as to the Country People who frequent and supply the said Markets," it is ordained "That Every day in the Week (Sundays Excepted) be and are hereby Appointed Publick Market Days within the said City, from sun Rising to sun Setting, where the Country People, and Others Resorting to the said Markets may stand or Sitt, and Vend their Flesh, Fish, Poultry Herbs, Fruit, Eggs Butter Bacon and Other such like Provisions and Commodities on Every Working Day in Every Week in the Publick Markets hereafter Mentioned (Viz) at the Market House at the Slip Commonly Called Coenties Dock, at the Market House at the Old Slip Commonly Called Burgers Path, at the Market House at the lower End of Wall Street Commonly Called Wall Street Market House. and at the Market House at or Near Countess Key Commonly Called Countesses Slip [the Fly Market] which are hereby Appointed to be Publick and Common Markets within the said City." This law also provides that (as "the Market is most Principally Intended for the Benefit of House Keepers, who buy for their own use") "the Hucksters and Retailers within this City, who buy to Sell again, shall not Enter into any of the aforesaid Markets . . . until the Afternoon of Every day, to the End that House Keepers may provide themselves in the Forenoon of Every Day at the first Hand, and pay Moderate Rates for their Provisions." It is also provided that persons shall not buy provisions before they reach the markets. Other regulations relate to pure food, weights and measures, clerk's fees, etc.—M. C. C., IV: 108-110. This law was re-enacted with additions on Nov. 4, 1735.—Ibid., IV: 291.
- 22 Notice is published (as in other years about this time) that on Dec. 7, at 9 a. m., "the Boston and Philadelphia Posts will set out to perform their Stages once a fortnight during the three Winter Months;" also "Whoever inclines to perform the Foot Posts to Albany this Winter, they may apply to Richard Nicholls Post Master in New York and agree for the same."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 15-22, 1731.
- 27 The city's first fire-engines, two in number (see summary under May 6), arrive on the ship "Beaver."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 22-29, 1731. See Dec. 1.
- By the same ship, newspapers are received from London containing a report (of Sept. 4) that Col. Paget, brother of Lord Paget, was deemed most likely to receive the commission of governor of New York, to succeed Gov. Montgomerie.—Ibid. See, however, Jan. 12 and April 24, 1732.
- Dec. The common council appoints a committee "to Employ Workmen to fitt up A Convenient Room in the City Hall . . . for securing the Fire Engines" (see summary under May 6).—M. C. C., IV: 122. See Dec. 6, 14, and 21.
- " Thomas Mayes, "Victualler," is paid "for Six Months Rent for the use of his Cellar for the Watch of this City, before the Building of the Publick Watch House."—M. C. C., IV: 121. See July 9.
- 6 The fire-engines which arrived Nov. 27 (q. v.), the first in the city, are on this day for the first time put to use at a fire, which occurs at "a Joyners House in this City," and which began "in the Garret when the People were all asleep," and "burnt violently." The fire "was extinguished after having burnt down that House and damaged the next."—Boston News-Letter, Jan. 6, 1732.
- 14 "A Law for Establishing and Better Ordering the Night Watches" is passed by the common council, and published. It is entered in full in the Minutes. The inhabitants of each of the six wards south of the Fresh Water who are suitable to watch are to be listed, and eight of them (or as many more as the mayor and three aldermen may decide from time to time) are required to serve every night with one constable. Their duties are defined in detail. A supervisor of the watch is appointed by this law, R. Crannell, the city marshal, being the first man named to hold this office. The reason assigned for the passing of this ordinance, for the peace and safety of the city, is that of late years there have been great numbers of persons "privately Coming" into the city, some of whom "are suspected to be Convict Felons Transported from Great Britain."—M. C. C., IV: 122-28. For a later ordinance of the same character, see Dec. 21, 1742; for earlier reference to night watchmen or "bellmen," see April 20, 1714.
- The new fire-engines are ordered cleaned and made "fitt for immediate use."—M. C. C., IV: 128. See Dec. 1 and 21.
- The consistency of the Dutch Church decides that "After the roof of the Old Church [in Garden St.] is glazed the Church Masters shall see that the Old Church is furnished with a new roof." (?)—Eccles. Rec., IV: 256; following the English translation made from the Dutch Church minutes by Rev. Talbot W. Chambers, D. D., and preserved in the archives of the church.
- The subject of fire-prevention is considered at length in the Gazette. A fire on the night of Dec. 6 (q. v.) showed "the good Effects of a timely Provision of the Magistrates against Fire," by "the Water-Engines extinguishing it with so little Damage, when there was so great a Probability of its spreading." Nevertheless, many recommendations are advanced. Not half the houses in town are provided with fire-buckets. Chimneys ought to be inspected oftener. Regulations are wanting for the quick supply of water to the engines. It is observed by one "that as the greatest Part of this City lies upon a Descent, the Water of all the Wells and Cisterns in the Places higher than where the Fire happens, and which have a Descent to that Place, may be made to run to the Engine of itself, where it may be dam'd up by digging of the Streets, or with Cloaths, Bedding, Ashes, Stones, Bricks, Rubbish, or any Thing that comes to hand, and the Sucker being put into that Dam, the Engines I believe may that way only be plentifully supplied with Water in above one half of the City."
- It is also proposed that the use of shingles and boards for covering houses be discouraged; and the making and using of pantiles, slate, and bricks for building and covering houses be encouraged. In the highest places in the city, "some wide and some deep Wells ought to be made on Purpose, for yielding a great Quantity of Water in case of Fire, which, by the Help of one of the Engines in the digging them, to take off the Water as it springs, can now easily be dug to any Depth less than the Length of the Suckers of the Engines." There are other considerations in a similar vein.—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 13-21, 1731. See Dec. 14.
- "Martha Gazley, late from Great Britain, now in the City of New-York, Makes and Teacheth the following curious Works, viz., Artificial Fruit and Flowers, and other Wax-Work, Nuns-Work, Philligree and Pencil Work upon Muslin, all sorts of Needle-Work, and Raising of Paste, as also to Paint upon Glass, and Transparent for Sconces, with other Works . . . at the Widow Butlers, near the Queens-head Tavern in William street, not far from Capt. Anthony Rutgers."—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 13-21, 1731. The brew-house of Anthony Rutgers, probably the place referred to, was at the present Nos. 47, 49, and 51 Maiden Lane, near William St. This early Queens Head Tavern was therefore in the immediate vicinity of William St. and Maiden Lane. This is the only record of this tavern; it evidently had a short existence.
- In a letter to the lords of trade, Pres. Van Dam states that the province is "still mightily afflicted with the Small pox tho' not so mortal as when I had the honour by my former to acquaint Your Lord PPS herewith."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 930. See Nov. 2.
- 1732
- In this year, Henry Popple's Map of the British Empire in America, with the French and Spanish Settlements adjacent thereto, was published in London, from a survey made in 1729.—See description of Pl. 29, I: 265.
- To the period 1732-5 belongs the very interesting manuscript plan of the city reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 30. This plan contains the first reference to a "Play House." It includes also several buildings and topographical features not shown on any other plan of the city.
- The king having appointed Col. William Cosby to be governor of New York and New Jersey, the Duke of Newcastle directs the lords of trade to prepare draughts of his commission and instruc-

1732 tions.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 930. His commission, submitted to
Jan. the king on Feb. 4 (ibid., V: 932), bears date of March 27, 1732.
12 Regarding the contents of his instructions, see ibid., V: 934. Cosby was formerly governor of the Leeward Islands. As captain-general of New York and New Jersey, he was allowed to retain his rank as colonel, and given command of 500 men.—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 105.

18 People are warned against accepting counterfeit (Spanish) dollars which, it is suspected, are being made in New York. One suspected person, against whom a warrant was issued, has absconded, while another who was arrested has been released because of insufficient evidence.—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 11-18, 1732.

Feb. The lords of trade direct Van Dam to hold courts of chancery
4. until Col. Cosby arrives. Montgomerie had refused to have anything to do with the chancery court; Van Dam having declined to take the oath as chancellor, many of the king's quit-rents remain uncollected.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 931. See Nov. 14.

" The council at New York begins an inquiry to determine whether the Crown Point belongs to the "River Indians" or to the "Five Nations." On Feb. 11, measures were taken to prevent French encroachments on Lake Champlain.—Cal. Coun. Min., 316.

11 Henry Lane and others petition for "a patent for three pieces of ground in the city of New York, part whereof are covered with water, the first beginning on the south side of the street that leads from the Parade to the North river, and extends 400 feet into the North river; the second begins on the north side of the west end of Pearl street, and the third begins at the southeast corner White Hall." Philip van Cortlandt, chairman of the committee of the council to whom the petition was referred, made his report on March 13, and the patent was granted.—Cal. of Land Papers, 203;
Cal. Coun. Min., 316. The original petition, preserved in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. (in box lettered "New-York, 1700-1760"), is based on the plea that, if these pieces of land (mostly under water) were "wharfed & filled up with Earth," they "might be rendered of use to the petitioners & of a great benefit to this City not only by Such an Additional improvement but by facilitating the Defense of this City against Enemies."

" George Washington is born, at Wakefield, Westmoreland Co., Va.
This date, of course, became the 22d after Jan. 1, 1752 (q. v.).

Mar. William Sharpas, "Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace," who 24 was appointed Sept. 29, and sworn in Oct. 14, 1692 (q. v.), addresses a memorial to the common council, asking compensation for services extending over a period of 30 years, including "Drawing all the Warrants for Assessing all the Publick Taxes for upwards of thirty years, drawing the Titles and Heads of all the tax Roles, Drawing all the Warrants for the Collecting those Taxes and Entering an Abstract thereof in the Tax Books, with the Names of the several Collectors, and when and to whom those Taxes were payable;"
"latently Drawing out and Stating all the Publick Acc<sup>ts</sup> of the Arrears of Taxes and delivering Copys thereof to the Treasurer of this Colony;" "Drawing A Very long Petition to the Assembly and Drawing the Bill for Raising Money for the Fire Engine &c., &c.;" "Searching ancient Records and Copying several Orders &c:
well known to this Court on the soliciting for A New Charter;"
"Drawing, forming and Compiling the New Printed Laws of this Corporation, Making a fair Copy thereof for the Printer, for daily Correcting the Press, while the same were Printing, fairly Entering all those Laws in the Book of Minutes and Records of the Common Council;" "Examinations of Felons and Others for Capital Offences;" drawing "A great Number of Warrants and Mittimus's on the like Occasions for the Publick service without fee or Other Reward," etc. He was paid £28.—M. C. C., IV: 130-32.

31 The petition of Francis Maerschalk to be appointed city surveyor is read in the common council, and referred.—M. C. C., IV:
135. See June 8, 1733.

Apr. "Ordered that the Church Wardens . . . Examine the Lease 11 of the Churches firm granted to Mr Rob<sup>t</sup> Harrison and by him assigned to Mr John Balm and that they report what Covenants have not bin complied with."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See May 1.

24 James Alexander, writing from New York to Cadwallader Colden, says, in part: "Our doubts who was our Governour are now Resolved Coll Cosby having kissed the Kings hand for New York & Newjersey in January last, & has Sent his privat Secretary &
Some other Servants (by Downung who arrived the 20th) to prepare the house & all things for him, his privat Secretary & his wife Lodge at Mr Ashfields

"The Governour was to Saile with Cap<sup>t</sup> Long, by the tenth of
Apr. this month & proposes to be here in May, he has desired the presi-24 dent to Continue paying the Companys till he arrives, he writes very rationally & Obligingly he is a man about 45, & gay, has the E. of Halifax's Sister for his wife, 2 daughters, & a Son."—From the original letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist.
Soc.

To discharge its debts, the city sells seven lots, and they are 25 bought by prominent merchants for £13,344.—M. C. C., IV: 134, 137-38. These lots cover two blocks, bounded by the present Moore, Whitehall, Pearl, Water, and Front Streets, where a portion of the old dock had stood. For summary of events connected with this transaction, see July 22, 1731.

The Church Farm is leased by Trinity to Cornelius Cozine, for May a term of 10 years, at £35 yearly, excepting Capt. Degroche's rope-
1 walk.—Sandford, Chancery Rep., IV: 693.

The following description gives a glimpse of the rural topography 8 of the upper part of the island at this time: "In the Out-Ward of the City of New York, near to the Seat of Mr. De Lancey, called Bloemdal, there is to be Sold a Plantation with a very good stone House, Barn, and Orchard, containing about four or five Hundred Apple Trees, and a Pair Orchard, with a great many fine Grafted Pairs. The Land is very well Timber'd and Watered; it has a very fine Brook very convenient for a Fish Pond, containing about Two Hundred and sixty Acres of Land and six Acres of Meadow, situate lying and being near Bloemdal as aforesaid. Whoever incline to purchase the same, may apply to Thomas Dekey, now living on the Premises, and agree on reasonable Terms."—N. Y. Gaz., May 1-8, 1732; April 9-16, 1733. The Oliver de Lancey property is referred to in the M. C. C., V: 250, 287, and 337, as at "Bloemdall" or "Bloemdal." Although "Bloemdal" as used in the above advertisement, appears to be applied to the De Lancey property, it is rather intended to mean the location generally. Regarding the origin and meaning of the name, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 986; and Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., III: 171. Bloomingdale —vale of flowers—was the name applied to this part of the upper west side of Manhattan by the early Dutch settlers; whereas the estate of De Lancey was not acquired by Etienne de Lancey until 1735. It had been the immense Somerendyck Farm, which stretched from the present 57th St. to 70th St., and from the line of the Common Lands to the Hudson River. The west line of the Common Lands is delineated on Pl. 177, Vol. III, and ran along the eastern boundary of the Somerendyck Farm, at or near the line of Seventh Ave., the modern streets and avenues being obliterated by Central Park.

The council receives a letter from William Cosby (appointed 19 governour of New York), relating to the pay of the independent companies.—Cal. Coun. Min., 316. This appears to be his first official communication; he did not arrive in New York until Aug. 1 (q. v.).

James Livingston, surveyor, is paid £8:11:3 "for Surveying on " Granting the New Charter . . . , for surveying and laying out several Lotts on the West side, of the Dock & Weigh House & making Draughts thereof . . ."—M. C. C., IV: 141.

Gov. Montgomerie's library is sold at auction, a catalogue of June the books having been printed, and placed for inspection at the Coffee House.—N. T. Gaz., May 8-15, 1732. It was one of the largest private libraries in the colonies prior to the Revolution.—
Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 503-4. The manuscript inventory of Montgomerie's estate, including the library, is preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library. See July 26, 1751. In this inventory are 1,341 volumes. The titles include works of literature, biography, history, geography, travel, philosophy, theology, education, law, mathematics, medicine, art, and music. Among the authors are Cicero, Horace, Ovid, Seneca, Terence, Tacitus, Addison, Bacon, Dryden, Defoe, Milton, Pope, Shakespeare, and Spenser. In the list we find favourites like Gulliver's Travels, Plutarch's Lives, Paradise Lost, and Don Quixote; as well as such miscellaneous titles as Art of Governing by Parties, Letters from the Dead, English Peerage, Transactions of the World in the Moon, New Manner of Fortifying, and Province Laws of New York. See reproduction of part of the inventory, Pl. 31, Vol. IV.

A committee of the common council is appointed "to Inspec<sup>t</sup> 28 into A small Slip of Ground now in the Possession of the Honourable Rip Van Dam Esq<sup>r</sup> President of this Colony Contiguous to a Corner of Maiden Lane, which Slip of Ground the President prays

1732 may be Granted unto him by this Corporation he having the same June within his fence, for the more Regular making of the Street (the 28 Neighbourhood having thrown into the Said Street on the Other Side thereof some Ground Equivalent thereunto for Making the same Street more Uniform and upon a Line." The committee is required to make a draught of the ground and report what is proper to be done.—M. C. C., IV: 142. On Sept. 11, 1732, the committee reported that the land was "Situate in the North Ward at the Corner of Maiden Lane which turns up to Kip Street towards the New Dutch Church and is in front to Maiden Lane fifteen foot or thereabouts and Runs along the East side of Kip Street to a Point which Comes to Nothing one East [sic] hundred and three foot or thereabouts and is within the fence of the said Rip Van Dam, and is bounded on the North by Maiden Lane aforesaid on the West by Kip Street Aforesaid on the East and south by Other Land belonging to the said Rip Van Dam, and Report their Opinion that the same is of little or no Value to any Except the same Rip Van Dam." It is ordered that the grant be made to him accordingly.—Ibid., IV: 151-52; City Grants, Liber B: 200. There is preserved in the city clerk's record-room a rough sketch, prepared by Van Dam himself, on which he depicts the triangular plot of ground;
in one corner he writes:

"Mr Sharpus

"S<sup>r</sup> if you please To make out the Conveyance which the City has granted me I shall Tankfully pay you for the same

"from your Humble Serv<sup>t</sup>

"Rip Van Dam"

July A lightning-stroke shatters the steeple of the new Dutch Church
3 (on Nassau St.) down to the heltry; it tears up a ridge on the roof from the eaves to the top, and on the other side takes out a stone of the wall near the ground, cracks the wall close by it, and tears splinters from one of the doors.—N. Y. News in N. E. Weekly Jour.
(Boston), July 17, 1732. This appears to have been the first of five occasions when this steeple was struck by lightning.—See
Oct., 1750.

7 William Bradford is paid £12:11 "for Printing the City Laws & some Advertisements."—M. C. C., IV: 144. See Nov. 18, 1731.

13 In pursuance of a resolution of the common council made Sept.
17, 1730 (M. C. C., IV: 25), the city grants to Cornelius Vanhorne a water lot, 23 feet, seven inches wide, "fronting his House or Tenement on the Dock Street Wharfe on the south Front thereof," and "Running from the New Wharfe Called the Dock Street Wharfe," 400 feet into East River.—Ibid., IV: 144. He is required to make a street "fronting the East River," with the same restrictions and regulations required of his neighbours.—Ibid., IV: 25.

On July 26, 1734, Cornelius van Horne received a water grant for two parcels, lying between Counties and Old Slips.—Liber City Grants, B: 125-32 (comptroller's office). The new Dock St. wharf ran between these two slips, from Dock St. to the river (the present Pearl St. was then Dock St.). See Pl. 27, Vol. I, where the wharf is shown, built upon. Van Horne's house was on the wharf, and his grant extended 400 feet into the river from the wharf. The street he was obliged to make was the present Water St. It was continued on northward as Hunter's Key and Burnet St., which lay on the westerly side of Burnet's Key. It was first known as Water Street in 1736, and at that time lay only between Maiden Lane and Rodman's Slip (John St.).—M. C. C., IV: 331. See Addenda, 1700.

24 An animal, supposed to be a panther, has been recently discovered breaking out of the window of a store-house in New York, and killed in the street.—N. Y. Gaz., July 24, 1732.

31 Edward Willett offers for sale a large brick house near the New York ferry on Long Island, recently occupied by James Harding; also a large barn covered with cedar, a "Handsome Garden," and about ten acres of land.—N. Y. Gaz., July 24-31, 1732. The ferry-house and out-buildings at Brooklyn, are shown on Pl. 25, Vol. I.
For the subsequent career of Edward Willett, who for more than 25 years was a prominent tavern-keeper in New York, see May 15, 1749 (Horse and Manger); March 23, 1752 (Horse and Cart); Apr.
15, 1754 (Province Arms); Dec. 12, 1774 (Bridge St.).

Aug. Col. William Cosby, the new governor, arrives at New York.—

1 Assemb. Jour. I: 633. Several gentlemen meet him at the waterside and "attend him" to the fort, where he takes the oaths after reading his commission; the seals and keys are delivered to him;
the members of the council present are sworn in, and they issue an order that a proclamation be published continuing all officers in their places.—Cal. Coun. Min., 317. "The next Day between the Hours of 11 & 12 his Excellency walked to the city hall, (a Company of Aug.

Halbiers & a Troop of Horse marching before, and the gentlemen of his Majesty's Council, the Corporation, and a great Number of Gentlemen & Merchants of this City following, the Streets being lin'd on each side with the Militia) where his Commission was published, and then his Excellency returned (attended as before) back to the Fort: The Militia then drew up on the Parade, and Saluted him with three Volleys."—N. Y. News in Boston News-Letter, Aug.
10-17, 1732.

Soon after Cosby's arrival, Cadwallader Colden, the surveyor-general delivered to him an extended narrative relating to land grants and quit-rents in the province of New York. The methods of English governors after 1664 were described; and particular attention was given to an account of the great grants of from 50,000 to 1,000,000 acres of unpatented lands. He suggested remedies for the abuses which he described, by applying quit-rent charges against all the lands in the province, including the town lots of New York City and Albany. This would yield as much as £4,000 a year toward the support of the government.—From Man. Com. Coun.
(1851), 454 et seq., citing the original, which is still preserved with the Colden Papers in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. On May 6, 1752, Colden appended a memorandum to his draft of the memorial, saying "I question whether ever he read it. I have reason to think he gave it to the person in whom he then confided who had no inclination to forward the purpose of it. It had no other effect than to be prejudicial to myself."—Ibid., 461.

The common council, on Aug. 3, ordered that an address of welcome to Gov. Cosby be prepared, and that he be presented with the freedom of the city, having its seal in a gold box. At a dinner in his honour, on August 9, the presentation was made and the address delivered. This address, which is entered in full in the Minutes, includes the statement: "As Trade is the Support of this Colony and this City the Center of that Trade we hope your Excellency will Countenance and Protect us in the Enjoyment of all our Rights and Privileges."—M. C. C., IV: 147-48.

An open letter, in the form of a folder or broadside, is addressed "To Mr. A. C." (Alexander Campbell) in answer to three papers by him protesting against support of his majesty's government in the province, and urging an immediate dissolution of the assembly, after the Oswego bill and the excise bill have been passed. It is printed and sold by Bradford. One of these is in the collection of the N. Y. Pub. Library. The following broadsides, printed this year by Zenger, and now in the collection of the N. Y. Pub. Library, are of interest in the same connection:

*Mr. Noxon's Observations upon Parson Campbell's Vindication.
To the Reverend Mr. Vesey and his two Subalterns, viz., Tom Pert
the Beotian, and Clumsy Ralph the Cimmerian*, a letter supporting Alexander Campbell in his differences with Rev. William Vesey.

A Letter From a Gentleman in in [sic] the Country to his Friend in Town (undated, but probably 1732), in which the writer, who signs with the pseudonym "Robt. Dissolution," protests against the long session of the assembly.

An open letter, beginning with Addison's verses, "O Liberty, thou Goddess heavenly bright!," etc., maintaining the necessity of frequent elections, and of excluding pensioners from the assembly;
signed "Portius."

An open letter (beginning with quotations in Latin from Tertullian and Cicero), maintaining the necessity of amendment and revision of every government and constitution, and consequently in that of New York; signed "John Sydney" (pseud.).

An open letter (beginning with a quotation from Virgil), urging the necessity of the dissolution of the present assembly, and the advantages of annual elections to the assembly; signed "Andrew Fletcher" (pseud.).

The last of Gov. Montgomerie's possessions offered for sale (see July 26 and Oct. 11, 1731, and June, 1732) by Charles Hume (or Home), administrator, is a "large fine barge with Awning, and Damask Curtains; Two Sets of Oars, Sails and every thing that is necessary for her." The boat lies in the dock, and is to be sold at the Exchange Coffee House on Oct. 2.—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 28-Sept. 4, 1732.

An advertisement of William Thurston, a schoolmaster, refers to his "dwelling at the Corner-House by Koenties Market, over against the Scotch Arms."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 28-Sept. 4, 1732.
For the earlier market on this site, see April 18, 1691; and, for its later history, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958. The name

To His Excellency John Montgomery
Gov. Gen. and Governour of the City of New York in His Majesty's Province of New York
a. m. 1729

The Humble Petition of the Elders & Deacons of the Aged Dutch Church in the City of New York
Humbly Sheweth,

That the Congregation of the said Church having petitioned Ever since this Province was granted to England. Demanded this right. In a Petition and in the name of that the Church of your Majesty in the year 1684. their Charter and also their Petition and Copies sent them and their Successors for ever according to the Constitution and Copies in Holland. approved and confirmed by the States of New York That by the blessing of God the said Congregation was become a numerous and very useful Church and we are all the more bound to it that many of them are desirous to petition for a License to build a new Church for use of them

That for avoiding the great number of parties and to do as the Dutch Church for the glory of God and the pleasure of his Majesty and with the consent and approbation of other members of the Congregation with their blessing desired a convenient spot of ground from the Dutch King to the use of the Dutch Church in the City of New York and built there another Large Church to use as yet the same under the name of the Dutch Church and their Petition for that a License to build a new Church and complete the same was granted to them

That for as much as your Majesty's Majesty of the said Dutch Church has at all times been ready to petition to the King and Parliament of Great Britain for a License to the Church of England in the City of New York and to petition to the of the Dutch Congregation in 1729 for a License to build a new Church and complete the same

Therefore your Petitioners humbly pray that your Majesty's Majesty be so good to grant unto your Petitioners a License to build a new Church and complete the same in the City of New York and to petition to the King and Parliament of Great Britain for a License to build a new Church and complete the same in the City of New York and to petition to the King and Parliament of Great Britain for a License to build a new Church and complete the same in the City of New York and to petition to the King and Parliament of Great Britain for a License to build a new Church and complete the same in the City of New York

And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray

New York the 25th of April 1729.

J. P. Boie
1729

New Yorks Agents to His Majesty
I am a King's servant for this Petitioners and pray to the Prayers
of the above said

To His Majesty's Majesty
I am a King's servant for this Petitioners and pray to the Prayers
of the above said

1732 of the proprietor of the Scotch Arms is unknown, but in 1746 Peter
St. 4 de Joncourt had a tavern also described as "near Coentjes-Mar-See A ket."—See Dec. 3, 1746. For the origin of the name of this market, 11 see De Voe, Market Book, 114-15.

26 The assembly applies to the city for additional room in the city hall where the speaker may write and the private committees may meet. It asks for the use of "the upper Part of the Stairs, opposite to the Assembly chamber," of which "no Manner of Use has been made for many Years past," and proposes to build a room there, "reserving a sufficient Headway in the lower Part of the said Stairs, so as that the same may remain as commodious as it now is."—Assemb. Jour., I: 644. In answer to the above application, a message from the common council to the assembly was received, on Oct. 13, giving permission to the assembly to build a room "in the Place above-mentioned," such to be for the sole use of the speaker and assembly. Aldermen Philipse and Rutgers were thereupon ordered to employ workmen and secure materials to build the room.—Ibid., I: 648; M. C. C., IV: 156. On Nov. 1, the assembly ordered that the building of the room be completed by the ensuing spring.—Assemb. Jour., I: 653. For payment for this work, see June 21, 1734.

Oct. The legislature passes "An Act for Confirming unto the City of 14 New York its Rights and Privileges." The new city charter is thereby declared valid and effectual in law, even "against the Kings Majesty his heirs and Successors."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 752-53. See Feb. 11, 1731; Aug. 29, 1733; also Hoffman, Treatise upon the Estate and Rights of the Corporation, 28. The account of Gabriel Ludlow, clerk of the assembly, dated Oct., 1732, for fees for reading and entering this act was allowed Dec. 6, by the auditing committee of the common council.—From original itemized bill in city clerk's record-room.

" A new and permanent ferry act is passed, continuing, with slight modification, the old ferrage rates for persons and things as established by the act of Nov. 25, 1727 (q. v.), but adding various articles to the catalogue of goods on which ferrage is charged. The rates vary with the articles, from one farthing for a "Dunghill Fowl, Braat, Duck, Heath Hen. or Rabbit" to six shillings for a coach. For articles not specified, proportionate rates are to be paid according to weight or quantity. The law exacts a forfeiture of the ferry-man if he overcharges. It gives to the city the right to "demand, Receive and take" the rates prescribed; and, as heretofore, the right to establish one or more ferries between this city and Nassau Island, provided there shall be "one Constant Ferry from the Present Ferry on Nassau Island to the City of New York at Some Convenient landing place in the Said City to the Eastward of the Slip Commonly Called Wall Street Slip or Clarks Slip Including the Said Slip." Only the city of New York is permitted to erect and keep a ferry between this city and Nassau Island.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 807-13. This act continued to be the law of the province and state until after the Revolution, an act of the legislature on the subject of ferries being passed on Feb. 28, 1789 (q. v.).—Hoffman, Treatise upon the Estate and Rights of the Corporation, 127-28. Regarding attempts by the trustees of Brooklyn to break New York City's monopoly of the ferry privileges, although that monopoly was confirmed by the Montgomerie Charter, and by this act of 1732, see Dec. 2, 1737; June 7, 1743; Jan. 7, 1746.

" The legislature passes an act "to encourage a Public School in the City of New York for teaching Latin Greek and Mathematics." Alexander Malcolm (see May 1, 1730), master of a private school, is appointed master of the public school. He is to provide at his expense "a proper and convenient House or Room" where he is to teach 20 youths chosen from different counties of the province. For these services, he is allowed £40 from the fund arising from peddlers' licenses, and also £40 from the annual tax raised in the city for the support of the ministry and the poor. The second sum is to be paid to Malcolm by the common council in quarterly installments. The rector of Trinity Church, justices of the supreme court, and the mayor, recorder, and aldermen are constituted "visitors" of the school, with power to remove the master for cause.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 813-17. See May 1, 1730; Dec. 6 and 16, 1737.

16 The Horse and Cart Tavern is designated for the place of meeting, on Nov. 1, of the proprietors of a large tract of land.—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 9-16, 1732. This inn stood on the east side of William St., half way between John and Fair (Fulton) Sts. It is shown and named on Pl. 30, Vol. I.—See I: 346. It was still there in 1774.—N. Y. Merc., March 31, 1774. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979-80.

On being informed that Lord Augustus Fitz Roy, son of the Duke of Grafton, the lord chamberlain of England, has arrived at the fort on a visit to the governor and his family, the common council resolves to wait on his lordship, and present him with the freedom of the city, with the city seal "Inclosed in A Gold Box with the Arms of this City Engraved thereon."—M. C. C., IV: 161. Three days later the members of the common council and the principal officers of the city regiment were introduced to his lordship "at his Majestys Garrison." After the recorder, Francis Harrison, in the name of the corporation, had delivered "A Very Elegant Speech on the Occasion," the mayor presented his lordship with the copy of his freedom.—Boston News-Letter, Nov. 16, 1732. The text of the freedom is printed in full in the Minutes, and certifies that "Augustus Fitz Roy is hereby Admitted Received and allowed a Freeman and Citizen of the said City of New York. To Have, Hold, Enjoy and Partake of all and singular the Advantages, Benefits Liberties Privileges Franchises Freedoms and Immunities whatsoever Granted or belonging to the same City to him and His Heirs for ever."—M. C. C., IV: 162. Lord Fitz Roy afterward married the governor's daughter.—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 536.

Rip van Dam, president of the council, is ordered to refund half Nov. the salary he has received. He refused to do so, and, on Nov. 29, the attorney-general was ordered to commence suit.—Cal. Coun. Min., 318. Gov. Cosby claimed this sum for himself, and appointed three judges as an equity court for the trial of Van Dam. This step was contrary to precedent, and Chief-Justice Lewis Morris gave the opinion that the governor did not possess the power to create an equity court. Though Morris was overruled by his two colleagues, no final decision was ever rendered in Van Dam's case. As a result of this trial, Gov. Cosby removed Morris from the office of chief-justice, and the latter became an active leader of the "Anti-Court Party," which already contained such opponents of the governor as Rip van Dam, James Alexander, and William Smith.—Wilson Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 214-20. See June 19, 1734. For a concise account of the Cosby-Van Dam controversy, see Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 722-25.

" The Board being Informed that M<sup>r</sup> Cornelius Cozyn the present Tenant of the Churches farm had been forbid by the Receiver General from paying the rent to any other person than himself a[dd]ing the Same did belong to the Crown And this Board having Some reason to Suspect that there May be Some persons Endeavouring or that may Endeavour to disturb them in the quiet and peaceable possession and Enjoyment thereof It is unanimously resolved that the Rector the two Church Wardens M<sup>r</sup> Moore M<sup>r</sup> Livingstoo and the Clerk of the Vestry or any of them be a Committee to Enquire in the Truth of the Said Information and to take Such proper and Effectual measures for Confirming and Securing the Churches Right and title to the Said farm as to them Shall Seem requisite & Convenient . . .—Trin. Min. (MS.).

The council orders a proclamation to be issued for the discovery of those who started a rumour that the governor intends to seize the property of the Dutch Church in New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 318.

The governor's council establishes a court of exchequer.—Cal. Coun. Min., 318.

The following letter of this date, is taken from the "Proceedings of the Committee of the [Trinity] Vestry appointed on the Twenty Second day of November last relating to the Church's farm, &c.":—

"My Lord [Bishop of London]

"We the Rector, Church Wardens and Vestry of Trinity Church, doe with the greatest Submission and sense of Duty, Humbly beg leave to address your Lordship, and implore your patronage and assistance in an affair, the Consequence of which will most sensibly touch and affect the Interest and welfare of our Infant Church. Be pleased, then my Lord to permit us, to represent unto your Lordship, that we have for Seven or Eight and twenty years past been possessed of a Certain farm & Garden in this City, by virtue of a Grant under the Seal of the province, from her late Majesty Queen Anne [see Nov. 23, 1705], which brings in about five and twenty pounds Sterling  $\text{p}$  Annum, Out of which we pay Yearly Six and twenty pounds this Currency for our Ministers House Rent, besides the considerable Expences we have been at from time to time in makeing and repairing the fences, and building a firm House thereon, the which with the farm, we have lately Leased out for a

Oct.

20

Nov.

14

22

29

Dec.

4

5

- 1732 Number of Years to Come, And as it is so near the Town, We could
Dec. in a few Years make the same, very beneficial, by laying part of it 5 out into Lotts, which would bring in a Yearly Ground rent, and in time make the whole very valuable; And altho' we are advised by the ablest Lawyers here that our Said Grant is good and valid, Yet hath it been Rendered disputable first by a Bill in Chancery's having been preferred against us in Governour Hunters time, and Secondly by the continual menacings of our Tenants by his present Majestys Receiver General, as will fully appear to Your Lordship, by the affidavit and Short State of the Case herewith Transmitted and humbly offered to Your Lordship's consideration. We also send Coppins of the Acts of Assembly and other things referred to, in the State of our Said Case, Certified under our Corporation Seal:
And Beseech Your Lordship that you will favourably be pleased on this important occasion, to vouchsafe your paternal Care & power-full Influence in behalfe of our Church, by causing able Council to be advised with, and applying to our most gracious Sovereign for his Royal Grant & Confirmation unto us of our said farm and Garden under the Broad Seale of England, or by such other ways as your Lordship in your great wisdom shall think most proper: for my Lord as one M<sup>r</sup> Anthony Rutgers of this place has lately obtained an order from his Majesty to the Governour here for granting him a Swamp which lyes contiguous to our Said farm, and is mentioned in the Vacating Act of Assembly taken notice of in our Said Case, We are the more alarmed and under the greatest Apprehension from the Threats in the affidavit mentioned &c. that some persons may aim at the same thing in regard to our farm, or perhaps they may endeavour to obtain a Grant at home, which will intail Law Suits upon us and our Successors, and it may Involve us into much greater difficulties than we shall be able to encounter, to prevent which and in as much as the Said farm and garden are the Chiefest part of our Churches revenue and Estate, We humbly presume you will not think us forward or troublesome, if we intreat the favour of your Lordship.—"Trin. Min. (MS.), under date of April 25, 1733.
- Papers attached to this appeal show the various grants, acts of assembly, and other transactions affecting Trinity's title to the "farm and garden" prior to Dec. 5, 1732. The same appeal was among the Fulham MSS. belonging to the See of London, and was transcribed by Rev. Francis L. Hawks, D.D., in 1836, his copy being filed with the Hawks MSS. in the Church Mission House, N. Y. City. For the series of law-suits foretold by this letter, and other affairs connected with the parish rights and property of Trinity Church, which are now part of the city's history, see Trinity Church Pamphlets, Collected for the Corporation, 1857.
- The letter of Dec. 5 closes thus: "But nevertheless it has been often insinuated that inasmuch as her Said Majesty was pleased to dissolve the Repealing Act [see June 26, 1708], and to approve of the Vacating Act aforesaid [see May 16, 1699], That the Grant made to the Said Rector and Inhabitants in the intermediate time, is thereby rendered Void and of none Effect, it being provided by the Said Vacating Act that no Governour should have it in his power to Grant or Lease the said farm or Garden for any longer time than for his own Government, But
- "It is to be noted that by the Kings Commission and Instructions to the Governours of this Colony all Laws made here are to be Transmitted for the Royal assent, and to be and Continue in force here, from the time of their publication untill disallowed by the King at home.
- "The Said Rector and Inhabitants were incorporated by Letters patents under the Great Seal of the province, and by an Act of Assembly before, and which are recited in their Said Grant,
- "Now Quere
- "Ist whether the Grant made to the Rector and Inhabitants, while the Repealing Act aforesaid was in full force here, and before the same was dissolved, or the Vacating Act aforesaid approved of by her Majesty to wit the 23<sup>d</sup> of November 1705 [q. v.] be good and valid in Law or not, and if not but disputable then 2<sup>dly</sup>
- "Which are the most proper And effectual Measures for the said Rector and Inhabitants to take, in order to Obtain his most Sacred Majestys Grant & Confirmation to them of their said farm and Garden, so as to render their right thereto Indisputable."—
Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 6 "On the 6th Instant the New Theatre in the Buildings of the Honorable Rip Van Dam Esq; was opened, with the Comedy called
The Recruiting Officer, the part of Worthy acted by the ingenious
Mr. Thomas Heady, Barber and Peruke-maker to his Honour."— N. Y. news in the Boston Gaz., Jan. 1-8, 1733. The location of this theatre is one of the problems of the historian. See description of Dec. Pl. 28, I: 262; and of Pl. 30, I: 264. See also Sonneck, Early Opera in Am., 11; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 983.
- 7 With the help of the city's two fire-engines, first used on Dec. 6, 1731 (see Dec. 21, 1731), a fire is extinguished which destroys a dwelling-house and damages the one next to it.—N. Y. news in Boston News-Letter, Jan. 6, 1732.
- 18 Cosby reports to the lords of trade that "the Inhabitants here are more lazy and unactive than the world generally supposes, and their manufactures extends no further than what is consumed in their own Family's, a few course Lindsey wooleys for clothing, and linnen for their own wear."—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 941.
- " Cosby advises the removal of James Alexander from the council of New York province, who, "during the President Van Dam's Administration sway'd him in every thing that was irregular and since has clog'd and perplexed everything with difficulty's that related to the Crown," etc.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 939. See The Vindication of James Alexander, printed by Zenger, 1733 (error for 1734), in N. Y. Pub. Library; also Aug. 28, 1735.
- 25 The colonies are taxed by the Sugar Act.—Statutes at Large,
6 Geo. II, Chap. 13. See also May 17, 1733.

1733

Colonists under Oglethorpe arrive at Savannah, Ga., and start
Feb. a settlement there.

Gov. Cosby takes oath as chancellor, and opens the court of Mar. chancery.—Cal. Coun. Min., 319.

A resolution is passed by the common council "that this Corporation will Lease a Piece of Land lying at the lower End of the Broadway fronting to the Fort, to some of the Inhabitants of the Said Broadway in order to be Inclosed to make a Bowling Green thereof with Walks therein, for the Beauty & Ornament of the Said Street as well as for the Recreation & delight of the Inhabitants of this City, leaving the Street on each side thereof fifty footin breadth under such Covenants Conditions & Restrictions as to this Court shall seem Expedient."—M. C. C., IV: 174, 175. Cf. June 4, 1701; Apr. 6, 1733; May 27, 1747.

The common council pays Alexander Malcolm, master of the Apr. public high school in New York City (Col. Laws N. Y., II: 813), 6 his first quarter's salary (£10); also Anthony Lamb, the first overseer of the fire-engines, £3, as his first quarterly salary.—M. C. C., IV: 174, 175. See May 6, 1731; May 5, 1737. Malcolm's school formed the "germ" of Columbia University.—See Dec. 6, 1746; Pratt, Annals of Public Education (1872), 124-25.

In a petition to the common council, Anthony Rutgers states that he has recently obtained "his Majestys Grant and Letters Patent for the Swamp near fresh Water;" that he has "Caused the Brush on a great part thereof to be Cut down;" and that he intends "to Clear the whole and drain the same, which when perfected, it is believed will greatly Contribute to the health of this City and all the Inhabitants thereof dwelling Contiguous thereto." As he "Cannot Effectually drain the same without laying his drain into Hudsons River as far as Low Water Mark," he asks the corporation to permit him "to place such Drain from the Petitioners Land into Hudsons River aforesaid as far as Low Water Mark, with Liberty to Fence and Guard the Said Drain agt the Violence of the Ice & Storms So as to Render the same usefull for the Purpose aforesaid." The petition is granted, "Provided the same be no Stop or Detriment, or do not Incommode the Highway or Passage there, and that the Petitioner do not Exceed twenty foot in breadth in performing the same."—M. C. C., IV: 177-78; N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 960-62.
See Dec. 1730; Sept. 18, 1734. For Rutgers' patent for the swamp and Fresh Water Pond, see Dec. 31, 1733.

At some time between April 6 and Dec. 31, 1733, Anthony Rutgers built at Greenwich St., north of Canal St., a bridge across the drain which he constructed this year to carry off the water from the Fresh Water Pond and the swamp adjoining. As shown in his petition to the common council on April 6, he anticipated the king's grant of Dec. 31. The bridge later became known as Lispenard's Bridge. On Sept. 13, 1786 (q. v.), the common council ordered that it be rebuilt. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 926;
Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 442.

It is resolved by the common council "that None of the Lands of this Corporation between High Water Mark and Low Water Mark in Kips Bay and Turtle Bay be Granted by this Corporation to any Person or Persons whomsoever: but that the same be Reserved for the Publick use and Benefit of this Corporation, and all

1733 the Inhabitants thereof; for the Harbouring of Vessels in the Ap. 6 Winter time trading to this City.—M. C. C., IV: 178.

A committee of the common council is appointed "to lay out the Ground at the lower End of the Broadway near the Fort for a Bowling Green, that they Ascertain the Dimensions thereof with the breadth of the Streets on all sides. That the same be Leased to Mr John Chambers Mr Peter Bayard and Mr Peter Jay for the Term of Eleven years for the use aforesaid and not Otherwise, under the Annual Rent of A pepper Corn."—M. C. C., IV: 179. See March 12, 1733; Oct. 1, 1734.

The following account, derived wholly from the Minutes of the Common Council, is a condensed history of an effort for nearly 40 years to secure action by the city authorities toward building a much-needed market-house. Certain freeholders and residents of the West Ward present a petition to the common council, stating that "Great Numbers of Farmers and Other Persons from the Jersey side and up the North River do frequently Land (with their Graie and Other Provisions for the Market) at Thurmans Slip which is a Very Convenient Landing, but for want of a Publick Market House there they are Very often put to Considerable Expences and great Inconveniencies for Storing and Carrying their Goods for Sale," etc. They ask the board's permission "to Erect and Build by Voluntary Contributions A Publick Market House in some Convenient place in the said Slip." The permission is granted, and a committee appointed "to direct the same to be made and Erected."—M. C. C., IV: 178-79. No further action was taken until April 7, 1738, when another committee was appointed "to lay out the Ground for Erecting A Market at Thurmans Slip or thereabouts," pursuant to the previous order. At the same time, a petition of the inhabitants of the West Ward asking leave to erect a market-house "in the Bradway fronting to Crown Street" was referred to the same committee.—Ibid., IV: 422-23. At the next meeting of the board, April 13, 1738 (q. v.), the latter petition was granted.—Ibid., IV: 423-24. But no action was taken in regard to a market-house at Thurman's Slip, and on July 16, 1742, a petition of John Thurman and others for permission to build one was rejected by the common council, as was also one of Peter Mesier and others to build one at Cortlandt's Slip.—Ibid., V: 56. Nothing appears to have been attempted again to secure the erection of this market-house until Jan. 24, 1771, when Peter Mesier, John Thurman, Jr., and others again petitioned that another committee of the board be appointed "to direct a place for Erecting a publick Market in the West Ward of this City agreeable to a former order of the Corporation." Consideration on this was deferred (ibid., VII: 261) until Sept. 12, 1771, when the prayer of the petitioners was denied.—Ibid., VII: 312. On Oct. 24, 1771, the petition of "a Considerable Number of Inhabitants of this City" to the same effect was laid over (ibid., VII: 324) until Oct. 28, 1771; at which time two other petitions were submitted, "each Subscribed by a very Considerable Number of Inhabitants of this City, the one praying leave to Erect a Market in the fields, and the other also praying leave to Erect a Market at the head of Maiden Lane Street, on part of the Ground formerly occupied by Mr Conora, at their own Expence." Consideration of all three of these petitions was "deferred to some future Common Council."—Ibid., VII: 326. On Nov. 27, 1771, a debate arose regarding "the Petition of John Thurman Junr and others, relative to Building a Market at Mesiers Dock," but the question whether their prayer should be granted was once more decided in the negative.—Ibid., VII: 331-32.

This "Gordian knot" of repeated objections was soon severed, for, on Jan. 7, 1772, it is recorded in the Minutes that "Mr Abraham Mesier acquainted this Board, that himself and sundry others, who were possessed of a Considerable Space of Ground at the North River whereon a Building Intended as a Market house hath lately been Erected, were desirous of Conveying the same to the Corporation for a public use." Consideration by the common council was deferred (ibid., VII: 341), as was also, on March 26, a petition of "sundry Inhabitants of the Out Ward" asking that "Leave may be Given to erect a Market on Conaro's Lot in the Broadway" (ibid., VII: 348); on March 31, 1772 (q. v.), the subject was finally settled, after 39 years, by the board's deciding that "other Markets were Conceived necessary to be Erected, . . . at the North River Except [besides] the one lately Established by this Board" (the Bear Market—see Aug. 19, 1771). They decided to "Accept of the Building lately Erected by John Thurman & others, for the Use of the publick, and Establish the same as a publick Market House," and also to give permission "to the said Petitioners Residing in the Out Ward, for leave & Licence to Erect & Set up a Market House on the aforesaid Lot of Ground, formerly Occupied by the said Mr Conaro Situate on the West Side of the Broadway Street, in the West Ward of this City."—Ibid., VII: 350-51.

The garden of Johannes Outman, in John St. "on the West Corner of Gold-Street," is offered for sale by Benjamin D'harriette.—N. Y. Gaz., Apr. 9-16, 1733. "Outman's Garden" was one of the landmarks occasionally referred to in newspaper advertisements.

Cosby gives to the lords of trade reasons for his intention to remove Lewis Morris as chief-justice. He refers to him as "a Man under a general dislike, not only for his want of probity but for his delay of Justice his excessive pride and his oppression of the people." He relates instances to support this accusation. Among these is his manner of conducting a case in equity, in which Cosby had sued Van Dam for "half the Salary and perquisites from Coll: Montgomerie's death." Cosby also criticises Lewis Morris, Jr., now a member of the assembly, whom Montgomerie had suspended from the council.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 942-50. For Morris's answer, see Aug. 23.

Parliament passes an Importation Act, laying exorbitant duties on all sugar, molasses, and rum imported into the colonies.

Bradford prints the following notice: "Run away, the 17th of this Instant May, from the Printer hereof, an Apprentice Lad, named James Parker, by Trade a Printer, aged about 19 years; he is of a fresh Complexion, with short yellowish Hair, having on a yellowish Bengall coat, Jacket and Breeches, lined with the same, and has also taken with him a brown colour'd coarse Coat, with flat Metall Buttons, Two Frocks, Two Shirts, a Pair of strip'd Ticken Jacket and Breeches. Whoever takes up and secures the said Apprentice, so that his Master may have him again, shall have Twenty Shillings as a Reward, and all reasonable Charges Paid by William Bradford."—N. Y. Gaz., May 21, 1733. The reward offered was doubled in an advertisement published in Philadelphia a month later.—Am. Merc. (Phila.), June 21, 1733. Two years later, in Jan. 1743 (q. v.), a short time before Bradford's Gazette suspended publication, Parker began to publish an independent paper, The New-York Weekly Post-Boy.

Cortlandt Street is given to the city by private landowners. Phillip and Frederick van Cortlandt, executors of the will of Mrs. Catharine Philipe, deceased; Abraham van Wyck and Jacobus Gollet, executors of the will of Andrew Teller, deceased; Abraham Mesier, and others, who own certain parcels of land between Broadway and the Hudson River, declare in a petition to the common council that they have staked out a new street, 40 feet wide, which they have named Cortlandt Street, as more fully described in the petition, and that it shall remain a public street. They ask that this declaration may be recorded in the Minutes of the common council. The petition is granted, and the gift to the city is thus placed on record.—M. C. C., IV: 180-82. Cortlandt Street was regulated in 1755 (ibid., VI: 21), and again in 1784 (M. C. C., MS., VIII: 84).

In 1913, the N. Y. supreme court sustained a contention that the city possesses at the present time only an easement in the land called Cortlandt Street; and that, since the city does not own the land in fee, the defendant, an owner of property on this street, was justified in refusing to pay a tax for the vault space which he used in front of his building.—N. Y. Times, June 1, 1913.

A reward is offered for the return of a pair of gold sleeve-buttons to "Mr. Todd next Door to the Coffee-house."—N. Y. Gaz., May 21-28, 1733. Robert Todd's tavern stood at the present No. 101 Broad St., and was favoured by the gentry and his friends as a place of entertainment. Numerous political conferences, concerts, and public banquets were held there during the next decade. In Dec., 1749, Todd's tavern was taken over by Andrew Ramsay, who had acquired the old Coffee House next door.—See Dec. 18, 1749.

Rev. Mr. Charlton is given permission "to make A Key to the Library of this City for his own use, and none Others, he promising to make a Catalogue of the Said Library, and properly to place the Books therein, thereby to Render the same more Easy to be found and more useful, he also promising not to suffer any Books whatsoever to be taken from thence without the direction and Licence of this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 184. See June 27, 1739.

The common council appoints James Livingston and Francis Maerschalck surveyors of the city, under an ordnance passed Nov. 18, 1731.—M. C. C., IV: 81-82; 183. The oath taken by them on March 29, 1738, was the same as that prescribed in 1691 (q. v.).—Ibid., IV: 418-19.

Apr. 6

16

May 3

17

21

25

28

June 8

"

1733 The proprietors of a tract of land called Whitefield, having Aug. 20 decided to partition the land, are notified to meet "at the House of Mr. Morgan in the Commons at New-York" on this date.—N. Y. Gaz., July 23-30, 1733. Morgan was not one of the patentees, and in all probability had a public-house, but its location is not known.

23 Cosby delivers to James de Lancey a commission appointing him chief-justice in place of Lewis Morris.—Cal. Coun. Min., 319. On Aug. 27, Morris wrote to the lords of trade objecting to his removal on the ground that Cosby had not asked the advice of the council, and on other constitutional and legal grounds. In this document he described the manner in which New York governors, in former times, derived private profit while in office. He accused Cosby of declining to make any grants of land "unless he comes in for one third of them." He recommends the establishment of a "Court of Exchequer with proper Officers for the management and disposition of the King's lands and rents." Other charges against Cosby's integrity and ability were contained in Morris's plea. In a postscript, of Sept. 1, he added that when the superedeas was sent to him on Aug. 30, he was at his house, "about ten miles from New York." He stated that he was informed that his removal from office "created so great a dissatisfaction, that a more universal one was never known in this part of the world." He submitted to the lords of trade the query whether his "Patent under the Great Seal" was not "tantamount" to the governor's right to displace him.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 951-55. See May 3, and Oct. 31, 1733. See also the folio printed document entitled The Case of Lewis Morris, Esq; Late Chief Justice of the Province of New York, Who was Removed from the said Office by his Excellency William Cosby, Esq; Governor of the said Province. To be heard before the Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of his Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council, for Plantation Affairs (London, 1735), in N. Y. Pub. Library.

24 To demonstrate the "Great Deference" which the corporation of the city entertains of Gov. Cosby, the common council orders that his brother, the Hon. Maj. Alexander Cosby, lieutenant-governor of the garrison of Annapolis Royal, and Gov. Cosby's son-in-law, Thomas Freeman, be presented with the freedom of the city, with the seal of each freedom "Inclosed in A silver Box, Gilt, with the Arms of this City Engraved thereon."—M. C. C., IV: 190.

" The common council appoints a committee "to give Publick Notice that this Corporation will dispose of the Vacant Lotts in the Swamp Commonly Called Beckmans Swamp, and to Receive Proposals of any Person or Persons who are willing to purchase the same, and to Report upon what Terms this Corporation may Conveniently dispose thereof for the Publick benefit."—M. C. C., IV: 190. On March 22, 1734, another committee was required "to Enquire into the Pretensions of the Heirs of M<sup>r</sup> Jacob Leisler to the Swamp or any part thereof Commonly called Beckmans Swamp; and what will be the most proper Measures for this Corporation to take for the disposal of those Lotts in the Said Swamp."—Ibid., IV: 207. On June 29, 1734, it is resolved "that the Swamp in Montgomerie Ward within this City Commonly Called Beckmans Swamp or the Cripple Bush be Granted and Released to M<sup>r</sup> Jacobus Roosevelt for the Consideration of two hundred pounds (including One hundred pounds he hath already paid to this Corporation for ten Lotts, A part thereof, some years ago, for which he had no deed or Conveyance) and that the same be Granted unto him and his Heirs and Assigns for Ever (that is to Say) all the Right Title and Interest which this Corporation hath to the Said Swamp and not Otherwise, without any Other Warranty, and that the Mayor Execute A Grant and Release for the same under the seal of this Corporation."—Ibid., IV: 211. The grant was made on July 20.—Liber Deeds, B: 151. See also the Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 967.

29 Cosby reports to the lords of trade regarding the acts of assembly passed at the last session. Among these is one (see Oct. 14, 1732) "for confirming the charter granted to the City of New York by Gov<sup>t</sup> Montgomerie." He explains that "By this Charter are granted all the Islands near and round his Majesties Garrison here, the soil of the East River, as far as low water mark and extending in length to the utmost limits of the Island whereby his Majesty's prerogative & interest may be in danger of suffering, and his ships stationed here under a necessity of becoming petitioners to the Corporation for a convenient place to careen or refitt; for this Charter having granted the Corporation all the Islands as well near and round as before the Fort which lay commodious for the security and defence of it, in case of any eruptions, was as I conceive a lodging too great a power in them, in case of any necessity, and by so much a lessening of the King's prerogative." Cosby states that he was "sensible into an assent to this Act" of assembly confirming the charter, as the document was shown to him so soon after his arrival. He is having the charter, which consists of "a vast number of Skins of Parchment," copied, and will send the copy to the lords. Meanwhile, he asks that the lords will take no action regarding the act of confirmation, until they hear from him.—N. Y. Col. Docs., V: 956-57. More than a year later, on Dec. 7, 1734, Cosby sent to the lords a copy of the charter.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 24.

Certain property was advertised to be sold on this day "at the Exchange in Broad-street, at & publick vendue, by the Vendue Master of New-York."—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 3-10, 1733. One of the principal uses of this building is here indicated. Oct. 11

An advertisement for the sale of "Household Goods" is published by "Mr. George Talbot, next Door to the Play-House."—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 8-15, 1733. Other references to Talbot in the newspapers fail to reveal the location of this "Play-House."—Cf. description of Pl. 30, I: 264. 15

Cosby, in an address to the legislative council, says: "The season of the year being So far advanc'd I shall only at this time recömend to your consideration a thorrow repair of the Barracks in this flort. The work has been already begun on some of them and a moderate expense may finish it & make them usefull for many years."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 626; Assemb. Jour., I: 649, 653. But see Sept. 2, 1737. 16

The "late Chief Justice [Lewis Morris, who was succeeded by James De Lancey on Aug. 23—Cal. Coun. Min., 319], but new Representative for the County of Westchester, landed in this City, . . . at the Ferry-stairs: On His landing He was saluted by a general Fire of the Guns from the Merchants Vessels lying in the Road; and was receiv'd by great Numbers of the most considerable Merchants and Inhabitants of this City, and by them with loud Acclamations of the People as he walk'd the Streets, conducted to the Black Horse Tavern [see Oct. 29, 1727], where a handsome Entertainment was prepar'd for Him, at the Charge of the Gentlemen who receiv'd Him; and in the Middle of one Side of the Room, was fix'd a Tablet with golden Capitals, KING GEORGE, LIBERTY and LAW."—N. Y. Jour., Nov. 5, 1733. This popular demonstration in Morris's favour appears to be strong evidence of that general dissatisfaction at his removal from office which he referred to in his letter to the lords of trade on Aug. 23 (p. v). 31

A table, costing £27:9, is made for the assembly-room.—Assemb. Jour., I: 653. The high cost would indicate a large mahogany table. "

The legislature repeals so much of the act of 1699 (concerning extravagant grants) as concerns the Swamp which is on the west of the Fresh Water Pond, thus enabling the Swamp to be acquired by some individual by government grant, and drained. It has become a nuisance for want of draining.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 823. This validates the patent to this property, already granted to Anthony Rutgers.—See April 6, 1733; and for history of the title see Dec. 1730. Nov. 1

John Peter Zenger begins the publication of The New-York Weekly Journal, the second newspaper printed in the city, Bradford's Gazette (see Nov. 1, 1725) being the first. A copy of the first issue of the Journal, bearing this date, is in the N. Y. Pub. Library. During the administration of Gov. Cosby, both papers were used as political organs, the Journal by the popular party, the Gazette by the court faction. Almost every issue of the Journal contained inflammatory writings, sometimes in the shape of letters addressed to the editor, and again in the form of dialogues which some correspondents claimed to have overheard, all being but thinly disguised attacks upon the governor and his friends (see July 21). These articles brought forth severe denunciations from those who were loyal to the governor, and their feelings found expression in the columns of Bradford's Gazette (see March 4, 1734). In the autumn of 1734, Zenger's attacks increased in violence, and finally led to the arrest of the printer on the charge of libel (see Nov. 17, 1734). After his acquittal, he continued his paper until his death in 1748, after which his widow, and later his son, conducted it for four years longer.—Antiquarian Soc. Collections, VI: 99-103. See also Bibliography, Vol. V: A brief Narrative of the Case and Tryal of John Peter Zenger, Printer of the New-York weekly Journal (first ed., 1736; and Rutherford, John Peter Zenger). See A. 5

1733 An advertisement reads: "To be Run for, on the Course at Nov. New York, the 8th of this Month, a Purse upwards of 4l. value, by 5 any Horse, Mare or Gelding carrying 12 Stooe, and paying 5s.
entrance, which entrance Money is to be given to the second Horse, unless distanced."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 5, 1733. The "Course at New York" was probably the Bowery Road, there being no other special race-track of record at that time. See Nov. 21, 1716; but cf. Oct. 13, 1736, where it is evident the spectators were accommodated 9 in a field.

It is resolved by the common council "that all the Great Guns which lye upon the Lotts of Ground lately sold by this Corporation on the West Side of the Great Dock be forthwith Removed from thence into the Pasture belonging to the Fort," and a committee is appointed "to see the same performed with the leave of the Cap<sup>t</sup> General."—M. C. C., IV: 201.

26 Thomas Welch, from London, advertises "very good Entertainment for Man and Horse" at his tavern, the "Coach and Horses, in the Broad-way."—N. Y. Jour., Nov. 26, 1733. This is the only reference found to this tavern.

Dec. "Fire Indians" aid the inhabitants in extinguishing a fire in the 12 dwelling of one Gerardus Comfort, a cooper.—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 10-17, 1733.

15 Lewis Morris writes to the lords of trade regarding Cosby that "no Man was ever so universally hated as he is." He asks that Cosby be recalled "for the safety of the Inhabitants of this Province."
—N. Y. Cal. Docs., V: 957-59. See Aug. 29.

Rip van Dam (who was president of the governor's council until dismissed by Cosby, Nov. 24, 1735) delivers to Gov. Cosby 34 articles of complaint against the governor. These articles charge Cosby with performing certain acts beyond the limits of his instructions, and acting in various instances in an overbearing and unjust manner. The governor's council sent a reply to these complaints, on Dec. 17, to the Duke of Newcastle, the king's secretary of state, defending Cosby and accusing Van Dam of devising
"a labarynth of detestable falsehoods."—N. Y. Cal. Docs., V: 975-85. See June 19, 1734. For a connected account of the controversy thereby provoked, and of its consequences, see *Man.
Conn. Coun.* (1865), 723 et seq.

31 Observations are published concerning the defence of the city against invasion. "As a war is likely to break out, and the Rumours thereof daily increase," the writer believes the city should not trust "too much on our Number of Men, and carelessly saying, No Fear, no Fear;" but that batteries should be erected at Sandy Hook, Coeey Island, both sides of the Narrows, and other strategical points in and around the city. To man these works, all the train-bands of the adjacent towns should be required "to repair thither well-armed;" the forces from Queen's County and eastward to leave their boats at Kip's Bay, and those from Bergen County at "Grinage" (Greenwich). Everyone is urged "to lay aside all private Views, Partyships and Divisions . . . and declare for a stout and resolute Resistance." Instead of paying a heavy ransom for the city, it is preferable to strengthen the defences, in order to remain "a free and happy People."—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 31, 1733. See also June 10, 1734.

Anthony Rutgers receives a patent from the King George II for "a certain swamp and fresh pond, called the Fresh Water, and adjacent to the King's Farm, formerly called the Duke's Farm, on the Island Manhattan, beginning at a stake set in the ground on the south side of the said pond, and at the north-east corner of the land belonging to William Merritt; thence it runneth along the south side of the said swamp and pond, by the upland to the beach on the east side of Hudson's River; so along the beach to the upland; thence crossing a small gut of said swamp to the land on the east side thereof; thence by the said land as it runs, to the east side of the tan-yard; and thence to the place where it begun."—Liber Patents, XI: 127 (Albaay). The swamp and fresh water included about 70 acres. Judge Hoffman (Estate and Rights of the Corporation of the City of N. Y., 189) says "there is no doubt the grant took in the strip west of the Calk Hook and down to near Duane, east of that part of the Dominie's Bowery." In the Bancker collection (box G), in N. Y. Pub. Library, is "A Plan of a proposed alteration of Boundary between the Church Land and the Land belonging to Mt Anthony Rutgers."

The history of the grant to Anthony Rutgers is singular. An order of the privy council, issued Aug. 12, 1731, empowered Gov.
Cosby to grant a patent to the swamp and fresh pond. Hoffman

op. cit. observes this and states that he finds no grant made by the governor at this time. Nevertheless, a petition of Anthony Rutgers, April 6, 1733 (q. v.) alleged that he had "lately Obtained his Majestys Grant and Letters Patent for the Swamp near fresh Water." Yet the grant from the governor and council is dated Dec. 16, 1733 in Cal. Coun. Min., 320; and the date of the royal patent is actually 15 days later. From 1731, Rutgers evidently assumed that the swamp and pond had been granted to him. For most interesting data upon this confused subject, see Hoffman, op. cit., I: 121-26; II: 189-91. For the copy of an act permitting the grant of the pond and swamp to Rutgers, see Land Papers, XI: 73; and for the warrant for a patent, see ibid., XI: 77. For the release of the right to the land under water, executed in 1791 by the heirs of Anthony Rutgers, see May 13 and Sept. 29, 1791. See also descriptions of Frontispiece II, and Pl. 83-b, III: 540, 560-61; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 947, 965.

1734

"The year 1733-34 passed on with little peace for New-York. — The fear of the French and Indians still hung over the colony, trade was declining, several families emigrated to New Jersey, the assembly was adjourned, not to meet again until April, 1734."—
From "William Cosby and the Freedom of the Press," in Wilson's Mem-Hist. of N. Y., II: 236.

Probably in this year, William Bradford published "A New Map of the Harbour of New York, by a late Survey," showing Manhattan Island, the upper and lower bays, and the surrounding country, as well as the principal saad-banks, soundings, etc. The only known copy of this plan is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 29.

Cosby issues an "Account stated," printed by Bradford, showing the need of developing the merchant marine of the province, as expressed in his address to the assembly.—See original broadside or folder in N. Y. Pub. Library.

A belfry is constructed above the low tower of the Dutch Church at Harlem, to contain the bell, cast this year at Amsterdam.
—See inscription on the bell, which is in use at present in the edifice at the north-west corner of Lenox Ave. and 123d St. See also Tilton, Reformed Low Dutch Church of Harlem, 43-45; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 935.

The birthday of Frederic, Prince of Wales, is celebrated with the usual demonstrations, and described in detail in the newspaper report.—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 21-28, 1734.

"There is now preparing for the Press, a list of the Names of those Gentlemen, who by their Words and Actions do profess the Belief of that modern Doctrine, of keeping in with Governors upon any terms in order to prevent the People, on a new Choice of Representatives in General Assembly, from trusting their liberties in such hands."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 21, 1734.

An appeal is addressed to Cosby, beginning: "We the Grand Inquest for our Sovereign Lord the King, and the Body of the City and County of New-York, . . ." It appears to be a combined address from a commission of inquiry and the city magistrates, who state: "That from the various Accounts we have lately had by the publick Papers of the Armaments and Military Preparations which for some Time past have been making by several of the States and Powers in Europe, We are apprehensive the Consequences thereof may terminate in War . . ." They wish to discourage and oppose "any Naval Attempt that might be made against us." They therefore ask "that such proper and seasonable Care may speedily be taken to fortify this City (the Metropolis of this Province) as may most conduce to His Majesty's Honour, and the Safety of his People . . ." Cosby replied next day that he had received no express from England, such as is usually sent "Upon the least Surmise of a War." He cannot learn that any of the governors have received any. Nevertheless, he says, "I will employ my immediate Thoughts to consider such effectual Measures, that no Time may be lost when it is proper, to put them in Practice for the Security, Ease and Protection of you all . . ."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 21-28, 1734.

A negro is burnt alive at New York, in accordance with a sentence of a justice's court, for two attempted assaults upon women.—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 21-28, 1734.

At about midnight of this Friday, a letter is found under the door of James Alexander's house, "threatening him and his family with destruction, if a most villainous demand," thereby made, is not complied with. On Feb. 15, the governor's council ordered that a proclamation be issued to discover the perpetrator. Such

Dec.
31

Jan.
21

24

Feb.
1

1734 proclamation, signed by Cosby, dated Feb. 19, and offering a reward of £50 to anyone who should discover the author of the letter, or his accomplice, was published.—Cal. Coun. Min., 320; N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 18-25, 1734. On March 4, "Fra. Harrison" published an indignant denial of the authorship of the letter, which had been charged to him; and, on March 11, an advertisement announced the publication of the report of a committee of the council regarding the episode.—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 25-Mar. 4, and March 4-11, 1734.

4 The "Hum-drum-Club" is spoken of in an attack on Zenger by a correspondent in Bradford's Gazette. "The Governour," he says, "was not at the Hum-drum-Club of this City on Friday Night last; but was pleased to Honour the worthy Gentlemen of that Club with his Company on Saturday was [sic] Sevennight, and last Saturday Night."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 28-Feb. 4, 1734. Again, on March 25, a correspondent who signed himself "Peter Scheme" said that he often frequented the "Coffee-house, to take an Hit at Back Gammon," where he heard the sentiments of the "Courtiers," as Zenger termed them; and also that he conversed with the governour and the "Courtiers," sometimes at the "Humdrum," and sometimes at "the Fort."—Ibid., March 18-25, 1734.

18 A letter is published regarding the increase in the number of beggars in New York. The example of neighbouring provinces is cited, where beggars are forced to work to maintain themselves, "which perhaps may be the Reason of so many Straglers coming among us, finding they may here be maintained without being punished for Sloathfulness." The writer recommends the building of workhouses. "And if stately Buildings could not be accomplished, less might answer the End for a Time; and being thus provided with Conveniences necessary, the Overseers of the Poor would be able (at a cheap Rate) to provide and take Care of the Helpless, to teach the Sloathful Industry, the Disobedient and stragling Vagabonds to punish. And by these Means, in a few Years, save more Money to the City than those Buildings would cost."—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 11-18, 1734.

Mar. 4 A contributor to Bradford's paper thinks the only excuse for allowing Zenger to continue is the "Consideration of giving him Rope enough." False, malicious, libellous, licentious, scurrilous, virulent, seditious—are some of the adjectives used to describe his Journal.—N. Y. Gaz., March 4, 1734.

11 Zenger "intends to remove to Broad-Street near the upper End of the Long Bridge."—N. J. Jour., March 11, 1734.

Apr. 1 Mohawk sachems come before the governour and council at New York. They express regret that Gov. Cosby did not bring his family to America.—Cal. Coun. Min., 321. See, however, Aug. 27.

8 "These are to give notice, that Arthur Browne now plies in a boat, betwixt New York and South River, in New Jersey. If any gentlemen or Merchants have any goods to send to Allions-Town, Burlington, or Philadelphia, he will carry such goods to South River as cheap as is usually paid for carrying to Amboy or New Brunswick. And from South River, Samuel Rogers, of Allions-Town, will carry such goods for one farthing per pound to Burden's Landing, in which he will convey goods at the price they have for carriage of goods from Burlington to Philadelphia. The said Arthur Browne will be at New York once a week, if wind and weather permits, and come to the Old slip. Enquire of the printer hereof."—N. Y. Gaz., April 8, 1734.

15 Bradford, the printer of the Gazette, has just moved "to the House where the Brasier lately dwelt, in Hanover Square, over against Capt. Walton's."—N. Y. Gaz., April 8-15, 1734. He moved again, April 25, 1737 (q.v.).

22 The development of the city in the vicinity of Beekman's Swamp, which was granted to Jacobus Roosevelt on Sept. 5, 1728 (q.v.), begins by the more active sale of building lots; 18 lots fronting "the street that leads from Smith's Fly to the Fresh Water," bounded in part by "the Swamp or Tan Yards" and "Skinner Street," are offered for sale.—N. Y. Jour., April 22, 1734. On June 10, 22 lots in the same locality were advertised.—Ibid., June 10, 1734. On July 20 (q.v.), the city made additional grants in the Swamp itself to Jacobus Roosevelt.—Liber Deeds, B: 151. See also Aug. 24, 1733.

Several acres of the "Swamp" had been acquired by Jacobus Roosevelt. "Having been divided by the purchaser into lots, they were principally taken by the tanners, who occupied much of the entire space included between Cliff and Gold and Ferry and Frankford streets, and the north side of Frankford between Cliff and Duke. In this noted region the activity of the trade, before the Revolution, accumulated vast mounds of tan, where the boys of the neighborhood waged a mimic battle behind redoubts of that material, spiked with horns from the tan-yards. Other tanners pursued their occupation outside the city palisades, on the southern borders of the 'Collect' or Fresh-water Pond, near the junction of the present Centre and Pearl streets."—Bishop, Hist. of Am. Manufactures from 1608 to 1860, I: 441-42.

The members leave the assembly chamber and go to the council chamber, at Gov. Cosby's request, as is customary, to hear his speech at the opening of the session. The encouragement of trade is his first topic. He points out causes of the decay of trade. The principal one is that neighbours, the Bermudians especially, have become the common carriers for this province. Thereby, "not only building, which is a vast Advantage to a Country, is discouraged, and almost wholly disused; Artificers without Employ, . . . and no Prospect before them, but extreme Poverty, or a forsaking their Country; but likewise vast Sums of Money are yearly carried out of the Province by Strangers, who, . . . spend hardly any Thing even for their daily Subsistence while here, nor Import any Thing useful or profitable into it."

Another cause of the decay of trade is the want of strict inspection of flour, "the staple Commodity of the Country." The object of such inspection is to prevent the exportation of any except such as is equal "in Goodness" to the best that is exported from neighbouring provinces, whose flour has gained a reputation superior to that of New York because of "the wholesome Laws they have made to prevent Frauds and Abuses."

Cosby therefore recommends the passage of laws for the encouragement of building and navigation, "by laying a Duty of Tonnage" upon those who supplant this province in navigation; and laws for flour inspection, to prevent frauds in bolting. These laws, he declares, will "give Life to the expiring Hops of your Ship Carpenters and other Tradesmen; recall their unwilling Resolutions to depart the Province, and encourage others to come into it; fill your Harbours with Vessels of your own, inspire the Youth with warm Inclinations to become Seamen; and, by giving new Vigour to a declining Trade, fill your Country with Riches, and spread its Reputation far and wide."

He also recommends the protection of the harbour and town of New York, and the frontiers; "nor is any Time so fit to guard against our future Enemies, as a Time of Peace." He advises the assembly "to give a sufficient Sum for the Erecting of a Battery at the Point of Rocks by Whitehall," and new forts at Albany and Schenectady. For these purposes he has drawn plans, and made an estimate of the expense, which he will order laid before the assembly. He advises also that the management of the money be put into "honest and frugal Hands," and a strict account required.

He desires also that the burden of duties now laid upon trade may be eased "by an Imposition on some other Parts better able to bear it, or on something that may not at all affect Trade." He suggests a duty "upon Paper to be used in the Law, and in all Conveyances and Deeds of every Denomination."

He points out the disadvantages "that attend the too great Importation of Negroes and Convicts;" also that provision should be made to supply the Six Nations of Indians with smiths and proper tools to mend their arms. The French "not only do that, but constantly send some Men of Art and Interest to reside among them, furnished with Brandy, Lead and Powder, which they give from Time to Time to the Indians, whereby they ingratiate themselves with them, and alienate their Affections from us." It is "our Interest," he says, "to defeat the Attempts of the French by the like Arts, and to preserve the Friendship of the six Nations though at a greater Expence."

Cosby promises his concurrence in the enactment of any other laws for the defence of the province, the advancement of trade, the encouragement of husbandry, or for promoting manufactures, arts, and sciences.—Assemb. Jour., I: 654; Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 650-32.

On April 29, Mr. Morris, the deputy secretary, presented to the house the governour's plans, and his estimate of the expense for fortifications. The proposed battery at Whitehall is estimated at about £12,000.—Ibid., I: 655. A later estimate (May 4), placed it at £11,010.—Ibid., I: 657. See also Oct. 28, 1734, where the name "Copsie" is applied to the same locality.

1734 A "Committee of Grievances" is appointed by the assembly to meet every Thursday, "at the House of Mr. John De Honour, in the City of New-York."—Assemb. Jour., I: 655.

Apr. After repeated announcement, beginning March 11, of his intention "to remove to Broad-Street near the upper End of the Long Bridge," Zenger states in his issue of this date that he "is removed."—N. Y. Jour., May 13, 1734.

21 The city's method of extending its boundaries by filling in the water front around the lower end of the island is well illustrated in the laying out and development of Water Street in the vicinity of the great dock. The common council orders "that the Purchasers of the Water Lots fronting the Dock Street Wharfe be Obliged to lay Erect and build a Wharfe of twenty five foot part of the Street or Wharfe of forty foot next to the East River in Six years and to finish the Said Street of forty foot in twelve years."—M. C. C., IV: 208. On Sept. 30, 1734, it was ordered "that twenty foot of Ground on the West Side of the Lott of Ground of Anthony Rutgers ESq<sup>r</sup> which he lately purchased of this Corporation between the Great Dock and Whitehall, be left to make A Street or Wharfe thereon by the Said Anthony Rutgers fronting to the Slip to be left there."—Ibid., IV: 220. On Oct. 3, 1734, there was entered in the Minutes a petition from Stephen de Lancey, Anthony Rutgers, John Moore, and Robert Livingston, Jr., stating that they had lately purchased six lots, four of which were situated on the west side of the great dock between Whitehall Street and the East River, "fronting to a New Street to be made and laid out of forty foot wide to Run along the East River or Harbour, and in the Rear Northerly by Whitehall Street," as shown by their respective grants on record in the town clerk's office. This petition further recited that on one of these four lots "Very Considerable Buildings and Improvements" had been made, and that "further Improvements for the Convenience of Trade Navigation & Commerce and Enlarging this City in Buildings and Inhabitants" were "Speedily Intended." It was therefore their desire that they might not afterward "be Debarred or Deprived of the Benefit of the East River or Harbour," and they asked that the corporation would grant to them, "and to their Heirs and Assigns for Ever," 245 feet of ground "to be gained out of the Said East River," fronting their purchases, together with the right to profit from the wharfs to be made on the river front, "with all Cranes Stairs and landing places to be made thereon." They offered on their part to make a street 40 feet in width fronting their lots, "and at the Outward part of the Said 245 feet of Ground in the East River or Harbour at their own further Expence will leave Another good and sufficient Street or Wharfe of forty foot in breadth" as the city surveyors should direct, completing "the Said Streets" on or before March 25, 1746, and maintaining them "in good and sufficient Repair for Ever," it being understood that these should "Remain Publick Streets and Highways for Ever." The petition was granted by the common council "at the yearly Rent of Eighteen pence  $\frac{3}{4}$  foot, in the front of each Lott, and that M<sup>r</sup> Moore make A Wharfe or Street, the whole length of his Lott on the East side thereof of twenty foot at least in breadth and that M<sup>r</sup> Rutgers make A Wharfe or Street twenty foot in breadth on the West Side of his Lott at their Own proper Cost and Charge." It was ordered that the mayor execute the grants "for the same four Water Lotts," and that the yearly rent be payable March 25, "Commonly Called Lady Day."—Ibid., IV: 224-26; and see City Grants, Liber B, 234-60. Regarding the further development of the street along East River, see M. C. C., IV: 328. It received the name of Water Street in 1736.—Ibid., IV: 331. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1011. Water lots, granted in 1734 between Old Slip and Coenties Slip, are shown on Map No. 137 (made in 1771), now in Bureau of Topography, Dept. of Public Works.

28 An ordinance is proclaimed, by order of the common council, for preserving the fish in Fresh Water Pond. It provides "that if any Person or Persons whatsoever do, from henceforth presume to put, place or Cast into the Pond, Commonly Called fresh-Water Pond, belonging to this Corporation, any Hoop-Net, Draw-net, Purse-net, Casting-net, Cod-net, Bley-net, or any Other Net or Nets whatsoever, and shall take and Catch any of the fish within the Said Pond, therewith, or by any Other Engine, Machine, Arts, Ways or means whatsoever Other than by Angling, with Angle Rod, Hook and Line only;" he shall be required to pay a fine of 20 shillings.—M. C. C., IV: 209-10. This appears to be the first municipal ordinance for the protection of "fish and game." For the city's first "closed season" ordinance, see Nov. 14, 1758.

Capt. Michael Thodey is given permission by the common council "to make use of the Rope Walk without Spring Garden Gate lately in the Occupation of John searle deceased and John Pintard," at 50 shillings a year, "during the pleasure of this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 209. See Jan. 27, 1726.

William Smith, counsellor-at-law, delivers an opinion to the general assembly to show "That no Court of Equity can lawfully have any Being or Authority within this Colony, without Consent in General-Assembly: Whence it is inferred, That the Court of Equity lately erected in the Supream-Court, by Ordinance of Governor and Council, without Consent in General Assembly; is not a lawful Court. . . ."—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 16-23, 1734. See also Mr. Smith's Opinion Humbly Offered to the General Assembly of the Colony of New York, One [on] the Seventh of June, 1734, At their Request. Occasion'd by sundry Petitions of the Inhabitants of the City of New-York . . . praying an Establishment of Courts of Justice within the said Colony by Act of the Legislature. (N. Y., 1734). Bound with this is Mr. Murray's Opinion Relating to the Courts of Justice in the Colony of New-York; Delivered to the General Assembly of the said Colony, at their Request, the 12th of June, 1734, both documents being printed by Bradford. Copies are owned by the N. Y. Hist. Soc.

The justices of the peace and the vestrymen of the city ask the assembly for leave to bring in a bill for the "better Relief and Maintenance of the Poor in the said City."—Assemb. Jour., I: 663.

Referring to the subject of defence which is under general discussion, a letter to the press states: "Mr Bradford's Writers . . . have told the World, how packed and unprovoked we are, and what great Advantage and Profits an Enemy has a chance to get by coming here."—N. Y. Jour., June 10, 1734.

The king's accession to the crown is celebrated. At noon, "the Gentlemen of the Council, Assembly, and the City" wait on the governor at the fort; and drink the health of the king and queen, the royal family, and the Prince and Princess of Orange, "under the Discharge of the Cannon;" the "regular Troops, in their new Cloathing, all the while standing under Arms, who made a fine Appearance." Afterwards, the governor, attended by the same assemblage, "went into the Field, and review'd the Militia of the City drawn up there, and express'd great Satisfaction at their Order, Discipline, and Appearance, and was pleased to order 12 Barrels of Beer to be distributed among them to drink their Majesties and the Royal Healths."—N. Y. Gaz., June 17, 1734.

Cosby, in a report to the lords of trade, reviews the arguments in his case against Van Dam, which led to his dismissing chief-justice Morris (see Nov. 14, 1732), and he sends them a copy of Morris's argument and opinion which the latter had printed and circulated, this being a tract entitled The Opinion and Argument of the Chief Justice of New York, concerning the Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court (printed and sold by Zenger, 1733). Cosby also states that Morris expressed "his open-and implacable malice" against him "in false and scandalous libels printed in Zengers Journal." Cosby gives his reasons at length for removing Chief-Justice Morris. The question involved is whether there shall be, by Cosby's appointment, an equity branch of the court of exchequer. The people have a great dislike for such a court.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 4-14. See, further, Ibid., VI: 20-24.

The bill of Daniel Gautier, amounting to £37:19:5, for building the additional room in the city hall for the assembly (see Sept. 26, 1732) is audited.—Assemb. Jour., I: 668. On July 13, a warrant was issued to pay him.—Cal. Coun. Min., 321. (Note that the date "1733" on pp. 321 and 322 of the Cal. Coun. Min. is a misprint for 1734.)

The legislature passes an act to lay a duty on the tonnage of all vessels trading in the colony of New York, excepting vessels built here; also an act to prescribe rates to be charged for the use of the wharf called Burnet's Key. The same schedule of rates is to apply to the wharves east of Burnet's Key as far as Maiden Lane Slip, but is not to affect the wharves belonging to the city.—Cal. Laus N. Y., II: 843, 847-49; and see April 25. Commenting on this act, Cosby stated on June 10, 1735, that the owners of Burnet's Key had "carry'd it a considerable way into the water whereby almost any of our Vessels can carreen there with more ease and less expence . . . than they formerly used to do by hulks when riding at anchor in the River."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 29. Burnet's Key is shown on Pls. 26, 27, and 27-A, Vol. I.

May 28

"

June 7

"

10

"

"

11

"

"

19

"

"

"

21

"

"

"

22

"

- 1734 A provincial act is passed granting "Quakers residing within this Colony The Same privileges Benefits & Indulgences as by the Laws & Statutes now remaining of force in . . . England The people of That Denomination are intitled unto within those Dominions."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 823-30.
- 29 Capt. Robert Long, commander of "his Majestys Ship Seaford the Station ship of War for this Colony," having represented to the common council "that the Hulk whereby his Majestys ships used to Careen by, is Sunk and broke to pieces in Turtle Bay," proposes that, if the city will grant to him and his heirs and assigns forever "A Small piece of Ground on the south West Side of Turtle Bay, only, from high Water Mark fifty foot into the River," he will erect thereon at his own expense a wharf "Convenient for his Majestys Ships to Careen at," and "Remove the Ruins of the Hulk aforesaid and such Other Wrecks which lye sunk within the said Turtle Bay," the object being to make the bay "more usefull and Commodious for the Sheltering of A far greater Number of Shipping therein," and more especially to secure them in winter from "the driving Ice in the River." The common council resolves to grant such land (the description of which is entered in detail in the Minutes), with the understanding that he will erect the wharf before July 1, 1735, that he will also erect and keep in repair a "Convenient pair of landing Stairs of Six foot wide, free for all Persons to Come to and land at the same at or Near the North West Corner;" and he is given authority for himself and his heirs and assigns to "Receive such sum or sums of Money for such loading, unloading or Careening at, or by the said Wharfe as shall be Reasonable."—M. C. C., IV: 212-14. The grant was made Oct. 12, 1734.—City Grants, Liber B: 265. See Oct. 8.
- July Bradford advertises The New-England Coasting Pilot, from Sandy-Point of New-York unto Cape Canfo (or Ganso) in Nova Scotia . . . by Capt. Cyprian Southack.—N. Y. Gaz., July 1, 1734.
- 20 Bestavaer's Crippelbusch, or Beekman's Swamp, is granted to Jacobus Roosevelt by the city.—Liber City Grants, B: 151 (comptroller's office). This tract, represented on numerous early maps as a piece of swampy land, lay between the present Frankfort, Spruce, Gold, and Cliff Sts., and is traversed to-day by Jacob and Ferry Sts. It became known later as "The Swamp," and is so spoken of to-day, colloquially. The tanning and leather interests of New York have never entirely abandoned this locality. See Sept. 10, 1686; Sept. 5, 1728.
- 26 The city grants to Cornelius van Horne a lot extending from the Dock Street wharf 400 feet into the East River, with the obligation that he shall increase by 15 feet the width of Dock (later Water) Street at the upper end of his lot and make another wharf or street (South Street) 40 feet in width 200 feet farther into the East River. This is the first conveyance of a water lot in which the city charged an annual rent instead of a cash payment.—Liber Deeds, B: 125. See also Black's Municipal Ownership of Land, 18. Other grants at this wharf are made the same day on similar terms.—Ibid., B: 133, 143, 154, 163, 172, 182, and 192. See also Addenda, 1700.
- 29 Six lots are advertised for sale "on the West Side of the Swamp or Cripplebusch." Three of them "front the Road that leads from Spring Garden to fresh Water;" the other three front "the Street next to the Swamp." Inquirers are referred to Anna Ten Eyck, "near Koentjes Market."—N. Y. Jour., July 29, 1734.
- Aug. "Thomas Copley this day stood in the Publick Pillory of this City for having false Dollars with intent to utter and pass them in payment, and uttering one false Dollar knowing it to be so, of which he was Convict." Eighteen such "false Dollars" are "in Open Court [of general sessions] . . . broke to pieces."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 43.
- 14 "Ordered That M<sup>r</sup> Vesey the Two Church Wardens M<sup>r</sup> Moore M<sup>r</sup> Aubouneau and M<sup>r</sup> Chambers or any five of them whereof the Rector and one of the Church Wardens be Two be a Committee to lease out the Lotts of Ground behind the Church Yard for any Number of Years not Exceeding forty under such Yearly Ground Rents Covenants and Restrictions as they shall think most proper . . . And it is also
- "Resolved that the said Committee be at Liberty to Obtain from the Corporation of this City a Grant and Confirmation of their Said ground and of the Water Lotts fronting the same Upon Such Yearly Ground Rents and agreements as they shall think proper and reasonable to make."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 27 "This Day, his Excellency our Governour and Family embarked for his other Government of New Jersey, being attended to the Water-side by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, and sundry the principal Gentlemen of this City, and the Officers and Soldiers of the Garrison under Arms; upon their embarking, they were saluted by the Fort with fifteen Guns, and by the Gentlemen with three Huzzas."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 26, Sept. 2, 1734.
- Satirical letters by "Timothy Wheelwright" and "John Chissel" (pseud.), dated Sept. 8 and 12, regarding the approaching election for aldermen, are printed as a handbill or folder by Zenger. They express the despair of the workmen, and advise them to assert the rights and liberties of their country. One of these handbills is in the N. Y. Pub. Library.
- According to this document (quoted in I: 258, q. v.), a short cut on the "Boston High Road" is in course of construction. This short cut is shown on the Bradford Map, Pl. 27, Vol. I, indicating that it had been begun, or at least was in contemplation, as early as 1730. The road seems to have been still incomplete on July 29, 1740 (q. v.). On Nov. 7, 1741, the course of the post-road was defined by law and included the "Straight Line" or short cut "through the Hill by the House of Captain Brown Where the Wind Mill formerly Stood."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 162-66.
- "A Great Number of Tanners and Other Inhabitants" having represented to the common council "that they are greatly prejudiced by A Drain laid into the fresh Water Pond by the Order of Anthony Rutgers Esq[ue] [see April 6, 1733] which has greatly drawn away the Water from the same Pond," it is ordered "that the Said M<sup>r</sup> Rutgers do by the first day of October next fill up the Said Drain thirty foot from the Said fresh Water Pond." Rutgers had been obliged by his letters patent which granted him the swamp near the pond to drain the swamp within one year from the date of his patent.—M. C. C., IV: 216-17. See Sept. 15, 1739.
- The elections for members of the common council, held this day, are described as follows: "Simon Johnson and Edie Myer carried it against the Governour's Interest notwithstanding there voted against them a considerable Merchant who was an Inhabitant of another Ward, and about 15 of the soldiers of His Majesty's Garrison, besides the Recorder of the City [Francis Harrison] and his Interest. All the Members that are chosen were put up by an Interest opposite to the Governour's except John Mure, in whose Favour a great many of the City joined, or he would have lost his Election."—N. Y. Jour., Oct. 7, 1734. See Oct. 14, 1734.
- It is resolved by the common council "that the Bowling Green at the lower End of the Broadway in the West Ward of this City as it is now in fence be Leased unto Frederick Philippe Esq[ue] M<sup>r</sup> John Chambers and M<sup>r</sup> John Roosevelt and their Assigns for the Term of ten Years to Commence the twenty Ninth day of September last past for A Bowling Green only at the yearly Rent of one pepper Corne and that M<sup>r</sup> Mayor Execute a Lease for the same under the Common seal of this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 221. For the continuation of this lease, see Sept. 2, 1742. See also March 12, and April 6, 1733.
- The draught of a grant for a piece of land to Robert Long (to be used as a careening-place for ships of the royal navy) at Turtle Bay is read and amended, and the common council orders that it be engrossed.—M. C. C., IV: 227. See June 29, 1734. Refer also to M. C. C., IV: 166, 172, 174, 178, and 209, and City Grants, Liber B: 263. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988; Pl. 176.
- By order of the common council, Mayor Lutting reimburses himself, by warrant to the treasurer for £2:7:6 "for Carting of Timber out of the Parade before the Fort in the year 1728, and for A speaking Trumpet for the use of this Corporation (in 1733) in Case of fire."—M. C. C., IV: 228. The original bill of the mayor is preserved in the city clerk's record-room.
- A committee of the common council is appointed "to Agree with A Printer for the printing of "the Charter of this Corporation," the copy to be printed being "first Carefully Examined with the Original."—M. C. C., IV: 231. On Oct. 25, the committee reported that they had "Agreed with John Peter Zenger Printer in manner following (to witt) that he will Print the same on very good Paper and in good and fair Characters for seven pounds, and the Benefit Accruing on the sale of the Printed Copies to be for his own use; and that he will Print Six Copies and bind them up Very Neatly for the Corporation to dispose of or Present, to whom they Shall think proper, and that he is to Print the Act of Assembly which Confirms the Said Charter in the same Book." On approving the report, it was ordered "that a fair Copy of the Said Charter be made for the Printer Accordingly by the Town Clerk, and that the 1734 same Committee do take Care the same be forthwith Perfected."— Oct. 14 Ibid., IV: 232. See Sept. 16, 1735.

Robert Lutting is sworn into office for his ninth term as mayor of the city, and Cosby delivers the following address: "Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen who are chosen into the Magistracy of this City for the year ensuing; I Cannot omit this Opportunity of taking Notice to you, of a Paper printed in this City, touching your Elections, in which it is wickedly insinuated, That they were carried against the Governour's Interest [see Sept. 30]: You yourselves must be sensible, that I have no ways intermeddled with them, but have left them intirely to the free Choice of the People . . . These Men have endeavoured, by the most false and scandalous Misrepresentations of my Conduct, to lessen the Regard that is due to my Character and Station among you; . . . and, if those men should be so Wicked and abandon'd, as to continue their Seditious Practices, notwithstanding all the Forbearance and Lenity they have hitherto met with, you will exert yourselves, as Preservers of the Peace, which is entrusted into your hands, and use the proper Means to bring the Offenders to Condign Punishment."—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 14-21, 1734.

17 After having several of Zenger's Journals and other Scurrilous papers tending to alienate the affections of the people of this province from his Majesties Governm<sup>ty</sup> laid before it, the council asks for a conference with a committee of the assembly.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 637. The request is granted by the assembly.—Assemb. Jour., I: 671. The next day the committee reported to the assembly and asked concurrence in the orders of the council.—Ibid., I: 671-72. For these orders see Nov. 2. On Oct. 22, the assembly debated the proposals of the committee and voted to lay the matter on the table.—Ibid., I: 672. See, however, Oct. 19.

19 The following order is issued by the supreme court, at which Chief-Justice James de Lancey, and Second Justice Frederick Philipse are present: "The Grand Jury having yesterday presented two scandalous and seditious songs or ballads lately dispersed about this city—one entitled A Song made upon the Election of the new Magistrates for this City, the other entitled A Song made on the foregoing occasion; both highly defaming the present administration of his Majesty's Government in this Province; tending greatly to inflame the minds of his Majesty's good subjects, and to disturb and destroy that peace and tranquillity which ought to subsist and be maintained in this Colony, and all other well-governed communities, of which virulent, scandalous and seditious songs or ballads they have not been able, on a strict enquiry, to discover either the author, printer, or publisher: It is therefore ordered by the Court, that the said . . . songs or ballads be burnt before the City Hall, sitting the Court, by the hands of the common hangman or whipper, on Monday, the 21st of this instant, at 12 o'clock, and that the High Sheriff of this city and county do take orders accordingly."—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 21, 1734. See, further, Nov. 2.

28 Regarding fortifications, the Journal says that it "would not Build them for the private Advantage of any Man . . . The single Fortification of Copsie is . . . estimated to cost about 12000 Pounds, which will . . . render the Lots there, much more valuable." This is a direct attack upon the governour's plan. See April 25, 1734. Instead, the newspaper suggests the erection of batteries at convenient places "at half the Expence proposed."—N. Y. Jour., Oct. 28, 1734.

30 The anniversary of the king's birthday is observed. The news report thus describes the celebration: "Between the hours of eleven and twelve in the fore-noon, his Excellency our Governour was attended at his House in Fort George by the Council, Assembly, Merchants, and other Principal Gentlemen and Inhabitants of this and adjacent Places. The Independent Companies posted here being under Arms, and the Cannon round the Ramparts firing while his Majesty's, the Queens, the Prince's and the Royal Families, and their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Orange's Healths were drank; and then followed the Healths of his Grace the Duke of New Castle, of the Duke of Grafton, of the Right Honourable Sir Robert Walpole, and many other Royal Healths. In the Evening the whole City was illuminated, his Excellency and Lady gave a splendid Ball and Supper at the Fort, where was the most Numerous and fine Appearance of Ladies and Gentlemen that had ever been known upon the like Occasion. And it was no small addition to the General Joy and Satisfaction of the Day that Capt. Bryant from London arrived in the Fore-noon, who brought us the Wellcome News of the Health of the King, the Queen, and all the Royal Family; and that the Kingdom enjoyed at present all the Blessings of Peace, Plenty and a Flourishing Trade under his Majesty's most Glorious and Auspicious Administration."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 11, 1734.

Upon learning that the assembly tabled consideration of Zenger's Journal, the council issues following orders: to the hangman or the whipper, to burn, near the pillory, numbers 7, 47, 48, and 49 of The New-York Weekly Journal, being of a seditious nature; to the sheriff, to see that it is "effectually done;" to the governour, to put forth a proclamation offering a reward of £50 for the discovery of the authors of these papers; to the attorney-general, to prosecute them when discovered, and after examining the Journal, from first to last, to lay before the council paragraphs which "reflect upon any persons in the administration of the Governm<sup>ty</sup>;" to the sheriff, to arrest and imprison Zenger, and to the magistrates of the respective counties "to be active in their respective offices to preserve the publick peace."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 642. See Nov. 5, 6, 17, 24, 1734; April 16, Aug. 4, Sept. 16, 1735.

The common council orders that "the Freedoms of this Corporation be Presented unto Cap<sup>t</sup> Matthew Norris and Cap<sup>t</sup> Robert Long Commanders of his Majesties Ships Tartar & Seaford . . ." The text of each freedom is entered in full in the Minutes. Norris is described as the son of the Hon. Sir John Norris, "Admiral of his Majesties Royal Navy of Great Britain," and who, "being lately A worthy Member of the Honourable House of Commons of Great Brittain, did in that House Strenuously Oppose and give his Vote against the Bill passed in favour of the Sugar Colonies;" also one of "near Alliance to us by his Marriage with our Country Woman the worthy Daughter of the Honourable Lewis Morris Esq<sup>r</sup> A Native of this City." Both the "Tartar" and "Seaford" are station ships of this province.—M. C. C., IV: 234-35.

The sheriff delivers to the court of quarter sessions an order that the magistrates attend the burning of several issues of Zenger's Journal by the hangman. The court forbids the entry of the order in its records. On the following day, the sheriff's motion that the court comply with the order of the council was met with a vigorous protest by the magistrates, and all members of the corporation were forbidden to obey it. Recorder Harison, alone dissented. The sheriff then asked that the public whipper be directed to carry out the order of the council, but the court, holding that the whipper was an officer of the corporation, refused to give him any such order. About noon the sheriff, after reading the numbers of Zenger's Journal, delivered them to his negro servant, who burnt them in the presence of Recorder Harison, and several officers of the garrison. The members of the court did not attend.—A brief Narrative of the Case and Tryal of John Peter Zenger, Printer of the New York Weekly Journal (1st ed., N. Y., 1736, in N. Y. Pub. Library) 3, 4.

The governour's council approves the draft of a proclamation for encouraging immigration from Europe.—Cal. Coun. Min., 323.

The governour issues two proclamations, one for the discovery of the authors of "two late Scandalous Songs and Ballads . . . defaming the Administration," and the other to discover the authors of seditious reflections contained in numbers 7, 47, 48, and 49 of Zenger's Journal.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 25, 1734; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 522. One of each of these proclamations is preserved in the collection of the N. Y. Pub. Library; also one of the original handbills containing the two so-called scandalous songs.

A committee of the common council is appointed "to Inspect and Enquire for a proper House and Ground to be purchased by this Corporation to be Converted into a House of Correction and a Workhouse and upon what Terms Such A Convenient House can be purchased and in what place and of whom."—M. C. C., IV: 236. The first consideration of this subject by the common council was taken on March 24, 1714 (q.v.). On Dec. 20, 1734, a resolution referred to "the Necessity, Number and Continual Increase of the Poor within this City," which was "very great and Exceeding burthensome to the Inhabitants thereof for want of a Workhouse and House of Correction;" and stated that "there is not yet any Provision made for the Relief and setting on Work of Poor Needy Persons and Idle Wandering Vagabonds, Sturdy Beggars and Others, who frequently Commit diverse misdemeanors within the Said City, who living Idly and unemployed, become debauched and Instructed in the Practice of Thievery," etc. The common council therefore resolved to build at its own expense "A good, Strong and Convenient House and Tenement, upon part of the unimproved Lands of this Corporation, on the North Side of the Lands late of Coll Dongan Commonly Called the Vineyard." A committee was appointed "to lay out a Convenient piece of Land there, for that

Oct. 30
Nov. 2

4

5

11

15

1734 use, large Enough to Erect Additional Buildings thereupon, for Nov. Workhouse and Other Conveniences, if Occasion Require, and for 15 Needfull Yardroom and Garden; and cause the Surveyors of this City to make a Draft thereof. That the House and Tenement to be built thereupon be of the Dimensions following (Viz) fifty Six foot long, twenty four foot wide from Outside to Outside, two Stories high, and A good Cellar, all of Stone and the Same to be divided into Such and so many Rooms as the Said Committee shall direct." It was also resolved to begin work on the building as soon as the season of the year would permit, and that the building should be called the "Publick Workhouse and House of Correction."— Ibid., IV: 240-41. On March 31, 1735, the building committee reported that they had agreed with John Burger "for Building the Workhouse and taking Accounts of all the Materials to be used on the Stone and Brick Work (Viz): For performing the above Work &c, £80; For Seventy Gallons of Rum for the use of all the Masons and Labourers, £8-15<sup>s</sup>; For Seventy pounds of Sugar, £1:5; For Small Beer, £2:10; For Hire of Labourers, £30," making a total of £122:10, of which he is paid £20 on account. The committee also reported that they had engaged John Rooome to take charge of the carpenter work for £30, "with a further allowance of fifty Gallons of Rum, the Corporation to be at the Charge of the Liquor at laying the Beams and Raising the Rooof."—Ibid., IV: 250-51. Payments for materials and labour were made in 1735 and 1736, including £34 for 340 loads of stone (ibid., IV: 259), and £12 for digging a well there (ibid., IV: 260). The workhouse was reported as completed in Sept., 1735.—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 23, 1735. Regarding the appointment of a keeper, and the operation of the workhouse, see March 3, 1736. For the enlargement of the poorhouse, see April 15, 1746. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 973.

17 Zenger is arrested for publishing seditious libels, and imprisoned by order of the council; he is not permitted to see or speak to anyone.—N. Y. Journal, Nov. 25, 1734; Cal. Coun. Min., 323. Three days later, he was brought by a writ of habeas corpus before Chief-Justice James de Lancey who discontinued proceedings until the 23d. The hearing was held in the city hall which was crowded.
Zenger's bail was fixed at £400, with two sureties, each for £200, but, as he was unable to furnish this sum, he was remanded to prison.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 25, 1734. The original manuscript presentment of the attorney-general in the Zenger case was sold at The Anderson Galleries, New York, April 20, 1920, with the library of Henry F. De Puyl.—See catalogue of sale (with reproduction), item
No. 263.8, where it is thus described: "The document is signed by Richard Bradley, Attorney General, and possibly the whole document is in his handwriting. It is undoubtedly the copy used by Zenger's attorney, Andrew Hamilton, during the trial, as it has on the back the legal citations made by the Attorney General during his plea, noted by him at the time. This document is printed verbatim in the reports of the Zenger trial. The two pages are still fastened together with the hand-made pin of the time of Zenger."

23 Lewis Morris, the late chief-justice of New York Province, member of the general assembly of New York, and president of the council of New Jersey, embarks with his son, Robert Morris, at Shrewsbury, N. J., for Great Britain, "to solicit Matters of Great Importance" relating both to this and others of the northern colonies,—"the News whereof gave great Satisfaction to the Inhabitants of this City." On Nov. 24, prayers were offered in all the churches in their behalf.—N. Y. Jour., Nov. 25, 1734.

24 Zenger, in prison, is permitted to speak, "through the Hole of the Door," to his wife and servants.—N. Y. Jour., Nov. 25, 1734.
He continued to edit his paper in this manner until his acquittal on Aug. 4, 1735.—A brief Narrative of the Case and Tryal of John Peter Zenger, 40.

28 To provide sums necessary for building fortifications, in view of the threats of war, an act of the legislature is passed for issuing bills of credit to the value of £12,000. William Bradford is to receive £8 for printing the bills and providing paper, pens, and ink, to sign them. As the stamps bearing the arms of the city, formerly used in printing bills of credit, are too large and also much worn, it is ordered that they be broken, and that ten new stamps bearing the arms of the city, and of a smaller size, be made by Charles le Roux, at a charge of £21. Provision is made for gradually sinking these bills of credit through the proceeds derived from duties on tonnage and a tax on slaves.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 885-92. For a further issue of bills of credit, see Dec. 16, 1737; see also article on early New York paper money, by John Hickox, in Trans- actions of the Albany Institute, V: 23-79; and item of June 8, 1709. Nv. 28

The legislature passes "An Act to appoint and Impower Commissioners for Erecting Fortifications in this Colony." It states that "Such Fortifications will tend not only to the Security of the Said Colony, but Discourage an Enemy to make attacks upon it, & at the Same time Encourage his Majesties Subjects Inhabiting within the Same to Exert their Bravery in Making a Vigorous Defence in Case Such Attempts might happen to be made." It requires "that the City of New York Shall be Fortified by making & Erecting a Substantial Battery on the Rocks Lying off of White Hall commonly called Copse Rocks [see April 25, 1734] and to adjoin to the Land already there, So far Westward as the Wharf commonly called Huys Peer," in such manner as the commissioners, with the advice of the assemblymen from New York City and the approval of the captain-general or commander-in-chief, shall deem most useful, "to make the Said City Defensible Against Attempts upon it by Water." The commissioners named are John Cruger, Cornelius de Peyster, John Rosevelt, and John de Witt Petroze. They are also required "to cause Carriages for the great guns to be made or Repaired, & to Erect Sheds to preserve the Same against the weather when it Shall be judged needless to keep the Said Great Guns Mounted." They are to conduct the work in the speediest manner possible. To prevent the proposed battery being rendered useless "by buildings to blind or Incumber the Same," the act prohibits the erection of houses or other edifices, except for platforms, batteries, or other fortifications, "either in the River or in any part or parts which now overflow with the Water from & between the Westerly part of the Battery so . . . to be Built on Copse Rocks to the Place commonly called & Known by the Name of Elds Corner or Slip." For this work the commissioners are allowed £6,000. Other fortifications are required to be erected in other parts of the province.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 892-902. See Oct. 20, 1735. As this act implied an encroachment on the corporation's right to the water front (see digest of Montgomerie Charter, Feb. 11, 1731), the consent of the common council was secured before the law was passed.—M. C. C., IV: 237-38. See also "Battery Park," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 968.

29 News reaches New York from London that the king "has ordered the Province of New Jersey to be a separate Government from New-York, and that a Commission is daily expected to pass the Seals, to appoint Sir William Keith Governor of that Colony" (New Jersey).—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 2, 1734.

A committee appointed by the common council, on Nov. 29 Dec.
(see M. C. C., IV: 238), to hire ten men to be the night watch of 6 the city (together with two constables) until May 1, 1735, reports that the watchmen have been hired at £510 each from Dec. 4 to May 1.
An extra allowance of 20 shillings is to be given to each constable for special diligence, only one of whom at a time is to be on duty.
Unlike the law of Dec. 14, 1731 (q. v.), this law requires the 12 members of the watch to work in two squads, of five watchmen and one constable each, and each squad to work all night on alternate nights.—
M. C. C., IV: 239-40. The number of the watch was regularly decreased during the summer season, May to December.—Ibid., IV: 252-53, 267, 460. See also April 20, 1714.

Cosby explains to the Duke of New Castle the position of the council regarding "a most scandalous pamphlet dispersed about this Province," which contains "a very rude reply" to the answers given by the council to Van Dam's articles of complaint against Cosby.
The pamphlet referred to is entitled Heads of Articles of Complaint by Rip Van Dam Esq. against his Excellency William Cosby Esq., etc.
(Boston, 1734).—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 26. See also Aug. 28, 1735.

Cosby also points out that the conduct of Surveyor-General Colden has been "unworthy of the Character of a Councilor; that he has been "closely link'd with y<sup>e</sup> oppressors of the Government," and is "not ashamed of being made their spy, upon all the proceedings and all the transactions of the Council." He refers to the alleged "opposers" as "these Infamous fellows."—*N. Y. Col.
Docs.*, VI: 26-27.

Zenger, writing from the prison (see Nov. 24) for his Journal, 20 rebukes a correspondent of Bradford's Gazette. He denies using the "Language of the Prize-fighter," and claims that the readers of his newspaper include "many Gentlemen, and Ladies." He admits being brought to America on the bounty of Queen Anne. Zenger declares that he was visited eight weeks ago by Recorder Francis Harison, who threatened to beat him with a cane.—N. Y. Jour.,
Dec. 23, 1734.

1735

1735

At some time prior to this date, Nicholas Bayard erected his homestead or dwelling-house; it appears for the first time on the map of this year.—Pl. 30, Vol. I. By modern streets, it was situated in the block bounded by Grand, Broome, Crosby and Lafayette Sts. It was approached by an avenue called Bayard's Lane, the entrance gate being at the Bowery Road; the present Broome St. has been laid out nearly on the line of this lane.—Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 611. With the grounds, the house was occupied as a tavern and popular resort by Jacques M. J. Delacroix, in 1798, being called the Vauxhall Garden, after the London institution of the same character.—See Liber Deeds, LIII: 437 (New York). It had disappeared from the city directories by 1805, Delacroix having removed the business and the name to the site of the Astor Library, Lafayette Pl., Fourth Ave. and Astor Pl., in that year. The old Bayard mansion was demolished in 1821.—Greatorex, Old New York II: 125. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 948, 981; Pl. 175, Vol. III.

Bayard's west farm lay west of Broadway, extending from Howard St. (on modern maps) to the line of the Herring Farm above the present Bleeker St., the west line beginning at Broadway, running very irregularly to the present junction of Grand and Greene Sts., to Wooster, north of Spring, to Sullivan and Spring Sts., to Houston, west of Hancock St.; thence somewhat north-easterly to the line of the Herring Farm on the north.

Some time prior to this date, a theatre was erected, or some building was occupied as a theatre, on the site of Nos. 12 and 14 Broadway.—See Pl. 30, Vol. I. The earliest reference found to this (?) playhouse was contained in The New-York Weekly Journal of Feb. 2, 1741, when it was advertised as the "New Theatre," and there was an announcement of the production of "The Beaux Stragem."—See description of Pl. 30, I: 264-65; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 985; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

Some time before this date, Adam van den Berg began to keep a meadow-house and garden on the west side of Broadway between the present Vesey and Barclay Sts., for it is shown on the manuscript map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I). This was the Church Farm, of a part of which Van den Berg had a lease. The garden was still kept here as a pleasure resort in 1753 (N. Y. Merc., Aug. 13, 1753), and Van den Berg's house was in existence as late as 1770, when a petition was made to erect a liberty pole "opposite Mr Van Derberghs."—See Jan. 30, 1770. Valentine (Man. Com. Coun., 1865, p. 547) says that his tavern was called the Drover's Inn. This was the site in recent years of the Astor House. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

About this time, a cultivated space adjacent to Fort George was known as the Fort Garden. As shown on the manuscript map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I), its location, according to the modern plan, was south of Bridge St., between Whitehall and State Sts. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 946; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

The tract of land described in the grant made by Dongan to John Knight on Feb. 10, 1685 (q. v.), was for the first time shown on a map, in 1735, as "The Vineyard," though illiterately designated "The Winyard."—See Pl. 30, Vol. I. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 946; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

The following comparative statement of the city's revenues, at five-year intervals from 1730 to 1770, inclusive, shows the amounts derived from various leases and licenses, as compiled from the city chamberlain's Ledgers Nos. 2 and 3, and Journals Nos. 2, 3, and 4, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.:

Year	Ferries	Docks	Markets	Lands	Water Lots	Buildings	Licenses
1730	£246	...	...	£28	...	...	£91
1735	243	...	...	5	£33	£2	89
1740	307	£73	...	7	65	2	...
1745	370	90	£105	7	68	2	194
1750	455	110	159	7	99	5	180
1755	650	305	190	40	142	50	172
1760	650	500	245	122	196	50	524
1765	800	650	385	501	225	100	180
1770	970	590	250	374	460	60	230

—Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 397.

Alexander Malcolm, "Master of the Grammar-School in the City of New-York," gives notice that hereafter he will receive only twice a year, in February and in August, "meer Beginners in Latin" into the school.—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 30-Jan. 7, 1734(5). In July of the following year, he announced that "such Scholars as are fit for any of the Classes will be received at any time."—Ibid., July 18-25, 1736. See May 1, 1730; Oct. 14, 1732.

The birthday of the Prince of Wales is celebrated with the usual solemnity (on Monday, but wrongly reported in the Gazette, of Jan. 28, as having been celebrated on Sunday, the 19th). The chief incidents are as follows: "At noon the principal Gentlemen of the City and Corporation met at the Fort to drink the Royal Healths while the Guns round the Fort were Firing; and at Night the Gentlemen and Ladies were entertained with a splendid Supper, Musick and Dancing, tho' his Excellency was the Saturday before in some pain lest he should not have been able to have given the Entertainment at the Fort, for that day . . . one of the Chimneys was perceived to have catch'd Fire, which breaking through the Roof of the House, the inside was in great Danger of taking Fire also, but by the timely Assistance, and great readiness that was shew'd by People of all Ranks, in a very acceptable manner, it was happily extinguish'd with little Damage. His Excellency returned thanks to the People that assisted, in a most obliging manner, and gave them plenty of Liquor to refresh themselves after their Fatigue, which they accepted very kindly, by drinking his Excellency's and good Family's Health and Happiness."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 28-Feb. 4, 1735.

"Looking-glasses new Silver'd, and the Frames plain Japan'd or Flower'd, also all Sorts of Pictures, made and Sold, all manner of painting Work done. Likewise Looking-glasses, and all sorts of painting Coulers and Oyl sold at reasonable Rates, by Gerardus Dvycckenck, at the Sign of the two Cupids, near the old Slip Market."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 20, 1735.

Joseph Johnson, a printer, is charged with counterfeiting ten-shilling bills of credit. He escapes, but his wife is imprisoned in the "Goal in the City-Hall," for passing the bills.—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 4-11, 1735. Johnson had previously advertised himself as a book-binder living on Duke Street, "commonly called Bayards street."—Ibid., Sept. 23-30, 1734. See also May 6, 1735; Aug. 3, 1744. The common council gives John Sebring leave "to pull down and demolish that part of his House and Wharfe which Stands upon the Ground of this Corporation at or near the fiery at Brookland," and to convert the materials to his own use.—M. C. C., IV: 245.

The common council appoints a committee "to lay out the High Roads from Spring Garden Gate to freshwater and from the Gate at the End of Queen Street to the freshwater to meet the Other Road at freshwater, as the same was laid out by Act of Assembly by William Anderson, Clement Elswert, and Pieter Van Oblicnis the 21th day of June 1707 that they Cause a Draught to be made thereof, that the Said Roads may be Exactly Ascertained and publicly known, which are to be of the breadth of four Rodds at the least."—M. C. C., IV: 245-46. On Sept. 16, 1735, it was ordered "that both the Surveyors of this City do Survey Stake out and lay out the Publick Commons and General Highway from the House of Mr Benjamin Peck in Queen Street to the Freshwater as the Same was laid out the 21th day of June 1707 by William Anderson," etc.—Ibid., IV: 273. The Spring Garden gate was at the corner of Ann St. and Broadway, and the road to Fresh Water starting thence was the present Park Row, which was the road to Boston. The gate at the end of Queen St. was apparently at about the intersection of the present Ferry St., where Queen (Pearl) St. then stopped. The "Other Road" running to Fresh Water was Pearl St. as far as the present Franklin Sq.; beyond that point it took the course of the present New Bowery to its intersection with Park Row at Chatham Sq. See Pls. 26, 27, 30, and 32-4, Vol. I, and compare with modern plans. For the report of the commissioners who planned the highways in accordance with the act of June 19, 1703 (q. v.), see June 16, 1707.

A shooting contest is advertised to be held on April 7, 8, 9, and 10, "at the sign of the Marlborough's Head in the Bowery Lane." The fee is five shillings for every shot, and the contestant making the best hit at 100 yards will receive a prize of a lot of land 37 ft. 6 in. in breadth on Sackett St., belonging to Robert Bennett.—N. Y. Jour., Mar. 3, 1735. Sackett Street was the present Cherry Street.—Post, Old Streets, 40.

Jan.

7

20

"

Feb.

4

26

"

Mar.

3

- 1735 Etienne (Stephen) de Lancy wills to his wife, Anne, for her lifetime, his mansion, in which he now lives, with the warehouse, stables, garden, and lot of ground opposite, situated on Broadway north of Trinity Church.—Abstract of Wills, III: 336. The mansion and grounds occupied the entire block between Broadway, Thames, Cedar, and Greenwich Sts. It was two storeys high, of gray stone, the roof being adorned with a cupola. In the rear the ground sloped to the Hudson River.—John Austen Stevens, in Harper's Mag., May, 1890. For the subsequent history of this property (at the present 115 Broadway), which became a noted tavern and hotel site, see April 15, 1754; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977.
- De Lancy, by this will, gives to his daughter, wife of Peter Warren, a bequest of £3,000. Among other bequests, he leaves to his son Stephen his "new house, messuage and tenement, war house and ground between the Custom House street and Whitehall street." This was on the south side of Pearl St., between Moore and Whitehall Sts. His son James, also named in the will, became, about 20 years later, lieutenant-governor of the province.—Wills, III: 337-38. His wife, Anne, whom he married on Jan. 19, 1700, was a daughter of Col. Stevanus van Cortlandt. On April 11, 1700 (q.v.), Col. Van Cortlandt gave them the lot at the corner of Broad and Pearl Sts. on which Fraunces Tavern now stands.
- 18 The master of the sloop "Ruby Paul Painter jun." bound for Curaçoa, notifies the public that, for freight or passage on his boat, arrangements may be made with him, "at the Sign of the Pine Apple on the New-Dock."—N. Y. Gaz., March 11-18, 1735. In 1744, and as late as 1749, Benjamin Kierstede was proprietor of the tavern at the "Sign of the Pineapple" (ibid., Dec. 17, 1744; Sept. 6, 1749), but he had removed to a site "behind the Workhouse" before March 22, 1756 (q.v.).
- 31 The committee for building "the Workhouse and House of Correction" (poorhouse or almshouse—see Nov. 15, 1734) reports to the common council that it has entered into two agreements, one with John Burger "for Building the Workhouse and taking Accounts of all the Materials to be used on the Stone and Brick Work," and the other with John Roomer "to perform all the Carpenters Work and take Charge of the Materials to be used thereon." Burger's estimate of his expected expenses comprises the following items:
- |  |            |
|--|------------|
| "For performing the above Work &c . . . . .  | £80-00-00  |
| "For Seventy Gallons of Rum for the use of all theMasons and Labourers . . . . . | 08-15-00   |
| "For Seventy pounds of Sugar . . . . .   | 01-05-00   |
| "For Small Beer . . . . .  | 02-10-00   |
|  | <hr/>      |
|  | 92-10-00   |
| "For Hire of Labourers . . . . .   | 10-00-00   |
|  | <hr/>      |
|  | 122-10-00" |
- Mr. Roomer's agreement calls for compensation of £80, with extra allowance "of fifty Gallons of Rum, the Corporation to be at the Charge of the Liquor at laying the Beams and Raising the Roof;" and he is "to build a shed for the Lime and securing the Workmens Tools." The committee's report is approved.—M. C. C., IV: 250-51. About Sept. 23, 1735 (q.v.), the building was completed. See March 3, 1736, regarding the commencement of its usefulness as an almshouse.
- "There is now Published a new Map of the Harbour of New-York, from a late Survey, containing the Soundings and setting of the Tydes, and the bearings of the most remarkable Places, with the Proper Places for Anchoring. To be sold by the Printer hereof" (Bradford).—N. Y. Gaz., March 24-31, 1735. This map is reproduced on Pl. 29, and described on p. 263, Vol. I.
- Apr. "John Lasher at the corner of Petticoat Lane, near the Fort," advertises to sell "very good Virginia tobacco."—N. Y. Jour., April 7, 1735. Lasher figured prominently in the city's affairs prior to the Revolution as constable, assessor, and collector; also as a trustee of the Presbyterian Church.—M. C. C., V: 28, 98; VII: 34; VIII: 2.
- 16 In the supreme court (presiding justice, James de Lancy, and second justice, Frederick Philippe), sitting at the city hall, James Alexander and William Smith, attorneys for Zenger, proprietor and publisher of the Journal, are disbarred for contempt in having denied the legality of the judges' commission.—A brief Narrative of the Case and Tryal of John Peter Zenger, 9. For facsimile of the order, signed by James Lyne, clerk, see Rutherford, John Peter Zenger (1904), 50. As explained in a published Apr. oews report, Alexander and Smith, "both Eminent Lawyers 16 and of considerable Practice," were "removed from the Bar, and discharged from Pleading hereafter in the Supreme Court of this Province." The reason assigned by the judges for their removal was that these lawyers had filed a bill of exceptions against the legality of the judges' commission, and this was inconsistent with their practicing before them.—Am. Weekly Jour., May 9, 1735. Alexander and Smith exposed the injustice of this act in a complaint to the general assembly. See Oct. 22. This was published by Zenger, in 1735, under the title The Complaint of James Alexander and William Smith to the Committee of the General Assembly of the Colony of New York, etc. The N. Y. Pub. Library possesses a copy of this rare imprint. "This remarkable order of disbarment well illustrates the intense and bitter partisanship which characterized the actions of the government party. It is the only instance in legal history of such an order being issued for such a reason."—Rutherford, John Peter Zenger, 51.
- Committees of the common council are required to employ May workmen to make repairs to "the Prison over the assembly Chamber, to the Roof of the City Hall, and Other places in the Said City Hall;" also to "the Common Sewer, running into the Mould or Dock of this City, the long Bridge and the Wharfs including the Said Mould or Dock," and to make report.—M. C. C., IV: 254.
- 6 Joseph Johnson, Jr., six years old, son of Joseph Johnson, a book-binder (lately a counterfeiter and fugitive from justice—see Feb. 4), is ordered by the court of general sessions "to be put out Apprentice by the Church Wardens to William Bradford of this City Printer until he attain the Age of one and twenty Years, the said William Bradford Covenantee to teach him the Art and Trade of a Printer; to Read Write and Cypher, and at the Expiration of the Term to give him one good New Suit of Apparell, both linnen and woollen from head to foot besides his usual apparell; and During the Term to find and provide for him sufficient Meat, Drink and apparell, Washing and Lodging."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 51.
- The grand jurors having represented to the court of general sessions "that the Digging of the Hill near the Windmill on the Common & Fresh Water and the Digging of the Street called William Street near the Horse and Cart [tavern], late the House of Jeremiah Heading and the Digging of the Street from the Slip, called Hardenbroecks Slip, Cross Queen Street, Running into the Swamp, lately Called Beekmans's Swamp are, in the Manner they now lye Publick Nusances," pray the court to take effectual means to remove them.—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 52. See Pl. 27, Vol. I.
- 26 Much information is gathered relative to the military strength of the French in Canada and elsewhere, from an examination of M. Jean Sylvestre and his wife, French deserters, fled from Canada and now in New York. A MS. copy of the testimony, signed by Geo. Banyon, clerk, was sold by Henkels, Phila., Oct. 22, 1919. It discloses particulars of an expedition sent by the French to Detroit, and places on the Ohio. These deserters are confined in their lodgings after being examined.—Cal. Coun. Min., 416.
- June Cosby recommends to the lords of trade that Thomas Freeman, who married one of his daughters, be appointed to a place in the council.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 32. Freeman evidently never served in this capacity, as his name is not found in the list of members of the council.—See Jour. Leg. Coun. for this period. Nor is any mention made of such appointment in the N. Y. Col. Docs.
- 25 Trinity vestry orders "that the Church Wardens . . . Inquire into the South Bounds of the Churches firm and that they Cause the Land to the Southward of the Lane which Leads to the Bowling Green to be Laid out into Lots and that they have power to Lease the Same upon Ground Rent for any Number not Exceeding One and Twenty Years."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- July The vestry of Trinity Church resolves "that the North and South Sides of the Church be Enlarged and made Conformable to the New Building at the East End of the Church."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See also description of Carwitham View (Pl. 31, Vol. I), which depicts Trinity Church as it was at that time.
- 3 Mayor Luring dies after a sickness of several weeks. The next day, Paul Richard was appointed by the governor to succeed him.—M. C. C., IV: 262; Cal. Coun. Min., 324. His nomination was renewed by the governor on Sept. 2, as the governour was about to depart for Albany, and this, with the nomination of other city officials, was placed before the common council on Sept. 29.—M. C. C., IV: 275-76. He was sworn in by the governour at the fort on Oct. 14, as were also Gerardus Stuyvesant, whom Richard had nominated as deputy mayor, and the other officials.—Ibid., IV: 279-80. Richard remained in office until Oct. 15, 1739.—Ibid., IV: 276, 347, 387, 444-45. For a brief account of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 406; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 258.

1735
July
3

8 At the first session of the common council in the mayoralty of Paul Richard, an ordinance is adopted requiring that the city charter and seal be placed in the keeping of "the Common Clerk" of the city, and directing the uses to which the seal may be put. The charter and seal being in the clerk's hands, the law provides that they shall not be deposited "in the hands or Custody of any Other Person or Persons whatsoever." The seal "Shall not be affixed or put to any Writing or Instrument whatsoever unless by Order of the Common Council in Common Council assembled or the Mayors Court of this City or of the Major part of the Members of the Common Council." This provision does not "Extend to Augment the fees of the Seal, or take any part of them from the Mayor Recorder or Clerk or Other Officer to whom they were heretofore usually paid;" nor shall it be construed "to Debar the Mayor of this City for the time being (as Mayor) to Affix the Seal of this Corporation to Letters of Attorney, Certificates or Affidavits or Other things as heretofore hath Usually been practised or Done."—M. C. C., IV: 262-64.

Mayor Richard, however, having taken possession of the seal in accordance with the regulation of July 24, 1686 (q. v.), but contrary to this new ordinance, a committee of the common council was appointed "to Advise with Counsel learned in the Law, what Methods are legally to be taken by this Corporation to Recover the Seal . . . out of the Custody of the present Mayor who detains the same Contrary to A Law of this Corporation; or what Other steps may properly be taken by this Corporation for Breaking the said seal now in the hands of the Said Mayor or declaring the same void, and for making A New seal for the use of this Corporation."—Ibid., IV: 264. On July 22, the committee reported the opinion of Joseph Murray, attorney-at-law, "that the Corporation had an Absolute and full power to lodge the said seal into the hands of any Person whatsoever, and have full power to Apply and dispose of the Said Corporation seal in such manner as they should Order or direct."—Ibid., IV: 265-66.

The mayor having consented to deliver the seal to the clerk, the common council orders "that A seal be forthwith made and delivered to M<sup>r</sup> Mayor; which Seal is to be Called the seal of the Office of Mayorality of the City of New York, that the Said Seal be Round something larger than [than] a Dollar, the City Arms to be Engraved thereon, and that the Motto be (City of New York Seal of Mayorality) and that M<sup>r</sup> Le Roux make the same with all Expedition."—Ibid., IV: 266. Payment of £59:3 was made to Charles le Roux, goldsmith, on Sept. 16, 1735, "for Plate and making the seal of the Mayorality of this Corporation."—Ibid., IV: 272. The original incriminated bill, preserved in the city clerk's record-room, shows Le Roux's charges: for "3 Oz 5<sup>d</sup> silver in one Seale for the offis of Mayorality," £1:9:3; and for "engraving the Seale," £4. It is reproduced on Pl. 31, Vol. IV. See also Pine, Seal and Flag of the City of N. Y., 54.

On Oct. 23, 1735, the supreme court of the province rendered a decision, in an action by the king against the corporation of New York City, that the "By-Law" relating to seals which was passed by the common council on July 8 was "unreasonable and against Law."—M. C. C., IV: 288-89, 303-4. The common council, therefore, repealed the ordinance, on Nov. 4, 1735 (ibid., IV: 290), and on the same day (q. v.) enacted a new one, providing for three distinct seals for use in municipal affairs.

16 The foundations for the new battery on Whitehall rocks are completed, and Governour Cosby, attended by his council and "the Principal Gentlemen and Merchants" of the city, lays the first stone of the platform and gives the fortification its name, "George Augustus's Royal Battery." Afterward, "an Elegant Entertainment" was prepared for the governour and his company in a "Booth erected on the Battery." After dinner "Royal Healths were drank." To the "workmen, Labourers and People" the governour gave an ox, roasted whole, "with several Barrels of Punch and Beer."—N. Y. Gaz., July 14-21, 1735. The day's festivities were marred, however, by the bursting of a defective cannon, which caused the death of the high sheriff and two other persons.—N. Y. Jour., July 21, 1735. This was the rebuilt Whitehall Battery on Copey Rocks.—See Oct. 20; see also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 946.

A teacher's advertisement reads: "This is to give Notice, that over against the Sign of the black Horse in Smith-street, near the old Dutch-Church, is carefully taught the French and Spanish Languages, after the best Method that is now practiced in Great-Britain which for the encouragement of those who intend to learn the same, is taught for 20s. per Quarter."—N. Y. Gaz., July 14-21, 1735. See also "The Teaching of French in Colonial New York," in Romanic Review, Oct.-Dec., 1919, pp. 364-76.

Obadiah Huot advertises for sale or rent "The Lotts and Houses [his tavern] next to the Custom House in New-York, wherein are 9 Fire Places, with a large Yard, a Stable, a Cestern, a Well, and a Pump, in the Kitchen, a large Crane to the Chimney, with Stones, Dressers, and several other Things, that may be left for the Use of a Tenant."—N. Y. Jour., Aug. 2, 1735. See, further, Jan. 13, 1736.

Zenger is finally tried for libel, in the supreme court at the city hall, Chief-Justice James de Lancey presiding, with Frederick Philipse, second justice. The attempt to select a jury unfavourable to the defendant is frustrated by the court's order that it be struck in the usual way, from the "Freeholder's Book." The attorney for the government offers no proof of Zenger's papers (see Nov. 5, 1733; Oct. 19, and Nov. 2 and 17, 1734) being false, malicious, and seditious, as charged, but insists that they are libels, even though true. The court concurs in this opinion; but the attorney for the defence, Andrew Hamilton, of Philadelphia, nearly 80 years of age, who was retained by Alexander and Smith (see April 16), and who is considered the most skillful advocate in the colonies, overwhelms his opponents by citing English precedents. He admits that his client has published the statements, as charged, but insists that they are true, and therefore not libellous, and offers to prove them. Despite the unfavourable charge of the chief-justice, the jury returns in about ten minutes with a verdict of "Not Guilty."—Brief Narrative of the Case and Tryal of John Peter Zenger (1736); N. Y. Jour., Aug. 18, 1735. For reproduction of page one of A Brief Narrative, etc. see Pl. 32, Vol. IV. See also Rutherford, John Peter Zenger (1904), Chap. III; and, for a summary of the court proceedings and Hamilton's address, see Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 452-61.

The jury's verdict was greeted by "three Hurra's of many Hundreds of People in the presence of the Court." "About Forty of the Citizens entertained Mr. Hamilton at the black Horse [Tavern—see Oct. 31, 1733] that Day at Dinner, to express their Acknowledg[ment] of his Generosity on this Occasion, and at his Departure next Day he was saluted with the great Guns of several Ships in the Harbour, as a public Testimony of the glorious Defence he made in the Cause of Liberty in this Province."—N. Y. Jour., Aug. 18, 1735. See Sept. 16.

Thus, freedom of speech and of the press were established in America. This trial also inaugurated in this country the acceptance of the principle that, in prosecution for libel, the jury shall be the judge of both the law and the facts. "The liberty of the press was secure from assault and the people became equipped with the most powerful weapon for successfully combating arbitrary power, the right of freely criticising the conduct of public men, more than fifty years before the celebrated trial of 'Junius' gave the same privilege to the people of England."—Rutherford, John Peter Zenger, 131. See also Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 199, 242; Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 209 et seq. For bibliography on Zenger's trial, see N. Y. State Library Bulletin, No. 56, pp. 365-68; and Rutherford, op. cit., 249.

Zenger publishes the following statement: "The printer now having got his liberty again, designs God willing, to Finish and Publish the Charter of the City of New-York next week."—N. Y. Jour., Aug. 11, 1735. See, further, Sept. 16.

A teacher of "Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic," as well as French and Spanish, advertises his school, which is "over against the sign of the Black Horse, in Smith street, near the old Dutch Church." His terms are 5s. per quarter for readers, 8s. for writers, and 12s. for copywriters.—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 11, 1735.

"Bedlows Island" is offered for sale by Adolph Philipse and Henry Lane.—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 4-11, 1735. See April 20, 1676.

- 1735 August the funeral of the Hon. Charles Fitzroy, only son of Lord Aug. Augustus Fitzroy (see Oct. 23, 1732), and son-in-law of Sir Peter 12 Warren, is probably typical of the more important funerals of the period. "His Corps was attended by the Gentlemen of the Council and Assembly, and the Corporation, the Merchants and Gentlemen of the Place. The Companies [of militia] Marched before with Revers'd Arms, and Minute Guns were fir'd during the performance of the Funeral Service."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 18-25, 1735.
- 14 The committee on the enlargement of Trinity Church (see July
 2) reports that the foundations on both sides are finished to the ground level. The vestry directs that the walls be raised six feet higher this autumn.—Trin. Min. (MS.). The enlargement was completed in 1737 (q. v.).
- 23 The governor and his family return from New Jersey.—N. Y.
Gaz., Aug. 25, 1735.
- 28 The lords of trade submit to Queen Caroline (described as "Guardian of the Kingdom of Great Britain & His Majesty's Lieutenant within the same") a statement of Cosby's charges of
 Dec. 6, 1734 (see that date in Addenda), against James Alexander (member of the councils of New York and New Jersey), Lewis Morris (late chief-justice of the province of New York and member of the council of New Jersey), and Rip van Dam (late commander-in-chief and president of the council at New York). They recommend the appointment of John Poor and Paul Richard to the council in place of Alexander and Van Dam.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 34-35. See also Nov. 26.
- Sept. Gov. Cosby, about to depart for Albany, renominates Paul Richard (see July 3) as mayor, and Capt. Wm. Cosby as sheriff.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 324. The nomination was recorded, as usual, on Sept. 29; and the mayor was sworn in, as usual, on Oct. 14.—
M. C. C., IV: 276, 279.
- " The governor embarks for Albany, to meet the representatives of the Six Nations of Indians, in order to renew "the Covenant Chain (as the Indians call the Treaty of Peace)." He is attended to the water side by "the Gentlemen of His Majesty's Council, the Corporation, and most of the principal merchants and gentlemen of the city, there being a greater concourse on the occasion than usual."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 25-Sept. 1, and Sept. 1-8, 1735.
- 16 Zenger delivers to the common council six copies of the city charter, "bound in Parchment Covers." He is paid £7 as agreed (see Oct. 14), and is permitted to dispose of the remaining copies
 "at such Price as he shall think Reasonable not Exceeding three shillings for each Copy."—M. C. C., IV: 270. See Feb. 9, 1736.
 For reproduction of title-page, see Pl. 32, Vol. IV. "This is the first printed edition of the Montgomerie Charter, and the handsomest specimen of printing from Zenger's press."—Church Catalogue, 920 (IV: 1892).
- " The common council orders that Andrew Hamilton, attorney for Zenger (see Aug. 4), be presented with the freedom of the city, and a committee is appointed to draft it.—M. C. C., IV: 273.
 On Sept. 29, the committee submitted the draft, which read as follows:
 "City of } SS. Paul Richard Esq<sup>r</sup> Mayor, the Recorder
 New York } SS. Aldermen and Assistants of the City of New York Convened in Common Council To all to whom these Presents Shall Come Send Greeting. Whereas Honour is the Just Reward of Virtue and Publick Benefits demand A Publick Acknowledgment We therefore under A Gratefull sense of the Remarkable service done to the Inhabitants of this City and County by Andrew Hamilton Esq<sup>r</sup> of Pensilvania Barrister at Law by his learned and Generous defence of the Rights of Mankind and the Liberty of the Press in the Case of John Peter Zenger lately tryed on an Information Exhibited in the Supream Court of this Colony, do by these presents bear to the Said Andrew Hamilton Esq<sup>r</sup> the Publick thanks of the Freedom of this Corporation for that signal service which he Cheerfully undertook under great Indisposition of body and Generously performing Refusing any fee or Reward.
 And in Testimony of our Great Esteem for his Person and sense of his Merit do hereby present him with the Freedom of this Corporation. These are therefore to Certifie and declare that the Said Andrew Hamilton Esq<sup>r</sup> is hereby Admitted Received and Allowed A Freeman and Citizen of the Said City To Have Hold Enjoy and Partake of all the Benefits Liberties Privileges Freedoms and Immunities whatsoever Granted or belonging to A Freeman and Citizen of the same City. In Testimony whereof the Common Council of the Said City in Common Council Assembled have Caused the Seal of the Said City to be hereunto Affixed this twenty Ninth day of September Annoq Domini One thousand seven hundred and thirty five.

"By Order of The Common Council

"Will Sharpas Clerk "

The committee further reported "that sundry of the Members of this Corporation and Gentlemen of this City have Voluntarily Contributed sufficient for A Gold Box of five Ounces and A half for Inclosing the seal of the Said Freedom. upon the Lid of which we are of Opinion Should be Engraved the Arms of the City of New York." The report was approved, and the board ordered that the freedom and box be made forthwith, and that City Clerk Sharpas "do affix the seal to the same Freedom and inclose in the said Box."

As Alderman Bayard, who was about to go to Philadelphia, offered "to be the Bearer of the Said Freedom to M<sup>r</sup> Hamilton," it was ordered that Mr. Sharpas deliver it to Mr. Bayard for that purpose, "and that Alderman Bayard do deliver it to M<sup>r</sup> Hamilton, with Assurances of the Great Esteem that this Corporation have for his Person and Merits."—Ibid., IV: 277-78.

On Oct. 15, the board ordered that the freedom, together with the report of the committee for preparing the draft of it, and the foregoing order of Sept. 29, be printed.—Ibid., IV: 283.

The gold box, oval in shape, measuring 3 by 2 inches, and  $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch deep, has, besides the arms of the city, the following inscription upon the cover: "Demerse Leges—Timefacta Libertas—Hec tandem Emerguat." Around the rim, on the outside, is: "Ita cuicque eveniat ut de Republica meruit;" and inside the lid, on a scroll: "Non Nummis—Virtute Poratur."

The original document, which is here reproduced (see Pl. 33), written in large Gothic text upon vellum (vide infra, Oct. 21), and the gold box accompanying it (Pl. 33), were owned in 1853 by a collateral descendant of Hamilton residing in England; namely, Septimus H. Palairret, of The Grange, near Bradford, Eng.—
Penn. Hist. Soc. Collections (Phila., 1853), I: 79.

The document and gold box are now (1922) owned by Miss Lena Cadwallader Evans, a direct descendant of Andrew Hamilton, and a resident of New York. Miss Evans traces the ownership of the box as follows: After Andrew Hamilton's death, it passed to his son, James Hamilton, the last lieutenant-governor of Pennsylvania, who, in turn, left it (by will proved Sept. 15, 1783) to his nephew, William Hamilton, the son of James's brother, Andrew Hamilton (II). It passed from William to his son, Andrew Hamilton (III); and then to this Andrew's son, Andrew Hamilton (IV), of Bath, England, who left it to his daughter, Mary Ann, wife of Septimus Palairret, Esq., of Bath; then to her son, Henry Hamilton Palairret, Esq., of Bath, from whom it was bought in 1913 by Miss Evans for $8,000, and brought to New York. See also in Wilson's Mem.
Hist. of N. Y., II: 209.

The common council orders that "the Public Commons and General Highway," from Peck's house in Queen St. to Fresh Water, be laid out.—M. C. C., IV: 273. See Feb. 26, 1735.

A committee appointed by the common council to consider a butchers' petition reports that it would be for the benefit of the corporation "to take the several Market Houses under their own care," to keep them in repair at the city's own expense, and to "Cause the several Stalls in the several Marketts to be Numbred and Marked and lett out by Lease to the Petitioners or such Other Person or Persons as shall agree to take the same at A reasonable and Annual Reserved Rent for the use of the Corporation." A committee is appointed to prepare a new law for regulating the public markets.—M. C. C., IV: 272-73. Such a law was passed by the common council on Nov. 4, 1735, amending and adding to the law of Nov. 18, 1731. It provided that, in order to make the markets more commodious and convenient, a standing committee of the common council should be appointed, who should be "Authorized to Enlarge, Alter, Repair and Support" the market-houses, at the city's expense, to apportion the size of stalls, rent them out, etc.—Ibid., IV: 291-95.

The workhouse is completed.—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 23, 1735; see also Nov. 15, 1734, regarding the building operations. It was the first public building erected within the limits of the present City Hall Park.—Man. Coun. Ann. (1865), 550; ibid. (1866), 601, where Grim's drawing of the building is reproduced.

The governor is invited by "most of the Principal Merchants, and other Gentlemen of this City, to a very splended Entertainment

1735 provided for him at Mr. Todd's" to congratulate him on his safe return from Albany, where he had gone to renew the treaty of peace with the Six Nations of Indians. Toasts to the royal family "were drunk (the music playing all the time) And his Excellency was also pleased to Drink Prosperity to Trade, and at the same time, in a very obliging manner, assured the Gentlemen there, That if they could think of any Methods to Promote and Encourage the Trade and Welfare of this Province, he would heartily contribute every Thing in his Power thereto. In the Evening the House was illuminated in a handsome manner."—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 6-13, 1735. The scene of Robert Todd stood on Broad St., next the Coffee House.—See May 28, 1733.

11 The anniversary of the coronation of the king and queen is celebrated. Zenger's news report of the event states that "the elected Magistrates with a considerable Number of Merchants and Gentlemen, not Dependent on ——— made a very handsome Entertainment in Honour of the Day, for Rip Van Dam, Esq. President of His Majesty's Council, Matthew Norris, Esq; Commander of his Majesty's Ship Tartar, and Capt. Compton Commander of his Majesty's Ship Seahorse, at the House of Mr John De Honneur in this City, at Noon the Company met and while the great Guns of his Majesty's Ship Tartar were firing, they Drank the following Healths, the King, the Queen, the Prince, Duke, and Royal Family, the Prince and Princess of Orange, the Glorious and immortal Memory of King William the third; Success to Coll. Morris, in his Undertakings, to a speedy Election of a new Assembly, Prosperity to the Corporation, my Lord Willough-ton Duke of Dorset, Sir John Norris and General Compton, and then the Company Din'd, in the Evening the City was Illuminated, the Afternoon and Evening were spent with all the Joy and Dancing suitable to the Occasion."—N. Y. Jour., Oct. 20, 1735. An historical note by Du Simitiere states that "the house where Van Dam's friends commonly met was Situated the South corner of Garden Street & Smith Street at the Sign of the Black horse kept by John D'honneur a new house has been lately built on that Spot belonging to Mr David Clarkson 1770."—From vol. lettered "Papers relating to N. England, N. York, etc." formerly belonging to Du Simitiere and now in Ridgway Branch of the Library Company of Philadelphia.

15 After repeated orders, on Nov. 15 and 21, 1734, and Aug. 7, 1735 (M. C. C., IV: 236, 238, 267), the common council gives a peremptory order to Christopher Bancker that, unless he "do Remove the Trespass and take Away the fence which he lately put upon the Lands of this Corporation near the fresh Water on the south side of the Run of Water lately leading to the East River" before November first, the marshals of the city will take it away.—Ibid., IV: 282-83. This seems to indicate that this outlet of the pond had been recently filled up.

" The common council orders that the mayor issue his warrant to pay "the sum of Nine pounds two shillings and A penny Current Money of this Colony" for 9,500 bricks for the workhouse.—M. C. C., IV: 284. From this it appears that bricks sold for about the same price then as they did just prior to the European War of 1914-8.

20 The commissioners appointed to erect a battery on Copey Rocks (see Nov. 28, 1734), which was begun on July 16 (q. v.), desire all persons having demands for supplying material or labour to submit their accounts, that they may be paid.—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 13-20, 1735. The commissioners, on Oct. 25, reported that they had expended £4,740:7:1, and that at least £875 more would be required.—Assemb. Jour., I: 684.

21 William Sharps, the town clerk, is paid £32:12:9 for "divers services," etc.—M. C. C., IV: 286. His itemized bill includes a charge for making "a fair Copy of the Charter for the Press; and a charge for "the Freedom of Andrew Hamilton Esq. Curiously Engrossed on Parchment with a Silk Lace for the Seal."—From the original bill, in city clerk's record-room. The charter was published by Zenger in February, 1736. See Feb. 9, 1736.

22 The petition of James Alexander and William Smith is read in the assembly, "praying this House to appoint them a short Day, that they may, in the most fair, public, and open Manner, lay their Complaint at large before this House." The petition is referred to the "Committee of Grievances," and it is ordered that each judge of the Supreme Court "be served with a Copy of the said Petition."—Assemb. Jour., I: 682. On Oct. 24, the committee reported that Smith and Alexander had appeared before it, and that "as the Matters complained of are against the Judges of the Supreme Court, for what they have acted in their judicial Capacity," the petitioners ought to serve the chief-justice with a copy of their complaint, and the judges should be given a fixed time in which to answer it. Accordingly, they were ordered to file their complaint with the judges within 20 days, and the judges were directed to answer within 40 days of their receipt of the complaint.—Ibid., I: 683. The "House of Mr. John De Honneur," where this committee said their meeting was held, was the Black Horse Tavern, in William St.—See Oct. 9, 1727. The Assemb. Jour. reveals no further action in the case. For the text of the Alexander and Smith complaint, see Rutherford, John Peter Zenger, 51-56.

A sale of land is advertised to be held on this day at "the Corner house below the Meal Market, which is over against the sign of St. George and the Dragon."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 4, 1735. The latter was a tavern which stood near the corner of Wall and Water Sts. According to Bayles (Old Taverns of N. Y., 130), the house was occupied in 1750 by Thomas Lepper, who hung out the sign of the "Duke of Cumberland." It is to be noted, however, that, as late as 1782, Joseph Montgomery advertised the sale of a "Good House in Great Dock Street at the sign of the St. George and Dragon."—Rivington's Royal Gaz., Apr. 24, 1782. References to the "Duke of Cumberland" generally described the house as "opposite the Merchant's Coffee House," while the Merchant's Coffee House, itself, was alluded to as the "Corner House near the Meal-market." From this it may be inferred that the house at which the sale was held was the later Merchant's Coffee House, which a short time prior to this date was known as the Jamaica Pilot Boat. See Jan. 18, 1736.

4 Capt. Van Horne presents to the assembly the petition of "a great Number of the Inhabitants of the City of New-York," setting forth "That as they conceive the long Continuance of the same Representatives in General Assembly is a great Grievance, and that the frequent Election of them is a most valuable Privilege," they "therefore flatter themselves, that this House will endeavour all they can to obtain a Dissolution of this present Assembly." The assembly orders "That notwithstanding the House, did of their own Motive, make Application for the Purpose above-mentioned, on Nov. 28, 1734 (without success), "the Members for the City and County of New-York, do carry to his Excellency a Copy of the said Petition, and at the same Time, acquaint him again, That it is the unanimous Desire of this House, that he will be pleased to dissolve this present Assembly after the several Acts passed, and to be passed at this present sitting, are published." Capt. Van Horne reported to the assembly on Nov. 6 that he had done as advised, and that Cosby answered, as he did the previous year: ". . . that as the adjourning, proroguing and dissolving of the Assembly, is the undoubted Prerogative of the Crown, and that as his Majesty has been pleased to intrust me with that Power, so I shall make use of it, as I find it for the Service of his Majesty, and the Benefit of the Province, which I do not yet apprehend it to be."—Assemb. Jour., I: 686.

" The common council, as a result of the controversy begun on July 8 (q. v.), enacts "A Law declaring to what uses the Seal of this Corporation, the Seal of the Mayor's Court and the Seal of the Mayorality of this City shall be put unto." The "Common Seal of this Corporation commonly Called the City Seal," which is in the keeping of "the Common Clerk of this Corporation," shall not be affixed to any writing or instrument except such grants, leases, freedoms, warrants, licenses, etc. "as shall Concern this Corporation in Point of Interest, or Otherwise" and only by order of the common council, or (in the case of freedoms) by order of the mayor's court.

The "small Seal," which is also in the keeping of the clerk, "commonly called the Seal of the Mayor's Court," is to be "put unto" all processes issuing from the mayor's court, and the court of general sessions of the peace; also on warrants and testimonials, and on licenses granted to carmen, alehouse-keepers, tavern-keepers or victuallers. It shall be used "to no Other Intents or purposes whatsoever."

The seal belonging to the corporation, which is in the keeping of the mayor, called "the Seal of Mayorality," may be affixed by the mayor, or by the mayor and "Court of Aldermen," to all writings or instruments, depositions, affidavits, exemplifications, testimonials, protests, etc., customarily certified under the public seal of any mayorality, for better attesting the truth of the things stated therein. This seal shall remain in the keeping of the

Oct.

22

Nov.

1

4

"

1735 mayor.—M. C. C., IV: 295. These remained the seals of the city until after the Revolution, when they were altered by the common council on March 16, 1784 (q. v.).

4 The market ordinance of Nov. 18, 1731 (q. v.), is re-enacted with the added provision that "the Country people and Others resorting to the said Marketts, may stand or Sit, in such part or Parts thereof, as are not from time to time, particularly appropriated and allotted to other Person or Persons, by Lease from the Corporation of this City. . . ." To make the markets "more commodious and convenient, for the Future, for the Reception and Accommodation, as well of the several Butchers, being Freemen of this City, as of all Other Persons," it is ordained that "a standing Committee shall be appointed by the Common Council," who shall be ("and are hereby") empowered "to Enlarge, Alter, Repair and Support from time to time, with necessary Reparations and Amendments," all the market-houses belonging to the city; and not only to order and direct such improvements, "at the Expence of this City, as they shall find Occasion," to order but also "Apportion the Size of, (and to mark and Number), the several Stalls therein; and to Contract for the Letting and Setting the Same . . . for such reasonable Rents, as They, in their Discretions, can agree for, to be reserved and made payable, by equal Proportions Every Month, in the Year, to the Chamberlain of this Corporation for the Use of the Same . . ."

Certain exceptions and restrictions are added: One butcher shall not have more than two stalls or standings in the same market. "Hucksters" are excluded from leasing the stalls or standings; and it is declared lawful for other "Country people and others . . . to take up and accommodate themselves with such Stalls, Standings and places, in any of the said Marketts, which shall remain unappropriated, as they shall first happen to get Possession of the Same, and there and thereon to Deposit their several Commodities, and to Remain and continue to Expose their Meat to Sale, by the Quarter, as They shall See convenient and all Other their Commodities to Vend, Sell and Dispose of, without Paying any Fee or Reward for the Same, in Order for the Encouragement of the more plentiful Supply of the said Marketts, and the Inhabitants of this City, with all Sorts of Provisions, at the most moderate and reasonable Rates and Prices. . ." Hereafter, the "Clerk of the Marketts," who formerly "received Certain Fees for all neat Cattle, Hogs, Shoats, Sheep, Calves, and Lambs, that were killed for the Market," shall not "Intermeddle with the Receipt of any Dutys, Fees or Profits, or take any money of any Butchers, or Other Persons, resorting to, or standing in any of the Common Marketts aforesaid."—M. C. C., IV: 293-94.

7 Elias Pipon asks permission of the assembly to sell one-half of his lands in the township of Harlem, amounting altogether to the great area of 633 acres or about one square mile.—Assemb. Jour. I: 687. See also ibid., I: 698. Pipon also owned Little Barn Island.—ibid., I: 701-6.

24 Gov. Cosby is ill, and the council meets in his bedroom. Rip van Dam is suspended from the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 325. Cosby died on March 10, 1736 (q. v.).

26 An order of the king in council declares Cosby's reasons insufficient for removing Chief-Justice Morris.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 36-37. See Aug. 23, 1733; and Aug. 28, 1735; see also the printed papers, dated 1735, in N. Y. Pub. Library, entitled The Case of Lewis Morris, Esq; Late Chief Justice of the Province of New York, who was Removed from the said Office by his Excellency William Cosby, Esq. Governor of the said Province.

1736

— In this year, A Chronological History of New-England in the Form of Annals was issued at Boston by Thomas Prince.—Church Catalogue, No. 925.

— An undated song or ballad, beginning "Ridentem dicere verum Quid vetat? . . . In antient Days a Bestial Train . . ." was published, probably this year, as a handbill (by Zenger?); in it, Francis Harrison and the assembly were ridiculed in an allegory representing an assemblage of beasts. There is one of these broadsides in the N. Y. Pub. Library. It is one of the "Parson Campbell" publications.—See N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin, II: 253. Harrison (or Harison) was at this time ex-recorder of the city (M. C. C., IV: 252, 255), and member of the council (N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 34).

— In this year, John Nagel built a stone dwelling on the west bank of the Harlem River at the present 213th St. Later, this became known as the "Century House."—Riker, Hist. of Harlem, 538. It was destroyed by fire in 1901.—See July 2, 1901.

A "consort" of vocal and instrumental music is advertised to take place on Jan. 21, "for the benefit of Mr. Pachebell, the harpsicord parts performed by himself. The songs, violins, and German flutes by private hands." It will begin "at 6 o'clock, in the house of Robert Todd, vintner. Tickets to be had at the Coffee-house, and at Mr. Todd's, at 4 shillings."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 6-13, 1736. A second concert was advertised for March 9.—N. Y. Jour., March 8, 1736. The Coffee-House stood at Broad and Water Sts. and Todd's was two doors north on Broad St.

Obadiah Hunt advertises his slaves and household goods for sale, having leased his tavern on Pearl or Custom House St. to William English.—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 6-13, 1736. English continued to occupy the tavern until his death, which occurred some time between Nov. 4, 1741 and Oct. 22, 1742 (M. C. C., V: 18, 19, 40, 67-68), at which time a vendue was held "at the house of the Widow English." On Nov. 13, 1742, another vendue was ordered to be held at the house of the "Widow English," which was then described as "Near the Meal Market" (ibid., V: 73), that is, near Wall St.

17 Archibald Kennedy writes to Cadwallader Colden: "We acknowledge the favour of yours by M<sup>r</sup> Gatehouse and have very little to add, of news, to the papers, M<sup>r</sup> Bradford . . . has blundered out, I really believe, a piece of truth in Relation to the Gov<sup>r</sup>. The one would think from appearances it was otherwise they seem cheerful about the Fort, and they all dance as usual, Mrs. Cosby excepted (Gov. Cosby being seriously ill) If M<sup>r</sup> Henderson writes as he told me He would you will know the truth if it is true that M<sup>r</sup> Clark has sent in His Acc<sup>t</sup> Viz<sup>t</sup> £600 for fite [feet] you may Guess at the rest It is certain the Ladys declare openly of the Side of the Black Horse [see Jan. 19] where there is to be a Grand Supper next Monday being the Princes Birthday according to M<sup>r</sup> Bradford Acc<sup>t</sup>, in opposition to which there is to be another at Todds on Tuesday [see Jan. 20] being the Princes Birthday according the English Acc<sup>t</sup>. They are happy that have the least to do on either side."—From the original letter, with Golden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

18 "Last Sunday Morning [Jan. 18] at break o' day a Fire broke out at the sign of the Jamaica Pilot-Boat, (the Corner-House by the Meal-Market), but timely help coming in, it was extinguished without spreading further."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 13-20, 1736. The proprietor of the Jamaica Pilot Boat was John Dunks (see June 19, 1728). Shortly after this fire, the house was advertised for sale, and, in 1738, was purchased by Daniel Bloom. Dunks evidently removed the sign of the Jamaica Pilot Boat to a house near Maiden Lane, and Pearl St.; for, on Feb. 1, 1742, the house and ground "in the Tenure of Mrs. Margaret Dunks at the Jamaica Pilot-Boat, near the Fly Market," were offered for sale.—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 1, 1742.

19 This day, "being His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales's Birth Day," is celebrated, as announced (see Jan. 17), "at the Black Horse Tavern—see Oct. 9, 1727] in a most elegant and genteel Manner. There was a most magnificent Appearance of Gentlemen and Ladies. The Ball began with French Dances, and then the Company proceeded to Country Dances, upon which M<sup>r</sup>s Norris led up two new Country Dances, made upon the Occasion; the first of which was called The Prince of Wales, and the second, The Princess of Saxe-Gotha, in Honour of the Day. There was a most sumptuous Entertainment afterward. At the Conclusion of which the Honourable Rip Van Dam Esq; President of His Majesty's Council began the Royal Healths, which were all drank in Bumpers. The whole was conducted with the utmost Decency Mirth and Cheerfulness."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 26, 1736.

20 An entertainment is given to rival that of the day before (q. v.). The "Royal Healths" are drunk at the fort, in celebration of the birthday of the Prince of Wales, but the usual proceedings are hindered by the illness of the governor (see Jan. 17). In the evening, however, there was a ball at "Mr Todds."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 20-Feb. 3, 1736.

The tavern of Robert Todd, on Broad St. between Pearl and Water Sts., was a popular one. During this and succeeding years, it was often used as a place of meeting for conference committees of the legislature.—Assemb. Jour., I: 693, 720 et seq. Todd died some time between Jan. 30, 1746, and Aug. 24, 1747, at which time the tavern was being run by the Widow Todd.—N. Y. Post-Boy,

Willelmus

[Faint, mostly illegible Latin text from the reverse page of the parchment, showing the start of a charter.]

Memorandum hominibus in hac parte...
 In nomine domini Amen
 Nos Johannes...
 In testimonium...
 Datum...

Willelmus
 Johes de...
[Signature]

[Faint Latin text at the bottom of the parchment, possibly a continuation or a note.]

FIRST AND PART OF LAST PAGE OF THE MONTGOMERIE CHARTER, FEB. 11, 1173. SEE P. 59.

1736 Aug. 24, 1747. The house was taken over by Andrew Ramsey prior to Dec. 18, 1749.—Ibid., Dec. 18, 1749. See Oct. 3, 1748.

23 Secretary Poppel, acting for the lords of trade, gives instructions to Cosby regarding the governor's duties respecting the council, the council's jurisdiction in the government of the province, etc.
 —N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 40-42.

24 A newspaper advertisement states that the new theatre in Dock St. will be opened on Feb. 12. The play is to be "The Re-cruciating Officer."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 24, 1736. Dock St. was the present Pearl St., between Whitehall and Hanover Sq.

28 A letter from London, dated Nov. 28, 1735, is received in New York stating that on Nov. 27 a committee of the privy council gave the opinion that the reasons presented by the governor of New York Province for removing Col. Lewis Morris were not sufficient.—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 20-Feb. 3, 1736.

Feb. The lords of trade, in a representation to the king, report at 6 Whitehall, after obtaining the opinion of the king's attorney and solicitor-general that the governors of the plantations "ought not in any case whatsoever to sit & vote as Members of the Council in their respective Governments."

The British legal opinion on which this advice was based, signed by J. Willes and D. Ryder, and dated Jan. 15, 1736, is particularly interesting as introducing into the language of government in New York Province, and perhaps also into that of the other American provinces of Great Britain, the word "Legislature." While not a new word in our language, to signify "the power that makes laws," or "a body of persons invested with the power of making the laws of a country or state" (see Murray's New English Dict., 1908, the year "Legislature"), a careful page-by-page search, covering the years prior to 1736, inclusive, in the Jour. Leg. Coun., Assemb.
Jour., Col. Laws N. Y., Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., N. Y. Col. Docs., Exec. Coun. Min., and M. C. C., where we would expect to find it if used at all, fails to disclose its use heretofore in these contemporary official records of this province. All references to the law-making body of this province are to the "assembly" or "general assembly," and to the "council."—See, further, Oct. 19.

The opinion of the king's attorney and solicitor-general is a clear, though brief, definition of the various divisions of government in the American provinces, thus:

"The Government of His Maty's Plantations in America consists of a Gov<sup>t</sup> Council and Assembly—These three have the Power of making Laws vested in them and the Governor has a Negative upon every Act passed by the Council and Assembly. The Council sits in two capacities viz as one part of the Legislature, and as a Council to advise & assist the Governor in all political cases. And the Governors are restrain'd by their Instructions not to act without the advice and consent of the Majority of them, in many cases.
 On the Death or absence of a Governor. The President of the Council, if there be no Lieutenant Governor upon the Place, always acts as Governor, till a new Governor is appointed by His Majesty."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 40-41.

9 Zenger advertises his printing of the Montgomery Charter, thus:
 "Lately published The Charter of The City of New York. Containing 13 Sheets, price 3s. Sold by the Printer hereof."—N. Y.
Jour., Feb. 9, 1736. See Sept. 16, 1735.

23 A correspondent writes: "Passing the other Day down the Broad Way, I saw a Coach, upon which being a particular Coat of Arms, Crest and Motto, my Curiosity led me to enquire its Owner, which I found to be Coll. Morris, now in England."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 23, 1736. Col. Lewis Morris, here referred to, wrote to his daughter in England, Aug. 26, 1743, that he had received by a late vessel "the body of the chaes [chaise] and the things sent for, except the trusses, all safe and in good order."—Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y. (1890), 12.

Mar. Ebenezer Grant advertises to sell "very good corks" (prob-
 1 ably a typographical error for "cocks") at "the Sign of the Dog's Head in the Porridge Pot."—N. Y. Jour., March 1, 1736. Cock-fighting was a favourite pastime in early New York. This sign
 "had little to recommend it, save to the scum of society, emblem as it was from early time of slovenly housewifery and mean accommodation."—John Austin Stevens, "Old New York Taverns," in Harper's Mag., May, 1890.

3 Plans are perfected for the operation of the almshouse. A committee of the common council is appointed "to Enquire upon what Terms this Corporation may hire an able and sufficient Person to be keeper of the House of Correction and Overseer of the Workhouse and Poorhouse." His duties shall be "to sett the Poor to work, and to correct the contumacious," and other persons committed to the house of correction. The committee is also to consider what furniture, utensils, and stock will be needed for these institutions; and "what manufactures will be most convenient to Employ the Poor upon: Such as carding, Knitting, Spinning, Dressing Hemp or Flax; Picking oakum or other Labour; that such Poor as are able to work, may not Eat the Bread of Sloth & Idleness, and be a Burthen to the Publick."—M. C. C., IV: 305.

This order and the report of the committee, on March 31, 1736, give a clear indication of the modus operandi of the first almshouse of New York City. On the latter date, the committee informed the common council that, "pursuant to public printed Notice and Advertisements" (see N. Y. Gaz., March 6, 1736), several persons had applied for the position of keeper, and that they had selected John Sebring and his wife.

The committee made several important recommendations: 1.
 That certain specified furniture and utensils should be provided, including four spinning wheels, one or two large wheels for spinning wool or cotton, some shoemaker's tools, and leather for making shoes, two pairs of woolen cards, knitting needles, flax, wool, cotton, etc.;

2. That the keeper "be sworn truly diligently and honestly to Execute the Office," and "do Justice and shew Humanity to the poor who are not able to labour, & Correct the Incorrigible and such Others as shall be committed to the House of Correction;"

3. That the church-wardens of the city be appointed overseers of the poor, and "have the Direction and providing of necessary supplies of Provisions for the said Workhouse and poorhouse out of the Fund for the Maintenance of the Minister and poor;"

4. That the "Master" of the house of correction, workhouse, and poorhouse shall set at work "all such poor as shall be . . .
 able to labour; . . . all disorderly persons, parents of Bastard Children, Beggars, Servants running away or otherwise misbehaving themselves, Trespassers, Rogues, Vagabonds," etc.; and that the keeper shall correct persons who refuse to work "by moderate Whipping;"

5. That he shall "yield a true Account to Every General Quarter Sessions of the peace to be held for this City and County of all persons committed to his custody, and of the offences for which they were committed;"

6. That it be recommended to the justices to commit to the house of correction "all such sturdy Beggars as go wandering and begging about the Streets and asking Alms, according to divers Statutes in such Case made and provided there to be put to hard labour;"

7. That parish children, sent to the poorhouse for maintenance by the church-wardens and overseers of the poor, be taken by the "Master thereof" and be "religiously educated and taught to read write and cast account; and employed in spinning of wool, Thread, Knitting, Sewing or Other Labour most suitable to their Geniuses in order to qualify them to be put out apprentices and to serve for their future livelyhood;"

8. That "Fetters, Gives, Shackles, and a convenient place or whipping post be provided for the said House of Correction for punishing the incorrigible and disorderly persons . . . ;"

9. That "a large Garden be forthwith fenced, plowed up and made round the said House for the raising of all kind of Roots Herbs &c: for the use of the poor in the said House; and the Overplus not expended therein: to be disposed of by the Keeper, and the profits accruing thereby to be by him paid to the Church Wardens of the said City . . . towards the better Relief and Maintenance of the Poor of this City;"

10. That "the Inhabitants of this City have free Liberty and Licence to send to the said House all unruly and ungovernable Servants and Slaves there to be kept at hard labour, and punished according to the Directions of any one Justice with the Consent of the Master or Mistress of such Servant or Slave; That the Master or Mistress . . . shall pay unto the Master of the said House for Entrance one shilling, for whipping or other punishment one shilling and six pence, and for discharging such servant or Slave one shilling, all of which perquisites shall be applied to the Use and Benefit of the keeper of the said House."

The common council approved the report and ordered that the committee provide utensils, etc.; and "cause the Garden therein mentioned to be fenced, ploughed &c made."—Ibid., IV: 307-11.

Mar.
 3

- 1736 The development of the almshouse system, prior to the Mar. Revolution, is indicated in the following digest of orders selected from the Minutes of the Common Council:
- 3 The building committee was directed on April 15, 1736, to "imply Workmen and provide Materials for Building a Kitchen, Oven and Washhouse to the said Workhouse."—Ibid., IV: 319.
- Sebring, the keeper, was paid on May 5, 1736, "for Digging the Garden of the Said Poorhouse, Garden Seeds, &c."—Ibid., IV: 324.
- It was ordered on May 15, 1739, that an additional building be erected for a hospital for contagious diseases.—Ibid., IV: 459.
- Directions were given on April 10, 1740, to "have the fence Up between the Garden of the poorhouse and the Ground of John Harris."—Ibid., IV: 483. This was removed in 1746.—Ibid., V: 176, 187-88.
- A committee was appointed on April 15, 1746, to have the poorhouse enlarged (Ibid., V: 171); on March 6, 1752, to have a bell-tower erected thereon (Ibid., V: 359); and on March 19, 1757, to fence in a piece of ground for a burial-place next to the fence on the east side of the almshouse (Ibid., VI: 85).
- In 1766-7, an addition to the building was built (Ibid., VII: 21, 29, 43, 49, 76), and in 1769 another (Ibid., VII: 173, 185, 195, 196, 197).
- Regarding the exact location of the first almshouse, see June 22, 1774. With the building of the new one in 1766-7, the old building was demolished by order of the common council of June 19, 1797 (q. v.). See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 373.
- " In addition to subscriptions collected for repairing the Meat Market, the common council orders payment by the city of £3:6:2 to Joseph Reade for this object.—M. C. C., IV: 305. This was the market-house at the east end of Wall St.—See Oct. 4, 1709.
- 9 A "Consort of Music" is advertised to be held on this date "for the Benefit of Mr. Pachelbel. The Harpsicord Part performed by himself." Tickets for the concert may be procured "at the Coffee-house, at the Black Horse and at Mr. Todd's."—N. Y. Jour., March 8, 1736. The Coffee House was on Broad and Water Sts. (see Jan. 27, 1702), the Black Horse was on William St. south of Exchange Pl. (see Oct. 9, 1727), and Todd's was next the Coffee House, on Water St. (see May 28, 1733).
- 10 Gov. Cosby's death occurs, after an illness of almost 16 weeks. His body was buried on March 13 in the king's chapel in the fort.—N. Y. Gaz., March 6-15, 1736. In Dec., 1735, the governor had been "dangerously ill of a violent Pleurisie, and a Fever that followed," and on Jan. 13 was said to be "troubled with a Cough," and was thought to be "Consumptive."—Ibid., Dec. 15-23; Jan. 6-13, 1736. See April 29.
- " Immediately after Cosby's death, George Clarke is elected president of the council, James Alexander not voting (see March 31). Clarke is sworn in and takes the chair. It is ordered that a proclamation be issued giving notice of the governor's death, and confirming all officers in their places. The seal, Cosby's commission, etc., as well as the seal of New Jersey, are delivered to President Clarke.—Cal. Coun. Min., 325.
- One of the above-mentioned proclamations, printed by Bradford, is preserved in the collection of the N. Y. Pub. Library. Clarke issues it as president of the council and commander-in-chief of the province, and in it states that, by reason of the suspension of Rip van Dam from the council by Cosby's order on Nov. 24, 1735 (q. v.), the administration of the government has devolved upon him. He therefore commands that all civil and military officers shall continue to exercise their offices until the king's pleasure is known. Rip van Dam, who had been previously suspended from the council by Cosby (see Nov. 24, 1735), demands the commission, instructions, an seal, first of Mrs. Cosby and then of Clarke, with a view—so it is charged—to suing for the profits of the government in case he be restored. Clarke reported to the lords of trade, on March 16, that an insurrection was threatened; but that, in spite of "all their noise and threats," he was "peaceably possessed of the administration of the Government," and had "reason to hope that by a mild and prudent conduct" he would "reclaim the people to their due obedience."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 42-50. The struggle between Clarke and Van Dam continued until October, when a civil war was barely averted.—See April 26, June 18, Sept. 1, Sept. 18, Sept. 20, Sept. 29.
- 13 James Alexander, one of the council, is served with a protest by Rip van Dam against all persons who have aided George Clarke in taking upon himself, or in keeping, the administration of the government. On March 24, Alexander issued a printed bulletin denying that he had ever advised or consented to Clarke's assuming charge of the government.—From original broadside, of March 24, in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- A letter, signed "Philo Patria," is published by Zenger, making 15 the following reference to the deceased governor (Cosby): ". . . as a true Lover of this Province, I can't help wishing, That the Measures of his Administration may rather serve as Beacons of Danger and to be avoided, than as Examples to a future Tyrant; in this very much depends the Quieting of the Minds of a People long distressed with arbitrary Power."—N. Y. Jour., March 15, 1736. Referring to this, doubtless, President Clarke wrote to the Duke of Newcastle on July 26: "Zenger has lately published a vile paper highly reflecting on the Memory of Governor Cosby . . ." Clarke adds a possible explanation of its publication.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 72. Cf. the writings of "Philo Patriae," under Oct. 23, 1752.
- "From Cosby's time to the end of the colonial period, the language of the New York Assembly, in reply to the Governor's messages and orders, becomes more and more defiant, though usually the boldest defiance is accompanied by a protestation of loyalty to the Crown." For illustrations of this, see "Some English Governors of New York and Their Part in the Development of the Colony," by Frank H. Severance, in the N. Y. State Hist. Assn. Proceedings (1909), XVII: 137 et seq.
- The president, council, speaker, and some of the members of 18 the assembly, of New Jersey petition the king for a separate governor, on the death of Cosby (see March 10). The grand jury of that state sent a similar petition the next day.—From original broadsides in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- " Geo. Clarke, president of the council and commander-in-chief of the province, issues a proclamation, printed by Bradford, extending the adjournment of the general assembly to the last Tuesday in April.—From original broadside, in N. Y. Pub. Library. Regarding the legality of such adjournments, see April 26.
- 28 James Alexander causes a notice to be posted at the market and other public places, denying that he in any way aided or encouraged George Clarke to take upon himself the administration of the government. The notice is also published in the N. Y. Gaz., March 22-28, 1736. See March 10 and 31, April 26, and Sept. 29.
- " Bradford, signing himself "A Friend and Well-Wisher To all Men," defends himself at length, in the pages of his newspaper, against the charges of falsehood contained in Zenger's Journal. He declares he is neutral in the Cosby controversy which has been going on for two years, adding: ". . . yet as I am and have been above forty years last past a Servant to the Government (and consequently to the several Governors during that Time) so I have according to my duty, some times printed in my Gazette some observations which the late Governor's Friends, thought proper to make upon what the other Party printed against him, and for my so doing Mr. Zenger, or some of the Party, have been angry with me, as I may suppose, (for I know not of any thing else that I have done by which they could be offended with me, they having formerly been my very good Friends) they have from time to time, Reflected upon me and against my Gazette, insinuating that what I published was not true." He continues thus, in a manly, honest, fashion, to state his case, and explain his position and its relation to the events of the period, stating in closing that he intends to "be obedient to the King, and to all that are put in Authority under him."—N. Y. Gaz., March 28, 1736.
- 31 The freeholders and freemen of the city complain in a petition to the common council "of the Multiplicity of Gaming Houses within this City, and the evil consequences attending the same by Debauching the Youth and Others." Some of these consequences are thus enumerated: "our Youth are thereby greatly corrupted in their Morals render'd disobedient, unruly and Insolent, tempted to keep unseasonable Hours; to use unlawful Methods for maintaining their unreasonable & Extravagant Expenses, sometimes attended with Quarreling and fighting, and after unfit as well as unwilling to perform those Services, as are required of them, and we find that neither Council nor Correction are likely to have its desired Effect, while the Spring and fountain of these Disorders are tolerated and Allowed." The petitioners therefore request that the common council use its "Authority, Interest and Endeavours to suppress those Gaming Houses, especially all Bilyiard, Truck

1736 Tables and Cards &c: to which are owing the Impoverishment
 Mar. of Ruin of many in this place, who having contracted a habit 31 of Gaming in their Youth, have not been able to Leave it till Reduced to meer Beggery." A committee was appointed to act accordingly.—M. C. C., IV: 311-12.

" A certificate reviewing the distinguished career of James Alexander, and stating that he is "a true friend to the late glorious Revolution, and the protestant Succession in the Illustrious House of Hanover, and well affected to his present Majesty's Person and Government," is signed and sealed by the common council.—M. C. C., IV: 312-14. In the municipal election of September, 1734 (q. v.), the candidates of the popular party, under the leadership of James Alexander and William Smith, had been elected as city magistrates and common councilmen. According to Cosby's report to the lords of trade (N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 23), this was the action of a "misled populace." This opinion, probably, was what led to the above-mentioned certificate. See also Political Sci. Quar., Dec., 1924, p. 592, regarding this point of view.

" The common council asserts the right of Andrew Law, as lessee of the dock and slips of the city, to make a charge for vessels lying at the slip "from the Southernmost End of Wall Street to the End of Burnetts Key," inasmuch as this is comprehended in his lease, and he has the right to demand rates in accordance with an ordinance "for regulating the Lying of Vessels in the Dock and Slips."—M. C. C., IV: 314. See also ibid., IV: 409-10.

" Elizabeth Jourdain, the tavern-keeper, a poor widow (see Sept.
 26, 1717), is granted a free license to sell strong liquor by retail in the city.—M. C. C., IV: 314. She received the licence free in March, 1737.—ibid., IV: 365.

Apr. A prolonged controversy arises as to whether the corporation 9 or the mayor is entitled to the revenues from liquor licenses. At a meeting of the common council on March 31, "it was proposed and Insisted on, that the whole Monies arising from Lycences to Retailers of strong Liquors, for Lycence and Liberty to Retail or sell by the small Measure should be applied to such Uses and disposed of in such manner as this Court should from time to time order and direct." After debate, involving a study of the charter, it was resolved "by all the Members then present, except the Mayor (Paul Richard) and Recorder (Daniel Horsmanden), that the moneys arising from Lycences aforesaid, could not be disposed of but by Order and Authority of this Court; and that no Member or Members Officer or Officers of this Court, or any other person whatsoever had or have any Right or Shadow of Right or Title to any part of the said Monies without the Order and Direction of this Court." At the present meeting, on April 9, a minute is placed in the record that, "Notwithstanding which solemn Resolution and Declaration of this Court made and given after mature deliberation and serious Consideration as aforesaid, we the Members now present, or most of us, being [are] informed, that the present Mayor, contrary to the practice of his predecessors and the Resolution and Declaration aforesaid, and in high Contempt and Disregard of this Court, and his Duty, detains and in his hands keeps sundry and divers Sums of money by him received for Lycences aforesaid." The mayor had been asked if the report was true, and if true whether he would pay such money into the hands of the chamberlain. He replied that it was true, and that he had resolved to retain the money. The common council now enters a protest in the record, and resolves to take measures, "when in their power," to compel the mayor to deliver to the chamberlain such sums as "he now doth or hereafter shall unjustly, illegally and violently detain contrary to the order and Resolution of this Court, and all Damages, Interests Costs and Charges, which this Corporation are Intitled to or may suffer or sustain for or by reason of the premises."
 —M. C. C., IV: 317-18. The same declaration of corporate right was made on Apr. 13, 1744 (ibid., V: 116), and Feb. 12, 1751 (ibid., V: 323), in the case of Richard's successor, Mayor John Cruger, the elder. Regarding the later cases of Mayor Holland, and Mayor John Cruger, the younger, see April 18, 1749; Oct. 26, 1759.

15 The committee for building the almshouse is required by the common council to "employ Workmen and provide Materials for Building a Kitchin, Oven and Washhouse to the said Workhouse."
 —M. C. C., IV: 319. See March 3.

" The same committee is ordered also to "cause a convenient House to be made, contiguous to the Watchhouse in the Broad Street, for securing and well keeping the Fire engines of this City."—ibid. On July 22, the carpenter's work done on "the Shed for securing the Fire Engines" was paid for.—ibid., IV: 332. Apr.

 See also the Grim map, Plate 32, Vol. I. 15

Several grants of water lots, made with certain conditions in 1736 and 1737, serve to illustrate the method employed by the city in filling up the water front, and extending the streets and wharves outward, around the lower part of Manhattan Island.

One of these begins with a petition made by Philip Schuyler, Jr., to the common council, on April 15, stating that he owns
 "all those sundry Messuages and Tenements, . . . on the East Side of . . . Countess Key Slip and fronting the East River
 . . . with the Lotts thereunto belonging lying between the said Slip, and Fletcher Street," covering about 80 feet of the river front. He desires to purchase 200 feet of land, "to be gained out of the said East River" (water lots), fronting his land. This is allowed, and a committee is appointed to have the land surveyed, and the terms drawn up.—M. C. C., IV: 319-20. The committee's report, on June 3, states that a survey of the water lots has been made;
 that the breadth is 84 ft. 4 1/2 in., and will be 76 ft. 3 in. in breadth
 "when wharf'd out and made to the Extent of two hundred foot to be gained out of the said East River upon a Range with Burnetts Key." A plan of the locality is made part of the report. The committee recommends that the grant be made at an annual rental of £60:6:3, with the proviso that Schuyler will make a street 45 feet wide "to Range Equal with both sides of Burnetts Street," and complete it on or before March 25, 1746; also that, "at the Outward part of the Said two hundred foot of Ground to be gained out of the said East River and Harbour," he will by the same time
 "make and Erect Another good and sufficient Street or Wharf," 40 feet wide; also that he will make "the Equal half of the Street or Wharf leading from Fletchers Street aforesaid to the Extent of the Said two hundred foot to be gained out of the said East River;" also that he will make "A good and sufficient Wharf Street or Peer" of 18 feet 4 inches in breadth along "Maiden Lane Slip to the Extent of the Said two hundred foot to be gained out of the said East River or Harbour, and that the Profits Arising for or by the use of the said Wharf Street or Peer and the Slip be Received by this Corporation for the use of this Corporation;" also that he will build a "pair of Stairs at the Extent of the Peer or Wharf leading from Maiden Lane," to be maintained by him, his heirs and assigns, for the use of the boats, etc., of the ferry-man. The report proposes to give to Schuyler "the Water and soil under the Water aforesaid fronting the Messuages and Tenements aforesaid," and all the profits "from the Outward Wharf which is to front the East River or Harbour with all Cranes Stairs and Landing places" (except the stairs above-mentioned) "to be made thereon by the said Petitioner his Heirs and Assigns." It is ordered that the corporation grant the water lots accordingly.—M. C. C., IV: 327-29. This grant was executed July 22.—ibid., IV: 331; Liber Deeds, B: 281.
 Water Street received its christening in this grant.—See July 22, 1736. Its history, however, began much earlier.—See June 16, 1696.

A printed letter, signed in MS. by Rip van Dam, and intended 26 for the individual members of the general assembly, recites the fact of Cosby's death and Van Dam's claim to the administration, and maintains that the adjournment of the assembly by Clarke was illegal; it warns the members that the authority of Clarke is not good; and maintains that, since the assembly has no existence unless Clarke's authority is good, any examination by it of the right of Clarke or Van Dam does of itself decide against the latter.—
 From original broadside, in N. Y. Pub. Library; see also, Bulletin,
N. Y. P. L., II: 254. See also Copy of a letter from Rip van Dam, Esq.; to the several Members of that General Assembly of New York, that stood adjourned to the last Tuesday of March, 1736, in Bradford's Votes of the General Assembly, 1722-1738 (N. Y. Pub.
 Library). On April 29, 15 members of the Assembly met at the city hall and drew up a declaration stating that, "whereas it was notorious at the Time that the Honorable George Clarke, Esq., took upon him the Administration of this Government, that the said Rip van Dam had a Claim of Right to take the same upon him, and yet it appears not that the Council of this Province gave him any Opportunity to be heard, . . . and we are not so fond of our Seats in the General Assembly of this Province, as to desire to retain them at the Hazard of our lives, the Risque of our Estates, and the Ruin of our Families . . . we will not act as Members of the Legislature."—Bradford, Votes of the General Assembly.

A corner house in Maiden Lane, "now in the Teature of Mr.

1736 Willet," is offered for sale or to let by Rip van Dam. He also offers, May Apr. among other properties, "The Cellar Kitchin, at present the Poor 26 House, kept by Mrs. Burger" (see July 5, 1735).—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 26, 1736. John Burger had contracted, on March 31, 1735 (q. v.), to be responsible for the stone and brick work in constructing the new poorhouse.

29 The household furniture of the late Gov. Cosby (see March 10) was advertised to be sold at public vendue on this day.—N. Y. Gaz.,
Apr. 15-19, 1736.

May Another grant of water lots is made, with conditions similar 5 to those in Schuyler's grant.—See April 15. Abraham de Peyster and others petition the common council for a grant in fee simple of 200 feet of land to be gained out of East River fronting their property, "whereon to make further Improvements for the better Convenience of Trade and Navigation and Enlargement of this City in its buildings." The petition shows the location of their land to be in the East Ward, on the east side of Fletcher Street (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1000), fronting the river, with lots between Fletcher Street and Rodman's Slip or Van Clyffe's Slip.
The petition is granted.—M. C. C., IV: 323. The new lots to be thus formed, nine in number, are described in the grant, which is entered in full in the Minutes (June 11, 1737), with the report of the committee appointed to survey the ground. The petitioners covenant to make at their own expense a street 45 feet wide, "to Range Equal with both sides of Water Street," on or before March 25, 1746. At the outward part of the 200 feet of ground to be gained from the river, they are required to make at their own expense a street 40 feet wide, by the same date. They are also to extend Fletcher Street to the extent of the 200 feet thus gained from the river, and to maintain all of these streets and the wharves erected or to be erected there.—Ibid., IV: 373-76.

Van Clyffe's Slip is alternatively called Rodman's Slip (M. C. C., IV: 323). Sometimes, during both earlier and later periods, it was also referred to as Lyon's Slip (see 1730); it was the present Burling Slip, now filled up and forming the termination of John St. See also Aug. 9, 1692; March 2, 1744.

7 On motion of the "Clerk of the peace," Samuel Dally, convicted of "stealing from his Master William Bradford sundry Books of the value of Tenpence," is sentenced by the court of general sessions to be "carried from hence to the Public Whipping post of this City," and "there to be stripped from the middle upwards; and there he whipped seven Lashes by the Publick Whipper, and then be discharged from his Imprisonment paying his Fees."— Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 62-63, 64-65. This was the usual method of punishment at this period, as appears by many records of this court. On May 4, 1774, one Mary Callachan was indicted for stealing two iron pots, valued at tenpence, from the store-house of William Bradford, and was sentenced to receive "Twenty Lashes on the Bare Back at the Publick Whipping Post," the next day; but out of regard for her having two small children,
"and being now with Child," the court remitted the punishment, and ordered her discharge on payment of the fees.—Ibid., 164, 167.

10 The inventory of the estate of the late Richard van Dam, whose will was proved April 14, 1736, bears this date, and shows, among other items, "1 Prospect of Ye City of New York." This evidently refers to the Burgis View. The original MS. inventory was offered for sale by a New York dealer in Nov., 1917.

24 "Taken out of the House of Mr. Edward Fastham [Eastham] who keeps the Fighting Cocks-Inn, in New-York, a Silver Quartz Tankard, marked on the Handle, R<sup>s</sup> engraven, the Silversmiths Mark is 'W<sup>a</sup>k punch'd, and a Cypher on the Lid of ES . . ."
—N. Y. Jour., May 24, 1736. The tavern with the sign of the "Fighting Cocks" stood at the present No. 28 Water St. It had existed since Aug. 4, 1714 (q. v.), and probably earlier. Here committees of the common council met, and exhibitions were held at various times of such curiosities as "a Fire-Engine that will deliver two Hogsheds of Water in a Minute," a "curious portable Microscope," etc.—N. Y. Gaz., May 9, 1737; N. Y. Jour., Sept.
18, 1738. Eastham was still proprietor on Aug. 15, 1737, when he offered a reward for the return of a silver watch, "rather larger than middling, Rigimardan at Dublin the Maker."—Ibid., Aug.
15, 1737. On Dec. 17, 1739, John Croker, evidently the landlord of the inn, announced that someone had taken his "light coloured Cloth great Coat" in the "Room of another."—Ibid., Dec. 17, 1739. James Napier was landlord in 1746, when Philip van Cortlandt, who owned both the Fighting Cocks and the Coffee House next door, will the property to his son John.—See Aug. 1, 1746. May On Oct. 30, 1762, Philip van Cortlandt, to whom the property 24 had been conveyed on June 5 of the same year by "Madam Geer-truyd Van Cortlandt," sold the house to Richard Waldron. The conveyance describes the house as "near the exchange formerly Called the fighting Cocks and now in the possession of the said Richard Waldron."—Liber Deeds, XXVI: 131-32. The "Fighting Cocks" was destroyed in the great fire of Sept. 21, 1776 (q. v.), at which time it was referred to by John Joseph Heary (later Judge Henry), of Penn., as an "old and noted tavern."

"Choice good Oyl, Grots and Oatmeal Old Spanish Red Wine, June Canary and Madera, also Lime-Juice, Vinegar, and several sorts of 7
Pickles, are to be Sold at the Rose and Crown by the Old Slip Market in New York."—N. Y. Gaz., May 31-June 7, 1736.

Provision is to be made by the council for Mrs. Cosby, widow 10 of the late governor. She makes a present of the queen's picture to the government.—Cal. Coun. Min., 326. This is Queen Caroline, consort of King George II.—Hist. Mag., 2d ser., III: 52.

The Duke of Newcastle and Mr. Oglethorpe having written the 17 governour and council of New York Province about Spanish designs against the English settlement in Georgia, the council orders that a proclamation be printed against supplying provisions to the Spaniards.—Cal. Coun. Min., 326. The order was again issued on Feb. 25, 1737 (p. 328), and on May 5, 1738 (p. 331).

The lords of trade transmit to the lords of the privy council 18
the following letters, minutes, and newspapers, relating to "the Suspension of the said Rip Van Dam from y<sup>e</sup> Execution of his Office of Councillor and y<sup>e</sup> settlement of y<sup>e</sup> administration of the Government for the time being, in the person of the next eldest Councillor M<sup>r</sup> Clarke:—Two letters received from Mr. Clark, now commander-in-chief of the province of New York, dated March 29 and April 7, 1736 (see N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 49-51); copies of the Minutes of council at New York, dated Nov. 24, 1735, and March 10, 1736; a statement of Van Dam's case, and the opinion of the attorney-general at New York thereupon, dated Feb. 25, 1736; the N. Y. Jour., March 8, 1735, and March 29, 1736, and the N. Y. Gaz., March 28-April 5, 1736. The lords of trade also include, for the same purpose, the representation which they made to the queen on Aug. 28, 1735 (see N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 34-35).—Ibid., VI: 69.

A subscription paper, to obtain funds for enlarging Trinity 19 Church (see July 2, 1735), bears this date. Orders were given by the vestry on July 7 to circulate it. There were eventually 175 subscribers, who gave a total of £5179:6. Rev. William Vesey, the largest donor, gave £50; James de Lancey, £25; 13 others £10 each; Robert Elliston, comptroller of customs, £8; and the rest sums from £5 down to three shillings.—Trin. Min.
(MS.).

The following postal notice is published: "Whereas, the giving 5 Credit and keeping Accounts of Postage of Letters is found to be both Troublesome and Inconvenient, and there being now in this Province a Sufficiency of small Change, so that the reason for Introducing that Custom is Intirely ceased. Notice is hereby given That for the future no Accounts will be kept for Postage of Letters, nor any Letters Delivered till the Postage thereof is Paid; the Post Master having been a great sufferer by giving such Credits."
—N. Y. Gaz., June 28-July 5, 1736.

The queen signs (by the Duke of Newcastle) a commission 13 to George Clarke, Esq., to be lieutenant-governour of New York.—
N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 71.

The common council orders that "the Street now fronting the 22
East River or Harbour of this City lying between the Slip Commonly Called Maiden Lane Slip or Countess Key Slip and the Slip Commonly Called Rodmans Slip be hereafter Called Water Street."
—M. C. C., IV: 331; and see Pl. 30, Vol. I. The order requires that the street be so called in the grant of water lots made this day to Peter Schuyler, for an account of which see April 15, Water Street was begun in 1696.—See June 16, 1696. It was continued, and part of it was called Hunter's Key or Burnet's Street, prior to 1730.—Pl. 27, Vol. I. Between Broad St. and Old Slip it was Little Dock Street prior to 1767.—Pl. 41, Vol. I. It was extended across land of Rutgers to Corlaer's Hook Aug. 16, 1784.—
M. C. C. (MS.), VIII: 133, 185; continued to East St. prior to 1799 (Pl. 70, Vol. I); regularly continued and opened from Catharine St. to Rutgers St. in 1816 (M. C. C., MS., XXX: 225, 261); and from Rutgers Slip to Clinton St. in 1816.—Ibid., XXXI: 294.

- 1736 John Kelly, keeper and owner of the public slaughter-houses within New York City, seeks a renewal of his lease. A committee of the common council is appointed to consider his petition.—M. C. C., IV: 331. On Sept. 20, the committee reported in favour of a renewal, and the common council gave Kelly a lease for 21 years.—Ibid., IV: 343-44.
- 24 Daniel Horsmanden is appointed by the governor to be judge of the court of vice admiralty. He was sworn in on the 29th.—Cal. Coun. Min., 326-27.
- 25 The De Lancey house, later famous as Frances Tavern, at this time occupied as a residence by Col. Joseph Robinson, is offered for sale.—N. Y. Gaz., July 18-25, 1736. Evidently no purchaser was found; for the same house was again advertised in January, 1759.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 22, 1759. For a brief history of this site, see April 11, 1700.
- Aug. The city pays £3115 for 1000, "three foot Shingles" for "the 18 Poor-House" (almshouse).—M. C. C., IV: 339.
- Sept. The Clarke-Van Dam controversy is reviewed at length in a letter of this date published in Zenger's Journal of Sept. 13, 1736; also in A letter by one of the Members of the late General Assembly (pub. separately by the same printer in 1736). This episode was a renewal of the bitter conflict which marked Cosby's administration, Clarke being supported by the court faction, and Van Dam by the popular party.
- 11 A shipload of 120 Palatines arrives at New York.—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 13-20, 1736.
- 13 With friendly irony, Bradford addresses a long editorial to "Brother Zenger" on the subject of faction, and loyalty to the crown, claiming "That the Administration of the Government is rightly and Lawfully lodg'd in Mr. Clarke's hands, and must remain so till the King's Pleasure be known."—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 13, 1736.
- 14 A printed letter, headed "The Sentiments of a Principal Freeholder, Offered to the Consideration of the Representatives of the Province of New York, who are now called to meet and sit the 14th of Septemb. 1736," is distributed, supporting Clarke's claim to the administration of the government.—See one of these original broadsides, in the N. Y. Pub. Library, on which has been written, by the hand of James Alexander, a reference to Zenger's Journal, of Sept. 27, 1736, for a refutation of it. An open letter "To one of the Members of the late General Assembly," unsigned, was printed by Zenger, expressing the writer's opposition to the views of the printed letter entitled "The Sentiments of a principal Freeholder" (written from Westchester), and antagonistic to Clarke's claim to the presidency of the council.—From original broadside, in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- 15 The assembly having been adjourned by Clarke to this day, he issues a proclamation, printed by Bradford, adjourning it further to the second Tuesday in October.—From original broadside, in N. Y. Pub. Library. See Oct. 14.
- 18 In letters to the Duke of Newcastle, to the lords of trade, and to Secretary Popple, Clarke urges that the suspension of Rip van Dam be confirmed by the king.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 74-77.
- 20 Dissatisfaction in the assembly over the suspension of Rip van Dam from the council (see Nov. 24, 1735; June 18, 1736) continues. Clarke informs the lords of trade that the administration forces (the court faction) are "terrified by Zengers Journal."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 75.
- 29 The Clarke-Van Dam controversy (for a connected account of which, see Man. Com. Coun., 1865, pp. 722-25) becomes more serious when each assumes the right to nominate the municipal officers. Paul Richard is Clarke's nominee for mayor, while Van Dam names Cornelius van Horne. The council on Oct. 1 ordered a proclamation to be published warning all officers against Van Dam. Military preparations followed, including the purchase of gunpowder, camp utensils, and equipment for the garrison of Fort George, and an inventory of all military stores.—Cal. Coun. Min., 327. Clarke ordered all the regular forces with their officers into the fort, where a strict watch was kept day and night.—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 20-Oct. 4, 1736. Clarke wrote to the lords of trade that he had removed from his house in town to the fort by the advice of the council. He expressed the belief that factional troubles would end if James Alexander, William Smith, and Lewis Morris, Jr., the authors of articles appearing in Zenger's Journal, and Zenger himself, were sent home (to England).—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 80. The common council, in doubt whether to accept the appointees of Clarke or Van Dam, on Oct. 12 ordered all the attorneys practising in the mayor's court to attend on Oct. 14, "to give their Opinion and Advice in what manner this Corporation ought safely to Act for the Preservation of the Charter of this City, Relating to the Nomination of the Officers."—M. C. C., IV: 343. A clash between the forces of Clarke and Van Dam was averted when, on Oct. 13, a ship arrived from London bearing a royal confirmation of Clarke as president and commander-in-chief of the province.—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 11-18, 1736. Van Dam was therefore compelled to yield, and Clarke's appointees were sworn in at the regular time on Oct. 14 (q. v.).—M. C. C., IV: 349-52.
- The motive forces in the Clarke-Van Dam controversy are explained in a recent essay by Dr. G. W. Edwards, entitled "New York City Politics before the American Revolution," published in the Political Sci. Quar. for Dec., 1921, pp. 593 et seq. The city was now on the brink of civil war. Two companies of the king's forces kept in the fort alone prevented the popular "faction" from taking up arms.—Ibid., citing N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 11, 1736.
- Journal No. 3 of New York City's Department of Finance of to-day carries contemporary entries from Oct., 1736, to June, 1767.—See the original MS. volume, at N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- President Clarke receives from the home government instructions relating to the form of prayer for the royal family.—Cal. Coun. Min., 327.
- "A Subscription Plate.—On . . . the 13th of October next, will be run for, on the Course at New York, a Plate of Twenty Pounds Value, by any Horse, Mare or Gelding, carrying ten Stone (Saddle and Bridle included) the Best of three Heats, two Miles each Heat. Horses intended to Run for this Plate, are to be entr'd the Day before the Race, with Francis Child, on Fresh Water Hill, paying a half Pistole [Spanish money] each, or at the Post on the Day of Running, paying a Pistole. And the next day (being the 14th) will be Ruo for, on the same Course, by all or any the Horses that started for the Twenty Pound Plate (the Winning Horse excepted) . . . All Persons on Horse-back or in Chaises, coming into the Field (the Subscribers and Winning Horses only excepted) are to pay Six Pence each to the Owner of the Ground."—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 20-27, 1736. See also Nov. 5, 1733. A few years later (see Oct. 11, 1742), the race-track was on the Church Farm, west of Broadway.
- Clarke's speech to the assembly refers to the need of their session "To heal the unhappy Divisions that have sprung up in this Province, To provide for the Safety, the Defence and Prosperity of it; To encourage Trade and Navigation, and To promote the raising and Manufacturing such Commodities as may be Advantageous to your selves, and Useful to Great Britain." He refers to the neglect of ship-building in recent years, and urges its renewal. He recommends the completion of fortifications now under way, particularly those in the Mohawk country.—From the original broadside, printed by Bradford, in N. Y. Pub. Library; Jour. of the Votes and Proceedings (1736).
- Up to this time, the provincial council, with governor or president presiding, held its meetings in the fort, and the general assembly met in the city hall. Now, Chief-Justice Delancey, as speaker of the council, reports to that body that the corporation of the city has offered the council "the free use of their Common Council Room in the City Hall during every Session of Assembly and that they wo'd with all convenient speed, fit up the Same for their reception, in Such manner as the Council shall think proper, and that the same was at their Service, until the necessary alterations could be made therein."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 663. The next day, the council passed a vote of thanks, and recommended that the common council "give some Declaration of Trust which may effectually Secure the use of the Common Council Room for the members of his Majesty's Council for the future, whoever they shall think convenient."—Ibid., I: 664. On Oct. 21, the common council of the city passed the following resolution, which was entered in the provincial council minutes of Oct. 26:
- "Forasmuch as his Majesty's Council of this Province, in their Legislative Capacity, during the sitting of the General Assembly, are to sit and Act in their Legislative Capacity, as a Distinct Body by themselves (without the Presence of the Governour or Commander in Chief of this Province): And Whereas a convenient Room or Chamber in the City Hall of this City, is not yet commodiously fitted up and furnished for his Majesty's said Council to meet and sit in, for the better Expediting the Publick Affairs of this Colony in

1736
Oct.
19

General Assembly; And Forasmuch as the Chamber in the City Hall of this City commonly Called the Common Council Chamber is under the same Roof, where the General Assembly do usually meet and sitt, whereby both Houses of the Legislature, may have speedy Recourse to Each Other for their greater Ease and more speedy accomplishing the Publick Affaires of this Province. It is therefore Resolved & Ordered that the said Chamber in the City Hall of this City, commonly Called the Common Council Chamber, be with all Convenient Expedition handsomely fitted up and furnished, and a Convenienc Closet or more be made in the same, and that the same Chamber be adorned with some Pictures, Maps, Prints and other usefull furniture; and that the same . . . be secured for the sitting of his Majesty's Council in General Assembly, in such Manner and Form as this Court shall be advised by Counsell learned in the Law." A committee of the common council was appointed to carry the resolution into effect.—M. C. C., IV: 353-54; see also Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 665. The council took up its quarters there on Oct. 26.

It should be observed that this is a very early, if not the earliest, use of the word "Legislature" in the original official records of New York Province; such usage being prompted, possibly, by its use in the opinion of the king's attorney on Jan. 15.—See under Feb. 6. O'Callaghan has adopted this designation freely, however, in his "Historical Introduction" of the Jour. Leg. Coun. (1861), I: xi; xv et seq. Regarding legislative nomenclature in the English colonial period in this province, the student will find useful hints in the following summary or analysis with references:

The "Charter of Liberties and privileges granted by his Royall Highnesse to the Inhabitants of New Yorke and its Dependencies," Oct. 30, 1683 (q.v.), stated that "The Supreme Legislative Authority under his Majesty and Royall Highnesse James Duke of Yorke Albany & Lord proprietor of the said province shall forever be and reside in a Governour, Council, and the people meet in General Assembly." The act defined the manner of choosing the persons who should sit "as representatives in the General Assembly;" when its sessions should be held, etc.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: 111-16. The general assembly, therefore, was the name of the lower house of the provincial legislature; it was not the name of the united branches, the upper and lower houses, or what we now know as the legislature.

So, in Slaughter's time and later (see March 19, 1691), the lower house was concurrently called in its own minutes the "General-Assembly" (Assemb. Jour., 1764, I: 1 et seq.), or the "House of Representatives" (ibid., I: 2 et seq.). It was most frequently referred to as "the House" (ibid., I: 2, 3 et seq.). Its members were called "Assembly Men" (ibid., I: 1), or "Representatives" (ibid., I: 2), or "Members" (ibid., I: 2). All of these designations were employed in the Assemb. Jour., as far as we find them printed (through 1765) for the colonial period.

The upper house was always the "Counsel," but known in the title of its journal as the "Legislative Council."—See Jour. Leg. Coun. (1861), Vols. I and II. Its gathering was also called "A Council."—ibid., I: 1 et seq. The council minutes mention the lower house as the "Assembly" or "house of Representatives," and its members as "Members of the Representatives."—ibid., I: 2. An address to the king was signed by "the Governour Council and the Representatives of this Province."—ibid., I: 7. In joint session the two branches were referred to as "Council & Assembly."—ibid., I: 80. No common name covering both bodies was employed by the provincial records; for it will be observed that the use of the word "Legislature" (noted above as in M. C. C., IV: 353-54) first occurs, not in the journals of either house, but in the minutes of the common council of the city of New York, and is quoted in the Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 665.

The same testimony is found in the colonial laws. Prior to the adoption of the state constitution (see April 20, 1777), when laws began to be enacted in the name of "the people" of the state of New York, the style employed for the enacting clause of any law was: "Be it enacted by the Governour Council and Representatives in General Assembly met," or some verbal variation of this style. From this form, the inference has been erroneously drawn that the name "general assembly" was intended to be applied to both legislative branches taken together. Other examples of the style employed in the colonial laws are: "Be it enacted by the Gen'l assembly" (ibid., 144 et seq.), a style in frequent use (1684 et seq.), due to the original inception of laws in the lower house; or "Be it Enacted, . . . by the Governour Council and Representatives now assembled" (ibid., I: 171), which was the authorized way of stating the same purpose in accordance with Dongan's instructions of May 29, 1686.—N. Y. Col. Docs., III: 370. Andros's instructions, dated April 16, 1688, contained the same directions as Dongan's: "And you are to observe in the passing of laws that the Stile of enacting the same by the Governour and Council, be henceforth used and no other."—ibid., I: 218.

Following this, however, Slaughter's commission, Nov. 14, 1689, gave him authority, with the advice of the council, to call "general Assemblies." The persons elected should constitute the people's share in the legislative power, and this gave their representative body the name "General Assembly" (see March 19, 1691).

We find in the Col. Laws N. Y. after Slaughter's time, from May 6, 1691, onward, and in the Assemb. Jour. and Jour. Leg. Coun., the style: "Be it . . . enacted . . . By the Governour and Council and Representatives met in General Assembly" (Col. Laws N. Y., I: 223), or some slight verbal variation of it, without change of meaning or intent, pointing out the three essential branches of the law-making power, the governour, council, and general assembly; but with no one general name like legislature, to designate the two interacting bodies, the upper and lower houses of the legislative branch of the government.

For a thorough discussion of the system of government in New Amsterdam under the Dutch, see Robert Ludlow Fowler's introduction to the facsimile of the Bradford (1694) edition of the Laws and Acts, published by The Grolier Club, N. Y., 1894; and for that of the English provincial system in operation in New York, see the "Historical Note," by Robert C. Cumming, introductory to the Col. Laws N. Y., Vol. I; and Spencer, Phases of Royal Government in N. Y. 1691-1719 (1905).

Chief-Justice De Lancey notifies the council that as the business of the supreme court requires his constant attendance, he cannot regularly and conveniently attend the council as speaker. A resolution is therefore passed "that the Eldest Councillor present shall at all times hereafter preside and officiate as Speaker."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 664. See also Cumming's "Historical Note" in Col. Laws N. Y., I: xxi.

The common council orders that the inhabitants of the East Ward have liberty to enlarge the market-house at Countess Key (the Fly Market) at their own expense.—M. C. C., IV: 354. See Sept. 6, 1699; 1729; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958; Pl. 174.

Inhabitants of the East Ward are given permission by the common council to enlarge Old Slip market-house at their own expense.—M. C. C., IV: 354. See references to the Old Slip Market under April 18, 1691; July 8, 1701; Aug. 24, 1778; also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959; Pl. 174; De Voe, Market Book, 93.

The council meets for the first time in the "Council Chamber in the City Hall."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 665-66. See also Oct. 19, 1736; March 27, 1739.

George Clarke receives the king's commission as lieutenant-governour.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 84. The next day, he took the usual oath of office and published his commission at the city hall.—Cal. Coun. Min., 328.

The governour's council orders that henceforth the assembly be prorogued instead of being adjourned.—Cal. Coun. Min., 328.

A New York news item states that, on this date, "Archibald Kennedy, Esq.: Collector of His Majesty's Customs and Receiver General of that Province, was Married to Mrs. Schuyler, Widow of Arent Schuyler, Esq.; Deceased, a Gentlewoman of a Plentiful Fortune."—Boston Gaz., Dec. 20-27, 1736.

Daniel Horsmanden writes from New York to Cadwallader Colden: "Zenger is perfectly Silent as to Politticks. his Correspondent<sup>s</sup> I believe heartily Crop Sick. And old Morris retired to Hell-Gate to eat his own Sapan & Milks, & says the Devil may take 'em all: But if his natural disposition will let him be at rest, I'm mistaken in the Man."—From the original letter, with the Colden Papers in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

1737

A census of the city and county of New York for this year shows a population (white and black) of 10,664, which is an increase of 2,042 since 1731. The total for the province is 60,437, an increase of 10,148 since 1731.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 133. The militia of this county numbers 1,079.—ibid., VI: 134. See 1738.

Oct.
19

20

21

26

29

Nov.

10

Dec.

4

22

1737 The work of enlarging Trinity Church, first proposed in the vestry in 1718, is now fully completed.—Berrian, An Hist. Sketch of Trinity Church (1847), 53.

— In this year, Adolph Benson bought a farm of about 90 acres, "lying central of Harlem plains, and known in our day as the Samson A. Benson or Race Course Tract; its title was indisputable, but its origin hitherto an enigma to the professional conveyancer."—Riker, Hist. of Harlem (1881), 487. It is still true that, to the present time (1912), New York title searchers are unable to state why this Benson property was called the "Race Course Farm." The solution may be found in a notice published on Feb. 22, 1762 (q. v.), for a horse-race to be run at the "New Course, at Harlem."

Jan. The oil mill, chocolate mill, and bolting mill of John Roosevelt, all of which are of wooden construction, situated near the Fly Market, are destroyed by fire. The neighbouring houses, "which are stately and according to the new Method of Building," are little damaged.—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 10, 1737; Boston Gaz., Jan. 24-31, 1737. The date of the fire is printed "February 2d," evidently by mistake.

10 John Richard, writing from New York to his brother-in-law, Henry van Rensselaer, of Albany, says: "We have here a Verry Cold winter the Ice Does a Great Deel of Damage to the fortification and the New Wharfs that was Built Last Year, we have a Buodance of Ice here, two Days befor Christmas there is a boat Drove away from Amboy with two men in and No tidings of them Yet So we believe that they are Drove to Sea."—From the original MS. in the Van Rensselaer-Fort Papers, in N. Y. Pub. Library.

17 Apparently, it becomes impossible any longer for one man to serve effectively as jailer, and at the same time as supervisor of the watch, cryer and bell-ringer of the mayor's court, and marshal; for the common council now orders "all the Goods and Rooms in the Upper Story of the City Hall (Except the Store Room) for Debtors and the Gaol below Stairs for Criminals" to be given over to the custody of the high sheriff. Robert Crannell, Jr., who retires as jailer but continues in his other offices, is permitted still to occupy and be custodian of the room in the city hall in which he "now dwelleth," as well as "the Room Opposite unto itt, and the Room wherein the Fire Engines were lately Kept."—M. C. C., IV: 362. See Pl. 32-b, Vol. I. A later order (ibid., IV: 422) required Crannell "to Remove out of this City Hall on or before the first day of May next" (May 1, 1738), and James Mills, a city marshal, who has been "Victualling Poor Prisoners in the Common Gaol," and who is subsequently termed "Keeper of the Gaol" (ibid., IV: 155), to move into Crannell's apartment with his family. This is doubtless an expression of the board's conviction that the jailer must live in the building if the prisoners are to be securely guarded. Regarding Mills' service in this capacity, see Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 304.

" The common council decides to "present the Freedom of this City to Daniel Horsmanden Esq<sup>r</sup> Barrister at Law, one of his Majesty's Council for this Province and Recorder of this Corporation as A Mark of their great Esteem for him and for his good services done for this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 362. The seal of the corporation was not affixed to the "freedom" until Oct. 14, 1740.—Ibid., V: 6.

" Inasmuch as it appears to the Vestry that if the South Gallry be removed directly back to the Wall of the New Building pursuant to the rule made the last Vestry that the pillars must be placed in the Ile [sic] and be inconvenient it is resolved that the said Gallry be enlarged in breadth so far as to place the pillars so as not to incommode the Ile or the pews."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Feb. New England is shaken by an earthquake.—Boston News-Letter, 6 Feb. 3-10, 1737. See Dec. 7.

Mar. "All Sorts of Garden Seeds, lately Imported from England, by the Governor's Gardiner, Enquire of the said Gardiner in the Fort, where you may be Supply'd with the said Seeds at a Reasonable Rate."—N. Y. Gaz., March 1-8, 1737.

22 A committee of the common council is appointed "to Ascertain Cause and to be Staked out, the Publick Highway from the Corner of MF Freshs House in Queen Street to Fresh Water," which shall "be Continued the breadth of four Rodd at the least as the same is directed by Act of General Assembly."—M. C. C., IV: 364. This is a part of the present Pearl St., which runs in a generally north-westerly direction. The act referred to is that of June 19, 1703 (q. v.).

Benjamin Peck petitions for a grant of water lots "Contiguous to his Houses in Queen Street in Montgomerie Ward," and the common council appoints a committee to have the ground surveyed and to agree with him upon terms.—M. C. C., IV: 364-65. The committee reported on Oct. 4 that they had agreed to grant him, his heirs and assigns, the lots 50 feet wide from high to low-water mark, with permission to build "A Peer or Wharfe next Adjoining to the East Side of the Premises," 18 feet wide, from high to low-water mark, on or before March 25, 1746.—Ibid., IV: 388-89. For an account of Peck's Wharf, and also Peck's Slip, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 990. The wharf was shown as early as 1730, on Pls. 26, 27, and 27-a, Vol. I, just south of Ferry St. Peck's Slip was at the foot of Ferry St.; it was ordered filled up in 1772 (M. C. C., VII: 366), but remained an open slip at least as late as 1797.—Pl. 64, Vol. I. In modern times, this slip was the easterly end of Ferry St., just as Burling Slip was the easterly section of John St.—See Pl. 174, Vol. III.

A warrant is issued to pay Edward Brewen, the public whipper, £2:10, his quarter-year's salary, and 15 shillings "for Setting in the Pillory and whipping through the Town at A Car's Tail one Patrick Butler for Issuing Counterfeit Dollars &c: and whipping four Other Criminals."—M. C. C., IV: 365. When the annual salary of the public whipper was first instituted, it was £5 (see Oct. 24, 1713); it is now £10.

The governor's council orders that the mayor of New York impress seamen for the man-of-war "Tartar" (Capt. Norris), and appoints a committee to inquire about desertions from the ship.—Cal. Coun. Min., 328. On March 30, the mayor wrote to Capt. Norris that he could not comply with this order, and the council decided that it had no power in the matter.—Ibid., 329.

Bradford advertises the publication of An Easy Way to get Money and be Rich, which he sells at 6d. It describes "A Scheme by striking Twenty Thousand Pounds (Paper Money) to encourage the raising of Hemp, and the Manufacturing of Iron in the Province of New-York."—N. Y. Gaz., March 28, 1737. A contributor to the same issue of the Gazette discusses the scheme in a letter to Bradford, contending that, as the present governor has an estate in this country, he will be likely to favour the scheme if it passes the legislature because it is for the good of the country; although "other Governours have been paid for Acts to strike Paper Money."—Ibid.

In accordance with a council order of March 29 (Cal. Coun. Min., 329), Clarke issues a proclamation appointing Thursday, April 21, as a day for public rejoicing and thanksgiving for the deliverance of the king from "the late perilous storm he met with on his passage from Hollaad to England." He directs that divine service be performed in the forenoon in all the churches and chapels in the province.—N. Y. Gaz., April 4, 1737.

Clarke, in an address to the assembly and council, says: "We have the pleasure to see peace restored to this once divided Province."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 676. He undoubtedly referred to the political disorders of the preceding three years.—See Sept. 29, 1736.

In his message to the house, he asks that the part of the barracks in the fort left unfinished when the rest of the barracks were repaired (see April 7, 1731) be put in order.—Assem. Jour., I: 696. On Sept. 2 (q. v.), repairs were not yet made (ibid., I: 705); for Clarke then reported the barracks in bad condition, and urged their completion.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 682. See June 2, 1738.

A committee of grievances is appointed to meet every Thursday at 5 p. m., at the house of John de Honneur (the Black Horse Tavern).—Assem. Jour., I: 696.

Agreeable to Clarke's proclamation of March 31 (q. v.), this day is observed as a day of thanksgiving in the manner required. After attending the morning service in Trinity Church, the governor returned to the fort; "he was attended with the principal magistrates and gentlemen of the city, where the Royal and Provincial heights were drunk, under the discharge of the cannon from the fort (His Majesty's regular troops being the whole time under arms), and the evening was concluded with illuminations and the other usual demonstrations of joy."—N. Y. Gaz., April 25, 1737.

William Bradford "is now Removing to the Sign of the Bible near the Fly-Market, next Door but one to the Treasurers."—N. Y. Gaz., April 18-25, 1737. For previous location, see April 15, 1734. The "Treasurer" here referred to was Abraham de Peyster, Jr., treasurer of the province. From an examination of the real

Mar. 22

"

24

28

31

Apr. 5

6

6

21

25

- 1737 estate records, the premises into which Bradford moved were at the present 190 Pearl St. He must have rented them, as his name does not appear as a grantee.
- Apr. 25 The committee appointed to consider the matters of revenue, referred to in the address of Lieut.-Gov. Clarke on April 5, renders a statement of accounts, one item of which is for £7:19:4 due John de Honneur "for Expenses of several Committees of the General Assembly, during sundry sessions."—Assemb. Jour., I: 700. These meetings were held at the Black Horse Tavern of John de Honneur on William St.—See Oct. 9, 1727.
- May 5 The committee appointed Jan. 24, 1735, to engage an overseer of the fire-engines selects Jacobus Turk, a gunsmith, whose duties are to be "to keep them Clean and in good Repair." The city pays him a year's salary in advance and £10 in addition "to Enable him to go on with finishing A small fire Engine he is making for an Experiment."—M. C. C., IV: 367. Turk succeeded Anthony Lamb as overseer.—See April 6, 1733.
- 9 "A Fire-Engine that will deliver two Hogsheads of Water in a Minute, in a continual stream, is to be Sold by William Lindsay, the Maker thereof. Enquire at Fighting Cocks, next Door to the Exchange Coffee-house, New York."—N. Y. Gaz., May 9, 1737.
- June 4 Cornelius Webber, yeoman, and Cornelia, his wife, convey to Peter Warren, Esq. a parcel of land bounded, according to the modern map, as follows: westerly by a line east of Eighth Ave. from 14th to 21st St. (the old Fitzroy Road); northerly by a line north of 21st St., from Eighth Ave. to a point east of Sixth Ave. (same course as the old Abingdon Road); easterly by a line east of Sixth Ave., from 17th to 21st St.; and southerly by a line running diagonally from 17th St. and Sixth Ave. to 14th St. east of Eighth Ave., these last two courses being along the old Southampton Road.—See original deed in possession of N. Y. Hist. Soc.; see also June 18, 1731, and Aug. 18, 1741. In this conveyance, for the first time, "Greenwich House" is mentioned. See Supplemental Landmark List, "Greenwich House," and, for the above described parcel, see the Sir Peter Warren Estate under Farm Titles, Vol. V.
- 11 Besides the water lots granted on this day to Abraham de Peyster and others (see May 5, 1736), for the purpose of developing the East River water front, other lots are granted for the same purpose to Henry van Borsom, son of the late Egbert van Borsom, who petitioned on Nov. 15, 1734 (M. C. C., IV: 236) for such lots fronting his property "on Queen Street Wharf in Montgomerie Ward between the East Side of Van Clyffs Slip and the Ground of Lewis Gomas." Van Borsom is required to make at his own expense a street 45 feet wide "to Range Equal with both sides of Water Street," out of the 200 feet to be gained by filling in along the river front, on or before March 25, 1746. At the outward part of the 200 feet to be thus gained he is to make a street 40 feet wide within the same time limit, and he is to make a public "Wharf Street or Pier," 14 feet 4 inches wide, along Van Clyff's Slip the full extent of the 200 feet, etc.—M. C. C., IV: 377-79. The several grants of water lots made in the summer of 1737, all containing somewhat similar obligations, are recorded in Liber Deeds, B: 296-340.
- 15 John Peter Zenger is appointed by Lewis Morris (the newly named speaker of the assembly) to be printer of the Votes of the assembly. His first work under this appointment was to print The Speech of the Honourable George Clarke, Esq., etc., of this date. Zenger's authority is stated in the colophon at the end of this printed speech. His colophon at the end of A Journal of the Votes, etc., beginning June 15, gives Morris's order "that no other Person do presume to Print the same." Zenger thus supersedes Bradford as official printer for the province. See also Sept. 13, 1739.
- 20 The king having appointed "Lord De la Warr" to be governor of New York and New Jersey, the secretary of state (Newcastle) expresses to the lords of trade the king's direction that draughts of a commission and instructions be prepared. On June 22, the lords of trade wrote Clarke of the appointment, requesting him to do his utmost "to preserve the Tranquillity of the Province" until the arrival of "Delaware." The required commission was ready on June 30.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 96-98. Lord Delaware did not come to New York, however. In a biographical note by O'Callaghan (ibid., VI: 163), it appears that he resigned "in September following," on being made colonel of the first troop of life-guards. A letter, dated "London June 20th 1740," addressed to Delaware, and signed by "George Clarke Junr," asks him to intercede with the secretary of state in behalf of the elder Clarke, who is still lieutenant-governor; that he may succeed Delaware as governor; and the younger Clarke offers to pay Delaware 1,000 guineas "to indemnify" the latter "for any loss, or expense occasioned thereby," this amount being "all that the Govern<sup>r</sup> there under its present circumstances" allows him to offer.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 163-64. There is no evidence that this proposal was accepted. On the contrary, George Clinton was appointed governor, in 1741, "in the room of the Lord Delaware."—See April 30, 1741.
- A teacher's advertisement reads: "This is to give Notice that I John Hastier Gold Smith in this City, have at my House a Frenchman, who teaches to Read and Write French, as also Arithmetick in a very short Method. Whoever inclines to learn may apply to the said John Hastier at his House who will agree on reasonable Terms.
- "Any Persons that desire to be Taught at Home, may be attended at seasonable Hours, provided the Time does not interfere with the Hours of his School."—N. Y. Jour., June 27, 1737. For an earlier notice concerning the teaching of French, see July 21, 1735. Sometimes instruction in the other romance languages was combined with that in French (see Oct. 26, 1747).
- "These are to inform all persons that there is a ferry settled from Amboy over to Staten Island, which is duly attended for the convenience of those that have occasion to pass and repass that way. The ferrage is fourteen pence, Jersey currency, for man and horse, and five pence for a single passenger."—N. Y. Gaz., July 4, 1737. The provincial council of New York, a year earlier, had granted a patent to Adoniah Schuyler for a ferry from Staten Island to Elizabethtown.—Cal. Coun. Min., 326; Cal. Land Papers, 223.
- Henry Holt, a dancing master, advertises that on July 14 there will be "a Ball" at the house of "Mr. De Lancey, next door to Mr. Todd."—N. Y. Weekly Jour., July 4, 1737. The De Lancey house stood on the south-east corner of Broad and Pearl Sts., adjoining the house of Robert Todd, on Broad St. In 1762, it became Queen's Head Tavern. See also April 21, 1739.
- Those desiring freight or passage on the sloop "Mary and Margaret" bound for Curaçoa, are asked to arrange for same with the master, William Burrows, at the "Cocoa Nut-Tree, Richard Bakers on the New-Dock."—N. Y. Gaz., July 11-18, 1737. The "Cocoa Nut-Tree" stood at Wall and Water Sts., and was situated, according to a later notice of William Burrows, "over against the Merchant's Coffee House."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 23, 1745. Baker secured a five-year lease on the L. I. ferry, from March 25, 1743 (M. C. C., V: 75), but on Sept. 4 of the following year, "being sick and weak," he devised all his estate to his wife Martha and his children, Richard and Sarah.—Abstracts of Wills, IV: 30, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1895). He died before Jan. 16, 1745; his widow then surrendered the lease of the ferry to Edward Willett. The tavern was continued for a time by the widow Baker, but by Nov. 11, 1751 (q. v.) we find Peter de Joncourt conducting a tavern "next Door to the Merchant's-Coffee-House."
- The common council appoints a committee "to lay out the Highway from the Run of Water late at the foot of Fresh Water Hill to the Corner of the Pasture late Called the Domioe's Pasture."—M. C. C., IV: 382. This was at the head of the present Chatham Square.—Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 615. The "Highway" here means the King's Highway or Road to Boston, being the present Park Row, from Pearl St. to the Bowery at Division St., traversing what is now Chatham Sq.—See Pl. 174, Vol. III. See also remarks regarding the Dutch ministers' plot (the Dominic's Pasture of the foregoing entry in the Minutes of the Common Council) in comments on Pl. 36-a, I: 277-78.
- Lieut.-Gov. Clarke states, in an address to the council, that "that part of the Barracks in Fort-George which for want of money was left unfinished when the rest of the Barracks were repaired will Soon be in as bad a Condition, if Some Care be not Speedily taken to repair it. I therefore earnestly recommend them to your present consideration, as I do likewise the new Fortifications which want the finishing hand."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 682. But see Sept. 5, 1738.
- In the election held this day, the most exciting contest is between Adolph Philipse and Cornelius van Horne for the office of representative in the general assembly. Party feeling runs high. Both parties call out their whole strength. The sick, the blind, the lame, Jews, soldiers from the garrisons, many who had been bedridden, men from the prison and poorhouse, are brought in carriages to the place of election, the Field. Fighting and quarrelling are the disorder of the day.—See Wm. Smith Papers (MS.), III: 187-89.

- 1737 in N. Y. Pub. Library; Smith's New York (Continuation, 1830), Sept. II: 47-50; Golden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1918), 10 II: 179; Boston Gaz., Sept. 12-19, 1737. Philpse represented the "court" faction; Van Horne, the popular or democratic faction.
- The majority of votes seeming to be for Philpse, a poll was demanded. This was held at the city hall from 9 a.m. to 9,30 p.m., when the vote showed 413 for Philpse and 399 for Van Horne.—Ibid. See, further, Sept. 12.
- 11 Cadwallader Colden writes to his wife an account of a political contest at the polls in New York between Philpse and Van Horne:
 "I oow can acquaint you that by the Pole M<sup>r</sup> Philpse has carried it by 15 votes Such a struggle I believe was never in America & is now over with a few bloody noses M<sup>r</sup> Vanhorne expects to carry the Election upon the Scrutiny which is to be begin to morrow
 . . . the sick the lame & the blind were all carried to vote they were carried out of Prison & out of the poor house to vote such a struggle I never saw & such hurraing that above one half of the men in town are so hoarse that they cannot speak this day the pole lasts from half an hour after nine in the morning till past nine at night. there was upwards of 800 persons poled."—From the original draft of the letter, preserved with the Golden Papers in N. Y.
 Hist. Soc. See Sept. 12.
- 12 In a petition to Lieut.-Gov. Clarke, the subscribers, numbering 450 citizens, state: "That we have this day seen or heard of the most Barefaced Villany Committed by Willm<sup>o</sup> Cosby Esq<sup>r</sup> present high Sheriff of this City & County . . . in the Face of the world in Declaring Adolph Philpse to be chosen Representative for this City and County . . .
- "We therefore most Humbly pray that our Lives Libertys and properties may no Longer Remain Committed to the Said William Cosby; but that he may be forthwith removed from the said Office and the S<sup>d</sup> Adolph Philpse may not be qualified to Sit as an Assembly man until a fair Hearing of the matter . . ."—
Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 292; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 529.
 A similar petition is presented to the assembly, which refused to seat either Philpse or Van Horne, the rival candidates, until the charges against Cosby were examined.—Assemb. Jour., I: 710.
 The council took cognizance of the issue on Sept. 14; and, on the next day, Cosby was heard before it on the petition, but decided not to intermeddle in the matter.—Cal. Coun. Min., 329-30.
- On Sept. 16, the house voted to investigate the election.—
Assemb. Jour., I: 711.
- In the assembly on Sept. 17, the committee on privileges and elections examined into the allegations and petition of ooc John Thomas against Philpse, and after a hearing reported to the house that Philpse had been lawfully elected to serve in the assembly.
 The house adopted that part of their report declaring that Philpse had not used bribery or corruption or undue means to have himself elected, and ordered a scrutiny of the votes before the house.
 —Assemb. Jour., I: 711; Boston Gaz., Sept. 26-Oct. 3, 1737. This scrutiny lasted about twenty days, causing great excitement in the city. There was the nicest examination into the titles of men's estates, a thing not known before. It caused many warm debates among the people, and the loss of much time among the labouring classes, who spent a large part of the day contending with each other about the result.—Boston Gaz., Oct. 10-17, 1737. On Sept.
 21, the assembly voted that the action of the Sheriff Cosby had not invalidated the election.—Assemb. Jour., I: 712.
- 22 In the course of the scrutiny of the votes in the Philpse-Van Horne contest (see Sept. 10 and 12), it appeared that the Jews were largely in favour of Philpse.—Wm. Smith Papers, III: 187.
 William Smith, counsel for Van Horne, objected to the introduction of any testimony by Jews at the hearing. The house sustained him.—Assemb. Jour., I: 712. On Sept. 23, Smith also objected to having the votes of the Jews received in the election. He appealed to the religious passions of the members, reading from a Bible in his hands of the sufferings of Jesus Christ, and so affected his audience by his illogical argument that the house resolved that the Jews, not having the right to vote for members of parliament, could not be admitted to vote for representatives of the province.—Ibid.;
Wm. Smith Papers, III: 187-89, and Smith's New York (Continuation, 1830), II: 47-50. Van Horne, however, lost the election; for another point was determined by the house, by which Philpse received many votes which Smith thought should have been rejected, agreeably to the laws of the province.—Ibid. This was to allow non-resident free holders to vote.—Assemb. Jour., I: 712.
- On Oct. 10, the scrutiny showed that, on Oct. 8, Philpse had a majority of 21 votes over Van Horne (Boston Gaz., Oct. 10-17); and on Oct. 12, Philpse was declared elected and was sworn in (Assemb. Jour., I: 717).
- Regarding the disqualification of the Jews to vote at this election, as ordered by the general assembly, nearly all writers on the history of New York refer to this disqualification as lasting thereafter throughout the colonial period. One writer, however (McKinley, The Suffrage Franchise in the Thirteen English Colonies in Am. U. of Penn. Publ., 1905, p. 215) qualifies this by saying that he could not determine whether the Jews were disfranchised after 1737, and that permission for them to vote probably rested with the local officers. Smith (Wm. Smith Papers, MS., II: 187-89) says that, as a result of the assembly vote, the Jews brought about the passage of "an Act of Parliament to qualify them to vote for representatives, for which they paid an immense sum of money."
- In a letter to the author on this subject, Mr. Samuel Oppenheim calls attention to the fact that there was no prohibition before 1737 against Jews voting; also that it appears they voted for other officers (M. C. C., II: 163, 165, 174, 177); that under their letters of denization, acts of naturalization, or as natives, they were entitled to the same rights in the colonies as other persons, some of them even being elected constables and tax collectors; that, under the colonial laws, freemen and freeholders, to which classes Jews could and did belong, were entitled to vote for representatives, the laws not excluding Jews (Col. Laws N. Y., I: 405, 452); that the colonial laws were considered as binding upon the authorities in the province, even though inconsistent with, and not conforming to, the laws and practice in England (Blackstone); that, under an act of parliament passed in 1740 (13 Gen. II, Chap. 7), Jews were specifically permitted to be naturalized in all the colonies, and were exempted from using the words "upon the true faith of a Christian" in taking the oath of allegiance and abjuration, which act may have been the one referred to by Smith, supra, though no evidence has been found of their spending immense sums to have this clause inserted in the general act; that various newspaper items after 1737, referring to elections for representatives in New York, make no mention of any exception to Jews voting; that it appears from three poll-lists of the colonial period, which have been preserved, that, in 1761, 1768, and 1769, quite a number of Jews voted at each of the elections for representatives held in those years. (See the poll-lists for these years, printed by S. Whitney Phoenix, N. Y., 1886); that the action of the general assembly in 1737 in rejecting votes of the Jews was not binding upon subsequent assemblies, as each body was the judge of the qualification of its own members, and was not bound by the action of its predecessors, and that there is no record of any subsequent assembly rejecting the votes of Jews at elections; but on the contrary that Peter Kalm, who was in New York in 1748, speaks of the Jews then "enjoying all the privileges common to the other inhabitants of this town and province" (Kalm's Travels into North America, 245-46, q. v. under Oct. 30, 1748).
- Trinity vestry orders "that the large Pew under the Corner of the New Gallery [see April 17, 1718] in Trinity Church, which was formerly the Gov<sup>t</sup>s Pew, be applied for the Use of the Church Wardens for the time being, And that the Canopy Pew on the left hand side of the South Door be for the Use of the officers of the Garrison for the time being instead of the Pew they formerly had,
 That the Canopy Pew on the right hand side of the said South Door be for the Use of the Commanders and Officers of his Maj-estys Ships of Warr for the time being; And That the two Pews before the said Pew be for the Use of Masters of Vessells being Strangers; That the New Pew on the East side of the Pulpit be for the use of his Majesty's Council, The Judges and Attorney General for the time being; And that the Pew which was formerly for the Use of his Majesty's Council, be for the use of the Governour for the time being."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- Paul Richard is renominated mayor.—M. C. C., IV: 387.
 Mayor Richard was appointed first July 7, 1735 (q. v.), after the death of Mayor Lurting. He was continued as mayor until Oct. 15, 1739 (q. v.).
- James Lyne is elected a constable of the West Ward.—M. C. C., IV: 386. On Oct. 5, he produced a commission from the lieutenantgovernour, appointing him an adjutant in the militia of the province, whereby he was exempt from duty as constable.—Ibid., IV: 390, 392. See also description of the Bradford Map, Pl. 27, Vol. I.
- About 190 Palatinates arrive at New York from Holland. On Sept.

22
28 29
"

- 1737 Oct. 5, about 215 arrived at Philadelphia, both ships coming by Nov.
 Oct. 9 way of Cowes.—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 3-10, 1737.
- 11 This being the anniversary of the king's coronation, a double watch is provided for this and the two succeeding nights, as there is reason to apprehend that many unruly persons will assemble and create disorder "by firing Squibs, Guns and Other fire Works; and in Rambling about the Streets in a disorderly manner."—M. C. C., IV: 392.
- 14 Mayor Richard, renominated on Sept. 29 (M. C. C., IV: 387), is too ill to be sworn in (ibid., IV: 394). Gerrardus Stuyvesant, the deputy mayor, presided at the meetings of the common council from Sept. 29, to Oct. 17 inclusive.—Ibid., IV: 385-96. For the first deputy mayor, see June 27, 1665. Wm. Beckman served as deputy mayor for over two years (1681-3) when Mayor Dyer was in England (M. C. C., I: 87-105).
- 28 The common council appoints a committee to prepare a bill to be presented to the assembly "To Enable this Corporation to Repair and New Cover part of the City Hall of this City, and to defray the Expence of A Constables Night Watch for the Ease of the Poor of this City, and Other purposes therein mentioned."—M. C. C., IV: 399. On Nov. 4, 1737, the bill was approved for presentation to the assembly and the committee was permitted to add a clause regarding the appointment of firemen.—Ibid., IV: 404. The firemen's act passed the assembly as an independent measure on Dec. 16, 1737 (q. v.), carrying the desired provisions on this subject. See also Sept. 10, 1738.
- On April, 1738, the common council appointed a committee to consult builders to determine what repairs were needed to the city hall, to hire workmen to do the work, and to buy materials. This action was based upon the "Absolute Necessity forthwith to New Cover and Shingle part of the City Hall of this City under which the Assembly of this Colony Generally meet;" also "To New lay or Cover the floors of the Assembly Chamber Lobby and Court Room and Other Repairs Needfull and Necessary to be made to the Said City Hall;" and "To Repair and make weather tight the Cupulo of the Said City Hall, To Amend Repair & Enlarge the Goals of the Said City, and to Amend and Repair many Other parts and places of and in the Said City Hall to make the same more usefull and Convenient for the purposes the same was built and designed for." The work on the city hall is to be paid for out of the fund of £220 authorized to be raised by the act of the general assembly "in the Eleventh Year of his present Majestys Reign."—M. C. C., IV: 421 and 431. See, further, July 15, 1738.
- 31 The king's birthday (which occurred Oct. 30) is celebrated with the usual ceremonies.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 7, 1737.
- Nov. Inhabitants of the East Ward, living near the Fly Market, complain to the common council that the pier "before the Houses at the West side of the Said Slip" is so narrow that it often proves "Very dangerous as to Carts passing and Repassing both in Respect to growd People as well as Children;" and by order of the grand jury they petition "the Commonalty" for leave "to make the Said West Peer Six or Eight feet Broader." The petition is granted.—M. C. C., IV: 403; cf. "Fly Market Slip," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 989.
- " In stating conditions for leasing the ferry, mention is made of "the House of Mr William English] in Custom House Street."—M. C. C., IV: 403. This street name was used at that time for the present Pearl St. between Whitehall St. and Hanover Sq.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 997, and 1007. English occupied the tavern formerly kept by Obadiah Hunt.—See Jan. 13, 1736.
- 5 The day is observed in memory of the discovery of "that horrid and Treasonable Popish Gun-Powder Plot to blow up and destroy King, Lords and Commons" (the Guy Fawkes plot of Nov. 5, 1605). The "Gentlemen of his Majesty's Council, the Assembly and Corporation, and other the principal Gentlemen and Merchants of this City waited upon his Honour the Lieut. Governour at Fort George, where the Royal Healths were drank, as usual, under the Discharge of the Cannon and at Night the City was illuminated."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 7, 1737. See also Nov. 5, 1748.
- 7 "We have Letters and London Publick Prints by way of Philadelphia, viz. The London Daily Post, Sept. 13, which says, His Majesty has been pleased to appoint the Right Honourable John Lord De La War to be Captain and Colonel of the First Troop of Life Guards, in the Room of his Grace the Duke of Montague; and that his Lordship is to Resign the Government of New York. Whitehall Evening Post, Sept. 15; The Right Honourable the Lord De La War has received the Standard as Captain and Colonel of the first Troop of Life Guards."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 7, 1737; ibid., Nov. 28, 1737. But see Dec. 27, 1737.
- " James Murray, writing to a friend in Ireland, says that a labourer in New York receives 4s., 6d. a day; a carpenter, 6s.; a girl, 4s., 6d. a week; and a tailor, 20s. for a suit of clothes.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 7, 1737; see also Wilson, Mem. Hist. City of N. Y., II: 202-4.
- The death of Queen Caroline, wife of George II, occurs.—20
 The Chronological Diary for the Year 1737, in Hist. Register (1737), 24. The news was received by Lieut.-Gov. Clarke about April 3, 1738 (q. v.).
- "That the Free Masons had by this time formed a society in New York is evidenced by the following communication published by Bradford: "Mr. Bradford: There being a new and unusual sect or society of Persons of late appeared in our native Country [England], and from thence spread into some other Kingdoms and Common Wealths, and at last has extended to these parts of America, their Principle, Practices and Design not being known nor by them published to the World, has been the reason that in Holland, France, Italy, and other Places they have been supprest, All other Societies that have appeared in the World have published their Principles and Practices, and when they meet set open their Meeting-house Doors for all that will come in and see and hear them, but this Society called Free Masons, meet with their Doors shut, and a Guard at the outside to prevent any to approach near to hear or see what they are doing. And as they do not publish their Principles or Practices so they oblige all their Proselytes to keep their secret, as may appear by the severe Oath they are obliged to take at their first admittance. Which Oath is as follows, viz.
- "I, A. B., Herely solemnly Vow and Swear in the Presence of Almighty God and this Right Worshipful Assembly, That I will Hall and Conceal, and never Reveal the Secrets or Secrecy of Masons or Masonry, that shall be revealed unto me; unless to a Truc and Lawful Brother, after due Examination, or in a just and Worshipful Lodge of Brothers and Fellows well met.
- "I further more Promise and Vow, That I will not Write them, Priot them, Mark them, Carve them, or Engrave them, or cause them to be Written, Printed, Marked, Carved, or Engraved on Wood or Stone, so as the Visible Character or Impression of a Letter may appear, whereby it may be unlawfully obtained.
- "All this under no less Penalty than to have my Throat cut, my Tongue taken from the Roof of my Mouth, my Heart pluck'd from under my Left Breast, them to be buried in the Sands of the Sea, the Length of a Cable Rope from Shore, where the Tide ebbs and flows twice in 24 Hours, my Body to be burnt to Ashes and be scatter'd upon the Face of the Earth, so that there shall be no more Remembrance of me among Masons. So help me God."—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 28, 1737. A skit, in the usual style of rude parody of the time, on the subject of women joining the Masons, was published in ibid., June 19-26, 1738. For reference to the Masonic meeting-place, see Jan. 22, 1739.
- Late in the summer of 1737, William Johnson, nephew of Sir Peter Warren, sailed for America, and arrived in New York in December. He spent the winter here as guest of Lady Warren (daughter of Stephen de Lancey)—W. Max Reid, Story of Old Fort Johnson (1906), 7. For the records of his activities as Indian commissioner, see Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), II: 317-84.
- An attempt is made by the "Trustees of Brookland" (and continued Dec. 6, 7, and 14) to secure through the legislature the repeal of part of the Ferry Act of Oct. 14, 1732 (q. v.), so far as it relates to Brooklyn. The bill is opposed in the assembly by James Alexander, and referred to the committee of the whole house. A hearing on it is then ordered, to permit the city of New York to be represented in opposition to the design of the bill, which is to break this city's ferry monopoly. A postponement of the hearing checked further proceedings.—Assem. Jour., I: 728-29, 729-39, 730. Another attempt of the same sort was made nearly ten years later.—See Jan. 7, 1746.
- "The Corner House, on the North side, below the Meal-market," is offered for sale by Frances Child.—N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 28-Dec. 5, 1737. This was the later Merchants Coffee House, on the northwest corner of Wall and Water Sts.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979.
- Alexander Malcolm, the schoolmaster, in a petition to the assembly, claims that the act passed Oct. 14, 1732 (q. v.), allowing him £40 per annum out of the fund of peddlers' licenses, has failed 1737 to operate, and that there is due him the sum of £1152:6. He Dec.

Dec. —Assemb. Jour., I: 736. For further actions of the assembly, see 6 Dec. 16, 1737; Oct. 16, 1740.

A bill is presented to the assembly to repeal part of the act regulating and establishing the rates of the ferry between this city and Brooklyn. It is ordered read a second time.—Assemb. Jour., I: 729-30. On the following day, it was ordered that the corporation be served with a copy of the bill.—Ibid., I: 731. Fortunately for the city, the session of the assembly was almost at an end, and it was voted to postpone the bill until the session of the following year.—Ibid., I: 733.

7 about 11 o'Clock, there was a severe Shock of Earthquake felt all over this City; and continued about one Minute; It began with a Rumbling Noise like a Coach or Coaches running along the Streets; the Houses did Shake, the China, the Glasses and Pewter did move and clatter, to the surprize of the inhabitants.—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 12, 1737.

16 A provincial act, known as the "Triennial Act," is passed, "for the frequent Elections of Representatives to Serve in General Assembly and for the frequent Calling and meeting of the General Assembly so Elected."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 951. For the history of this law, and the arguments in favour of it which were sent to England for the concurrence of the king's ministers, see Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), IV: 158-63. On Aug. 10, 1738, the lords of trade advised the king that this act of the province of New York was an infringement of the royal prerogative; and on Nov. 30, 1738, he vetoed it.—Ibid., IV: 164-65. The law was one of the early impulses of the people for more independent local self-government, overcome by British sovereignty.

An act is passed "to restrain Tavern keepers and Inholders from Selling Strong Liquors to Servants and Apprentices and from giving large Credit to others."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 952; N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 117.

The legislature passes an act continuing "An Act to Encourage a Publick School in the City of New York." Alexander Malcolm, "the Present publick School Master," is retained.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 973-77. Another act is passed the same day "To Restrain Hawkers and Pedlars within this Colony from Selling without License." The schoolmaster (see Dec. 6) is given authority to issue such licenses. Every hawker, peddler, or "petty chapman" (as defined in the act) is required to pay "Alexander Malcolm or the Master of the Publick School of New York for the time being" a duty of £5 per annum and a license fee of three shillings. The schoolmaster shall keep account of the money received, and out of this revenue he shall be paid £40 annually. Venders of fish, fruit, and victuals are excepted from the operation of the act; also persons who make and sell their own wares, and tinkers, tailors, or other persons who make or mend various articles mentioned in the act.—Ibid., II: 988-92. For Clarke's comments on these two acts, see June 2, 1738.

The legislature passes "An Act for Emitting Bills of Credit for the Payment of the Debts and for the better Support of the Government of this Colony, and other Purposes therein Mentioned." These bills, amounting to £48,350, are to be engraved by "Charles Le Roux, or Such other Person as the major part of the Said first Signers of the Said bills of Credit will agree with." They are to be printed by John Peter Zenger.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 1015-40. See Nov. 28, 1734. The treasurer was ordered to pay the engraver £14 for 28 stamps for these bills of credit (ibid., II: 1038), but no certain evidence appears that Charles le Roux was actually the engraver. On Dec. 17, Clarke informed the Duke of Newcastle that the assembly had laid a foundation for a future revenue fund "by striking paper money, (which was much wanted) to be let out on interest."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 110. On June 2, 1738, he explained the purpose of this act.—Ibid., VI: 116.

For several years the city has paid various municipal charges "for the Ease of the poor Inhabitants." It has "Defrayed the Expence of the Night Watches, Built and Erected a Convenient Tenement for a Workhouse and House of Correction Repaired the Market Houses Dock wharfe & Bridges for the benefite of Trade and Commerce and Expended other large Sums of Money in Repairing part of their City Hall Gables and other Necessary and Contingent Charges whereby the Treasurer [sic] of the said Corporation is so much Exhausted that they are at present unable to make those Repairs to their City Hall which are now Absolute y Necessary." An act of the legislature is therefore passed to enable the city to raise £250 by taxation, of which £200 is to be "applied for Shingling and New Covering the said City Hall Laying or Covering the floors of the Assembly Chamber Lobby and Court Room and other Repairs needful and Necessary to be made to the said City Hall."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 1061-63.

The legislature passes "An Act for the better Extinguishing fires that may happen in the City of New York." The preamble states that "the Inhabitants of the City of New York of all Degrees have very Justly acquired the Reputation of being Singularity and Remarkably famous for their Diligence and Serviceableness in Cases of fires;" and that they have supplied themselves "with To fire Engines And various Sorts of Poles Hooks Iron Chairos Ropes Ladders and Several other Tools and Instruments for the Extinguishing of fires." Notwithstanding this, destructive fires have occurred. To prevent these in great part in the future, it is enacted that the common council of the city of New York shall "Elect Discreet honest and Sober Men willing to accept (not exceeding forty two in Number) whereof an equal Number shall be Elected or appointed out of the Six Several Wards of the said City on the South Side of fresh Water of the Inhabitants being firemen or freeholders of the said City to have the Care management working and using the said fire Engines and the other Tools and Instruments for Extinguishing of fires that may happen within the said City." The persons so appointed "shall be Called the firemen of the City of New York and who with the Engineers of the same City are hereby required and Enjoyed always to be Ready at a Call both by Night as well as by Day" to use the engines, etc., to extinguish fires. Authority is given to the common council to remove any firemen who are not "Diligent Industrious and vigilant" and appoint others to fill their places. Firemen are made exempt from service as constables, surveyors of highways, or jurors. They are not compelled to serve in the militia of the city, "Except in Cases of Invasion or other imioient Danger." The common council shall establish rules and regulations for the government and duties of firemen, and impose reasonable fines, penalties, and forfeitures for neglect of duty. The act further requires that, when a fire breaks out, "all Sheriffs under or Deputy Sheriffs High Constables Petty Constables and Marshals (upon Notice thereof) shall Immediately Repair to the place where the said fire shall happen with their Rods Staves and other Badges of their Authority;" shall aid both "in the Extinguishing the said fires and Causinge People to work as also in preventing Goods being Stolen," and shall "give their utmost Assistance to help the Inhabitants to Remove and Secure their said Goods."—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 1064-67. The number of firemen was increased on Dec. 11, 1762 (ibid., IV: 673), and on Dec. 31, 1768 (ibid., IV: 1048). See also "Sketch of the Origin of the Fire Department, of the City of New York, as at present organized," in Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 521-29.

"There are letters in Towm (by way of Boston) from Persons that may be depended on (dated in October last) which advise, That my Lord De La War continues Governour of the Province of New York, and that his Lordship intends to set out for his said Government early in the Spring."—N. Y. Gaz., Dec. 27, 1737; May 21, 1738. See, further, March 13, 1738.

1738

In this year, New Jersey, on petition to the king from the people of that colony, was separated from New York, and Lewis Morris was appointed its governour.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 220.

A manuscript census sheet of this year shows the population of New York County to be 10,659, of whom 8,940 are whites and 1,719 blacks. The ten counties of the province show a total population of 60,372. Albany County, with 10,681, outnumbers New York.—From the original MS., filed in box labelled "New York, 1700-1760," N. Y. Hist. Soc.

In this year, a membership list of the New York militia companies was prepared, showing the personnel of the Blue Artillery Company under John Waldron, and of the several militia companies under command of Gerard Beekman, Capt. Charles le Roux, Capt. Stuyvesant, Capt. Richards, Capt. Boelen, Capt. Cornelus van Horne, Capt. Henry Cuyler, Capt. Joseph Robinson, and Capt. Mathew Clarkson, respectively; also of the company formerly

Dec. 16

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

—

—

—

—

- 1738 — commanded by John Moore.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), IV: 138-46. A "List of officers issued for New York, with the dates of their commissions" (all in Aug., 1738) shows that Charles le Roux was made a major on Aug. 15, and Abram Vanwyck appointed captain of his company; also that John Moore was made a colonel on Aug. 17, and Guilian Verplanck appointed captain of his company, and that Joseph Robinson was made a colonel, and Isaac de Peyster appointed captain of his company. The names of those commissioned first and second lieutenants, and ensigns, are also in the list.—Ibid., IV: 147.
- For a history of the Merchants Coffee House, cited under this date in I: 453, see June 19, 1728.
- Feb. 6 "To be sold at publick Vendue the estate of Elias Andrise, Consisting of the House above Toroise Bay, known by the name of the Union Flag, and the personal Estate left by Marjyte Andrise; on the 10th of February next, for Title and Conditions of Sale enquire of Jacob Anderson, at Turtois Bay on the Rock."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 6, 1738. This is probably the first reference to the Union Flag, a tavern which stood on the Post Road, about four miles outside the city. In 1757, the farm belonging to the tavern was reduced in size by the sale of a "Small Lot of about 22 Acres."—See Jan. 24, 1757.
- 8 William Cornell petitions the common council, proposing, as he has leased the Long Island ferry, to make landings at Clark's Slip, if the persons in the neighbourhood of the landing may be allowed to repair the slip and market-house there; this is granted.—M. C. C., IV: 413-14. Clark's Slip was at the foot of Wall St., and the market-house was the Meal Market, which had been erected in 1709. How long Cornell operated this ferry does not appear, but in 1748 (Jan. 29) the common council ordered a dock and stairs to be built near the Meal Market, "for the Convenience of the ferry Boat which is to Land there."—Ibid., VI: 217.
- 13 In accordance with an act of the assembly for levying a tax on slaves, the assessors of the Bowers Division of the Out Ward draw up a list showing that in that division there are 24 persons owning about 43 slaves between the ages of 14 and 50. At the rate of one shilling for each slave, a total of £213 is collected.—From a MS. entitled "Head or Title of the Tax Role," with the Vander Water MSS., in box labelled "New York, 1700-1760," in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- 14 In response to an order of Jan. 5 from Lieut.-Gov. Clarke, in council, Surveyor-Gen. Cadwallader Colden addresses to him answers to various queries from the lords of trade and plantations, which he entitles "Observations on the Situation, Sail, Climate, Water Communications, Boundaries &c. of the Province of New York." It is printed in Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), IV: 109-15.
- 28 William Cornell, the new lessee of the ferry between New York and "the Island of Nassau," complains in a petition to the common council that the market-house at Clark's Slip is "much out of Repair and some Conveniencies wanting" for the better landing and departure of the ferry-boats. He therefore seeks permission for the inhabitants who live near by "to mend and Enlarge the Said Market House and make such Conveniencies in the Said Slip as shall be Necessary and Convenient for the better landing and Preserving the Boats in Lading and unlading there." Granted.—M. C. C., IV: 413-14. For "Clark's Slip or Meal Market Ferry," see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 942. See also Jan. 29, 1748.
- Mar. 7 "We hear, that My Lord De La War's Coach, and some of his Household Goods, are to come over in the next Vessel bound to this Port."—N. Y. Gaz., March 7-14, 1738; Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y. (1890), 12.
- 14 The sloop "Mary and Margaret," William Burrows, master, is about to sail for Jamaica. Arrangements for freight or passage may be made with the master at the "Sign of the Ship a-ground on the Dock, near the Meal-Market."—N. Y. Gaz., March 14, 1738. The Meal Market was at Wall and Pearl Sts., a popular tavern locality for many years.
- 29 The "House at the old Bowling Green took Fire and in a few Minutes was reduced to Ashes. The Wind at that Time was high and the House far from any Assistance, Mr. Miller who then lived in it with great Difficulty saved him self and his Wife, being rather to eager to save some Goods which they could not effect. To avoid the Flames they were obliged to leapt out of the Windows one Story high."—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 3, 1738. The Old Bowling Green was a garden on the North River between Chambers and Warren Sts. (see 1730), and was, with the house, the property of Trinity Church, being on a part of the Church Farm. An investigation was therefore made by a committee from the church, who decided, on May 7, that the fire was accidental. On July 11, Miller was given permission to turn back his lease, upon the payment of £10. He was to relinquish any pretensions he might have to the Bowling Green, and vacate the church's farm by March 25, 1739.—Trin. Min. (MS.). Miller, who had been gardener of the place, removed to a house "next Door to Samuel Heaths, near the Fort," where he offered for sale "fresh seeds, snuff, pigtail and cut tobacco."—N. Y. Jour., March 26, 1739. A year later he was again offering seed "At the Sign of the Thistle and Crown Near Spring Garden or at the old Boling Green."—Ibid., March 10, 1740. The Old Bowling Green, with the lane leading to it (see Apr. 11, 1722), is shown on the MS. Map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I). See also Pls. 26 and 27, Vol. I. On Feb. 13, 1752 (q. v.), Adam van Denberg leased the Bowling Green for 21 years, but evidently retained it for only a few years, as it was again leased, on Feb. 1, 1759 (q. v.), to John Marshall, and called Mount Pleasant. On Nov. 10 of that year, the militia company of grenadiers met here to celebrate the king's birthday, when they roasted an ox and ate and drank loyally.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1759. Marshall undertook to open his house for breakfast every morning during the season, and solicited the patronage of ladies and gentlemen (ibid., Nov. 10, 1759); but his venture was evidently unsuccessful, for, on Oct. 27, 1762 (q. v.), the house and gardens were again offered for sale. John Elkin succeeded Marshall and, in addition to breakfast, offered an afternoon tea with "Pyes and Tarts," as well as mead and Madeira wine. He called the place Spring Gardens.—See June 20, 1763. In 1764, Samuel Fraunces, most famous of all New York innkeepers, succeeded Elkin and renamed the place Vauxhall, but the following year the premises were occupied by Major James, whose attitude towards the enforcement of the Stamp Act brought upon him the vengeance of the mob, on Nov. 7, 1765 (q. v.), when his house furnishings, books, liquors, and other belongings were burned and destroyed. On June 16, 1768 (q. v.), Fraunces, who had been conducting a tavern at the Sign of the Queen's Head in Philadelphia, advertised the re-opening of Vauxhall which, "since his Absence from this City," had been "occupied by Major James." In 1774, Erasmus Williams succeeded Fraunces and once more renamed the place Mount Pleasant. By 1802, this site, so long a bowling green, garden, tavern, and place of public resort, had been turned over to the proprietors of the Cupola Iron Furnace.—N. Y. Eve. Post, Aug. 17, 1802.
- " The common council orders that an acre of land in the Bowers Division of the Out Ward, on the west side of "Inclayenberg," be leased to Arnout Webber for a brick-yard.—M. C. C., IV: 419. This was probably in the vicinity of the present Fifth of Sixth Ave. and 27th St.—See "Inclenberg" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 966.
- Apr. 3 "Clarke writes to the Duke of Newcastle that he has read "the melancholy news of her Majesty's death in the public prints."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 115. Queen Caroline, wife of George II, died Nov. 20, 1737 (q. v.).
- " "Capt. Terret Lester is Removed to the House where Thomas Inglis lived on the Dock in Amboy, where there is good Entertainment for Man and Horse. He also keeps a Passage Boat to ply between New York and Amboy."—N. Y. Gaz., April 3, 1738. For later N. Y.-Amboy ferries, see Sept. 9, 1745; Oct. 13, 1750; Aug. 12, 1751; Oct. 30, 1752; June 4, Sept. 24, 1753; April 22, 1754; Feb. 23, 1756; Jan. 20, 1757.
- 10 "A list of 3<sup>d</sup> inhabitants of 3<sup>d</sup> south ward in 3<sup>d</sup> beat of Cap<sup>t</sup> Mathew Clarkson," bearing this date, appears to be a list of militiamen, numbering 65 with officers, under Clarkson's command.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), IV: 145. See also the list referred to under 1738, supra.
- " An advertisement, offering for sale a farm of 44 acres at Turtle Bay, "within four Miles of this City," describes the place as having "a very good Grist Mill and two Bolting Mills, a large Quantity of New fencing stuff . . . an old Orchard that makes Thirty Barrels of Syder, and fifty young Trees planted last Spring, all grafted of the best Kind of Fruits." It formerly belonged to Theophilus Elseworth (sic).—N. Y. Jour., April 10, 1738.
- 13 "The Petition of the Inhabitants of the West Ward praying leave to Erect a Market House in the Broadway fronting to Crown Street," which was read in the common council on April 7 and referred to a committee, is now read again. It states that the

- 1738 inhabitants of this ward, and a great number of those in the North Apr. 13 Ward, live a long distance from any of the public market-houses,
"which makes it Very Inconvenient and Occasions A great loss of time for them and their servants to Attend the Markets for their family Provisions, and as there are great quantities of Provisions frequently brought from Hackinsack, Tappan and Other parts up the North River as well as from the Out Ward," the petitioners now seek this improvement, not only for their own convenience but for that of the country people, and are willing to build the market-house at their own expense. The petitioners ask leave to build "A Market House of forty and two foot in length and twenty five foot in breadth in the Publick Street of the Broadway in the Middle of the same fronting the Street in which his Honour the Chief Justice lives and Opposite to Crown Street." They also ask that the proposed market be called "the Broadway Market House," and that it be "Appointed A publick Market place for all sorts of Corn, Grain and Meal that may be brought down Hudsons River for Sale and to be sold in Publick Market within this City, and at no
Other Market place within this City Except the Publick Meal Market." The committee reports that they "have Viewed the Said Broadway fronting to Crown Street, and find it A Very Convenient place for Erecting A Publick Market House." The report is approved, and the petition granted, "So far as to the Erecting of the Said Market House in the Broadway Opposite to Crown Street and Not Otherwise untill further Order." (For further petition and order, see July 16, 1742.) A committee is appointed "to Ascertain and Stake out the place for Erecting the Said Market House;" and it is ordered that "unless the Said Market House be Erected and finished within three Months" from this date, at the petitioners' expense, this grant and order are "to be Void and of None Effect."—M. C. C., IV: 423-24.
- Crown Street was the preset Liberty Street (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 997), and at one time was called Oswego Street.—See July 2, 1766; and N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 5, 1759. The Broadway Market was evidently built within the time specified, for the next reference to it in the Minutes was on Nov. 7, 1741, when a law for regulating the public markets was passed, including this one.—Ibid., V: 42. It was enlarged in 1745 (q. v., Dec. 4).
About 1754, and later, it was known as the Oswego Market (see De Voc's Market Book, 271-73). The Broadway or Oswego Market was taken down in 1771 (q. v., Aug. 13), having been declared a nuisance. In 1772, at or near this location, another market was built having the name of the Oswego Market. See under March 31, 1772.
- 17 Trinity vestry appropriates a pew in the south gallery for the captains and officers of the king's ships of war. It is ordered that the chancel be wainscotted with mahogany.—Trin. Min.
(MS.).
- May 4 Inhabitants of the Dock and South Wards petition the common council for permission to build "A Publick Markett House at our own Cost & Charge in Broad Street between the Watch House and the dwelling House of John Lashly;" this is granted, and a committee appointed "to Ascertain and Stake out the Place." The market-house is "to Remain A Publick Market House for the Publick use and Benefit of this Corporation."—M. C. C., IV: 426-27. The watch-house was the one "In Broad Street before the City Hall," erected in 1731 (q. v., July 9). De Voe fixes the location of the Lashly house as at the corner of Flatenbarrack St. (Exchange Pl., running west of Broad St.). He is of the opinion that no market-house was ever erected here, as he finds no notice of it in the laws, advertisements, etc.—Market Book, 260. There was, however, a court order, in 1746, directing the sheriff to take down a market in Broad St., near the watch-house.—Min. Court of Gen.
Quarter Sessions (MS.).
- 5 Custom-house officers are required by the governour's council to examine certain sloops for goods forbidden to be exported.
Depositions are taken of the masters of other sloops, including the Georgia packet, concerning Spanish designs upon Georgia; and an order is issued forbidding supplies being carried to St. Augustine.
—Cal. Coun. Min., 331. The examination of shipmasters was continued on May 8. Sloops owned by Mr. Walton were allowed to be cleared under bond on May 18.—Ibid.
- 16 The common council appoints a committee to lay out a lot for John Moore, on the east side of Broadway "between Markvelt Street (Commonly Called Pettycoat Lane) and Beaver Street."—
M. C. C., IV: 428. From this it appears that the name Pettycoat Lane (see Pl. 23, Vol. I) was still in common use, although it had yielded place to Marketfield Street on all the maps (Pls. 26, 27, 16 27-a, Vol. I). See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1005.
- An assessment is made of the real and personal property in the Bowery Division of the Out Ward for raising a tax of £265:12:6, which includes the allowance of ninenpence for the collectors and sixpence for the city treasurer on every pound, in accordance with an act of the Assembly. The tax-rate is 9½ pence on every £5. The list, signed by the assessors, John and Philip Minthorne, contains the names of 81 persons together with their individual assessments.
—From a MS. entitled "Head of the Tax Role," among miscellaneous MSS. in the Vander Water Papers, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- "To be Sold. A Choice Collection of Law Books, consisting of Reports of all the Chief and Eminent Lawyers, the Statutes at large, Domat's Civil Law Institutes, &c., with a number of other Books upon various subjects, being above 300 Volumes, as may be seen by a Catalogue of the same. Whoever inclines to Purchase the same, or any part of them may apply to John Roberts near the long Bridge in New York."—May 21, 1738. For that time, a library or collection of books numbering 300 volumes was unusual.
Clarke writes to the lords of trade concerning two acts of the assembly,—one "for the further encouragement of a publick school in the City of New York for the teachin latin and Greeck and the mathematicks," and the other for supporting the schoolmaster through a fund derived from peddlar's licences: "Being confident that publick schools for the education of youth will always find countenance from your Lordships I will lay the two last Bills before you without any further remarks in their favour;
I wish the Assembly had made the reward greater than it is like to be, from the last of these Bills, that money was apply'd before, to the like use but fell short of the sum intended, nor could the school master get any redress tho' he petition'd for it or got some of his friends to move the house in his behalf; it is not likely it will bring in more now however the master having at present no other way of living is obliged to submit."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 115, 118. See Dec. 16, 1737.
- Answering enquiries of the board of trade, Clarke states, among other things, that "In the town of New York is an old fort of very little defense cannon we have, but the carriages are good for little, we have ball but no powder. . . . There is a battery which commands the mouth of the harbour whereon may be mounted 30 cannon this is new having been built but three years but it wants finishing."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 120. See also ibid., 148, 151; and under Sept. 5.
- George Clarke, Jr., son of the lieutenant-governour, is appointed secretary of the province, and Frederick Morris is appointed his deputy, the latter being sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 332. The office was a sinecure, from which an income was derived with little or no employment on Clarke's part. It was also one of a remarkably long series of positions held by his father and himself, for a period of over 70 years from the time of the elder Clarke's arrival, July 23, 1703 (q. v.), with a commission to the secretaryship.
- The father was appointed clerk of the provincial council March 24, 1705 (ibid., 202); member of the council May 30, 1716 (ibid., 261); deputy auditor-general July 2, 1718 (ibid., 267); one of the commissioners for running the Connecticut boundary-line Oct. 28, 1718 (ibid., 268); elected to act as president of the council March 10, 1736 (ibid., 325); and appointed lieutenant-governour Oct. 30, 1736 (ibid., 328), holding this office until the arrival of his successor, George Clinton, Sept. 22, 1743 (q. v.).
- By royal mandate the younger Clarke was made a member of the provincial council Oct. 28, 1738 (ibid., 333); and was twice reappointed to this office, on Oct. 12, 1753 (ibid., 390), and March 22, 1766 (ibid., 515). He held the office of provincial secretary, either concurrently or ad interim, in person or by deputy, nearly to the Revolution. We find, July 29, 1745, a commission was given to John Catherwood to be secretary during Clarke's absence (ibid., 349), and that, in the following year, July 3, Secretary Clarke deputed Goldsbrow Banyer to be his deputy (ibid., 356), a position already transferred to Banyer by Catherwood (ibid., 354). On Dec. 1, 1772 (q. v.), Gov. Tryon described an astonishing number of offices, then held by the younger Clarke, in a report to the home government, but evidently without the result of disturbing Clarke in the office of secretary; for the records show that, as late as April 16, 1774 (ibid., 501), Clarke appointed Samuel Bayard his deputy to the office he had held so long.

- 1738 The council makes an examination of shipmasters concerning small-pox in the West Indies.—Cal. Coun. Min., 332. On June 27, it ordered that vessels from there and South Carolina be quarantined near "Bedlars" (Bedloe's Island.—Ibid., 332. See June 28.
- 24 The city is quarantined, through fear that small-pox and other malignant fevers may be brought in from South Carolina, Barbadoes, Antigua, and other places, where they have occasioned great mortality. Bedlow's Island is made the first quarantine station. The mayor procured on June 27 the order of council which required "that one of the Pilots for this Port be Constantly in waiting at or near sandy hook," and go on board all in-bound vessels and inform all the shipmasters from those places "that it is the Order of this Board, that before they Come into this Harbour they first Anchor as near as may be to Bedlows Island, and there wait till they be Visited by some of the Physicians of this City, and not put on shoar any of the Goods or Persons on board, nor suffer any to Come on Board of them, but such as shall be sent by the Mayor to Visit them, until Report be made to the Mayor of the Condition and State of health of the People on board, and until he has leave to wey Anchor and Come into the harbour and unload." Whereupon the common council appoints Dr. Roeliff Kierstedt to execute the order of council, and to report to the mayor regarding the health of the persons on board such vessels, that measures may be taken to prevent "any Infectious Pestilential or Malignant Disease or Distemper" being brought into the city. The city marshals and constables are also given special orders to make the order of council more effective.—M. C. C., IV: 429-30. See April 6, 1742.
- July The committee for repairing the city hall (see Oct. 28, 1737) 15 having represented to the common council "that the Cupulo of the Said City Hall is so Very Rotteen that it Cannot be Repaired and that the same is dangerous to be kept Standing any longer for fear of it's falling," and "this Court" having viewed it and taken the advice of workmen, it is resolved that it be taken down and that the committee "Employ Workmen and purchase Materials for the taking down the same and for Erecting a New Cupulo in the Room there of the like dimensions with all Convenient Expedition."—M. C. C., IV: 433.
- 24 There is advertised to be sold on Sept. 2 at public vendue, at "the Exchange Market House, near the Long Bridge," the plantation of the late Thomas Coddington, of 38 acres, described as: "All in the Bounds of Harlem, in the Out-Ward of the City of New York. The said Plantation is Pleasantly situated, about five Miles out of Town, on the South East Side of the Island, fronting the River, and is in breadth along the Waterside, Forty Rods. There are great plenty of Lobsters and Fish near the House . . ."—N. Y. Gaz., July 24, 1738. This market-house was called by De Voe the Broad Street Market. "Four years after," he says, "David Grim, on his map [Pl. 31-a, Vol. I], marks it down with the name I have adopted for it." The Bakewell View of 1746 (Pl. 33, Vol. I), he says, "shows this market-house, directly at the foot of Broad Street, but no reference is given to it. A mistake, however, is made, by noticing the 'Meal or Wall Street Market-House' as the Exchange, (No. 15). The 'Old Exchange' in Broad Street was not built, or commenced, until the year 1752; and the intention, no doubt, was to represent this old 'Broad Street Market' as Lyne did, when he called it 'the Exchange,'" on his map.
- De Voe adds: "I find no further reference to it; and as it had stood more than fifty years, I am inclined to think that about the period of 1746 it was taken down."—Market Book, 77-85. Cf. Pl. 27, Vol. I. See also July 9, 1691; Feb. 18, 1692; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958.
- Aug.— A committee, including the rector and two wardens of Trinity 15 Church, is appointed to inquire into the claims of the heirs of the Rev. Everaudo Bogardus to part of the Church Farm.—Trin. Min. (MS.). This action was taken more than 70 years after the sale of the farm to Lovelace.—Dix, Hist. of Trin. Church, I: 220. It marks the first claim set up by the heirs of Anneke Jans to Trinity Church property. For some account of these claims, which were pressed for over a century, see "Title, Parish Rights and Property of Trinity Church" in Trin. Church Pamphlets (1857); Bogardus vs. Trinity, Sandford's Chancery Rep., IV: 695; 5 ibid., 633.
- 15 The common council orders that Abel Hardeubrooke, the store-keeper of the powder-house, "Cause A sufficient five Rail fence to be placed round the Hill or summit whereon the Powder House of this City is Erected."—M. C. C., IV: 435. See July 6, 1728.
- Trinity vestry orders "That a Subscription paper for an Organ for the Church be prepared and laid before the Vestry at their next meeting."—Trin. Min. (MS.).—See June 1, 1739.
- The committee for carrying on the building of the church is instructed to have Colonel Fletcher's arms put up in the most convenient place.—Trin. Min. (MS.).—See July 2.
- The lieutenant-gouverneur, assembly, and council join in an address of condolence to the king on the death of the queen.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 717. See Nov. 20, 1737.
- Clarke, in a message to the assembly, recommends the finishing of the "New Fortifications, that they may in all Events be in a Condition of Defence," and the making over of "that Part of the Barracks in the Fort, which were left unrepaired, when the others were repaired."—Assemb. Jour., I: 735. He made the same recommendation to the council.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 717. See Sept. 2, 1737; Aug. 29, 1739.
- To fulfill the requirements of the act of the legislature of Dec. 16, 1737 (q. v.), entitled "An Act for the better Extinguishing of Fire that may happen in the City of New York," the common council nominates and appoints 30 men as firemen, and orders "that their Names be Registered and Entred with the Clerk of the Peace." Their names and occupations are entered in the Minutes of the Common Council under this date. They are described as "All Stroug, Able Discreet honest and sober Men and are all Freeman or Freeholders" of New York; and have "Voluntarily Offered themselves and are willing to Accept of the said Office of Firemen of the said City for the Consideration and on the Terms mentioned in the said Act."—M. C. C., IV: 436-38. To this entry in the Minutes is added "A Law for Regulating and Declaring the Duty of Firemen in the City of New York."—Ibid., IV: 438-40. There is a copy of this law, printed by Bradford, in the N. Y. Pub. Library. A digest of these rules and regulations was published in the Man. Com. Com. (1856), 529.
- As the lieutenant-gouverneur did not appoint a mayor on Sept. 29, as usual, Mayor Richard continued in office, as permitted by the charter in such cases; he now administers the oaths to the new aldermen and other officials.—M. C. C., IV: 444-45.
- Samson Benson receives from the town of Harlem the privilege 25 "to place a mill, with a dam, on the Mill Camp, wherever it may suit him best." This right is to revert to the town should the mill cease running for two years. He chose to erect his mill on the south of the Mill (Benson's) Creek, south of the present 108th St., near its intersection with Third Ave. "It was scarcely finished when he died, in 1740."—Riker, Hist. of Harlem, 591. On May 30, 1753, Benjamin Benson, son of Samson, obtained a deed for the Mill Camp, which was situated north of the Mill Creek. "During the revolution the old mill on the south side of the creek was burnt, and, after the war, Benj. Benson built a new one [a frame building three storeys high] on the Mill Camp Farm, as well as a substantial stone dwelling."—Riker, op. cit., 591. The site of this mill was in the line of 108th St., and partly in the block between Second and Third Aves. It was erected about 1791 (Riker, 489), and demolished in 1827, when the Harlem Canal was begun; but the dwelling stood until 1865 (ibid., 591). See also Harlem Records, 701.
- The Treaty of Vienna, between France and Austria, is signed. Nv. 8-18

1739

A published notice states that the meetings of the "Ancient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons" will hereafter be held at the "Montgomeries Arms Tavern."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 22, 1738(g). On Sept. 24, another meeting was announced to be held at this same tavern. Its location is not recorded.—N. Y. Gaz., Sept. 17-24, 1739.

"The Brethern of the Ancient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons, are desired to take Notice, That the Lodge, for the future, will be held at the Montgomerie Arms Tavern, on the first and third Wednesdays in every Month. By Order of the Grand Master C. Wood, Secretary."—N. Y. Gaz., Jan. 16-22, 1739. The secretary was Charles Wood.—Ibid., Sept. 24, 1739.

At Mr. Holt's long room, there is to be performed on this day 12 Feb. "A new Pastomime Entertainment in Grotesque Characters call'd the Adventures of Harlequin and Scaramouch or the Spaniard Trick'd. To which will be added an Optick, wherein will be presented in Perspective several of the most noted Cities and remarkable Places both of Europe and America. With a new Prologue

1739 and Epilogue address'd to the Town, The Epilogue to be spoken
Feb. by Master Holt," etc. The advertisement is signed "Vivatres."— 12 N. Y. Jour., Feb. 5, 1739. This "Optick" is the earliest example found, in New York City's annals, of what may be considered a primitive precursor of the moving-picture show of to-day. A similar optical contrivance, for showing foreign views and other pictures, was in use in this city ten years later.—See Dec. 5, 1748, where it is more fully described. See also the essay on "Peep-show Prints," by F. Weitenkampf, in N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin, XXV:
359 (June, 1921).

19 "To be sold by John Miller formerly Gardner of the Old Bowling Green, several sorts of Garden seeds, of the best sorts, and fresh at reasonable Rates and all Sorts of Snuff, Pigtail and cut Tobacco at his House, next Door to Samuel Heaths, near the Fort in New York."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 19, 1739.

21 A second performance of "The Adventure of Harlequin and Scaramouch, or The Spaniard Trick'd," was advertised to take place on the evening of this day at Mr. Holt's long room.—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 13-20, 1739. Holt was a dancing teacher. On July 4, 1737 (q. v.), he advertised a hall at the house of Mr. De Lancey, on Broad and Pearl Sts., and it is possible that the "Loog Room" used for this pantomime performance was there, although no other reference has been found to its conversion into an inn until 1762.

Mar. This being the day appointed for electing representatives for 13 the city and county of New York to the general assembly, six candidates are "put up in the Field," where "usually" they choose them, and "a Pole being demanded," they adjourn to the city hall, where the poll is continued until about midnight. Adolph Philipse, Col. John Moore, David Clarkson, and William Roome are chosen.
James Alexander and Cornelius van Horn are defeated by a close vote, the total number cast being 2,532.—N. Y. Gaz., March 13-20, 1739.

20 Opposite "the New Bowling Green" is the address given for a vendue sale at a private residence in Broadway.—N. Y. Gaz., March 13-20, 1739. For the origin of the Bowling Green, see April 6, 1733.

27 At this period, the general assembly meets in "the Assembly Chamber in the City-Hall." The "Council Chamber in the City-Hall" is another apartment in the same building (Assemb. Jour., I: 749); and still another room used for legislative purposes is
"the Council Room in Fort-George" (ibid., I: 751). See also
Oct. 26, 1736.

" Clarke advises both the assembly and the council that one part of the barracks in Fort George will tumble down if not speedily repaired.—Assemb. Jour., I: 750; Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 726. See Sept. 5, 1738. For further comments by Clarke regarding repairs to the fort, see April 15-24, 1741.

Apr. Jacques Cortelouyou (2d) and others petition the provincial authorities — for land under water and the privilege to keep a ferry at the Narrows.—Cal. Land Papers, 238. See April 3, 1740.

A ferry is also established between Rye, in Westchester Co., and Oyster Bay.—Ibid., 238; Cal. Coun. Min., 333. See Oct. 7, 1745.

3 Col. Robinson informs the vestry of Trinity that, pursuant to an order made at the last meeting, he has paid Richard Nicholls, deputy receiver-general, the quit-rents due to "his Majesty" for the church's farm and garden, and taken the following receipt for them on the back of the grant from Lord Cornbury: "New York 12th March 1738/9 Then received of M<sup>r</sup> Joseph Robinson one of the Church wardens of Trinity Church in the City of New York Sixty Bushells of wheat being the Rent Reserved on a Lease from his late Majesty King William to the Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New York in Communion of the Church of England as by Law Established for a farm and Garden with their appurtenances then Called the Kings farm and Garden, which said Sixty Bushells of wheat is in full of the rent reserved from the Commencement of the said Lease which was on the first of August 1698 to the Vacating the said Lease by Act of General Assembly passed in the year 1699. Also Received from the said M<sup>r</sup> Joseph Robinson four pounds Nineteen Shillings and three pence proclamation money in full of the Quit rent due to his Majesty on a Grant of the aforesaid farm Garden and appurtenances to the said Rector and Inhabitants by Letters patent under the great Seal of the province of New York bearing date the 23<sup>d</sup> Nov<sup>r</sup> 1705 which said Sum is in full of the Quit rent reserved (being three Shillings  $\frac{2}{3}$  Annuum) to the 25th of December Last I say received by me Richard Nicholls Dep<sup>y</sup> Rect<sup>r</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup>."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

As one-third of the members of the assembly have not had the small-pox, and "scruple to attend the Service of the House in this City," the house adjourns to meet at the home of Captain Warren at Greenwich the next day.—Assemb. Jour., I: 751. See
Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 953.

" Trinity vestry, agreeable to its resolutions of May 19, 1738, and April 3, 1739 (see Trin. Min., MS.), applies to the common council for permission to enlarge the churchyard by taking into it, on its south side, the lane or alley between the churchyard and the church's garden, which the city has permitted for some time to be used as a passage-way. The vestry proposes to make instead an other alley, at least 20 feet wide, on the south part of the church's garden, adjoining the Lutheran Church, to be called Robinson Street; and "the Post and Rail fence," which is on the street fronting the churchyard, will be extended along the north side of the proposed new lane. The common council grants the petition, with the understanding that the new alley "shall Remain as a Publick Laoe or Alley forever and that the same shall be Recorded as such."—M. C. G., IV: 456. The vestry had given its committee power the day before "to agree with the members of the Lutheran Church about taking in Some part of their Land for the Conveniency of a Street or Laene on the South part of the Churches Garden fronting the broadway and giving them other Lands in Lieu thereof."—Trin. Min. (MS.). Robinson St., thus laid out, was later called Auchmuty St., and then Rector St. Long after the name of Robinson St. was abandoned for this street, it was applied to the street that later was named Park Place.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1008.

" In recognition of advances of "A large sum of Mooney," without interest, which Christopher Banker made out of "his own Moneys" to be used in repairing the city hall and ferry-house, the common council presents him with the "Tackle and Block which was used in Repairing the City Hall."—M. C. G., IV: 454. This date probably marks the completion of these repairs. See Oct.
28, 1737.

13 The assembly having, on April 4, transferred its sessions from the city hall to Greenwich, orders the clerk to prepare an account of the expense of moving, etc.—Assemb. Jour., I: 754. The change was due to the prevalence of small-pox in the city. On April 14, the house returned to the assembly-room of the city hall, although the small-pox was "still very rife."—Ibid., I: 755.

18 On April 18, Clarke notified the Duke of Newcastle that, "the Small Pox being in Town and one third part of the Assembly [nine of the 27 members] not having had it," he had given them leave "to sit at Greenwich, a small village about two or three miles out of town, but there too their fears of that distemper continuing," he was obliged, on their request, "to give them leave to adjourn to the fourth Tuesday in August."—N. Y. Cal. Docs., VI: 140. The assembly did not convene before Aug. 28.—Assemb. Jour., I: 755.
At that time the disease was still raging, see Aug. 30.

23 "On Board the Ship Charming Polly, Capt. Edward Bayley Master, now riding at Anchor in the Harbour of New York, there are several Palatine and Switzer servants to be Sold; some are Farmers and some are Trades-men. To be agreed for on board the Ship, and taken off from thence by the Buyer."—N. Y. Gaz., April 16-23, 1739. The modern construction put upon this announcement and others like it might readily be that white people were sold into slavery, but this was not the case. See June 19 and Nov. 14, 1728; June 9, 1746; Aug. 19, 1751; 1759; Jan. 3, 1774.

May The city grants to Henry Bogert a water lot extending from the 15 rear of his lot on the Hudson River (between the present Morris Street and Battery Place) to a line 200 feet beyond low-water mark, with the obligation that whenever three or more owners of lots of land and water lots in the neighbourhood shall agree to make wharves and begin filling up their water lots, he shall wharf out and fill up as far as his neighbours do and make a street 40 feet in width near high-water mark.—M. C. G., IV: 458-59; Liber City Grants, B: 353. Several other grants of water lots in the neighbourhood were made on similar terms within a few years.—Ibid., B: 357-74.
The street to be gained out of the North River is Washington St.
The other street, 40 feet wide, is Greenwich St. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1001, 1011.

" A committee of the common council is appointed "to make an additional Building at the Poorhouse of this City for A Receptacle and Conveniency of Such unhappy Poor as are or shall be Visited with any Malignant or Onnoxious disease."—M. C. G., IV: 459.

- 1739 William Cornell, tenant of the ferry-house and ferry at Nassau Island, obtains an abatement of a part of his rent on account of losses due to the spread of small-pox, "which deters both Strangers and Travellers from Coming to Town, and the Country People from Coming to Market as Usual." His petition states that, when he took the ferry on March 25, 1738, he "provided himself with Boats Negroes and all Other Conveniences."—M. C. C., IV: 461. This seems to indicate that negro slaves were used to man the ferry-boats.
- 26 James Morris says in a letter: "James Alexander who lives in New York is now building a large house there, this will require his attendance there this summer." As explained by Livingston Rutherford, the house was situated in Broad Street, and was sold in 1764 by William Alexander to Peter van Brugh Livingston. The following description of it was written by a great-grand-daughter of James Alexander: "It contained apartments innumerable, sumptuously furnished in all the pomp of that period. There was the great dining room and the lesser dining room, the room hung with blue and gold leather, the green and gold room, the little front parlour and the little back parlour and the great tapestry room above stairs; besides red rooms and green rooms and chintz rooms up stairs and down, furnished with damask hangings, costly carpets and buffets set off with massive plate. Adjoining this dwelling there was a large garden running back for a considerable distance and extending on one side to the Jews Alley now Mill St. And here in their proper seasons might be found in great profusion the favourite flowers of our ancestors, pass bioemies of all hues, laylocks and tall May roses and snow balls intermixed with choice vegetables and herbs for pharmacy, all bounded and hemmed in by huge rows of neatly clipped box edging."—Rutherford, Family Records and Events, 42.
- June Trinity vestry agrees to employ John Clemm of Philadelphia to make an organ for Trinity Church.—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Aug. 25, 1738; Aug. 5, 1741.
- 4 All persons having demands on Obadiah Hunt, "late Tavern-keeper," are desired to come to his house in Dock (Pearl) St. "Likewise the Houses and Lots in Costom-House-street [Pearl St.] next doore to the Old Costom-House, wherein Mr. W. English [tavern-keeper] now lives, are to be Sold at a reasonable Rate by the said Hunt."—N. Y. Jour., June 4, 1739. It appears probable, from this reference to the "Old Costom-House" (see also April 19, 1740), that, prior to this date, the custom-house had been moved to No. 1 or No. 3 Broadway.—Cf. May 19, 1740.
- Aug. The grand jury brings in a bill against John Ten Eyck "for pulling Down and Impairing part of the fortification Called the Battery." He is fined 10 shillings.—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 104, 116-17.
- 16 Clarke receives from the Duke of Newcastle a letter of June 19, enclosing the king's warrant authorizing Clarke to grant letters of marque and reprisal against the Spaniards. The next day he issued a proclamation authorizing reprisals.
- London newspapers which came into New York two days later alarmed the people of New York with apprehensions of a rupture with Spain, "with whom they fear France will take part against us, in which event as we are a frontier Province bordering on Canada they expect the first attack will be made upon us." Clarke therefore sent to the lords of trade, on Aug. 30, an account of the stores, etc. in the fort at New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 147; Cal. Coun. Min., 334. See Aug. 21.
- 21 There is adopted by the provincial council the form of commission and instructions to be given to commanders of private men-of-war (privateers), as well as the form of bond for their owners.—Cal. Coun. Min., 334. This was in accordance with the king's warrant, received Aug. 16 (q. v.). Other forms of the same kind were adopted on May 17, 1740, after the declaration of war.—Ibid., 335.
- 23 The common council appoints a committee who, with the assistance of the city surveyors, are required "to make A survey and Draught, of A Street to be laid out at or Near High Water Mark on Hudsons River, from the Lott late of Charles Sleigh in the Broadway [No. 1 Broadway] of this City to the Lott of Gerardus Comfort," and report as soon as possible.—M. C. C., IV: 463. This was the beginning of the laying out of Greenwich St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1001. Comfort's lot was near the present Thames St. The new street was reserved and provided for in a water grant made to Trinity Church in 1751.—M. C. C., V:
- 330-31. The common council ordered that it be surveyed north of Lispenard's in 1798.—M. C. C. (MS.), XII: 375. It was ceded by Trinity Church from Brannon (Spring) St. northward to the north boundary of the church property, 1808 (ibid., XVIII: 37-39), and in the same year ordered opened between Charlton and Christopher St. (ibid., XIX: 213, 222); further order for opening to Christopher Sts., 1809 (ibid., XX: 169, 224); continued through the land of Richard Amos, 1810 (ibid., XXI: 350); regulated between Hammersley and Christopher Sts., 1818 (ibid., XXXIV: 197). In part, Greenwich Street was the old "Road to Greenwich." The early maps to be consulted are Maerschalc's, 1755 (Pl. 34, Vol. I); and Ratzer's Survey of 1766-7 (Pl. 41, Vol. I).
- Clarke, in an address to the legislature, refers to the decay of ship-building, "which for many years has been much regretted but little attempted to be retrieved." One cause of it, he says, "is not in the power of the merchant or Builder at present to remove nor do I see any other way whereby a Remedy may be applied than by your aid. If the Demands of the Builder be higher than in the neighbouring Provinces, the Merchant will not, cannot build here without injuring himself. If the Builder undertake the work at the same Rate that is given in the neighbouring provinces, he complains and I fear with too much truth that he labours only to be undone for the excessive wages of Carpenters which he must be obliged to hire for want of apprentices runs away with his profit and he cannot take apprentices being unable in his present poverty to maintain them."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 731-32.
- Clarke, in a message to the assembly, asks provision for finishing the battery at New York before it is too late to "be put in such a Condition as may secure you from the Attempts of an Enemy."—Assemb. Jour., I: 756. On Sept. 4, in reply to a request of the house for his estimate of the expense of repairing and finishing the battery, he sent them an estimate of £1,800.—Ibid., I: 758. See Sept. 19.
- Clarke writes to the lords of trade: "The orders I have received to Grant letters of marqz and reprisal against the Spaniards, and the English new[s] papers of the month of June have possessed the people of this Province with apprehensions of a sudden war with Spain, with whom they fear France will take part against us."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 147. See Aug. 16.
- The members of the assembly who have not had small-pox, being "still scrupulous to attend the Service of this House, in the City of New-York, because it is not yet free from that Distemper," suggest that they meet at the "House of Mr. Harmanus Rutgers, near the Fresh-Water." This is agreed to.—Assemb. Jour., I: 756. For the use of the same house during a previous epidemic, see Aug. 25, 1731.
- The commissioners appointed to erect a battery in the city are ordered to lay before the house an account of the £6,000 "received by them for that work."—Assemb. Jour., I: 757. On Sept. 7, they reported that they had expended, "for Materials and Workmanship for the said Battery, and making 16 Carriages, building a Store House and other Materials," £5,913:16:2, and still had in their hands £863:10:0.—Ibid., I: 758.
- Zenger petitions for payment for his services as printer to the colony from June 15, 1737, to Oct. 28, 1738.—Assemb. Jour., I: 759. On Oct. 17, he was allowed £12:10:0.—Ibid., I: 769.
- Rutgers petitions for a grant of a piece of ground 50 feet wide "at the place where his Drain is now laid into Hudsons River Afore said as far as low Water Mark for the Making and Erecting thereon and therein such sufficient fences, Works Engines or Machines as may be proper and usefull for securing & preserving the Said Drain." This grant is made in fee simple at a yearly rent of six shillings.—M. C. C., IV: 465-67. See April 6, 1733.
- Clarke, with the aid of a carpenter, estimates the expense of repairing the barracks in Fort George at £500.—Assemb. Jour., I: 759-60. An appropriation of £425, to rebuild barracks at Fort George, was made on Sept. 21, 1744 (q. v.).
- A committee of the assembly passes a resolution allowing £1,200 for putting the battery at "Copsy in the City of New York in a Posture of Defence." This sum includes £863:10:0, still in the hands of the commissioners who erected the battery.—Assemb. Jour., I: 760, 761, 765. See Sept. 4, 1739; and July 6, 1745.
- Again the Militia Act is revised. For the last revision, see July 24, 1724. The military exercises are now less frequent, being "at least once in every Year, or Oftener if occasion shall require." The troopers for the city and county of Albany "shall be clad in

Aug. 23
29
"
30
"
Sept. 1
13 15
17
19
Oct. 3

1713 Govt. Effects

Inventory and Recd. Sales of the goods and Chattels which were of the late John Montgomery Esq. Esq. of the Province of New York, and John T. de la Roche, Esq. of the Province of New York, Administrators.

Sold James L. Lewis	1 pipe old Medicines Water	24
	12 Wine Glasses	120
	12 Red and Blue China Custians	3
	12 Scotch Tobacco and 10 other	7.2
	12 Ivory handles Brass 1/2 pdr	1.11
	12 Ivory handles of silver and brass	1.68
	12 Curious Horrids Wooden Castles	6
	1 pair old Ivory Ring, above 4 holes	2
	1 Yellow Cabard	3
	1 Yellow Long Chain	4.4
	1 Yellow Embell. Wooden Coll	4.10
	1 pair of old Ivory and brass, large, above	4.2
	1 pair of Ivory, Polish and 2 pins	16
	1 Chainy Watch	1.8
	1 pair of Ivory embell. Wooden Custians	2.2
	1 large glass with gilded frame	8
	1 large silver pan	13
	1 Cup or Silver Pan	12
	1 very large Silver pan & Cover 14 x 22 1/2	110.20
	1 large Copper fire water Cover	112.6
	1 large Polishing pan and 2 hours in it	216
	2 Shimmars, 1 of iron and 1 of steel	14
	1 Copper Gutter, looking 1/2 of globe	1.2.6
	1 Copper Fork with red silver	2.2.6
	2 large silver Pewee plates	3.6
	1 and 1/2 size 2	1.2
	1 Silver wine Cup	1.6
	12 pieces of Silver 2 1/2	3.10
	1 and 1/2 size 2 1/2	2.6.8
	1 and 1/2 size 2 1/2	3
	1 and 1/2 size 2 1/2	5.2
	1 and 1/2 size 2 1/2	3
	1 and 1/2 size 2 1/2	110

The Corpor<sup>n</sup> of New York To Charles Le Roux Esq

Sh. B. 3 Silver in ounces for the office of Mayorality

For engraving the seal

5:9:3

Charles Le Roux

City of New York Sept 16. 1735 The Committee for enquiring the publick acct of this City & County do and do the above and do 5:9:3 and and do the same and then of the the above named Charles Le Roux John Moore
Overseer of the Seal
John Ford
Septimus Bayard

A. PART OF FIRST PAGE OF INVENTORY OF GOV. MONTGOMERIE'S EFFECTS, 1731. SEE P. 523.
B. CHARLES LE ROUX'S BILL FOR MAKING THE MAYORALTY SEAL, SEPT. 16, 1735. SEE P. 541.

1739 blew coats, and their hats Shall be laced with Silver," and they Oct. shall be 60 in number, besides officers. The quota of every 3 other troop in the colony shall be 50, besides officers. Persons nominated to fill vacancies in troops which cannot be supplied by volunteers shall not be under 21 years of age. The age for original enlistment is, as before, from 16 to 60 years inclusive. The "companies of Cadets [cadets] & blew artillery in the City of New York" are each to consist of 100 men besides officers. The furnishings of foot soldiers are as in the law of 1724. No "Military Commission officer" shall be liable to serve as constable, unless the commission is obtained after election as constable.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 3-14. An amendment on Nov. 3, 1740, provided generally for employing the militia in cases of sudden emergency in keeping watch (ibid., III: 69); and another on Nov. 27, 1741 (q. v.), made this specially applicable to the city of New York. The law expired
 Dec. 1, 1743, and a new law was enacted Dec. 17, 1743 (q. v.).
 See also June 13, 1741.

14 The sundry branches of the city's revenue for the past year were: ferry rent, £183;10;5½; licenses, £127;14; rent of water lots, £54;17;1½; freedoms, £24; dock rent, £18;13; land rent, £9;18; ropewalk, £2;10; fines, £1;18; total, £432;10;6½.—Journals of the City Chamberlain, III: 39. A committee of the common council appointed this day to audit the public accounts reported on April 10, 1740, that it found, on examination of the treasurer's books from Oct. 14, 1737, to Oct. 14, 1739, that there was a balance to the city's credit of £321;6;11.—M. C. C., IV: 483.

15 John Cruger (see July 15, 1698) takes oath as mayor, succeeding Paul Richard.—M. C. C., IV: 472. He was continued mayor for five terms, and died in 1744 while still in office.—Ibid., V: 131.
 For a brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 406-8;
 Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 258.

23 England declares war on Spain because English merchants have been forcibly prevented from trading with the Spanish-American colonies. This struggle later became merged in the War of the Austrian Succession. Peace was signed at Aix-la-Chapelle on Oct. 7, 1748.

25 The amount appropriated by the act of Nov. 28, 1734 (q. v.), for erecting a battery on Copey Rocks in New York, proving insufficient, another act is passed "for Compleating and Building the Fortifications," and for other purposes "for the Defence and Security of this Colony." This new act states that the battery was erected on Copey Rocks. It authorizes John Cruger, John Rosevelt, John D. Witt Petrie, and Capt. Cornelius D. Peyster, with the advice of the New York members of the general assembly, and with the approval of the governor, "To cause a Sufficient quantity of Large Stones to be Lay'd or thrown so far Round the outside of the Said Battery Somewhat higher than the Lower part of the Frame work, as Shall be Deemed necessary to Secure the Foundation, to fill up with Earth Sand or other proper Materials round the Inside about Twenty feet more than is filled already, and so much at the East & West End of the Store House, as by the advice aforesaid Shall be Deemed needful." They are also "To procure at Least Thirty New Carriages more for the Great Guns,
 . . . To remove the Great Guns design'd & Intended for the Said Battery, to their Proper Places on the Platform thereof, To provide one or Two good Engines and Ropes for mounting of them, and to make of Sods So much of the Parpet as Shall be Judgd proper & when that is Done to Dispose of the Brick & Stone the Same is now composed of to the best advantage."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 14-15.

Nov. The death of William Sharpas occurs. He had held the office of 4 town clerk and clerk of the peace of New York City "for about 46 Years" (see Oct. 14, 1692), "to the Universal Satisfaction of all."
 He was buried Nov. 6.—N. Y. Jour., Nov. 12. The common council expressed concern at the loss of one who had served them "with great Integrity."—M. C. C., IV: 479. For an inventory of the records turned over to his successor, see Nov. 21.

9 Col. Morris moves "that as the Road from New-York to King's Bridge, is so narrow, that Coaches and Chaises, cannot pass or repass without Danger, as well as inconvenient for other Carriages;
 he might have Leave to bring in a Bill, at the Beginning of the next Meeting of this House, for extending the Rutts of [widening] the said Road."—Assembl. Jour., I: 773. Regarding the repair of this road, see Nov. 7, 1741.

17 A provincial law is enacted to apply the moneys granted for the support of the government to certain specified purposes. Among the many payments mentioned in the act are the following: To Alexander Lamb (door-keeper of the assembly), £9;15;6 for expenses incurred in cleaning and repairing the assembly chamber, and for "Removing of the Chairs Books & Papers to and from Greenwich and, afterwards to and from the House of Mr. Hermanus Rutgers near the Fresh Waters;" and to Daniel Gautier, £14;3 for making a table for the assembly at Greenwich, and for "fitting & fixing it" afterwards at Mr. Rutgers's.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 38, 40.

An agreement is made by Henry Cruger, Henry Cuyler, Joseph 20 Scott, and Gerardus Duycking to pay Adam van Allen, of Albany, for building a wharf fronting one entire block in the Dock Ward.
 This wharf is to be made of substantial timber 30 feet long, laid as close together as possible, on water lots belonging to "the parties of the first part," 200 feet from their wharves, beginning 170 feet from the west corner of the Old Slip wharf, commonly called Martin Clock's Corner, and running westward on a direct line with the Dock Street wharf. The breadth of the lots is 90 feet.
 The height of the wharf above high water is to be the same as the dock lately made by Henry Cuyler fronting his dwelling in the East Ward. The following specifications are made: Wall plates are to be supplied on the whole length and breadth of the wharf.
 Every eight feet, an anchor of oak timber 20 feet long is to be fixed in the wall plates. At five foot intervals a strong fender is to be driven into the ground, and fastened to the wall plate, for preserving the wharf; and every 20 feet a cedar post is to be set into the wharf for fastening ships. This work is to be finished before Sept.
 20, 1740, when Van Allen shall receive £346 from the partners; each paying in proportion to the breadth of his water lots. They are to supply Van Allen with the necessary stone, and furnish a bond of £200.—From the original agreement, filed in box labelled
 "New-York, 1700-1760," in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
 For location of Cruger's wharf, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III:
 989. By July 1, 1740, it was "begun and partly sunk."—M. C. C., IV: 494.

John Chambers produces, at a meeting of the common council, 21 letters patent appointing him "Common Clerke and Clerke of the peace of this City in the Room of M<sup>r</sup> William Sharpas deceased" (see Nov. 4). It is ordered "that the Executors or Executrix of the Said Late M<sup>r</sup> Sharpas Do Deliver the Charter, the Seal of this Corporation, and all the Records, Books papers And Other things Whatsoever Relating to his Office as Common Clerke of this City into the hands of the Said M<sup>r</sup> Chambers," etc.—M. C. C., IV: 479.
 For a brief sketch of the life of John Chambers, see Man. Com.
Coun. (1860), 609. For the list of the records, etc., delivered to Chambers, see May 14, 1740.

Dec. Dr. John Nicol of this city writes in a letter the following facts regarding the Rev. George Whitefield, the evangelist, now on his 17 way to Georgia: "As soon as he arrived here, he applied himself to the Parson of the English Church (as his Manner is) for the Use of his Church, which was denied him: Application was also made to the Dutch, for their large Church which being also denied him, he went out and preached in the Fields to a very large Auditory of all Professions, Jews and Gentiles. . . . Being denied the other Churches, and the Weather being excessive cold, we offered him our Church [Presbyterian] which he was pleased to accept of, and lectured that Evening to above fifteen hundred People, and so he continued to preach and lecture every Day, while he stayed in the Place, which was but four days."—Am. Mercury (Phila.), Dec.
 17, 1739 (in Antiquarian Soc. collection, Worcester, Mass.).
 See also Belcher, Geo. Whitefield: A Bibliography, 111-19. He visited the city again the following year.—See April 29, and Oct.
 31, 1740.

I 740

In this year, in pursuance of the act of 13 Geo. II, Chap. 7, a — book was opened for entering the names, etc., of naturalized citizens of the province of New York. The original volume is now in the custody of the N. Y. Pub. Library.

— An alphabetical list of the citizens of New York admitted as freemen between 1683 and 1740, and a chronological list of the same admitted between 1740 and 1748, was published by Valentine in his Hist. of the City of N. Y. (1853), 366-78, 385-93.

— About this time, the house of Leonard Lispenard was erected, in what is now the bed of Hudson St., on the south line of Desbroses St.—Rec. Title Guarantee & Trust Co.; cf. Saniford's

1740 Chancery Rep., IV: 731. A tablet has been placed on the building 198 Hudson St. to mark this site. Col. Lispenard's mansion was surrounded with ample grounds, and it was here that he received General Washington when the commander-in-chief reached New York on his way from Philadelphia to Cambridge, June 25, 1775 (q.v.).—19th Ann. Rep., Am. Scen. and Hist. Pres. Soc., 258 et seq. The house was removed about 1813.—Rec. Title Guarantee & Trust Co. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 950; Pl. 175, Vol. III.

In this year, Sir Peter Warren built a country seat at what is now the intersection of Charles and Bleecker Sts., in the district known as Greenwich (see Nov. 17, 1739). The laws before the house sloped down to the Hudson River. In 1745 (see Dec. 17, 1745), when the small-pox raged in the city, the assembly accepted Sir Peter's tender of his country-seat for their deliberations. This structure (later known as the Van Nest Mansion) was torn down in 1865.—N. Y. Eve. Post, Aug. 31, 1881. See also a history of this property in "Miscellaneous MSS." in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. under heading, "Van Nest Mansion"; Man. Com. Coun. (1854), 528; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 953; and "A Map of the Lands belonging to the Estate of the Late Sir Peter Warren lying at Greenwich in the Outward of the City of New York" (1773), Addenda Pl. 5-b, Vol. III, with description on pp. 865-67.

In or about this year, Lady Warren established at Greenwich a school for the neighbourhood children.—See an annotation made upon a map by Gerard Bancker, surveyor, completed for Oliver de Lancey, dated Oct. 8, 1774, in box G-H, Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library. On the modern map, the site of this school is the bed of Eighth Ave., near the corner of Jane St. It is shown on Pl. 41, Vol. I; and on a map by Bancker, now in the author's collection, dated Aug., 1773, which is reproduced as A. Pl. 5-b, Vol. III.

The dry-goods advertised for sale at this period (see also Nov. 18, 1745) include men's velvet, black padusoy (peau-de-soie) and white padusoy, green allepine, taffety, striped, silk tabby, shagreen, widows' crapes, brocaded lustring, satined sarsets, silk camblet, porplin, Irish linen, black bombazine, purple and forest calico, harraline, cherry derry, blue English damask, French double alamide, blue satin, program (grograin), Persian, blue tabby, India brocade, flowered Spanish silk, black figured everlasting, plush, russall, calminico, India dimity, and coarse muslin, also hoop petticoats of three, five, and six rows, pink and white mantua, and scarlet stockings.—From "Hist. of the Domestic Affairs of the Inhabitants of N. Y.," in Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 508.

Valentine illustrates the details of the business establishment of a leading merchant, about 1740, by describing that of Adolphus Philippe, the second son of Frederick Philippe, probably the wealthiest of the Dutch burghers. Adolphus was an importer dealing in every variety of goods. "His store was of the best class of buildings in use for that purpose, and was three stories in height, exclusive of the 'garret' or space under the steep roof, which afforded considerable room. This part of the building being divided into two compartments, was used for storage purposes for grain and other bulky goods. The next or third story was principally used for the sale of light dry goods, hardware, and as a general variety store, similar to the country store of the present day [1858]. The second story was occupied by the same diversity of goods, but in bulkier quantity, and was the proper wholesale department for country merchants. On this floor also was the great chest, in which the money, (there were then no banks of deposit), jewelry, silver-ware, pearls, and wampum, were kept for safety. On the next or first floor were kept the heavy articles (excluding dry goods), appropriate to a general mercantile establishment. In the cellar was iron, iron work, etc. Attached to the premises was a store-house in the yard, and in the rear of the lot on New Street was also a small store-house." Valentine describes, also, the Philippe manor-house at Tarrytown.—Ibid. (1858), 519. See also Abstracts of Wills in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1892), 371, 373.

For an enumeration of the household furniture and negroes of Rip van Dam, at this time, see ibid., 520-21.

Jan. 19 The tavern of John de Hooner, known as the Black Horse Tavern (see Oct. 9, 1727), which stood in William St., south of Exchange Pl., had evidently been closed prior to this time, when the house of Nicholas Ray was advertised as being "opposite to the late Black Horse Tavern."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 19, 1740.

Mc.24 A public vendue is announced for this day "at the House of

Mr. Schurlock, at the Spring Garden," of several lots of land.—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 26-March 4, 1740. Spring Garden was first mentioned in the Minutes of the common council on Nov. 1, 1712 (q.v.). It lay on the east side of Broadway in the block between Ann and Fulton Sts., not including, however, the present irregular angle at Ann St. Its exact location may be seen by a reference to Pls. 26, 27, and 30, Vol. I. The old house or tavern, of which Schurlock seems to have been proprietor at this time, stood in the north-west corner of the garden, directly opposite the later St. Paul's Church. According to Bayles (Old Taverns of N. Y., 165), it was continued after Schurlock's death, by his wife, Eva. For many years the Spring Garden was a familiar landmark in property locations. North of Spring Garden were the Commons. About the year 1755, the garden was laid out into lots, and John Dowers acquired lot No. 4, which was at the south-east corner of the garden on Fair (Fulton) St. Lot No. 1, upon which the old Spring Garden house stood, later came into the possession of Christopher Stymets, and was the subject of litigation in 1774, when Carey Ludlow reported that the value of the property did not exceed £450, while mortgages, principal, and interest amounted to £676. It was therefore ordered that the property be sold. It was described as consisting of a "dwelling-house and a lot of ground fronting the Broadway, opposite St. Paul's Church, usually known by the name of the Spring Garden."—N. Y. Merc., May, 1774. When Christopher Stymets mortgaged this property, in 1761, he bounded it on the north (west) by Broadway, and west (south) by the house and lot in the tenure and occupation of Isaac de Peyster.—Liber Mortgages, I: 300. Although Spring Garden was so often referred to in the early records of the city, only two proprietors of the old tavern, besides Schurlock, are known. George Rorer apparently had the house in 1763 (see Weyman's Gaz., May 16), and Frederick Brideam in 1774 (see July 7, 1774). It is quite true that Dowers had a tavern on his corner lot on Fulton St. and Broadway, but he did not occupy the old Spring Garden House, as stated by Bayles. In 1769, according to Du Simitière, the old building was still in existence, but "had not been improved as a tavern for many years."—See description Pl. 27, I: 257. Maerschalek, a city surveyor, upon whose map of the city in 1754 (Pl. 34, Vol. I) reliance can be placed, shows no buildings in Spring Garden except the old tavern in the north-west corner.

"Ordered that the Rector and Church wardens be pleased to purchase such number of Lewis's Exposition of the Church Catechism lately reprinted by William Bradford in this City as they shall think proper and that the said Rector and Church Wardens do from time to time Deliver them to the Reverend Mr Charlton the Societys Chatechist in order to be by him given and distributed to such Catechisms as he shall think proper."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Petitions from two parties, Jacques Cortelouy (2d) et al. and Thomas Stillwell, are received by the council asking for the ferry rights from Loog Island and Staten Island. On April 12, Cortelouy's petition met with opposition, and, on April 24, it was withdrawn and another substituted.—Cal. Coun. Min., 335. On Aug. 5, Stillwell was granted the sole ferry right from Yellow Hook, Kings County, to the mouth of the Kill van Kull on Staten Island.—Ibid., 336. See, further, June 18, 1753.

The king issues a proclamation at St. James's to encourage trade with America. Referring to an act (Statutes at Large, VI: 379) passed for that purpose by "this present Sessions of Parliament," he points out that he and his successors are empowered by it, "from time to time, during the Continuance of the present or any future War," to grant charters or commissions to enable persons "to join in Expeditions by Sea or Land, and to sail to, and in any of the Seas in America, for the attacking, taking, or destroying any Ships, Goods . . . Settlements, Factories, . . . Forts, Castles, and Fortifications" belonging to the enemy. Full rights of title to such property are assured to the persons taking them. The proclamation is made to inform the soldiers and sailors of the benefits intended for those assisting in "the vigorous Prosecution of the War."—From original broadside in the N. Y. Pub. Library. The war was declared on Oct. 19, 1729 (q.v.).

The common council orders "that Alderman Roome have the fence up between the Garden of the poorhouse and the Ground of John Harris, And that he Agree with the Said John Harris A bout Such part of the fence As is Now Standing."—M. C. C., IV: 483.

A vendue of the docks and ships is ordered to be held on April

1740 26 at the house of William English, "Near the Old Custom House" Apr. (see also June 4, 1739).—M. C. C., IV: 483. For the tavern of 10 William English, see Aug. 2, 1735. Other vendues of slips and markets were held at this tavern on April 25 and Nov. 4, 1741.— Ibid., V: 18, 19, 40.

"The common council directs a committee to lay out, with the assistance of a city surveyor, "the Water Lots from the North Ward [northward] of the Lott formerly Granted to Charles Sleigh to Comforts Wharf."—M. C. C., IV: 484. Sleigh's property was the site of the Kennedy house, now No. 1 Broadway. If he had a water grant (none, however, appears of record) it was probably at this place,—that is, on the present Greenwich St., north of Battery Place. If Comfort's Wharf was the same as Comfort's Dock (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 989), it was about the foot of Thames St. The common council's order, therefore, was a step in the extension of the lower part of Manhattan Island westward into the Hudson River.

13 England's declaration of war against Spain is proclaimed by Lieut.-Gov. Clarke "in the Fort and in the Town, and thro' in all the Counties and Towns and Garrisons in the province." This was done after receipt of a letter from the Duke of Newcastle, dated Oct. 29, 1739, informing Clarke of the declaration of war in England.
 The latter replied on June 14, 1740, that he had issued the proclamation, at the same time issuing another proclamation calling for volunteers to go on an expedition against the more important Spanish settlements in the West Indies.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI:
 162; Cal. Coun. Min., 335. Regarding this expedition, see Oct. 12.

29 Rev. George Whitefield, the evangelist, returns to New York, and preaches in the Commons to about 5,000 people. The next morning he spoke "from a Scaffold, erected for that Purpose."
 That evening, he preached to over 6,000 people.—Whitefield, The Two First Parts of His Life (1756), 349-50. He preached again on May 2 and 4 (ibid., 352); and also daily from Oct. 30 to Nov. 2 (ibid., 420-21). See Oct. 31; see also Dec. 17, 1739.

30 Josiah Quimby, a Quaker, describes in a booklet the science of grinding the best bolting meal, and wins a wager with New York merchants by grinding nearly 18 bushels an hour with grindings-stones four feet, seven inches, in diameter. He also reviews the circumstances of his imprisonment in the goal for debt.—A Short Hist. of a Long Journey, printed by Zenger (1740), in N. Y. Pub.
 Library. In 1721, one Josiah Quimby had been granted the lease of "the fishing place" at Kingsbridge.—See July 8, 1721.

May 3 A proclamation is issued by the governor against impairing or demolishing the fortifications.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 540.

13 Trinity vestry orders that the new organ be placed in the west gallery.—Trin. Min. (MS.). See June 1, 1739; Oct. 1, 1740.

14 John Chambers, who succeeded Will Sharpas as city clerk (see Nov. 21, 1739), reports to the common council the complete list of the books, etc., that he has taken over (see Pl. 34, Vol. IV), as follows:
 "Thirty Six Old books in Dutch of Transports, Notary books, Resolution Books &c: Some With paper Covers, Some Without and Some With Parchment Covers Ten Old Books of Records of the Mayors Court Some With paper Covers and Some With parchment Covers, Book of Declarations in the year 1675 bound in parchment. Book of Declarations in the Year 1677 bound in parchment, In Which Book at the Other End are Recorded Divers Letters of Attorney, Wills Inventory's and Other Writings. Book of Conveyances Without a Cover begun 1665 and Ending 1675 part Dutch and part English.

"Book of Records of Transports No 4 begun 1665 & Ending 1672 Without a Cover. Book of Records of Conveyances &c: paper Cover No 4 begun 1672/3 & Ending 1674 part English part Dutch.
 Nine Large folio Books bound in parchment Containing Minutes and Records of the Mayors Court Now in Use. [A marginal note at this point states: "The first Whereof beginning the 17th day of November 1674 one more large folio book bound in parchm<sup>t</sup> Containing minutes and Records of the Mayors Court"] Two Folio Books of Minutes and Records the first Whereof beginning the 17th day of Novemb<sup>r</sup> 1674 One More Large folio Book bound in parchment Containing Minutes And Records of the Mayors Court of the General Sessions of the peace bound in parchment the first beginning in February 1683/4 One More folio book bound in Parchment Containing Minutes and Records of the Court of General Sessions of the peace Now in Use A Folio Book of Wills and Inventories began the 25th day of January 1687/8 bound in parchment

"A Small folio Book With a parchment Cover Stiche on being Amendment, Explanation, &c: of the Laws from the Year 1665 Inclusive

"A Folio book bound in parchment, Publick Orders and Minutes of Common Council begun the 17th day of October 1675 and Ending the 14th day of October 1691

"A folio book bound in parchment Containing Minutes of Common Council begun the 15th day of October 1691 and Ending the 15th day of february 1702[-3]

"A folio book bound in parchment Containing Minutes of Common Council begun february the 24th 1702[-3] and Ending the 9th day of March 1721[-2]

"A Large Folio book bound in Vellum or parchment Containing Laws orders, Ordinances, and Minutes of Common Council begun
 April 24th 1722 and Now in use five books bound.

"One Tax book Now in Use begun february the 6th 1734/5

"Two books of Entries of Actions Commenced in the Mayors Court

"One book of Entries of Actions in the Mayors Court Now in Use

"Six blotter or minute books of the Mayors Court.

"One blotter or minute book of the Mayors Court Now in Use

"A book bound in Leather Containing the Copy of the Charter Carefully Examined With the Original

"A Vestry book begun January the 9th 1693/4 With a paper Cover and Ending the 8th day of January 1716 [-17]

"A Vestry book bound in parchment begun the 8th day of January 1716 & Now in Use. four books of Registering Indentures of Apprentice Ship, Three bound in parchment, And the Last (Now in Use) in Leather the first beginning february the 19th 1694 [-5]

"A book of Grants from the City beginning the 17th day of November 1685 No 15 bound in parchment

"A book of Grants from the city No. 24 bound in parchment begun Jue the 4th 1701 and Now in Use

"1 Book of Transports No. 12 beginning the 15th day of November 1675 and Ending July the 14th 1683

"2 Book of Conveyances No. 13 begun the 16th July 1683
 and Ending October the first 1687

"3 Book of Deeds, bonds, Mortgages, Letters of Attorney &c
 No. 18 beginning the 10th November 1687 and Ending the 20th of August 1694.

"4 Book of Records of Conveyances, Mortgages Letters of Attorney Bonds Deeds No. 21 beginning the 20th of August 1694 and Ending the 21st Novemb<sup>r</sup> 1698.

"5 Book No. 23 Conveyances Mortgages Letters of Attorney bonds &c: begun the 18th November 1698 and Ending the 21st November 1701.

"6 Book No. 25 Conveyances Mortgages Letters of Attorney and Other Instruments Recorded beginning December the first 1701 and Ending the 11th day of May Anno Domini 1705

"7 Book No. 26 Conveyances Mortgages Letters of Attorney
 &c: begun May the 23<sup>d</sup> 1705 and Ending the 23<sup>d</sup> day of December 1712.

"8 Book No. 28 Conveyances, Mortgages, Letters of Attorney and Other Instruments Recorded &c: begun January 2<sup>d</sup> 1712[-13] and Ending the 26th day of August 1719

"9 Book No. 30 Conveyances, Mortgages, Letters of Attorney and Other Instruments Recorded &c: begun August 28th 1719 and Ending the 26th day of June 1724.

"10 Book No. 31 Conveyances, Mortgages, Letters of Attorney and Other Instruments Recorded &c: begun August the 17th 1724 & Ending the 12th day of October 1734

"11 Book No 32 Conveyances Mortgages, Letters of Attorney
 And Other Instruments Recorded &c. begun the 17th day of October 1734 And Now in Use

"Book of Freeman of the City of New York bound in Vellum

"Book Alphabet of Freeman of the City of New York, bound in Vellum

"A book of Court of Lieutenancy begun October the 16th 1686 bound in parchment

"One Large folio Book blank November 7th 1739 bound in Leather bought by the Above Named M<sup>r</sup> Sharpas for the Use of the Corporation: A Textbook now in Use

"One book of the Records and Minutes of the Mayors Court Omitted in the Above Catalogue

"The Old and New Charter to the City of New York together

"The Old and New Charter to the City of New York together

"The Old and New Charter to the City of New York together

"The Old and New Charter to the City of New York together

"The Old and New Charter to the City of New York together

"The Old and New Charter to the City of New York together

"The Old and New Charter to the City of New York together

- 1740 with a patent for the land between the Wallehough and the Red
 May book on Nassau Island and a Certificate in a Tin box, the City 14 Seal, The Loan Officers Bonds"—M. C. C., IV: 485-88. For a comparison of the above list with the record-books now existing, see Bibliography, Vol. V. For the earliest inventory of city records, see
 Jan. 14, 1680.
- "The mayor informs the common council "that there are Some War like Stores in the Custody of this Corporation which may be Usefull, to the Commissioners of Fortifications at the New Battery," and it is ordered that he "Deliver Such of the said Stores to the Said Commissioners as they may have Occasion for."—M. C. C., IV: 488-89. This step is taken in preparation for the war with Spain.—See April 13.
- 19 The governor's wife, Anne Hyde Clarke, dies. Her body was buried May 22 in a vault in Trinity Church beside the remains of her mother, and the late Lady Cornbury. "And as it was a Pleasure to Her in her life to feed the Hungry," so on the day of her funeral a loaf of bread was given to every poor person who would receive it.—N. Y. Gaz., May 26, 1740; N. Y. Jour., May 26, 1740. "She was the eldest Daughter of the late hon. Edward Hyde, Esq., who descended from one of the most ancient Families in England. They were originally of the Principality of Wales, but settled at Hyde in Cheshire about one hundred years before William the Conqueror came to England. . . . The two Noble Families of the Clarendons and Rochesters are descended from that of the Hydys, as was the late Queens, Mary and Anne, from the Clarendons."—
N. Y. Gaz., May 26, 1740.
- "The two Houses in the Broadway, near the Fort, lately in the tenure of Archibald Kennedy, Esq., are to be Let. Enquire of Peter Bayard, at second River in New Jersey, or Mr. Walter du Bois, jun. in New York."—N. Y. Gaz., May 12-19, 1740. One of these, No. 3 Broadway, was occupied as the custom-house.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 974. Kennedy was the owner of these houses (Nos. 1 and 3 Broadway) when he made his will, March 13, 1745 (q.v.). See also April 21, 1743; Sept. 3, 1744.
- 29 The council lays an embargo on all provisions.—*Cal. Coun.
 Min.*, 335; N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 162. See Aug. 4.
- June Gov. Clarke receives instructions for the expedition against the 23 Spanish colonies. The council orders that a proclamation be issued for the encouragement of volunteers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 335.
- July Orders are issued by the provincial council on this day and 5 later throughout the month appointing various New York citizens to be officers of the companies raised by them.—Cal. Coun. Min., 336.
- 16 The Moravian missionary, Henry Rauch, arrives at New York, having been sent by Count Zinzendorf of Saxony to visit the Indians of the provinces of New York and Connecticut.—A Narrative of the Mission of the United Brethren, etc. (1740-1808). By John Heckewelder; ed. by William E. Connelley (1907), 116. An account of the beginnings of the Moravians or United Brethren in New York City soon after this (1741-1756) is given in a letter from John Ettwein, of Bethlehem, Pa., dated Sept. 14, 1799, addressed to the Rev. Samuel Miller, 158 Broadway.—From records of the United Brethren, in Miller Papers (MSS.), I, in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- 29 Permission is given to several gentlemen, who had "Undertaken to finish the Street Already begun thro' the Hill by the Windmill," to proceed.—M. C. C., IV: 496. This was the extension of the Boston Post Road. See Sept. 8, 1734; Nov. 7, 1741, and PL 27, Vol. I.
- Aug. A sufficient quantity of provisions having been secured for the 4 expedition (see April 3), the embargo laid May 29 is raised.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 336. See, further, Oct. 12.
- 20 A city ordinance is passed "to Prohibit Negroes and Other Slaves Vending Indian Corn Peaches or any other Fruit within this City." The law explains that "of Late Years great Numbers of Negro Indians and Molatto Slaves have Made it a Common Practice of Buying, Sellig and Exposing to Sale, not Only in houses, out houses & yards but Likewise in the Publick Streets
 Within this City, great Quantities of Boiled Indian Corn, Peas Peaches, Apples and other kind of fruit Which pernicious practice is not only Detrimental to the Masters Mistresses and Owners of Such Slaves in Regard they Absent themselves from their Service: But is also productive of Increasing if not Occasioning
 Many and Dangerous favours, and other Distempers & Diseases in the Inhabitants."—M. C. C., IV: 497. Vending boiled corn was a regular custom of the poor of the city a century later.—See Hot Corn, by Solon Robinson (N. Y., 1854).
- A committee of the common council, appointed on April 10, Sept.
 recommends that the board grant Peter Rutgers the "Land and Soil" 19 in the rear of his lot on the Hudson River on condition that Rutgers pay a yearly quit-rent of 8 shillings and that he "Leave a Street of 15 foot at the North Side thereof to the West Side of a Street fronting his Lott . . . and that he Leaves a Street of forty foot Wide at the Extent of the Water Lott to be granted him When he Shall See Cause to Wharf So far into the North River and as he Wharf out Shall Leave a Street or pesidge [sic] of twelve foot So Long till he Comes to the Extent of his Lott."—
M. C. C., IV: 484, 499.
- The common council appoints a committee to inspect the 29
 "Water Engines," and to have the "Boxes" or any other parts of them repaired.—M. C. C., V: 4. This probably means the fireengines, which from time to time were inspected for needed repairs.
 —Cf. ibid., IV: 168, 303.
- Trinity vestry expresses the opinion to the committee in charge Oct.
 that the organ-pipes should "be guilded with gold Leaf."— 19
Trin. Min. (MS.). See May 13.
- A petition of several inhabitants of the Out Ward is presented 4 to the assembly, setting forth "That the King's Road or Highway, is laid out to Adrian Hogland's House, and no farther, so that those who live . . . thereabouts, are obliged to go about eleven Miles round in going to Harlem; whereas, if the King's Road . . .
 be laid out from Adrian Hogland's House, to the King's Road . . .
 at Harlem, it will be no more than three Quarters of a Mile," and asking that it be so laid out accordingly. A hearing is ordered.—Assemb. Jour., I: 783. On Oct. 15, a number of inhabitants and freeholders of the Harlem Division of the Out Ward presented to the assembly a petition urging the rejection of the request of Harman van de Water, Adrian Hooglandt, and others for laying out a common road from Hooghlaot's house to the highway that runs to Harlem. Such action, it was claimed, would be prejudicial to the former, and render their property very uncertain.—Ibid., I: 788.
- At this time the Bloomingdale road stopped at the run of water just north of present 115th St. (see June 19, 1703). Evidently this petition was for a road to be laid out across the land of Hooglandt's neighbours in a north-easterly direction, to intersect the Kingsbridge Road. This cross-road was never made.—See Pl. 86, Vol.
 III. Topographically, it would have been practically impossible to make such a road, as the high bluff on which Columbia University and many other notable buildings now stand, and whose eastern side comprises the slopes of Morningside Park, would have had to be surmounted.
- The first transports carrying troops sail from Sandy Hook for the 12 rendezvous in Virginia, for the expedition against the Spanish in the West Indies (see April 13, 1740). Other transports followed on the 15th.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 170-71.
- Alexander Malcolm presents a petition to the assembly claim- 16
 ing that, although he was granted an annual allowance of £40 as master of the public school for five years, from a fund of peddler's licenses, there remains unpaid to him at the expiration of the five years the sum of £111:2:6.—Assemb. Jour., I: 788. See Dec. 16, 1737. The Assembly took immediate action, and on Nov. 3 aot act was passed holding this amount "A Just debt due to this colony," and ordering its payment.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 86-87.
- Rev. George Whitefield, on his return to New York, records in 11 his Journal: "Met with a bitter Pamphlet wrote against me by some of the Presbyterian Persuasion. . . . Preached in the Morning at Mr. P-u's Meeting-House" (Rev. Ebenezer Pemberton, pastor First Presbyterian Church, on Wall St.).
- On Sat., Nov. 1, he wrote: "Preached twice as Yesterday to very crowded Auditories."
- Sunday, Nov. 2. Of the evening meeting on this day he wrote:
 "after I had begun, the Spirit of the Lord gave me Freedom, till at length it came down like a mighty rushing Wind, and carried all before it. Immediately the whole Congregation was alarmed.
 Shrieking, Crying, Weeping and Wailing were to be heard in every Corner. Men's Hearts failing them for Fear, and many falling into the Arms of their Friends, . . ."
- Monday, Nov. 3. He preached again to larger congregations, "but no crying out. Near 110<sup>l</sup>. Currency were collected for the Orphans."
- Tuesday, Nov. 4. "Preached from a Wagon on Staten Island, to about 3 or 400 People, . . ."—A Continuation Of the Reverend Mr. Whitefield's Journal (1741).

1740 The common council allows John Roome £63:7 for work performed by him on the city hall and the stocks.—M. C. C., V.: 8.
Nov. 4 This is the last reference in the Minutes to the stocks. For a reference to the pillory and cage, see Sept. 10, 1764; and for discussions of various forms of correction, see Man. Com. Coun. (1847), 353-71; ibid. (1849), 365-66, 410, 421-22, 429; ibid. (1856), 430; ibid. (1859), 490; ibid. (1861), 541; ibid. (1862), 699; ibid. (1863), 555; ibid. (1864), 365, 703; ibid. (1865), 776; ibid. (1866), 698, 702; ibid. (1868), 891; ibid. (1869), 852; also Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 194-99.

Dec. 22 Zenger writes: "Our Streets are fill'd, with confused Heaps of Snow, so that the Lovers of Sled-riding can scarcely use them without Danger, the whole Mass fell in one Nights Time, and now the Cold is so excessive, that while I am Writing in a Warm Room by a good Fire Side the Ink Freezes in the Pen."—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 22, 1740.

" In advertisements of dwelling-houses for sale or rent at this period, the number of fireplaces is often considered worthy of special mention, as showing the size and completeness of the residence. For example, the house "over against the Weigh-house next Doore to the Custom House," occupied by William Inglis, is described as containing ten fireplaces.—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 22, 1740.

27 Abraham van Horne's will of this date recites, among other legacies: "I leave to my son David the dwelling house and ground where I now live, also my store house and ground adjoining, both situate on the south side of Wall street . . . I leave to my son Samuel . . . my bolting and baking house and ground, both situate on the north side of Wall street . . ." He makes a legacy also, conditionally, for the children of his "late daughter Mary, late wife of Governor William Burnet."—Abstracts of Wills, III: 340. The lot left to David van Horne was that now (1922) occupied in part by the National City Bank building (formerly the custom-house), and it also included (according to Pelletreau) Hanover St. south of Wall St. Pelletreau further states: "Governor William Burnet had three children by his second marriage, but one of them seems to have died before the above will was made."—Ibid. For the original grant of this ground, see May 25, 1668.

1741

— In this year, the Church of the St. Esprit (see July 8, 1704) was thoroughly repaired.—Wittmeyer's Introduction to Vol. I of Collections of the Huguenot Soc. of Am., XXXIII. It stood on the site of the present 18-22 Pine St. (Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 912), and was described in 1757 as "of Stone, nearly a Square fit was 75 feet long, and 50 feet wide, plain both within and without," "fenced from the Street," and having "a Steeple and a Bell."—Smith, Hist. of the Province of N. Y. (1757), 193; Disowsay, The Earliest Churches of N. Y. and its Vicinity, 212. See, further, Aug. 24, 1743. This church can be seen on Pl. 28, Vol. I. A water-colour sketch, signed by A. J. Davis, and dated 1834, is in the author's collection.

— In the archives of the Reformed Dutch Church of New York, there is a list of the ministers, elders, and deacons of this church from 1741 to 1767. It is printed in Eccles. Rec., IV: 2747-50.

— "The winter which ushered in this year (ever since called the hard winter), was distinguished by the sharpest frost, and the greatest quantity of snow, within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The weather was intensely severe from the middle of November to the latter end of March. The snow, by repeated falls, was at length six feet above the surface of the earth; and the Hudson river passable upon the ice, as low as the capital, within thirty miles from the open sea: cattle of all sorts perished by the want of fodder; and the deer of the forests were either starved or taken, being unable to browse or escape through the depth of the snow. The poor, both in town and country, were distressed for food and fuel; and, by the scarcity of these articles, the prices of almost every thing else was raised, and though since reduced, yet never so low as in the preceding year."—Smith, Hist. of N. Y., II: 69; see also Conn. Gaz. (New London), May 15, 1799.

Jan. — The first magazine published in the United States made its appearance this month. This was The American Magazine, or a monthly view of the political state of the British Colonies. It was projected and edited by John Webbe, and was printed and sold by Andrew Bradford, in Philadelphia. Its appearance was hastened by the announcement of Franklin's forthcoming General Magazine; this appeared three days later. With the number for March, Bradford's publication ceased.—Evans, Am. Bibliography, II: 174.

Another magazine of similar name made its first appearance in Jan Boston in Sept., 1743 (q. v.). 19

The provincial council receives a letter from Admiral Vernon regarding Spanish and French naval movements; and the council orders that no provisions be exported to foreign ports. On Feb. 4, the council forbade the exportation of wheat, but an exception was made on Feb. 6, also the exportation of beer and candles already loaded on board a brigantine before the order of Jan. 19 was allowed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 337.

"The contributors to charitable relief having agreed that their fund of £500 shall be placed in the hands of Abraham Leferters and Abraham van Wyke, "to be employ'd by them from Time to Time, to such Poor House Keepers, Widows, and other necessitous People as may stand most in Need of Relief, during the Severity of this Season," Leferters and van Wyke propose to be at the house of Nicholas Roy (or Ray), "opposite to the late Black Horse Tavern," three days a week—Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays—from nine to twelve a.m. "as well for the Ease of those who are in real Want, as for the more regular Distribution of the Money, for the End it has been given." In this connection, the following notice is published, which serves to explain further the methods of this early instance of charity organization and relief:

"First, That there will be Provided at the said House, a Stock of suitable Provisions and Cloathings, and that all those who shall stand in Real Need of Relief, may make Application for it at the Place and Time above mentioned.

"2dly, That all those who are so Good as to make Enquiry about the Circumstances of the necessitous People, in their respective Wards, are desired to give Information thereof to the Gentlemen above named, and to assist them with their Advice, in making proper Distributions.

"3dly, That if upon such Enquiry and Information, it appears that any Credible Families are in real Want, and scruple to make it known, Care may be taken to have their Necessities Supply'd by private Hands.

"And lastly, That all those who, out of their Affluences, are disposed to send to the House above mentioned, any Provisions, Cloathing or Covering, it shall be kindly Received, and duly applied To Feed the Hungry & Cloath the Naked."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 12 and 19, 1740(1). See also incidents of distress mentioned in ibid., Jan. 5.

"The Beaux Stratagem" is to be presented "at the new Feb. Theatre in the Broad Way."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 2, 1741. 12 This theatre was on the site of parts of 12 and 14 Broadway. It is shown on the manuscript "Plan of the City of New York In the Year 1735."—See Pl. 30, and its description, p. 264, Vol. I.

The house of Robert Hogg is robbed this night of linen and other goods, silver coins, etc., to the value of over £60. Daniel Horsmanden regards this as the first event in the history of the so-called "Negro Plot" of 1741.—Jour. of the Proceedings in the Detection of the Conspiracy formed by Some White People, in Conjunction with Negro and other Slaves (1744), 1. On the following day, a negro named Caesar was arrested at the tavern of John Hughson on the North River. Suspicion fell also upon Hughson, who was believed to have received goods stolen by negroes. On the evening of March 3, his house was searched.—Ibid., 3.

Horsmanden firmly believed in the "Plot," in which opinion he was supported by some of the best intellects of the time. Notwithstanding these facts, the opinion of most writers who have calmly reviewed the occurrences of these troubled times absolves not only the Negroes but also the Roman Catholics from any widespread plot to destroy or obtain possession of the city or government. Nevertheless, the occurrences which followed in such quick succession throughout the years 1741 and 1742 are of such interest and importance, as depicting the frame of mind and attitude of the people, that it has been thought worth while to trace with some particularity the development and details connected with an episode which must always remain a blot upon the history of New York.

Caesar is examined by the justices but denies the charges. Mar. Prince, another negro, is also arrested and examined, but he also denies knowing anything of the robbery. Hughson's house is searched several times but none of the missing articles is discovered.—Horsmanden's Jour., 2-3. 2

Mary Burton, a servant of Hughson, confesses that she knows something about the robbery at Hogg's (see Feb. 28), but she is afraid to reveal it, for fear "she should be murdered or poisoned by 3

- 1741 the Hughsons and the Negroes." She is lodged, for safety, in the city hall with the under-sheriff. Hughson is thereupon examined again, and he finally admits that he knows where some of the stolen articles are hidden; he delivers these to Alderman Banker.—Horsmanden's Jour., 3.
- 4 Mary Burton makes a deposition, declaring: (1) that the negro Caesar (who goes under the name of John Quin) came to Hughson's house at about two o'clock on the morning of March 1, and later gave her two pieces of silver and some linen, and her master a lump of silver; (2) that, soon after, Mr. Mills came to inquire for John Quin and said he had robbed Hogg of linen, silver, and other things; and (3) that as soon as Mills had gone, her mistress hid the linen, first in the garret, then under the stairs, and finally gave it to Mrs. Hughson's mother. Hughson admits that he received the linen and the silver, but he refuses to sign a confession. He and his wife are admitted to bail and recognizances are entered into for their appearance in the supreme court.—Horsmanden's Jour., 3-4.
- 18 White, a plumber, is mending a leak in a gutter between the governor's house and the chapel (in the fort), when a fire breaks out of the roof of the former building.—Horsmanden's Jour., op. cit., 5 and 6. As the structure is covered with cedar shingles, and full of old floors and wainscot, it is past saving before an engine can be brought up.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 156-57; 185-86. With a strong wind blowing from the south-east, the secretary's office, the barracks, and the chapel are also consumed in less than two hours. The fort, fortifications, guns, and carriages are not damaged. Part of the governor's furniture, and most of the books and records, are saved by the activity of the magistrates and inhabitants.—N. Y. Jour., March 23, 1741. For the connection of this fire with the so-called "Negro Plot," see N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 185-86, 187, 196, 197-98, 201-3; Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 794. Regarding the rebuilding of these structures, see Sept. 17, 1741. See also "Governor's House in the Fort," in Landmark Map. Ref. Key, III: 974; "Secretary's Office (first site)," in ibid., III: 975; and "Church in the Fort," in ibid., III: 934. See also reproduction of the manuscript page of William Smith's continuation of his history of the province, where the fire is mentioned, Pl. 35, Vol. IV.
- 19 The recorder, Daniel Horsmanden, having conveyed to the common council a representation from the lieutenant-governor and council "that in the Dreadful Calamity Which happened Yesterday the Secretary's Office was Entirely Destroyed," and the lieutenant-governor having "Desired that this board would Assign the Common Council Room for the Keeping the Publick Books and Records of the Province. During the present Exigency. Until Another proper place Can be Provided by the Legislature," the board expresses its approval and appoints the recorder to so inform the lieutenant-governor.—M. C. C., V: 16; Cal. Coun. Min., 337.
- The common council orders 100 new leather fire-buckets with the words "City of N. York" painted on them.—M. C. C., V: 16-17. As many more were ordered during the ensuing summer.—Ibid., V: 22, 25. For the first fire-buckets, see Aug. 1, 1658.
- The common council grants Johannes Myer £5:8 "for Repairing the High ways between this and Kings Bridge in the Late Great Snow."—M. C. C., V: 16.
- 25 Fire starts in the house of Captain Warren, "near the Long Bridge at the S. W. End of the Town." The fire-engines prevent it from doing much damage. It is supposed at this time that the accidental firing of a chimney was the cause.—Horsmanden's Jour., op. cit., 6.
- Apr. 1 The store-house of Mr. Van Zandt, near the river, at the east end of the city, is destroyed by fire. It is said to be due to hay being ignited by a man smoking a pipe.—Horsmanden's Jour., op. cit., 6. Up to this time, the several fires were generally believed to have been of accidental origin, but soon hereafter these fires began to be attributed to the negroes.
- 4 Two separate fires occur, but are quickly extinguished.—Horsmanden's Jour., 6.
- 5 Early this morning, it is discovered that some live coals had been put under a haystack near the stables of one John Murray. The coals had gone out "of themselves," otherwise the nearby dwellings would have been greatly damaged. "The five several fires [see March 18 and 25, April 1 and 4] . . . having happened in so short a Time, succeeding each other; and the Attempt made of a Sixth on Mr. Murray's Haystack; it was natural for People of any Reflection, to conclude that the Fire was set on Purpose, by a Combination of Villains; and therefore occasioned great Un- Apr. 5 aise to everyone that had Thought" (about it).—Horsmanden's Jour., 6-7.
- Two more fires break out in the city, and suspicion centres on the negro population. The magistrates meet at the city hall to examine the negroes, and, while they are in session, two other fires start. A negro is seen coming out of one of the houses, and this raises the alarm that the negroes are rising. "Many People had such terrible Apprehensions upon this Occasion, and indeed there was Cause sufficient, that several Negroes . . . who were met in the Streets, after the Alarm of their rising, were hurried away to Goal."—Horsmanden's Jour., 7-8. The lieutenant-governor orders that a military watch be kept this evening and this was continued all summer.—Ibid., 8.
- Hughson and his wife are committed to goal, "being charged as Accessories to divers Felonies and Misdemeanours."—Horsmanden's Jour., 8.
- The governor orders the militia to aid the magistrates in a general search. This was made on April 13, but no stolen goods were found or suspicious strangers reported.—Horsmanden's Jour., op. cit., 10.
- In speaking of the numerous fires in the city, the recorder declares at a meeting of the common council that "every one that reflected on the Circumstances attending them, the Frequency of them, and the Causes being yet undiscovered; must necessarily conclude, that they were occasioned and set on Foot by some villainous Confederacy of latent Enemies amongst us." He therefore moves that the common council offer rewards for the discovery of persons implicated. The board resolves upon the following rewards: £100 to any white person who gives information leading to the arrest of the incendiaries; £25 and his freedom to any negro who gives information, and £25 to his master; £45 to any free Negro or Indian who reveals the culprits. It is also decided to make a general search of the city for stolen goods. The governor orders the militia to aid in this search.—Horsmanden's Jour., 9-10.
- Pursuant to the order of April 11 (q. v.), a search of the city is made, but no stolen goods are discovered, nor suspicious strangers found. Two negroes, having things "thought improper for, and unbecoming the Condition of Slaves," are arrested.—Horsmanden's Jour., 10.
- The governor's council, at the request of the common council of the city, orders that a proclamation be issued offering a reward for the discovery of incendiaries.—Cal. Coun. Min., 337. See April 17.
- Clarke, addressing a joint session of the legislature "at his present Residence," states that for many years the people never questioned "the King's royal Prerogative and undoubted Right, to appoint Officers for the Management of his Revenue;" but, "whether grown wanton by Prosperity, or whatever else it was, they began to deviate from the Example of the Parliament, demanding to have the Nomination of a Treasurer for the Receipt and Management of the Money to be given, not for the Support of Government, but for extraordinary Uses; and being indulged in this, they soon grew in their Demands, and insisted upon having the Revenue likewise put into his [the treasurer's] Hands, it being constantly before managed by the King's Officer, his Majesty's Receiver General, who had, and still has, a Salary allowed him for that Service, which is paid out of his Majesty's Quit-Rents. This prosperous Beginning encouraged them to go on further. . . ." After the "Expiration of the Revenue, in 1709," he explains, they "refused to support the Government unless they had the particular Appointment of the Officers Salaries, thereby making themselves Judges what Officers were proper, what not. . . ." They left the auditor-general without any salary; this was an office established in the time of Charles II designed to have inspection and control of the king's accounts. The salary of this office had been established soon after the revolution of 1689-91, and constantly paid. The people of the province, in abolishing this salary, which they had been paying to a British appointee, took upon themselves the dependence of officers whom they themselves provided, "for Men are naturally Servants of those who pay them." This, in effect, Clarke asserts, "subverted the Constitution," in that they assumed to themselves "one undoubted and essential Branch of his Majesty's royal Prerogative." Now, he says, only a return to "a just Sense of their Duty 1741 to his Majesty," and "the Example of that august Body, the Apr. Parliament," should be their rule of action. "This, and only this," he adds, "will remove, as to this Province, a Jealousy which for some Years has obtained in England, that the Plantations are not without Thoughts of throwing off their Dependence on the Crown of England." (The italics are so in the printed journal of the assembly, published by Gaîne in 1764.) He therefore urges that this assembly give the king such revenue as will enable him "to pay his own Officers and Servants, whereby they will be reclaimed to their proper Dependence." This, he says, "the flourishing Condition of the Province" will amply admit of; as "the great Increase of Trade, and People," is well known to be vastly more rapid than it was 40 years ago.

He recommends, further, that, as there is "great Cause to apprehend a speedy Rupture with France," in New York City be better fortified, "by erecting Batteries in proper Places upon some of the Wharfs facing the Harbour, others upon the Side of Hudson's River adjoining to the Town, and one at Red-Hook, upon Long-Island, to prevent the Enemy from landing upon Nutten-Island." He explains the appropriate application of the stores of war, including ordnance ordered by the king to be sent, which will govern the size of the batteries to be built. Revenue must be supplied to meet the expense of placing these stores, mounting guns, etc., when they arrive.

He advises that the militia be put under better regulation; and that an agent in England for this province be provided.

He refers to "the late fatal Fire that laid in Ashes the House, Chapel, Barracks and Secretary's Office, in his Majesty's Fort in this Town, accidentally occasioned by mending a Gutter on the Roof of the House, adjoining to the Chapel;" and reminds the assembly how necessary it is that they be "speedily re-built," adding: "The frequent Fires which have happened in this Town, since that at the Fort, giving Room, from many Circumstances to believe, they have been kindled by Design, call for some effectual Law to restrain the too great License that the Negroes are allowed, or that they take without it, in assembling in great Numbers, and at Times and in Places that give them Opportunities for Cabaling." The great losses sustained, when goods have been removed to preserve them from the flames, require "some Method to secure them for the future from being stolen." He recommends that "a night Guard of the Militia, will be very proper to be constantly kept on Foot, especially in Time of War," bound to their duty by proper penalties. Provision should be made, also, "for billeting the Men, who may be ordered to this Town for it's Defence, whenever Occasion requires."—Assemb. Jour., I: 792-94. See, further, "The Hist. of Political Parties in the Prov. of N. Y., 1760-1776," by Carl L. Becket, comprising Bulletin of Univ. of Wisconsin, No. 286, History Series, Vol. II, No. 11.

17 At the request of the common council (M. C. C., V: 17), lieutenant-governour Clarke issues a proclamation offering a reward for the discovery of any person or persons "lately Concern'd in Setting fire to any Dwelling House or Store House in this City," as follows: £100 to a white person, and pardon if he is concerned in the crime; £20 to a slave, his pardon if a participator, his manumission, and £25 to his master; and £45 to a free negro, mulatto, or Indian.—N. Y. Jour., April 20, 1741; Horsmanden's Jour., 10.

21 The supreme court begins its session for the trial of the negroes arrested in connection with the fires in the city.—Horsmanden's Jour., 11-12. See also David Grim's manuscript notes of his recollections of the "Negro Plot" (in package marked "1739-1747" in box of MSS. labelled "New-York, 1700-1760," in N. Y. Hist. Soc.); and the numerous indictments in Cal. Hist. MSS. Eng., 552-68.

22 Clarke informs the lords of trade that, since the fire in the fort, much consternation has been caused by the recurrence of fires, sometimes as many as four in a day, and some apparently kindled by design. He has endeavoured to discover the perpetrators by offering a reward and otherwise. Several negroes have been imprisoned on suspicion, but no proof has yet been found against them. He keeps a night guard of militia who constantly patrol.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 186.

Mary Burton testifies before the grand jury that her master, John Hughson, his wife, and Margaret Kerry, known as Peggy, together with a number of negroes, conspired to burn the city and murder the inhabitants. The accused persons were forthwith arrested and tried.—Horsmanden's Jour., op. cit., 13, 14. For an account of the institution of slavery in New York, see Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 506-7.

The judges of the supreme court decide that, though there is "an Act of the Province for Trying Negroes, as in other Colonies, for all Manner of Offences," as this seems to be a "Scheme of Villainy in which White People were confederated with them, and most probably were the first Movers and Seducers of the Slaves," it requires "great Secrecy, as well as the utmost Diligence, in the Conduct of the Enquiry concerning it." Margaret Kerry is examined and urged to confess all she knows, but she denies everything.—Horsmanden's Jour., 14.

An address from the assembly to Lieut.-Gov. Clarke states that there was "lately erected at a vast Expence, a noble Battery, mounted with upwards of fifty great Guns, at the Entrance of the Harbour of this City" (see July 16 and Oct. 20, 1735). This statement is made to defend the house from the charge of neglecting the matter of fortifications. The address continues: "To what is mentioned of a Jealousy in England, that the Plantations are not without thought of throwing off their Dependence on the Crown of England; we shall say the less, as your Honour declares you hope and believe no Man in this Colony, has such Intention; and we dare vouch that not one single Person in it has any such Thought or Desire."—Assemb. Jour., I: 797-98.

A committee of the common council disposes of the lease of the city's docks and slips at public auction to Bartholomew Skaats for £90, payable quarterly. He is also to remove 60 scow loads of mud from the dock.—M. C. C., V: 19.

A committee of the whole house resolves that, for the security of the city, several other batteries and platforms ought to be erected, and a special committee is appointed to consider where these should be placed.—Assemb. Jour., I: 800.

The king having appointed George Clinton governour of New York "in the room of the Lord Delawarr" (see June 20, 1737), the lords of trade are required to prepare drafts of a commission and instructions.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 187. The commission was submitted to the lords justices on May 21. A copy of it appears in N. Y. Col. Doc., VI: 188-95. The instructions, submitted to the justices on Aug. 20, were in the usual form; excepting that an additional salary was allowed for providing a house for Clintoo, the former house having been destroyed by fire; excepting also that mention of New Jersey was omitted (as that was now a distinct government), and excepting two or three other minor changes.—Ibid., VI: 200-1.

Two negroes, Caesar and Prince, are convicted of robbing the house of Robert Hogg (see Feb. 28).—Horsmanden's Jour., 18. On May 11, they were executed, the body of Caesar being hung in chains.—Ibid., 25. David Grim stated in 1813 that the gibbet was erected "at the south-east corner of the old Powder-house, in Magazine Street, (now Pearl street)." He added that the place where they were chained to a stake and burned to death was "in the valley between Windmill hill and Pot-baker's hill, (now Augusta street), about the centre of said street, and midway of (now) Pearl and Parley streets."—Description of Pl. 32-a, I: 270. For "Augusta" (Augustus), and "Parley" (Barley) Streets, see Pl. 64, Vol. I. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, Vol. III.

3 Arthur Price, a servant, deposes that Margaret Kerry confessed to him that the Hughsons, Prince, Caesar, and Cuffee (another negro) were in the conspiracy to set the town on fire, and that she declared that if Caesar and Prince were hanged the other negroes would be revenged.—Horsmanden's Jour., 17.

6 Hughson, his wife, and Margaret Kerry are found guilty of receiving stolen goods.—Horsmanden's Jour., op. cit., 18. The next day, Margaret Kerry made a confession, accusing John Romme.—Ibid., 20.

The common council orders that "all the Pidgeon holes under the City hall be forthwith taken Down and Removed."—M. C. C., V: 20. The printed transcription of this record has been verified by an examination of the original manuscript volume of Minutes. "Pidgeon holes" in the city hall are nowhere else found mentioned in descriptions or records of the period.

8 Caesar and Prince (see May 1) are sentenced to be hanged.—Horsmanden's Jour., 20-21.

Lieut.-Gov. Clarke issues a warrant to Lewis Morris, Jr., to grant letters of marque and reprisal to George Cunningham, on the petition of George Moore and Henry Cruger.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 543.

Apr. 25
23 24
25
28 30
May 1
3 6
"
8
"

- 1741 Under examination, Margaret Kerry declares that she heard
 May John Romme urge the negroes to "burn the Houses of them that 9 have the most Money, and kill them all, as the Negroes would have done their Masters and Mistresses formerly" (in 1712) and to "burn the Fort first, and afterwards the City; and then to steal and rob, and carry away all the Money and Goods they could procure." Romme's wife confesses that the negroes used to frequent her house, but denies all knowledge of the conspiracy.—Horsmanden's Jour., 21-24. See May 18.
- 11 The supreme court orders that "the Gibbet on which the Body of the Negro Caesar is to be hanged in Chains, be fixed on the Island near the Powder-House." Prince and Caesar are executed on this day.—Horsmanden's Jour., 25.
- 12 Arthur Price deposes that Cuffee (a negro) has confessed his implication in the conspiracy and revealed also that Quack (another negro) was in the plot. Cuffee declares there were two parties, the "Long-Bridge Boys" and the "Smith's-Fly Boys."—Horsmanden's Jour., 26-27.
- 18 John Romme (see May 9) having been arrested at Brunswick, N. J., is brought to the city and committed to jail. He denies all connection with the conspiracy.—Horsmanden's Jour., 30.
- 23 A committee of the assembly votes the following appropriations:
 a sum not exceeding £600 to erect, "on or near the Flat Rock behind Fort George, a proper and sufficient Battery, for about twenty great Guns, leaving between it and the River, a sufficient Space for a passage;" £50 for building two blockhouses at Copey Battery,
 "one at the East Side, and the other at the West Side of the present Store House already erected there;" £176 for filling up with sand or other material "the Space of ten Feet more of the inside of the Battery on Copey Rocks," the floor of which is to be repaired, and, on the outside of which a beam or scantling is to be fixed "to prevent the Guns from recoiling beyond the said Floor."—*Assemb.
 Jour.*, I: 803.
- 28 Quack and Cuffee are arraigned on two indictments, one "for a Conspiracy to burn the Town, and murder the Inhabitants," the other "for two actual burnings."—Horsmanden's Jour., 36. See
 May 29.
- 29 Quack and Cuffee are found guilty on both indictments (see May 28), and sentenced to be burned at the stake.—Horsmanden's Jour., 36-45. See May 30.
- 30 Quack and Cuffee are burned at the stake. Quack confesses that Hughson originated the plot, that he (Quack) set fire to the fort, and that many negroes were implicated. Cuffee also accuses Hughson, admits that he set fire to the store-house, and declares
 "about Fifty" were concerned.—Horsmanden's Jour., 45-48.
- June Hughson, his wife and daughter, and Margaret Kerry, are convicted 4 of conspiracy to burn the fort and other buildings in the city.
 —Horsmanden's Jour., 59; and N. Y. Jour., June 8, 1741. All except the daughter were hanged on June 12. Their execution is described as follows: "He [Hughson] stood up in the Cart all the Way, looking round about him as if expecting to be rescued; as was by many conjectured from the Air he appeared in: . . . At the Gallows his Wife stood like a lifeless Trunk, with the Rope about her Neck tied up to the Tree; she said not a Word, and had scarce any visible Motion. Peggy seem'd much less resigned than the other two, or rather unwilling to encounter Death: She was going to say something, but the Old Woman, who hung next to her, gave her a Shove with her Hand, as it was said by some, so Peggy was silent. But they all died, having protested their Innocence to the last, touching the Conspiracy."—Horsmanden's Jour., 72.
 For a news report of their part in the conspiracy, see the *N. Y.
 Jour.*, June 15, 1741. See also De Voce, Market Book, 95-96.
- 8 Six negroes, Jack, Cook, Robin, another Caesar, another Cuffee, and Jamaica, are found guilty of conspiracy. The first five are sentenced to be burned at the stake; Jamaica is ordered to be hanged.—Horsmanden's Jour., 61-63.
- The assembly allows £185:10 to finish the battery of 55 great guns on Copey Rocks.—N. Y. Jour., June 8, 1741. See April 28, May 23. See also "Whitehall Battery," in Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 946.
- 9 The negro, Jack (see June 8), convicted of connection with the conspiracy, is pardoned.—Cal. Coun. Min., 338. Cook, Robin, Caesar, and Cuffee, sentenced on June 8 (q. v.), are executed.—Horsmanden's Jour., 66.
- 10 Bastian, Francis, Albany, and Curoa Dick (negroes) are found guilty of conspiracy to burn the city and murder the inhabitants.— Horsmanden's Jour., 67-68. On June 11, they were sentenced to be burned at the stake.—Ibid., 69. All except Bastian (see June 13) were executed on June 12.—Ibid., 73.
- The execution of Sarah, daughter of John Hughson (see June 4), is ordered postponed until June 19.—Horsmanden's Jour., 69.
 See June 17.
- The grand jury, on being thanked by the speaker of the assembly 12 for detecting the "horrid Conspiracy," presents a petition to "the House" for "the better regulating of Slaves, and for preventing other Irregularities in this City." The circumstances of the conspiracy are reviewed, and reveal the fact that "the great Number of publick Houses, in which Negroes have been entertained and encouraged to buy Rum and other strong Liquors, has been a principle Incitement to those detestable Villanies;" also that the conspiracy "was formed and agreed to, by great Numbers of Negroes, meeting together on divers Sundays, and was intended to be put in Execution on some Sunday Morning, during the Time of publick Service;" as also "fetching Tea Water on Sundays, has been found to tend to the forming of the said Conspiracy, by giving Occasion to great Numbers of them, to meet in the same Place." The grand jury therefore recommends that a law be passed "to limit the Number of publick Houses within the City of New-York, also to oblige all Keepers of publick Houses, under severe Penalties, to keep good Order in such Houses, and to prohibit them to sell any Sort of strong Liquors to Negroes, unless by express Leave of their Masters, in writing;" to prohibit receiving goods from negroes, except by such permission; to restrain negroes "from fetching Tea Water on Sundays;" to punish persons who harbour and entertain negroes; and to prevent negroes
 "being absent from their Masters Houses on Sundays, unless by the publick Worship of God, or by the express Leave of their Masters, for some necessary Service signified in Writing, and to be delivered to such Negro."—Assemb. Jour., I: 806. See also Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 201, 242. Laws were passed on Nov. 7 to meet these conditions, one entitled "An Act to Let to Farm the Excise on Strong Liquors Retailled in this Colony for one Year Ending" Nov. 1, 1742 (Col. Laws N. Y., III: 152); and the other "An Act to Revive an act, Intituled an act, to Restrain Tavern Keepers & Inholders from Selling Strong Liquors to Servants and Apprentices and from giving Large Credit to others" (ibid., III: 166).
- The negro, Bastian (see June 10), another of those convicted 13 in connection with the conspiracy, is pardoned.—Cal. Coun. Min., 338.
- A provincial act is passed "for the better Fortifying of this Colony and other Purposes therein Mentioned." The preamble states that the king has ordered a "great Number of Cannon" and a "Large quantity of other Stores of Warr" for the use of this colony, which awakens "Strong apprehensions, That a Rupture is like to happen with a Power more Capable, to annoy this Colony, than that with which his Majesty is in Actual Warr at present."
 The general assembly conceives it necessary "to put the Colony in a better Posture of Defence for its Security in all Events, by amending our Present Fortifications, and Erecting New Batteries & Platforms on which the Said Cannon may be Placed . . . ; and at the Same time to Erect Such Buildings as are more Immediately wanting in Stead of those which lately had the Misfortune to be Burnt down in Fort George."
- The law therefore enacts that the act now in force, which lays a duty on tonnage, shall be continued to July 1, 1751. It allows £260 for building a new secretary's office, "in a more convenient Place and Form, Less liable to the like accident [of fire], as well to Reposite & preserve the Publick Records of this Colony in, as for Transacting the publick affairs which properly appertain to the Said office." This sum is "for Building Compleating and Finishing in Such part of the East Ward Side of the Garden adjoining to the Said Fort, as the Lieutenant Governour or Commander in Chief for the time being, Shall approve of, a New Secretarys office, not Less than Forty two feet Long, Twenty Feet wide, and one Story of Ten feet high, with a Chimney in the Middle arched with Iron and Bricks fit for two Fire Places; and the Beams to be not Less than nine Inches by Seven, at a proper Distance fit for Ceiling." John Roosevelt has undertaken to erect this building, and provide at his own expense "all Manner of Materials & Workmanship, not only for Building it, but likewise to Partition the Same into Two Rooms and an Entry, and to make a writing Desk and Benches in each of 1741

June
13

Them, as likewise a Sufficient number of Shelves with Drawers or Boxes between Them as well to put Publick Papers in, as to Remove them Speedily without Loss in Case of Accidents; also to put Four Sashes of good Glass with Shutters in the two Rooms and a proper Light over the Door, if Judged needful; Ceader Gutters all round the Building of which the Front one is to be a Cornish Gutter; and Trunks to convey the Rain Water into the Street; to Paint all the Wood Work, without and within in the usual manner, to Cover the Roof with Pantiles or Shingles, to Lay the hearths with one Row of Bristol Stones and the back part with Bricks on their Edge; and in General to Furnish all necessary Iron Work Locks & Hinges, and to Finish both the outside and the Inside workman Like to the Turning of the Key, in such manner as Shall be Directed & Approved of by the Said Lieutenant Governour or Commander in Chief . . . ; Excepting never the Less, that he Shall have the Liberty to make use of so many of the Bricks of the Ruins of the old Building in the Said Fort as are proper or Necessary for Building of the Said office." On the completion of his contract, Mr. Roosevelt is to be paid by the treasurer of the colony the sum agreed upon (£260), in three payments,— "one third thereof when the Foundation is carry'd to the height of the Ground Floor, one other third when the Roof is cover'd, and the Remaining Third when all is Finish'd."

The law also provides "That there Shall be Erected in the West Side of Said Fort George a new Barrack of the same Length & Breadth as the old one was which Stood on that Spot, of two Stories high and that it be Divided into So many Rooms & Fire places, as Shall be approved of by the Said Lieutenant Governour, or Commander in Chief for the time being; the Stories to be no higher, than between Six & Seven feet under the Beams. The partitions of the Rooms, to be one Bricks Length in thickness; every Chimney to be Arched with Iron and Bricks, and all the Hearths wide to prevent Fire, The Roof to be no Steeper than is necessary to make it Tight and to carry off Rain Water; and one or Two dormant Doors in the West Side of it for Receiving and Issuing of his Majestys Stores; and that all the Hinges and other Iron Work which is Saved of the Former Barracks, as likewise the Bricks of the Ruins in the Said Fort, Shall and may be Employed . . . towards Buildiug of the Barrack." The sum of £500 is to be paid by the treasurer to build the barracks.

This law further states that, in case "an Enemy Should make an attempt upon this City by a naval Force, a good Battery upon and near the Flat Rock behind Fort George would very much Annoy Them, and at the Same time be able to Flank the Battery already Erected on Copsy Rocks." For this purpose, the law specifically requires that "a good & Proper Battery, on which about Twenty great Guns, can be mounted, Shall be Built . . . on and near the Said Flat Rock, in such Form as Shall be Judged most conducive for the Service it is Intended, and at a Sufficient distance from the River, That a proper Space may be Left for a Passage between Them, The Merlons to be made of Sods & of a Sufficient thickness. The floor to be plankt, and at the Inward Side a Beam or Scantling fixt to prevent the Guns from Recoiling beyond it in case of Action and that New Carriages be made for Such of the great Guns Lying in the Pasture near the Said Rock as Shall be found Serviceable & Judged Proper for that Service, Unless the Cannon does in the mean while arrive which his Majesty has been pleased to order for the use of this Colony." For this work £600 is allowed.

As "it is conceived that the ground already made in the Battery on the Copsy Rocks would not Afford Room enough for our People if we should have the Misfortune to be attacked by many numbers of Ships of War," it is provided that £176 shall be allowed "for Filling up with Earth Sand or other proper Materials round the Inside of the Said Battery, the Space of Ten feet more than is filled up already;" and £912 is allowed "for amending and Repairing the Floor Thereof, and to Fix at the outside of the Said Floor a Beam or Scantling, to prevent the Guns from Recoiling beyond it in case of action."

As, in case of attack, "it would be Requisite to have Some works on the Inner part of the Battery on Copsy Rocks, as well to Clear it from an Enemy, as to Shelter our People who should be placed upon Duty there," it is provided "That there Shall be Erected two proper Block Houses on the Said Battery, one at the East Side, and the other at the West Side of the Store House already Erected there." To build, cover and complete these, there is allowed the sum of £50. As "the great Guns on the Said Battery, as well as those Intended for a Battery on the Said Flat Rock, ought to be Proved (as they have not been made use of in a great many Years past) Least Some of Them Should wound or destroy Some of our own People in time of Action," the sum of £120 is allowed for the purchase of powder for such tests.

That the money, amounting to £1,880:2, may be duly applied to the objects for which it is intended (that is, "For new Barracks, For a Battery on the Flat Rock, for filling up Ten feet more of Ground in the Battery on Copsy Rocks, and amending its Floor, For two Block Houses on Said Battery, For powder to prove the Great Guns, and for Removing and Replacing Them"), four commissioners are appointed to manage the several undertakings. These are John Cruger, William Roome, John Roosevelt, and Capt. Henry Row.

In case an attempt should be made to attack the city with a naval armament, the act provides that "a Plat Form at Dominies Hook on Hudsons River might be very Serviceable to annoy Them." The sum of £120 is therefore appropriated to erect it when necessary.

The act further provides for paying Gerrit Couzyn £9:11:11 for the expenses incurred by him for materials and labour in making suitable conveniences in the common council room of the city hall, "as well to preserve the Records of this Colony and Sorting the Publick Books Writings and other Papers in, as for keeping the Said [secretary's] office in until an other be Built for that Purpose." The secretary's office and the barracks were completed before Nov. 26, 1741 (q. v.).

The sum of £800 is contributed by the province to encourage the fitting out of two large sloops to go in pursuit of Spanish privateers cruising off the coast.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 134-48.

A provincial act is passed "for the more Equal Keeping Military Watches in the City of New York," rendered necessary by the recent negro disturbances. Under the act of Oct. 3, 1739, for regulating the militia (q. v.), commissioned military officers and troopers were exempted from service as constables, thus placing the burden of the city's military watch upon tradesmen and the "middleling Sort of People." To alleviate this situation, all persons residing in New York City are now required to watch in their respective turns, or to provide able-bodied substitutes. Those exempted from this order are the deputy secretary, the clerk of the council, judges of the supreme court, all members of the council and assembly not bearing a military commission, and the firemen.

Another important requirement of this act of June 13 is the erection of three beacons, one on the western part of Rockaway ("where it can best be Seen from the narrows on the Island of Nassaw, & Statin Island"), one at the Narrows on Nassau Island, and the third opposite it on Staten Island. Persons living near the beacons are to light them "upon the Sight or Appearance of Seven or a greater number of Ships, And when the alarme is given by one, the others are also Immediately to be Set on Fire, to the End an alarm may be conveyed to New York in the Speediest manner."—Ibid., III: 148-50.

"Intimation having been given for some Time past, that there had of late been Popish Priests lurking about the Town, diligent Enquiry had been made for discovering them, but without Effect; at length Information was given, that one Ury, alias Jury, who had lately come into this City, and entered into Partnership with Campbell, a School Master, pretending to teach Greek and Latin, was suspected to be one, and that he kept a private Conventicle; he was taken into Custody this Day; and not giving a satisfactory Account of himself, was committed to the City Jail."—Horsmanden's Jour., 94. See Feb. 28 and June 25.

On account of the trials of negro conspirators in New York, the circuit courts, which were customarily held "up Albany river," by the judges from New York, are postponed for a year.—Cal. Coun. Min., 338.

Three negroes are hanged and two burned alive. They all protest their innocence of the conspiracy. Negroes are being committed daily so that the jails are crowded.—N. Y. Jour., June 22, 1741.

The execution of Sarah Hughson is further postponed until 17 June 26.—Horsmanden's Jour., 83. See June 25.

The lieutenant-governour issues a proclamation "taking 19 Notice of the Conspiracy which had been set on foot, abjected, encouraged and carried on by several White People in Conjunction

June 13

11

14

11

16

17

19

- 1741 with divers Spanish Negroes brought hither from the West-Indies, and a great Number of other Negroes within this City and Country, for the Burning and Destroying this whole City and murdering the Inhabitants thereof." He offers a pardon to "every Person and Persons, whether white People, free Negroes, Slaves, or others, who had been or were concerned in the said Conspiracy, who should on or before the first Day of July then next, voluntarily, freely and fully discover, and Confession make, of his, her or their Confederates, Accomplices, or others concerned in the said Conspiracy."—Horsmanden's Jour., 86.
- " The common council orders that the mayor issue his warrant for £150 "to purchase a Bill of One hundred pounds Sterling and Remit the Same to Mess<sup>rs</sup> Samuel and William Baker Merchants in London," for the purchase of "as Large a fire Engine of the best make As that Sum will purchase," together with "a Leather pipe and Screws proper to the Engine and four fire Caps."—M. C. C., V: 22. For an account of the first fire-engines, see May 6, 1731.
- " Upon payment of 20 shillings, Cornelius Couzine is given permission for one year to dig clay pits and make bricks on the Out Ward of the Commons as the alderman and councilman of the said Ward shall deem proper.—M. C. C., V: 22.
- 25 The execution of Sarah Hughson is further postponed until July 4.—Horsmanden's Jour., 95. See July 1.
- " Mary Burton makes a deposition stating "That the Person Yesterday shew'd to her in Prison, lately taken into Custody on Suspicion of being a Roman Catholic Priest [see June 14], is the same Person she has often seen at the House of John Hughson . . . she well remembers he used to go by different Names, but whether by the Name of Jury or Ury, or Doyle, she cannot now depose positively . . .
- "That when he came to Hughson's he always went up Stairs in the Company of Hughson, his Wife and Daughter, and Peggy, with whom the Negroes used to be at the same Time consulting about the Plot; and that she has often heard Hughson, the rest of the white People, and the Negroes, talk in the Presence of the said Jury, about setting fire to the Houses, and killing the white People of this City; and has often, when such Conversation was going on, seen the said Jury, alias Ury, whispering to Hughson, his Wife, &c. and the Negroes, which she understood to be joining in the Conspiracy with them."—Horsmanden's Jour., 95-96.
- 27 Horsmanden writes: "Before the issuing of the Proclamation of the 19th Instant [q. v.], . . . there were betwixt Sixty and Seventy Negroes in Jail, who had been already impeach'd; many of whom after publishing the Proclamation, not only confessed their own Guilt, in order to entitle themselves to the Benefit of it, . . . but also discovered many of their Accomplices who were at large; who were thereupon immediately taken into Custody . . . so that between the 19th and this Day, there were upwards of Thirty Slaves more added to the former, insomuch that the Jail began to be so thronged, 'twas difficult to find Room for them; and we were apprehensive, that the Criminals would be daily multiplying on our Hands; nor could we see any Likelihood of a Stop to Impeachments; for it seem'd very probable that most of the Negroes in Town were corrupted." In order to expedite the trials, Messrs. Murray, Alexander, Smith, Chambers, Jamison, Nicholls, and Lodge, "the several Gentlemen of the Law that were in Town," agree to help with the prosecutions.—Horsmanden's Jour., 107-8.
- 29 The "indefatigable Vigilance of our Magistrates" is the subject of praise in the newspapers, "there being now 11 Negroes Capitally convicted, and about 100 in Goal." Several whites are committed to jail on suspicion, one (John Ury) being "strongly suspected to be a Romish Priest." The "Blacks begin to Confess, and agree generally in their Confessions, that each was first to kill his Master, and then to destroy as many Whites as possible, and even since the Discovery of the Plot they propos'd to put their hellish Design into Execution, but were deter'd by the Military Watch. The Magistrates continue their Search for Offenders, and daily some Blacks are taken up and committed."—N. Y. Jour., June 29, 1741.
- " The term of the supreme court is extended to July 25.—Horsmanden's Jour., 113.
- July Sarah Hughson, "continuing inflexible," is ordered to be executed on July 8 (q. v.).—Horsmanden's Jour., 117.
- 3 The execution of negroes accused of complicity in the conspiracy, continues, five being hanged on this day, denying their guilt.
- On the following day, another was burnt at the stake, three accusing several persons, both blacks and whites.—N. Y. Jour., July 6, 1741.
- The Judges of the supreme court recommend 40 of the negroes now in jail to the lieutenant-governour for transportation.—Horsmanden's Jour., 124.
- The execution of Sarah Hughson is further postponed.—Horsmanden's Jour., 130. See July 10.
- Sarah Hughson deposes that "she had seen John Ury [see June 14] the Priest often there [at her father's house] when the Negroes were there, and speak to them; tell them to keep Secresy, and to be true, not tell of one another; if they were to dye for it; that they should burn the Town down; and in the Night cut their Master's and Mistress's Throats with Knives they should get."—Horsmanden's Jour., 133-34. See July 14 and 29.
- John Ury denies "being any wise concerned in the Conspiracy for burning the Town and killing the Inhabitants," and declares that "he never was any wise acquainted with John Hughson, or his Wife, or Margaret Kerry, nor did he ever see them in his Life, to his Knowledge."—Horsmanden's Jour., 139. See July 15.
- Six negroes, arraigned for conspiracy, are ordered to be transported and nine are pardoned.—Horsmanden's Jour., 140.
- John Ury is indicted for implication in the negro conspiracy, and for coming into New York province and there "celebrating Masses, and granting Absolution, &c."—Horsmanden's Jour., 142-43. See July 22.
- The sentence of the negroes Quack and Othello, who were to be burnt, is changed to hanging.—Cal. Coun. Min., 338.
- The negro Jasper, belonging to Robert Bound, and Toby, belonging to Hercules Windover, are pardoned.—Ibid.
- Six negroes are hanged and one burnt at the stake.—N. Y. 18 Jour., July 20, 1741.
- The Rev. John Ury is brought to trial, charged with being a party to the conspiracy.—Horsmanden's Jour., op. cit., 149, where a detailed account of his trial is given. See, further, July 29 and Aug. 29.
- The military watch (see June 13) is continued. The new fortifications are "very forward."—N. Y. Jour., July 27, 1741.
- John Clemm, Jr., the son of the organ-builder, is engaged by Trinity vestry as organist for one year, beginning Aug. 10.—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- It is ordered by the common council that the mayor issue his warrant to pay Johannes Roome "for making a Gallows: two Gibbets: and work done to and Materials found About the City watch House: making Ladders and fire hooks," etc.—M. C. C., V: 23. For location and use of the gallows, see May 1. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 972.
- Sarah Hughson is pardoned.—Horsmanden's Jour., 155.
- John Ury is found guilty of encouraging the negro Quack to burn the governour's house.—Horsmanden's Jour., 155-71.
- Eighteen negroes are pardoned.—Horsmanden's Jour., 172.
- The term of the supreme court is extended.—Cal. Coun. Min., 338.
- Ury is sentenced to be hanged.—Horsmanden's Jour., 173-4. See Aug. 29.
- John Clemm informs Trinity vestry that he has completed the organ in Trinity Church. A balance due him of £520 is to be paid, and payment made for "Shortning the Case and Making two pair of Bellows over and Above the Agreement."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See also June 1, 1739.
- Daniel Horsmanden writes to Cadwallader Colden an account of the Negro Plot. He charges that it is a Catholic conspiracy. Of Ury he says: "He appears to have been a principal promoter & encourager of this most horrible & Detestable piece of Villany, a Scheme w<sup>ch</sup> must have been brood'd in a Conclave of Devils, & hatred in the Cabinet of Hell." Horsmanden speaks of the executions of negroes and whites.—From the original letter, with the Colden papers, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- The governour's council orders that four Spanish negroes brought to New York for Capt. John Lush be pardoned; and that a fifth one, belonging to Capt. Surlye, be executed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 338.
- A Spanish negro, "deeply concerned in the late hellish plot," is hanged.—N. Y. Jour., Aug. 17, 1741.
- Cornelius Webber, of the City of New York, yeoman, conveys to Peter Warren, Esq., of the city of New York, a parcel of land

1741 bounded, according to the modern plan, as follows: easterly by an Aug. 18 irregular line between Fifth and Sixth Aves., Waverly Pl. and 21st St. (following the line of the old Minetta Brook); northerly by a line along 21st St., between Fifth and Sixth Aves.; westerly by a line paralleling Sixth Ave. to the eastward, from 17th to 21st St.; north-westerly by a diagonal line running from the corner of Sixth Ave. and 17th St. to the intersection of Greenwich and Eighth Aves., then southerly along Greenwich Ave. to Christopher St., then westerly along Christopher St. to W. 4th St., and southeasterly to the intersection of W. 3d St. and Macdough St., then northeasterly to a point on Waverly Pl., between Fifth and Sixth Aves.
 —See original deed in possession of N. Y. Hist. Soc.; and Chronology, June 18, 1731, and June 4, 1737. In this conveyance an unusual reference is made to the Minetta as the "Devil's" water.
 See Supplemental Landmark List, Vol. V; and, for the above-described parcel, see "Estate of Sir Peter Warren" under Farm Titles, Vol. V.

29 The Rev. John Ury (see Aug. 22) is hanged. His last devout declarations on the scaffold, previously written, express his entire ignorance of the plot or of the persons connected with it.—Hors-manden's Jour., op. cit.; N. Y. Jour., Aug. 31, 1741. See also Clarke's reports to the Duke of Newcastle and the lords of trade —N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 187-88, 196, 197-98, 201-3. In opposition to Horsmanden's denunciation of Ury, see John Gilmary Shea in Man. Com. Coun. (1870), 764-71.

31 The governor's council orders that a proclamation be issued appointing a day of thanksgiving for deliverance from the "wicked and dangerous conspiracy."—Cal. Coun. Min., 338.

Sept. 4 A proclamation is issued setting apart Sept. 24 as a day of 4 thanksgiving for deliverance from the "Negro Plot." It is to be observed by conducting divine services in all churches of the city.
 —N. Y. Jour., Sept. 14, 1741.

17 Clarke, addressing the joint session of the legislature "in the Council Chamber, at his present Residence," urges that provision be made "for rebuilding the House, and Chapel and the Rest of the Barracks, and Edifices, in the Fort, that were destroyed by the late Fire . . ." Also, he thinks it necessary "that the People be obliged, by some good Law, to continue their Military Night Watches, and the Officers thereof, authorised under proper Regulations, to preserve the City from all Dangers in the Night Time."
 The act lately passed "for the more equal keeping Military Watches" is soon to expire by its own limitation.—Assemb. Jour., I: 807. See June 13 and Nov. 7, 1741.

10 The assembly replies to Clarke's address of Sept. 17, 1741
 (q. v.), and expresses regret that the governor (George Clinton), about to arrive, "will be deprived of so noble a Residence, as his Predecessors have enjoyed." However, a house in the town is being prepared for his immediate accommodation. The reply of the assembly further states that the burned buildings in the fort
 "were erected by Degrees under the Administration of several Governors," and that during most of that time the colony "had the aid of quit-rents and other dues to the Crown." The financial condition of the colony now permits only the erection of a barracks and a secretary's office (see June 13), which are conceived most necessary, and it is impossible to build a house "suitable for the Residence of a King's Governor," much less a chapel and the other edifices recommended by Lieut-Gov. Clarke. Instead, it is proposed to ask subsidy from the king for this work.

The assembly refers also to the misapplication of money granted by it during past years. The lieutenant-governor is reminded that, "In the Beginning of the last War against France, an Act passed here, for raising the Sum of One Thousand, Five Hundred Pounds, towards building two Batteries at the Narrows [see June 19, 1703; May 29, 1706; Oct. 9, 1718]; and by all that we can learn, not one Stone was ever laid, or any other Work done towards erecting either of them. We beg leave here to observe, that by a later Method of putting Money, granted for Fortifying, under the Direction of Commissioners, the several Forts and Fortifications mentioned in the Address [of April 15, q. v.], have actually been erected, besides some others since."—Assemb. Jour.,
 I: 810-11.

Oct. 7 The common council applies to the general assembly for leave to bring in several bills to be considered in the coming session.
 Among these is one "to prevent playing Billiards, Trunks or Cards in any publick Houses."—M. C. C., V: 31. Such a bill became a law on Nov. 27 (q. v.).

Clarke informs Newcastle that he has lost by the fire in the fort between £2,000 and £3,000.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 205. He received a parliamentary donation which more than reimbursed him for these losses. When he returned to England his estate was estimated at £100,000. How he amassed this sum is explained thus: "By his offices of secretary, clerk of the council, counsellor, and Lieutenant-governor, he had every advantage of inserting his own, or the name of some other person in trust for him, in the numerous grants, which he was in a condition for nearly half a century, to quicken or retard."—Smith, Hist. of N. Y., II: 83.

Five of Hughson's relatives, charged with being concerned in the negro conspiracy, are pardoned.—Horsmanden's Jour., 177-78.

"Law for the Further Regulating the Publick Marketts" Nov.
 7 is proclaimed, containing a provision "for the Country people to Sell or Expose to Sale: in the Meal market and Broad way Market of this City Beef: pork: Veal: Mutton: & Lamb by the Joint or by pieces or Cut up the same in pound or pounds pieces: or in Great or Small Quantities: or parcels as they shall See Convenient: first paying the fees or Rates: to the farmer of the Marketts: Or Such Other person or persons: as by the Common Council Shall be thereunto Appointed: in the Same Manner: Quantity and proportion that the Butchers are to do."

It also provides "that the Market house at the Lower End of Wall Street: Commonly Called the Meal Market; and the Market house in the Broad way; Commonly Called the Broad way Market; are hereby Appointed and Declared to be the publick Meal Marketts wh[er]e all persons whatsoever may Sell Utter [cry their wares] or put Out to Shew or Sale any manner of Meal: Wheat Rye: Barley: Oats: Indian Corn: Buck Wheat: or any other Sort of Meal: Corn and Grain: brought to market." No person shall sell grain or meal elsewhere under penalty. Furthermore, country people are to "have Liberty to Cut up their meat, in the Marketts," and advertisements to that effect are required to be printed in the newspapers.—M. C. C., V: 41-42.

The military night watches, appointed under the act of June 13, 1741 (q. v.), have proved very burdensome to the poorer inhabitants of the city. As a night watch is still considered necessary, the legislature permits the common council to appoint not less than 12 watchmen who shall serve for one year beginning Dec. 1, during such hours and under such regulations as the board shall fix. To pay these men, the corporation is allowed to levy a tax of £574:12 upon the real and personal estates of the inhabitants of the city.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 158-62. On Dec. 1, the common council appointed 36 night watchmen to serve one year; to be divided into three divisions, each division having an overseer. One overseer and 11 watchmen were to watch each night, and each division in turn.—M. C. C., V: 43-44. A new regulation went into effect Dec. 21, 1742 (q. v.).

The common council having sought permission to introduce a legislative bill "for keeping in Repair the post Road from this City to King's bridge," which also shall define the course of the road "from Spring Garden to fresh Water" (M. C. C., V: 30-31), such an act is passed. To remove doubts regarding the course of this road "from Spring Garden gate at the End of the Broadway towards Fresh Water," it is enacted that it shall be "on a Straight Line or course from Spring Garden aforesaid, through the New Road lately cut through the Hill by the House of Captain John Brown where the Wind Mill formerly Stood until it meets with the old Road."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 162-66. See Pl. 27, Vol. I.

Observing "how incorrect the Laws of this Colony are printed and the irregular Manner in which they are bound up," the assembly resolves to have them printed on good paper with an index and notes. Daniel Horsmanden agrees to prepare this work, and to deliver one "complete Book thereof, bound in Calve's Leather, to the Governor or Commander in Chief for the Time being, another for the Use of the Council, and another for the Use of the General Assembly," for £250.—Assemb. Jour., I: 823-24. On Nov. 27, 1741 (q. v.), a law for this purpose was passed.

The council and general assembly address a joint petition to the king asking for a grant of money to rebuild the burned buildings in the fort. It recites the fact that there have been erected from time to time, "as the circumstances of the Colony did enable them, in the Fort, which has the Honor to bear your Majesties name, a House, Chappel, Secretaries Office, as likewise Barracks for the

Oct.
19 21
Nov.
7
"
"
"
"
13

1741 Troops, in so statefully a manner, that it was allowed none of your Nov. Majesties Governors in America Enjoyed So noble a Residence."

26 The petition refers to the fire of March 18 (q. v.), and adds "That since the melancholy Incident the Colony hath erected good many Barracks for your Majesties Troops, and a Secretaries office to preserve the Publick Records as these were Conceived most Immediately necessary 'tho even this could not have been effected but by anticipating and prolonging one of its Funds." It continues with this plea: "And that the Circumstances of this Colony as well by Debts formerly Contracted, as by Erecting many Forts and Fortifications for its Defence against attempts by Sea and Land, and y<sup>e</sup> constant and Honourable support of Government Render it unable to bear the Expence of erecting Edifices suitable for the Residence of your Majesties Governor, over a Colony immediately depending on your Majesty, Seated in the Center and the most exposed of any of the British Dominions on this Continent." They therefore ask the king for "such a Sum as your Majesty in your great Wisdom & Goodness shall Judge requisite for that purpose."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 794. The location of the new secretary's office is shown on Pl. 32, Vol. I, outside the gate of the fort. It was removed when the fort was demolished in 1790 (q. v.).—See Loadmark Map Ref. Key, III: 975.

27 An addition is made to the Militia Act of Oct. 3, 1739 (q. v.), as afterwards amended, the new topic relating to the keeping of a military watch in the city of New York in case of invasion, insurrection, or other emergency. It requires that all residents who are exempted from military duty by the Militia Act (except members of the provincial council, judges of the supreme court, members of the general assembly, and the deputy secretary and clerk of the council) be obliged, upon due warning, to watch in their turn, either personally or by substitute. They are to be furnished with the same arms and ammunition as enlisted men, to be liable to the same examination, and to be under the same penalties for failures. This act also provides for prompt conveying of alarms from the ocean front. The beacons, "already Erected by virtue of a former Act, Shall be kept up to it, one on the Western part of Rockaway, one Other at the Narrows on the Island of Nassau, and one other opposite to it on Statten Island." The colonels of those places shall take care of them, and appoint proper persons "to Set the Same on Fire, upon the Sight or appearance of Seven or a greater Number of Ships." When the alarm is given by one of these beacons, the others "are also Immediately to be Set on Fire," so that "an Alarm may be Conveyed to New York in the Speediest manner." When the beacons are thus consumed, others are to be immediately erected by the respective colonels. The exemption allowed to freemen in the city of New York is not abridged by this act.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 168-70. This addition to the Militia Act is continued until the expiration of that act. See Dec. 17, 1743.

" A provincial act is passed "to Apply the Monies granted for Support of this Government for Payment of the Salaries," etc. The governour is allowed £1,560 per annum from the time his "Letters Patents" shall be published here until Sept. 1, 1742. The lieutenant-governour is allowed £1,300 per annum for administering the government from Sept. 1 last until "the Day he may be Superceeded," or until Sept. 1 next; also house rent at the rate of £50 per annum (on account of the burning of the buildings in the fort on March 18 last). Among the many other payments directed by this act, is one of £30 to John Tenbrooke, for assisting to extinguish the fire in the fort, when he was, "by the Breaking of a Ladder, So far disabled as to render him unable to maintain his Family;" and one of £10 to Josiah Parker "for a Cable & a new Rope taken from on board of his Sloop, and Ruined by being used to Pull down Some Buildings at the Time of the Fire."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 170-79.

" As many people possessing considerable personal estates assume residence in New York City after the tax for the minister and the poor has been laid, a statute is enacted to prevent such evasion. Until the December following the levying of the tax, all vestrymen are ordered to make a monthly inquiry in their wards for any persons coming to the city with goods for sale. Such persons are to give a sworn statement of the value of their wares, and to be taxed accordingly.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 179-81.

" A provincial act is passed, empowering the alderman and assistant of each ward in New York City south of Fresh Water to appoint an overseer for each pump and well. These officers are to keep the pumps and wells in repair, and meet these expenses by, an assessment on the property of persons in each locality. As Nov. 27

" Disorderly Persons have frequently been guilty of cutting the Well Roops & breaking the Handles of Pumps," a fine of 40 shillings is fixed for such offences.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 181-84.

" Agreeable to the assembly resolution of Nov. 13 (q. v.), an act is passed commissioning Daniel Horsmanden "to Revise, Digest & Print the Laws of this Colony from the Happy Revolution."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 192-94. He had not completed his task by July 4, 1745 (q. v.); and it was finally done by Livingston and Smith. See Nov. 24, 1750; also Smith, Hist. of N. Y., II: 80.

" Since "Gaming in the Colony of New York at Taverns & other Publick Houses for Moneys or Strong Liquor hath by fatal Experience been found to be Attended with many evil Consequences," the provincial legislature passes "An Act to Restrain disorderly & Unlawful Gameing Houses." No inkeeper is permitted to have a "Common Billiard Table, Truck Table or Shuffle board Table . . . or Suffer any Person or Persons whatsoever to Play or Game either by Day or night," on penalty of a fine of £20. Nor is liquor to be sold to any youth under 21 years of age, or to any apprentice, journeyman, servant, or common sailor.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 194-95. See Oct. 7.

A letter of this date mentions the arrival of a rich prize captured by the "Humming Bird." Another privateer is being fitted Dec. 2 out to cruise against the Spaniards, under the command of one well acquainted with those coasts.—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 145.

In a report to the lords of trade, Clarke states that when he first entered upon the administration of the government (1736) "ship building was almost wholly laid aside nigh an hundred houses in the town stood empty for want of Tenants and the rents of those that were tenanted were fallen very considerably many people having left the Town and Province to seek their quiet in another place hoping likewise to follow their several occupations to more advantage they having then no prospect of seeing trade revive here which had for some time languished." As a result of his efforts, he states, "the houses that stood empty are now all tenanted and now as many more since built as then were empty and even the houses that are now building are bespoken before they are finished and rents not only raised to what they were before they fell but above it." He adds: "how shipbuilding and Trade in General have gradually increased under my administration, the Naval officer and Collectors accounts will clearly show."

He further reports: "There is another Battery of twenty Guns erected this year in this Town."

An address has been prepared, he says, by the assembly and council jointly and sent to England to be presented to the king, asking him "to give them money to build a house Chappell & in the Fort" (see Nov. 26). Clarke states that he refused to join in signing this, as the province, he believes, "was never in so flourishing a condition as it is now," no matter what a "selfish nigardly people say to save their money." He adds: "they say they could not build the Barracks and Secretaries Office but by borrowing from the Fonds," but this, he says, is untrue; they can erect these and all the other buildings "by a Provincial Tax which would hardly be felt; they have no general tax at present, nor have they had for several years;" there is not in America a Province less burthened [burdened] than this.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 206-9.

The common council votes the sum of £20, which is to be remitted to Samuel and William Baker, merchants of London, for purchasing a "Good bell of 200<sup>lb</sup> Weight of the best Metall," and shipping it "for this place by the first Convenient Opportunity for the Use of this Corporation."—M. C. C., V: 45. See June 15, 1742.

" Trinity vestry orders that "the Church Wardens be Desir'd to Send to England by the first Convenient opportunity for a New Sett of Furniture for the Communion Table Pulpit and Reading Desk of the best English Crimson Flower'd Damask with a plain Silk fringe Lining and Tassells."—Trin. Min. (MS.). These articles, which cost £42:11:3, were brought over by Capt. Farmer on April 28, 1742.

1742

Writing in 1743, Cadwallader Colden reviewed the causes of the fevers prevailing in New York City in 1741-2. He wrote: "that part of the town chiefly afflicted with the epidemical distemper these two last summers, is built upon a swamp," and

- 1742 moisture is to be observed "in every cellar." He added: "there is no constant and sufficient care of the drains by which the cellars are freed from stagnating waters."—From "Observations on the Fever which prevailed in the City of New-York in 1741 and 2," in The American Medical and Philosophical Register (1811), I, 310-30. Colden recommended draining the wet grounds, filling up the slips, and emptying all filth into the river, which could be effected only by putting the care of the drains into the hands of the city officials. He remarked: "A fresh water pond and meadow of stagnating water, not half a mile to the northward of the city of New-York, has been lately drained for the benefit of the soil, without any thought of any advantage to the health of the neighbouring inhabitants, though its effects in that respect be very manifest."—Ibid., I, 329. That Colden was in error is proved by the petition of Anthony Rutgers on April 6, 1733, to the common council, for permission to drain his swamplands near the Fresh Water Pond, which, it was believed, would "greatly Contribute to the health of this City."—M. G. C., IV, 179.
- Dr. Isaac du Bois, a graduate of Leyden in 1740 (see Medical Register, 1868-9, p. 252; 1886-7, p. 253), wrote to Dr. Colden, regarding the yellow fever epidemic of this period, in part as follows: "what regards  $\gamma^e$  Infection or Contagion of said fever that was so much talked of & frightened So many out of Town, I shall not say much about: but this is certain, that  $\gamma^e$  epidemic—all fever chiefly resided in  $\gamma^e$  Smiths fly & on  $\gamma^e$  Dock between  $\gamma^e$  Meal Market & M<sup>r</sup> Gerard: Beakmans Slip where it began & ended, whether that proceeded from  $\gamma^e$  noxious & dampness of  $\gamma^e$  Situation, from whence Sulphurous noxious vapours might arise & put  $\gamma^e$  first causes that were lying hid in  $\gamma^e$  Body then dispos'd for  $\gamma^e$  Disease, in action, I leave to  $\gamma^e$  Learned to determine."—From the original letter, with the Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- The city, as it existed during the period of 1742-4, is shown on a plan drawn from memory in August, 1813, by David Grim, and now preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. On the back of the plan is a statement, written by Grim, giving in detail the number of houses on the principal streets in 1744 (q. v.), as well as much other interesting information. This plan is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 32-a.
- Landmark No. 33 on this plan is "Rutger's Brew House," on the north side of Maiden Lane west of William St. There is an excellent undated survey of this brewery property, covering the site of the present 43-59 Maiden Lane, in the Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library.
- By this year, streets were laid out as far north as the present Spruce St. The Common was not fenced in, or otherwise enclosed, and it so remained for many years thereafter.—See drawing by David Grim, showing the site of the Park and surrounding lands and landmarks, including the Collect and Little Collect Ponds, the location of Leisler's grave, and a portion of the west side of Broadway, reproduced in colours in Man. Com. Coun. (1856), opp. p. 426.
- The owners of several brick-kilns on the Commons at this time are named in ibid., 427.
- Jan. 21 A fire occurs at the lower end of King's Street, near Burnett's Key, where the houses are very closely built. The four fire-engines prevent the destruction of the "adjacent Square."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 25, 1742. The first two engines owned by the city arrived from London in 1731 (see May 6, 1731); two additional ones arrived in the summer of 1742 (see June 15).
- 26 Clarke writes to the common council: "After the providential Discovery of the late most execrable Conspiracy, and the hellish and barbarous Designs of a perverse and blood-thirsty People, for the Ruin and Destruction of the whole Province, and the Inhabitants thereof; and that even at a Time when all Things were ripe for Execution, and the intended Desolation was so high at Hand; one would think our signal Preservation could never be forgot; and that no one could be so blind to himself, and regardless of his future Safety, as to suffer the Negroes to have private and public Meetings and Caballings together; thereby giving them an Opportunity of forming new Designs, or another Conspiracy; knowing them to be a People whom no Example can reclaim, no Punishment deter, or Lenitives appease; yet from the many undoubted Informations I have received from diverse Parts of the Country, the Insolence of the Negroes is as great, if not greater, than ever; and they are not only suffered to have private, but even publick Meetings, in great Numbers . . . I must therefore require you, as you value the Peace and Safety of this City and Province, and your own Preservation . . . to see the Laws against Negroes duly and punctually executed; suffering no Meetings of them within your City and County and several Districts . . ."—Horsmanden's Jour., 179-80.
- "The House and Ground now in the Tenure of Mrs. Margaret Dunks at the Jamaica Pilot-Boat, near the Fly Market," is offered for sale by Andrew and Peter Fresneau.—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 1, 1742. The sign of the Jamaica Pilot Boat had formerly hung out from the tavern kept by John Dunks at the corner of Wall and Water Sts., the later Merchants' Coffee House.—See June 19, 1728; Jan. 18, 1736.
- A fire is discovered in a "shed . . . next the Fence of the Old Dutch Church-Yard." A negro, Tom, confesses to having started the fire, and declares that he had been incited to it by other negroes, who said that the fire in the shed "would fire the whole Town, and then the Negroes in Town, with the Negroes that were to come from Long-Island, would murder the White People."—Horsmanden's Jour., 180-81.
- Tom is sentenced to be hanged.—Horsmanden's Jour., 183-87.
- The governor and council now order that the negro Tom be executed, having granted, on March 10, a reprieve of the sentence that he be hanged for burning the house of Widow Bratt.—Cal. Coun. Min., 340. Cf. Feb. 15.
- The negro Tom is executed.—Horsmanden's Jour., 187.
- A tanner's "Barkhouse . . . in the Swamp at the East End of this City" is set on fire, but little damage is done. It is agreed "on all Hands, that the Fire must have been put there on Purpose."—Horsmanden's Jour., 187-88.
- Col. Joseph Robinson hands in to the governor's counsel a letter found under his door, addressed to "Capt." Robinson and revealing some design against the city. An opinion on it is given by the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 340.
- An ordinance is passed forbidding slaves to fetch water on Sundays from any source save the pump or well nearest their abodes. Nor is a slave permitted to ride a horse through any street of the city "or on the Common," on penalty of being whipped "at the Publick Whipping Post" not exceeding forty lashes.—M. C. C., V: 50. This ordinance was passed as a result of the "Negro Conspiracy" of 1741.
- "Gallows Hill" is the name now applied in the city records to the place where the negroes were executed (see May 1, 1741).—M. C. C., V: 23, 49; and description of Pl. 32-a, I: 270.
- A "Bundle of Linnen set on fire" is thrown into the gutter adjoining Benson's brew-house, but it is discovered before it does any damage. Several servants and others were examined in connection with this, but no clue was found.—Horsmanden's Jour., 190.
- A report is received that small-pox is raging at Curaçao, and the council orders that vessels arrived from there are to be inspected and quarantined if necessary.—Cal. Coun. Min., 340. See April 6.
- The common council sends John Tenbroek to Bedlows Island (see June 28, 1738) to see that no one enters or leaves a house where any person has small-pox, save by order of the mayor.—M. C. C., V: 50. See Feb. 29, 1744.
- Frederick Philippe and Daniel Horsmanden certify that Mary Burton is entitled to the reward claimed by her for giving information leading to the conviction of the conspirators in the negro plot; an order of the governor's council to this effect having been given the day before.—Cal. Coun. Min., 340. See Sept. 3.
- Clarke urges upon the assembly the need of making ample provision for putting the fort in "a Posture of Defence," owing to the critical state of affairs in Europe. The fort is in a wretched condition, he says, "some Part of the wall being already fallen down, and other Parts in a tottering Condition, the sod Work mouldered away, and the Bastions and Curtains without Platforms." He also urgently recommends to the assembly the rebuilding of "the House, Chapel and other Edifices, that were consumed in the Fort, as well as the Stables and Coach-House without it." He hopes "that when the Governor [Clinton] comes, he may not be unprovided of an Habitation."—Assemb. Jour., I: 827. To the council, Clarke said on April 24 that the new governor was soon expected and that he knew of no house "to be hired" that was fit for his residence.—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 797. On Nov. 26, 1741 (q. v.), the assembly and council addressed a

- 1742 joint petition to the king for a grant of money for this purpose.— June
 Ap. 22 Ibid., I: 826. See also Nov. 8, 1743.
- 28 Trinity vestry orders that the church-wardens procure bills of exchange for £80 to send to London to pay for "three Branches" (candelabra) "without Guilding" for Trinity Church, which Captain Farmer had ordered of "a Workman in London;" also "that he send for a Small Branch proper for the pulpit; and another for the Reading Desk; and that he Give Directions to have all the Branches Gilt."—Trin. Min. (MS.)
- May 8 The mayor informs the common council that, on May 7, Mary Burton applied to him, in the presence of two witnesses, for the payment to her of the reward of £100 which had been proposed by the board on April 11, 1741, and offered by the lieutenant-governor's proclamation on April 17, 1741 (q. v.), to be given to the white person who made the first discovery of the persons formerly concerned in setting fire to houses in New York City.—M. C. C., V: 52-53. On Sept. 2, 1742, the deputy-secretary of the province presented to the common council a copy of an order of the court of chancery of the province appointing him guardian of Mary Burton; whereupon it was ordered that the mayor issue his warrant to the treasurer to pay "the said Moore to and for the Use and Benefit of the said Mary Burton" the sum of £81, which, with the sum of £19 formerly paid "for the freedom and Others Necessary to and for the Use and Benefit of the said Mary Burton," makes a total of £100, "in full of the Reward offered by this board . . ."—Ibid., V: 60-61. It may be fairly inferred from previous entries in the Minutes that Mary Burton was acting in some manner, directly or indirectly, in the service and pay of the city, for as early as June 19, 1741, two months after the proclamation offering the reward, the common council ordered the mayor to issue his warrant to the treasurer "to pay to Thomas Willson or Order the Sum of Ten pounds Current Money of this Colony in full for the time of his Servant Mary Burton: and for the Cloaths he has purchased for her he the Said Thomas Willson Assigning her Indenture to this Corporation."—Ibid., V: 22. And, again, on March 6, 1742, it was ordered "that the Indentures of Mary Burton be Delivered up to her: and that She be Discharged from the Remainder of her Servitude," and also that "the Mayor Issue his Warrant to the treasurer to pay to the Said Mary Burton or Order the Sum of Three pounds Current money of this Colony: in Order to buy her Necessary Clothing."—Ibid., V: 48. See Sept. 3.
- 22 A provincial act is passed to apply the sum of £617:13:4 for repairing Fort George, for transporting volunteers to the West Indies, and for other purposes. The preamble states that "the Fort in New York is very much out of Repair and the Battery on Copsy Rocks somewhat Endamaged by the Ice." John Cruger, William Rooome, John Roosevelt, and Capt. Henry Row are empowered "to cause the West face of the Flag mount to be pulled down, and Instead thereof, a new Stone Wall Erected, and the Breach on the West Side of the Fort Gate, and Sundry other Places in the Wall to be repair'd, to cause a good new Parapet of Sods to be made on the Said Flag Mount, and so along the Curtain & west part of the North West Bastion, and a good Platt Form to be laid along the Same of thick Squar'd Stones, and the outside of the Battery on Copsy Rocks to be Repair'd with good Sound Oak Plank."
- As, "upon the Arival of the Stores of Warr lately brought from England in the Ships Judith and Mirabella, Several Charges have Arisen in the Receiving and Sending Them to Proper Stations," the act provides that various sums are to be paid for such services.
- The commissioners appointed by the act of June 13 (for fortifying the colony), "for Erecting a Battery on the Flat Rock behind Fort George, have Purchas'd Materials of Wood for the Platform of the Said Battery and it being conceiv'd that a Platform of Stones will be more Serviceable," these commissioners are empowered "to Sell and dispose of the Said Materials of Wood already provided by Them, and to Employ the Produce thereof Towards making the Said Platform of Large thick Squar'd Stones."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 203-8.
- June 15 A warrant is issued for the payment of £24 "for the freight of the two New fire Engines from London to this port." Jacob Turk is allowed £16 per annum "for his Care of the four Engines" from May 28, 1742. A committee is appointed "to Agree with proper work men for hanging the New bell [see Dec. 15, 1741] and for New hanging the old Bell: if they think it Necessary: and also for Erecting a proper place for the Keeping of the fire Engines."—
- M. C. C.*, V: 54-55. The Minutes do not show where these new June engines were kept. The bell was probably intended for the new cupola of the city hall.—See July 15, 1738.
- An engrossed petition, signed by 47 inhabitants of the West July and North Wards, is read in the common council, asking that no 16 other market-house be built in the West Ward than the one already established in Broadway. It recites that, in April, 1733, several of these petitioners and others asked leave to build a market-house at Thurman's Slip in the West Ward. A committee of the common council was appointed to direct the erection of it "in such Convenient place thereabouts as they should judge most Requisite for the publick good." They found that that slip or vicinity was not a convenient place for it; "and therefore all further thoughts off Building a markett house there was wholly Laid Aside by the petitioners, and nothing further was done therein Uotill the Twenty ninth day off March 1738, when a Great Number off the principall freeholders and Inhabitants of the said West ward" petitioned "to Erect add Build at their own Expence a Markett house in the Broadway fronting Crown street."
 On that day also five of the inhabitants of the West Ward stated in a petition that permission had been granted for a market-house in Thurman's Slip, and asked that a committee be appointed to lay out the ground for it. Both these petitions were referred to a committee, which reported on April 13, 1738 (q. v.), that they "had Viewed the said Broadway fronting to Crown Street and found it a Very Convenient place for Erecting a publick Markett house." The report was approved by the board, and it was ordered that the petition for erecting the market-house in Broadway be granted, and the petition for erecting one at Thurman's Slip be rejected. The present petitioners therefore erected the house in Broadway, "which has been off Great Use Benefit and Advantage to the Inhabitants."
- Their petition further recites that on Nov. 7, 1741, it was ordered by the Board that this "should be a publick Meal Mar-kett;" also "That the Country people and others Resorting to the said Markett has Occasioned a Considerable trade to be Carried on in the Neighbourhood thereof which has Encouraged many off our petitioners to Lay out Great sums off Money in purchasing Ground and Building houses near the same . . . upon a Natural supposition that no other market house would be built near it." On learning that a petition has again been made for erecting a market-house in Thurman's Slip, they submit the present petition against it. Their plea adds that "the Multiplying of Markett houses" is a disadvantage to the inhabitants because time is consumed in "Running from Markett to Markett."—From the original petition in file No. 4, city clerk's record-room. For the result of this petition, vide infra. See summary under April 6, 1733.
- Peter Mesier and others petition the common council for the privilege of building a public market-house at their own expense "in a Slipp or street Called and Known by the Name of Cortlands Street," in the West Ward. This petition is rejected.
 —From the original petition, in file labelled "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record-room. See also March 15, 1763.
- The action of the common council on these petitions is thus recorded: "The Petition of John Thurman and others: for Leave to build A Markett house: in Thurmans Slip: and the Petition of Peter Mesier and others for Leave to build A Markett house at Cortlands Slip: and a Petition of Sundry Inhabitants: of the West and North Wards: praying that No other Markett house may be built: in the Westward than that already built: in the Broad way: were Read: & the two first Rejected."—M. C. C., V: 56.
- It is resolved by Trinity vestry "that a New Gallery be built on the North side of the Church and that the Pulpit be Removed Near the Chancel," and it is ordered that the church-wardens
 "Agree with Workmen & for providing Materials & Seeing the Same Completed."—Trin. Min. (MS.)
- The common council orders payment of £17:5:3 to Stephen 26
 Bayard "for Materials and Work done at Coenties Markett."—
M. C. C., V: 58. This is the first mention of the name of this market in the Minutes; see, however, a newspaper reference to "Koenties Market," under Sept. 4, 1732. For earlier market on this site, see April 18, 1691; and for an account of the establishing, and eventually the naming, of the market-house which later was erected here, see De Voe's Market-Book, 113-14. David Grim's ingenious account (MS.) of the origin and meaning of the names of 1742 the slips of this period in bundle of MSS. marked "1739-1747," in July box labelled "New York, 1700-1760," at N. Y. Hist. Soc., is evi- 22 26 dently in error in some particulars.

30 Capt. Wm. Ellis, of the man-of-war "Gosport," having written the council that he has orders to sail for South Carolina and is in need of men, the council issues impress warrants. On Aug. 3, he asked that an embargo be laid on all ships until he completed his crew, but the council advised against it.—Cal. Coun. Min., 341.

Aug. 24 Clarke informs the lords of trade that the last assembly voted funds for the repair of Fort George, but not half enough "to put it in a defensible condition."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 215. See May 22.

26 The common council orders that one alderman, one petty constable, and four firemen, shall patrol the streets, lanes, wharves, and alleys of the city every Sunday from daylight to the time of setting the military guard, and from five in the afternoon (or the discharge of the military guard) to the evening. On the following Sunday, one assistant alderman, the high constable or a marshal, one petty constable, and three firemen are to perform this duty.
In this manner the aldermen, etc., in one group, and the assistants etc., in the other group are to take turns. These steps are taken "to prevent the Scandalous and unchristian irregularities lately
So much Practiced; by Negroes Children and others on the Sabbath day in this City."—M. C. C., V: 59. In December following (see Dec. 21), this plan was abandoned and, instead, a guard composed of a constable and 12 men was ordered to watch from sunrise to sunset.—Ibid., V: 81.

Sept. 1 The provincial council receives a letter from Cadwallader 1 Colden concerning Luke Barrington, arrested for seditious and treasonable words. Barrington, who has passed himself off for a schoolmaster and a Methodist preacher under the name of Singleton, is ordered to be kept in prison.—Cal. Coun. Min., 341.

2 On John Chambers' application, the common council orders
"that the Lease formerly Made by this Corporation to Coll<sup>o</sup> Phillippe M<sup>r</sup> John Rosevelt and himself (see Oct. 1, 1734) for the Land of the Bowling Green near the fort in this City be renewed for Eleven years to Commence from the Expiration of the first Lease upon payment of Twenty Shillings  $\text{p}^{\text{a}}$  annum for the said Eleven years to Come."—M. C. C., V: 61. See also Man. Com.
Coun. (1858), 637-38.

3 On the petition of Mary Burton, who is under age, George Jos. Moore, the clerk of the council, is appointed by the council to be her guardian for receiving the reward offered in the case of the negro conspiracy.—Cal. Coun. Min., 341. See April 10 and
May 8.

Oct. 11 A horse-race is scheduled to be run on this date, the horses to be "entered the Day before the Race, with Adam van den Berg living on the Church Farm . . . or at the Post on the Day of running . . ."—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 13, 1742. The tavern and garden of Adam van Denberg stood on the west side of Broadway between the present Vesey and Barclay Sts., upon the site of the later Astor House, and the race-track also was in the Church Farm. The tavern, or "mead-house," of Van Denberg is indicated upon the MS. map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I). It was probably erected shortly after Feb. 5, 1728, when the vestry of Trinity Church decided to lease "that part of the Churches farm opposite to Spring Garden from the South Bounds thereof which is not com-prehended in M<sup>r</sup> Laks & Harisons Lease."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
According to the deposition of Jacob Kooning, aged 81, made May 18, 1751 (Sandford, Chan. Rep., IV: 651-52), Van Denberg's house was near the old thatched farm-house of Dirk Secken (Seckers, Siecken), the first tenant of the King's Farm, who leased it on March 25, 1677, for 60 bushels of wheat, annually.—Ibid., IV: 646.

14 A committee is appointed by the common council "to wait on the Chief Justice & Desire his opinion whether any Law Exempts
the people Called Quakers from Serving as Constables in this City."—M. C. C., V: 67. On Feb. 25, 1743, the committee reported the opinion of the chief-justice to be "that no Quaker was Compella-ble to Serve [in] the Office of Constable it being an Office of Trust."
—Ibid., V: 82.

22 The corporation of New York City petitions the assembly, stating that "besides the great Loss and Damages, which the City and its Inhabitants have sustained, by the late wicked Conspiracy of the Negroes, a Demand is now made on the Corporation for the Money, allowed by a Law for Slaves executed in it [the city] and for the Execution of them; which the said Corporation is in no Manner of Ways able to discharge, and that it would add a very great Hardship on the Inhabitants to lay it on them, as they have already so greatly suffered by the said Conspiracy." They therefore ask for payment for the negroes, their trials, and executions, out of some public fund of the province, or for some other reasonable relief.—Assemb. Jour., I: 835.

As a result of the so-called "Negro Conspiracy," 14 blacks were burned at the stake, 18 were hanged, and 71 transported.—Hors-manned's Jour., Appendix, 12-15. See Feb. 28, 1741.

The petition of Francis Cowenhoven and Samuel Bayard to the common council for a ferry over the Hudson River to "Wehawk" is read and referred for further consideration.—M. C. C., V: 67. This is the first suggestion in the records of a ferry across the Hudson. The petition does not appear to have been granted.
For later developments, see Feb. 23, 1753.

A venue is ordered to be held on Oct. 27 at the "house of the Widow English," for letting the stalls and standings of the public markets.—M. C. C., V: 67-68. On Nov. 13, another venue for farming the L. I. ferry was ordered to be held on Nov. 27 at the house of the "Widow English Near the Meal Market."—Ibid., V: 73. The death of William English, whose tavern was next the old Custom House on Pearl St., evidently occurred between Aug.
7, 1739 (see "the House of William English" in N. Y. Gaz. of that day), and Oct. 22, 1742, soon after which his widow must have removed to this new site, which was near the corner of Wall and Pearl Sts.

The act of this year appropriating various sums of money for the support of the government provisions, among other things, for the payment of the lieutenant-governour's house rent (£50 per annum, as before). The commissioners appointed by the act of May 22 for repairing Fort George are allowed £230 for that work and "for completing the Stone Platforms already begun in Fort George and in the Battery on the Flat Rock behind the Said Fort."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 233-41.

A public venue is advertised to be held on this date for leasing the L. I. ferry for five years from March 25, 1743, "at the house of the Widow English Near the Meal Market."—M. C. C., V: 73.

A new ordinance concerning the "Night Watch" is approved for publication. For the previous law see Dec. 14, 1731. This is declared to be necessary "to prevent the Conspiracy Insurrection or plotting of Negro's & other Slaves." The law requires that one of the constables of the six wards south of Fresh Water, in his turn, together with 11 watchmen (or as many more as the mayor and three aldermen shall appoint), shall keep watch every night or find a substitute. The regulations are full and explicit regarding hours, routes, and duties of the constables and watchmen.—M. C. C., V: 77-81. See also Aug. 26; and Man. Com. Coun. (1859), 597.

1743

New York was described at this time as "the pleasantest & best built City in all British America. It now contains 2000 Houses [cf. Grim's statement, 1744], most of them of Stooe, & has a great Trade in Furs, Logwood, and other Commodities."—The British Monarchy, engraved by George Bickham and published by act of parliament, Oct. 1, 1748, p. 170.

James Parker begins publication of The New-York Weekly Post-Boy. The date of first issue is determined by the date of the earliest issue found, that of Feb. 1, 1743 (No. 5).—See "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," by Brigham, in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proc. (1917), 511. For the subsequent changes in the name and ownership of this paper, see Early Newspapers, II: 427. This was the third newspaper established in New York. At that time the other papers published in the city were The New-York Gazette, of William Bradford & Henry de Forest (ibid., II: 420), and The New-York Weekly Journal, of John Peter Zenger (ibid., II: 421). At first, the Post-Boy was of quarto size, but with the issue of July 25, 1744, it was enlarged to folio. The last issue bearing the original title was that of Jan. 12, 1747 (No. 208). For the first change in name, see Jan.
19, 1747.

In an advertisement for the sale of the house occupied by John Waddell, together with a coach-house opposite the house of Anthony Rutgers, application is to be made to Daniel Bloom at "the Merchants Coffee House."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 16, 1743. This is the first recorded reference to Bloom's tavern (formerly the Jamaica Pilot Boat) by this name, which later became so famous. For history of this tavern, see June 19, 1728.

It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that a pew be Built for the 22

"
"
29
Nov.
27
Dec.
21
Jan.
4
16
Ey 1

- 1743 Governor for the time being (if his honour [i. e., Lieut.-Gov. June 1 Feb. Clarke] Approve thereof) Where the pulpitt [Lately Stood; and 1 that a Pew for the Council be on one Side and a pew for the Mayor and Aldermen be on the other Side thereof. And that the Mayors pew now in the Gallery be taken down."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- Mar. It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that upon the Pillars under the 15 Galleries there be a Crown and Cherub alternately. Instead of all Cherubs."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 30 The common council finds it necessary to pass a special ordinance "for the better preventing the Forestalling of Provisions Coming to the Publick Markets." It recites an ordinance of Nov. 4, 1742 (M. C. C. V: 71), which fines a "Forestaller" 40 shillings, and calls attention to the fact that this large forfeiture
 "prevents persons Informing against the Offenders." It is thought that a less fine should be paid, not only by the forestaller but also by the person selling to him. The old law, in this respect, is amended by a new provision which requires that, after April 20 next, no one shall buy or sell within the city any food supplies coming to any of the "Common Markets," or make any contract to do so, "before the Same Shall be brought into one of the said Markets ready to be there Sold (Fish of all Kinds only Excepted)," on pain of a forfeit of six shillings, one half to be paid to the city (through the chamberlain) and the other half to the informer.
 If any slaye is guilty "of Buying; or Contracting for any Victualls or provisions So Coming to any of the Common Markets," he shall receive "15 Lashes on the bare back at the Publick Whipping post" unless the master or mistress pay the six shillings fine.—
M. C. C. V: 85-86. See also March 15, 1684.
- Apr. Clarke recommends to the legislature repairing the fort and 21 securing powder, ball, and other stores for all the forts and batteries in the province. He adds "that there is not a Flag for any of the Forts."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 809.
- " Archibald Kennedy, collector of the port, submits a memorial to the assembly concerning the custom-house. He states that the judges ordered that the old custom-house be torn down; and, as the secretary's office, recently erected, is not convenient for securing the records of the province, he proposes that the lot of the old custom-house be disposed of, and that, with an additional allowance, another secretary's office be erected where it formerly stood. The present secretary's office "will be a convenient Custom-House; by which the Merchants will be eased from the Trouble of running to and fro, as likewise that all the Offices will be near one another."—Assemb. Jour., I: 837. The location of the custom-house at this time was at No. 3 Broadway.—Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 974. See also May 19, 1740; Sept. 3, 1744.
- 30 A provincial statute applies £500 for furnishing the garrison in New York City with firewood and candles for one year.—Col.
Laws N. Y., III: 274.
- May Capt. Warren informs the deserters from the "Launceston" 30 that if they return before June 15 they will be forgiven. He also offers a reward of £5 for each sailor found more than five miles from New York without a "Ticket of leave;" such sailor to be lodged in jail.—N. Y. Jour., May 29, 1743. See Sept. 19.
- June In a letter of this date, Cornelius van Horne (see Sept. 29, 3 1736) writes that "the Dutch tongue Declines fast amongst Us Especially with the Young people. And all Affairs are transact<sup>d</sup> in English and that Language prevails Generally Amongst Us."— From miscellaneous MSS. in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Van Horne was a member of the general assembly and of the common council.—
M. C. C. V: 214, 272.
- 7 Alderman Simon Johnson, chairman of the ferry committee (M. C. C. V: 82-83), notifies the common council of a hearing he has recently held on a complaint made by the lessee of the ferry, Richard Baker, against Hendrick Remson, one of the trustees of the "Township of Brookland." Baker had demanded of Remson two shillings, one penny, for ferriage of Remson and goods in Remson's own boat (see ferry regulations, Nov. 2, 1717). Remson claimed a right to so transport himself and goods free, but did not show any ground for the claim. He refused to pay, and Alderman Johnson gave judgment against him, ordering that he pay the demand to Baker by 10 o'clock the next morning, with costs.
 As he still refuses, the common council unanimously sustains the position taken by Johnson, and orders the arrest and commitment of Remson in the jail until payment is made.—Ibid., 89-90. For further proceedings, see Dec. 30.
- 20 "The brave Capt. Warren is fallen down to the Narrows, in order for another Cruise against the Spaniards, the Men are all brave and hearty, and wish for nothing but to meet with some of the Don's."—N. Y. Jour., June 20, 1743.
- For the next five years, the latest news of the enterprise of privateers upon the sea was published in New York newspapers.
 "We are here very much infested with Caterpillars and Worms, of an uncommon kind which have done abundance of mischief about this City, in one Farm especially, where they have destroyed a Field of Barley upwards of a Mile in Length . . . we hear they are numerous in several Parts of the Country. The Publick is desired to communicate the method of extirpating these Virmen."
 —N. Y. Jour., June 20, 1743.
- From this month until Aug., 1748, 31 privateers were fitted out at the port of New York. For their names, with the number of their guns and names of their commanders, see Man. Com. Coun.
 (1870), 867-68.
- A Londoner writes to a friend in New York: "We are now in daily Expectation of a French War. The late Transactions of our Troops, upon the Main, puts it out of all manner of doubt, if this happens to be the Case, it must cause great alteration in Trade."
 —N. Y. Jour., Sept. 26, 1743.
- An advertisement reads: "To be Seen, At Mr. Pacheco's 18
 Ware-House, in Marketfield-Street, commonly known by the Name of Petticoat-Lane, opposite the Cross Guns, near the Fort. A Curious Musical Machine, arriv'd from England, . . . which performs several strange and diverting Motions to the Admiration of the Spectators . . . All being performed entirely by Clock-Work, in imitation of St. Brides Bells in London."—N. Y. Jour.,
 July 18, 1743.
- A woman having gone on board the privateers "Castor" and 23
 "Pollux," is seized and ducked from the yard-arm, and tarred from head to foot.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 25, 1743.
- Parker (see Jan.) has moved his printing office "from Hanover 25 Square to Hunter's-Key, about Midway between the Old Slip and Meal Market."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 25, 1743.
- The common council is informed that complaints have been 30 presented to the grand jury that "the Filth and Mud in the Slip at the lower end of Maiden Lane is a great Nuisance." The common council replies that it will consider proper means of removing such nuisances.—M. C. C. V: 92. At the next session, held Aug. 31, the board ordered the "Neighborhood" to fill up Maiden Lane slip and lay a drain under it, and allowed £40 for this work.—Ibid., V: 93.
 For further action to remove unsanitary conditions, see Nov. 24.
- William Ellis, lately commander of H. M. S. "Gosport," who Aug.
 died on Aug. 12, is interred "Under the Altar piece of the English 13 Church."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 15, 1743; and Upcott Collection, N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 179. Why the rare distinction of an interment in the chancel of Trinity Church was reserved for this commander of a ship-of-war is not stated in this record.
- A stone is inserted in the front wall over one of the windows 24 of the Church of the St. Spirit, bearing the inscription: "Aedes Sacra Gallor. Prot. Reform. Fund: A 1704, penitus repar. 1741."
 —Wittmeyer's Introduction to Vol. I of Collections of the Huguenot
Soc. of Am., xxxiii, See 1741.
- In this month, The American Magazine and Historical Chronicle, Sept. printed by Rogers & Fowle, Boston, made its appearance. As stated on the title-page, it was "sold by S. Eliot & J. Blanchard in Boston; B. Franklin, in Philadelphia; J. Parker, in New-York; J.
 Pomroy, in New-Haven; C. Campbell, Post-Master, New Port."
 For further description, see a broken set in the N. Y. Pub. Library, having the view of Boston on the title-page of the first issue;
 and Evans, Am. Bibliography, II: 227. Parker advertised it in the N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 2, 1744; and solicited subscriptions in arrears, in ibid., Nov. 12, 1744.
- Capt. Warren informs all deserters from the ship "Launceston" 19 that if they return before Oct. 5 they will be forgiven; otherwise, they will be prosecuted.—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 19, 1743. See May 30.
- George Clinton, the new governor of the province, having 22 arrived the preceding evening in "his Majesty's Ship the Loo," lands "near the new Battery, under the Discharge of the Guns of the Loo and the Fort," and is received by "his Majesty's Council for this Province, the Mayor and Corporation, the Officers of the Militia, and principal Gentlemen of this City;" he proceeds "to his Honour, the Lieutenant Governor's [George Clarke's residence] the Way being lined by his Majesty's Forces post'd here; and having published his commission in Council, and taken the usual

1743 Oaths," proceeds to the city hall, attended as before, and there Sept. publishes his commission with the usual solemnity.—N. Y. Jour., 22 Sept. 26, 1743; Upcott Collection, in N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 181; Cal.
Coun. Min., 343; Assemb. Jour., I: 839. Cf. N. Y. Col. Docs., VI:
639. Clinton's annual salary was £15,560.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 820.
"Clarke soon after [in 1745] returned to England. He had grown very wealthy and had purchased a fine estate in Cheshire
... and a tablet was raised to his memory in one of the chapels of the cathedral.—Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 258; Man.
Com. Coun. (1869), 764.
28 The common council having ordered the draft of an address to His Excellency George Clinton, captain-general and governourin-chief, it is read and approved. He is congratulated upon his safe arrival with his "Ladie" ad family; he is complimented upon his speech "to the Late Assembly on Tuesday Last;" and is voted the freedom of the city, which is to be handsomely engraved on parcament, with the affixed seal of the corporation enclosed in a gold box of about £20 value to be made by Charles le Roux, goldsmith.—M. C. C., V: 95-97. It was delivered Sept. 30.—Ibid., V: 100. The early completion and delivery of the freedom suggests the probability that Le Roux anticipated the order for the box, and prepared it in advance.
Oct. There is advertised a "Solar or Camera Obscura Microscope," 17 now to be seen at "the house of Mr. John Kip, in Broad street, where the sun will serve all the day long;" also a "musical clock made by that great master of machinery, David Lockwood." The latter instrument, which is operated "by springs only," plays "the choicest airs from the celebrated operas . . . the French horn pieces performed upon the organ, German and common flute, flageolet, &c., as sonatas, concertos, marches, minuets, jiggs and Scotch airs, composed by Corelli, Aliberoni, Mr. Handel, and other great and eminent masters of music." It has been shown before the king in St. James's palace.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 17, 1743.
" The brig "Hester" and the sloop "Polly" are fitting out at New York for "a cruising Voyage against the enemy." All "Gentlemen, Sailors and others" are invited "to try their Fortunes."
The brig is "a fine new single Deck Vessel of 150 Tons, to mount 32 Guns, and to be mann'd with 120 Men." The sloop is "also new, Burthen 100 Tons, to mount 26 Guns, and be mann'd with 80 men."
They are to go "in Company." The "Articles" (of agreement for sailors, etc.) are "at the house of Mr. Benjamin Kierstedt, Tavernkeeper on the New Dock."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 17, 1743.
18 Regarding the success of the expedition, see June 9, 1744.
The governour and council consider a letter from the lords justices about the impending war with France.—Cal. Coun. Min., 343. See May 21, 1744.
Nov. Clinton addresses the council and the newly elected assembly.
8 He says: "The short time I have been with you has not permitted me minutely to Examine into the State of your fortifications, the security & well maintaining of which has (since my arrival) been strongly recommended to me by his Majesty . . . And as you are indebted to the bountifull care of his Majesty for a late large supply of warlike stores, it will be incumbent upon you to shew your thankfulness by making immediate provision for the purchase of such others, as in the Judgment of our Superiors ought to be had at the proper Charge and Expence of the province." He also hopes that the inhabitants will not suffer "the usual Place of their Governour's Residence, to lie longer in the Ruins, to which the late unhappy Fire has reduced it."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 820. For the assembly's subsequent action on this subject, see May 19, 1744.
24 A petition of several inhabitants of New York City is presented to the assembly. It states that "the said City has for this two or three Years past, been visited with violent Fevers, which not only carried off many of the Inhabitants, but likewise obstructed their Trade, and Commerce, which it's conceived is occasioned by the Filth and Dirt lying in the Streets and Slips, in the Heat of Summer, together with offensive Trades being carried on, and Hogs and Dogs Kept within the same." They therefore "pray the Premises may be taken into Consideration, and that an Act may be passed for the Removal, and preventing for the future, the said Nuisances."
—Assemb. Jour., II: 7. As a result of this and similar protests, the common council was led to pass several ordinances improving public sanitation.—See Feb. 17, 1744.

provisions of previous acts, as amended, with some additions. Dec.
See May 6, 1691; Nov. 27, 1702; July 27, 1721; July 24, 1744;
Oct. 3, 1739; Nov. 27, 1741. Among exemptions from military 17 duty are now included justices of the peace, high sheriffs, coroners,
"and other civil Officers of his Majesties Government in this Colony, and all other officers of Courts, . . . School Masters,
. . . One Miller to Each Mill Ferryman and Persons Employed in Furnaces for making of Iron." Indians and negro slaves are still not permitted "to be Listed, or do any Duty belonging to the Militia in this Colony." The provisions of the act do not "Extend to the Members of his Majesties Council the Clerk of the Council or his Deputy or their Domestic Servants." All commission officers of the regiment of New York, of the independent companies, and of the artillery company, "Shall wear their Swords every Sunday during the Continuance of their Commissions," under penalty for neglect. If any naval force should "make an Attempt upon the City of New York," and there should not be sufficient gunpowder belonging to the government for the defence of the fortifications, there shall be purchased or impressed by the field officers of the New York City regiment, by order of the governour, commander-in-chief, lieutenant-governour, or the council, as much powder as necessary, and this shall be paid for by enactment of the general assembly.—Cal. Laws N. Y., III: 296-309.
This law was re-enacted with amendments Sept. 21, 1744 (q.v.).
" The provincial legislature passes a "Septennial Act" (following the precedent of parliament which, in the first year of the reign of "his Late Majesty," passed such an act), limiting the continuance of the general assemblies in this province to seven years, unless dissolved by the governour or commander-in-chief.—Cal. Laws
N. Y., III: 295; cf. the Triennial Act of Dec. 16, 1737. This act remained in force down to the Revolution.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4 to ed.), IV: 165 (footnote).
" The act of this year providing for the payment of the expenses of the government contains, among other provisions, one for the governour's house rent, at the rate of £100 per annum.—Cal.
Laws N. Y., III: 286-92.
30 A letter of Dec. 10 from William Smith and Samuel Clowes, addressed to Alderman Johnson, is referred to the common council by the deputy-mayor; the letter states that, at the last supreme court, on motion of Hendrick Remson, Smith was appointed councillor for Remson "in an Action Relating to y<sup>e</sup> Right of the People of Brucklyn to Free ferriage to and from the City of New York."
—See under June 7, 1743. The letter asks that the city be represented by an attorney at the next court. A committee of the common council is appointed to secure the services of Mr. Murray, Mr. Alexander, and Mr. Chambers, as counsel for the city, to defend the suit.—M. C. C., V: 110-11. The action of "Remson vs."
The Mayor, Aldermen and Comppanly of the City of N. Y., continued in the city and supreme court records for over 30 years, and was settled finally, in 1775, in favour of the plaintiff's heirs.—
Ibid., V: 152; 176; 442-43, 444, 450, 452-53; VII: 343; and Parchment
Roll, P. 270-c 4, in county clerk's office. This result appears to have been justified by the terms of the Montgomery Charter, and by the Ferry Act of Oct. 14, 1732 (q.v.). A collateral attempt to break the city's ferry monopoly was attempted by an appeal to the assembly.—See Jan. 7, 1746. The whole subject of the city's ferry rights is discussed in Hoffman, Treatise on the Estate and Rights of the Corporation, I: 273-302.
1744
" A Plan of the City and Environs of New York," showing the principal landmarks at this time, was drawn from memory in 1813 by David Grim, then 76 years of age. It is now preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc., and is reproduced as Pl. 32-a, Vol. I, with an accompanying description. On the back of the original, Grim gives the number of houses in the city in this year, as follows:
"The west side of Broadway, to the river . . . . . 129
The east side of Broadway, with the west side of Broad Street . . . 232
The east side of Broad Street, with the west side of William Street . . . . . 324
The east side of William Street, with the west side of Pearl Street . . . . . 242
The east side of Pearl Street, to the East River . . . . . 214 1,141"
—See Pl. 32-a and p. 270, Vol. I; Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 584-86.

- 1744 . . . Not long before this, the water out of y<sup>e</sup> Fresh Water 1 Pood, now called Krollie, ran down to both rivers, to y<sup>e</sup> North by a ditch, & to y<sup>e</sup> East by a small rivulet; w<sup>ch</sup> with rains frequently increased to so wide as to require to [two] log to be laid across to walk over—on y<sup>e</sup> Hill near y<sup>e</sup> run was a Windmill. Some years before this, there was a windmill between what is now called Liberty & Courtland streets. . . .
- "I have seen in 1744 & afterwards, sever[al] indian canoes come down y<sup>e</sup> East & North River, & land y<sup>e</sup> cargoes in y<sup>e</sup> bason near y<sup>e</sup> Long-bridge.
- "and took up y<sup>e</sup> residence in y<sup>e</sup> yard & store house of Adolph Philips. There y<sup>e</sup> generally made up their baskets, & brooms, as they could better bring y<sup>e</sup> rough materials with y<sup>m</sup> y<sup>n</sup> y<sup>e</sup> ready made articles.—From notes by Rev. John H. Abeel, D.D., headed "Rest of Abeels Book AB," in Miller Papers, N. Y. Hist.
 Soc.
- John Moulinar, silversmith, was admitted as a freeman of New York in this year. Two specimens of his work are described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 38.
- Jan. "Order'd that the Church Wardens pay to M<sup>r</sup> Clem Sen<sup>r</sup> 5 Forty pounds in full of the Gratuity promised him by this Board if he made a Compleat and Good Organ, the Said M<sup>r</sup> Clem giving it under his hand that when a Good Organist Comes here and finds any Real fault with the Organ, that he will Come here and Amend it; the Vestry paying the Charge of his Coming here and Returning and also that he will Change three Treble Stops that are now in Wood for Pewter if Requir'd for the Sum of fifteen pounds, and will also Change the Trumpet Stop for a Double Cornett for the Sum of fifteen pounds, and will Make a Pedell compleat for the Organ for the Sum of Twelve pounds if Required."—Trin. Min.
 (MS.).
- 6 There is offered for sale "The House wherein Capt. John Waddell lives, opposite to Capt. Waldron's, with a Coach-House opposite to M<sup>r</sup>. Anthony Rutgers's."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 9, 1744.
- 16 Dr. Spencer advertises "another Course of Experimental Philosophy," beginning Feb. 1.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 16, 1744.
- 22 James Alexander writes from New York to Cadwallader Colden in part as follows: "Parker has printed the English part of your paper very well, & to the Latin he has indeed blundered but that is not of so much moment—the paper I believe and hope has had the Effect desired to wit to Convince a Majority of our Magistrates of the necessity of removing Skinners Tanners &c to fresh water & of Either Cleaning or filling up the Ships before Summer and measures are takeing for doing those things & putting their former Laws as to the keeping clean the Streets & Docks in better Execution.—All whom I have talkt to on this head think themselves & the City very much oblig'd to you for that paper than which nothing could be more necessary nor Seasonable."—From the original letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in the N. Y.
 Hist. Soc.
- Feb. As the corporation of the city of New York has been indicted 17 by the grand jury for tolerating certain nuisances, a committee of the common council is appointed to consider means of removing them. The board orders that the ordinance for cleaning the streets, lanes, and alleys of the city shall be published in all the "publick papers," and that 40 notices of this by-law shall be printed and "affixed" in the most public places, with the warning that "for the future the Breach of the Said Law will be duly punished."—
M. C. C., V: 111-12. To further improve the public health, a committee is chosen to draft an ordinance for "Removing such Trades out of the City as are Publick Nusances."—Ibid., V: 112. For the subsequent action of the common council, see March 2, and May 3.
- 29 The brig "Mary and Ann" arrives from Jamaica with small-pox on board. It is quarantined off "Bedlars" Island (see June 28, 1738), and the health certificate issued by Dr. Roeloff Kierstedt is called into question. James Jauncey, master of the vessel, refuses to go into quarantine, and prosecution against him for contempt is ordered. After Dr. Kierstedt is examined, the brig is allowed to come up to the town. General quarantine measures are now ordered.—Cal. Coun. Min., 343.
- Mar. Gov. Clinton issues a proclamation forbidding masters of vessels 1 to come near the wharves or docks of New York before their ships have been visited and a certificate of health issued.—*N. Y.
 Post-Boy*, March 5, 1744. The proclamation has been reprinted from the Post-Boy in Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 755-56.
- It is announced that on this date a race will be run "between a Mare called Ragged Kate, belonging to M<sup>r</sup>. Peter De Lancy," Mar. and "a Horse called Monk, belonging to the Hon. William Mon-tagu, Esq; for 200 l."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 30, 1744. No mention is made of the location of the track, but the race was probably held on the Church Farm.—See Oct. 11, 1742.
- The grand jury of the supreme court having indicted the city for maintaining public nuisances, and the common council having appointed a committee on Feb. 17 to consider how these ought to be removed (M. C. C., V: 111-12), this committee now reports that Beckman's and Burling's Slips in Montgomerie Ward should be paved; that the Fly Slip is "a great ad Intollerable Common Nusance;" that there is "filth: Dirt and Nastiness" under the Meal Market and on the ground in front of it at low-water mark; and that Old Slip is "a Great and Publick Nusance."
 All of these nuisances should be removed at the city's expense.—
Ibid., V: 113-14. A provincial act to remove certain other nuisances was passed on May 3 (q. v.). See also Feb. 28, 1746.
- 4+15 France declares war against Great Britain. This was the beginning of King George's War, which lasted about four years. See March 24.
- Members of the assembly are notified by "circular Letters" 19 that they are to meet April 17, "according to Adjournment."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, March 19, 1744. Whether these were conveyed by regular post or by special messenger is not stated in this record.
- " Charles Johnston, "late from old England," advertises that he intends " (as soon as the weather is warmer and proper encouragement is given) to teach Writing in all his hands, Arithmetick and Latin (as also to teach the Grammar scholars twice a day, Writing gratis),—a work "so requisite in this flourishing city."
 He is "at M<sup>r</sup>. Wood Furman's, in Wall street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 19, 1744. Cf. a similar advertisement in ibid., Jan. 13, 1746.
- "The Boston and Philadelphia Posts will set out on Monday the 26th instant, at Three o'clock P. M. to perform their Stages Weekly during the Summer Season."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 19, 1744. See Dec. 17.
- 24 The London Gazette prints the statement that, on Feb. 28, the British minister at Paris was notified by the French secretary of state that France could no longer avoid declaring war against Great Britain; also that "last Wednesday" news reached England from Calais that war was actually declared.—Assem. Jour., II: 20.
 This item of news was read in the assembly on May 11.—Ibid.
 For the official action thereon, see May 21. This third intercolonial war between England and France lasted until Oct. 7, 1748 (q. v.). It was known in Europe as the War of the Austrian Succession; and in America as King George's War. It was closed by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle.—Thwaites, France in America, 105-23; Leadam, Political Hist. of Eng. 1702-1760, 378-418; Winsor, Nar. & Crit.
Hist. of Am., V: 434-49.
- To inform persons applying to the supreme court to be natural- 26
 ized, Parker publishes a clause of the act of parliament, "passed the 13th Year of his present Majesty's Reign," entitled "An Act for naturalizing such foreign Protestants, and others therein mentioned as are settled, or shall settle, in any of his Majesty's Colonies in America." It prescribes that no person, except Quakers and Jews, shall be naturalized, "unless such Person shall have received the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in some Protestant or Reformed Congregation within this Kingdom of Great Britain, or within some of the said Colonies in America, within Three Months next before his taking and subscribing the said Oaths, and making, repeating and subscribing the said Declaration; and shall, at the Time of his taking and subscribing the said Declaration, produce a Certificate signed by the Person administering the said Sacrament, and attested by two credible Witnesses, whereof an Entry shall be made in the Secretary's Office of the Colony, wherein such Person shall so inhabit and reside, as also in the Court where the said Oaths shall be so taken, as aforesaid, without any Fee or Reward."
 The person applying to be naturalized must bring with him to court the witnesses to the certificate, that they may be questioned whether they saw the minister sign the certificate.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 26, 1744.
- The common council orders "that all the Owners of the Houses Apr.
 between M<sup>r</sup> Chambers & M<sup>r</sup> Deygers Fronts which are 13 the Bowling Green have Liberty to Range their Corners in Such Manner as the Alderman and Assistant of the West Ward Shall think proper."—M. C. C., V: 117.

1744 It is ordered by the common council that, in the future, no
Apr. market shall be erected at Maiden Lane Slip unless it "Shall be 13 Contiguous and Adjoining to the Market house now built there."
—M. C. C., V: 117. See Sept. 6, 1699.

17 Gov. Clinton recommends to the assembly the consideration of "what may be wanting to complete the Fortifications in the City."—Assemb. Jour., II: 14-15. See May 19.

30 Parker announces that "The New-Printing Office is now removing from Hunter's Key into Beaver-Street, the Corner-House next Door to Mrs. Parmyter's, where all Persons may have Printing done as usual." On May 7, he announced that his printing-office was "now removed."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 30, May 7, 1744.
For his last previous move, see July 25, 1743.

May An act of assembly is passed and published, entitled "A Law
3 to Remove and Prevent Nuisances within the City of New York," beginning with the allegation that "during the Latter part of the two Last Summers a Most Noisom Smell was Generally Perceived by all who went into the South East part of this City;" etc. This condition, it is alleged, is due to the foul state of the docks and slips, to tan-pits, tan fats, the pits of skinners, leather dressers, curriers and glovers, uncurd hides, skins, leather, and blubber, in the neighbourhood of which "the Said Mortal and Infectious Distemper broke out." The offensive smells are often occasioned, also, by the keeping of swine, the dye of batters, the putrid materials of starch makers, the blood and garbage of small cattle killed within the city, the entrails of fish cast into the streets, and the filth and oyer-shells lying in cellars or yards of dwelling-houses.

It is therefore ordained that, after May 25, 1744, no one shall make or keep any "fatt or pits of Standing Water Whether for Tanners, Skinners, Leather Dressers: Curriers: Glovers or any other use whatsoever that may be a Nuisance to the Inhabitants within this City to the Southward of Fresh Water or within One hundred Yards to the South Side thereof under the Penalty of Ten Shillings for Every day for Every Such flat or Pitt So had Used Made or Kept Unfilled up with Earth." The owner or occupant of the land where these pits are must fill them up with earth, under the same penalty for neglect. No one is permitted to keep "any Live hog or hogs to the South Ward of the Fresh Water;"
also "no Dye of Hatters or other dyers or Corrupted Noisom Water of Starch Makers Shall be Poured or Suffered to Run into the Channells of the Streets of this City Either by Night or by day," from March 25 to November 1 each year, "Nor Suffered to Remain in the houses and Yards or other places of the Inhabitants of this City Living to the South Ward of fresh Water." It is further ordained that "no Dirt filth: Shells of Oysters Clams or any Shell fish from the first day of May to the first day of October in Every Year Shall be Suffered to Remain in the Houses: Cellars: Yards or other places of any of the Inhabitants of this City to the Southward of Fresh Water" for more than 24 hours; "Nor Shall Any person or persons Presume to Lay any Dung: Dirt: filth: or any Kind of Nastiness on any part of the Commons or Vacant Lots to the South Side of the Poorhouse and the House Commonly Called the Guard house of this City."

A penalty is prescribed for failure to perform each of these requirements; half the amount collected to be paid to the church-wards for the use of the city's poor, and the other half to the person or persons who shall institute and prosecute the suit for recovery against the offenders. Persons having "fatts" or pits in Beekman's swamp (see Vol. I, Pl. 30), which are already made or have been placed there during the tenure of the present owners, are exempt from the operation of the law.—M. C. C., V: 118-21.
Tan-pits had been banished from the city by order of June 7, 1676
(q. v.).

5 On this day, a young girl is "run over by a Chaise & bruised so much that she died the next Morning."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 7, 1744. Street vehicles, by this time, evidently had become so numerous as to be dangerous to pedestrians.—Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y. (1890), 12.

7 Before the publication of city or trade directories, tradesmen relied upon advertisements in the newspapers to make their places of business known to the public. The following are examples of a topographical character:

"Joseph Leddel, Pewterer, who for many years has lived at the Sign of the Platter in Dock Street opposite to Mr. Franks, is now removed to the lower End of Wall Street, near the Meal Market, in the House where Mr. Joseph Sacket lately lived, and has the same Sign; . . . most Sorts of Pewter-Ware, wholesale or Retail, at reasonable Rates; and gives ready Money for old Pewter and Brass."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 7, 1744.

"Thomas Brown, Cutler, is now removed from Hanover Square, into the House of Mr. Brandt Schuyler, in Broad Street, the Corner of Stone Street, near the Long Bridge, where any Persons may be supplied, as usual, with all Sorts of Ironmongery and Cutlery Ware, by Wholesale or Retail. Also Razors and Surgeon's Instruments ground in the best manner, at reasonable Rates."—Ibid.

Gov. William Shirley, of Massachusetts, writes from Boston to Gov. Thomas, of Pennsylvania, giving information of the declaration of war between France and Great Britain. The letter well illustrates the round-about methods and long delays in transmitting such important intelligence at this period. He states: "A vessel arriv'd from Glasgow which brought a printed Copy of the French King's Declaration of War dated the 15th of March, (I suppose New Style) against the Crown of Great Britain, and a written Copy of His Majesty's Declaration of War against the Crown of France dated the last day of March, which the Master of the Glasgow Vessel took from a printed Copy on board a Vessel which he met in his passage, both which Declarations I make no doubt are Authentic."—From the original letter, as catalogued for sale by Henkels, Phila. (item No. 700), Oct. 22, 1919. See also May 21.

Parker announces for publication, on May 19, A Journal of the Proceedings against the Conspirators at New York, in 1741 and 1742, and urges the payment of unpaid subscriptions. The price is 10s.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1744. A preliminary announcement appeared in the Post-Boy of April 16. The work referred to was by Daniel Horsmanden, the recorder of the city. His preface is dated April 12, 1744. The book has the following log title: *A Journal of the Proceedings in The Detection of the Conspiracy formed by Some White People, in Conjunction with Negro and other Slaves, for Burning the City of New-York in America, And Murdering the Inhabitants. Which Conspiracy was partly put in Execution, by Burning His Majesty's House in Fort George, within the said City, on Wednesday the Eighteenth of March, 1741, and setting Fire to several Dwelling and other Houses there, within a few Days succeeding,
And by another Attempt made in Prosecution of the same infernal Scheme, by putting Fire between two other Dwelling-Houses within the said City, on the Fifteenth Day of February, 1742, which was accidentally and timely discovered and extinguished. Containing, I.
A Narrative of the Trials, Condemnations, Executions, and Behaviour of the several Criminals, at the Gallows and Stake, with their Speeches and Confessions; with Notes, Observations and Reflections occasionally interspersed throughout the Whole. II. An Appendix, wherein is set forth some additional Evidence concerning the said Conspiracy and Conspirators, which has come to Light since their Trials and Executions. III. Lists of the several Persons (Whites and Blacks) committed on Account of the Conspiracy; and of the several Criminals executed; and of those transported, with the Places wherto. By the Recorder of the City of New-York . . . New-York:
Printed by James Parker, at the New Printing-Office, 1744.*

The title sufficiently explains the contents. The author states in the preface (p. v), as a reason for writing it, that "There had been some wanton, wrong-headed Persons amongst us, who took the Liberty to arraign the Justice of the Proceedings," and who declared "That there was no Plot at all." The author further states
(p. i) that every formality, question, and answer is not published, because "we have no One here, as in our Mother Country, who make it a Business to take Notes upon such Occasions; or any others, that we know of, who are so dexterous at Short-Hand, as to be sufficiently qualified for such a Purpose;" but he presents all that could be collected "from the Notes that were taken by the Court, and Gentlemen at the Bar."

The outcome of this publishing venture was revealed in the following notice which Parker printed Oct. 10, 1748: "The Printer hereof having by him a Number of the Journals of the Proceedings against the Negroes, who lately plotted the Destruction of this City; and as he has been a considerable Loser by printing that Book, he proposes to sell 'em very cheap, viz 3s. a Piece, sticht, which is not quite one third of what they were at first sold for.—
And as it may be a necessary Memento in all Families in this Colony; so 'tis probable they will never have such another Opportunity of getting them so cheap again; and those who are inclined to purchase, are desired to be expeditious, lest they may be disappointed."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 10, 1748.

- 1744 Merchants having made contracts to supply the French at May Cape Breton Island with provisions and military stores, a proclama-16 tion is ordered by the provincial council to be issued, forbidding the exportation of these commodities.—Cal. Coun. Min., 344.
- 17 Gov. Clinton, in urging the assembly to make additional provision for fortifications, asks that "the Walk round the Battery on Copey Rocks, be raised with Sod work, as it will strengthen that Battery, and defeat the Attempts of an Enemy to land there, and that an officer's Guard of the Militia, be kept there every Night; for which Purpose the Guard Room ought to be fitted for their Reception; Gates erected at each End of the said Battery, and two or more Centry Boxes placed there, and a Quantity of Candles sufficient for that Guard."—Assem. Jour., II: 22. Such a bill was passed on May 19 (q.v.).
- 18 Braodt Schuyler is appointed a city surveyor.—M. C. C., V: 122.
- 19 A provincial act provides for repairing fortifications, rebuilding the governor's house in the fort, and defraying the expense of other undertakings for the well-being of the city and security of the province. At present, "the Fortifications of this Colony are not in Sufficient Repair to Oppose the Attacks of a Formidable Enemy, or to Encourage the good People thereof, To make a vigorous Defence, in case of any Attempts against Them, and the present Situation of affairs in Europe is Such as Render it absolutely Necessary, to Repair & compleat Them at this critical Juncture."
 The act also states that "the usual Residence of the Governours of this Colony Still Lays in the ruins occasioned by the late wicked conspiracy," and it is "conceived highly necessary, as well for the accomodation of the Governours . . . , as for the Credit & Reputation of the Colony, To Erect a new commodious House in or near the Place, where the old one Stood." It is therefore enacted that, out of the revenue derived from the liquor excise, the treasurer shall pay to the three commissioers, Peter Jay, John Rosevelt, and William Roome, who are appointed to apply the money to the objects specified, the following sums:
 For mounting cannon "on the Flatt Rock Battery, and Erecting one or Two Centinell Boxes," £16;
 For making a fence at both ends of this battery, with a "Gate to open fit for a Cart to go in upon Occasion, and a Turn Pike," and also a "Turn Pike" at the north end, £17;15;
 For repairing the sod work on this battery, £7;10;
 For putting "the Brasses on the Carriages and Purchasing others that are wanting," £5;15;
 For "Building a good & Sufficient Stone Wall at the Foot of the South West part of the Flag Mount to Support the ground thereof," £45;
 For "Repairing & Painting the Walls of Fort George," £52;
 For "Building a good New Plat Form on Copsy Battery of Pitch Pine Plank two Inches and an half thick and not Less than Twelve Inches wide clear of Sap, on good Substaical white Oak Sleepers, not less than Five under the Length of one Plank," £285;
 For "Painting the Carriages on the Several Batteries," £47;
 For gunpowder to be stored in the powder house of the city, £500; and
 For "Building & compleating a House for the Residence of the Governours in the Place before mentioned," £3,000. It shall be 80 feet long, 45 feet wide, three stories above ground, the two lower to be 11 feet each and the upper one 8 feet (high), with "A Low Roof and no Dormant windows, conformable to a Plan Signed & approved of by his Excellency the Governour," etc. The commissioners are directed "to make use of all the Sashes, Doors, Locks, Hindges, Iron, and other Materials Saved of the late House," and they are empowered "to dispose of the Plank and Timber of the Old Plat form on the Copey Battery," and to "Employ the produce" in finishing the new platform.—Col. Letus N. Y., III: 339-46.
- The appropriation of £3,000 for rebuilding the governour's residence, as provided by this act, proved inadequate, and additional appropriations were needed later.—See April 4, 1745; and Nov.
 19, 1750. On the May 19, 1747 (q.v.), the assembly reminded Clinton that the governour's house, which was then almost finished, had been erected according to plans approved by him, at very great expense to the colony. This residence was not completed, however, on Feb. 12, 1748 (q.v.).
- 21 A letter having been received by the provincial council from Gov.
 Shirley, with news of a declaration of the war with France, Gov.
 Clinton, by order of the council (Cal. Coun. Min., 344), issues a proclamation beginning: "Whereas there is the greatest Reason to believe, that War has been for some time actually declared between the Courts of Great Britain and France; and I having been informed that, since the Account thereof has been brought into this Province, a great Quantity of Gun-Powder has been bought up, in order for Exportation . . ." He therefore enjoins all persons not to export any gunpowder out of the province, "more than shall be sufficient for the Use of the Vessels carrying the same."
 —N. Y. Post-Boy, May 28, 1744; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 569. See also March 4/15 and 24.
- Connecticut is called upon to help in case of an attack on New York City.—Cal. Coun. Min., 344. (At the top of page 344 in this Calendar, 1743 is a misprint for 1744.) Connecticut responded on June 14 by promising to raise 200 men if needed.—Ibid.
- Two persons (perhaps commission merchants) advertise for sale a curious assortment of property:—"To be Sold. The Sloop 'King Solomon,' Burthen about 100 Tons (more or less) with all her Guns, Tackle and Apparel, now lying at Stephen Bayard's Wharff, in New York: Also a House and Lot of Ground in New York formerly known by the Name of the Anabaptist Meeting house: Also a Negro Woman that understands all sorts of House Work, and a Negro Boy; a Marble Chimney Piece, three Marble Tables, three Riding Chairs and a single Horse Chaise; 16,000 two foot shingles; 150 Elephant's Teeth; three Desks, two Cases of Drawers, a Mahogany Book Case, six Dozen of Boston Axes, 360 Gallons of Spirits sundry sorts; Whoever inclines to buy any of the above, may apply to Thomas Noble and Joseph Scott, in New York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 28, 1744.
- As explained by Mr. Geo. W. W. Houghton, editor of The Hub, in a paper read before the N. Y. Hist. Soc., March 4, 1890,
 "The Colonial 'chaise' was the progenitor of the modern New England or Boston chaise, immortalized by Dr. Holmes in his poem:
 "The Deacon's Masterpiece, or The Wonderful One-hoss Shay"; and it so closely resembled that well-known one-horse, hooded vehicle, slung on thoroughbraces or straps connecting with long wooden braces at the rear, that no further description is required.
 "The oft-mentioned 'chair' was not the Sedan-chair, as might at first be thought, this being the period when the wheelless Sedan, borne by porters, still retained its aristocratic glory. The Colonial 'chair' was simply a small chaise from which the hood was omitted.
 But the Deane advertisement [see Feb. 27, 1766] also mentions the Sedan, and thus shows that it was to some extent in use in New York as late as 1766. I regret that I have not been able to discover other references to it."—Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y., 19.
- A violent earthquake shock at Boston is felt with considerably less violence in New York and on Long Island. The Boston occurrence is described in N. Y. Post-Boy, June 11, 1744.
- In a letter to the lords of trade, Gov. Clinton says: "I shall sett out to morrow for Albany, to meet the Five Nations of Indians, in order to renew their engagements of Peace with me, on behalf of His Majesty, and upon my arrival shall detach another party of His Majesty's Troops to the Fort at Saratoga for the defence of that place."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 255. For Clinton's report of the coconvocation, see Oct. 9.
- The provincial council orders that the militia shall mount guard in New York City.—Cal. Coun. Min., 344. See Dec. 4, 1745.
- Gov. Clinton embarks on board a sloop for Albany, "where he is to meet the Chiefs of the Five Nations of Indians, in order to renew and strengthen the Treaties of Peace and Friendship which have so long subsisted between this Government and those Nations."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 11, 1744.
- The two New York privateers, the brig "Hester" (Capt. S.
 Bayard) and the sloop "Polly" (Capt. Jefferies), return to port (see Oct. 17, 1743), "with their Prize so much talk'd of, from Cape Fare." The prize "is a beautiful Ship, almost new, of near 200 Tons, and laden chiefly with Cocoa; but we don't hear that the Pieces of Eight have been found, as was reported: After unloading her at Cape Fare, several of the Men took their shares and left the Vessels: It is said they share about 1,100 wt. of Cocoa per Man."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, June 11, 1744.
- The sloops "Clinton" and "Mary Ann" are fitting out at New York as privateers, and are soon to sail "for a cruising Voyage against his Majesty's Enemies." All "Gentlemen Sailors and others" inclined to go with them "may repair to the sign of the Jamaica Arms on the New Dock, where they may see the Articles."
N. Y. Post-Boy, June 11, 1744. See Oct. 1.

1744 Doctor Alexander Hamilton, a Scotch physician residing at June Annapolis, comes to New York City for a sojourn which lasted nearly 15 to all summer. He recorded his observations in a private journal, Sept. to which he gave the title "Itinerarium," the manuscript of which 11 remained unknown to historians until its publication, in 1907, by its present owner, Mr. William K. Bixby, of St. Louis. The printed title is Hamilton's Itinerarium, being a narrative of a journey from Annapolis, Maryland, through Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, from May to September, 1744. This publication is edited by Albert Bushnell Hart, LL.D., professor of history at Harvard University. Mr. Bixby gives a brief history of the manuscript; while Dr. Hart's Introduction is a biographical essay relating to Hamilton and his times. The Itinerarium, he points out, "contains abundant evidence of the crudity of much of the Colonial life;" but the author's comments on what he saw and heard are told with entertaining good humour, and reflect, vividly, the personalities and characteristics which he encountered and described. The following extracts are selected for the facts and descriptions relating to New York City, of which they are in some instances the only, and in many, the best, record that now remains to us:

"... I put my horses up at one Wagoner's at the sign of the Cart and Horse [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 978].
There I fell in with a company of toapers. Among the rest was an old Scotsman, by name Jameson, sheriff of the city, and two aldermen, whose names I know not." He describes the sheriff and the scene. (pp. 48-49)

"After I had sat some time with this polite company, Dr.
Colchoun [Dr. Alexander Colchoun, surgeon to the fort, called in, to whom I delivered letters, and he carried me to the tavern, which is kept by one Todd, an old Scotsman, to sup with the Hungarian Club, of which he is a member, and which meets there every night."
Dr. Hamilton describes the company. When he left, he went to his lodgings, "at Mrs. Hogg's in Broad Street." (pp. 49-50).
The tavern of Robert Todd stood at the present 101 Broad St.
See May 28, 1733.

On June 16, he records: "I found the city less in extent, but by the str and frequency upon the streets, more populous than Philadelphia. I saw more shipping in the harbour. The houses are more compact and regular and in general higher built, most of them after the Dutch model, with their gavel [gable] ends fronting the street. There are a few built of stone; more of wood, but the greatest number of brick, and a great many covered with pantile and glazed tile with the year of God when built figured out with plates of iron, upon the fronts of several of them. The streets in general are but narrow, and not regularly disposed. The best of them run parallel to the river, for the city is built all along the water, in general.

"This city has more of an urban appearance than Philadelphia.
Their wharfs are mostly built with logs of wood piled upon a stone foundation. In the city are several large public buildings. There is a spacious church [Trinity Church], belonging to the English congregation, with a pretty high, but heavy, clumsy steeple, built of freestone, fronting the street called Broadway. There are two Dutch churches, several other meetings, and a pretty large Townhouse at the head of Broad street. The Exchange stands near the water, and is a wooden structure going to decay. From it a pier runs into the water called the Long Bridge, about fifty paces long, covered with plank and supported with large wooden posts. The Jews have one synagogue in this city.

"The women of fashion here appear more in public than in Philadelphia, and dress much gayer. They come abroad generally in the cool of the evening and go to the Promenade . . ." (pp. 51-52.)

Referring to services which he attended in Trinity Church, on June 17, he says: ". . . There was a large congregation of about a thousand . . . This church is above 100 feet long, and 80 wide.
At the east end of it is a large semicircular area in which stands the altar, pretty well ornamented with painting and gilding.
The galleries are supported with wooden pillars of the Ionic order, with carved work of foliage and cherub's heads gilt betwixt the capitals. There is a pretty organ at the west end of the church, consisting of a great number of pipes handsomely gilt and adorned;
but I had not the satisfaction of hearing it play, they baving at this time no organist; but the vocal music of the congregation was very good." (p. 52.)

". . . The castle, or fort, is now in ruins, having been burnt down three or four years ago by the conspirators, but they talk of repairing it again. The Lieutenant-Governour had there a house and a chapel, and there are fine gardens and terrace walks, from which one has a very pretty view of the city. In the fort are several guns, some of them brass and cast in a handsome mould.

The new battery is raised with ramps of turf, and the guns upon it are in size from twelve to eighteen pounders. The main battery is a great half-moon or semi-circular rampart bluff upon the water, being turf upon a stone foundation, about two paces in length, the platform of which is laid in some places with plank, in others with flagstone. Upon it there are fifty-six great iron guns, well mounted, most of them being thirty-two pounders." After dusk, Hamilton states, this platform is the general rendezvous of "the courtesan." He also describes, with entertaining characterization, the conversation of the tripling landlord, Todd. (pp. 54-55.)

On the evening of June 19, he wrote: "I went to a tavern fronting the Albany coffee-house along with Doctor Colchoun, where I heard a tolerable concerto of music, performed by one violin and two German flutes." (pp. 56-57.) He heard another violinist, on July 6, "at the tavern," where he went in company with Abraham de Peyster, the treasurer of the province.

Under date of June 22, Dr. Hamilton describes the new Dutch church, completed in 1731 (see Oct. 12, 1730), as "a pretty large but heavy stone building, as most of the Dutch edifices are, quite destitute of taste or elegance. The pulpit of this church is prettily wrought, being of black walnut. There is a brass supporter for the great Bible that turns upon a swivel, and the pews are in a very regular order. The church within is kept very clean, and when one speaks or hollows there is a fine echo. We went up into the steeple, where there is one pretty large and handsome bell, cast at Amsterdam, and a public clock. From this steeple we could have a full view of the city of New York." (p. 60.)

On board a sloop bound for Albany on June 23, Hamilton passed "a little town, starboard, called Greenwich, consisting of eight or ten neat houses, and two or three miles above that on the same shoar, a pretty box of a house, with an avenue fronting the river, belonging to Oliver Dulacence [Delancey] . . ." (pp. 60-62.) See Pls. 40 and 41, Vol. I.

Returning to New York on July 6, Dr. Hamilton continued to write animated particulars of persons and places. Some of his observations may well be placed among the choicest bits of early American humour.—See, for example, pp. 101-2, 104-6.

On July 7, he records: ". . . I waited upon Stephen Bayard, to whom my letters of credit were directed. . . I dined at Todd's, and went in the afternoon to see the French prizes in the harbour.
Both of them were large ships about 300 tons burden,—the one Le Jupiter and the other Le Saint François Xavier. Warren, who took the St. Francis, has gained a great character. His praise is in everybody's mouth, and he has made a fine estate of the business
. . ." (p. 103.)

Recording the events of July 9, Dr. Hamilton observes: "The people of New York, at the first appearance of a stranger, are seemingly civil and courteous, but this civility and complaisance soon relaxes if he be not either highly recommended or a good toaper. To drink stoutly with the Hungarian Club, who are all bumper men, is the readiest way for a stranger to recommend himself, and set among them are very fond of making a stranger drunk. To talk bawdy and to have a knack at punning passes among some there for good sterling wit. Governour Clinton himself is a jolly toaper and gives a good example, and for that one quality is esteemed among these dons.

"The staple of New York is bread flour and skins. It is a very rich place, but it is not so cheap living here as at Philadelphia.
They have very bad water in the city, most of it being hard and brackish. Ever since the negro conspiracy, certain people have been appointed to sell water in the streets, which they carry on a sledge in great casks and bring it from the best springs about the city, for it was when the negroes went for tea water [see "Tea-water Pump," in Landmark Map. Ref. Key, III: 976] that they held their cabals and consultations, and therefore they have a law now that no negro shall be seen upon the streets without a lantern after dark.

". . . There is as much jarring here betwixt the powers of the Legislature as in any of the other American Provinces.

"They have a diversion here very common, which is the barbe-cuing of a turtle, to which sport the chief gentry in town commonly go once or twice a week.

June 15 to Sept.
11

1744 "There are a great many handsome women in this city. They June appear much more in public than at Philadelphia. It is customary 15 to ride thro' the streets in light chairs. When the ladies walk Sept. the streets in the daytime, they commonly use umbrellas, 11 prettily adorned with feathers and painted.

"There are two coffee-houses in this city, and the northern and southern posts go and come here once a week. I was tired of nothing here but their excessive drinking, for in this place you may have the best of company and conversation as well as at Philadelphia." (pp. 106-8.)

From July 10 to Aug. 30, Dr. Hamilton was absent from New York on a tour of Long Island and New England. On his return he stopped at Kingsbridge, and put up for the night at "Dougherty's," a public house, whose landlord he mentions with characteristic good humour. (p. 210.) He describes the Indians "fishing for oysters in the gut before the door." Of his ride towards New York, on Aug. 31, he writes: "About three miles before I reached York I saw the man-of-war commanded by Commodore Warren lying in Turtle Bay. This was a festival day with the crew. They were a-roasting an entire ox upon a wooden spit, and getting drunk as fast as they could, Warren having given them a treat. I was overtaken here by a young gentleman who gave me a whole packet of news about prizes and privateering, which is now the whole subject of discourse." (pp. 211-12.)

Arriving in New York, Dr. Hamilton again put up his horses at "Waghorn's," and met Stephen Bayard, who took him to dine at "his brother's," and here he met a "great company of gentlemen," including Chief-Justice James de Lancey, Adrien Hageman, the county clerk, and Lambert Moore, a lawyer. He describes some of those present and their conversation. (pp. 213-14.)

On Sept. 1, he again went to the Hungarian Club at night, where were present the Chief Justice, the City Recorder, Mr. Philips [Adolphus Philips], the Speaker of the House of Assembly, and several others. "He received news" of the Dutch having declared war against France and the capture of some of the barrier towns in Flanders by the French. . . . (pp. 214-15.)

Dr. Hamilton dined, on Sunday, Sept. 2, with Stephen Bayard. He records in his journal the following incident: "Just as we had done dinner, we heard two raps at the door solemnly laid on with a knocker. A gentleman in the company was going to see who it was, but Mr. Bayard desired him not to trouble himself, for it was only the demer. I asked who that was. He told me it was a fellow that made a course thro' one quarter of the town, giving two raps at each door as he passed to let the people in the houses know that the second bell [for church] had rung out. This man has a gratuity from each family for so doing every new year. His address when he comes to ask for his perquisite, is: 'Sir, or 'Madam, you know what I mean.' So he receives a piece of money, more or less, according to pleasure. This custom first began in New York, when they had but one bell to warn the people to church, and that bell happened to be cracked, so, for the sake of lucre, the sextons have kept it up ever since. Such a trifling office as this perhaps is worth about forty pounds a year. York currency, tho' the poor fellow sometimes is drubbed for his trouble by new comers who do not understand the custom." (pp. 215-16.)

On the morning of Wednesday, Sept. 5, Dr. Hamilton went with Mr. Hogg "to the Jews' synagogue (on Mill St.), where was an assembly of about fifty of the seed of Abraham, chanting and singing their doleful hymns round the sanctuary (where was contained the ark of the covenant and Aaron's rod), dressed in robes of white silk. They had four great wax candles lighted, as large as a man's arm. Before the rabbi, who was elevated above the rest in a kind of desk, stood the seven golden candlesticks, transformed into silver gilt. They were all slip-shod. The men wore their hats in the synagogue, and had a veil of some white stuff, which they sometimes threw over their heads in their devotion; the women, of whom some were very pretty, stood up in a gallery like a hen-coop. They sometimes paused or rested a little from singing, and talked about business. My ears were so filled with their lugubrious songs that I could not get the sound out of my head all day." (p. 218.)

On Sunday, Sept. 9, Dr. Hamilton went to the French Church (on King St.), and heard Rev. Louis Rou preach. "He is reckoned a man of good learning and senses but, being foolishly sarcastical, he has an unlucky knack at disobliging the best of his parishioners, so that the congregation has now dwindled to nothing." In the afternoon, he went to the Presbyterian meeting and heard there a good punitianic sermon preached by one Pemberton." (pp. 221-24.)

Dr. Hamilton left New York on Sept. 11, taking the boat for Elizabethtown Point. Referring to his visit, he wrote: "I was sorry to leave New York, upon account of being separated from some agreeable acquaintance I had contracted there, and at the same time I cannot but own that I was glad to remove from a place where the temptation of drinking (a thing so incompatible with my limber constitution) threw itself so often in my way. I knew here several men of sense, ingenuity, and learning, and a much greater number of fops, whom I chuse not to name, not so much for fear of giving offence as because I think their names are not worthy to be recorded either in manuscript or printed journals. These doos commonly held their heads higher than the rest of mankind, and imagined few or none were their equals. But this I found always proceeded from their narrow notions, ignorance of the world, and low extraction, which indeed is the case with most of our agrarized upstarts in these infant countries of America, who never had an opportunity to see, or (if they had) the capacity to observe the different ranks of men in polite nations, or to know what it is that really constitutes that difference of degrees." (pp. 227-29.)

Parker announces: "His Majesty's Declaration of War, as also that for encouraging his Ships of War and Privateers, are both come to hand, but neither Time nor Room permits them to be in this Week's Paper; but as both these Declarations will be printed at large immediately on his Excellency's Return, any of my Subscribers may then have them for sending for."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 18, 1744.

"Four Privateers are now fitting up here with the utmost Expedition, viz. one Brig, and three Sloops, who will all be ready to sail in a few Days; they are almost man'd already; it is impossible to express with what Alacrity the Volunteers enter on board, and 'tis affirmed by all that understand the Matter, that the Articles are the most favourable to the Men of any Privateers since the Commencement of the War."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 18, 1744. A week later, they were ready; two more privateers were "in great Forwardness" to cruise against the French and Spaniards, and another was being prepared for the same service.—Ibid., June 25, 1744.

The "brave Commodore Warren" comes into port "in his Majesty's Ship the Launceston, with a French ship of 300 Tons, called Le St. Francois Xavier, . . . ; which he took on the second Instant, in the Lat. 27.31, in his Way from Antigua to this Place: She has on Board 500 Hogheads of Sugar, 300 whereof are white Sugar, 52 Pound weight of Bar Gold, and 3000 Spanish Dollars, besides some Indigo, &c. This is the 15th French Vessel taken by this Ship. She was saluted by all our Privateers, and several other Vessels, and the general Acclamations of the People, as a Testimony of the Sense they have of the signal Services done by this Gentleman during the continuance of the War.

"The Launceston being very leaky, and long off the Caren, proceeded immediately to Turtle Bay, where she is to be fitted with all possible Expedition."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 25, 1744. The sugar was to be sold at public vendue on July 3 "at the Store house of Messieurs Stephen De Lancey and Company."—Ibid., July 2, 1744. See Aug. 27; and Oct. 9, 1744.

The governor having returned from Albany on June 26, the king's declaration of war against the French king, and his declaration for the encouragement of his ships of war and privateers, are proclaimed with the usual solemnity; "the streets being lined with the militia of this city, from His Excellency's house to the Fort, where they were first proclaimed, and from thence to the City Hall; to both which places His Excellency was attended by the members of His Majesty's Council, the Corporation, and a great number of the principal gentlemen of this city. After the solemnity was over, they returned to His Excellency's house, where His Majesty's and the Royal Family's healths were drank."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 2, 1744.

At some time prior to this date, possibly as early as 1742 or 1743, William Bradford took his former apprentice, Henry de Forrest, into partnership, and from this time on The New-York Gazette bore both their names as printers.—See Early Newspapers, II: 420; and "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," by Brigbam, in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proceedings (1917), 416. See Nov. 19.

June 15 to Sept.
11

June 18

"

23

27

July
2

- 1744 It is ordered by Trinity vestry that "the Pulpit and Canopy be Painted a Mahogany Colour."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 1744 The privateer sloop "Elizabeth" (Capt. Thomas Barnes), mounting 12 carriage guns and as many swivels with over 80 men, sails "on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies," the fifth of the kind from New York.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 9, 1744. See Aug. 31.
- 16 The privateer sloop "Don Carlos" (Capt. Abraham Kip), of 12 carriage guns and about as many swivels, to carry 100 men, is fitted and almost manned, ready to sail in a day or two from New York "on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, July 16, 1744. It sailed on Aug. 2 (q. v.)
- The ship "David" (Capt. William Asou), of about 170 tons, is fitting out for this purpose, to mount 16 carriage guns and 16 swivel guns, and to carry 140 men. "All Gentleman Sailors and others, inclined to enter on board the said Privateer, may repair to the Sign of the Jamaica Arms, on Mr. Cruger's Wharff, where they may see the Articles."—Ibid., July 16, 1744. This ship
 "fell down" (to Sandy Hook) on Sept. 2.—Ibid., Sept. 3, 1744
- 24 Gov. Clinton, in a message to the assembly, states that he has "ordered the Brass Cannon on the Flag-Mount, in Fort-George, to be repaired;" also that "Ninety Five Shot Boxes (one for each Gun) four more Centinel Boxes, a new Flag Staff, and a Platform on the South East Bastion in Fort-George," be forthwith made;
 also that "Leadens aprons" be made "for the Cannon on Copey's Battery, and a Fence from the East to the West side thereof." Eight cannon "to be removed to Mr. Rutgers's Wharf, on the North-
 River, and Eight to Burnet's-Key, on the East River, for Land
 Batteries in Case of an Invasion," are other recommendations.
 In addition, the governor recommends that "The Magazine in Fort-George, under the South East Bastion," be sufficiently repaired "for the Reception and safe Custody of Gun-powder," and that a greater quantity, sufficient for the entire garrison, be provided (See July 3, 1745). "The rest of the Barracks in Fort-George," he says, "should be rebuilt, for the Accomodation of the two Independent Companies which cannot be lodged there without them" (See Aug. 22, 1744); also "A Banquette or Foot Bank, should be raised along the inside of the Parapet on Copey, and the Flat-Rock Batteries, to a proper Height, for the Musketeers to fire over." He adds that "The Berne on Copey Battery" be filled up "with Solid Work, to prevent the Enemy's Landing there;" and that "every other Gun on Copey" should be taken away; that "each other Embrasure" should be filled up with "Solid Work;" that "Tompkins and Leadens aprons should be made for all Cannon;" that "Provision should be made for sorting all the Cannon Shot, and placing them in Boxes, next to the proper Guns;" and that "Matrosses with proper Officers should be provided for, to be kept in constant Exercise."—Assemb. Jour., II: 25.
 On July 31, the governor made the following additional recommendations: "a Battery of Six Guns at Red Hook on Nassau Island . . . maintained by the Force of the County;" also "another battery on the Front of the great Dock of this City in order to flank the east side of Copey Battery as the flat-Rock Battery does to the Westward."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 850.
 For the assembly's action on these recommendations, see Aug.
 24.
- Aug. The privateer sloop "Don Carlos" commanded by Capt.
 2 Abraham Kip, mounting 12 carriage guns and 12 swivels, with upwards of 90 men on board, sails out of Sandy Hook, "on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies." Two other vessels, a ship and a brig, are fitting out here for the same purpose.—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 Aug. 6, 1744.
- 3 John Stevens of New Jersey is tried before the supreme court of the province of New York "for counterfeiting the Bills of Credit of this Province, and uttering them knowing to be counterfeit."
 On Aug. 7 he was sentenced to death.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 13, 1744. His plea for pardon was rejected by the governor and council on Aug. 22.—Cal. Coun. Min., 345. He was executed Aug.
 24.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 27, 1744. See Feb. 4, 1755; Aug. 8, 1745.
- 10 Four privateers, the sloops "Clinton" (Capt. Seymour), "Mary-Ann" (Capt. Tucker), and "Polly" (Capt. Jefferies), and the brig "Hester" (Capt. Bayard), bring in six French prizes, consisting of five large ships and a brig, which they captured on July 21 and 22, "off the Grand Cayesses, after an obstinate, tho' not a very bloody Engagement of 10 Hours in which our Privateers had only one Man kill'd and 5 wounded by the Enemy, one Man kill'd by a Swivel's bursting, and 7 drowned by a Boat's over-setting. Their Cargoes consist of 1592 Hhds. and 72 Barrels of Sugar white and brown, 40 Hhds. and 18 Bar. of Indigo, 116 Casks Coffee, 26 Packs of Deer-Skins, 18 Bar. Salted Hides, 574 Half-Sides of tann'd Oxhides, some Cocoa, and to the Value of about 10,000 Pieces of Eight in Gold and Silver . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 Aug. 13, 1744.
- 13 Mayor John Cruger dies suddenly.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 13, 1744. For his obituary, see ibid., Aug. 20, 1744. By virtue of the charter, Gerardus Stuyvesant, the deputy mayor, becomes mayor.—M. C. C. V.: 131. He presided for the first time as mayor at a meeting of the common council on Sept. 11.—Ibid., V: 125.
- " William Bradford (Jr.?) and a "Pewterer in Hanover-Square," advertises "Cannon four Pounders, and Swivel Guns, Cannon Shot of all Sizes," as well as pig and bar iron, pots, kettles, etc.—
N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 13, 1744. See also July 1, 1745. The elder Bradford did not suspend the Gazette until Nov. 19, 1744. He died May 23, 1752 (q. v.). Cf. March 22, 1750.
- 25 Gov. Clinton recommends that some provision be made for the maintenance of prisoners of war. "It is utterly improper they should, contrary to all Precedents, be suffered to go about at large, viewing our Situation and Fortifications; a Practice not suffered by any other Country, in the time of the profoundest Peace . . ."— Assemb. Jour., II: 32. On Aug. 31, the governor had received no reply regarding this matter from the assembly and demanded an immediate answer. He said it was unsafe to allow prisoners the liberty of the city, but on the other hand it might "be thought cruel to commit them to Goal, without a certain Subsistence provided for them."—Ibid., II: 35. The assembly replied on Sept. 12, by urging that the French prisoners be sent out of the colony as quickly as possible.—Ibid., II: 40-41. By Oct. 1, it had been decided to send them with a flag of truce to some of the French islands, to be exchanged for English prisoners.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 1, 1744; Cal. Coun. Min., 345-46. The "French islands" here referred to are probably the French West Indies (ibid., 249, 354, 359, 360, 365). See also Nov. 5.
- 22 The assembly approves of a resolution allowing £425 for rebuilding the barracks "at the New Part of Fort-George, for the better accomodation the Officers and Soldiers of his Majesty's Forces posted here."—Assemb. Jour., II: 33. See July 24.
- 24 The assembly comes "to several Resolutions of Allowances for repairing the Fortifications of New York, and erecting the Batteries, recommended by the Govr," but a motion "that the South East Bastion of Fort George should be repaired," is defeated.—
N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 642.
- 27 James Parker, publisher of the Post-Boy, complains that letters left for him at the Merchants Coffee House have been destroyed or carried away by others. He hopes the legislature will take some action as "this most scandalous, base and pernicious Practice is but too common and notorious in these Parts."—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 Aug. 27, 1744.
- " H. M. S. "Launceston" (Commodore Warren's ship), having undergone repairs—see June 23—is about ready to sail.—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Aug. 27, 1744. On Sept. 10, the ship had fallen "down below the Fort," and the officers and crew were "beating up" for volunteers.—Ibid., Sept. 10, 1744. See Sept. 24.
- " It is computed that, with the completion of a brig in a few days, "an even Half-Score" vessels from New York will be completed for privateering against the French.—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 Aug. 27, 1744.
- " An open letter, signed "Behorah Se-e," who describes herself as a poor widow, protests against the act of May 3 (q. v.) for banishing hogs out of the city. She recounts the benefits of possessing live hogs, and the many useful parts of the dead animal, and points out, with good-humoured cynicism, several nuisances in the city that might be dispensed with to greater advantage.—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Aug. 27, 1744.
- 31 The crew of Commodore Warren's man-of-war, which lies at Turtle Bay, holds a celebration. This is described by Dr. Hamilton, who remarks that "prizes and privateering" are now "the whole subject of discourse."—See June 15.
- " The French prize ship "Le Boo," which was captured on Aug.
 8 near Cape Breton by a New York privateer commanded by Capt. Barnes (probably the "Elizabeth,"—see July 5), is brought into port, loaded with salt, flour, and cordage.—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 Sept. 3, 1744.

- 1744 On or about Sept. 1, news was received in New York "of the Sept. Dutch having declared war against the French."—See Dr. Hamilton's reference to this under June 15, 1744.
- 1 The following is a characteristic example of a large class of advertisements found in the newspapers of the period, which, taken collectively, furnish much information regarding the appearance of the sparsely settled portions of the island: "To be Sold, A Good small Farm or Plantation in the Out-Ward of the City of New-York, containing Thirty-Acres, adjoining upon the East River, a little beyond Turtle Bay, and opposite the Sign of the Union Flag; it is very conveniently situated, and has a commodious safe Landing-Place and Harbour in a Cove, shelter'd from Ice and stormy Weather; it has two Houses upon it, and a good bearing Orchard, a Stream of Water, running through it, and the River before it abounds in great Plenty of Fish, Lobsters and Crabs; the Rear thereof adjoins to the King's High-Way."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 2, 1744. See also Jan. 21, 1745.
- 2 Another description of this character appeared in the same paper of Jan. 20, 1746, regarding a farm in the Bowery Lane "between the plantation of Gerardus Stuyvesant, Esq. and the House of Capt. Isaac De Peyster."
- 3 The privateer brig "Bachelors" sails out of Sandy Hook.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1744.
- 3 "Now fitting out, and in great Forwardness, for a Cruising Voyage against his Majesty's Enemies, The Sloop Clinton, Thomas Seymour Commander, To carry 10 Carriage Guns, 14 Swivels, and 100 Men; Also, The Sloop Mary-Ann, Thomas Tucker Commander, To carry 12 Carriage and 14 Swivel Guns, and 100 Men. To sail in Consort; To be completely rigged and fitted, and the Men to draw Two Thirds of Prizes. Without any Deduction for Arms, Ammunition or Provisions. All Gentlemen Sailors and others, inclin'd to enter on board either of the said Privateers, may repair to the Sign of the Griffin, on the New-Dock, where they may see the Articles."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1744. This tavern was probably at or near the foot of Wall St. On Nov. 3, 1746 (g. v.), William Creed was proprietor of a tavern on the new dock, "at the Green Dragon," very probably the same as the earlier "Griffin." Mark Valentine had become proprietor by Aug. 24, 1747 (g. v.). The sign had been taken, prior to Apr. 6, 1761 (g. v.), to "Golden Hill" (William St.).
- 4 "This computed there will be before Winter 115 Sail of Privateers at Sea, from British American Colonies; mostly stout Vessels and well manned. A Naval Force, equal (some say) to that of Great Britain in the Time of Queen Elizabeth."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1744.
- 5 The two dwelling-houses near Fort George, on the west side of Broadway, belonging to the late Peter Bayard (Nos. 1 and 3 Broadway) are advertised for sale.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1744. They were bought of the Widow Bayard by Archibald Kennedy.—See March 13, 1745. Kennedy appears to have had a leasehold of the property at an earlier date.—See May 19, 1740; April 21, 1743.
- 11 A committee was appointed by the common council on July 30, 1745, to consider the application of Capt. Peter Warren for "a Grant of a Small piece of Land adjoining to his Own Land near John Hornes" (M. C. C. V.; 92); and this committee was required, on July 23, 1744, to cause this piece of land to be surveyed and laid out, and to "Agree with Capt Warren for the Same" (Ibid., V: 124). This committee now orders "that the Swamp Meadow, and the Slip of Upland Adjoining thereunto Situate At or near the House of the Late John Wood, in the Out Ward of the City of New York be Granted" to him, his heirs and assigns, at the annual rental "of one pepper Corn," for seven years from the date of such "Grant or Lease." This is done in acknowledgment of Sir Peter's services to "the Kingdom of Great Britain in General, but for this City & Colony in particular," etc. From the termination of the seven years, he and his heirs and assigns forever are given "the Said Swamp Meadow & Slip of Upland" for eight shillings per acre. The committee further reports that, at this time, it is "Impracticable to Make an Exact & Accurate Draft or Chart of the Number of Acres Contained in the Said Swamp, & So as to Settle and fix the Whole Annual Rent being prevented and Interrupted by thick and interwoven Bryers, Thorns Wood and Brush." The grant is nevertheless made, subject to a future survey.—M. C. C. V.; 125-26. On April 19, 1745, Brandt Schuyler, a city surveyor, returned a chart of the land, and it was ordered that the grant be made at the annual rental of £4.—Ibid., V: 144. On April 30, 1745, it was ordered that the grant, which was for ten acres "in the Bowry," be engrossed, sealed, and executed.—Ibid., V: 148. The original survey, which is in colours and dated May 3, 1745, is preserved with the Warren papers in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. A survey of the Warren estate, made by Gerard Banker in Aug., 1773, includes this grant.—See A. Pl. 58, Vol. III.
- 11 A committee of the common council is appointed "for Laying out and Regulating the Streets in Montgomerie Ward."—M. C. C. V.; 127. See March 20, 1747, to the same effect, with the committee's report. Regarding Queen Street, see M. C. C. V.; 343, 358; VI: 14, 16; VII: 283. Regarding George and William Streets, see ibid., VI: 25-26; Gold Street, VI: 26-27; Ferry Street, VI: 31-32; Cherry Street, VI: 60-61; Frankford Street, VI: 256.
- 14 The commission of Chief-Justice De Lancey, held "during the pleasure of the King," is withdrawn, and a new one, to be held "during his good behavior," is issued.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 356; Col. Coun. Min., 345-46. See also Dawson, Sons of Liberty, 40. Cadwallader Colden, writing in 1765 to the Earl of Halifax, commented on this event as follows: "After Mr De Lancey had, by cajoling Mr Clinton, received the Commission of Chief Justice during good Behaviour, the Profession of the Law enter'd into an Association, the effects of which, I believe your Lordship had formerly opportunity of observing in some striking instances."—The Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1876), I: 469.
- 15 Dr. Brune Bickley, of London, conveys to James de Lancey "the pretty house" which his relative Mr. May Bickley had built, about 1724, "on the Bowery."—Liber Deeds, XXXII: 489 (New York). This house was situated in the block bounded by the Bowery, Delancey, Rivington, and Chrystie Sts., on modern maps. It was in a ruined condition by 1791 (see under April 27, 1791), and was demolished some time between 1797 and 1799.—Cf. Pls. 64 and 70, Vol. I. See I: 266; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 949; Pl. 175, Vol. III.
- 21 Although the Militia Act of Dec. 17, 1743 (g. v.), was to be effective until Dec. 1, 1744, it is re-enacted with amendments at this time. The uniform of the trooper, except in Albany, is changed (see July 24, 1742), to provide for a hat laced with gold instead of silver lace; also "a Blew Coat & Bitches with gilt or Brass buttons," and "a Scarlet Westcoat" (instead of a scarlet coat trimmed with silver, and a black bag or ribbon for the hair or perruke, as in the earlier laws). This law contains also the new provision "that a head Guard or Eight Montrosses should Frequently Exercise the Cannon on the Batteries of the Said City [New York], whereby They as well as others may by Seeing Such Exercise, be Enabled, to make a Proper use of Them, whenever there Shall be occasion for it." These soldiers shall not be obliged "to Watch & Ward," and shall be exempt from serving as constables, surveyors of highways, or upon juries or inquests. Provision is made for the disposition of militia in the county of Albany, which, "by its remote Situation is most Lyable to the Invasion of the French by land;" also for sending intelligence of any invasion, insurrection or rebellion to the next adjacent county, and information regarding military plans. The commanding officer of each county so informed shall then "dispatch an Express" to the governor or commander-in-chief, notifying him of the danger, and of the strength and motions of the enemy; and for this purpose he shall have "full power to Impress Boats & Hands Men & Horses as ye Service may require for sd dispatch of such Intelligence," and until orders are received for "drawing ye Militia of his County in Such place or places as he shall Judge most Convenient for opposing the Enemy." The law as a whole embodies the principal provisions heretofore enacted in earlier laws of this character.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 385-99. The next re-enactment, with amendments, was on Feb. 27, 1746 (g. v.).
- 11 Wharfage rates are established by a provincial act affecting uniformly three wharves: Burnets Key, "another Free Wharf between the Great Slip & Counties Dock, in the Dock ward," and "one other Free Wharf between the Smith Fly Slip & Burlings Slip, in the East Ward of the said City."—See Pls. 27A and 30, Vol. I. The act establishes also certain other wharfage regulations. It is stated, for example, that these wharfs "are often so Incumbered by Lumber, Millstones or other Merchandize, That it Incommodes the Loading and Unloading of Vessells, and the Passing and Repassing of Carts on Them." The wharfinger is authorized to warn the owner to remove goods within a reasonable time, and then to summon him before the mayor, recorder, or an alderman if he fails to do so.—Col. Lewis N. Y., III: 437-40.

1744
Sept.
21

A provincial act is passed to raise the sum of £3,200 for putting the colony "into a proper Posture of Defence," etc. The preamble of this act states that "the Colony has for Some year past been at a Vast Expence to put it in a good Posture of Defence, whilst his Majesty was Engaged in a War against the King of Spain only, but as he is now Engaged in another with the French King, whereby it is Liable to Attacks by Land as well as by Water, Prudence & Self preservation make it absolutely necessary to Compeat ad Augment the Fortifications thereof, in Such Manner, as may of the one hand discourage an Enemy to Attack it, and of the other, Excite our Inhabitants Chearfully to Exert their natural Bravery in a vigorous Defence, if any Such undertakings should be Attempted."

It is therefore enacted that the sum of £3,200 shall be devoted to this purpose, to be raised by taxation. The quota to be raised in the city and county of New York is £1,569:1:4. The treasurer is required to pay to the commissioners named in the act (Peter Jay, John Rosevelt, and William Roomer) the following sums to be applied by them to the objects stated:

For "repairing the Brass Cannon on the Flag Mount," £9:16.
For "the Additional Centinal boxes already made," £8:5.

For "Defraying the Expence of the Fence on the flat Rock Battery," £5:15, above what was allowed for it in a former act.
For defraying the extra charge "for Raising a Wall at the foot of the South West Bastion of Fort George," £17:15, above a former allowance.

For "making a Sufficient Fence for Copsy Battery from white hall Slip to the East corner of the Red house, & from the West corner of said Red house to the Wharf on the North West End of the said Battery, with gates at each End Of the red House for Carts to Pass, and Turn Pikes at the East & West parts of said Battery," £27:10.

For "making & Erecting a Flag Staff, on the flag Mount in Fort George," £10. (This flag-staff was to be a red-cedar mast, not less than 35 feet high, with "a Cap" and topmast of pine 30 feet high, and "Cross Pieces by Way of Ladder, on the standing Mast."—Assemb. Jour., II: 33-34.)

For repairing "the Magazine under the South East Bastion in Fort George," £15.

For "Rebuilding the Barracks at the North West part of Fort George for the better accommodation of the Officers & Soldiers of his Majesties Forces posted here," £425.

For "mending & Altering Nine proper Carriages for mounting the Said brass Cannon on the Flag Mount," £45.

For "making a Sufficient Number of Shot Boxes (One for each Gun) for all the Batteries," £618.

For "Providing Leadan Aprons & Tompkins for all the Guns on the Battery's and Wharfs," £22:15.

For "Removing the Cannon to the Red Hook Battery, Burnets Key & North River," £22:18.

For "raising a Banquet or foot bank all along the Inside of the Parapets on all the Batteries to a proper height, for musqueters to Fire over, and to make use of as many of the old Plank of the Platform, of Copsy Battery, as will be Serviceable for that Purpose," £17:10.

For "Sorting the Shott & placing the Same in the Boxes, for each Gun on all the Batteries & wharfs," £4:12.

For "Altering Copsy Battery, & Reducing the Same to a Thirty Six Gun Battery, with an addition of Five foot Sod Work on the Inside of the Same," £4:10.

For "Raising & Building a Compleat Battery of Six or Eight Guns on the Red Hook on Nassau Island, upon the Land of Tys Van Dyck," £150.

For "Purchasing an Additional quantity of Gun Powder for the use of this Colony, . . . to be stored in the Powder House," £500.

For maintaining prisoners of war, £256:0:8.—Col. Lewis N. Y., III: 403-14. For further expenditures, see July 6, 1745; May 3, 1746. See also April 3 and 9, 1745.

24

Commodore Peter Warren, being informed that boatmen and others intending to come "to the Market of New York" with wood and other necessaries are apprehensive of being "impressed for his Majesty's Service" (see Aug. 27), publishes a notice that "none shall be impressed but such as belong to inward bound Vessels from Sea."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 25, 1744.

Stephen Bayard is appointed mayor of New York City—M. C. C., V: 129. He was continued in office for three years.—Ibid., V: 155, 180. For a brief account of him, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 408.

The "Lauceston" (Commodore Warren's ship,—see Aug. 27 and Sept. 24) sails from New York on a cruise.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 8, 1744.

The New York privateer sloops "Clinton" and "Mary Anoe" (see June 11) "fell down" (toward Sandy Hook), and "design to sail this Day."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 1, 1744. They sailed Oct. 7.—Ibid., Oct. 8, 1744. Regarding the success of the "Clinton," see Aug. 23, 1745.

Gov. Clinton writes to the Duke of Newcastle: "I beg leave to acquaint your Grace that I have had an interview with the Five nations of Indians, and have renew'd a treaty of peace and alliance with them. In my speech I remonstrated to them the base conduct of the French Court, and how necessary it was on their parts to guard against the false insinuations and designs of that Crowd, and strongly incouraged them to be faithful and steady in our cause, with assurances to protect them against the assaults of their Enemies. . . ."

"There met me upon this occasion Comiss<sup>rs</sup> from the Govern<sup>ts</sup> of the Massachusetts Bay and Conecticut to treat with those Indians, by my permission, in behalf of their Governments, to which I consented. The Gentlemen from Massachusetts Bay had also a Commission to treat with me in conjunction with the Province of New Hampshire, and colonies of Connecticut and Rhode Island upon measures for sending a proper number of forces into Canada to distress the French in their Settlements, and to act jointly in concert with them for His Majesty's service, in all respects against the common Enemy. To this I could give no other answer, but that I would recommend it to the Assembly, when they met, and for my own part, I should be ready to contribute every thing in my power for that end."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 259. Gov. Clinton encloses in his letter the proposals he made to the Indians on June 18 (ibid., VI: 262-64), the Indians' answer of June 20 (ibid., VI: 264-66), and the proposals made to him on the latter date by the commissioners of Massachusetts (ibid., VI: 267). Winsor states (Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 611-12) that Clinton submitted to this convocation of deputies and sachems a plan of union somewhat like the early New England confederacy.

Clinton writes to the Duke of Newcastle that a decision of the judge of the admiralty court has been against the officers of the customs of New York, who claimed duties upon prizes brought into this port by men-of-war and privateers. "Commodore Warren was the first who brought in a French prize, since the commencement of the war, he refused to pay any duty for the same, and says the like was not demanded in the West Indies where he has sent many prizes.

"The Merchants of this City have been extremely active in fitting out privateers, at a very great expence, and have brought in several prizes consisting chiefly of sugars, which from the nature of the duty claimed, would anticipate most of their gains.—I must therefore beg leave to move Your Grace, that you'll be pleased to interpose (in behalf of this city) with the Commis<sup>rs</sup> of the Customs to drop their pretensions to said duties which will greatly incourage His Majesty's subjects, to annoy the Enemy."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 260, 262.

A prize, having been refitted "and very richly laden for Boston, had the Misfortune to be cast-away in going through Hellgate, and it is thought the Ship and Cargo will be intirely lost."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 29, 1744.

The king's birthday is celebrated with the following demonstrations: "In the Forenoon the Militia were draw up under arms in the Broad-Way, from whence the Artillery Company first march'd in two Divisions, one to each Battery, where they were posted at the Guns, and were follow'd by the first Division of the Regiment and Cadees [adets], who regularly manned the Batteries, and discharged three Volies of their Small Arms; then the second Division march'd and reliev'd them, and having fir'd three Volies, as before, they were again reliev'd by the third. During this Time his Excellency, attended by the Council and a great many of the principal Gentlemen of this City, went up to the Fort, where his Majesty's and other loyal Healths were drank under the Discharge of 21 Pieces of Cannon, and Night concluded with Illuminations, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 5, 1744.

Oct.

1

"

"

"

"

"

9

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

29

"

"

30

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

- 1744 John Kelley conveys to Philip Pell land on the north side of Oct. Cherry St., 50 feet more or less west of Roosevelt St.—Liber Deeds, 31 G: 376-77 (Westchester Co). This deed is not recorded in New York County. The property is now known as Nos. 36 and 38
 Cherry St. The document also contains the following recital:
 "And confirms the position [of Pell] as Keeper of houses thereon as appointed by Mayor of New York City." The houses referred to are the slaughter-houses. In Sept., 1750, Kelly is referred to, as "the former Lessee of the publick Slaughter houses of this City." (M. C. C., v: 303), although on Sept. 20, 1736, he was given a lease of all the slaughter-houses in the city for a period of 21 years.—
Ibid., IV: 343-44. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 963.
- Nov. "Last Week two Sloops with each a Flag of Truce, sail'd from 5 this Port, with upwards of 70 Prisoners on board, French and Spanish, bound for some of the French Islands, there to exchange them for such of our Countrymen as may have the Misfortune to have fallen into the Enemies Hands."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 5, 1744.
 See Aug. 20, 1744.
- 8 Three New York privateers, the brig "Hester" (Capt. Bayard), and the sloops "Polly" (Capt. Morgan) and "Delight" (Capt.
 Langdon), completely fitted and manned, sail together from this harbour "on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1744. See June 9, 1744; Oct. 22, 1745; April 27, 1746; Nov. 30, 1746; April 6, 1747.
- 11 Another privateer sloop, commanded by Capt. Richards, completely fitted and manned, falls down to Sandy Hook, "in order to proceed on a cruise."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1744. This was evidently the "William."—See Sept. 26, 1745.
- 12 "The Privateer Brig. Greyhound, being a fine new vessel, commanded by Capt. Jeffery (late commander of the Polly), is in great forwardness, being almost mann'd already, and will sail with all possible expedition. [See Sept. 26, 1745].
 "The largest French Prize lately brought in here, called the Commodore, being an extraordinary Sailor, is also fitting up with great Diligence for a Privateer, and is now called the Prince Charles, to be commanded by Capt. Jacobus Kierstede, an old, brave, experienced Commander: She is upwards of 300 Tons, exceedingly well found and roomy, and is to carry 24 Carriage Guns, besides Swivels, and Men proportionable and will be reckoned the stoutest Vessel fitted out of North America. [See further, Dec. 3].
 "A fine new ship, called the Clarendon, lately launched, commanded by Capt. John Jaucey, and a Brig commanded by Capt.
 Rosewell, are both fitting out also for a privateering Voyage, and are to sail in Consort.
 "'Tis expected the above mentioned Privateers will be all ready at Sea before Spring; when we shall have from this City 3 stout Ships, 4 Brigs and Six Sloops, all well fitted for War."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1744.
- "To be Sold by Nicholas Bayard, very Good Sea Coal."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1744. About two years later, Lawrence le Teller advertised to sell it "at £3, per Chaldron."—Ibid., Jan. 26, 1747. Sea coal was the old name of ordinary coal.—Century Dict.
 Doubtless it was brought to America from Newcastle, as appears by John Leake's advertisement, five years later, for the sale of "Newcastle-Coal."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 5, 1749.
- 19 Although the last issue, located at The New-York Gazette, published by Bradford & De Forest, is that of Oct. 29, 1744 (No. 990), it is probable that the paper was discontinued with the issue of
 Nov. 19 (No. 993), to be succeeded the following week by De Forest's The New-York Evening-Post (see Nov. 26).—See "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," by Brigham, in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proceedings (1917), 416; and Early Newspapers, II: 420.
- 26 The first afternoon newspaper published in New York makes its appearance. It is also the first newspaper printed by a native New Yorker. This is The New-York Evening-Post, a weekly, of which Henry De Forest is the printer. This date of issue is determined by the date of the earliest issue found, that of Dec. 17, 1744
 (No. 4). With William Bradford, De Forest had just given up the publication of The New-York Gazette (see July 2).—See Early Newspapers, II: 423. "With the issue of May 25, 1747, there was a change in the set-up of the title heading, involving the omission of the dash after the word 'Evening.' The issue of Mar. 21, 1748, no. 169, is followed in the only known file for this year by Sept.
 5, 1748, no. 172, indicating a suspension of several weeks. The last issue found is that of Mar. 30, 1752, no. 259, in which year the paper was probably discontinued."—From "Bibliog. of Am.
 Newspapers," by Brigham, in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proceedings (1917), 410.
- Parker advertises for sale, at the price of one shilling, "An Account of the New-invented Pensilvania Fire Places: Wherein their Construction and Manner of Operation is particularly explained; their Advantages above every other method of warming Rooms demonstrated; and all Objections that have been raised against the Use of them, answered and obviated. With Directions for putting them up, and for using them to the best Advantage.
 And a Copper-Plate, in which the several parts of the Machine are exactly laid down, from a Scale of equal Parts . . . The above mentioned Fire Places are also to be sold by the Printer hereof."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 26, 1744. This was the well-known Franklin stove, still so popular in this country. It was again described in 1781 in a magazine article entitled "The Pennsylvania Fire-Places, commonly known by the Name of American Stoves, invented by Dr. Franklin, and improved by Mr.
 Sharp of Leadenhall Street" (London), illustrated by a copperplate engraving showing five different designs.—Gentleman's Mag., LI: 453.
- Cadwallader Colden writes to Alderman Johnson of New York City: "Sir You may remember that while I was last at New York you gave me hopes that you would inform me of what had been done by the Magistrates to remove the Nuisances & draining the stagnating Waters & other Methods taken by them in order to keep the City clean & healthy And likewise to give me some account of the State of health of the City so far as it may be reasonably thought to be the consequence of their care but I suppose more urgent Business prevented you. I now take the Liberty to put you in mind of what you promised me & when I tell you for what purpose I do it I believe you will not be displeas'd that I press you to it If it be found from Experience that the Care of the Magistrates has produced in any measure the good effects that were propos'd it will in the first place be a means to encourage them to continue their care & to carry it further where either the want of time to do all that was requisite or other obstructions prevented them, & 2<sup>dly</sup> it will induce the people more cheerfully to submit to their orders and regulations even in cases where their private profit or ease may seem to suffer 3<sup>dly</sup> It will be of use to this City & to other places hereafter when they shall fall under the misfortune of such like Epidemical Distempers in taking the proper Methods to remove them & to prevent them & lastly that such of the Magistrats of New York who have distinguished themselves in so beneficial & benevolent an Undertaking may receive a publick & honourable Testimony of their care & Vigilance on performing the Duty of good Magistrats as may be due to their Merit While we were engaged in party disputes many pretended to a great concern for the publick now when the publick benefite may be pursued without the inconveniences which necessarily attend party Disputes it seems to be a matter of no concern & this gives room to think that the publick Benefite was not really the Motive to those who formerly made so great a bustle about it."—From the original draft of the letter, preserved with the Golden Papers, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- In an advertisement to secure men, the privateer ship "Prince Charles" (see Nov. 12) is thus further described: "Burthen 380
 3 Tons, to mount 24 Carriage Guns, most of them Nine Pounders, and 34 Swivels; to carry 200 Men, and will sail in 12 or 14 Days, at farthest. She is to be completely rigged and fitted as a Ship of War, and is a prime Sailor; most of her Guns are already on board, and the men are to draw two Thirds of all Prizes, without any Deduction for Arms, Ammunition and Provision. All Gentlemen Sailors and others, who are minded to go the Cruise, may repair to Mr.
 Benjamin Kierstede, at the Sign of the Pine Apple on the New Dock, where they may see the Articles."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 3, 1744.
 She sailed from Sandy Hook Jan. 19, 1745.—Ibid., Jan. 7, and 21, 1745. After a cruise of eight months, she returned Sept. 20, but without "the good Fortune to meet with or take anything of great value." Her captain was Jacobus Kierstede.—Ibid., Sept. 23, 1745.
 See Dec. 30, 1745.
- As indicated by the following advertisement, "The Swamp," at 10 this time, was beginning to show its distinctive character as the centre of the leather trade: "John Browne, lately married to the Widow Breese, continues to carry on the Leather Dresser's Trade, at the Dwelling House of the late John Breese, in the Smith's Fly, near Beekman's Swamp or Creple-Bush; at the South End of the House a Staff is erected, with a Vane on the Top of it; He sells all

1744 sorts of Leather, and Leather Breeches, also Allum, Glue, raspt and Dec. chipt Logwood and Redwood fit for dying, and Copperas . . ."
10 —N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 10, 1744.

12 The privateer ship "Prince Charles," Jacobus Kierstede commander, is scheduled to sail in twelve or fourteen days. "All Gentlemen Sailors and others, who are minded to go the Cruise," are requested to repair to Mr. Benjamin Kierstede's, "at the Sign of the Ploce Apple on the New Dock."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 17, 1744. Kierstede had been proprietor of this tavern as early as 1735. See March 18, 1735.

13 The first proposal to tax the colonies by means of stamped paper is made this year by Lieut-Gov. Clarke. Gov. Clinton, writing to the Duke of Newcastle on Dec. 13, says that Clarke's object is "to obtain the appointment of the Commissioner of Stamps in America, as well as the inferior officers under him." Clinton doubts the expediency of the measure.—Dawson, The Sons of Liberty (1859), 41. The governor adds that the "People of North America are quite strangers to any duty, but such as they raise themselves, and was such a schem to take place without their knowledge it might prove a dangerous consequence to His Majesty's interest."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 268. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1859), 508.

Gov. Clinton informs the Duke of Newcastle that he has received the king's declaration of war against France, and also his orders "impowering me to enjoya all Capt<sup>s</sup> of ships to whom I may grant letters of marque or Commissions for private men of War against the King of Spain and the French King not to make prize of Dutch Ships upon pretence of their having on board Spanish or French effects."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 269.

17 "All Gentlemen Adventurers, inclineable to go the Cruise" on the privateering vessels "Lincoln" and "Triton," are "desired to repair to the House of Mr. Benjamin Pain, at the Jamaica Arms."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 17, 1744. This tavern stood on Cruger's wharf at the foot of So. William St. It was one of the resorts of privateers and a place of vendue for "prizes" captured. See ibid., Aug. 6, 1744.

"The Albany Post sets out to-morrow, at 2 o'clock in the Afternoon; Those who are minded to make Use of this Opportunity, are desired to send their letters to the Post Office by that time.

"The Boston and Philadelphia Posts set out last Tuesday [Dec. 11] in order to perform their Stages but once a Fortnight."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 17, 1744. See March 19.

31 "For the Benefit of Mr. Rice: on Wednesday next will be performed, A Concert Of Vocal and Instrumental Musick, at the House of Robert Todd, To begin precisely at Five o'Clock. Tickets, at 5s. each, to be had at Mr. Tudor's in Broad-Street, and at both Coffee-Houses."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 31, 1744. Commenting on this benefit, the Post-Boy of Jan. 7, 1745, said: "'twas thought by all competent Judges, to exceed any Thing of the Kind ever done here before."

1745

— At about this time, Sieur Augustin de Langlade and his son Charles migrated from Mackinaw, Canada, to Green Bay, and started the first permanent settlement in the present state of Wisconsin.—Wisconsin Hist. Coll., III: 197-201; Strong, Hist. of Wisconsin Territory, 41-42.

— A "Plan and Elevation of the Old City Hall (etc)" during the period 1745-7 was drawn in October, 1818, from memory, by David Grim, and is now preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. It is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 32-b.

— In this year, George Ridout, silversmith, was admitted as a freeman of New York. He kept his shop "near the Ferry Stairs." Two candlesticks and an alms-basin, made by him, are described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 45-46.

Jan. During the January term of the supreme court, a baker and bolter was convicted on three counts: for selling unmerchandise bread, for short weight, and for "false Tare of his Casks." He was fined £60. Others are to be prosecuted for similar offences.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 28, 1745.

14 Sir Peter Warren is appointed to the provincial council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 347.

21 "Last Wednesday [Jan. 16] the Ship Lincoln, Capt. John Jauncey [cf. Nov. 12, 1744], fell down to the Watering-Place [at Staten Island], and this day her Consort the Brig Triton, Capt.

Francis Rosewel, falls down to join her, in order to sail on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies. And as those two Vessels were built on Purpose for the Privateering Service, and fitted and equip'd in a most extraordinary Manner; it is not doubted, but they will in very few days be as completely mann'd. These make up the Number of Thirteen stout Vessels of War fitted out here."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 21, 1745.

A farm of 30 acres belonging to the late Mangel Roll, situated on the East River a little beyond Turtle Bay, and "opposite to the sign of the Union Flag," is advertised for sale. It is described as "very conveniently situated, and has a commodious safe Landing Place and Harbour in a Cove, shelter'd from Ice and stormy Weather; it has two Houses upon it, and a good bearing Orchard, a Stream of Water running through it, and the River before it abounds in great Plenty of Fish, Lobsters and Crabs; the Bay thereof adjoins to the King's Highway." Persons desiring to buy are directed to Samuel Beekman, or Philip Mithorn, "living next to William Sackerly's in the Bowry-Lane."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 21, 1745. The Union Flag was a tavern on the road to Boston.—See Jan. 24, 1757. William Sackerly, or Shackerly, was a tavern-keeper. See also Sept. 2, 1744.

On Jan. 22, a negro named Cuffee belonging to James Alexander received sentence of death from the supreme court "for feloniously breaking open and stealing several goods from his mistress's shop." On Jan. 25, he was to have been executed but, the executioner dying suddenly the evening before, his execution was respited until Jan. 29.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 28, 1745.

Arbitrators appointed to settle the differences "between the four Privateers formerly arrived here with Six French Prizes" will meet "at the House of Robert Todd every Friday Evening 'till the whole is settled."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 28, 1745-5. This notice is to be found in the newspapers up to and including May 6, when it is to be assumed the "differences" were adjusted.

Madeira wine is advertised for sale "at the Sign of Admiral Vernon," at 8s. a gallon or 7s. 6d. a gallon for 5 gallons or more.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 28, 1745. If a tavern existed with the "Sign of Admiral Vernon," its location is unknown, and the innkeeper's name has not been found. There was, however, a tavern with the sign of Admiral Warren, of which Andrew Ramsay was proprietor in 1749, and without doubt earlier. This tavern stood "near the Exchange" (Broad and Water Sts.). See Feb. 20, 1749.

The provincial council receives letters from Gov. Shirley regarding the intended expedition against Cape Breton, and asking for men, money, and artillery. The council records its answer, that guns can be sent, but the assembly has to meet before any answer in regard to money can be given.—Cal. Coun. Min., 347. On Feb. 12, a conference was held with the members of the assembly then in town.—Ibid.

The "Bowling-Green" near the fort is "to be new laid with Turf, and rendered fit for Bowling, this Summer. Whoever inclines to do that Service, may leave their Proposals with the Printer hereof."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 25, 1745. See also April 6, 1733.

Archibald Kennedy, receiver-general of the province (M. C. C., III: 488), adds to his will the following provision: "I by this codicil devise my two houses in Broadway, in the City of New York near the Fort which I have lately purchased of the widow of Peter Bayard (see Sept. 3, 1744), in one of which I now live and in the other the Custom House is kept . . . to my dear wife," etc.—Abstracts of Wills, VI: 286. At this date and somewhat before, the custom-house was kept on either the north or south half of the lot later built upon by John Watts and known as No. 3 Broadway.—See July 14, 1752; Aug. 26, 1756. In the day of the receiver-general, there were two small houses upon this plot, and there is no means of knowing in which of these he lived and in which he kept the custom-house.—See Libor Deeds, XIV: 245 (Albany); see also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 974; and May 19, 1740; April 21, 1743; Sept. 3, 1744.

"Several very good Riding-Chairs and Kittereens, to be sold reasonable, by Josiah Milliken, near the Old Slip Market."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 18, 1745. For definition of the "riding-chair," see May 28, 1744. Regarding the "Kittereen," Houghton says: "I am obliged to confess complete ignorance as to the character of the 'kittereen.' It was certainly not an English vehicle, and the name suggests Dutch influence, if not origin."—Coaches of Colonial N. Y., 19. The vehicle is defined in Murray's New English Dict. (Oxford,

Jan. 21

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

"

1745 1901), which, however, does not give the origin of the word. The
 Mar. foregoing Pour-Boy reference antedates all citations given by Murray, 18 who finds the term to mean a covered vehicle, like a one-horse chaise or buggy.

Apr. "John Roosevelt and William Roome, Esqs, two of the Com-3 missioners appointed to erect and repair the Fortifications in New-York, and a Battery at the Red-Hook, laid before the House (according to Order) a Report, by which it appears, that they have employed for and towards the sundry Uses required by an Act of the General Assembly" the sum of £922:18, "including the Powder stored in the Powder House, of the City of New-York;"
 also, the further sum of £638, "for and towards sundry Services, required by another Act of the General Assembly, including the Powder stored as aforesaid;" which two sums amount to £1,560:18, "so that there remains still in the Hands of the Treasurer, for the Uses required by both the Acts," the sum of £1,204, "relating to Fortifications." They are of opinion that an additional sum of £145 "will complete all that is required by both the said Acts."

"Likewise an Estimate of the Cost and Charge, for taking down the old Sndd Work, on Copey-Battery, and new Sodding the Same, to join with the Addition of five Feet," amounting to £230.

"And that an Addition of large Stone on the Outside will be of Service, to preserve the Battery, the Charge of which will amount to about Ninety Pounds. . . . It is ordered that the report lie on the table for the perusal of the Members, and be referred to the consideration of the committee.—Assemb. Jour., II: 53. See also Sept. 24, 1744, and April 9, 1745.

4 "The governour's house in the fort is not yet completed. More money is required for this work, and "likewise for building the Stables, and making new Fences round the Garden, and other Parts of the Fort."—Assemb. Jour., II: 53. It was not completed on Feb. 12, 1748 (q.v.). The rebuilding was begun some time after May 19, 1744 (q.v.).

"Mr. Clarkson moves, in the assembly, that an engineer, "either from the neighbouring Colonies, or from Great Britain, be encouraged by a suitable Reward, to come into this Colony, to view the Forts, Batteries and other Fortifications thereof, already erected, in Order to the making such Alterations, Additions, and other new Works, as shall be thought necessary to the Security of the Colony."—Assemb. Jour., II: 53. See April 18.

9 "In accordance with the recommendations of the commissioners on fortifications (see April 3), the assembly appropriates sums not exceeding the amounts specified for the following objects: "for completing what has been directed by two Acts of Assembly, for the Fortifications in the City of New-York," £145; "for new Sndding Copey-Battery," £230; "for large Stones, to be laid round the Outside of Copey-Battery," £90; "for Building a Store House, between the Flat Rock-Battery, and the Fort in New-York, 18 Feet long, and 20 Feet wide, to secure and preserve the Carriages and other Stores of War," £59:10. It is further resolved "That there be allowed to Capt. Jnhn Waldron, for making a close Room in the red Store-House, on Copey-Battery, and for purchasing necessary Stores of War, for the Use of all the Batteries;" a sum not exceeding £126:10:2; "for making new Axle-Trees for the Carriages," £45; and "for finishing the House in the Fort, lately erected for the Residence of the Governours of this Colony," £1,200.—Assemb. Jour., II: 55; but see April 17.

12 "Letters for Commodore Warren are opened by the governour and council. One from Commodore Knowles reports the probability of an attack upon English settlements by troops and ships from Martinico. Letters from Capt. Jeffery, commander of the privateer "Greyhound" of New York, and from Capt. Wentworth, refer to the same subject. The affidavit of Thomas Vardill on the subject is taken; and copies of the letters to Commodore Warren are sent to Gov. Shirley.—Cal. Coun. Min., 348.

17 "A message from Gov. Clinton, conveyed "by his secretary" to the assembly, states that, since the adjournment (on April 11), he has "received authentick Advice of the Arrival of a considerable French Armament at Martinique." He enumerates the war-ships and transports in the fleet; and believes that its intended direction toward British dominions in South America may be diverted by the report, which is spread in the West Indies, of the expedition at present under way against Louisbourg on Cape Breton Island. He therefore advises the assembly, not only to make sufficient provision for uniting with neighbouring provinces, in the common cause" (that we may with the better Grace, call in their Aid, should there be Occasion)," but also, particularly, to put "this Province into the best Posture of Defence; and that this City may, with all possible Dispatch, be at least as well fortified as at any Time heretofore, by setting Stockades round it, and erecting Block Houses, and Batteries, at proper and convenient Distances, along the Wharfs on each River, that we may thereby be enabled to give the Enemy so warm a Reception, in case they should attack us, as may render their Efforts vain and ineffectual."—Assemb. Jour., II: 56.

 The message was referred to the committee of the whole house, which, on the following day, arranged for the appointment of a joint committee of the council and assembly, "to consider of, and to make proper Estimates of such other Fortifications as they shall judge necessary to be erected, and of such Matters and Things, to be made and done for the further Security of the Colony, as recommended by his Excellency's Message."—Ibid. See April 18.

On motion of Mr. Clarkson, the assembly requests the council to appoint a committee to act with a committee of the assembly in making estimates "of such other Fortifications as they shall judge necessary to be erected," and to consult in regard to the same
 "such other Persons as they shall judge proper."—Assemb. Jour., II: 56-57. See April 4. The recommendations of May 8 (q.v.) were the work of this joint committee, acting with Messrs. Heyer and Clement.—Ibid., II: 59. See April 20.

The common council orders "that in Case of Any Emergency that Cannot at present be foreseen by Reason of the City being Attacked by an Enemy Or by Reason of any other Unforeseen Accident, That the Deputy Clerk of this Board Use his best Endeavours to Secure the Records of this City by Removing them to such Place Within this Province as he Shall Think most Safe and proper."—M. C. C., V: 146. For further action, see Aug. 29, 1746.

James Parker, "Printer for this Government," proposes to the common council that he be appointed library keeper to the corporation (see June 27, 1729). His application states that the city possesses "a Valuable Library which May be of very Great Use And Service to the Inhabitants of the Province; but More Especially to those of the City if a Library keeper was Appointed Under proper Regulations, the want of which at present Not only deprives Many persons of the Use of the Said Books, But Subjects the Books to be hurt Or Destroyed by the 'Dust and paper Worm.'" He therefore offers, first, to prepare and print, before August first, a catalogue of all the books. Second, he proposes that he be given
 "power to let out the Books to hire at Six pence a Week for Each Book to any person or persons Residing within this Government," Under penalty for failure to return the book uninjured by a stated time; third, "That No person Shall hire a Book for Less than a Week, Or More than a Month, And that No person be Allowed to have More than three Books at one time;" fourth, "That all Members and Officers of the Common Council be Entitled to the Loan of any Book Gratis And be preferred before all other hirers;" fifth, that, as library keeper, he "will give his Attendance at the Library at a fixed time once a Week for two hours in Order to Let out and Receive the Books;" and he will "keep a Book of his Proceedings And Profits Accrued by the Loan of the Books, which Book the Corporation May Inspect at their pleasure that he will Likewise keep all the Books in Repair at his Own Expence And if any Book, Or Books Should happen to be lost he will Send for New of the Same Sort in the Room of them, That he Will Print Penall Bills And do every thing above proposed at his Own Expence without any Charge to the Corporation, he being Entitled to the money Arising by the hire or Loan of the Books to his Own Use." The proposals are agreed to by the board, and it is ordered that the key of the library be delivered to him.—M. C. C., V:
 142-43. The catalogue was ready for distribution June 16, 1746
 (q.v.). For an account of his activities in behalf of the library, see Keep's Hist. of the N. Y. Society Library, 72-76; also Aug. 19, 1745.

The "House of the Widow Baker" is designated as the meeting-place of a committee of the assembly.—Assemb. Jour., II: 57. This was a tavern, kept by the widow of Roger Baker.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979.

The common council appoints a committee to build with stone the common sewer at the lower end of Broad St.—M. C. C., V: 141-42. Cf. June 25, and Nov. 19, 1703.

The common council prepares, and presents to the speaker of the assembly, a petition "for the better fortifying this City." It 1745 expresses gratitude for "the paternal Care and Becoming Zeal"

 Apr. which "Our Cap<sup>d</sup> General" has from time to time recommended 26 to the assembly, particularly in his message of April 17 (q.v.), also for resolutions of the council and house; but "as Most of the Inhabitants are Apprehensive that Not Only they but the Colony in General are Exposed to Great and Imminent Dangers by Our present Defenceless Condition," the petition asks that "Speedy and Effectual Measures" may be taken.—M. C. C., V: 147. See, further, May 8.

30 The common council orders "that a Straight Line be Drawn from the South Corner of the House of Mr Augustus Jay now in the Occupation of Peter Warren Esq<sup>t</sup> to the North Corner of the House of Archibald Kennedy fronting the Bowling Green in the Broad Way, And that Mr. William Smith who is now about to Build a House (and all other persons who Shall Build between the Said Two Houses) lay their foundations and Build Conformable to the aforesaid Straight Line."—M. C. C., V: 149. See April 13, 1744; and description of Pl. 98, III: 589.

Augustus Jay had built upon the site of the present Nos. 9 and 11 Broadway (see June 2, 1730); Archibald Kennedy was at No. 1, and William Smith at No. 7. The line of Broadway was a straight line on all the maps we have; but the line of the Beaver Path, the later Marketfield St., now Battery Place, ran to the river on a line which formed an obtuse angle with that of Broadway; and the lines of the Broadway grants were parallel to the line of the Beaver Path. Under these circumstances, those who built houses facing on the west side of Broadway were permitted to build the fronts of their houses at right angles to the side walls, causing jogs or gores in each lot, as far north as No. 27 Broadway.
 This was what was often alluded to as the "saw-tooth" line of Broadway; it was not, however, the line of the thoroughfare that was toothed; the owners of the houses had built with slight encroachments on the street. This fact is indicated on the Map of Dutch Grants, C. Pl. 87, Vol. II. In very recent times, the corporation somewhat rectified the house-line.

May The joint committee of the council and assembly appointed 8 (see April 18 and 20) to make estimates of, and to give advice regarding, proper fortifications to resist a possible naval attack by the French, makes its report. Col. Morris explains to the assembly that the committee has inspected "such Places as were conceived proper and consulted the Mayor and Aldermen, and some other Gentlemen of the City, and taken the Assistance of two Persons [Messrs Heyer and Clement] who were said to have some Skill, both with Respect to its Defence towards the Water, as well as the Land." Being of the opinion that an attack upon the city by sea was more probable than by land, the committee believed "it most necessary to proceed, in the first Place, against any naval Armament, by erecting Batteries." Two sets of plans, one prepared by Heyer and one by Clement, are then presented to the house. In detail, the plans recommended are as follows:

"1. That a Battery of eight Guns, should be immediately erected at Dominie's-Hook [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 965] with a large Block House to cover the Men, and their Arms.

"2. That Plans should be made whereby to erect a Battery of eight Guns, on Capt. Rutgers's Wharf, when there shall be Occasion.

"3. That Places should be made whereby to erect a Battery of eight Guns, on Burnet's Key, upon Occasion.

"4. That it is absolutely necessary, for the Safety and Defence of the City towards the Harbour, to have a Battery of twenty Guns, at the East End of this City [See April 7, 1745, for the governor's recommendation.]

"5. That Guns should be made for every Battery, several spare Carriages, and long Trail-Carriages, for Twelve Field-Pieces, &c.

"As to the Battery of twenty Guns, two Places have been proposed, the one on a Wharf to be made out into the River adjoining to Lowrey's; which Wharf, the Committees were of Opinion could not be made this Year. [See July 6, 1745, for appropriation of £800.]

"The other Place proposed, is on Mr. Harmanus Rutgers's Hill; and, in Case it should be erected on this last, the Committees are of Opinion, it will be necessary to have two Block Houses to guard it, and to have a Battery of six Guns, to be erected upon Occasion, behind Peck's, according to a Plan to be made for that Purpose

"6. With Respect to the Estimate of the Expence, the Committees were of Opinion, that the erecting the twenty Gun Battery on a Wharf to be made adjoining to Lowrey's, besides the Delay, would make the Charge of the above Articles, amount to about Four Thousand, Five Hundred Pounds, or Five Thousand Pounds; and that if a Battery was to be erected on Rutgers's Hill, the Amount of the Expence of the above Articles is estimated at, about Three Thousand Pounds."—Assemb. Jour., II: 89; Jour.
Leg. Coun., II: 882-83. See May 11.

The assembly approves the sites for batteries as recommended by the committee on May 8 (q.v.), and also votes the appropriations suggested.—Assemb. Jour., II: 60; but see May 14 for Clinton's opinion of this action.

The governor rebukes the legislature for assuming too much power in recommending fortifications and assigning places for them at New York, which decision he claims rests with the govern-
 our. He then in anger dissolves the session.—Assemb. Jour., II: 61-62. This action did not entirely interrupt the preparations for defence, for work on the battery at Copsey Rock was in progress on May 16.—Cal. Coun. Min., 348. See May 21.

As navigation has been obstructed by Spanish and French privateers which infest the coast, the legislature allows a premium "to Such Privateers as shall during the Present War take or destroy any Enemies Privateer between . . . Cape Hinlopen, & the Eastermost part of Nassau Island, to the Northward of the Thirty Eighth degree of Latitude." For every man on board a privateer destroyed or captured within these limits the sum of £5 will be paid, if sufficient proof is presented.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 446-48.

Accounts "of building Fort George" are received by the provincial council, and Commissioners Roome and Roosevelt (see May 19, 1744) are ordered to continue to serve.—Cal. Coun. Min., 348. The original manuscript record in the council minutes was almost completely destroyed by the fire in the State Library at Albany, only the following being now distinctly legible: "Mr.
 Roome and Mr. Roosevelt two of the Commissioners attending without were called in and were directed to proceed upon Completing the Batteries and Fortifications preferable to anything Else."—Coun. Min. (Albany), XXI: 22. See May 29.

A letter received from the Duke of Newcastle, approving of Gov. Clinton, orders him to assist Commodore Warren with men, provisions, or shipping. One received from Warren, who is on board the "Superbe," at Chapeauvogue Bay, during the siege of Louisbourg, asks for assistance; as does also one from Gov. Shirley.
 The council orders that money be raised by subscription.—Cal.
Coun. Min., 348-49.

Moses Clement, who has been employed to draw a plan for a battery at the east end of the city, presents it to the house, with the information that his work has the approval of the governor.—
Assemb. Jour., II: 67. See June 25.

"To be Sold, A Handsome Coach and Harness about 7 Years old, not much the Worse for wear; and a Pair of good Coach Horses.
 Enquire of the Prioter hereof."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 3, 1745. Most of the governors, and some prominent citizens of New York had owned coaches, so their use at this time as not unusual. For other references in this period, see March 14, 1738, and Jan. 9 and May 5, 1744. By 1750, the use of carriages had become quite general, and New York's first coach-maker had established his business in the city.—Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y., (1890).

The provincial council grants warrants to James Livingston, Steven van Cortlandt, Brandt Schuyler, and William Bayard to carry French prisoners to the French islands.—Cal. Coun. Min., 349. See Aug. 20, 1744.

Louisbourg and Cape Breton, the chief strongholds of the French in America, are taken by 4,000 Americans, led by William Pepperrell, a wealthy merchant of Maine, strongly reinforced by the British fleet under Warren.—McLennan, Louisbourg (1918), 164. See also A Journal of the Late Siege by the Troops from North America, against the French at Cape Breton, the City of Louisbourg, and the Territories thereunto belonging. Surrendered to the English, on the 17th of June, 1745, after a Siege of Forty-eight Days. By James Gibson, Gentleman Volontier at the above Siege (London: Printed for J. Newbery, 1745). This work contains a large folding plate, engraved by B. Cole, showing the city of Louisbourg, with the harbours and garrisons on the island of Gaspey, or Cape Breton, and the fleet. The author was a Boston merchant, who, with the

May

11

14

11

21

27

29

June

3

14

17

- 4,000 New England colonists, joined the expedition under Pepperell. He superintended the removal of the prisoners to France, and disbursed over £50,000 sterling in that operation. His diary of the siege was republished in Boston in 1847, under the title of A Boston Merchant of 1745. Louisbourg was restored to France by the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, Oct. 7, 1748 (q.v.). See also July 6 and 10.
- 18 Sir Peter Warren writes to the Duke of Newcastle: "I beg leave to return your Grace my hearty thanks, for your answer, to a friend of mine, who took the Liberty to ask the Government of New Jersey for me, when it should become vacant, my wife being of New York, makes it convenient for me, and Mr. Clinton, with whom I have the pleasure to be well acquainted, has assur'd me he has no design to get that Government added to his, as it formerly was: I woud by no means offer at anything that Interfer'd with his Interest, but if when he is better provided for, I could succeed to the Government of New York, I should Esteem it the highest favour that cou'd be confer'd on me."—From "British Transcripts" in the Library of Congress, the original being in the Public Record Office, Loodoo (Colonial Office, class 5, vol. 44, folio 29). See June 7, 1746.
- " The steeple of the new Dutch church is set on fire, "close under the Ball," by lightning. It is soon extinguish'd, "chiefly by the Courage of a few Persons, who broke through the Cupola, at the Hazard of their Lives, and of having the Lead melted about their Ears." The church elders presented them with £20, and other persons gave them presents "for their Activity and Bravery."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 24, 1745; Ecles. Rec., IV: 2872.
- 19 Small-pox is reported at Curaçao, and the provincial council at New York orders that all vessels from that port be quarantined.—Cal. Coun. Min., 349.
- 25 Gov. Clinton recommends to the provincial legislature the strengthening of the fortifications. He says: "In order to put the Province into a proper Posture of Defence, it is necessary that such other fortifications be erected about this City with all possible Dispatch, as may be Sufficient to enable us to repel any Force that may attack us on this Quarter: For this Purpose, a strong Battery of twenty Guns, at the East End of the Town [see May 8, for two localities suggested], in the Harbour, and some other Batteries in other parts of the City, should be forthwith erected; of which, I will direct plans to be laid before you. 'Tis worth considering, whether as Matters are now circumstanced, this City may not probably Share a considerable Part of the War."—Jour. Leg. Coun., I: 887. See July 3.
- 27 In a message to the assembly, Gov. Clinton says: "Upon enquiring of the Commissioners, concerning the Money already expended upon the House in the Fort [from appropriation of May 19, 1744], I find, that what remains in the Treasurer's Hands, appropriated to that Use, will not be sufficient for completing the same; I must therefore recommend it to you, to make further Provision for that Purpose, and likewise for building the Stables, and making new Fences round the Garden, and other Parts of the Fort."—Assemb. Jour., II: 66. The sum of £11,200 was appropriated by the assembly July 6 (q.v.) "for finishing the House."
- July 1 "To be Sold at Vendue, On Tuesday morning next [July 2], the Plate, Household Furniture, and other Goods, belonging to the Honourable George Clarke, Esq; lately gone for England, at his House in the Broad-Way."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 1, 1745.
- " "To be Sold by William Bradford [Jr.], Pewterer, in Hanover Square in New York. Cannon, six and four Pounders, and Swivel Guns, Cannon Shot of all sizes, Iron Pots and Kettles of all sizes, Cart and Waggon Boxes, Backs for Chimnies, Fullers Plates, Pig and Bar Iron, &c., &c. Where may be had money for old Brass and Pewter."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 1, 1745. About five years later, we find Bradford has added "good Madeira Wine" to his stock.—Ibid., April 2, 1750. See also Aug. 13, 1744.
- " Anthony Lamb, mathematical instrument maker, "At the Sign of the Quadrant and Surveying Compass, near the Old Slip Market," advertises for sale "all sorts of Mathematical Instruments in Wood, Ivory or Brass, &c.," a long list of which he mentions in his advertisement, including "Treble Rules for ruling of blank Books," small compasses "to fix on a Walking Stick, and lengthened to a suitable Height," "Protractors," "Trunk Telescopes, Walking Stick Spying Glasses, . . . Billiard or Truck Balls . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 1, 1745.
- 3 Gov. Clinton makes additional recommendations concerning fortifications (see June 25), among which is one for the storing of gunpowder in the magazine of the fort, which has been fitted up and repaired during "the last Summer" (see July 24, 1744).—Assemb. Jour., II: 69. The act for erecting and repairing fortifications was finally passed on July 6 (q.v.).
- 4 Nearly a year previously, July 27, 1744, Daniel Horsmanden notified the assembly that the printing of the laws would probably be completed the following spring. As nothing further has been heard from him, a committee is appointed to investigate.—Assemb. Jour., II: 69-70. See Nov. 13 and 27, 1741. Horsmanden's work was finally finished by Livingston and Smith.—See Nov. 13, 1741; Nov. 24, 1750.
- " Henry Cruger recommends fortifying Nuten Island.—Assemb. Jour., II: 70. In November a bill establishing a lottery to raise £3,375 to finance such a project passed in both the assembly and council.—Ibid., II: 82, 87. There is no mention in the record of the governor's assent to the bill. On Jan. 21, 1746, Mr. Cruger presented another bill to raise by lottery £3,375 for more effectively fortifying the city of New York.—Ibid., II: 92. This bill became a law on Feb. 27, 1746 (q.v.).
- 6 A provincial act is passed "for Erecting & Repairing Fortifications within this Colony for defraying the Charge of Several Services for the Defence," etc. The preamble of this act avers that "the monies which have been heretofore granted for Fortifying this Colony have Proved Insufficient fully to answer that Purpose." The treasurer is therefore empowered to pay the following sums for specified objects in the city of New York:
- To Capt. John Waldron, "for making a close Room in the Red Store House on Copsy Battery & for Purchasing necessary Stores of War for the use of all the Batteries," £126:10:2.
- To Samuel Brown, for "Cleaning the Guns on the Several Batteries," £10.
- To Capt. John Waldron, "for Providing Gins [guns?] for the use of the Several Batteries," £22:10; and "for Purchasing Lead to make Partridge Shot for the Great Guns," £25.
- To Moses Clement, "for his Attendance on the Joint Committees of the Council & General Assembly and Drawing Plans of Batteries," £5; and to Christian Hoyer [Heyer] for similar services, £3.
- To Adam Vauderbergh, "for Carting the Great Guns and Carriages Sent to Boster," £8:16:2; and to Jasper Bosch for freight on the same, £70.
- To John "Rosvelt," William Roome, and Samuel Lawrence, the commissioners of the fortifications in the city of New York, there is allowed the sum of £2,877:10, to be used toward completing the operations directed by the acts of May 19 and Sept. 21, 1744 (q.v.), for improving the fortifications and building a new governor's house. This part of the act directs the following payments by these commissioners:
- For "Sodding Copsy Battery," £230.
- For "Procuring & Laying Large Stones round the outside of the said Battery to Secure the Foundation thereof," £90. (See Sept. 25, 1750, for further estimate of repairs.)
- For "Building a Store House between the Flat Rock Battery, and Fort George," 28 feet long and 20 feet wide, "to Secure and Preserve the Carriages and other Stores of War," £59:10.
- For "making Axle Trees for the Carriages," £15.
- For "finishing the House Lately Erected in the Fort for the Residence of the Governours of this Colony," £1,200.
- For "Erecting . . . a Battery of Eight Guns upon Dominies Hook with a Large Block House to Shelter the Men," £300 (including £120 formerly allowed for this purpose).
- For "Laying a Plat Form proper for Eight Guns on Capt Peter Rutgers Wharf upon Occasion," £50.
- For "Laying a Plat Form Proper for Six Guns upon the City Ground behind Mr. Benjamin Pecks House upon Occasion," £40.
- For "Erecting . . . a Battery of Sixteen Guns upon Desbrosses & Lowys Wharfs according to a Plan Signed by his Excellency and the Speaker," £800. (See developments under Feb. 5 and May 3, 1746.)
- For "making a New Fence round the Fort Garden," £60.
- For "Repairing the Spurr before the Gate of Fort George," £8. The act also directs that, "for Immediate use on Extraordinary Emergencies, the store-keeper of the powder-house shall deliver ten barrels of gunpowder, to be deposited in the magazine of the fort, for the gunner "to Try & Exercise the Great Guns upon the Several Batteries."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 452-58.

1745
July
6

Palisades were erected across the island, doubtless in accordance with the general provisions of this act, though not specifically mentioned or provided for by its terms. Of these, David Grim, writing in Nov., 1819, said: "I remember the building and erecting the Palisades and Block-houses, in the year 1745, for the security and protection of the inhabitants of this city, who were at that time much alarmed, and afraid that the French and Indians were coming to invade this city, on which the General Assembly of this province voted a sum of money (£8,000), to build a line of Palisades and Block-houses, from the East river to the North river. Those Palisades commenced at the house of Mr. Desbrosses, No. 57, in Cherry street, (which was then the last house on the East river, to Kip's bay.) From that place, it went in a direct line to Windmill lane, (late Catey Mutz); from thence, in the rear of the Poor-house, and to Dominic's hook, at the North river.

"Those Palisades were made of cedar logs, about fourteen feet long and nine or ten inches in diameter, were placed in a trench, dug in the ground for that purpose, three feet deep, with loop-holes in the same, for musketry, and a breast-work four feet high and four feet in width. In this line of Palisades were three Block-houses, about thirty feet square and ten feet high, with six port holes, for cannon. Those Blockhouses were made with logs, of eighteen inches diameter. They were placed thus: the one was in (now) Pearl street, nearly in front of Banker street; the second in the rear of the Poor-house, and the other between Church and Chapel streets. There were four large gates, or outlets to the city, the one at the head of Pearl street, Chatham street, Broadway and Greenwich street."—From statement on back of Grim's general plan of the city, the original of which is in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. see also description of the Grim Plan, Pl. 32-a, I: 270-71; the account of the Holland Plan, of Sept. 17, 1757 (q.v.); and Maerschalk Plan, Pl. 34, Vol. I. For other references, see the "Palisades of 1746," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945; also Man. Com. Counc. (1866), 605.

A provincial law is passed appropriating £5,000 towards the expedition undertaken by the government of Massachusetts Bay against Louisbourg (see April 17). The act premises that "we are Truly Sensible how much the Success of that Expedition will be for the Interest of the British Colony's in America, And being heartily willing to Assist our Neighbours in so Glorious an Undertaking, as far as the Circumstances of the Colony will admit."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 450-51. This was a tardy contribution, for Louisbourg had capitulated on June 17 (q.v.). The news had not yet reached New York. See July 10. See also Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 146, 410, 434, etc. (and contemporary maps and plans, 441-46). The English captured Louisbourg and the island of Cape Breton a second time on July 26, 1758 (q.v.).

Silvanus Seamans, who has been ferry-man of the Upper Ferry at the Narrows, on the Staten Island side, begins to run a regular ferry from there to New York. He advertises that a passage boat will set out every Tuesday and Friday, returning the same day, if possible. He also keeps "very good Entertainment for Men and Horses." The boat may be found, on Tuesday and Friday, by inquiry at John Gregier's, "a Corner-house at the Old Slip."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 8, 1745. See also June 18, 1753.

Gov. Clinton having received an express, late on the night of July 9, from Gov. Shirley, "with the Most Agreeable News of the Surrender of Cape Breton to his Majesties Fleet And Forces" (on June 17, q.v.; see also July 6), the common council orders "that Mr De Joncourt be Directed to provide a Hansome Dinner for this Board And that His Excellency the Governour the Members of the Councill and Members of Assembly of this City with the Field Officers be Invited to Dine with this Board," and a committee is appointed to "Order a Bonfire to be prepared without Spring Garden in the Evening and that they Order Twenty Gallons of Good Wine to the Bonfire."—M. C. C., V: 151. Peter de Joncourt's tavern stood at Pearl St. and Coenties Slip.—See Dec. 8, 1746. The dinner was given the same day,—"when all the loyal Healths were drank, with those concerned in this considerable Conquest, and to the continuance of Louisbourg under British Colours for ever, while the Cannon of Copsy Battery and several Vessels in the Harbour were firing." In the evening "there was a magnificent Bonfire erected, at which the same Healths were repeated. At Night the whole City was splendidly illuminated, and the greatest Demonstration of Joy appeared in every Man's Countenance upon hearing the good News. The Gentlemen at Dinner made a handsome Collection for the Person who brought the Express, which he voluntarily engaged to convey hither; And there being present at this Entertainment many of the Persons who, at the Instance of his Excellency our Governour, had engaged with him in a Subscription, immediately after the Dissolution of the late Assembly, for the purchasing a Quantity of Provisions to be forthwith transported and consigned to Governour Shirley, for the Service of the Expedition [see May 27]; The Vote of the General Court of Massachusetts Bay was read, returning their Thanks to his Excellency Governour Clinton, for that Instance of his Zeal in promoting this important Expedition; and to desire he would acquaint the Gentlemen concerned in the said Subscription, how acceptable this Mark of their publick Spirit was to that Court."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 15, 1745.

On Oct. 28, Gov. Shirley wrote from Louisbourg to England an account of the expedition against that place. This was published in 1746 in London, with the title: A Letter from William Shirley, Esq; Gov. of Mass. Bay, to his Grace the Duke of Newcastle, with a Journal of the Siege of Louisbourg, and other operations of the Forces during the expedition against the French settlements on Cape Breton. It was reprinted by James Parker (N. Y., 1746).

To "shew their unchristian Way of rejoicing" over the fall of Louisbourg (on June 17), certain young men of the city go about smashing windows and shutters. They are warned to make restitution for those broken in Beaver St., or their names will be printed.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 15, 1745.

The provincial council receives letters from Gov. Shirley and Gov. Laws giving accounts of the reduction of Louisbourg.—Cal. Counc. Min., 349.

A noteworthy character, who dies this day in New York at the age of 27, is John Dupuy, M. D., a "Man-Midwife," whose obituaries show that he was widely recognized as a "skilful Practiser in Physic," and a "Learned Professor of Chirurgry and Medicine." One notice of his death states: "it may be truly said here, as David did of Goliath's Sword, There is none like him."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 22, Aug. 5, 1745.

Peter Moor, having been convicted on Aug. 5 by the supreme court of the province of passing counterfeit money, receives 39 lashes at the public whipping-post, and is sentenced to stand in the pillory on Aug. 13.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 12, 1745. See Aug. 3, 1744.

James Parker publishes the following notice: "Whereas upon an Examination of the Books in the Library possessed by the Corporation of the City of New-York, it appears that many of them are missing. . . . Any Gentleman or others who may have borrowed, or are in Possession of any the said Books, or any Books whatever belonging to the said Library, are hereby desired immediately to return them to the Printer hereof, who is impowered to receive the same, where they will be thankfully received, and no Questions asked."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 19, 1745. See April 19.

The privateer sloop "Clinton" (Capt. Thomas Bevan) returns to port from a cruise of about six weeks with a French prize ship, "La Pomone" (Augustine Robert Houvery, commander). The prize is "of about 180 Tons, 14 Carriage Guns, and 43 men, with a Commission from the Duke de Penthièvre, Admiral of France." She was taken "after a short Engagement, without the loss of a Man; her Cargo by Invoice consisted of 88 Casks of Sugar, 237 Casks Indigo, containing 87,500 wt. . . . and 15 Bales of Cotton. She is valued at near 40,000 l."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 26, 1745. The prize money derived from this capture amounted to more than £160 a share.—Ibid., Sept. 30, 1745.

The death of Peter Rutgers occurs. He was "Captain of the first Independent Company of Cadets in this City," and a member of the common council, with special experience in handling financial affairs. His funeral, which occurred the following day, was attended by most of the principal inhabitants.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 26, 1745; M. C. C., VIII: 403.

The brig "Castor" (Capt. Eason) and the sloop "Pollux" (Capt. Burges), privateers, "are both fell down in order to proceed on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 26, 1745. See April 1, 1746.

The provincial council grants a commission to Nathaniel Marston, Henry Cuyler, and Phil Phillips, to carry French prisoners to French places.—Cal. Counc. Min., 350. See Aug. 20, 1744.

During the week prior to this date, "the Reverend Mr. Witfield [Whitefield] came among us, and has Preached twice a Day

July 10

"

16

22

Aug.
8

19

23

24

26

27

Sept.
2

- 1745 successfully every week Day, and yesterday being Sunday (three times) he never preached one Sermon, but the meeting House
Sept. 2 Dores and Windows was so full, that the People themselves were Astonished to see so vast an Audience."—N. Y. Eve. Post, Sept. 2, 1745.
- 5 Gov. Clinton issues a proclamation prohibiting all traffic and correspondence between British subjects and Indians who are in league with the French.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 9, 1745.
- 9 Samuel Lewis, "having a very Good Boat fit to carry either Passengers or Goods," advertises "To set out from New York for Perth Amboy, every Monday and Thursday; and from Perth Amboy for New York, every Wednesday and Saturday; . . . He may be found at the Eastham's in New York, or at his own House in Perth-Amboy."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 9, 1745. See also April 3, 1738; April 22, 1754.
- 17 The death of Stephen de Lancy occurs. He was a merchant, "a very notable young Gentleman, of a fair character; Brother to the Chief Justice of this Province, and Brother-in-Law to the brave Commodore Warren."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 23, 1745. It was he who built the "large brick house" so well known after the Revolution as Frances Tavern.—M. C. C., VIII: 140.
- 18 Capt. Bevan, of the privateer sloop "Clinton" (see Aug. 23), gives "a very handsome Treat of a Hoghead of Punch and an Ox roasted whole, to his Sloop's Company, in the Fields, near Dominic's Hook, in Consideration of their desisting, at his Desire, from plundering any of the Passengers, Officers, or Sailors on board the Prize Ship lately brought in here by them."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 23, 1745.
- 26 Gov. Clinton embarks on a sloop for Albany, "in order to meet the Five Nations of Indians there, on the 4th of October, to renew and strengthen the ancient Treaty of Peace, subsisting between this Government and those Nations."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 30, 1745; Cal. Coun. Min., 349, 350.
- " On Sept. 25, the New York privateer sloop "William" (Capt. Nathaniel Richards) arrived here; the privateer brig "Greyhound" (Capt. Richard Jefferies) arrives to-day (see Nov. 11 and 12, 1744). They were "late Consorts in the West-Indies, when they took the rich Spanish Ship so much talk'd of, in Company with two New England Privateers; which Ship with her Cargo was sold in Antigua." The prize money from this and other captures amounted to more than £50 a man.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 30, 1745.
- " A "fine large Snow" is launched here, "design'd for a Privateer, and is to be fitted out immediately, to sail in Consort with Capt. Jefferies: She is called the Dragon, will mount 16 or 18 Carriage Guns, and be commanded by Capt. Thomas Seymour, late of the Clinton sloop; and is esteem'd the completest Vessel of her Size for the Purpose of any fitted out of this Place."—Ibid. See June 6, 1746.
- 30 Deputy Mayor Gerrardus Stuyvesant presides at the meeting of the common council on this day, when the election of city officials occurs, and on Oct. 14, when they are sworn in. As no mayor, sheriff, or recorder have been appointed by the governor, who, with Mayor Stephen Bayard and Recorder David Horsmaiden, is in Albany (see Sept. 26), the present incumbents are continued in office for another year, as provided by the charter.—M. C. C., V: 152-58. Rarely in the English colonial period of the city's history has a deputy mayor had occasion to preside.
- " An advertisement informs the public "That William Grant, Stone-Cutter, and Samuel Hunterdon, Quarrier, of Newark, lately arrived from England, carries and cuts all Manner of Stones in the neatest and most curious Fashions ever done in America, The said Grant is to be spoke with at Mr. Welsh's, Sexton to Trinity Church, in New-York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 30, 1745.
- Oct. 7 Notice is published that the Ferry from Westchester to Nassau Island" (see April, 1739) will be let to the highest bidder on the first Tuesday in November, at the "Court House."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 7, 1745.
- 14 Thirteen "Practitioners in Physick" in New York City publish a signed statement, certified by five justices of the peace for this city and county, "that the Fever that this City was lately visited with, is very greatly abated; and that there are but few Persons at Present sick in this City;" also that they do not know of anyone "that has the Distemper called the Small Pox."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 14, 1745.
- " Many books belonging to "the Library possessed by the Corporation of the City of New York" (see June 27, 1729) are missing. Those in folio have been advertised. The titles of the missing ones in quarto are now published; and there are several others in octavo and duodecimo. "Gentlemen and others" who have borrowed them or have them in their possession are "desired immediately to return them to the Printer hereof [Parker], who is impowered [see April 19] to receive the same; where they will be thankfully received, and no Questions ask'd."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 14, 1745. See also Aug. 19.
- 18 The privateer brig "Dolphin" (Capt. Richard Langdoe), of New York, arrives with a French prize sloop of about 180 tons and to carriage guns, having on board more than 200 hogheads of white sugar, and other goods. She was captured at the west end of Porto Rico on Sept. 26, having run ashore on being chased, when all but one of her men took to a small boat and escaped. "A Fortnight before that, Capt. Langdoe took a Sloop from Coracoa bound to Martinico, laden with Cordage and Beef, and 'tis said some specie, which Sloop is sent into Rhode Island."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 21, 1745. See Dec. 30.
- 22 The privateer sloop "Clinton" (see Aug. 23) sails from the Hook on a cruise.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 28, 1745.
- " The privateer sloop "Polly" (Capt. Helme; cf. Nov. 8, 1744), "being already completely fitted, and almost mann'd, designs to sail in a few days on a cruise."—Ibid. See, further, April 27, 1746.
- Nov. The provincial council receives an order from the lords justices to give Peter Warren and Joseph Murray precedence over John Moore in the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 350.
- 1 A committee of the common council is appointed to examine the city charter, with the assistance of the chief-justice, the recorder, Mr. Alexander, and Mr. Murray, with a view of suggesting amendments advantageous to the city.—M. C. C., V: 161.
- " By order of the common council, no one shall presume to deprive the tanners near the Fresh Water Pond of the pits they have dug there, or shall dig in the future.—M. C. C., V: 161. The tanners had been compelled to move from lands south of this locality in May (see May 3), and are thus made secure in their new location. Here their industry continued for many years. See April 26, 1751.
- 18 "Lately imported from London, and to be sold very cheap for ready Money, by Thomas Duncan, at his House in Wall Street, near the Meal Market, the following goods, viz. . . .—A great variety, reminding one of a modern department store, were listed in this advertisement, the names of some of which are unknown to modern trade. The following are selected: "Broad Cloths, German Serge, Bear Skin, Duffels, Shallons, Worsted camlets, . . . Flowered damasks, . . . Mixt druggers, . . . Plain and striped callimancoes, . . . Yard-wide durane, Pruneloes, . . . Superfine barragon, Worsted & hair shags, Starrets, Florrets, Turketties, Everlastings, Watered program, . . . Dye mansoys, Striped ginghams, Photaes, Chiloes, Black taffeties, . . . Striped sattens, Black velvets, Black lutestring, Black bombazine, Mourning crapes, Silk poplin, Single and double alapines, Cloak cord, . . . cherriderry, Indiana, Black mantua silk, Barcelona & checked silk handkerchiefs, China, and sundry India ditto, Black gauze and Scotch ditto, . . . Then follow a miscellaneous assortment of articles, including pins and needles, cutlery, hats, gloves, Scotch snuff, pewter dishes, pictures and maps, tea, looking-glasses, writing-paper, cotton and silk goods, cloves, cinnamon, nutmegs, and raisins, "Tandems, Gulick hollands, . . . dowlas, Tandem filetas, . . . Cambricks of all sorts, Muslins, Lawns, Kentlings, Britannias, Osnabrigs, Blue & white callicoe handkerchiefs, Cotton comalls, Long lawns, Ferrits, Colour'd thread, & Spectacles."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 18, 1745.
- 24 News of the destruction of "Saragotoga" is received by the provincial council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 350. See Dec. 2, and 4.
- 29 A provincial statute is passed enacting the inhabitants of New York City to elect annually two vestrymen in each of the seven wards. There will thus be 14 vestrymen instead of ten as in the past (see Sept. 22, 1693). This increase is made because the "City of New York is greatly Increased as well in Extent as Number of Inhabitants." As before, they are to lay taxes in conjunction with the justices of the peace.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 506-7.
- " A provincial act is passed for paying £1,511:12 "for the service of this Colony." Among the expenses directed to be paid is an item of £30 to Capt. John Waldron "for his care & Service as keeper of the Colony Stores of War in the City of New York" for one

Law of 1735

 Squire Mayor the Aldermen and Burgesses of the City of New York convened in Common Council do All Lawfully sheweth that comend Greeting Whereas Honour is the just reward of Virtuous Publick Merit and a publick Acknowledgment We therefore under a grateful Sense of the many good Services done to the Inhabitants of this City and Colony by Andrew Hamilton Esquire of Pennsylvania Barrister at Law by his learned and generous Defense of the Rights of Mankind and the Liberty of the Press in the Case of John Peter Zenger lately tried on and Information exhibited in the Supreme Court of this Colony by these Prefates hear to the said Andrew Hamilton Esquire the publick Thanks of this Corporation for his signal Services which he cheerfully undertook under great Indignation of Power and generously performed upon many Occasions Hereunto And in Acknowledgment of one great Esteem for his Person and Sense of his Merit do hereby present him with the Freedom of this Corporation We are therefore to Certifie and Declare that the said Andrew Hamilton Esquire is hereby admitted received and allowed a Freeman and Citizen of this said City to have hold Enjoy and Partake full free Benefits Liberties Privileges Freedoms and Immunities whatsoever granted or belonging to the Citizens of the same City In Testimony whereof the Common Council of the said City doth in Common Council assembled have caused the Seal of the said City to be hereunto Affixed this Twentieth 20th day of September Anno Domini 1735 the said Year seven hundred and thirty five

"FREEDOM OF THE CITY," AND GOLD BOX TO CONTAIN SEAL, PRESENTED TO ANDREW HAMILTON, DATED SEPT. 29, 1735. SEE P. 542.

1745 year from Sept. 21, last, "and as head Gunner of the Cannon on Nov. the Batteries of the said City & for the Exercise and management 29 thereof Every fourteen Days or three weeks at the Longest during Eight months in the said year."—Col. Laws N. Y., III, 508.

" According to "An Act for the Payment of the Salaries," etc., to Sept. 1, 1746, which is passed on this date, the governor is still allowed £100 per annum for house rent, and it may be inferred is still living in the city, and not in the fort.—Col. Laws N. Y., III, 488. See Dec. 17, 1743.

" So many "evil disposed Persons" having lately attempted to counterfeit Spanish, French, and Portuguese gold coins, a law is passed making counterfeiting a crime punishable by death "without the Benefit of Clergy, as in Cases of Felony."—*Col. Laws
N. Y.*, III, 511. See Aug. 3, 1744.

30 The small-pox prevails in the city.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 288.
Dec. Because of Indian outrages on the northern frontier, and especially the burning of the village of "Saragotoga" (see Nov. 24), where 90 persons were killed or captured, two independent companies of the king's forces, posted in New York, are ordered to Albany, two sloops being engaged to carry them.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 2, 1745. See Dec. 4.

4 The common council permits the inhabitants of the West Ward "to Make An Addition of Twenty One feet at the North End of the Market in the Broad way."—M. C. C., V: 164. See April 13, 1738. Another enlargement was made by order of June 4, 1746 (q.v.).

" The provincial council receives a letter from Col. Philip Schuyler asking for 300 militiamen from the southern counties of the province for the defence of Albany and Schenectady, and recommending the building of a fort at "Saragotoga." The council approves of building a fort at Saratoga, and at the "carrying-place;" an independent company having already been sent to Albany, militia is not necessary.—Cal. Coun. Min., 350. This probably refers to the "great carrying-place," between Fort Edward and Fort Anne.

" The militia of New York refuse to do guard duty (see June 5, 1744). If they continue to refuse, the council orders that they be fined according to law.—Cal. Coun. Min., 350. In a message of the governour to the assembly (Dec. 20, 1745), he declared that the "Militia Act" required amendment, and that penalties ought to be increased, "to compel a due Obedience to military Orders."—
Assemb. Jour., II: 90. See the new act of Feb. 27, 1746.

9 So much misunderstanding and discussion have arisen in the city regarding the law for emergency military service that the Militia Act is published in full.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 9, 1745.

11 Other letters come to the governour and council at New York regarding the movements of the French and Indians against the frontier settlements. Gov. Laws writes that Stockbridge is in danger; Col. Schuyler writes about the Saratoga fort, and that Hosick has been deserted by the inhabitants; Jacobus Swartwout writes that the French at "Mesasippi" prepare a great many snow-shoes to march against Albany, Esopus, Minisnick, and the frontiers of Jersey and Pennsylvania; Cadwallader Colden, also, gives information as to the enemies' intentions. It is arranged to inform the governours of Connecticut, Jersey, and Pennsylvania.
—Cal. Coun. Min., 350-51.

13 "The Privateer Ship Prince Charles being completely fitted and mann'd fell down on Friday last [Dec. 13] in order to Proceed on her Cruise.

"The Privateer Brig. Dolphin, being completely fitted, will sail on a Cruise in a short Time."—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 16, 1745.

17 In accordance with a resolution of adjournment on Nov. 28, the assembly meets at the house of Rear-Admiral Sir Peter Warreo, at Greenwich. It continued to meet there until Feb. 14, 1746 (q.v.).—Assemb. Jour., II: 89. For location of the Warren house, see Pl. 41, Vol. I.

30 "This Day or To-morrow Capt. Tingley, in the Privateer Ship
Prince Charles [see Dec. 3, 1744], completely mann'd, sails on a Cruise, being the last of our thirteen, oow all at Sea; Capt. Johnson, in the Brig Dolphin [see Oct. 18] having sailed about ten Days ago."
—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 30, 1745.

" News from Curaçao is published here that the privateers under command of Capt. Jaucey (the "Licoln") and Capt. Rosewell
(the "Triton") see Jan. 21, 1745—have "taken a large Spanish Ship off Cayan, and were carrying her up to Barbados."—*N. Y.
Post-Boy*, Dec. 30, 1745. Regarding the loss of the "Licoln," see March 26, 1746.

The growth of the city during the period of 1717-46 is, so some extent, illustrated by a re-issue of the Burgis View (known as the Bakewell View), dated March 25, 1746. The churches built since the publication of the first issue are shown, as well as a few other important changes. It is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 33.

"I have seen wheat growing in 1746 where St. Paul's Church now [1792] stands."—From notes by Rev. John H. Abeel, D. D., entitled "Rest of Abeels Book A B," in the Miller Papers, N. Y.
Hist. Soc. According to reminiscences written in 1828, there were small houses of wood about the year 1745 where now St. Paul's Church stands.—Watson, Annals (1846), 176. Both statements may be approximately correct.—See Pl. 32-a (of 1742-4), and Pl.
34 (of 1754), Vol. I.

In this year, Myer Myers, silversmith, was admitted as a freeman of New York. In 1755, his shop was "opposite the Meal Market."
He was president of the New York Silver Smiths' Society in 1776, and continued active until 1790. For a description of some of his work, see Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 38-39.

A committee of the common council is ordered to request the representatives of the city in the assembly to notify the corporation of any motion abridging the charter, by-laws, or any of the rights and privileges of the city, that the corporation thus may have the opportunity of being heard.—M. C. C., V: 165. On Jan. 30, the "Trustees of the Town of Brookland" presented a petition to the assembly, setting forth that a great many inhabitants of that township "living near the Ferry from Nassau-Island, to New-York," who had "their chief Dependance of supporting their Families, by trading to the New-York Markets," had been debarred by the Ferry Act of Oct. 14, 1732 (q.v.), "from transporting their Goods in their own Vessels, to the said Markets," and thereby exposed to hardships and expense.—Assemb. Jour., II: 93. On Feb.
1, the mayor submitted a copy of the petition to the common council.
Daniel Horsmaenden and Joseph Murray were retained by the corporation to oppose the granting of the desired relief.—M. C. C., V: 166. The petitioners were given leave by the assembly to bring in a bill to relieve them of the hardships complained of, and this bill barely missed becoming a law.—Assemb. Jour., II: 103, 107, 117, 118-191. Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 936, 954-55. It would have destroyed New York City's ferry monopoly.—See Dec. 2, 1737;
Dec. 30, 1743.

The field officers of the city, on an order from the governour, are empowered by the assembly, in case of alarm or invasion, to demand of every inhabitant of this city who is owner of slaves "to deliver up to the Officer appointed, or to the Place directed for the Rendez-vous, one such Slave." He is to be "employed at the Artillery of the several Fortifications in the said City under the Direction of the proper Officer." No more than two slaves are to be placed at one gun. Any inhabitant refusing to send his or her slave shall be fined £40. If a slave is killed or rendered incapable of service as a result of such an invasion, the owner shall be paid £20.
—Assemb. Jour., II: 91.

Gov. Clinton issues a proclamation to all inclined to enlist for service under Admiral Warren at Cape Breton, offering many inducements, such as free grants of land on the island after a year's service, free transportation for the wives and children of soldiers, etc. All disposed to enlist are "desired to repair to Sergeant Yonge's, at the Hartfordshire & Yorkshshire House, opposite to the Secretary's Office."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 20, 1746. This house was a tavern, on the corner of Whitehall and Marketfield Sts.
The Produce Exchange building now covers the site.

By his will, proved on this day, Samuel Bayard leaves to his son Nicholas "all that my house and lot on the east side of Broad street, in New York, now in tenure of Robert Tod, between the houses of Stephen De Lancey, and the house of Philip Van Cortlandt."—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1896), IV: 62. For Tod's tavern, see May 28, 1733, and Oct. 3, 1748.

From this date until Oct. 8, inclusive, the meetings of the council of the province were irregular and migratory, as never before or since, by reason of the small-pox, which raged not only in New York but also in the surrounding country towns. The schedule of its meetings out of town was as follows: Jan. 31, Greenwich; May 3, Brooklyn; May 13, house of Jas. Delancey on the Bowery Road; May 20, and June 2, Greenwich; June 6, Brooklyn; June 11, Greenwich;

Jan.
7

18

30

31

- 1746 June 17, July 15 and 29, Aug. 12 and 19, Sept. 2, 16, and 30, and Oct. 8, Brooklyn.—Cal. Coun. Min., 352-59; Jour. Leg. Coun. 926, 927, 939, 943-45. For the changes this year in the meetings of the assembly, see Feb. 14; March 12, 17, 20; and July 15.
- 31 Various pressing military measures were considered at these meetings. On this day, the council orders that a proclamation be issued for a day of fasting and prayer (see Feb. 3). The guns which were loaned to Massachusetts are to be recalled.—Cal. Coun. Min., 351.
- " Capt. the ship "Ruby" (Capt. William Starkey), a transport with soldiers for the garrison of Louisbourg, comes into this harbour, out about 11 weeks from Gibraltar. On Jan. 19, she parted from the rest of a fleet of transports (the names of which are stated), conveyed by H. M. S. "Dover" and "Torrington," off the Virginia Capes, where some went in to pass the winter. Others are expected here daily.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 3, 1746. See, further, Feb. 3.
- Feb. 1 Capt. Scott arrives with part of Gen. Fuller's regiment and is allowed to land, although small-pox is "very rife" in New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 351.
- 3 Gov. Clinton issues a proclamation appointing Feb. 26 as a day of fasting and prayer throughout the province, in view of the rebellion that has lately broken out in Scotland in favour of a Popish pretender, and also because of the malignant fever which afflicted the inhabitants of New York last autumn. It is proposed "to implore the Almighty God to free us from all Disorders and Sickness, as to grant a blessing upon his Majesty's Arms, in suppressing the aforesaid Rebellion, and in repelling and defeating the Designs and attempts of his Enemies." All "servile Labour" is forbidden on that day.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 10, 1746. The "Popish pretender" is, of course, the grandson of James II, "Bonnie Prince Charlie," around whom centred the Jacobite uprising of 1745.
- " Gov. Clinton issues a proclamation warning all people in the province not to entertain any of the troops "lately arrived here from Gibraltar" (see Jan. 31), and that are suspected of having deserted; and warning all commanders of privateers or other vessels against receiving any of these troops on board their ships.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 3, 1746. See March 29.
- 5 On June 25, 1745, the governor, in his message, recommended a strong battery of 20 guns at the east end of the "Town." The assembly now moves that, if the plan of a battery at the east end of the city be found impracticable, "the gentlemen of the Council and the Members of this House, or a Majority of them, residing in this City, may direct such other Plan, . . . as shall be approved of by his excellency and not exceeding the Sum granted for that Battery."—Assemb. Jour., II: 94. See May 3, 1746.
- 10 A letter accusing Dr. Magraw of New York of being in the pay of the French is referred for further examination. The council calls for a list of strangers in the city, and orders three Frenchmen to be confined.—Cal. Coun. Min., 351. Witnesses in the case of Dr. Magraw were examined the next day, but the charges against him were not proved.—Ibid., 351-52.
- 12 The "Freemen and Freeholders, and other Inhabitants of the City of New-York," whose names are subscribed, petition for privilege of shooting in the Out Ward. They have heard that a bill is to be introduced forbidding the use of firearms, and this they believe would be a loss to inhabitants who have justly acquired a reputation "of being singularly and remarkably dexterous" in use of arms in target practice and firing at birds in the air.—Assemb. Jour., II: 97.
- 14 As the small-pox has broken out in the family of Admiral Warren at Greenwich, the assembly plans to meet, instead, on Feb. 15, at the house of Mordecai Gomez, also at Greenwich.—Assemb. Jour., II: 98. For schedule of out-of-town meetings this year, see Jan. 31.
- 20 Many persons have made it a practice "to lay Boards Masts & other Timber within the Enclosure of the Fortification on Copey Battery and to square & work the same there to the great Inconvenience & annoyance thereof as well as hazard and danger which is likely to arise therefrom to the Storehouse and other Building thereon erected by accidents from Fire." A fine of £40 is ordered imposed upon any person who "shall lay any Boards Masts or other Timber on any part within the Enclosure of the Fortification aforesaid out of the Basin thereof or work & manufacture the same there."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 914.
- The assembly is informed by message from the council that the latter desires a conference with the former "at Hollet's House, in the Bowery-Lane" the next day, on the subject of a pending bill for emitting bills of credit to the value of £10,000. The assembly decides that, as this is a money bill, there should be no conference with the council on the subject.—Assemb. Jour., II: 99. See also May 1, 1754. The location of Hollet's house (undoubtedly a tavern, as is usual for legislative conferences) has not been ascertained. See Feb. 27.
- 27 In an address to the governor, the council states its reasons for rejecting the assembly's bill entitled "An Act for emitting Bills of Credit to the Value of £10,000." One reason is the council's belief "that the Real & personal Estates of the Inhabitants of the City & County of New York do amount to near one third of the value of the Real & personal Estates of the whole province."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 916-17.
- " An act is passed to raise £33,375 by lottery for fortifying New York City. Several persons are named as managers to sell tickets and oversee the drawing of lots. The tickets, 15,000 in number, are to be sold at £1:10 each. The drawing of the tickets is to commence on or before the first of June.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 528-38. On May 3, an amendment was passed, which provided that, if the lottery should not be drawn in time, the treasurer could advance £1,000, either from the treasury or from loans, in order not to obstruct work on the fortifications.—Ibid., III: 543-45. This was the first time that the province had undertaken to raise money for public purposes by means of government lotteries.—Man. Com. Coun. (1859), 508; Ross, "Hist. of Lotteries in N. Y.," in Mag. of Hist., V: 145.
- "It might seem to one who looked over the advertisements of lotteries in the New York papers that New York was the market for all the lotteries which were organized in the colonies. And yet a glance at the Boston or Philadelphia papers would give the impression that either of those cities were bearing the chief burden of the lotteries. The fact is all the prominent lotteries advertised and sold their tickets in the leading towns of all the colonies."—Ross, op cit., 152.
- The essential and grievous evil of the lottery business was the insuring of tickets. The disastrous effects which developed from the practice of insuring tickets was responsible more than anything else for the storm of public disapproval which resulted in the sweeping away of lotteries simultaneously in about all the states. And yet little or no mention of the subject has been made by those who have written upon the subject of lotteries in America. Of course, contemporaneous discussions of the subject teem with criticisms of the practice.—Ibid., 222.
- " A new Militia Act restates the old provisions, with extended amendments. For the last revision, see Sept. 21, 1744. While the regimental exercises are now scheduled to take place once a year, the company exercises are to be performed at least four times. As in previous laws, the uniform of the trooper, not the foot-soldier, is prescribed, and the equipment for each is not altered. While the companies of cadets in the city of New York are each to consist of 100 men besides officers, the "Blew Artillery Company" is not to exceed 130 members besides officers. The duties and liabilities of sentries, in challenging persons, are defined; also those of physicians, surgeons, and apothecaries, residing in the cities of New York and Albany, in case of invasion or attack, their willful neglect subjecting them to a forfeit of £100. The heavy fine of £200 is imposed upon a field officer neglecting or refusing to perform his duty; £100 upon a captain or other inferior officer, and £25 in the case of a private. The death penalty is imposed by this act (for the first time), in case of actual invasion, if a person able to bear arms leaves the city or place invaded without the order of the commanding officer. The constituting and proceedings of a court-martial are newly regulated. Fuller provisions are enacted for levying and collecting fines, penalties, and forfeitures. In case of an alarm or actual invasion, every inhabitant of the city of New York who is "Master or owner of a Negro, Indian or Mulatto able Man Slave" shall deliver to the appointed officer, or to the appointed rendezvous, "One Such Slave to be Employed at the Artillery of the Several Fortifications," under penalty of £40 for neglect or refusal to deliver up or send such slave. In case such slave shall be killed or rendered helpless by the invasion, the owner shall be paid £50 out of money raised for the purpose.
- This act contains also this new provision: "Whereas many 1746 persons have of late made it a practice to lay Boards Masts, & other Timber within the Inclosure of the Fortification on Copsy Battery, and to square and work the same there to the great Inconvenience and Annoyance thereof, as well as hazard & danger, which is likely to arise therefrom to the Store house and other Buildings thereon erected, by Accidents from Fire," it is enacted that, if, hereafter, anyone shall lay them there, "out of the Basin thereof," or "work & manufacture the same there," such person or persons shall forfeit the sum of 40s for each offence, to be recovered before the mayor, recorder or any one of the aldermen of the city, on the oath of one or more credible witnesses, one-half to be paid to the person or persons who shall prosecute and sue for it, and the other half to the poor. If the boards, shavings, etc. are not removed in two days, the head-runner of this battery shall cause them to be removed and kept in his custody until the further sum of 40s and expenses shall be paid to him.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 511-28. The act was continued and amended Dec. 6, 1746 (ibid., III: 621), and expired Dec. 1, 1748, but was revived Dec. 12, 1753 (ibid., III: 962), and continued Dec. 7, 1754 (q. v.).

28 Inhabitants of the South Ward petition the common council for permission "to Build a Market House at their Own Expence at the East End of Pearle Street and a Slip, for Boats Or Canoos at the West End." They are given leave "to Build a Market House at their Own Expence on Such place and of Such Dimensions" as shall be directed by a committee of aldermen, appointed for the purpose, the market to be under the same regulations as other public markets of the city. The petitioners are also permitted, "at their Own Expence to Make a Slip at the West End of Pearle Street to Extend to Low Water Mark and no further."—M. C. C., V: 167. This was the Whitehall Slip Market, which stood, on the present plan of the city, at Whitehall and Pearl Sts.

The locality had long been a market-place. In 1656 (q. v.), "The Market Place at the Strand" was established near it. The Custom House Bridge Market, and (a short distance above) the Broad Street Market, had already ceased to exist when these petitioners made their application.—De Voe, Market Book, 276. De Voe (writing in 1862) adds: "At this period Pearl Street at the west end commenced on the shore, near where now runs State Street, and ran easterly, or at the east end of Pearl Street ended in Whitehall Street; from this the continuation was called Dock Street."—Ibid. The market-house is seen in the Bakewell View (Pl. 33, Vol. I). In 1749, an advertisement refers to it by name thus: "At Mr. John Whaley's, the corner house almost opposite the White Hall Slip Market."—N. Y. Gaz., Aug. 24, 1749. It had previously been referred to as "Market-house at the end of Pearl Street."—De Voe, op. cit., citing "the Laws of 1748." This market stood only about four years.—See April 26, 1750.

" Inhabitants of Montgomerie Ward petition the common council "for leave to Build a Market House in Rodman's Slip at their Own Expence," and they are given leave to do so, "in Such place and of Such Dimensions" as shall be directed by a committee appointed for the purpose, the market-house to be under the same regulations as the other public markets.—M. C. C., V: 168. This slip had been called Van Clyffe's Slip, Lyon's Slip, Rodman's Slip, and Burling's Slip before this date; later it was again called Lyoo's Slip. See Aug. 9, 1692; 1730; May 5, 1736; March 2, 1744; 1755; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988. De Voe calls the market Burling's Market (Market Book, 278), it being so named ("Burlin's Market") on the Maerschalck Map of 1755 (Pl. 34, Vol. I). The market stood about fourteen years, and is last noted of record as reference "Z" on the 1763 map by F. Maerschalck.

Mar. 4 The council and assembly meet at the residence of Gov. Clinton in Greenwich.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 918. The governor addresses the house: "My present Indisposition prevents my speaking to you in publick: I most earnestly recommend to you to make ample Provision, and that with the utmost Dispatch for all those services which I recommended to you the last Session and hitherto remain unprovided for."—Ibid., II: 918. On the following day, the governor communicated to the council a message from the assembly desiring adjournment until the second Tuesday in April, "as the small pox is at Greenwich where they now sit."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 918. On March 17, he placed before the council two messages of the 14th from the assembly, one desiring leave to adjourn from Westchester, where they were then sitting, to Brooklyn, and the other desiring adjournment to New York. As the small-pox was "very rife" in New York, the council advises the governor to adjourn the assembly to Brooklyn.—Ibid., II: 919. For a schedule of the year's meetings actually held out of town by both council and assembly, see Jan. 31; see also the Chronology under the dates there shown.

The council at New York receives on this day (and again on April 20) a letter from Lieut.-Gov. Thomas of Pennsylvania, regarding a meeting of commissioners from the colonies. On April 11, one came from Gov. Lums (Law) of Connecticut on this subject.—Cal. Coun. Min., 352. On May 8, similar communications came from Gov. Gooch of Virginia, and Gov. Wentworth of New Hampshire.—Ibid., 353.

A fine pen survey, of this date, is "Performed by Order of Messrs Francis Covenhoven & Abraham Lysen," and "Projected by a Scale of one Chain to an Inch by Brandt Schuyler," showing buildings in perspective, and Abraham Lysen's land, adjoining the lands of Admiral Peter Warren, in Greenwich, in the Out Ward of the city. This land is "bounded on the North and on the East by the Lands belonging to Admiral Warren, on the South by Lands belonging to Mordecai David Gomez, and on the West by Hudson's River at high Water Mark" (dimensions are given). It is attested as a true copy by Samuel Giles. The survey is filed with the Bayard papers (1717-1748) in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

On account of the small-pox which has made its appearance at Greenwich, and because it prevails also in the country around Jamaica, L. I. (which has been proposed for the meeting-place of the assembly), the general assembly and council meet, by the governor's direction, at the house of Benjamin Barret in the "Borough of Westchester."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 918; Assemb. Jour., II: 100; but see March 17 and 20. For schedule of out-of-town meetings, see Jan. 31.

The trustees of the Presbyterian congregation in New York write a circular letter, addressed "To the Ministers and Churches and Congregations at Boston, and other Towns in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in New England, and to all others to whom this our Letter shall Come," in which they review the early history (from 1717, q. v.), and present the needs of this church in New York, saying, among other things: "The present Buildings demand Repairs. . . . We want Ground wherein to bury our Dead, which scarce of late have been interred with common Decency for Want of Room. We also want a Bell and Steeple not only to call the Congregation together, but also for the more honourable Support of Divine Worship. . . . But certainly most of all, we want an Enlargement of our Church or Meeting House.

"To supply all these Demands, will cost us at least £1500 New York money. . . .

"Tho' we cannot prescribe the Way, in which this shall be done, yet we would humbly propose that a Collection be made in your Churches and Congregations on the Sabbath in the Room of your stated Collections. . . ."—Extracts from the Itineraries . . . of Ezra Stiles (1916), 542.

In answer to a petition from sundry Germans for leave to maintain a Lutheran minister "that preaches in High Dutch," the council orders that the present minister indicate the qualifications for such a minister.—Coun. Min., XXI: 79 (Albany).

Letters are received by the governor's council at New York from Admiral Warren and Sir William Pepperell at Louisbourg, asking for men.—Cal. Coun. Min., 352.

The assembly receives the following communication from the governor: "I Find by two Messages from the House, of the 14th inst. that you are desirous of an Adjournment from Westchester, on Account of the frequent Occasions that arise, of sending Messages that Distance, to the other Branches of the Legislature, whereby the Dispatch of Business will be greatly retarded." As small-pox prevails in the city, the governor, with the advice of the council, orders the house to adjourn from Westchester to "Brookland on Nassau-Island." The assembly convened there on March 20 (q. v.).—Assemb. Jour., II: 101; Cal. Coun. Min., 352. See also Jan. 31.

A piece of land, of 131 acres, "adjoining to Kingsborough, and fronting the King's Highway, having a very convenient Landing on the East River, being about two Miles out of Town," is offered for sale. Another piece of land, of 46 acres, about a mile out of town, "being one Half of a Lot of Land commonly called Leander's Land" (see Pl. 175, Vol. III), is offered for sale, "to be laid out into Lots of five or six Acres, as the Purchasers shall agree, some Part of it being very fit for Tanners, Curriers & Gardeners;"

Mar. 4
5
10 12 13
17

- 1746 also a salt meadow of 16 acres adjoining Leendert's Land. "An indisputable Title will be given by Anna Pritchard, living at the Widow Brevoort's."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 17, 1746. It should be noted (see Pl. 175, Vol. III) that the marshy ground or salt meadow along the East River between 13th and Houston Sts. was apparently unpatented land.
- 20 The "House" (of representatives) meets "in the Assembly Chamber, at the House of the Widow Sickle," in the "Town of Brookland," having been adjourned at Westchester on March 17 (q. v.).—Assemb. Jour., II: 101. The meetings of the lower branch of the legislature continued in Brooklyn until Oct. 13.—Ibid., II: 123. For the various movements of the council this year, see Jan. 31.
- " Gov. Clinton, in a message to the assembly, says that he has received letters from Admiral Warren and General Pepperell declaring it absolutely necessary to raise levies of men to be sent in the spring to Louisiana. He urges the assembly to do all in its power to raise a quota from New York Province.—Assemb. Jour., II: 102.
- 25 The time expires on this day within which streets were to be made and wharfs built as provided in the grants of water lots in 1736 and 1737.—See April 15, May 5, 1736; March 22, June 11, 1737. This date therefore fixes approximately the completion of the exterior streets on the East River, in the localities there described.
- 26 Capt. John Janney, "late Commander of the Privateer Ship Lincoln of this Port," which has been lost, arrives "with a French Tartan Prize, taken by Capt. Rosewell, of the Privateer Brigg Triton [see Jan. 21, 1745], on the 22d Day of February last, off the North Side of Hispaniola." The prize is the "Annunciation" (Mons. Rapinillet, commander), of 140 tons, which had only 23 men on board, passengers included, and two guns; her cargo consisted of wine, oil, olives, almonds, etc., "and would have been accounted a pretty valuable Prize, had it not been for a busy Rhode Island Privateer called the Hector, Capt. Higgins, who appeared in Sight just as she struck to Capt. Rosewell, and by that Means claims a Part of her."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 31, 1746. The "Lincoln" was lost on the Spanish coast on Dec. 11, 1745, while the crew were "putting the Vessel on the Career."—Ibid., March 17, 1746.
- 29 All of "his Majesty's Forces that arrived here lately from Gibraltar [see Feb. 3] bound for Cape Breton, march'd out" of the fort and embarked on the "Ruby" to await the arrival of the other troopships from Virginia, which were daily expected off Sandy Hook with their two men-of-war convoys.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 31, 1746. See March 31.
- 31 Two pieces of land on Manhattan Island, advertised for sale, are described thus: "One Lot of Land adjoining to Kipsborough and fronting the King's Highway having a very convenient Landing on the East River, being about two Miles out of Town, very commodious for a Gentleman's Country-Seat or Farmer, containing One Hundred and Thirty-one Acres, to which belongs a Swamp stored with Wood, which if cleared may be made good Meadow-Land . . . Also one other Lot of Land lying about a Mile out of Town, containing near Forty-six Acres of good Land, some part cleared and the rest well stock'd with timber and Fire-wood, being one-Half of a Lot of Land commonly called Leendert's Land."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 31, 1746. "Kipsborough" or Kipsbury, was mentioned as early as 1678, and was the Kips Bay Farm.—Riker, Hist. of Harlem, 394. Neither of the parcels advertised is part of the Kip's Bay tract. The farm mentioned as including 131 acres was later the John Watts estate, or "Rose Hill."—See Pl. 41, Vol. I; and Pl. 176, Vol. III. The other parcel was part of Leandert's farm.—See Pl. 175, Vol. III. It was probably later part of James de Lancey's.
- " The inhabitants of the city being again called upon to mount guard in the Fort, a "Centinel Citizen" proposes, in a letter to the printer (Parker), that a collection be taken up immediately to clean out the filth and rubbish left behind in the fort by the soldiers now bound for Cape Breton.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 31, 1745. See Feb. 3.
- Apr. The privateer "Pollux" brings in a French prize ship, whose cargo consists of "Wine, Oil, Soap, Candles, Bees-wax, Cloths, and sundry other Goods."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 7, 1746.
- 9 The house resolves to appropriate £1,200 towards putting Fort George in good repair.—Assemb. Jour., II: 105.
- 10 The privateer ship "Prince Charles" (Capt. Tingley)—see Nov. 12 and Dec. 3, 1744; Dec. 30, 1745—arrives with a prize, "the largest and deepest loaden Vessel of any brought into this Port since the War," a French ship called the "Rising Sun." This prize was captured Feb. 26, "out of 36 Sail and 3 Men of War, which he [Capt. Tingley] had dogged for two Days before from Porto rico." She had "22 fine new Guns, all 6 pounders," and nearly 80 men, and was "bound for Marseilles, with 1117 Hhds. of Sugar, 458 Casks of Coffee, and other Goods on board." She "would hardly have been taken so easily, but for a Stratagem Capt. Tingley made use of in arming a Number of his Men like Marines, with Grenadiers Caps on, by which he was taken for a Man of War. There was on board the Prize a French Commissary and a Judge of the Admiralty, who are brought in here; but the most of the Men were set on Shore at Mond. We hear the small plunder amounts to above 1000 l."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 14, 1746. See May 18, 1747.
- 15 It is resolved by the common council that the "Poor House" be enlarged, and a committee is appointed to prepare a plan of alterations. The plan was reported at the next meeting (May 9), and the committee required to "forthwith Purchase Materials and Agree With Workmen for Building and Completing the said Enlargement."—M. C. R., V: 171. On Dec. 8, the committee reported that the work was finished.—Ibid., V: 187. See Nov. 15, 1734, for the building of the first poorhouse.
- 20 The provincial council receives a letter from Admiral Warren, asking for support, as French militia and Indians are arming to attack Louisiana.—Col. Coun. Min., 352.
- The council also takes cognizance of a royal order to "the master general of ordnance" for sending an engineer to New York.—Ibid.
- 22 In a message to the assembly, Gov. Clinton says: "Pursuant to a memorial presented by my Direction, to the King, in Council, representing the Necessity of having a skillful Engineer employed in this Province, his Majesty has been graciously pleased to condescend to my Request; and, by order in Council, of the 16th of January last, has directed an able Engineer to be employed in repairing our Fortifications, erecting Batteries, and building Forts, upon our Frontiers, under the Direction of the Governor for the Time being."—Assemb. Jour., II: 107.
- 27 The little privateer sloop "Polly" (Capt. Helme)—see Oct. 22, 1745—arrives here from Rhode Island, "having taken and sent into Newport, a Spanish Sloop laden with Cocoa, but said to belong partly to Coracoa: Capt. Helme staid at Rhode Island in order to have her tried there. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 28, 1746.
- " We have now five of our Privateers in Port; but the Brig Hester, Capt. Samuel Bayard, is again completely fitted, almost manned, and will soon sail on another cruise."—Ibid. See Nov. 30.
- May 3 An act is passed to raise £13,000, by a tax on real and personal estate, to fortify and defend the province more effectually (see Sept. 21, 1744). Of this sum, £1,200 is "to be applied for Repairing the Fort at New York." Bills of credit are to be issued for the money raised by this act.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 548-62. The governour, on advice of council, signs the act contrary to his instructions.—Col. Coun. Min., 353.
- " The act of July 6, 1745 (q. v.), allowed £800 toward erecting a battery of 16 guns on "De Broses & Lawrys Wharfs," according to a plan signed by the governour and the speaker of the assembly; but doubts have arisen whether the plan can be executed on these wharfs. A statute is now passed requiring that, if it cannot be so erected, the council and assembly, by their major vote, approved by the governour or commander-in-chief, are empowered to cause such a battery to be erected, of as many guns as they think suitable to answer the purposes intended, and as "best Suited to the ground on the Wharfs aforesaid & Lots of Ground lying between them," at an expense of not over £800. They are also empowered to direct payment, from the treasury of the province, to the respective owners (their heirs, executors, or assigns) for their loss or damage sustained by erecting the battery.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 547-45.
- " A provincial law is enacted giving all attorneys of the supreme court the privilege to practise in the mayor's court.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 546-48. This nullifies the section of the Montgomerie Charter dealing with the regulations of the mayor's court.—See copy of charter printed in Ibid., II: 624-26.
- 8 The provincial council receives a letter from Gov. Shirley regarding cannon lent by New York.—Col. Coun. Min., 353.

1746 The provincial council meets at the house of James de Lancey.
 My31 —Cal. Coun. Min., 353.

14 The provincial council, meeting in the city hall, settles the question of quota of militia to be sent to Albany and Schenectady from Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, Westchester, Queens, and Suffolk Counties.—Cal. Coun. Min., 353

15 H. M. S. "Torrington" (Capt. Hardy) arrives at Sandy Hook, 15 days from Cape Breton, "where having seen the Troops from Virginia safe landed [see Jan. 31; Feb. 3; March 29], is returned here to convoy the Ship with the Remainder of those Troops from this Port, which they could not then lose time to call for."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 19, 1746.

19 "Gerardus Duyckinck, Living near the Old Slip Market in New York, continues to carry on the business of his late Father deceased, viz. Limning, Painting, Varnishing, Japanning, Gilding, Glazing, and Silvering of Looking Glasses, all done in the best Manner.

"He also will teach young Gentlemen the Art of Drawing, with Painting on Glass; and sells all sorts of Window-Glass, white Lead, Oil and Painter's Colours."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 19, 1746. See also M. C. C., VIII: 259.

20 A committee of the provincial council reports on a letter, received on April 11 (Cal. Coun. Min., 352) from the lords of trade, relating to the Moravians.—Ibid., 354.

30 On complaint of Rev. Mr. Knoll, John Lodewick Hofgood is forbidden to officiate as minister of the Lutheran Church.—Cal. Coun. Min., 354. See Kretzmann, The Oldest Lutheran Church in Am. (1914), 23.

June A proclamation is issued prohibiting the sailing of vessels from New York for a month.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 577. June 2 is the date given in Cal. Coun. Min., 354. For the text of this proclamation, see N. Y. Post-Boy, June 9, 1746. On June 3, the council gave directions to fire on any vessel which might try to leave port contrary to orders.—Cal. Coun. Min., 354. Apparently this was thought to be a necessary war measure. For the partial suspension of the embargo, see June 17.

2 Goldsbor Banyar is appointed deputy secretary of the province by John Catherwood, who has been acting secretary during the absence of Secretary Geo. Clarke, Jr. (see June 24, 1738), and he is sworn in at this meeting of the provincial council at Greenwich.—Cal. Coun. Min., 354. See July 3.

"It is ordered by the council that a proclamation be issued calling for volunteers for the defence of Louisbourg. The draught of this proclamation was read and approved on June 7; and ordered to be printed.—Ibid.

"Clinton, in his capacity of "General and Governour-in-Chief of the Province of New York, and the Territories thereon depending in America, Vice-Admiral of the same, and Vice-Admiral of the Red Squadron of His Majesty's Fleet," issues a proclamation prohibiting the sailing of any vessel from this port for the next month.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 9, 1746; Cal. Coun. Min., 354.

3 The provincial council, meeting in the city hall, orders that French prisoners be sent to Jamaica, L. I.; also that vessels trying to leave port contrary to orders shall be fired upon.—Cal. Coun. Min., 354.

4 The population of the city (and county) of New York is 11,718; and of the province, 61,589, exclusive of Albany County, which could not be enumerated "on account of the enemy."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 472. According to the Banker MSS. (in N. Y. Pub. Library), the population of the city was 12,017; and of the province, 74,587.

"The common council permits the inhabitants of the West Ward "to Make An Addition of Twenty One feet at the South End of the Markett in the Broad Way at their Own Charge."—M. C. C., V: 172. See April 13, 1738.

6 The provincial council, meeting in Brooklyn, issues orders to the sheriffs of Kings and Queens Counties in regard to French prisoners.—Cal. Coun. Min., 354.

"Two New York privateers, the snow "Dragon" (Capt. Seymour) and the brig "Greyhound" (Capt. Jefferys)—see Sept. 26, 1745—return with a capture, the sloop "Grand Diable," a Spanish privateer, which they "made a Consort of." The following recital is typical of the sea-fights of the period: "On the second Day of May last, as they were cruising in the Bay of Mexico, they fell in with a large Spanish Ship of 36 Guns, and upwards of 300 Men, with whom they all engaged for the greatest part of two Days; but were at last obliged to leave her, after expending most of their Ammunition. They did all that was possible for Men to do with a superior Force, and left her a perfect Wreck; but at the same time were not in a better Condition themselves, having almost all their Masts so much wounded, that they every Moment apprehended their going overboard, and after fishing them, were obliged to make the best of their Way home. The Dragon lost not a Man in the Engagement, but had several wounded, and Capt. Jefferys himself unhappily received a small wound near the right Eye. Of the Enemy they saw many fall, and their Colours were 3 times shot away, but always hoisted again immediately."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 9, 1746. Concerning later exploits of the "Dragon," see March 30, 1747.

Sir Peter Warren writes from Louisbourg to the Duke of Newcastle: "Since my letter to y<sup>r</sup> Grace dated the 6th inst, I have rec<sup>d</sup> an account of the Death of Governour Morris of the new Jerseys; as my little fortune Lyes in the Colony of New York where I married I shall Esteem it as the highest favour if your grace will be pleased to Appoint me to y<sup>r</sup> Government, with a prospect of succeeding Mr Clinton when it shall be agreeable to him to leave New York. I flatter myself I can do his Majesty as much Service in that Situation as any and y<sup>t</sup> it will be a means of re-establishing my health. . . . "From "British Transcripts" in the Lib. of Congress, the original being in the Public Record Office, London (Colonial Office, class 5, Vol. 44, folio 27).

"To be Sold. On board the Ship Jacob, John Anderson Master, at New York, a Parcel of Young Men Servants, just imported."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 9, 1746. It was a custom of the time for immigrants unable to pay passage money to reimburse the shipmaster by allowing their services as apprentices to be sold.—See June 19 and Nov. 14, 1728; April 23, 1739.

It is ordered by the governour's council that the governour's speech and the addresses of the council and assembly be printed separately; also in the N. Y. Post-Boy.—Cal. Coun. Min., 354.

The council orders that bounty be given to volunteers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 355.

The council puts forth a proclamation forbidding carpenters in the city to perform any work other than on the bateaux which are being built for the war against Canada.—Cal. Coun. Min., 355. More drastic action was later taken in this matter.—See July 2; see also ship-building measures in Queen Anne's War, June 27, 1711; and in the French and Indian War, May 3, 1755.

James Parker, having been appointed keeper of the library in the city hall (see April 19, 1745), advertises that he has, at his own "Charge and Trouble," printed a catalogue of the books, which will be given away to any "Lovers of Reading." He will attend at the library, after June 24, every Tuesday at 4 o'clock.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 16, 1746. This printed catalogue is not listed by Evans in his American Bibliography, and no copy is recorded.

The provincial council, meeting at Brooklyn, orders that a proclamation be issued to take off the embargo (see June 1 and 2), except for military stores.—Cal. Coun. Min., 355.

The exportation of gunpowder, arms, ammunition, military stores, white pine inc boards, or provisions such as "beef, pork, Ship Bread or Cornell Indian corn or pease," is prohibited, from Sept. 1 until the end of the present hostilities, by a provincial act, which, however, is not to apply to the supplying of war vessels, privateers, or trading vessels engaged in operations against the enemy.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 569-70. See proclamation of June 1. See also act passed July 15, 1746.—Ibid., III: 570-71. The act was invoked on August 8, when New Jersey was not allowed to purchase arms in New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 356.

A committee of the assembly meets at the house of the Widow Waghorne.—Assemb. Jour., II: 114. On the following day, a committee of the council met there.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 931. This house was doubtless a tavern. No reference to its situation appears of record.

The provincial council, meeting in the city hall, issues warrants for salaries, public services, Indian presents, fortifications, transporting soldiers, etc., and printing bills of credit.—Cal. Coun. Min., 355.

The Six Nations of Indians having refused to enter the war, Gov. Clinton urges the colony to make them presents, in addition to those authorized by the king, in order to secure their allegiance; he also asks for an appropriation for provisioning troops.—Assemb.

June 6

7

9

11

"

13

16

17

"

"

18

"

- 1746 Jour., II: 102, 115. On June 30, it was announced that "Great June Numbers of Shirts are making in this City, which are design'd, 18 among other Things, as Presents to the Indians, when his Excellency meets them at Albany, in order to induce them to act in Coercet with us in the present Expedition."—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 June 30, 1746.
- 23 Several bakers of the city petition that they may not be ordered to sell brown bread at 11 shillings per hundred weight, "considering the present Price and Scarcity of Cornell." A bill to this effect, they understand, is about to be presented.—Assemb. Jour., II: 116.
- 26 In a letter to Thomas Corbett, secretary of the admiralty, Sir Peter Warren, writing from Boston, says he intends to visit Gen.
 Pepperrell at Piscataqua, N. H., and then to travel to Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, and Pennsylvania, to see about the levies of troops for the proposed expedition against the French in Canada.
 —From "British Transcripts" in the Lib. of Congress, the original being in the Public Record Office, London (Admiralty Secretary,
 "In" Letters, 480).
- 30 "Last Week the Battoes design'd for carrying the Men over the Lakes, &c. on the intended Expedition, were began upon in this City, and are 160 of them are already in great Forwardness: We hear, there are several of these Vessels to be built here, (which seem large enough to carry 10 Men each) . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 30, 1746. See July 15.
- July Stephen Bayard, who with Edward Holland was appointed by 2 the governour to oversee the building of "battoes," reports to the council that he has spoken to all or most of the ship-carpenters, and many of the master-carpenters, of the city, to engage their services in building bateaux for the expedition against Canada.
 They refused, unless compelled by law, claiming that they were "engaged in particular Jobs." Thereupon, Daniel Horsmanden submitted to the council a bill "for impressing Ship Carpenters, House Carpenters, Joiners, Sawyers and their Servants and all other Artificers & Labourers for the building of Battoes and also for impressing Horses, Waggones and all other Things necessary for the carrying on the Expedition agt Canada with the utmost Dispatch."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 934. The bill passed both houses, and on July 15 became a law.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 593-95.
- 3 Secretary Geo. Clarke, Jr., appoints Goldsbrow Banyer to be his deputy, and Banyer is sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 356.
- 4 The provincial council issues to its members, and to those of the assembly who are in town, a warrant for repairing Fort George.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 356.
- 5 The council appoints a committee to meet July 7 "at the House of the Widow Wagborne," to prepare an address to the king, congratulating him on "the total Defeat of the Rebels," and thanking him for ordering an expedition against the French settlements in Canada.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 936.
- 8 Prohibited by a provincial law, the council does not permit
 New Jersey to buy arms, etc. in New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 356.
- 11 The Rev. William Vesey dies. He had been rector of Trinity Church "from its first building in the year 1697, to the Day of his Death."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 14, 1746. See Oct. 20.
- 14 The provincial council orders that a proclamation be issued for a day of thanksgiving. The draft of this was approved July 15, and ordered printed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 356.
- 15 It is found necessary, in order to hasten the building of the boats, to pass a law for impressing ship-carpenters, house-carpenters, and "all other Artificers and Labourers;" also for impressing horses, waggon, etc., necessary for carrying on the Canadian expedition.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 593-95; N. Y. Post-Boy, July 21, 1746. See June 30.
- The provincial council thereupon orders that a warrant for impressing carpenters and material to build bateaux, scows, etc., be prepared.—Cal. Coun. Min., 356. This was signed next day.—
Ibid.
- " A provincial act is passed "for the Encouraging of Volunteers to Enlist into his Majesties Service upon the Expedition against Canada."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 574.
- On the same day, another act is passed for raising £40,000 by a tax on estates, both real and personal, for carrying on the expedition, by emitting short term bills of credit to this amount.—Ibid., III: 577. Notwithstanding the governour's contrary instructions from the home government, the council advises him to give his assent to this act.
- The assembly appoints a committee to receive and entertain July 15 Brig. Gen. Gooch on his arrival in New York, and congratulate him upon his diligence in the enterprise against the French in Canada. After adopting an address of allegiance and congratulation, to be sent to the king, the assembly adjourns to meet in Brooklyn on July 29. Meetings were held in Brooklyn through Oct. 8 (see on July 29. Meetings were held in Brooklyn through Oct. 8 (see Jan. 31, 1746).—Assemb. Jour., II: 122-23.
- The provincial council orders that Gen. Gooch be received 18 with military honours.—Cal. Coun. Min., 356. Chief-Justice De Lancey presides at this meeting, Gov. Clinton having left for Albany.—Ibid.
- A Spanish flag of truce arrives at the fort with letters for 19
 Gov. Clinton. On July 21, these were translated and sent to him.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 356-57.
- "Whereas some malicious and evil-minded Persons, have 21 lately been guilty of doing very considerable Damage, both to the Walls and Tombs of the Jewish Burying-place, near this City:
 This is therefore to give Notice, that if any Person or Persons, shall discover the Offender or Offenders, so that he or they may be brought to Justice, they shall receive a Reward of Five Pounds, paid by Jacob Franks."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 21, 1746. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 927.
- The provincial council issues a warrant to Henry Holland to im- 24 press carpenters, etc., for building bateaux.—Cal. Coun. Min., 360.
- Oliver de Lancey gives notice that the snow "Catherine" 25 (James Brown, master) will be ready to sail for Louisbourg with provisions in three weeks.—Cal. Coun. Min., 357. See Aug. 20.
- The provincial council issues orders to the colonels of militia in 24 Westchester, Queens, Suffolk, Kings, and the lower part of Orange, counties, in case of alarm; and a letter is written to John Hamilton, president of New Jersey, asking him to establish a beacon on the Highlands of Navasink and to send the Bergen and Essex militia to New York in case of alarm. Hamilton's answer was received July 30, and on Aug. 28 the council ordered that a letter of thanks be sent to him.—Ibid., 357-58.
- John Peter Zenger dies.—N. Y. Eve. Post, Aug. 4, 1746. Pres- 28 sumably, the first issue of The New-York Weekly Journal after this date was the one which first bore the imprint of his widow, Catherine (sometimes spelled Catharine) Zenger, although the earliest issue containing it which has been seen is that of Sept.
 1.—Brigham, "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," in Am. Antiq. Soc.
Proc. (1917), 504.
- "Upwards of Two Hundred Men of the new-raisd Troops" " 28 from New York "embark'd last Week in several Vessels for Albany." Quotas are sent from other colonies, and the men "begin to be impatient to hear the News of the Arrival of the Fleet and Forces from England, that they may take the Field before the cold Season comes on."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 28, 1746.
- The provincial council of New York receives Gov. Shirley's com- 29 mission appointing certain representatives of Massachusetts for a conference or congress to be held on an Indian treaty.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 360. See Aug. 18.
- At the meetings of the provincial council, during the latter part 30 of July and the beginning of August, Archibald Kennedy alternated as presiding officer with Chief-Justice De Lancey.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 357.
- This day is proclaimed by Gov. Clinton a day of thanksgiving 31
 "to Almighty God for the Success of his Majesty's Arms against the Rebels in Scotland, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 4, 1746. This was the rebellion in 1745-6, centring around "Bonnie Prince Charlie," grandson of James II.
- Philip van Cortlandt, by will of this date, leaves to his son Aug.
 1 John his "two houses and lots fronting the City Dock, in the Dock Ward in New York, one known by the name of the Coffee House, and the other the Fighting Cocks, now in possession of David Cox and James Napier"—Abstracts of Wills in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
Collections (1895), IV: 202-3. The Exchange Coffee House stood on the north-east corner of Broad and Water Sts., and the "Fighting Cocks" at 28 Water St., one door east.
- "Tuesday last [Aug. 5] departed this Life, in the 68th Year of 5 his Age, Mr. Anthony Rutgers, of this City, Brewer and Merchant:
 He was of the Dutch Congregation, to which he was a great Benefactor;
 . . . and was decently interr'd the next Day in the Family Vault, . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 11, 1746. The house of Anthony Rutgers, erected about 1723, stood at the present 232-6 Church St.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952.

- 1746 Gov. Clinton having conferred with the chiefs of the Six Nations at Albany, assurances reach New York that the Indians will "take up the Hatchet against his Majesty's Enemies," and there is great probability that "upwards of 700 Warriors of those Nations" will join the Canadian expedition.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 18, 1746. See Aug. 19.
- 18 The provincial council records the proposals made by Gov. Clinton to the Six Nations, and to the delegates of the Mississages, a far nation.—Cal. Coun. Min., 361.
- 20 Oliver de Lancey gives notice that the sloop "Griffin" (William Brown, master) will be ready to sail with provisions for Louisbourg in three weeks.—Cal. Coun. Min., 358. See July 15.
- 29 The common council evinces its interest in the lottery system by ordering, "Nemine Contra Diceote," that the board "Attend the Drawing the Government Lottery in their Turns Viz the Mayor And Recorder the first day, and then the Senior Alderman with his Common Council Man the next day and So on till they have all Attended And then begin Again and go on in the Same Order till the whole is finished."—M. C. C., V: 176. See Feb. 27. Again, on Nov. 11, 1748, the order was: "that the Commonality do attend the drawing of the publick Lottery of this Province in the following order Viz 1st the Mayor & Recorder, next the deputy Mayor with his Assistant, then the Aldermen with each his Assistant according to Seniority in their Turns till the Whole drawing be finished."—Ibid., V: 240. See April 9, 1748. Later, on April 23, 1744, we find the common council passing an order that the city treasurer "take 1000 tickets of the Bridewell Lottery" at the city's risk.—Ibid., VIII: 27.
- " The deputy clerk is required by the common council to "Order proper Boxes to be Made to put in the Books, papers, And Records of this Corporation so that the Same May be more Readily Removed on any Emergency."—M. C. C., V: 176. On Oct. 29 a joinder was paid £4:11, "for Making Seven Chests for putting in the City Records."—Ibid., V: 183-84.
- Sept. During this week all the troops raised in New Jersey for the expedition against Canada passed New York City, "with their Complement of Battoes," on their way to Albany.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 8, 1746.
- 2 Desertions are so frequent in the newly raised troops that Gov. Clinton, from Albany, causes a notice to be printed offering a reward of three pounds for the apprehension of any deserter; and threatens with the "utmost Rigour of the Law" anyone harbouring a deserter.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 11, 1746. On Sept. 22, another proclamation by the governor appeared, promising free pardon to all deserters who would repair to their respective companies or surrender before a justice of the peace before Oct. 1. Anyone harbouring a deserter would be fined £20.—Ibid., Sept. 22, 1746.
- 8 "Last Week all the Troops raised in the Province of New Jersey for the present Expedition against Canada, passed by this City, with their Complement of Battoes, in their Way to Albany."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 8, 1746.
- " Just arrived, A fresh Parcel of the New Fire-Places, Made by Robert Grace, in Pennsylvania, and Sold by the Printer hereof in New-York. A Pamphlet wrote by the Inventor, which describes the Use and Advantage of these Fire-places, is given with them, gratis."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 8, 1746. This notice refers to the Franklin stove, invented by Benjamin Franklin in 1742.—See The Writings of Benj. Franklin (Ed. by Albert Henry Smyth), I: 127-29, 370; VIII: 244-45. Cf. Nov. 26, 1744.
- 13 Four companies of "his Majesty's Troops raised in the Province of Pennsylvania" pass through New York on their way to Albany.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 15, 1746.
- 15 A large French prize ship, the "St. Joseph," taken on Aug. 29 by the privateer brig "William" (Capt. Arnold), of New York—see Sept. 26, 1745—arrives here. There were two smart engagements to effect this capture, "the first in the Evening before, of about an Hour, wherein the Privateer had one of her Swivel Guns burst, which Kill'd 'em 3 Men and wounded 4; and the other in the Morning of about 5 Hours, wherein they had one Man killed and 5 wounded." The prize is "about 350 Tons, mounts 12 Guns four pounders, and had 57 stout Men on board; their Second Lieutenant was kill'd, and 5 Men wounded, some of which mortally: She had on board 614 Hhds. of Sugar, 200 Bags and 20 Casks of Coffee, and was bound from Martineque for Marseilles."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 19, 1746.
- 20 The council at New York learns from letters received from Gov. Shirley and Admiral Warren that Brig-Gen. Samuel Waldo has been appointed commander-in-chief.—Cal. Coun. Min., 361.
- Sept. The royal coasting pilot Capt. John Frel, and the branch pilots, are required by the provincial council to consider what part of the channel between this city and Sandy Hook "it would be proper to fill up, in order to defend the city from the attacks of the enemy."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 580. Their report was received the next day.—Ibid., and Cal. Coun. Min., 358, citing the original Council Minutes (Albany), XXI: 153.
- 25 Chief-Justice Lewis Morris and Daniel Horsmanden prepare a memorandum for a proposed disposition of the "Regim<sup>t</sup> & Independ<sup>t</sup> Co. of N. Y. Artillery," in case of alarm. It is an answer to questions regarding the placing of men and guns. It advises, among other things, that half the regiment, on signal, repair "to the Parade before the Fort," and the other half place themselves "in & about the City Hall;" also it advises "The Guns for Domine's hook only to be Ready mounted, to Carry thither as Occasion may require;" and it raises the question, "If the Firemen [are] Stationed to particular guns, how [are] they to be relieved in case of fire [?]" It closes thus: "The Council to have a Meeting with the Field officers to morrow evening (being Friday 26th Sept Instant) to Confer upon the Subject Matter of the foregoing Memorandums at M<sup>rs</sup> De Joccourts at Six o'Clock."—From the original document, filed with "Horsmanden Papers" (p. 172) in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- " A French prize snow arrives, "which was taken the 14th Day of August last, the North Side of Hispaniola, by the Privateer Brig Triton [see Jan. 21, 1745], Capt. Man, Commander, of this Port: She is called the Le Borie, Mons. Bonsie Master, bound from Rochelle for Cape Francois, and is a handsome well-built Vessel of about 125 Tons Burthen, mounts 6 Carriage Guns, and had 21 Men on board. Her Cargo consists of about 20 Tons of Woad, 15 Tons of Flour, with some Soap, Candles, and Dry Goods . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 29, 1746.
- " That the harbour is being closely guarded is evident from a letter of this date, from Col. John Hamilton to Gov. Clinton, relating to the accidental burning of the beacon light at the Highlands of Neversink, and recommending increased vigilance.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 580.
- 27 The provincial council receives a letter from Admiral Warren regarding the appearance of a large French fleet off the island of Sables. Armament is ordered for Lourie's battery; and orders are issued to Captains Van Wyck and Waldron how to act in case of alarm; also to Captains Isaac de Peyster, John Provost, Pierre de Peyster, and Robert Livingston. John Honeyman is commissioned captain, and his two lieutenants appointed. It is also ordered that the papers of French prisoners in the city be examined to discover the destination of the French fleet.—Cal. Coun. Min., 359. See Sept. 30.
- " The muster-roll of Capt. John Honeyman's company of volunteers shows 100 men raised in New York for the expedition against Canada.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 580.
- 30 The list of the French fleet under command of the Duke d'Anville is found, and it is sent to neighbouring governors.—Cal. Coun. Min., 359.
- " H. M. S. "Fowey" (Capt. Taylor) arrives at Sandy Hook from Virginia, "with several Transport Vessels under Convoy, having on board the Forces raised in Maryland and Virginia, for the Expedition carrying against Canada, consisting of three complete Companies from Maryland, and one from Virginia. The Transports came up to this City the same Evening," the forces designing to start for Albany on Oct. 6.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 6, 1746. They remained, here, "Wind bound," for a week or more.—Ibid., Oct. 13 and 20, 1746. See Oct. 20.
- " Ammunition is ordered by the provincial council for Lourie's battery, and for the batteries at Burnet's Key, Rutgers' Wharf, and Red Hook.—Cal. Coun. Min., 359.
- 1 Oct. Gov. Clinton returns from Albany to his home at Greenwich. —N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 6, 1746.
- 3 Gov. Shirley, in a letter to the governor and provincial council, asks that men be sent to Rhode Island, in case of an attack there by the French fleet.—Cal. Coun. Min., 359.
- 4 The Virginia troops, now at New York, and destined for Albany, are in need of many necessities.—Ibid. See Oct. 8.
- 6 The cargo of the prize snow "L'Borie" is advertised to be sold at public vendue at the house of Benjamin Pain on the dock.—

- 1746 N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 6, 1746. This house, the sign of the "Jamaica Oct. 6 Arms" was at the foot of So. William St.—See Dec. 17, 1744.
- 8 The provincial council deems it advisable not to withdraw troops from Albany for the defence of New York, but to hold the Virginia and Maryland troops in this city for that purpose.—Cal.
Coun. Min., 359; but see Oct. 11.
- 11 The council orders that the Maryland troops be sent to Albany.
—Cal. Coun. Min., 359
- " One Thomas Barnes, recently arrived from Louisbourg, is examinated about the French fleet.—Ibid.
- 13 "The General Assembly of this Colony are adjourned from Brucklyn on Nassau Island, to the Assembly Chamber, at the City Hall in this City, to meet To-morrow for the dispatch of Business.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 13, 1746.
- " Parker announces that he has printed a catalogue of the books in the library in the city hall, of which he is "Keeper" by appointment of the common council. Books are loaned at "Four Pence Half Penny" a week for each book, and security for its safe return at the end of one, two, three, or four weeks; "but no book to be kept longer, without renewed obligations, and a double Penalty in Case of Failure: No Person to have above one Book at a time, unless more than one Volume of a Sort; and due Attendance will be given at said Library Room, every Tuesday at 4 o'clock in the Afternoon."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 13, 1746.
- 14 Pilots for the transports to carry the Maryland troops to Albany (see Oct. 11) are, by order of the council, to be impressed.
—Cal. Coun. Min., 359.
- 16 Benjamin Franklin writes from Philadelphia to Cadwallader Colden in part as follows: "It will not be long after my Return from Boston before you will see the first Number of the Miscellany.
I have now Materials by me for 5 or 6. The want of a good Engraver is a great Difficulty with me. The Mention of Engraving puts me in mind, that Mr Evans told me you would permit me to take off some Copies from a Plate you have of the N American Coast. I shall be obliged to you for that favour."—From the original letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- 17 Gov. Clinton, in an address to the council and assembly, refers to his political troubles as follows: "It is always to be wished that a perfect Harmony may subsist between the several Branches of the Legislature, which never was more necessary than now, as we are exposed to a powerful cruel, and deceitful Enemy."—Assemb.
Jour., II: 125. On Oct. 20, Henry Hollarod, by an order from Col.
Roberts, broke open the store-houses at Albany and seized a large quantity of provisions.—Ibid., II: 128. Spurb notes were exchanged between the governor and the assembly on Nov. 4, 8, and 10.—
Ibid., II, 130-35. On Nov. 26, the assembly passed a resolution "That the Answer returned by his Excellency, to the Resolutions of this House of the 8th Instant, is in no Respect satisfactory; and that this House cannot, in Faithfulness to the People they represent, pass any Bill for a further Allowance for Provisions, for the Forces raised on the Expedition against Canada, whilst the notorious Abuses committed in such as have been already provided are openly avowed and encouraged."—Ibid., II: 139. Because of the assembly's refusal to grant further appropriations, Clinton charged it with gross negligence.—See Dec. 12. For the development of the controversy between Gov. Clinton and the assembly, see April 24, June 22, July 24, Sept. 12 and 27, Oct. 9 and 27, Nov. 25, and Dec. 15, 1747; Feb. 13, 1748; Feb. 24, 1749.
- 20 Nicholas Bayard publishes a notice threatening to prosecute anyone bring a gun in his woods, or in any inclosure on his farm "near Fresh water." A fire had started on Oct. 18, through the carelessness of a hunter, for proof of whose identity Bayard now offers a reward of £10.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 20, 1746. See Pls. 32 and 40.
- "The Maryland Forces are all sail'd for Albany, but the Virginia Company [see Sept. 30] is encamped in our Fort; and it is now hoped all Well-wishers to their Country, will endeavour effectually to prevent the Desertion of any of those Forces, by stopping and apprehending all Straglers that can't give a very good Account of themselves."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 20, 1746. Regarding provisions for the Maryland troops, a letter from Gov. Bladen of Maryland, received by the council, states that he ought to have nothing to do with it after the troops have left his province.—Cal.
Coun. Min., 360.
- "By resolution of the governor and council, Rev. Henry Barclay is named to succeed the Rev. Mr. Vesey, deceased (see July 11), as rector of Trinity Church.—Cal. Coun. Min., 360.
- The leading Presbyterians of the Synod of New York obtain from Gov. Hamilton a charter for the "College of New Jersey." Oct. 22 —Maclean, Hist. of College of N. J., I: 23-44, 70. In May, 1747, the college was opened at Elizabethtown.—Ibid., I: 114. The next year it was removed to Newark, where the first commencement was held on Nov. 9, 1748.—Ibid., I: 115, 128-32. In Sept. 27, 1752, the trustees decided "That the College be fixed at Princetown." The building erected here was opened to the students in the Autumn of 1756, under the name of Nassau Hall (after William III, of the house of Orange-Nassau).—Ibid., I: 142-55.
- "The Rev. Henry Barclay, having been chosen by the vestry of Trinity Church, and admitted by Gov. Clinton, to succeed the late William Vesey as rector, is inducted into the office.—Ecles.
Rec., IV: 2927-30.
- "We have Advice from Albany, that the Forces raised in this Province, having been reviewed at the Place of Rendezvous, do amount to 1580 effective Men, exclusive of Officers; and that last Week, these Forces, together with those raised in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland, have all marched from Albany to the Carrying-Place."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 27, 1746.
- The common council agrees to a proposal of the "Joint Committees of the Council and Assembly" that the city "Cause to be Built a Small Watch House near the Powder House," with the understanding that "the Said Committees Would provide a proper Number of Watchmen to Watch the Said Powder House this Winter till a Convenient Magazine Can be Built within the Stockadoes."
It is ordered "that the Committee for Enlarging the Poor House Cause a proper Watch House to be Built in Such Manner and at Such place As they Shall Think Convenient."—M. C. C., V: 183.
On Dec. 8, the watch-house was reported finished.—Ibid., V: 187.
- The king's birthday is celebrated "with great Demonstrations of Loyalty and Joy." The provincial and municipal officials review the militia and then drink "his Majesty's and all the Loyal Healths." Cannon are fired and the city is illuminated.—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Nov. 3, 1746.
- The sheriff advertises for sale, on execution, "at the House of William Creed, at the Green Dragon on the New Dock," the effects (including a young negro), of a blacksmith.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 3, 1746. See Sept. 3, 1744.
- The privateer brig "Hester" (Capt. Troup), completely fitted and manned, falls down to Sandy Hook, "in order to proceed on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies;" also the privateer brig
"Dolphin" (Capt. Beazley).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 1, 1746. See April 27, 1746; April 6, 1747.
- Capt. Beverly Robinson advertises for the recovery of four soldiers who, on Nov. 18, deserted from his "Company of Foot, now lying in Fort George."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 1, 1746. He advertised again the next year for the recovery of soldiers from the Virginia company, who deserted on Feb. 24, 1747.—Ibid., March 2, 1747.
- "Order'd That the Committee formerly appointed for Laying out And Letting the Lots Opposite to Spring Garden be Continued
And that they have power to Alter the plan, and Let Leases as they think Convenient And that the Church Wardens Affix the Seal of this Corporation to the Leases for any Lots they have or Shall Let."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- "Last Saturday about 4 sail'd the Chester with Honorable Admiral Warren."—Boston News-Letter Dec. 4, 1746. His destination was England. He arrived off Spithead on Dec. 24.—See N. Y.
Post-Boy, March 13, 1747; and "British Transcripts" in Lib.
of Congress (from Pub. Record Office, London, Admiralty Secretary "In" Letters, 480). He never returned to America, but died July 29, 1752 (g. v.). For Lady Warren's final departure from America, see
Sept. 30, 1747.
- An act is passed for raising £2,250 "by a Publick Lottery for this Colony for the Advancement of Learning & Towards the Founding a Colledge within the Same." The manner of conducting it is prescribed. The drawing of the tickets is to be made from two boxes at the city hall, commencing June 1, 1747. The conduct of the proceedings is to be under the observation of inspectors appointed from the common council. Weekly public notice of the numbers of the tickets drawn is to be published in the Post-Boy.
The forging of tickets is made a felony by this law, punishable by death without benefit of clergy.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 607;
N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 379. See also Jan. 5, 1747. For the next lottery for the same object, see April 9, 1748.

1746 William Smith records that the college project was "early in
Dec. the eye of the patrons of the public school, formerly trusted to 6 the care of Mr. Malcolm [who, for services as schoolmaster, was paid by the city at various times between April 6, 1733, and April 4, 1739.—M. C. C., VIII: 346 (Index)], favoured by the pupils of that institution now rising to manhood, and forced by a general spirit of emulation on discovering the sundry advantages our youth had acquired by an academical education in Great Britain and Ireland, but chiefly at the neighbouring Colleges of New England." He refers to the origin of the "seminary" at New Haven, from which "many of the western churches in New-York and New-Jersey were afterwards furnished with their English Clergymen," and adds: "Mr. Smith who was a tutor and declined the Rector's chair of Yale College, vacant by the removal of Dr. Cutler, was the first lay character of it, belonging to the colony of New-York. Their numbers multiplied some years afterwards, and especially when, at his instance, Mr. Philip Livingston, the second proprietor of the manor of that name, encouraged that academy by sending several of his sons to it for their education.

"To the disgrace of our first planters, who beyond comparison surpassed their eastern neighbours in opulence, Mr. Delancey, a graduate of the University of Cambridge, and Mr. Smith, were, for many years, the only academics in this province, except such as were in holy orders; and so late as the period we are now examining, the author did not recollect above thirteen more, the youngest of whom had his bachelor's degree at the age of seventeen, but two months before the passing of the above law, the first towards erecting a College in this Colony, though at the distance of above one hundred and twenty years after its discovery and settlement of the capital by Dutch progenitors from Amsterdam." He adds in a footnote: "The persons alluded to, were—

Messrs. Peter Van Brugh	Messrs. William Peartree
Livingston,	Smith,
John Livingston,	Caleb Smith,
Philip Livingston,	Benjamin Woolsey,
William Livingston,	William Smith, Jun.
William Nicoll,	John McEvers,
Benjamin Nicoll,	John Van Horne.
Hendrick Hansen,	[cf. Pl. 53-b, Vol. I]

"These being then in the morning of life, there was no academic but Mr. Delancey on the bench, or in either of the three branches of the Legislature; and Mr. Smith was the only one at the bar. Commerce engrossed the attention of the principal families, and their sons were usually sent from the writing school to the counting-house, and thence to the West India islands—a practice introduced by the persecuted refugees from France, who brought money, arts, and manners, and figured as the chief men in it,—almost the only merchants in it from the commencement of this century until the distinction between them and others was lost by death and the inter-communion of their posterity by marriage with the children of the first Dutch stock and the new emigrants from Great Britain and Ireland. The French Church of New-York contained, before their divisions in 1724, nearly all the French merchants of the capital."—From "Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y.," in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 93-95.

8 The Post-Boy of this date contains a paragraph censuring the government, and this causes a dispute in the council meeting. As Clinton explained in a letter to the lords of trade (Feb. 4, 1747), this paragraph showed the spirit of some of the council, who aimed to awaken a popular faction. Clinton also referred to "the small number of the Council and Assembly" and "the low condition of life and ignorance of the greatest number of them."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 328-29. On Jan. 29, 1747, Colden explained to Clinton his connection with the episode, as one who was an object of the censure.—Ibid., VI: 331-40.

"The common council orders payment of £19:13:5, balance due to Samuel Lawrence "for Repairing the Meal Market and Dock."—M. C. C., V: 188-89.

"An advertisement in the Post-Boy gives a view of the business activities near Coenties Market: "Peter De Joncourt, living near Coenties Market, having left off keeping Tavern, continues to sell out of Doors, by small Measure, good old Madera Wine, Jamaica Rum, French Brandy, Batavia Arrack, and Claret: He also sells by retail sundry sorts of Dry Goods, all Sorts of Spice, Tea, Coffee, Raisins, Sugars, &c. He likewise keeps very good Accommodation for Lodgers."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 8, 1746. De Joncourt's tavern had been an official resort of the period.—See M. C. C., Dec. V: 151. In 1747 he became master of a brigantine.—Cal. Coun. Min., 364.

Clinton describes the "Present State of the Province" to the lords of trade. Among other things, he says: "In the fortifications which have everywhere employed Men infinitely ignorant of the art, who have no more pretence to knowledge than the meanest plowman, and have squandered away large sums of money with no other view than can appear, but in being useful to Relations, or to such persons as they thought could bring them in future Elections. The works have been so manifestly absurd that they have been in most places altered, & rebuilt at their own desires. In making repairs to the Fort, which not only defends this town, but likewise the principal Battery at the entrance of the Harbour, they refuse repairing the side next the town, and even left the Guns dismounted on that side; There can be no reason assigned for this, but a malicious insinuation that the town may be in Danger from a Governour whose Residence is in the Fort; Yet as the Town is open the Fort may be more easily attacked from the Town than any other way; and as soon as an enemy gets possession of the Fort, all the Batteries must fall into their hands, because the Fort commands them. . . . In order more perfectly to conceive what power a small faction may obtain, it must be observed that the Assembly of this Province, as all the others in North America, consists of ordinary Farmers & Shop keepers of no education or knowledge in public Affairs, or the World; & in this Province the greatest numbers are Foreigners, or of Foreign Extract, many of which do not understand the English Language and are generally led by some cunning Attorney or Reader of pamphlets."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 462. There is doubtless more than a grain of truth in Clinton's remarks regarding extravagance and waste in rebuilding and repairing the fort. The constant appropriations asked for and granted for "necessary repairs" by each succeeding governour must have led the reader to much the same conclusions.

An advertisement (that of Obadiah Wells) mentions "29 the Sloat."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 29, 1746. This was Sloat Lane.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1009. See also Aug. 10, 1770.

1747

In this year, "Little Bloomingdall," a farm or tract of land once in the occupation of Stephen de Lancy, the younger, and later known as the Somarenydyck land, was mentioned in a partition deed between James de Lancy, Peter de Lancy, Oliver de Lancy, Peter Warren and Susannah, his wife, and John Watts and Anne, his wife, recorded in Liber Deeds, XIV: 258 (Albany). See also Oct. 9, 1780, for mention of a survey of Little Bloomingdale made at the request of George Stanton and John Somereydyck, showing 310 acres along the Hudson, and the course of the Bloomingdale Road.

The terms of the lottery act for the benefit of the college (see Jan. Dec. 6, 1746) are published in the Post-Boy. The lottery consists of 10,000 tickets, offered at 30 shillings each, 1,665 of which are to draw prizes, 8,335 being blanks. The fortunate tickets have different values, there being 1 of £500, 1 of £300, 1 of £200, 10 of £100, etc. Apparently, all were sold; the returns to the college were to be the sum received on the sale of all the tickets after deducting 15 per cent. for expenses and the amount represented by the prize-winning tickets. "As the late Lottery vide infra has given general Satisfaction, the same Care will be taken, and the same Regulations observed in this, with respect to the Tickets, the Drawing, keeping the Books, and other Particulars, as near as possible. The Blanks as well as Prizes will be published weekly in the New-York Post Boy. . . . "Tickets are to be had at the Dwelling-houses of Messrs. Peter Valette and Peter Van Brugh Livingston, who are appointed Managers."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 5, 1747. No record has been found of the "late Lottery" here referred to. Quite possibly it was not connected with the proposed college, although an earlier lottery was referred to in the trustees report of Nov. 1, 1754 (q. v.), which shows that the lottery of 1747 was the "second."—Assemb. Jour., II: 397. See, further, June 1,

The provincial council issues an order in regard to "La Fleur," a French prize taken by the "Greyhound," and suspected of having small-pox on board. The next day, quarantine measures were taken, and the prize ordered to be examined. A report on this was returned on Jan. 15, and orders issued the next day.—Cal. Coun. Min., 362-63.

- 1747
Jan. 14
14 15
19 23
29
Feb. 9
Mar. 20
" "
" "
" "
- Fire breaks out from the roof of the city hall. The flames are soon extinguished by the magistrates and the inhabitants, "who have always been remarkable for their Readiness & Dexterity on such Occasions." Especially noteworthy is the work of "Francis Davison, a Carpenter (being the same Person that was so instrumental in extinguishing the Fire formerly in the Cupola of the New Dutch Church) who got out upon the Roof with an Axe, and cut the Roof open where the Fire was, the Engines at the same time playing the Water upon him, & the Weather being intensely cold, by the time the Fire was out he was clothed with Ice." Two other persons, Duncan Brown, mate, and John Evetts, mariner, also render praiseworthy assistance. It was generally believed that the fire was started by prisoners in the building, as it broke out in a room under the roof where they were confined, & at a distance from the chimney.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 19, 1747. On the following day, the common council granted to the three men the freedom of the city; in addition, Davison was presented with £7 and the others with £5 each.—M. C. C., V: 190. See March 20.
- Edward Willese, of the ferry, in a petition to the common council, states that "he has been a Great Sufferer by the Dispute Subsisting between this Corporation and the Township of Brookland and also by the Malignant Distempers that have been in this City." In consequence he asks for an abatement of his rent. A committee is appointed to inquire into the matter.—M. C. C., V: 190. In consideration of his losses, he was allowed a reduction of £160 from his rent.—Ibid., V: 193.
- With the issue of this date (No. 209), James Parker changes the name of his newspaper from The New-York Weekly Post-Boy to The New-York Gazette, revived in the Weekly Post-Boy.—See Jan. 4, 1743. For the next change of title, as well as ownership, see Jan. 1, 1753.
- A fire on board the ice-bound ship "William," aground in the harbour between two other ships at a distance from the shore, is extinguished by the exertions of the inhabitants, who "at length got an Engine to play upon her."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 26, 1747. This was an unusual instance of the use made of the city's fire-engines.
- At a consistory of the Dutch Reformed Church, the elders request the ministers not to preach more than one hour, "so as to remove the complaints of long sermons, to increase the audiences and hold the people together, and so enlarge the alms and other revenues of the church." The ministers promise to comply.—Eccles. Rec., IV: 2955.
- Because of continued cold weather, firewood has become "so scarce and dear as was never equalled here before," having reached a cost of from 40s. to 58s. a cord. Many inhabitants of the city are in want, also, because of the high price of provisions; for example, "a good Turkey, which scarcely ever before exceeded 3s. 6d. has lately been sold for 5s. a fat Fowl for 1s. 6d., a pound of Butter for 14d. and many other things proportionable: Under all these Disadvantages, what must our Poor suffer!"—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 9, 1747. See also De Voe, Market Book, 250-51.
- The common council resolves to cause the common sewer "under the Exchange at the Lower End of the Broad Street" to be "Arched with Stone and the Floor Laid with flat Stones," at the city's expense. A committee is appointed to buy materials and hasten the work.—M. C. C., V: 191. Payment of £151:8:10 was made to Joris Brinckerhoff on Jan. 29, 1748, for these "repairs of the Common Shore [sewer] and Exchange."—Ibid., V: 216. From this record it appears the floor of the "Exchange" was flagged.
- It is ordered by the common council "That the Last Committee for Repairing the City Hall the 19th of April 1745: be Revived And that they forthwith Cause the Damage done by the Late fire [see Jan. 14] to be Repaired."—M. C. C., V: 191.
- A committee of the common council is appointed "to Regulate and Lay out the Several Streets in the North and Montgomerie Wards."—M. C. C., V: 191. On Sept. 1, the committee duly reported "that having Measured the Distance from the Middle of the Smith's fly Street opposite or above the Slip Commonly Called Peck's Slip to the House of James Lowry now in the Tenure Or Occupation of John Nicolls [they] found it to be 442 feet;" and they proposed a descent of four inches every ten feet from the house to the slip. It was ordered that the alderman and assistant of Montgomerie Ward regulate the ground accordingly.—Ibid., V: 198. The work of regulating the other streets of these wards was continued by other committees, appointed from time to time.
- For summary of street regulations in Montgomerie Ward, see Sept. 11, 1744. For the regulations in the North Ward, see M. C. C., V: 191, 343, 358; VI: 17-18; VII: 280-81.
- Mr. Horsmanden having informed the common council "That it is the opinion of the Governour and Council and the Committee of the Assembly That the Hollow near the Poor House, is the Most proper place for Building the Magazine," the board consents that work proceed, provided the city "have the Appointment of the Keeper and the Benefit of the Storage of all Powder lodged there belonging to private persons."—M. C. C., V: 192. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 923.
- There is advertised for sale at public vendue "at Mr. Valentine's on the New Dock," on March 31, the cargo of the prize ship "St. Anthony," recently captured and "sent in here" by the privateers "Pandour," "George," and "Warren," of Philadelphia, the "Defiance" of Rhode Island, and the "Dragon" of New York. The ship is to be sold on April 13; "she is a likely pink sterner Ship, about 140 Tons, well found, and is almost new."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 30, 1747. See Sept. 26, 1745; June 6, 1746.
- There is advertised for sale at public vendue, on April 6, "at Turtle Bay," the prize ship "La Fleur," now lying there, recently captured and "sent in here" by the privateer brig "Greyhound" (Capt. Jefferies); "Burthen about 400 Tons, 20 Carriage Guns, a prime Sailor, and almost new; together with all her Tackle and Apparel: An Inventory . . . at the Merchants' Coffee House."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 30, 1747.
- A petition for Gov. Clinton from "Several of his Majesty's Loyal Subjects & Freemen of this flourishing City of New York," asking for relief against the encroachments of out-of-town workmen upon those of this city, is read in council, and referred to a committee for investigation.—Cal. Coun. Min., 363. It states that inhabitants of neighbouring provinces, particularly the Jerseys, "make a practice of coming into this City after the laying of Our Taxes yearly, there to exercise their several handcraft Trades such as Carpenters Bricklayers, &c., undermining Us, the ancient Freemen of the a<sup>d</sup> [aforesaid] City, by offering the Services of themselves, Journey-men, & Servants," at various times and places, at the rate of £20 or £30 per job (or distinct act of workmanship) less "than has been agreed for by us . . ." The names of about 100 petitioners are inscribed at the end of this petition.—From a manuscript copy or duplicate of the petition, filed with the Horsmanden Papers (pp. 175-77) in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. The document is endorsed in Horsmanden's handwriting: "Report upon it verbally 10 April 1747. Advised the Govt to give for answer to the petitioners that they should pursue the ordinary & regular method prescribed by the Law of the City." See also Cal. Coun. Min., 364. A complaint of this sort occurred again on Aug. 24, 1766 (q. v.), in a petition to the common council.
- "By Vessels from the West Indies we have an Account, that Capt. Troup, in the Privateer Brig Hester [see Nov. 30, 1746], of this Port, had lately met with a Danish Vessel which had a Spanish Merchant with 8,000 pieces of 8, on board; Capt. Troup thought proper to accept of the Money, and paying the Dane his Freight very civilly dismissed him."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 6, 1747.
- The assembly orders that "the Commissioners for building the Governour's House in the Fort [see June 27, 1745], do lay before this House, as soon as may be, the charge hitherto incurred on the same, and an Estimate of what further may be wanting to complete the said Building."—Assemb. Jour., II: 144. On April 15, the committee submitted an account, wherein it appeared they were "in advance" the sum of £175:0:5.—Ibid., See Oct. 23, 1747.
- Samuel Johnson writes from Stratford, Conn., to Cadwallader Colden in part as follows: "I am glad to find by your Gazettes, that you are at length resolved to have a College in your Government. This is what, I doubt not, you have much at heart, & I heartily wish Success to it, & shall willingly correspond with you in any thing in my little power that may tend to promote it, & wish it may take Effect speedily that you may not suffer the Jersey College, (which will be a fountain of Nonsense), to get ahead of it."—From the original letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. In 1754, Johnson became first president of Kings (now Columbia) College. See Oct. 23, 1752.
- The Virginia company of newly raised levies, commanded by 18 Capt. Beverly Robinson, embarks on a sloop for Albany, and sets sail.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 20, 1747.
- "Order'd . . . a Committee to View the House on the Church's 21

1747 farm in Which their Tennant sow Lives and also the Ground near
Apr. the Bowling Green [see Pls. 27, 32, Vol. II, which Washes away 21 with the Raios And to agree with the Said Tennant for Repairing the Said House and preventing the Ground Washing away . . ."
—Trin. Min. (MS.).

24 Gov. Clinton addresses a lengthy message to the assembly, reviewing in detail his efforts to defend the frontiers, in the course of which he observes: "Your declining eyev Experience that seems necessary for the Security of the British Colonies in North-America, and the well-being of this Province at this Time, and the disrespectful Behaviour to me (such as was never shewn to any Governor in Chief, before me in this Place) . . . that I am laid under a Necessity . . . to speak out some Things, which otherwise, I should have thought prudent to conceal . . ."—Assemb. Jour., II: 145-48. See May 19, and Oct. 9.

25 An advertisement aiming to secure the capture of a run-away Indian lad, 18 years old, belonging to Capt. Abraham Kip, describes the clothes he wears, and mentions "an iron riog about his neck and one about his leg, with a chain from one to the other."
—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 25, 1747.

May 2 The council accepts an agreement, signed by David Clarkson, Paul Richard, Joseph Haynes, John McEvers, John Livingston, and Robert R. Livingston, to furnish the provincial government £5,500 sterling (£9,075 New York currency). Difficulties arose on May 5 about this money, promised by New York merchants, and time for drawing the bills of exchange to be taken by them was extended to 90 days.—Cal. Coun. Min., 364.

3 In addition to the news, received May 2, of the refusal of Capt.
Tiebout's company and others to march to Saratoga, the council is informed by letter from Col. Peter Schuyler that Jersey troops are mutinous, in both cases for want of pay.—Cal. Coun. Min., 364.

15 Proceedings are begun to establish a public ferry between New York and Staten Island. Otto van Tyle (Tuyt) and others petition the provincial authorities against granting a patent to Jacob de Hart for a ferry between their land and the river, as well as for the land between high- and low-water mark (on Staten Island). On Sept. 30, 1748, Van Tyle issued a caveat against granting a ferry in front of his lands.—Cal. Land Papers, 252. On Nov. 24 (q. v.), Solomon Comes asked that his ferry between New York City and Staten Island be declared a public ferry.—Ibid., 252. On Dec. 31, the petition of De Hart was tabled.—Cal. Coun. Min., 367.

On Jan. 12, 1748, the petition of Comes was again heard, as well as the objections of Staten Island inhabitants who claimed that they would be excluded from the benefit of ferrying from their own lands.—Ibid., 372; Cal. Land Papers, 252. Finally, on March 17, 1749, ferry rights were granted to Comes, and a table of fees was ordered prepared.—Cal. Coun. Min., 372. The success of this venture is doubtful, for the corporation of the city of New York, nearly ten years later, found it necessary to establish a Staten Island ferry of its own.—See Jan. 16, 1755.

18 "We have Advice that the Ship Prince Charles of this Port, John Bryant, Master [see April 10, 1746], was lost in a Storm in the Harbour of Loughorn, the Day before she was to set Sail for this Place; the Cargo, Sails and Rigging were sav'd."—N. Y. Post-Boy,
May 18, 1747.

"Henry Moore advertises that he will open a school on June 8,
"In Dock Street, at the Corner of Broad-street, over against Mr.
Depeyster's." Besides "Reading, Writing, Arithmetick," he proposes to teach surveying and "Navigation in its three kinds, viz.
Plain Mercator and Great Circle Sailing, Astronomy and Dialling."
—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 18, 1747.

"In the House, at the back Part of Mr. Benson's Brew House is proposed to be opened on Monday next, a School to teach young Ladies Reading and Writing, all sorts of Needle Work and making of artificial Flowers; for further Particulars enquire of the Printer hereof."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 18, 1747.

"To be Sold at the Corner House, opposite to the City Hall, in this City, several Sorts of Bibles and other good Books, hard Ware, Chests of Drawers, Desks and Tables, several sorts of Stockings, and other Dry Goods, at a reasonable Price for ready Mooney; by Charles Gilmor."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 18, 1747.

19 The governor, in his message of April 24 (q. v.), having "charged the House, with neglecting to provide for the Safety of the Colony, with treating him with Disrespect; and insinuating a Suspicion, that there are Schemes concerted between the principal Traders and richest Men in Albany, and the Enemy, for obstructing any Enterprize against Canada," the assembly, on that day, resolved "that an humble Representation be presented to his Excellency, in Answer thereto."—Assemb. Jour., II: 148. This representation is now agreed to, and entered in the Journal, on May 19. It denies any intention of giving offence by "our humble Address of the 16th of April," and reviews in much detail the intentions and desires heretofore entertained by the house, particularly with reference to the defence of the frontiers. Aiming to prove that its appropriations have been liberal, the remonstrance states, among other things, that the assembly has "provided for rebuilding the Governor's House, that had been destroyed by the late Conspirators, and a noble Edifice was erected according to a Plan approved by your Excellency, and is almost finished, at a very great Expence, in a Time when the Colony is not in a Condition well to afford it; but the great Desire the Assembly had to make your Excellency, and Family, easy, rendered all Objections against erecting that Building, of no Weight; and until that be fitted for your Excellency's Reception, a good Habitation, with all suitable Conveniences for your Accommodation, has been provided at the Expence of the Colony: Thus much with Regard to your Excellency, whereby we rest assured it is manifest, that the Assembly have given repeated Proofs of their Respect towards you; and we beg Leave to say, that Actions and not Words, are the infallible Language, and best betoken the Sincerity of the Heart."—Ibid., II: 151; and see Oct. 23. The extensive fortifications erected in New York City are also mentioned:

"The considerable Sums granted by the Assembly, for erecting new Batteries and a Line of Stockados a-cross, from River to River, with Block-houses at convenient Distances, and for repairing the old Fortifications in and about this City, under the Inspection of Committees, of the Gentlemen of the Council and Assembly, with your Excellency's Approbation, for putting this Place into a good Posture of Defence, and which beyond what it was before;
for the purchasing Gun-powder (no inconsiderable Article) and purchasing, making and repairing Carriages for the Cannon, and other Implements of War of lesser Note, which were found to be wanting and necessary; moreover the providing a Fund of, Forty Thousand Pounds, merely for carrying on the Expedition, which by the large Bounty granted and given, viz. Nine Pounds, a Mac, to every one that would enlist upon that Service, and the victualling the sixteen Companies of the new Levies of 100 Men each, raised under that Encouragement, is now near exhausted; these, as we humbly conceive, are not only Demonstrations of our Duty and Loyalty to his Majesty, but also, so many irrefragable Proofs of the Reality and Sincerity of our Intentions, of taking Care of ourselves at this Time; and if after all, your Excellency cannot, upon cool Reflection, think them so; we fear we must be so unhappy, as to despair of giving you Satisfaction on that Head.

"But with Submission to your Excellency, we have not only sufficiently demonstrated our Intentions of taking Care of ourselves; but your Excellency may be pleased to remember, that the Assembly granted a liberal Contribution to our Neighbours of the Massachusetts Government, towards carrying on the Expedition against Cape-Breton; and paid all the Charges of transporting from New-York, ten Pieces of battering Cannon, Carriages, &c. to be employed by the New-England Forces, in the Siege of that Place; and we were extremely rejoiced to hear of the signal Service they did, and the Success that attended them, and thought our Money well employed.

"We wish we could say, the large Sums which have been expended by this Colony, from Time to Time, in making Fortifications, had been properly employed likewise; but the Want of a skillful Engineer to make Draughts, and see the Work well performed, has, in our Opinion, occasioned a great deal of needless Expense . . ."—Ibid., II: 152-53.

The death occurs of Capt. William Walton, "a very eminent Merchant in this City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 25, 1747. His son, of the same name, built the well-known Walton house on Pearl St., one of the finest residences of the day.—Landmark Map Ref. Key,
III: 953; M. C. C., VIII: 459 (Index).

Cornelius Vanhorne advertises for sale "three good riding Chairs" (see May 28, 1744), "Just imported from Boston."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 25, 1747. Such conveyances were not yet made in New York.—See Jan. 22, 1750.

May 19

- 1747 Henry Moore advertises that, in "Dock-street, at the Corner of May Broad-street, over against Mr. Depeyster's," he "intends, God
 25 willing, to open School on Monday the eighth of June next.—
N. Y. Post-Boy, May 25, 1747. For a partial list of the early schoolmasters of New York, from 1659 to the Revolution, see Valentine, Hist. City of N. Y., 398.
- 27 A committee of the common council is appointed "to Order
 So Much of the Street Round the Bowling Green in the Broad Way and along the fence of the fort Garden to be paved as they Shall Think Convenient."—M. C. C., V: 193. See March 12, 1733-
 On March 24, 1748, the work was paid for.—Ibid., V: 219.
- " Fredrick Seabring is appointed by the common council "Keeper of the Poor House, Work House, and House of Correction of this City."—M. C. C., V: 193. See, further, March 21, 1750 (q.v.).
- June The managers of the college lottery (see Jan. 5) meet, as the 1 lottery act requires (see Dec. 6, 1746), at the city hall, with two clerks and two inspectors from the common council. A few drawings were made throughout the week of June 1, there being still a few tickets unsold. On June 15, the full schedule of drawings was published, the highest prize (£500) being drawn by Joseph Murray.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 1, and 8, 1747. The original record book (MS.) is still owned by Columbia Univ.
- 3 The common council meets at the house of Hugh Crawford.—
M. C. C., V: 194. This is because "his Majesty's Council" is to meet at the same time in the common council chamber. The Crawford house was near the city hall.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 15, 1747. For grant of the use of the common council chamber to the provincial council, see Oct. 19, 1736.
- 4 A committee of the common council reports for approval the draft of a petition to the governor, asking for "Relief at this present Juncture of and from the Great and Extraordinary Burthen and Difficulties that the Inhabitants of this City now Govern and Labour Under Occasioned by the Continual Night and Day Watches in his Majesty's fort in this City." One evil result of this military watch is that "many Inhabitants of the City have three or four Sons And as Many Servants and Apprentices and all those with themselves Are Obligated to Watch in their Turns which falls out or happens About Once in Every four or five Weeks the plain Consequence Whereof is the Loss of forty Shillings and Sometimes More to Every Such Inhabitant." As a remedy, it is suggested that one of the independent companies now at Albany or one of the companies of the new levies be ordered down.—
M. C. C., V: 196-97. See also June 7, On Oct. 1 (q.v.), a company of fusiliers arrived from Albany for this purpose.
- 7 Cadwallader Colden writes from New York to his wife in part as follows: "The Gov<sup>t</sup> has receiv'd an address from the Corporation of New York with compliments to him on his administration an account of which I expect will be in the News papers & has made a good deal of talk in this Town being so very different from what comes from the Assembly. What is remarkable in this address is that it comes from the Magistrates chosen by the People annually & the Mayor who is appointed by the Gov<sup>t</sup> went out of town & did not attend & they in the Opposition made the Deputy Mayor Drunk that he could not attend the common council at the time they had agreed to deliver their address" (of June 4, q.v.).—From the original draft of the letter, among Colden Papers in N. Y. Hist.
 Soc. For the address and Clinton's answer, see N. Y. Post-Boy,
 June 8, 1747.
- 9 In a proclamation, Gov. Clinton explains the exceptional dangers at this time in a threatened epidemic of small-pox. At present there is but one case in town; but, he says, "during the time the said Distemper lately prevailed in the City, the Inhabitants thereof were greatly distressed, such of the People living in the adjacent Counties, and in the neighboring Province, who had not that Distemper, being terrified from coming into the said City; and the Price of Provisions thereby considerably increased: Besides which, if the said Distemper should again become rife, it is probable at this Season of the Year it may be more Malignant and Mortal.
 And in case of an Invasion there would be a Necessity for the Assistance of the Inhabitants of the several Counties within this Province, of whom great Numbers have hitherto escaped the said Distemper, who may thereby be deterred from coming into the said City to assist in the Defence thereof. And whereas I have received Information, that some Person or Persons are lately come into this City, in order to be inoculated for the Small Pox [see June 8, Cal. Coun. Min., 365], which if not prevented, may be a - Means to spread that Distemper here again . . ." He therefore forbids physicians, surgeons, and others to inoculate for the small-pox any person in the city and county of New York, on pain of prosecution.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 15, 1747; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 583. See also March 25, 1731; and cf. Dec. 3, 1756.
- The governor informs the council that he proposes to set out 19 for Albany this evening in an endeavour to check the present desertion among the new recruits. He recommends caring for the poor of the city during his absence. If anything extraordinary should happen, the members of the council are to consult together over the necessary and expedient steps, and to inform him of subtraction by express. The governor has directed the post master to forward to Albany any dispatches directed to him and any correspondence which the council thinks proper to send.—From Horsmanden
Papers, 183, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- Gov. Clinton embarks on board a sloop and sets sail for Albany. 21
N. Y. Post-Boy, June 22, 1747.
- Gov. Clinton, in a report to the lords of trade, describes the 22 growing power of factions in the government of the province, and the design of Mr. DeLancey to gain control, so that "the Gov<sup>t</sup> shall be no more than the first Officer of the Council." He sees that the tendency will be "to lessen the Force of his Majesty's prerogative, and thereby the dependence on Great Britain." Clinton believes that the strength of the popular faction proceeds from his own imprudent act in making DeLancey chief-justice. He states that the distraction in government affairs in Cosby's administration arose from DeLancey's ambition to be chief-justice. Clinton now seeks the removal of DeLancey from that office through the king's immediate authority.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 352-57. On Feb. 24, 1749 (q.v.), DeLancey still held office. Lieut.-Gov. Colden, writing to the Earl of Halifax on Feb. 22, 1765, referred as follows to this error of Clinton in appointing DeLancey chief-justice: "After Mr DeLancey had by cajoling Mr Clinton received the Commission of Chief Justice during good behaviour, the Profession of the Law entered into an Association the effects of which I believe Your Lordship had formerly opportunity of observing some striking instances. They proposed nothing less to themselves than to obtain the direction of all the measures of Government, by making themselves absolutely necessary to every Governor in assisting him while he complied with their measures & by distressing him when he did otherwise. For this purpose every method was taken to aggrandise the power of the Assembly, where the profession of the law must allwise have great influence over the members, & to lessen the Authority & influence of the Governor . . . Their power is greatly strengthened by enlarging the powers of the popular side of government & by depreciating the powers of the Crown . . . All Associations are dangerous to good Government, more so in distant dominions, & Associations of lawyers the most dangerous of any next to Military."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 705.
 See July 24.
- The privateer brig "Revenge" (Capt. Alexander Troup) "is 24 completely fitted, and will sail in a few Days on a Cruise against his Majesty's Enemies."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 22, 1747.
- The privateer brig "Castor" (Capt. Arnold) "is fell down [toward Sandy Hook] in order to proceed on a Cruise."—Ibid.
- Gov. Clinton desires to return to England, and seeks the 24 appointment of Cadwallader Colden as lieutenant-governor.—
N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 377. For the reply of the home government, see Oct. 27.
- The council receives a letter from Gov. Shirley about a meeting 28 of commissioners at New York; and also decides upon the meeting of a general court for providing means to prosecute the expedition against Crown Point.—Cal. Coun. Min., 365.
- The council considers the subject of the disposal of troops to be Aug. 1 employed against Crown Point and Niagara.—Cal. Coun. Min., 365.
- Among the claimants for Trinity Church land, under the old 10 Bogardus claim, was a family named Browsers, who had "forcibly Enter'd" and "Detained" a certain portion of the Church Farm.
 The church-wardens now decide to demand possession, giving the Browsers liberty to take away "the House by them Erected if they think fit."—Trin. Min. (MS.). On Nov. 24, the committee appointed for this purpose reported that they had "possession delivered them of the Said House Built by the Brewers [Browsers] and . . . had caused the Same to be pulled down . . . The committee also Reported that they had Sent to the Browsers by the Sexton and also by Mr James Mills the Undersheriff that they

- 1747 Might have the Materials of the House by them Built if they would fetch it away And that they both Returned for Answer that they the Browsers would have Nothing to do with it.—Ibid. The differences between Trinity and the Browsers was eventually brought to trial in the supreme court.—See Oct. 27, 1760.
- 16 A "small Shock of an Earthquake" is felt at about four this morning by many of the inhabitants.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 17, 1747.
- 24 Gentlemen desiring to enlist for a cruise on the snow "Dragon" are requested to repair to Mr. Mark Valentine's on the new dock.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 24, 1747. This tavern probably stood near the foot of Wall St. On March 28, 1748, when a vendue was held here, the tavern was described as having the "Sign of the Griffin." See Sept. 3, 1744.
- 28 The Rev. Mr. Whitefield arrives from Boston, and preaches in the evening (Friday) in the "Presbyterian Meeting House." He preached again twice on Sunday, Aug. 30. On Aug. 31, he went to Long Island.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 31, 1747.
- 31 Gov. Jonathan Belcher, of New Jersey, comes to New York on a visit. On landing, he is "conducted by the Honourable Captain Clinton, our Governor's only Son, to his Excellency's House in Town," where he meets "his Excellency," and is "saluted by the Guns of the Fort," and then goes "to Dine with his Excellency at his House in Greenwich." In the evening, "he returned hither, and accepted of the Rev. Mr. Pemberton's Invitation to lodge, and during his stay in Town was complimented by Persons of the best Distinction, on his Majesty's repeated Favour in appointing him to the Government of New Jersey; and on Tuesday last [Sept. 8] he paid his Compliment of Leave to his Excellency the Governor, his Lady & Family, and waited on Lady Warren to wish her a happy Voyage to Great-Britain; Then return'd hither, and after Dining with the Honourable Mr. Livingston, went into Capt. Jefferies Barge, when he was again saluted by the Guns of the Fort, and by the Scarborough Man of War as he pass'd her, and we hear he got safe to his Government in the Evening."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 14, 1747. For Lady Warren's departure, see Sept. 30.
- " "To be Seen at the House of Mr. Hamilton Hewston, at the Sign of the Spread-Eagle, near White-Hall Slip, Punck's Opera, Bateman, or the Unhappy Marriage with a fine Dialogue between Punch and his Wife Joan, Acted by a Set of lively Figures late from Philadelphia. Also, a most curious Posture-Master Boy, late from Dublin, who performs with the utmost Dexterity, most surprizing Postures, transforming himself into a great number of various Shapes, together with a great variety of Tumbling, exceeding pleasant and diverting; and many other Curiosities too tedious to mention, by Richard Brickell and Richard Moseley." Tickets are from 2s. 6d. to 1s., "according to Situation," and the opera begins at 7 o'clock.—Suppl. to N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 31, 1747.
- Sept. 1 It is ordered that the committee of the common council appointed (M. C. C., V: 191) "to cause the Common Sewer Under the Exchange at the Lower End of the Broad Street to be Arched with Stone and the floor Laid with flat Stones" shall also cause "the Great Dock and the Long Bridge over the Same Common Sewer to be Repaired."—Ibid., V: 199.
- 4 Gov. Shirley of Massachusetts sends to the governor and council a copy of his commission appointing Samuel Welles, Robert Hale, and Oliver Partridge delegates to the meeting of commissioners to be held at New York (see July 28).—Cal. Coun. Min., 366. See, further, Sept. 11.
- 7 A horse-race is advertised to be run on Oct. 11, for a purse of not less than 10 pistoles, "by any Horse, Mare or Gelding that never won a Plate before on this Island, except a Horse called Parrot, carrying ten Stone, Saddle and Bridle included." Horses intended for the race "are to be entered the Day before the Race with Adam Van Denberg, living on the Church Farm." The entrance money is to be run for "by any of the Horses except the Winner, and those distanced."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 7, 1747. Regarding Van Denberg's tenancy of the Church Farm, see April 1, 1752. From the above advertisement, it seems likely that a race-course was part of this well-known resort at this period.
- 11 The council receives from Gov. Law of Connecticut a copy of his commission appointing Roger Wolcott, Thomas Fitch, and Benjamin Hall delegates to the gathering of commissioners to be held at New York. A memorial from the Massachusetts commissioners in regard to the powers of the New York delegates is referred to a committee.—Cal. Coun. Min., 366. See Sept. 12.
- Daniel Horsmanden, being suspended from the council, demands the reason.—Cal. Coun. Min., 366. Soon after, Stephen Bayard was also suspended.—Ibid., 367. These two dismissals were the outcome of the bitter political wrangle between Gov. Clinton and Chief-Justice De Lancey.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 528.
- The governor and council prepare a commission for the New York commissioners to the congress of delegates to be held in this city, granting to them the same powers as those given to the Massachusetts and Connecticut delegates by their respective governors (see Sept. 4 and 11). Horsmanden's name is left out.—Cal. Coun. Min., 366. See, further, Sept. 22.
- Draughts of instructions to the commissioners for the meeting at New York (Philip Livingston and Joseph Murray of the council, and William Nicoll, Philip Verplanck, and Henry Cruger, of the assembly) are read and amended by the council, requiring them to confer on measures for the encouragement of the Six Nations.—Cal. Coun. Min., 366.
- Clinton suspends Horsmanden from the supreme court bench, and as city recorder.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 404.
- Clinton writes to the lords of trade: "Popular faction and power are become so very prevalent not only in this, but in all the Northern Colonies, that unless some extraordinary assistance be given to his Majesty's Gov<sup>ts</sup> to suppress it, I am humbly of opinion it will not be in the power of Gov<sup>ts</sup> to support his Majesty's Authority."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 379; see, further, 395, 400, 411, 412-13, 414.
- Edward Holland is appointed mayor by Gov. Clinton.—M. C. C., V: 201. See Sept. 12. He was installed on Oct. 14.—Ibid., 204-5. He was continued in office until his death, on Nov. 10, 1756 (q. v.).—Ibid., V: 232, 273, 309, 348, 380, 418, 464; VI: 35. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 409.
- Over the protest of the members, Gov. Clinton adjourns the assembly until Oct. 5, because he has not received reports from the commissioners of the several provinces regarding the agreement for prosecuting the war.
- On Oct. 6, the house passed a resolution to the effect that the delay in making arrangements for the defense of the frontiers was due to "the late frequent Adjournments and Prorogations of the House, by his Excellency."—Assemb. Jour., II: 168-69. On the same day the governor sent a message to the assembly, together with the agreement (see Oct. 1, Cal. Coun. Min., 367) entered into by the commissioners of New York, Massachusetts Bay, and Connecticut, concerning the number of men and the supplies needed on the northern frontiers. He urged also that presents be sent the Indians, especially the sachems, then in New York, to gain their fidelity. He claimed that he had, "at a very great Expence to the Crown," recovered and preserved the affections of the Six Nations, but could not and would not continue this charge to the crown. He proposed that the province take over into its pay the forces levied for the Canadian expedition, which are now so "lessed by Death and Desertion" that they number no more than the allotment assigned to New York.
- The house, having considered his message, returned an answer on Oct. 8. They agreed to all necessary provisions for the defence of the frontiers; they resolved to make a proper present to the eight sachems in New York; but they questioned the use the governor had made of the "large Draughts on the Crown" for Indian presents during the past summer, and were persuaded he had no order from the king to curtail such expenditure; however, they appropriated £800 for this purpose lest "his Excellency's Failure in that Respect, should cause a Defection" among the Indians. They asked, also, what provision had been made for "Saragotoga," concerning which the governor made no mention in his message. Clinton's reply was peremptory (see Oct. 9, 1747); he would consider nothing but what related to his message. Afterwards there would be "Time enough to go about any other Matters."—Assemb. Jour., II: 171-73.
- The "Lady of the Honourable Sir Peter Warren" embarks on board H. M. S. "Scarborough" for Great Britain.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 5, 1747. This evidently was Lady Warren's final departure from America.—See Dec. 4, 1746, and July 29, 1752.
- The council refers to the assembly an agreement made by the commissioner of the colonies, in session at New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 367. See Sept. 30.
- "Last Week one of the Independent Companies of Fusileers [see June 4] arrived here from Albany, in order to take Care

- 1747 his Majesty's Fort in this City, to the great Relief of many of the Oct. Inhabitants thereof, with respect to the military Watch."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 5, 1747.
- 2 The council considers the defence of the frontiers and preserving the Six Nations in their allegiance. The next day a paper on this subject was laid before the council by Mr. Livingston.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 367.
- " A manuscript essay, "Shewing the duty and office of Vestrymen of this City," is presented to the common council by "the Vestrymen of this City for the year 1746." It is read by the common council, and, "being Willing to Encourage Words of this Kind," the board orders that it be printed, and appoints a committee "to Agree with a Printer to Print fifty Copies . . . and to Correct the proof Sheets thereof."—M. C. C., v. 202. On Dec. 1, James Parker, the printer chosen, delivered the 50 copies, which he had printed at the agreed sum of £4, and a warrant was issued to pay him. The title of the essay was A Guide to the Vestry.—Ibid., v. 213. No copy has been located.—Evans, Am. Bibliography, 333.
- 9 Gov. Clinton, in a message to the assembly, states that he will not receive their reply of Oct. 8 because it is not confined to the discussion of matters referred to in his message of Oct. 6 (see Sect. 30). Upon receiving this communication, the assembly orders that "the Door be locked, and the Key he laid on the Table, that no Member depart until the House resolve what is proper to be done on the subject Matter of a Message of so extraordinary a Nature."—Assemb. Jour., II: 173. This was a parliamentary procedure followed only on very critical occasions. The assembly thereupon passed several resolutions, one of which stated that "whoever advised his Excellency to send this Message, has attempted to undermine and infringe the Rights and Privileges of this House; to violate the Liberties of the People; to subvert the Constitution of this Colony; and is an Enemy to the Inhabitants thereof."—Ibid., II: 173. After considerable deliberation, a committee was appointed to serve the governor with "the humble Remonstrance of this House on the present State and Condition of the Colony."—Ibid., II: 180. The meeting with the governor, which took place the same day (Ibid., II: 180), is thus described: "his Excellency was then acquainted by him [Mr. Clarkson], that the Committee were ordered by the House, to wait on his Excellency, with their humble Remonstrance; and that upon his offering to read it, he was not permitted, nor would his Excellency suffer it to be left with him."—Ibid., II: 192. See Oct. 24.
- 23 The assembly allows the commissioners of fortifications £175 "for what they are in advance [see April 14, 1747] on account of the House erected in Fort-George, for the Residence of the Governors of this Colony, as per Account delivered the 15th of April, 1747."—Assemb. Jour., II: 191. The sum of £600 is granted to complete this building.—Ibid., II: 191. See May 19, 1747.
- 24 On Oct. 24, Gov. Clinton forwarded the following order to James Parker, printer to the general assembly: "I do hereby in his Majesty's Name, expressly forbid you, or any other Person in this Province, to re-print, or otherwise publish, the said Paper, called, a Remonstrance of the General Assembly of this Province, as you and they, shall answer the same at your and their Peril."—Ibid., II: 192-93. In accordance with the governor's command, Parker printed this order in his issue of the Post-Boy of Oct. 26. On the following day, obedient to the demand of the assembly, Parker appeared before the house. This body then passed several resolutions, one of which stated that "his Excellency's Order to forbid the printing or re-printing the said Remonstrance, is unwarrantable, arbitrary and illegal, and not only an open and manifest Violation of the Privileges of this House but also of the Liberty of the Press." In conclusion, the house resolved that "Mr Speaker's ordering the said Remonstrance to be printed with the Votes and Proceedings of this house, is regular."—Ibid., II: 193. The governor and the assembly continued their controversy until the dissolution of the house on Nov. 25 (q.v.). See also Gitterman's chapter on "George Clinton and his contest with the assembly," in Wilson's Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 269 passim.
- 26 Augustus Vaughan announces that "A School is open'd in New-street, near the Corner of Beaver-street, where English, Latin, French, Spanish and Italian, are correctly and expeditiously taught."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 26, 1747. French and Spanish had been taught in New York as early as July 21, 1735 (q.v.).
- 27 The Duke of Newcastle grants Gov. Clinton a leave of absence which the latter had requested, but also forwards a commission appointing De Lancey as lieutenant-governor, to be given to De Lancey when Clinton leaves New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 416-17. This appointment is directly opposed to the governor's wishes.—See July 24. For his reply, see Feb. 13, 1748. The commission was not delivered to De Lancey until Oct. 10, 1753.—See events related under Oct. 6, 1753.
- A published warning concerning counterfeit New Jersey fifteen shilling bills states that the genuine bills are printed from common types on a printing-press, while the counterfeit bills are from a copperplate.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 2, 1747.
- Solomon Comes petitions the provincial authorities that his ferry between Staten Island and New York may be declared a public ferry. This was renewed on Nov. 2 and Dec. 7, 1748.—Cal. Land Papers, 252; Cal. Coun. Min., 372. See May 15.
- A provincial act is passed for raising £28,000 by a tax on real and personal estates, "for defraying the Expence of Several Services necessary for the Defence of the Frontiers and Annoyance of the Enemy;" also for emitting short term bills of credit for this amount.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 660. A tax of £50,000 was laid on July 15, 1746 (q.v.).
- A provincial statute is enacted to prevent private lotteries. This action is taken because "Several Persons of late have Set on Foot and opened private Lotteries within this Colony, which being under no Restrictions by Law, are attended with pernicious Consequences to the publick by encouraging Numbers of Labouring People to Assemble together at Taverns where Such Lotteries are usually Set on Foot."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 675-76.
- Gov. Clinton dissolves the assembly in a message in which reads in part as follows: "Your continued grasping at Power, with an evident Tendency to the Weakening of the Dependency of this Province, on Great-Britain, accompanied with such notorious and publick Disrespect to the Character of your Governor, and Contempt of the King's Authority intrusted with him, cannot be longer hid from your Superiors."—Assemb. Jour., II: 202-5. For the assembly's reply, see Dec. 15, 1747.
- The following extract from a letter written by a gentleman of one of the neighbouring colonies to a friend in New York, is published: "The violent party Spirit that appears in all the Votes, &c. of your Assembly, seems to me extremely unseasonable, as well as unjust; and to threaten Mischief, not only to you selves, but to your Neighbours. It begins to be plain, that the French may reap great Advantages from your Divisions: God grant they may be as blind to their own Interest, and as negligent of it, as the English are of theirs."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 21, 1747.
- Candidates for the general assembly,—the recent members, David Clarkson, Major Cornelius van Horne, Capt. Paul Richard, and Henry Cruger—publish a notice, addressed "To the Freeholders and Freemen of the City and County of New York," asking for their votes at the next election.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 6, 1747. Doubtless this is an appeal for public confidence, in view of Clinton's published notice of Oct. 24 (q.v.). They were duly returned.—Ibid., Feb. 15, 1748.
- "Cornelius Van Denbergh, as Albany Post, designs to set out for the first Time this Winter, on Thursday next: All Letters to go by him, are desired to be sent to the Post Office, or to his House near the Spring Garden."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 6, 1747. The house of Adam van Denbergh was near the old farm house formerly attached to the King's Farm, and stood on the site of the later Astor House. He was, apparently, still in occupation of these premises in 1770, when a petition was made to erect a liberty pole on the site of the old one, or "opposite M<sup>r</sup> Van Denberghs near S<sup>t</sup> Pauls Church a small distance from where the two Roads meet."—Original MS. in file No. 44, city clerk's record-room. Van Denbergh died before the great fire of Sept. 21, 1776, but his house was still standing, and was not destroyed, according to the Diary of Ezra Stiles (II: 83-84), who says it stood "at the corner of Berceley-street." Cornelius van Denbergh, probably a son of Adam van Denbergh, later became proprietor of the old Bulls Head Tavern on the Bowery. See also Oct. 11, 1742; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981.
- Under this date there is recorded "A Letter from some of the Representatives in the late General Assembly of the Colony of New-York, to his Excellency Governor C——n. Principally in Answer to his Message of the 13th of October last, and his Dissolution Speech." It is a defense of the assembly for the session now closed, and attacks the governor.—Assemb. Jour., II: 206-21.

1747 The advertisement of a scrivener reads: "Writings relating to Dec. law and trade, &c., done by an elderly man who has practiced these 21 branches many years in this city and other places . . ." He gives notice that "he attends at Mrs. Boardet's, next door to Mr. Latouche's, on King street, to write for lawyers, merchants, executors of wills, &c., such writings as they have not time, or will not take the trouble, or have not ability to do."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 21, 1747.

22 Daniel Bloom, formerly proprietor of the Merchants Coffee House, on Wall and Water Sts., secures the lease of the ferry to Long Island and the ferry-houses for a period of five years from March 25, 1748.—M. C. C., V: 215, 219. He was unsuccessful in this venture, and in July, 1750, transferred his lease to Andrew Ramsey.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 16, 1750. After Bloom's death, which occurred between Nov. 5, 1750, and Apr. 26, 1751, the city corporation permitted the executors of his estate to settle for £50 the arrears still due on the rent of the ferry.—M. C. C., V: 314, 333, 339.

28 Notice is given that the mayor has the sole right to grant licenses to tavern-keepers and retailers of liquors within the city. No person has a right to retail liquors either within or without doors without such license.—M. C. C., V: 215.

1748

— Some time prior to this year, the Horse and Manger Tavern was erected.—Liber Deeds, XV: 31 (Albany). This tavern stood at the south-east corner of Nassau and Spruce Sts. Edward Willett, its proprietor, advertised it as "near the Slaughter House . . . where all Gentlemen (that put up) may depend upon due Attendance for themselves and Horses."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 15, 1749. On Nov. 12, 1750 (q. v.), it belonged to Edward Broomhead. By the year 1786, it was known as the Coach House (Liber Deeds, LV: 61, New York). Abraham B. Martling took it before 1796, keeping here also the "New Theatre."—The Minerva, & Merc. Eve. Advertiser, June 3, 1796. It was long known as "Martling's," and in the "long room" met a society known as "Martling-Men"—a branch of the Republican (later Democratic) party, who were also known as the Clintonians.—Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., III: 288. Martling sold the place in 1817.—Liber Deeds, CXIX: 545 (New York); ibid., CXXII: 297. The site is now covered by the building of the American Tract Society. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

— A description of New York City in this year reads as follows: "As this Town stands upon an Eminence, and contains upwards of a thousand Houses well built with Brick and Stone, with a Wall and Forts, which serve as well for Ornament as Defence, there is scarce any Town in North America that makes a better, and but a very few so good an Appearance. It has also an excellent Harbour, furnished with commodious Quays and Warehouses, and employs some hundreds of Ships and Vessels in its foreign Trade and Fisheries. The public Buildings are the several Churches belonging to those of the Church of England, to the Swedes of the Lutheran Persuasion, to the Dutch Calvinists, the French Refugees, and the English Sectaries; but the church of England may well be looked upon as the established Religion, because the Constitution of the Government is the same as in England; the rest, however, are tolerated, and capable of Posts in the Government, and of sitting in the House of Representatives, as I apprehend. The other public Buildings are the Town House, and that where their general Assemblies and Courts of Justice are held. As to their Fortifications, they are not, I doubt, capable of defending them against an European Enemy, any more than those in the rest of the Plantations, for this unanswerable Reason; because they were some Years ago confessed to be so bad, that it was not fit to enquire into the State of them, lest Foreigners should be acquainted with our Weakness on that Side."—From Navigantium atque Itinerantium Bibliotheca, or A Complete Collection of Voyages and Travels, etc., by John Harris (1744-8), II: 281.

— Jacob Dyckman, Jr., and his brother-in-law, Adolph Benson, buy from George Dyckman 20 acres of land adjoining the highway (Kingsbridge Road), to the rear of the Benson Point farm, which they divide into two tracts of ten acres each.—See Riker, Hist. of Harlem (ed. of 1881), 506n. The land occupied by Dyckman was in the neighbourhood of the present 10th St., in Central Park, about on the line of Sixth (Lenox) Ave. On part of it he built a stone house, which for several years he conducted as the Black Horse Tavern. During the epidemic of small-pox in 1752, Dyckman's house was made the meeting-place of the assembly.—Assemb. Jour., II: 329; N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 29, Oct. 23, 1752. In March, 1756, Dyckman offered his house for sale.—N. Y. Merc., March 8, 1756.

In 1756, he sold this house and some ground to Andrew McGown (not to Mrs. Daniel McGown, as has been stated by Riker in his History, but to her son).—From James Riker's memo. from a deed in the possession of the late Isaac Adriaens; cf. a mortgage, McGown to Benson, May 3, 1757, recorded in Liber Mortgages, I: 52 (New York). Undoubtedly the widow McGown, whose husband, Captain Daniel, was lost at sea, and her son Andrew kept the tavern together. It was, says Riker (p. 490), "a favourite resort, before and during the war, of gentlemen coming from the city with their hounds to indulge in the sport of fox-hunting."

This possession by the McGown family gave to the slight valley between rolling heights at this point the name of McGown's Pass, which it still bears. The widow and her son kept tavern here for several years longer, but on Colles's Map of 1789 (Pl. 51, Vol. V), the inn is called Legget's.

The property remained in the possession of the McGown family until 1845, when one Odell purchased the land and building then upon it; he sold it April 1, 1847, to Elizabeth Boyle (Sister Elizabeth of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul). The place became known as Mount St. Vincent, and occupied at first the rather modest frame dwelling which had succeeded the old stone tavern. From time to time, however, several wings were added, and the property much improved and beautified. "Lastly, in 1855, a stately brick edifice, containing a beautiful chapel and large dining-rooms, completed the group of academic buildings."—6th Ann. Report, Am. Scenic and Hist. Pres. Soc., 429 et seq. The Academy of Mt. St. Vincent was removed, in 1858, to an estate bought of Edwin Forrest, the actor, at Font Hill, on the banks of the Hudson, where the institution now remains. The Sisters of Charity, however, during the Civil War, opened and maintained a military hospital in the old buildings in Central Park.

The coming of Central Park, its bounds having been extended beyond 106th Street by the Act of 1853, led to the acquisition for the city of the Academy grounds and buildings by the commissioners of estimate and assessment in 1856. After the Civil War, the commissioners (Oct. 19, 1866) leased this property to Alexander McC. Stetson, who thereafter maintained the place as a roadhouse or place of refreshment to those visiting the park. From 1872 until 1881, the place, often still called Stetson's, was run by Radford & Ryan.

On Jan. 2, 1881, fire broke out in the frame building used as a hotel, and soon destroyed both this and the near-by brick building which had been maintained as an art gallery. The recent hotel in the park, known as McGown's Pass Tavern, was built in 1883.—See Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall's McGown's Pass and Vicinity.

The Presbyterians are obliged to "enlarge the old Church," originally built in 1719 (q. v.). They now "erect and complete" a stone edifice, 80 feet long and about 60 feet wide, on ground on "the North-easterly side of Wall-Street," measuring in front and rear 88 feet, and about 120 feet in length, English measure.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (410 ed.), III: 301; Case of the Scotch Presbyterians (N. Y., 1773), 16. The steeple, raised on the south-west end, was 145 feet high. On the front, between two long windows, on a strip of black slate six feet long, was cut in gold letters the following inscription, in Latin of somewhat questionable purity:

AUSPICANTO DEO
HANC AEDEM
CULTUI DIVINO SACRAM
IN PERPETUUM CELEBRANDO,
AD. MDCCXIX.
PRIMO FUNDATAE;
DENUO PENITUS REPARATAE
ET AMPLIOREM ET ORNATIOREM
AD. MDCCXLVIII CONSTRUCTAM,
NEO-EBORACANSES PRESBYTERIANI
IN SUUM ET SUORUM USUM CONDENTES,
IN HAC VOTIVĀ TABĀLĀ
* * *

1748

1748

DDDQ.
CONCORDIA, AMORE
NECNON FIDEI CULTUS ET MORUM
PURITATE
SUFFULTA, CLARIUSQUE EXORNATA, ANNUENTE CHRISTO,
LONGUM PERDURET IN AEVUM.

—From Smith, Hist. of the Province of N. Y. (1757), 192-93. The steeple had a bell in it.—See Peter Kalm's notes, Oct. 30, 1748. This edifice was torn down in 1810, and another erected in its place (see March 21, 1810).—Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches of N. Y., 128, 134; Miller, Memoir of Rev. John Rodgers (1813), 145. For later history of the site, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 931.

Jan. 18 The conduct of the assembly towards Gov. Clinton is discussed at length in a published article written by "a Freeholder." The writer finds the heavy charge against the governor to be "the Converting to his own use, the public Money of this Province, with which he was intrusted;" on the other hand the governor claims that, because of the failure of the assembly to advance money for the forces at Albany, he has "risqued the whole of his Estate," in drawing bills to pay the forces, and that he was willing, at any time, to pass a bill or clause to prevent embezzlement of the public money. The writer reminds the assembly that, during the recent campaign, provisions in large quantities were condemned as unfit "to be eat; yet this cost the Country the same Price with the Good." He warns the assembly that "Rumour and Report was a fine Engine to throw Dirt upon a Governor;" but those not assembly men might "think it as proper an Implement against Assemblymen Commissioners."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 18, 1748.

29 The common council orders "that the Neighbourhood of the Meal Market in this City have Leave at their own Expence to make and Erect a Dock and Stairs for the Conveniency of the ferry Boat which is to Land there in such manner as the same shall be directed by . . ." (a committee of aldermen and assistants).—M. C. C., V: 217. For earlier mention of this ferry, see Feb. 28, 1738; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 942.

Feb. 12 In a message to the assembly, Gov. Clinton asks for the payment "of the Rent to the first of May next, of the House" where he resided, "till the House in the Fort was put in a proper Condition." He also recommends the "compleating of the House in the Fort; the building of Stables," and such other conveniences as are necessary for his accommodation.—Assemb. Jour., II: 223.

13 Gov. Clinton, replying to the Duke of Newcastle, acknowledges the receipt of a leave of absence. The governor protests against the appointment of James de Lancey as lieutenant-governor and begs that he be allowed to withhold it.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 416-17, 431. De Lancey's appointment was not delivered until after the arrival of the next governor, Sir Danvers Osborn.—See Oct. 6, 1753.

15 "To be Sold. A Corner Lot of Ground, fronting Anne-Street, commonly called the Cart and Horse Street . . . ; it fronts also a small Street facing Mr. Bohanna's Door . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 15, 1748. Horse and Cart Street was the present William Street. The designation Anne Street is not known in records of the period, and probably was a casual, local application for a block on William Street.—Cf. Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1012.

18 The subject of settling the boundary-line between the provinces of New York and New Jersey, which began June 30, 1686 (q. v.), is still in dispute.—See Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 586. For further references, in chronological order, extending the subject to 1757, see Assemb. Jour., II: 238, 241; N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1750; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 613, 614; Assemb. Jour., II: 379-80, 393, 407, 410, 423; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 638, 643; Cal. Coun. Min., 399; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 647; Assemb. Jour., II: 470, 525-35. On the general subject, see Report of the Regents on N. Y. State boundaries, transmitted to the Legislature May 28, 1873.

19 Hereafter, any member who, after a summons to attend the common council has been given to him or to some white person of his family, does not appear within half an hour shall be fined 2 shillings, 6 pence (see June 9, 1697); if he fails altogether to attend, he shall be fined 5 shillings.—M. C. C., V: 218.

Mar. 1 A public vendue is to be held on this day of the "House and Ground now in Possession of Agnes Minott, known by the Sign of the White-Swan, situate near the Ferry-Stairs." Applications are to be made to Nicholas van Dam or William Cockeroff.—Mar. N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 15, 1748. The sign suggests that the house was a tavern, but there is no further record to substantiate this assumption.

After repeated requests by Pennsylvania for the loan of cannon, the provincial council of New York assents.—Cal. Coun. Min., 368, 369.

The common council orders the issuance of a warrant to pay Henry Bogert £8:13, as balance of his account "for Laying the pavement at the Lower End of the Broadway," in addition to a payment to Brandt Schuyler of £59:11:1, advanced by him on the same account.—M. C. C., V: 219.

The common council gives to Jacobus Ryckman "a Spot of Ground in the City Common for a Brick Kiln."—M. C. C., V: 219.

Near midnight, the Brooklyn ferry-house, barn, and stable (the property of the corporation of the city of New York) are entirely destroyed by fire. As soon as the blaze was noticed from the Manhattan side of the river, "many of the Inhabitants made the best of their Way thither with one of the Engines."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 4, 1748. See also Stiles, Hist. of Brooklyn, III: 525. For a view of the old ferry-house, see Pl. 25, Vol. I.

A law is passed appointing commissioners to examine and report on the public accounts of the colony of New York from 1713 to Sept. 1, 1750.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 692-94. This law is the outgrowth, probably, of charges of embezzlement made against Gov. Clinton. See Jan. 18.

An act is passed for raising £1,800 "by a Publick Lottery, for a further Provision towards Founding a College, for the Advancement of Learning within this Colony." The law is framed with practically the same provisions as the last one (see Dec. 6, 1746). The drawings are to begin Sept. 1.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 679. They, however, were not held owing to an insufficient number of subscribers to the tickets. Another act was therefore passed, on Oct. 28, reviving and continuing the act of April 9, the drawings to begin on Nov. 14.—Ibid., III: 731. See also April 20.

"The Philadelphia Post now puts up at Mr. Lewis's at the Sign of the Devonshire Man of War, near the White-Hall Slip."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 11, 1748. This tavern was still run by Capt. Lewis in 1754, and was described as opposite the house of Benjamin Nicholls.—Ibid., April 22, 1754. Benjamin Nicholls owned the Steenwyck house at Whitehall and Bridge Sts. See "King's Arms Tavern," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979.

Trinity vestry considers it "absolutely Necessary to Build a Chappel of Ease to Trinity Church," and appoints a committee, with one of the church-wardens, to select a proper location.—Trin. Min. (MS.). See May 3.

The terms of the new college lottery (see April 9) are published as a broadside or "Advertisement." One of these, now in the N. Y. Pub. Library, is reproduced as Pl. 35-A, Vol. IV. It shows that the lottery was to consist of 8,000 tickets, at 30s. each, 1,304 of which were to draw prizes. Instructions for the drawing, etc., are given. Two original lottery tickets, dated 1747 and 1753, are attached to this broadside. The date of the broadside is misprinted "April 20, 1748." See also N. Y. Post-Boy, June 13, Aug. 15 and 21, 1748; Jour. Leg. Coun., 1116.

The provincial council receives a petition from clergymen complaining that justices of the peace perform the marriage ceremony.—Cal. Coun. Min., 369.

"For the Entertainment of the Curious. To be shown, The most surprizing Effects of Phenomena, on Electricity of attracting, repelling, and Flemmies Force, particularly the new Way of Electrifying several Persons at the same Time, so that Fire shall dart from all Parts of their Bodies, as has been exhibited to the Satisfaction of the Curious, in all Parts of Europe. Electricity became all the Subject in Vogue; Princes were willing to see this new Fire which a Man produced from himself: And it thot' to be of Service in many Ailments. To be seen any Time of the Day, from 8 o'clock in the Morning till 9 at Night, provided the Weather proves dry, and no damp Air (a Company presenting) at the House of Mrs. Wilson, near the Weigh House, in New-York; where due Attendance is given by Mr. Richard Brickell."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 2, 1748.

The vestry of Trinity Church names a committee to purchase "a Lott of Ground of Mr Gomez and the three Lotts from Henry Brasier Contiguous thereto, and Such other Lotts as they shall

1748 think proper thereto Adjoining, near or Adjoining to the Garden May of the Late Doct<sup>r</sup> Dupuy . . . in order to erect a Chappell of 3 Ease to Trinity Church thereon.—Trin. Min. (MS.). Difference of opinion regarding desirability of location caused this proposal to fail.—Anstice, Hist. St. George's Church, 22. See, further, July 11.

" It is ordered by Trinity vestry "that So much of the Churches Ground Adjoining to the Lutheran Church as the Church Wardens shall think proper be Appropriated for Building a Charity School."
 —Trin. Min. (MS.). See also Nov. 7.

5 Francis Maerschalek, city surveyor, makes a survey and plan of Dye Street, which fixes the exact south line of the King's Farm.
 The original drawing is preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. What appears to be a copy of it, endorsed "Plan of Dye Street," and "Surveyed by Francis Marcellack City Surveyor New York May 12, 1748. Copied from one of Richard Varick, Esq<sup>r</sup> E. Bancker, is in the Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library. See also description of Pl. 46 A-b, I, 358.

June The provincial council receives an order in council regarding 6 three French prizes brought to New York by the privateer "Royal Catherine."—Cal. Coun. Min., 369.

" The provincial council orders that a copy of the report made by John Armstrong, engineer on the fortifications of the city, be laid before the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 369.

" "A Fair Trader" writes to James Parker: "I can't help being surprized, that you, who are as it were a Watchman to the Publick, should in this Time of Danger, keep silent.—Can it be unknown to you, that scarce a Week passes without an illicit Trader's going out or coming into this Port, under the specious Name of Flags of Truce, who are continually supplying and supporting our most avowed Enemies, to the great Loss and Damage of all honest Traders and true-hearted Subjects, and in direct Violation of all Law and good Policy? . . . Surely if any unprejudiced Strangers are among us, they must be very charitable, not to think us the most disloyal People to the best of Kings, and inveterate Destroyers of the best of Constitutions. . . . Let me beg you to sound the Alarm, and, if you can't do it, to invite some able Hand, to shew forth this monstrous Practice in its true Colours, that all may know what the real Consequences must be if not timely suppress'd;
 and how the whole Community, for the private Benefit of a few Mercenaries, must soon be ingulph'd in Ruin and Destruction."
 —N. Y. Post-Boy, June 6, 1748.

7 The freedom of the city is conferred upon Capt. John Burgess for bringing into port a French privateer which "infested" the coast.—M. C. C., V: 223-24. The draft of this freedom was entered in full in the Minutes on June 28.—ibid., V: 225.

10 The provincial council receives a royal proclamation prohibiting commerce with the French, and orders that it be printed.—*Cal.
 Coun. Min., 369*.

11 The anniversary of the king's accession to the throne is observed "with great Demonstrations of Joy." It is thus described: "The City Regiment and independent Companies of Militia, and Troop of Horse, were drawn up on the Common under Arms, and review'd by his Excellency; and after several Volleys were fired, his Excelency being attended by the Gentlemen of His Majesty's Council, several Members of the General Assembly, the Militia Officers, and principal Inhabitants of this City, went into the Spring-Garden;
 where his Majesty's, and all the loyal Healths, were drank, &c. . . .
 In the Evening the Houses were illuminated, and the Day concluded with all possible Expressions of Loyalty and Joy. . . ."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, June 13, 1748.

13 Prior to this date, when he removed to Rye, Francis Doughty had been keeping tavern at "Kings-Bridge."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 13, 1748. We have no knowledge of his successor, but in 1759
 James Bernard took over the tavern.—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 3, 1759.
 In 1764, when he offered canary birds for sale, Bernard called his tavern the "Bunch of Grapes."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Dec. 3, 1764. On Colles's road-map of 1789 (see Pl. 51, Vol. IV), the house at Kingsbridge is designated as "Hyatt's Tavern." This was undoubtedly Caleb Hyatt who, prior to 1763, was proprietor of the Bull's Head in the Bowery. See Dec. 15, 1755.

" Over 200 French prisoners are held in New York. To safeguard the health of the public as well as of the men, it is suggested that the example of Boston be followed, and that these prisoners be sent to do common labour for farmers, who will give security for their return to the high sheriff. This would also save their charge on the city and county.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 13, 1748.

Inhabitants of the city living "near the White Hall in the South Ward" petition the common council not to allow David and Samuel Van Horne to build a still-house in their neighbourhood, as they are about to do. They state that it will endanger the health of the neighbourhood, by adding another source of contagious disease. They are apprehensive that the "violent fevers" which "have carried off a Great Number of the Inhabitants" for several years, "during the Heat of Summer," may have arisen
 "from the Dirt and filth Lying in the Streets and Sbps of this City from Some Nauseous and Offensive Trades being Carried on."—From the original petition in File No. 4, in city clerk's record-room. On June 28, the common council expressed the opinion "that the building of a Still House ad keeping the Same Under proper regulations Can be no nuisance to this City."—
M. C. C., V: 224-25. See July 28.

28 Cornelia Rutgers, Leonard Lispenard, John and Jacob Roosevelt, and Christopher Baecker, in a petition to the common council, state that they own a parcel of land adjoining the East River between the house and lot of James Desbrosses and the land of Harmanus Rutgers, and ask for the grant of the water lot fronting their property.—M. C. C., V: 224. The inclination of the board to grant this petition led to the suspicion of official corruption.
 —See Feb. 1, 1753.

July "Order'd That the Side of the Street fronting the Church and Church Yard be paved as Soon as Conveniently may be."—*Trin.
 Min. (MS.)*. 4

8 The common council appoints a committee to take the advice of Alexander, Murray, and Chambers, counsellors at law, regarding the proper steps to be taken with Israel Horsfield, "who hath Lately Erected and set up a slaughter House at the ferry between High and Low Water Mark."—M. C. C., V: 226. This was evidently on the Long Island side.—See ibid., IV: 245.

" Gov. Clinton embarks on board a sloop, "prepared here for that Purpose," and sails for Albany, "in order to meet the Chiefs of the Six Nations of Indians there, to renew the ancient League with them, and deliver the Presents sent by His Majesty to those People."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 11, 1748. See July 23.

11 A committee of Trinity vestry, which was appointed July 4 "to purchase Six Lots of Ground fronting Nassau Street and Fair Street from David Clarkson . . . in order to Build a Chappell of Ease to Trinity Church thereon," reports that it has "Agreed with Mr. Clarkson for the said Lots for £500 to be paid in a Year." Several residents of the Montgomery Ward have suggested "that the Lots of Col<sup>d</sup> Beekman fronting Beekmans Street and Van Cliffs Street would be more Commodious for Building the said Chappell on, And proposed that if the Vestry would agree to the Building the Chappell there, the Inhabitants of Montgomery Ward would Raise Money among themselves Sufficient to purchase the Ground, and that if M<sup>r</sup> Clarkson Insisted on the performance of the Agreement with him for his Lots they would take a Conveyance for them and pay the purchase Money." This proposal was accepted by the vestry.—Trin. Min. (MS.). See
 Nov. 7.

" Robert G. Livingston advertises that he has moved from Broad Street to a house next door to Mr. Henry Cuyler, Jr., near the Meal Market (see Pl. 2-A, Vol. I), and has just imported, among other things, "Camlets of diverse sorts, and strip'd cambiettees, plain and flower'd calaminces, . . . strip'd dun-jars, strip'd Turkey tabbies, damasks of diverse sorts, yard wide Culoden stuffs, fine scarlet stuffs, florettas, pinelloses, cheverets, shalloons of all sorts, . . . plain and barley corn'd everlasting, double and single allpines of divers sorts, Baragon druggut, yard-wide dateys, boyl'd baragons . . . and divers other sorts of goods. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 11, 1748.

23 A congress is held at Albany to cultivate friendship with the Six Nations and their allies and induce them to join the expedition to Canada. Gov. Clinton, Cadwallader Colden, Philip Livingston, James deLancey, and Archibald Kennedy, of the New York council, are present.—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 441. The governor, writing to the Duke of Bedford on Aug. 15, stated that he asked the chief-justice, Mr. Horsmanden, and Mr. Murray to attend him as counsellors, but they all refused, giving different excuses.—*ibid., IV:
 428*. See also Winsor, Rel. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 612.

28 David van Horne, who is about to erect a "Still House" near "the White Hall," obtains a permit from the common council to lay a drain from it.—M. C. C., V: 227. See June 21.

- 1748 James Lyne, whose name appears on the Bradford Map (Pl. 27, Vol. I) as surveyor, is mentioned as one of four managers of a lottery in New Brunswick, N. J.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 8, 1748. Our knowledge of his late career is scant. His will, dated March 3, 1753, and recorded on Dec. 10, 1761, is entered in Liber H of Wills, in New Jersey. On Aug. 19, 1754, in a list of unclaimed letters at the N. Y. Post Office, appears the name of "James Lyne, New Brunswick."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 19, 1754.
- 9 The governor and provincial council receive a letter from the Duke of Bedford with a royal proclamation announcing the cessation of hostilities between Great Britain, France, and Holland.—Cal. Coun. Min., 370.
- 10 There is to be sold "at public Vendue, at the late Dwelling-House of Mr. Abraham Huisman, deceased, a set of very curious historical Maps, in 9 large Folio Vols."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 10, 1748.
- 12 The freedom of the city is granted by the common council to William Shirley, commander-in-chief of the province of Massachusetts Bay, for his services in forming the plan for capturing Louisbourg, and, in conjunction with Gov. Chilton, in conciliating the Six Nations.—M. C. C., V: 229-30.
- 15 A committee of the consistory of the Dutch Church exhibits a plan which it has prepared for a school and dwelling-house. This is unanimously approved, and a resolution is passed "to proceed with the construction of the building, according to the said plan."—Eccles. Rec., IV: 3024. This is explained by the consistory's recent choice of Daniel Bratt as chorister and schoolmaster of the "New Church" (Nassau St.). For the latter purpose he was to be provided with a dwelling and school-room near the "Old Church" (Garden St.), the committee being appointed to prepare "a plan for the building of a school and dwelling house."—Ibid., IV: 3025. See March 19, 1773. For an account of the various Dutch schools established prior to the eighteenth century, see "The Dutch Schools of New Netherland and Colonial New York," by Wm. H. Kilpatrick, in U. S. Bu. of Education Bulletin, 1912, No. 12.
- 21 "Just published, and to be Sold by Henry De Foreest, The Whole Book of Forms, and the Liturgy of the Dutch Reformed Church, as it was established and mutually agreed to, in the General Synod of Dordrecht [Dordrecht], in the year 1618 and 1619. Carefully translated from the Original, and formerly Printed at Amsterdam. . . . Containing 216 pages, in 8vo. Price bound 4s., stitched, and cover'd in marvell Paper, 3s."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 21, 1748. De Foreest was the printer of The New-York Evening Post at this time.—See Early Newspapers, II: 423.
- 29 A public vendue is advertised to be held on Sept. 8 "at the Sign of the Leopard," near the long bridge.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 29, 1748. The site of this tavern was more definitely located later in an advertisement of Simon Franks, who offered all sorts of perukes at his store "next Door to the Sign of the Leopard, at the North West Corner of the Great-Dock."—Ibid., Nov. 7, 1748. The tavern evidently stood near the corner of Water St. and Coenties Slip. The proprietor was Thomas Lepper, who moved in 1750 to the "Duke of Cumberland," opposite the Merchants Coffee House.—See Sept. 29.
- Sept. 1 The provincial council orders that lottery tickets be continued on sale to raise funds for a college.—Cal. Coun. Min., 370. See April 9 and 20. See also N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 12, Oct. 31, Nov. 7, 1748. See, further, Nov. 14 and 21.
- 5 "To be sold at public Vendue, at Mr. Thomas Burn's, opposite the Merchant's Coffee-House, on Wednesday the 7th Instant, and to be continued till sold, the Cargo of the Prize Brig Charming Molly, consisting of Cotton Wool, Sugar, Fustick, Lignum Vita; and on Monday next, the said Brig, with Tackling & Apparell, as per Inventory to be seen at the Merchant's Coffee-House."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 5, 1748.
- 29 Thomas Lepper is elected a constable from the South Ward.—M. C. C., V: 231. Later, he was appointed high constable by the mayor, and was sworn on Oct. 14. Lepper was a tavern-keeper "from London," his house being "at the Sign of the Leopard near the long bridge."—See Aug. 29, 1748.
- 30 Twelve Mohawk Indians arrive from Albany, on a visit to Gov. Clinton.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 3, 1748.
- Oct. 3 A letter having been received from the Duke of Bedford, announcing that Spain and Genoa have signed the preliminaries of the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, the provincial council orders that a proclamation be issued announcing the cessation of hostilities with Spain.—Cal. Coun. Min., 371. The draft of it was ordered printed next day.—Ibid. For the terms of the treaty, see Oct. 7/18.
- 3 David Cox, proprietor of the Exchange Coffee House, advertises that he has for sale "A Choice Parcel of Winter Wiggs of divers Colours; Also very good English Hair of several Colours, with which Gentlemen may be supplied with Wiggs to their own Taste: As likewise Baggs and Rosas for Perukes, Trimmings, Oyl, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 3, 1748. This coffee-house stood on the north-east corner of Broad and Water Sts., and is probably identical with the "New Coffee house" which was referred to as early as Sept. 22, 1709 (q. v.). It was owned by Philip van Cortlandt.
- Before Dec. 18, 1749, Andrew Ramsey had succeeded Cox, and had removed the sign of the Exchange Coffee-House to a house next door in Broad St. formerly occupied by Robert Todd, who died a year or two previously. This latter house was owned by Nicholas Bayard. Richard Clark Cooke soon succeeded Ramsey, who, in the N. Y. Post-Boy of April 9, 1750, called in his accounts, and announced that he intended soon to sail for the West-Indies.
- By March 6, 1752 (q. v.), George Burns had moved here from the Horse and Cart Tavern in William St., of which he had been proprietor for a short time; but, in 1754, we find Burns removed to the Trenton Ferry House, and a little later the Broad St. tavern, which Burns called the "King's Arms," was in the possession of a Mr. Hewlett.—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 15, 1755.
- Mrs. Lightfoot appears to have been here in 1757 (N. Y. Merc., May 16, 1757), and was probably succeeded by Mrs. Steel, who moved in 1763 to a house at Whitehall, taking the old sign with her.
- On April 21, 1763, John Holt, proprietor of the N. Y. Gazette, announced that he had removed to the tavern formerly kept by Mrs. Steel near the Exchange. The printing-office was still maintained here in 1767, when Nicholas Bayard offered for sale the "House and Lot where the Printing-Office is now kept at the Exchange, being the same where the King's Arms Tavern was kept for many Years before."—Supp. to N. Y. Jour., Jan. 22, 1767. In all probability, the old house was never reopened as a tavern. It would have been difficult for it to compete with the growing popularity of the Queen's Head next door, at the south-east corner of Broad and Pearl Sts., which had been opened by Sam Francis in 1762. The site of this King's Arms Tavern is definitely fixed in a description of property mortgaged, on June 13, 1762, by William Milliner to Philip van Cortlandt.—Liber Mortgages, I: 304-5. The old coffee-house and lot stood on the corner of Broad and Water Sts., facing the river. Behind it, on Broad St., was a vacant lot, and next to that the house of Nicholas Bayard, at this time "in the possession of Thomas Steel."
- The Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, terminating the war of the Austria Succession, is signed by Great Britain, France, Holland, Germany, Spain, and Genoa. It seemed to promise a breathing-spell in the strife between the French and English in the colonies. By this treaty, England gave back Louisbourg and Cape Breton Island (see July 6, 1745) to the French, and all the work of Pepperrell and Warren was undone; all the fruits of the war in America seemed lost.—Winsor, Nor. & Crit. Hist. of Am., I: 306; V: 9, 148, 413, 476, 490; VI: 14; VIII: 475.
- Among other appropriations for the support of the government, Gov. Clinton asks the assembly to alter the method adopted in 1743 of making arrangements yearly for the salaries of the governor, judges, and other officers; and to return to the former custom of establishing the salaries at the time of the appointment of these officers for a term of five years.—Assemb. Jour., II: 243. The assembly, on Oct. 19, refused to grant this request, one reason being that, had such grant been made, they felt certain the governor, under the "unhappy Influence" of a certain "mean and despicable" person (Colden), would have "filled the Office of third Justice" of the supreme court "with some unworthy Person, in the Room of a Gentleman of Experience and Learning in the Law" whom he had removed (Horsmanden—see Sept. 22, 1747).—Ibid., II: 245-46. Clinton, having secured a copy of this address from one of the messengers of the assembly, refused permission to the house to present it, and, on Oct. 26, the house resolved that the governor's refusal is a "manifest Violation of the Rights and Privileges" of the house. The controversy between the governor and the assembly over appropriations for war expenses, salaries, and other matters continued until Nov. 12, when Clinton prorogued the assembly to meet in March.—Ibid., II: 257-58. It was renewed, however, in the next

1748 session, and again the governour prorogued the assembly, declaring
Oct. that no public business could be conducted as matters stood.—Ibid.,
14 II: 271-74.

28 A law is passed by the common council "To Prevent the Firing of Leather Guns Pistols Pop Guns Squibs Crackers & all Sorts of Fire Works in the City of New York."—M. C. C., V: 239.

" "It being moved that a Committee be appointed for Letting the stalls & standings of the severall marketts," Mayor Holland objects because he has "a Right to the proffits . . . as Clerk of the market." The common council orders that the stalls be leased at public vendue, and appoints a committee to attend the auction and to fix the conditions of sale.—M. C. C., V: 239-40. See ibid., VI: 80, 209, 220, 262.

30 Peter Kalm, "Professor of Oeconomy in the University of Aobo in Swedish Finlaod, and Member of the Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences," visits New York City, his sojourn lasting until Nov. 3. The suggestion to send Prof. Kalm to North America came from Dr. Linnaeus, the great naturalist, who modified the original proposal of Baron Bielke, to the Royal Academy of Sciences at Stockholm, that an able man be sent to Siberia and Iceland for the purpose of making observations and collecting seeds and plants to improve the husbandry, arts, and sciences of Sweden.
Prof. Kalm kept a journal of his observations in Swedish, which was published in three volumes in Stockholm in 1753-1761.— See Sabin's Dict. of Books Relating to Am., IX: 382. An English translation of this, by John Reinhold Forster, F. A. S., was published in three volumes.—Vol. I in 1770 at Warrington, Eng., and Vols. II and III in 1771 at London. The title of the work is: Travels into North America; containing Its Natural History, and A circumstantial Account of its Plantations and Agriculture in general, with the Civil, Ecclesiastical and Commercial State of the Country, The manners of the inhabitants, and several curious and important remarks on various Subjects. The following extracts from Vol. I of this work are selected to present his observations regarding the city of New York.

Coming toward New York from Philadelphia, where he had landed in the middle of September, Prof. Kalm crossed to Staten Island from Elizabeth town Point; and then came by "yacht" to New York, a distance of "eight English miles," in three hours.
(See pp. 256-37.) Valentine describes the boats used in this service as "perriaugus" and "perryaugas,"—a boat without a keel, with two masts, and two large sails, the lack of keel being supplied by lee-boards.—Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 579-71.

On Oct. 31, Prof. Kalm began his observations regarding New York and its vicinity: "About New York they find innumerable quantities of excellent oysters, and there are few places which have oysters of such an exquisite taste, and of so great a size: they are pickled and sent to the West Indies and other places; which is done in the following manner . . ." (p. 237.)

" . . . On our journey to New York we saw high heaps of oyster shells near the farm-houses, upon the sea-shore; and about New York, we observed the people had carried them upon the fields which were sown with wheat. However they were entire, and not crushed." (pp. 239-40.)

"Lobsters are likewise plentifully caught hereabouts, pickled much in the same way as oysters, and sent to several places . . ." (p. 240.) He refers also to clams, which "are met with in vast numbers on the sea shore of New York, Long Island, and other places." He adds: "The shells contain a large animal, which is eaten both by the Indians and Europeans settled here." (p. 243.)

"Besides the different sects of christians, there are many Jews settled in New York, who possess great privileges. They have a synagogue and houses, and great country seats of their own property, and are allowed to keep shops in town. They have likewise several ships . . . In fine they enjoy all the privileges common to the other inhabitants of this town and province." He describes their domestic habits, and the customs of the synagogue. (pp.
245-46.) See also Hamilton's Itinerary, June 15, 1744.

"The situation of it [the city of New York] is extremely advantageous for trade: for the town stands upon a point which is formed by two bays; into one of which the river Hudson discharges itself, not far from the town; New York is therefore on three sides surrounded with water: the ground it is built on, is level in some parts, and hilly in others: the place is generally reckoned very wholesome." (p. 247.)

" . . . in size it comes nearest to Boston and Philadelphia.
But with regard to its fine buildings, its opulence, and extensive commerce, it disputes the preference with those . . ." (p. 247.)

"The streets do not run so straight as those of Philadelphia, and have sometimes considerable bendings: however they are very spacious and well-built, and most of them are paved, except in high places, where it has been found useless. In the chief streets there are trees planted, which in summer give them a fine appearance; and during the excessive heat at that time, afford a cooling shade: I found it extremely pleasant to walk in the town, for it seemed quite like a garden: the trees which are planted for this purpose, are chiefly of two kinds. The Water beech, or Linnaeus's Platanus occidentalis, are the most numerous, and give an agreeable shade in summer, by their great and numerous leaves. The Locust tree, or Linnaeus's Robinia Pseud-Acacia is likewise frequent: its fine leaves, and the odoriferous scent which exhales from its flowers, make it very proper for being planted in the streets near the houses, and in gardens. There are likewise lime trees and elms, in these walks, but they are not by far so frequent as the others: one seldom met with trees of the same sort next to each other, they being in general planted alternately." (p. 248.)

"Besides numbers of birds of all kinds which make these trees their abode, there are likewise a kind of frogs which frequent them in great numbers in summer, they are Dr. Linnaeus's Rana borea, and especially the American variety of this animal. They are very clamorous in the evening and in the nights (especially when the days had been hot, and a rain was expected) and in a manner drown the singing of the birds. They frequently make such a noise, that it is difficult for a person to make himself heard." (p. 249.)

"Most of the houses are built of bricks; and are generally strong and neat, and several stories high. Some had, according to old architecture, turned the gable-end towards the streets; but the new houses were altered in this respect. Many of the houses had a balcony on the roof, on which the people used to sit in the evenings in the summer season; and from thence they had a pleasant view of a great part of the town, and likewise of part of the adjacent water and of the opposite shore. The roofs are commonly covered with tiles or shingles: the latter of which are made of the white fir-tree, or Pinus Strobus . . . which grows higher up in the country. The inhabitants are of opinion that a roof made of these shingles is as durable as one made in Pennsylvania of the White Cedar, or Cupressus thyoides . . . The walls were white-washed within, and I did not any where see hangings, with which the people in this country seem in general to be but little acquainted. The walls were quite covered with all sorts of drawings and pictures in small frames. On each side of the chimneys they had usually a sort of alcove; and the wall under the windows was wainscoted, and had benches placed near it. The alcoves, and all the wood work were painted with a bluish grey colour." (pp.
249-50.)

"There are several churches in the town, which deserve some attention. 1. The English Church, built in the year 1695 [error for 1696-8;—see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 934], at the west end of the town, consisting of stone, and has a steeple with bell.
2. The new Dutch Church, which is likewise built of stone, is pretty large, and is provided with a steeple; it also has a clock, which is the only one in the town [the one in the city hall was now in disuse—see March 20, 1717]. This church stands almost due from north to south. No particular point of the compass has here been in general attended to in erecting sacred buildings. Some churches, stand as is usual from east to west, others from south to north, and others in different positions. In this Dutch church, there is neither altar, vestry, choir, scones nor paintings. Some trees are planted round it, which make it look as if it was built in a wood. 3. The old Dutch church, which is also built of stone.
It is not so large as the new one. It was painted in the inside, though without any images, and adorned with a small organ, of which governor Burnet made them a present. The men for the most part sit in the gallery, and the women below. 4. The Presbyterian Church, which is pretty large, and was built but lately. It is of stone, and has a steeple and bell in it. 5. The German Lutheran Church. 6. The German Reformed Church. 7. The French Church, for protestant refugees. 8. The Quaker's Meeting house. 9. To these may be added the Jewish Synagogue, which I mentioned before." (pp. 250-51.) For later references to the churches, see Oct. 12, 1750, and 1756.

"Towards the sea, on the extremity of the promontory is a pretty good fortress, called Fort George, which entirely commands

Oct.
30

1728
Oct.
30

the port, and can defend the town, at least from a sudden attack on the sea side. Besides that, it is likewise secured on the oorth, or towards the shore, by a pallisade, which however (as for a considerable time the people have had nothing to fear from an enemy) is in many places in a very had state of defence." (pp. 251-52.)

"There is no good water to be met with in the town itself, but at a little distance there is a large spring of good water [doubtless the "Tea-water Pump," which stood on the present Park Row, east of Baxter St.—see Landmark Map. Ref. Key, III: 976], which the inhabitants take for their tea, and for the uses of the kitchen. Those however, who are less delicate in this point, make use of the water from the wells in town, though it be very bad. This want of good water lies heavy upon the horses of the strangers that come to this place; for they do not like to drink the water from the wells in the town." (p. 252.)

"The port is a good one: ships of the greatest burthen can lie in it, quite close up to the bridge; but its water is very salt, as the sea continually comes in upon it; and therefore is never frozen, except in extraordinary cold weather. This is of great advantage to the city and its commerce; for many ships either come in or go out of the port at any time of the year, unless the winds be contrary; a convenience, which . . . is wanting at Philadelphia . . ." (p. 252.)

"New York probably carries on a more extensive commerce, than any town in the English North American provinces; . . . it is said they send more ships from thence to London than they do from Philadelphia. They export to that capital all the various sorts of skins which they buy of the Indians, sugar, logwood and other dying woods, rum, mahogany, and many other goods which are the produce of the West Indies; together with all the specie which they get in the course of trade. Every year they build several ships here, which are sent to London, and there sold; and of late years they have shipped a quantity of iron to England. In return for these, they import from London stuffs and every other article of English growth or manufacture, together with all sorts of foreign goods, . . ." (pp. 253-54.) The shipping to other points is described.

"The goods which are shipped to the West Indies, are sometimes paid for with ready money, and sometimes with West India goods, which are either first brought to New York, or immediately sent to England or Holland. If a ship does not chuse to take in West India goods in its return to New York, or if no body will freight it, it often goes to Newcastle in England to take in coals for ballast, which when brought home sell for a pretty good price. In many parts of the town coals are made use of, both for kitchen fires, and in rooms, because they are reckoned cheaper than wood, which at present costs thirty shillings of New York currency per fathom; . . ." (p. 256.)

"No manufacturers of note have as yet been established here; at present they get all manufactured goods, such as woolen and linen cloth, &c from England, and especially from London." (pp. 257-58.)

"I have found by the Pennsylvania gazettes that from the first of December in 1729, to the fifth of December in the next year, 211 ships entered the port of New York, and 222 cleared it; and since that time there has been a great increase of trade here." (p. 258.)

"The country people come to market in New York, twice a week much in the same manner, as they do at Philadelphia; with this difference, that the markets are here kept in several places." (p. 258.)

Prof. Kalm then describes the government of the province of New York. He praises Gov. William Burnet, who was one of the sons of Dr. Thomas Burnet (so celebrated on account of his learning), and seemed to have inherited the knowledge of his father." "But," he adds, "his great assiduity in promoting the welfare of this province, is what makes the principal merit of his character. The people of New York therefore still reckon him the best governor they ever had . . ." (pp. 258-59.)

"There are two printers in the town, and every week some English gazettes are published, which contain news from all parts of the world." (p. 266.)

"The water melons which are cultivated near the town grow very large; they are extremely delicious, and are better than in other parts of North America, though they are planted in the open fields and never in a hot-bed. I saw a water melon at Governor Clinton's in September 1750, which weighed forty seven

English pounds. . . . they were reckoned the biggest ever seen in this country." (p. 268.)

"Though the province of New York has been inhabited by Europeans, much longer than Pennsylvania, yet it is not by far so populous as that colony." This he attributes partly to the troubles the Germans (Palatines) had as land-holders, after their settlement here about 1709, when they left their homes and fields and went to settle in Pennsylvania. He attributes it also to the high prices charged for land by the rich land-holders among the Dutch.

Prof. Kalm came again to New York on June 3, 1749, after passing the winter and spring at Philadelphia, Raccoon, N. J., and other places, but recorded no observations about the city. He left on June 10 in "a yacht" bound for Albany. "All this afternoon we saw a whole fleet of little boats returning from New York, whither they had brought provisions and other goods for sale, which on account of the extensive commerce of this town, and the great number of its inhabitants, go off very well." (Vol. II: pp. 223, 227.)

Benjamin Franklin, writing from London, March 5, 1773, to David Colden of New York, thus expressed his estimate of Kalm: "Kalm's Account of what he learnt in America is full of idle Stories, which he pick'd up among ignorant People, and either forgetting of whom he had them, or willing to give them some Authenticity, he has ascrib'd them to Persons of Reputation who never heard of them till they were found in his Book.—And where he really had Accounts from such Persons; he has varied the Circumstances unaccountably, so that I have been asham'd to meet with some mention'd as from me.—It is dangerous Conversing with these Strangers that keep Journals."—Colden Papers (MS.), in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

By Boston papers, it is learned that the magistrates of that city are resolved to "put a Stop to a riotous and tumultuous Assembly that annually parades thro' that Town, on the Evening of the 5th of November." It is feared New York is going to begin the "silly Practice," for on Saturday evening (Nov. 5) "a grand Procession, being the first of the Kind in these Parts, was carried thro' the principal Streets of this City, and many Windows broke by the Populace, of such who were not apprized of putting Lights into their Windows, or whose Estates perhaps could not afford it . . ." It is hoped that, as this is the first, so it may be the last of the kind "in a Part of the World too much already deviated from the Rules of true Christianity."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 7, 1748. The anniversary of the Gun Powder Plot (known in England as "Guy Fakes's Day"—see Nov. 5, 1605) had been celebrated in New York before (see Nov. 5, 1737), but the character of its observance had evidently changed.

Corresponding with Secretary Bearcroft, of the Society for Propagating the Gospel, the Rev. Henry Barclay, rector of Trinity Church, writes that, for the further encouragement of Joseph Hildreth, master of the charity school, a subscription of more than £500 has been made. To this sum the vestry will add an amount sufficient to build a handsome school and dwelling for the use of the society's schoolmaster. The foundation is already finished, being 50 feet in length and 23 in breadth, with a wing 18 feet square.—Trin. Min. (MS.). See also a copy of this letter made in 1836 by Rev. F. L. Hawks, from the society's documents in London, filed with the Hawks MSS. in Church Mission House, N. Y. City. Regarding the completion of the charity school, see April 28, 1749. The building was on the south side of the present Rector St., between Broadway and Church St., opposite the church. The location is well shown on a survey by Brandt Schuyler, dated April 27, 1749, in Box B-F of the Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library.

In accordance with the law of April 9 (9-n), as extended by one of Oct. 28, the drawings in the "Government Lottery" for the benefit of the college begin. The prize-winning numbers were published two weeks later.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 21 and 28, Dec. 5, 1748. See also Sept. 1. The proceeding is thus described: Peter Vallete and Peter van Brugh Livingston, the managers of the "Publick Lottery" for "raising funds for a college in New York," meet as prescribed at the city hall and proceed to the "Drawing of the Lottery . . . in the Presence of the honourable Edward Holland Esq; Mayor of the City and Simon Johnson Esq; Recorder of S<sup>d</sup> City." The drawing continued through 12 successive days, Sundays excepted.—From MS. volume of 151 pages preserved in Columbia Univ. Lib. The volume closes with the account of

Oct.
30Nov.
5

7

14

1748 the managers with "The Colony of New York." This account
 Nov. shows the loss of £2 through "a false <sup>40</sup>/Bill rec<sup>d</sup> by Peter 14 Vallette for Tickets;" it also shows a compensation of £200 to the managers for "our trouble allowed by the Act."

21 Another complaint regarding the high prices of food, etc. (see Feb. 9, 1747) is published: "Firewood is 32s. to 35s. a Cord; Butter 12d to 14d per lb. and Flour so dear that it is a Shame to mention."
 This condition has grown out of the war, supplies having been diverted from or sent out of the colonies and shipped to the French islands.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 21, 1748.

" At some time between this date and Dec. 12, Catherine Zenger (see July 28, 1746) retired as printer of the N. Y. Jour., and her step-son, John Zenger, became the printer. He continued it until his death, which occurred some time prior to July 30, 1751 (q. v.).
 —Early Newspapers, II: 421; Brigham, "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proc. (1917), 504.

30 A committee of the common council having been appointed on Nov. 29 to prepare the draft of an address praying the governor to use his best endeavours to prevent and prohibit the exportation of flour, bread, corn, and butter, such an address has been prepared, and arrangements are made with Gov. Clinton to present it to him on Nov. 31. It states that "the Great and Unusual Exportation of the produce of our Country to foreign Markets in the West Indies" has occasioned so great a scarcity of provisions, especially of the articles mentioned, that these have become "most Excessive Dear to the Very great Oppression and Loss of all Degrees of people but more Especially to the industrious and Laborious poor amongst us." The address calls to mind the "Very Valuable and important Service your Excellency did this City when upon the first Application you relieved the Inhabitants from that great and insupportable Burthen they theo grown Under We mean from the Days and Nights Watches in fort George of this City During the absence of his majesties regular Troops." The address asks that the exportation of provisions from all parts of "this your Government" be stopped for as long a time "as unto your Excellency in your Great Wisdom shall deem meet."—M. C. C., V: 242-44; N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 5, 1748. The address was considered by the governor in council on Dec. 15, and was not granted.—Cal. Coun. Min., 372.

Dec. John Bonnin exhibited "Perspectives" between this time and 5 the end of 1749. These included "English Prospects," for which he charged an admission of 2 shillings.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec.
 5 and 12, 1748. Early in February, he set out "with his Philosophical Optical Machine" for Long Island.—Ibid., Feb. 6, 1749. In the winter of 1749-50, he introduced "Sundry new Additions," which he exhibited "at the House of Mr. Victor Becker, opposite to Mr. Haynes's New Buildings, in Crown Street," where he charged 1 shilling per grown persons, and 6 pence for children.—Ibid.,
 Dec. 25, 1749. See, further, May 14, 1750.

"The "Philosophical Optical Machine" probably resembled the "Diagonal Mirror, or Optical Pillar Machine," in general use a quarter of a century later, when such publishers as Carington Bowles issued hundreds of views and other pictures (corresponding to our picture-post-cards), designed for use in such peep-shows.— See Carington Bowles's New and Enlarged Catalogue (1790), 78.
 As the pictures were reversed by the mirror, the titles were generally engraved and printed backward, and usually in French as well as English, and sometimes in German.—See description of Pl. 37, pp. 294-95, Vol. I. For a fuller account of this optical apparatus and the pictures used, see "Peep Show Prints," by F.
 Weitenkamp, in N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin, June, 1921. The optical machine and picture show are found of record in New York ten years earlier.—See Feb. 12, 1739.

12 "Simon Francks, Peruke Maker, from London, now living next Door to the Sign of the Leopard, at the North West Corner of the Great Dock, Makes and sells all sorts of Perukes, after the best and newest Fashion, cuts and dresses Lady's Wigs and Towers, after a Manner performed much better than is pretended to be done by some others."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 12, 1748.

15 "The provincial council refuses to grant the petition of New York that the exportation of flour, bread, corn, and butter be prohibited.—Cal. Coun. Min., 372. See Nov. 30.

21 Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to procure Plans for a Chappell of Ease to Trinity Church not exceeding Ninety foot in Length."—Trin. Min. (MS.). The committee rendered its report on Jan. 23, 1749 (q. v.).

The vestry also appoints "a Committee to examine into the Title of Coll<sup>d</sup> Henry Beekman to the Lands near Beekmans Swamp proposed to be purchased for the Building a Chappell of Ease."—Ibid. See July 11.

1749

In this year, the number of houses in New York City, enumerated by wards, was as follows: South Ward, 213; West Ward, 290;
 North Ward, 261; Montgomerie Ward, 350; East Ward, 356;
 Dock Ward, 233; Out Ward, 131; total, 1834.—From an old MS. inserted in the copy of Laws, Statutes, Ordinances and Constitutions of the City of New-York (1749), printed by James Parker, and now in the N. Y. Pub. Library. The records of deeds show that, in 1749, a house and two lots at the north-east corner of Frankfort St. and the "High Road to Boston" (see Pl. 34, Vol. I), where the Pulitzer ("World") building now stands, sold for $300.—
Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 598.

In this year, 232 vessels entered and 286 cleared at the port of New York. In these ships, 6,731 tons of provisions, chiefly flour, and a vast quantity of grain, were shipped.—Edmund Burke, Account of the European Settlements in America, II: 185 (Dublin, 1762).

In this year, John Zenger published a small quarto booklet entitled Some Serious Thoughts on the Design of erecting a College in the Province of New-York By Hippocrates Mahdrate. A copy of this excessively scarce Zenger imprint was sold by the Am. Art Assn., Feb. 17, 1920.

In this year, a charitable school and academy was founded in Philadelphia by public subscription. In 1753, the proprietors of Pennsylvania granted $15,000 to it; and, in 1755, it became, by an act of incorporation, the "College, Academy, and Charitable School of Philadelphia." To-day it is the "University of Pennsylvania."—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 231.

The inhabitants of Staten Island petition against granting the prayer of Solomon Comes, to exclude them from the benefit of ferrying from their own lands.—Cal. Land Papers, 252. See May 15, 1747; March 17, 1749.

The committee of Trinity vestry, appointed Dec. 21 (q. v.) 23 to procure plans for a chapel of ease to Trinity Church, proceeds several. The vestry decides that the chapel shall be 92 ft. long and 72 ft. wide. A committee is apointed to employ workmen, purchase materials, and agree upon plans.—Trin. Min. (MS.).

The vestry also orders that Col. Robinson "do from time to time advance and pay Such Sum and Sums of Money as he shall have in his hands for and towards the purchasing Timber and Materials for Erecting and Building Such Chappell of Ease and the paying of the workmen to be Employed in Building the same."
 The committee appointed Dec. 21, 1748 (q. v.), "to inspect into the Title of Coll<sup>d</sup> Beekman to the Land near the Swamp," is empowered "to Agree with the said Coll<sup>d</sup> Beekman for the purchase thereof for Such Sum as they shall think fit and that they prepare Deeds to be by him Executed for the Conveying the Same to the Rector and Inhabitants of Trinity Church and when such purchase shall be so made that they agree with James Burling for Exchanging part of the said Ground for a Lott of Ground belonging to the Said James Burling adjoining thereto or such part thereof as they Can agree with him to Exchange for the Same on Such Terms and for such Consideration as to them shall Seem Meet."—Ibid. See July 11, 1748; March 23, 1749.

An advertisement informs the public that "The late invented most curious Instrument call'd an Octant, for taking the Latitude or other Altitudes at Sea, with all other Mathematical Instruments for Sea or Land, [is] compleatly made by Anthony Lamb in New-York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 23, 1749.

27 Elbert Haring having petitioned on Jan. 5 for a lease of part of the common lands (M. C. C., V: 247, 271), and Adolph Benson and Jacob Duyckman having been ordered by the common council to appear at the next meeting to show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted, a committee is now appointed "to run out a partition Line between the Lands belonging to this Corporation and the Township of New Harlem and to make enquiry of what Incroachments have been made by Adolph Benson and others upon said Lands of the Corporation and to take to their Assistance Francis Marshall one of the sworn Surveyors of this City to Survey the same and to make report thereof with all Convenient expedition."—Ibid., V: 247. The committee's report (dated March 18, appearing in the printed minutes under date of March 10) showed that the members accom-

- panied the surveyor to the land, and that they saw "some Lines run from the lands belonging to the above persons as also the south Line from the Round meadow to Saw mill Creek," and were of the opinion that Duyckman and Benson "have between them encroached on the Commons the full quantity of forty acres, as may more fully appear by the Sworn Surveyors draft thereunto annexed."—Ibid., V: 251. Cf. 1748. Regarding Maerschalck's survey of the Harlem Line, see Jan. 9, 1750.
- 28 A man is executed "at the Gallows near the Powder-House, without the Walls of this City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 30, 1749. The "Walls" referred to were the palisades which at this time stretched in an irregular line across the island, at about the present Chambers St.—See July 6, 1745; Sept. 17, 1757. For a description of the gallows, see July 28, 1741. Their location was at the present City Hall Place, between Pearl and Duane Sts. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 972. The powder-house was west of the present Centre St., north of Duane St.—Ibid., III: 923.
- Feb. Several French officers, with a number of their attendants and 16 Indians, arrive in New York by land from Canada. Their business relates to the exchanging of prisoners taken during the war, "it being on that Account we had a Number here last Fall."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 20, 1749.
- 17 A committee of the common council is appointed "to agree with a printer to print the new Laws of this Corporation."—M. C. C., V: 249. On March 10, the committee reported that it had "agreed with James Parker of this City printer: to print the By Laws of this City," with any acts of assembly or abstracts which shall be considered necessary, and the table for the assize of bread. The work is to be done at the printer's risk, good paper is to be used, and the work printed in as good a "Character as the Charter was printed in." He is to deliver 20 completed copies to the "Commonality for the use of the members thereof," for which "he is to be paid the sum of Ten pounds."—Ibid., V: 252. The last previous edition of the corporation laws was in 1719-20. See Dec. 1, 1719. For the publication of the new edition, see March 27.
- " Gov. Clinton, in a letter to Mr. Catherwood, describes a riot which occurred on Feb. 2, in which he alleges that Oliver de Lancey persecuted and insulted a certain Jew and his wife with indecent language. The leading attorneys of the city (Murray, Chambers, and Smith) advised the Jew to "make it up," as the persons concerned were "related to the principal People of the Town." This shows, Clinton observes, that "notwithstanding M<sup>r</sup> Delancey is under prosecution by the Crown he goes on in his riotous manner, bidding defiance to everybody, as no lawyer will undertake to prosecute him, being afraid of the chief Justice [James de Lancey's] power." Clinton describes another instance when the attorney-general for a like reason failed to give redress for personal injuries inflicted by Oliver de Lancey. He advises that the chief-justice be removed.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 471. See also June 22, 1747; Feb. 24, 1749.
- " The common council orders payment of £14:16:4 to Isaac Stoutenburgh for materials "for building of the Cage and repairing the markets of this City."—M. C. C., V: 249.
- " The common council appoints a committee to have Oliver de Lancey's "land at Bloomendall in the out ward of this City" surveyed, in order that the board may know whether "any part of the Commons of this City have been taken in or encroached on by him." If any "Incrochments" be found, De Lancey desires that the board convey them to him "in fee simple," their value being appraised by impartial persons.—M. C. C., V: 250. For the outcome of this, see May 21, 1751.
- 20 "Mr. Requard, having completed the Number of Persons who intend him the Honour to raffle for his Pictures, Hereby gives Notice, That the said Pictures will be removed to Mr. Ramsay's, at Sir Peter Warren's Head, and there raffled for on Friday next, between the Hours of Eleven and Twelve of the Clock . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 20, 1749. The site of this tavern is not definitely known, but it probably stood near Broad and Water Sts., for on Dec. 18, 1749 (q. v.), Ramsay, innkeeper, "near the Exchange in this City," announced that he had removed to the Exchange Coffee House. On Oct. 1, 1753, the "Sign of Admiral Warren" was opposite Benjamin Payne's, another innkeeper, whose tavern at the sign of the "Jamaica Arms" stood on the new dock at the foot of S. William St., on Mr. Cruger's Wharf.—See Aug. 6, 1744. At some period prior to May 29, 1758 (q. v.), George Burns had acquired the sign and was conducting a tavern on Wall St., opposite the First Presbyterian Church. By Nov. 5, 1770 (q. v.), the Sign of Sir Peter Warren had been secured by John Simmons, whose tavern stood on the north-west corner of Wall and Nassau Sts. See Aug. 24, 1773.
- Clinton still complains of factional violence, in and out of the government, due, he states, to De Lancey's being chief-justice (see Feb. 17).—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 472-73. For other evidences of this personal and party friction, see ibid., VI: 471, 514, 516, 577, 751, 764-66. See also June 22, 1747.
- 24 "We hear from Philadelphia, that the Map of these Provinces by Mr. Evans is now completed, and hope in a Week or two an Account of the Publication of it."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 27, 1749. See, further, March 6 and 13.
- Petty officers and seamen of H. M. S. "Greyhound," which is at Turtle Bay, are notified to return to duty, on or before March 25, on board that vessel.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 6, 1749. A similar order was given about a year later.—Ibid., April 2, 1750.
- Proposals are published in New York for publishing by subscription "A Map of Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, New-York, and the Three Lower Counties, on Delaware, by Lewis Evans." The advertisement describes the many unique features of the map, the terms of subscription, etc. "The Plate is finished, and a few Copies printed off, to be seen, both coloured and plain, where Subscriptions are taken in."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 6, 1749.
- John Ayscough, sheriff of N. Y. County (Cal. Coun. Min., 352), offers a reward to any one who can account for "two whitish Cloth Coach Cushions, lac'd round the Seams with a worsted Lace of the same Colour," which were stolen "out of his Excellency's Coach last Wednesday Night [Mar. 1], between 12 and 1 o'Clock . . ." (from the Broad Way near the Post Office).—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 6, 1749.
- Nicholas Bayard, Jr., shows to the common council "a Draft of some lots of Ground on the west side of the broad way in the West ward of this City between the Church yard and the Chief Justices lott," and proposes that, if the board will grant to him "a Slip of ground on the South side of his Lott adjoining to the Church yard of Trinity Church," he will "in Lieu thereof Leave a Street on the North side of his Lotts twenty one foot and an half broad to lead from the broad way down to Comforts dock." It is ordered that a committee "view the Same" and report.—M. C. C., V: 252. On March 31, this committee reported favourably.—Ibid., V: 256. On Jan. 9, 1750, the clerk of the common council produced "a Draft of a Release for Lands to be Granted to this Corporation By M<sup>r</sup> Nicholas Bayard and by this Corporation to M<sup>r</sup> Bayard in Exchange," and it was ordered that "the Deputy Clerk have the same Engrossed and the City Seal affixed to one part thereof Ready to be Delivered to M<sup>r</sup> Bayard on his Executing the other part thereof."—Ibid., V: 281. For location of Comfort's dock, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 989. The street was Thames St.—Ibid., III: 1010, where the citation should be to M. C. C., V: 252, 256. It was ordered, July 11, 1755, that Thames St. be dug, regulated, and paved.—M. C. C., VI: 15. The street was surveyed March 11, 1791.—M. C. C. (MS.), X: 79-80.
- Lewis Evans (see Feb. 27 and March 6) writes from Philadelphia to Cadwallader Colden: "My Map is finish at last, & now waits upon You for your Amedgment, which if you could favour me with by the first Opportunity w<sup>d</sup> oblige me much; for I wait now but for M<sup>r</sup> Alexander's & your Revial, before I proceed to print them off, & get them ready for Publication. I sh<sup>d</sup> be glad you would minute down some more Variations; how far the Settlements extend back, because I intend to colour so far; Addition of Towns, noted Houses, Roads & intermediate Distances of Places &c. & these I w<sup>d</sup> get incerted on the Plate before Printing off. Please to mark them with red Ink if you have any by you."—From the original letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. This map Evans prepared and had "engrav'd by a good Artist, under my Eye."—Phila. correspondance in N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 13, 1748. It was "both colored & plain."—Ibid., March 6, 1749. In a letter written by a critic of the map, and printed by Parker, it was stated that "the greater part" of Evans's information concerning New York Province was secured from Cadwallader Colden.—Ibid., May 1, 1749. For Evans's reply, see ibid., May 15, 1749. For description of the various states of this important map, see Lewis Evans His Map of the Middle British Colonies in America. A Comparative 1749 Account of Ten Different Editions Published between 1755 and 1807, Mar. by Henry N. Stevens (London, 1905). Parker printed a brief

 13 announcement of its publication in his Post-Boy of Oct. 2, 1749.

15 A proposal of John and James Roosevelt and John Chambers is read in the common council. It states that they are the owners of "Several Lots of Land in the swamp or Cripple Bush and montgomery ward; that they have already "Expended upwards of two hundred pounds in order to have a Convenient street or way from Queens street" to their lots in the swamp; that they "are willing to appropriate and set a part fourteen foot of a Lott of Land" which they purchased "from the widow and devisees of George Elseworth deceased fronting the said Street in breadth from the Eastermost side of the said Lott and then down the said Swamp to be and remain as a publick Street of fourteen foot wide by the name of Ferry Street;" that they are willing, as soon as they can obtain a conveyance for it; "to add to said Street Six foot more of ground in breadth adjoining to the East side of said Lott," which they purchased for that purpose from Theophilus Elseworth, deceased (the deed for which he did not give them, although they had paid half the purchase price); and, finally, that such conveyance they will permit to be entered in the public records of the city.
 It is ordered that it be recorded.—M. C. C., V: 253-54. This was the beginning of the present Ferry Street, which was extended to the river under the same name; the part from Pearl Street to the River afterwards hearing its present name of Peck Slip. The swamp or cripplebusch was Beekman's Swamp, the modern boundaries of which would be about as follows: Somewhat north of the lines of Spruce and Ferry Streets; extending northerly a little beyond the line of Frankfort Street; mostly between Gold and Cliff Streets.
 This part of New York has always been called "The Swamp," and has long been famous as the seat and centre of the leather trade. The transfer of Ferry Street to the city was not made by the Roosevelts and others until March 27, 1759 (q. v.).

17 Hearings having been held on Jan. 12 (q. v.), and on March 10 and 16, on Solomon Comes's petition for ferry rights from Staten Island to New York (see Dec. 7, 1748), the provincial council grants the petition, and orders that a table of fees be prepared.—Cal. Courts, Min., 372. This was submitted on April 15.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 588. The table of fees was approved on May 18 23 Cal. Courts, Min., 373. For the full proceedings leading to this grant, see also May 15, 1747.

The committee of Trinity vestry which was directed on Jan.
 23 (q. v.) to Agree with Coll<sup>o</sup> Henry Beekman for Six Lots of Land to Build a Chapple of Ease on," reports that Beekman and his wife have executed deeds for these lots, "and that Cap<sup>t</sup> Aspinwall, on behalf of the Inhabitants of Montgomerie Ward, had paid £645; for the Same . . ."

The vestry orders that, when John Killmaster and his wife execute deeds to Trinity corporation "for a Lott Adjoining to Lott No<sup>o</sup> 52 Lately purchased by Coll<sup>o</sup> Beekman and his wife," the churchwardens shall affix the seal of Trinity to an agreement to purchase for Killmaster a lot and house of equal value (so adjudged by John Aspinwall); and, until such purchase is made, the churchwardens shall pay Killmaster the rent he now receives for such house and lot (£80 a year).—Trin. Min. (MS.).

The foundation of the church was to be laid the same spring (see Nov. 7, 1748), and during the rest of the year the work must have been under way (see June 15, 1755).

27 There is advertised to be published on March 30, by the printer of the Post-Boy (Parker), the "Laws, Statutes, Ordinances, and Constitutions" made by the common council on Jan. 27 and Feb. 1, 1749 (not of record in the Minutes), the collection having an appendix containing extracts from the acts of the general assembly relating to the good government of this city. "A few of these books are printed on fine paper; which will be sold to those who apply first. The Carmen's Law may be had separate by those who think it not worth while to buy the whole, Price 6d."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 27, 1749. There is a copy of the Laws, Statutes, Ordinances, and Constitutions (1749) here mentioned in the N. Y. Pub. Library; it bears the autograph of Alderman Brandt Schuyler.
 See also Evans, Am. Bibliography, II: 387.

The full title is: Laws, Statutes, Ordinances, and Constitutions, Ordained, Made and Established, by the Mayor, Recorder, Alderman and Assistants, of the City of New-York, Convened in Common-Council, for the good Rule and Government of the Inhabitants and Residents of the said City. Published the Twenty-Seventh Day of January, and the First Day of February, in the Twenty Second Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Second, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. Annoque Domini 1748. And in the Mayoralty of Edward Holland, Esq; Printed and Sold by J. Parker, at the New Printing Office, in Bever Street, 1749.

On March 31, Parker was paid £10 and an additional £4 "for his extraordinary trouble in printing by way of Appendix abstracts of Several acts of the General Assembly of this Colony to said by Laws and other things relating to this Corporation not Included in the Agreement" (see Feb. 17).—M. C. C., V: 256.

The "Law for Regulating of Carts and Car-Men" contains the following provision:

"XIV. And be it further Ordained by the Authority aforesaid, That no Hay be unloaded within this City, on the South Side of Fresh Water, but at the Places herein after mentioned, to wit. At Hudson's River, near the House late of Thomas Elde, and to the Northward thereof; at the South End of the Broad-Way, near White-Hall;" etc.—Ibid., 18.

Mayor Holland produces to the common council a list of Apr.
 18 licenses granted to retailers of strong liquors within the city (probably since he became mayor, Oct. 14, 1747). The total liquor license tax amounts to £178. He is ordered to pay this to the treasurer. He is also ordered to issue his warrant to the treasurer to pay the deputy clerk of the board £31:10 for granting 126 liquor licenses at five shillings each; and the treasurer is ordered to pay the mayor £254 for granting 126 licenses at four shillings each.—M. C. C., V: 258-59.

From April 20, 1749, to Feb. 2, 1750, 58 persons took out liquor licenses, paying in all £36:12. Another list showed 196 persons who took out licenses from March 25 to Aug. 31, 1750, paying the mayor £258:1.—Ibid., V: 301. On Sept. 12, he was ordered to pay the combined sum (£294:13) to the treasurer, retaining four shillings and paying the clerk five shillings for every license.—Ibid., V: 305. Again, from March 25, 1751, to March 25, 1753, 334 persons took out licenses, paying £445:7:5; and the mayor was ordered to make payment as before.—Ibid., V: 369. From March 26, 1753, to March 25, 1754, 160 persons took out licenses, paying £200:4; and the same order was given.—Ibid., V: 407. The following year (to March 25, 1755) 192 persons paid £168:14:9.—Ibid., V: 458. When Mayor Holland died, Nov. 10, 1756, he was considerably in debt to the city for these fees, and the city brought action to recover.—See Oct. 26, 1759.

A fire, breaking out in a house on Duke Street, in a crowded section, threatens to spread to other parts of the city, but is put out by the activity of the citizens. The fact that a number of the houses in the neighbourhood had old-fashioned tile roofs is believed to have prevented in large part the spread of the fire. A writer in the Post-Boy believes that the corporation should hit upon some scheme to discourage shingle roofs, and encourage slate or pantile roofs.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 24, 1749. See also Sept. 11. Not until Dec. 31, 1761 (q. v.), was a provincial law passed requiring new buildings south of the Fresh Water Pond, in N. Y. City, to be made of stone or brick and roofed with slate or tile.

James Parker advertises in his newspaper that he has for sale, besides other prints, "A Plan of the City of London;—A View of the City of New York, . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 24, 1749. The last-named may be the Burgis View, republished in 1746 by Bakewell.—See Pls. 25 and 33, Vol. I.

Brandt Schuyler surveys and draws a plan of the ground at the south-west corner of Broadway and Rector St., showing the location of the English school-house and the old Lutherian Church. The original is in the Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library. See also description of Pl. 46A-b, Vol. I, and April 28.

It is ordered by Trinity vestry "That Coll<sup>o</sup> Robinson furnish and pay such Moneys as shall be necessary (over and above the Subscriptions) for carrying on and Completing the Building for the Publick School."—Trin. Min. (MS.). For its location, see Nov. 7, 1748. This building was destroyed by fire on Feb. 23, 1750 (q. v.).

News reaches town that the snow "Irene" (Capt. Garrison) May 1 has arrived at Sandy Hook from London, with over 100 passengers "of the Moravian Brethren" on board.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 1, 1749.

East River water lots, between Beekman's Slip and Peck's Slip, are surveyed by Francis Maerschalck.—See the original

- 1749 survey (map No. 103), in Bureau of Topography, Dept. of Pub. Works.
- 10 The Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle (see Oct. 7/18, 1748) is proclaimed in Boston.—Winst. Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 449.
- " Gov. Clinton certifies to another statement of the number of inhabitants in the province. He had previously done so in 1746. According to this enumeration, the population of the city and county of New York is now 13,294, of whom 10,926 are whites; and that of the province, 73,448, of whom 62,736 are whites.—Doc. Hist. N. Y., I: 473; N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 550.
- " A letter with the royal proclamation of peace (see Oct. 7, 1748) is received from the Duke of Bedford. Its publication is ordered by the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 373. See May 12.
- 12 The king's proclamation of peace is "published here by Authority, with great Solemnity."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 15, 1749. See May 18.
- 18 The provincial council orders that a proclamation be issued for a day of thanksgiving on the declaration of peace.—Cal. Coun. Min., 373. See June 22.
- 23 In a report to the lords of trade, Gov. Clinton states that, in addition to their customary manufacture of homespun for country wear, the people of New York make hats and lamplack, and for some 34 years have manufactured loosed oil; since 1730 they have refined sugar for shipment to Europe and the West Indies; there are six rum distilleries; and an iron furnace is in operation.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 511.
- 31 The common council orders the payment of £180 to Samuel and William Baker, merchants in London, for two fire-engines, one of the largest and one of the smallest size.—M. C. C., V: 264. Payment was made the next day.—Journals of the City Chamberlain, III: 105. See also Feb. 4, 1750.
- June Rip van Dam, formerly president of the council, dies.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 12, 1749. See the memoir of his life and services to the colonial city of New York, in Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 713; see also pls. 28 and 39, Vol. I.
- 22 The day is celebrated, in accordance with a proclamation of the governor issued June 19, "for a public Thanksgiving throughout this Province, for the late Glorious Peace."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 19, 1749.
- 28 Clinton writes to the Duke of Bedford enclosing testimony regarding language used by Oliver de Lancey reflecting against Clinton; also regarding an attack made by De-Lancey upon Dr. Alexander Colhoun, who was overcome with liquor, and when down was stabbed by De-Lancey at a tavern. Clinton says: "I find every Lawyer in the place, unwilling and afraid to appear for the King against the Chief Justices brother." Attorney-general Bradley being confined at home "for many years" with sickness and old age, Clinton has appointed William Smith to his place, and prevailed upon him "to be concerned for the King against Oliver de Lancey."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 513-14; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 274, passim. See July 1.
- July On the testimony of Thomas Cumming, a Quaker, and of John Woolston, it is ordered by the provincial council that Oliver de Lancey, be prosecuted for disrespectful words spoken of the governor at the tavern of Andrew Ramsay. The subject absorbed the council's attention the rest of the month.—Cal. Coun. Min., 373. De-Lancey was active in the faction opposed to the government; and as he was a brother of Chief-Justice James de Lancey, his prosecution was attended with difficulties. Clinton informed the lords of trade that William Smith was the "only Lawyer that would or did consent to prosecute Mr Oliver Delancey . . . for his enormous scurrillity against me."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 766. See also Feb. 23 and Sept. 29.
- 3 The diagonal mirror, showing various views in European countries, is on exhibition at "Mr. Wilson's, on the Dock near the Old Slip."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 3, 1749. See also Dec. 5, 1748.
- 11 A committee is appointed to order and direct the digging out, levelling, and paving of "Dye (or) Drey Street (M. C. C., V: 265); the committee reported April 26, 1750 (ibid., V: 290); and it was ordered that the regulation be proceeded with from Broadway to high-water mark in the North River (ibid., V: 291). A further regulation of the street was reported in Oct., 1759 (ibid., VI: 185-86, 190, 191-92); it was regulated to the Hudson River in 1784 (M. C. C., MS., VIII: 131, 202-3); and in 1790 (ibid., IX: 435). It was sometimes called Bateau Street.—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 13, 1775.
- This street was first shown on Pl. 34, Vol. I (1755), where it was called Dyes Street. It was named, however, for the Dey family, through whose farm it ran.
- It is believed that "Provisions must soon fall from the exorbitant Price (see Nov. 21, 1748) which they have been held at here, for upwards of Twelve Months past; occasioned too probably by the unatual as well as unlawful Practice, of feeding the Enemies of our King and Country . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 17, 1749.
- Aug. Gov. Clinton, in an address to the assembly, declares that although the printer (Parker) receives a yearly salary from the government; yet he prints "injurious Reflections and Falshoods" against the government of the province, and "Lampoons and Sarcasms" against the home government.—Assemb. Jour., II: 271-74.
- 8 The provincial council tables a petition of Michael Christian Knoll, minister of the Lutheran Church.—Cal. Coun. Min., 373. On Oct. 26, they tabled another from the minister and congregation.—ibid., 374. See Kretzmann, The Oldest Lutheran Church in Am. (1914), 23-24.
- 28 The "Effigies of the Royal Family of England" and others, to the number of fourteen wax figures, are advertised to be seen from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. at the price of 1s. 6d. At the same time, and evidently at the same place, the site of which is not mentioned, Punch's company of comedians is advertised to give a performance of "Whittington and his Cat," to be concluded with a "Musical Clock."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 28, 1749. A similar advertisement appeared later, signed "James Wyatt."—ibid., Oct. 30, 1749.
- On Oct. 9, the wax figures and a "Puppet Shew" were advertised to be exhibited "On Monday next . . . at the Sign of the Brig. Dolphin, near the Work-House," for the benefit of poor debtors, tickets to be had from Mr. Lepper (whose tavern, "at the Sign of the Leopard," stood at the foot of Broad St.), as well as from Mr. Ramsey (proprietor of the Exchange Coffee House—see Oct. 3, 1748), and at the printer's.—ibid., Oct. 9, 1749; see also Oct. 16, 1750. In 1752, the "Sign of the Dolphin" still hung out from the same house, "facing the Common."—ibid., July 6, 1752. Stevens places this tavern near the site of the court-house in City Hall Park.
- Sept. The provincial council issues an order on the representation of Capt. Roddam, of the man-of-war "Greyhound," regarding the refusal of carpenters to come to Turtlet Bay to repair his ship.—Cal. Coun. Min., 373.
- 11 A writer in the Post-Boy suggests that the great danger of fire in New York is from the shingle roofs, and from the difficulty in gaining access to these roofs when on fire, "most Houses having only a Way to come at the Chimney, and some even not that."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 11, 1749. He would offer premiums for the making of tiles in the colony, and adds that "several Houses in this Town have been tiled with very good Pantiles made at Albany, at cheap as they could be had from Holland. Witness Mr. N. Bayard's Sugar House."—ibid., Oct. 9, 1749. These observations were a result of the fire of April 20 (q.v.).
- 26 The common council orders "that the Ferry house to be built at Brookland belonging to this Corporation replacing the one destroyed by fire on March 28, 1748, q.v.) be all built of Stone and that the same be built with two Smooth Sides and two random Walls Ruff Cast." It is ordered that the committee in charge have power to employ workmen, etc.—M. C. C., V: 270. Payment for roofing the new ferry-house was made on Nov. 5, 1750.—ibid., V: 313. On March 19, 1751, the last payment was made by the city for building and finishing this structure.—ibid., V: 327.
- " Two "feltmakers," Everardus Brower and Abraham de Lancey, are registered as freemen.—M. C. C., V: 271.
- 30 The attorney-general is ordered to prosecute Otto van Tysl for disrespectful words spoken of the governor and council, in a conversation with Solomon Comes, of Richmond County, relative to their respective claims to the Staten Island ferry.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 590; Cal. Coun. Min., 374.
- Oct. A German linguistic controversy arises in the Lutheran church, which splits the congregation.—See original Lutheran records, in possession of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. Matthew. See, further, March 22, and April 4, 1750.
- 2 A concert of vocal and instrumental music is advertised to be performed, for the benefit of Mr. Quin, "in the Court Room of the City Hall," on Oct. 16 (q.v.).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 2 and 9, 1749.

1749 The body of Johann Rynders, wife of David Provost, who died on this day, was later interred in a vault built for the purpose of the Provost estate. This vault stood until 1857 in Jones' Woods, on the block between Ave. A and East River, 71st and 72nd Sts.—See Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 530, showing a view of the vault, in which David Provost (who died Oct. 19, 1781), and others of the family, were successively interred.

16 "The Shew of the Wax-Work, and Maudlin, the Merchant's Daughter of Bristol, by Punch's Company of Comedians, for the Benefit of the poor Debtors in Prison in this City, are both put off till To-morrow, on Account of the Concert of Musick to be held this Evening at the City-Hall."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 16, 1749. See Oct. 2.

23 "... the Magistrates . . . have ordered an extraordinary Watch to be kept on his Majesty's next Birth Day, from the setting of the Sun 'till its rising; and are determined, strictly to put in Execution the . . . Law against firing Guns, or other Fire-works in the Streets."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 23, 1749.

30 James Wyatt advertises for the week "The Norfolk Tragedy, or, the Babes in the Woods" by "Punch's Company of Comedians," Thursday night being a benefit for the poor prisoners in the city hall.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 30, 1749. The "poor prisoners" were not all insolvent debtors, or course, for the relief of whom several acts of the legislature were passed from 1730 to 1775.—See Col. Laws N. Y., II: 669, 753; III: 312, 694, 822, 835, 866, 924, 939, 1019, 1099; IV: 10, 103, 370, 526, 533, 862, 949; V: 120, 126, 206, 416, 418, 595, 596, 701, 706, 826, 832.

The next week, another play by the same company was advertised to be given on Nov. 9 "for the Encouragement of the Free School in this City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 6, 1749. The play-house is not mentioned in either notice.

Nov. 6 One of the diversions of the period is indicated by the following advertisement of John Bonnin: "To be Shot for at Capt. Benj. Kiersted's . . . A large Rose Diamond Ring, value Sixteen Pounds. Each Person who inclines to try his Skill . . . is to pay Twenty Shillings, and to meet at said Kiersted's at two of the Clock in the Afternoon. N. B. Sixteen or Thirty Two Persons."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 6, 1749. This was at the "Sign of the Pineapple," on the new dock.—See March 18, 1755.

24 "The Gentlemen who perform at the Subscription Concert proposed to the Board that they would permit them to make use of the School Room in the new Charity School and prepare a platform and Closet proper they would pay ten Shillings for Each Night and play at a Benefit Concert for the use of the Poor Children, which proposal being Considered it was unanimously Agreed . . . paying so much for the same use as they find they Can afford out of their Subscription."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Dec. 4 An announcement is made that the property of the late Rip van Dam (deceased June 10, 1740) will be sold at public auction on Dec. 18. His estate includes the following: "1.—A large House and Lot of Ground fronting Maiden Lane, where the Deceased liv'd in. 2.—One House and Lot of Ground next adjoining to the said Deceased's House, now in the Tenure of Mrs. Marten. 3.—One House and Lot of Ground adjoining to last mentioned House, now in the Tenure of Garret St. Leger. 4.—One Lot of Ground between the House and Ground of Jacobus Kiersted and the last mentioned House. 5.—One Lot and small House fronting Nassau-Street, between the Kitchen of William Poppledorf, and the House of Barent Sebring. 6.—The aforesaid House and Lot of Ground in the Tenure of Barent Sebring, fronting the Street aforesaid. 7.—One House and Lot of Ground now in the Tenure of Mrs. Dunscomb, next the aforesaid House. 8.—One Corner House and Lot of Ground fronting both Maiden Lane and Nassau Street, in the tenure of Hugh Oneal. 9.—One House and Lot of Ground fronting Maiden Lane, in the Tenure of Mrs. Askell, between the House where Capt. Griffin lives and that of Mrs. Hall. 10.—One Bake-House fronting Crown-Street, Sixty odd Feet long, now in the Tenure of Denis Rusleer. 11.—Also, one Brew-House, Chaise-House, and Lot of Ground for a term of Years, which will expire in the Year 1770."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 4, 1749. See also his will in Abstracts of Wills, IV: 226.

1750

— In this year, parliament again prohibited, under penalties, the maintaining of iron and steel-mills in the colonies.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 223-24.

1750 In this year, Archibald Kennedy, the receiver-general of the province, wrote a pamphlet on the encouragement of trade and industry in the colonies. It was entitled Observations on the importance of the Northern Colonies under proper regulations. Although printed by Parker in 1750, Kennedy failed to issue it, inasmuch as the Right Hon. Henry Pelham ("Chancellor and Under-Treasurer, First Lord Commissioner of the Treasury, and One of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy-Council"), to whom it was addressed, had died. In 1765, Holt advertised the pamphlet at one shilling, the notice stating that Parker had not been paid for printing it.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 21, 1765.

From recollections written in 1828 it seems that about 1750 the locality of the present St. Paul's Church was a wheat field; also it was said that there was a "ferry house" in Broad Street, above Exchange Place (then Garden Street), where the Indians used to sit in the street, and make and sell baskets.—Watson, Annals of N. Y., 171-72. This tradition of a ferry-house in Broad St. appears to have no foundation in fact. The Dutch never ran any ferry up the gracht; and we do not find any record of such ferry being established in English days before the filling up of the ditch and the paving of Broad Street in 1676.

In this year, Thomas Clarke bought a house and tract of land (Liber Deeds, XV: 111-13, Albany), the house standing on what is now the south side of 232 St., 200 ft. west of Ninth Ave. It was destroyed by fire about 1776.—C. C. Moore, LL.D., in Man. Com. Coun. (1854), 536. Chelsea House was built on the same site subsequent to 1777 (q. v.).

The house-plan and furnishing of the home of Abraham Lodge, a successful lawyer, are described by Valentine to illustrate the style of living in New York at this period. The furniture of the front or spare bed-room may be considered typical of the best style of that day. It contained "A mahogany bedstead, with eagle claws; teaster and curtains of red-stamped camel; eight mahogany chairs, with red callamaneau seats; a large mahogany easy-chair, with eagle's claws, a crimson-silk damask cover and cushion; a mahogany dressing-table, with drawers; a mahogany tea-table, with eagle claws; a large iron-bound chest, two large sconces, with gilt frames; three large gilt-framed pictures, three small glass pictures, two small black-framed pictures, a large blue and white china bowl, six burnt-china coffee-cups and saucers, a painted table-cover, and a small gilt leather trunk." The other rooms were furnished in similar manner.—Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 521-22.

In this year, the making of mathematical instruments was conducted in New York by Anthony Lamb.—Bishop, Hist. of Am. Manufactures, I: 538-39. (See also Lamb's advertisement of an earlier date, under July 1, 1745.) Soon after this, metal buttons were manufactured by Henry Witeman, near the Fly Market.—Ibid.

At this time, Richard van Dyck, son of Peter van Dyck (see 1704), had a shop in Hanover Sq. Occasional advertisements in the New York papers from 1753 to 1756 show that he gradually drifted away from his early profession of silversmith, and became an importer of "pictures, European and Indian goods, looking glasses, sconces and Florence oyl." A bowl made by him is described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 60. See also ibid., xxx.

A silver strainer, made by Elias Pelletreau who was admitted as a freeman of New York in this year, is also described in ibid., 41.

Richard Smith advertises that he will open a school on this day "at the House of Mr. Kilmaster's, joining to the New English Church, in Beekman's-Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 1, 1750.

Isaac de Peyster is appointed treasurer or chamberlain to succeed his father, Cornelius de Peyster, deceased.—M. C. C., V: 280-81, 286. The latter had served for almost 32 years, having been appointed on Sept. 29, 1718 (q. v.).

As the freeholders of Harlem have granted the corporation of the city of New York leave to survey their lands, a committee of the common council is appointed to make this survey.—M. C. C., V: 280. This was a continuation of the Harlem Line controversy.—See Jan. 27, 1749; July 12, 1750. In this connection, there was made by Fraocis Maerschalck, some time this year, a carefully-drawn survey of that part of Manhattan Island lying between the present 34th and 155th Sts., to show the location of the "Division Line Between Harlem and New York Common." This map was preserved until recently in the office of Francis W. Ford,

1750

Jan. 8

9

- city surveyor (successor to Amerman & Ford), at No. 8 James 1750 St., New York. A photograph of it, in possession of the author, 9 is reproduced as Pl. 36, Vol. IV.
- 19 Adolph Philippe dies in his 85th year. He had been one of the king's council, a judge of the supreme court, and for many years a representative and speaker of the general assembly. He was interred
"in his own Church and Family Vault" at Philippsburgh.—
N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 22, 1750. See Aug. 19, 1763.
- 22 The first coach-maker of New York advertises his business thus:
"Chaise-Boxes, Chair and Kitterer-Boxes, with all sorts of Wheels and Carriages for the same, are made by James Hallett, on Golden-Hill, at the Sign of the Chair-Wheel; at the most reasonable Rates, with all Expedition."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 22, 1750.
His sign in later years became the "Sign of the Chair-Box and Carriage."—Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y. (1890), 13-14.
The "Riding Chaise," for which James Beekman paid £37 in Sept.
1757, may have been made by Hallett.—Ibid., 15. This, however, was not the Beekman coach, now in the collection of the N. Y.
Hist. Soc.—Ibid., 21. For definitions of the various vehicles of the period, see ibid., 19-21. Regarding the earliest use of various conveyances in New York, see under 1696; Man. Com. Coun., (1858), 505. The earliest known representation of a horse-drawn vehicle on Manhattan Island (1679-80) is found on Pl. 19, Vol. I (see mention on p. 231, Vol. I). See also Pl. 28, Vol. I (c. 1731).
- Feb. Two new fire-engines are brought over from London for the 4 use of the city, making a total of six in New York.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 5, 1750. On Feb. 22, a warrant was issued by the mayor to the treasurer to reimburse Brandt Schuyler to the amount of £193;13, for "the freight and Entry of two fire Engines lately Imported for the use of this Corporation," which he had paid; and it was ordered that the recorder and Mr. Schuyler "Do pay the Ballance Due to Mess<sup>rs</sup> Bakers for the same and what shall appear to be Due for passage."—M. C. C., V: 285. See Feb. 28.
- 23 Fire starts in the building of the charity school (see Nov. 7, 1748) kept by Joseph Hildreth, clerk of Trinity Church. Though the school "stood at a considerable Distance from the Church, yet the Flames ascended so high, and carried with them such Abundantly of live Coals, as to put the Church in imminent Danger, particularly the Steeple; which was set on Fire five several Times, almost at the Top, what little Wind there was setting directly on it; notwithstanding which, by the good Providence of God, and the Diligence and Activity of a few Persons within . . . it was happily extinguished. . . . There was scarce any Thing saved out of the House, from the Fury of the Fire; and we are assured, besides a great deal of Furniture and other Things, the Records of the Church are entirely consumed. The whole Loss sustain'd, is supposed to be near Two Thousand Pounds Value."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 26, 1750. See March 1. A poem regarding the occurrence was published in ibid., March 5. See also Jan. 11, 1753.
Hildreth was cleared of suspicion of having caused the fire.—Ibid.,
March 5, 1750.
- On the same day (Feb. 23), the vestry orders "that M<sup>r</sup> Charles Jandine forthwith Repair the Spire of Trinity Church and Repair the Fences round the Cimetery which were broke and burnt at the unhappy fire at the Schoolhouse this Morning and that he also make proper Ladders or Stairs to go up in the Belfry into the Spire of the Church."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See also description of Pl. 54-a, I: 414-15.
- On Nov. 16, 1767, Rev. Samuel Auchmuty, rector of Trinity Church, made an affidavit that "on the twenty fourth day of February, A. D. 1749/50, the Records of Christenings Marriages &c, belonging to said Trinity Church were unfortunately destroyed by fire; so that no other Records of Christenings can now be obtained, but from Family Bibles."—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Bulletin (Jan., 1922), citing the original MS. among the De Feyter Papers.
"For the Benefit of the Charity School," the tragedy of "The Orphan," by Otway, was presented on March 27 (q.v.) at "the Theatre in Nassau Street."
- A new schoolhouse on the same site as the old one was completed some time before Oct. 3, 1751 (q.v.).
- 26 A news item reads: "Last week arrived here a company of comedians from Philadelphia, who we hear have taken a convenient room for their purpose in one of the buildings lately belonging to the Hon. Rip van Dam, Esq. deceased, in Nassau street, where they intend to perform as long as the season lasts, provided they meet with suitable encouragement."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb.
- 26, 1750. On the same date, the paper contains an advertisement of a presentation, on March 5 (q.v.), of the tragedy of "King Richard III." "Wrote originally by Shakespeare, and alter'd by Colly Cibber, Esq." The play is to "begin precisely at Half an Hour after 6 o'clock, and no Person to be admitted behind the Scenes." On March 12, a farce, "The Beau in the Sudds," and, on the following Saturday, "a Tragy-Comidy," the "Spanish-Fryar; or, the Double-Discovery, wrote by Mr. Dryden," were to be presented.—Ibid., March 12, 1750.
- The common council appoints a committee "to get a sufficient 28 house built for one of the Large fire Engines to be kept in Some part of Hanover Square."—M. C. C., V: 288. See Feb. 4. Regarding payment, see Aug. 16.
- "The Committee Appointed the 23<sup>d</sup> of February last to Mar. Enquire who were Active and Serviceable in a particular Manner
1 at putting out the fire on the Spire of Trinity Church Reported that on their Enquiring they were Informed that Davis Hunt was the first Man in the Spire of the Steeple and he put out the two Lowermost fires being assisted by a fat Man whose Name he does not know and he soon went away. Andrew Gotier and Francis Davis put out the uppermost Flame in the Spire, and Gotier and David Robison [sic] a Tobaccoist put out the third flame in the Spire. M<sup>r</sup> Davison put out the flames on the Cornish [cornice] with one Cornelius M<sup>c</sup> Carty who was also very Active there.
M<sup>r</sup> Kippin the Blockmaker was all the time on the Roof of the Church and M<sup>r</sup> Gotier was also there for some time with him.
that this Information was Given them by Gotier, Davison, Hunt and M<sup>r</sup> Jandine" (£50 ordered distributed with the vestry's thanks).—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- The theatre in Nassau St. opens with a performance of "Rich-5 ard III" (see Feb. 26).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 26, 1750. It was closed on July 23, reopened on Sept. 13, and closed again on July 8, 1751.—Sonneck, Early Opera in Am., 15.
- William Bradford, Jr., Hanover Square, advertises his busi-12 ness as a dealer in various merchandise, including "Choice good old Madeira Wine . . . by the Pipe, also choice Iron Chimney Backs, and Plates for Caboosees." He also "gives ready Money for old Pewter and Brass."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 12, 1750. Cf.
Aug. 13, 1744.
- A reward of £60 is offered for the apprehension of "some low-11 liv'd People" who broke off and stole "the Brass Knockers of several Doors of Gentlemen's Houses" in the city, a practice which has been "frequently repeated" for some years past.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 11, 1750. See also ibid., March 25, 1751.
- Robert Provoost is appointed overseer of the poor and keeper 21 of the poorhouse, in place of Frederick Sebring (see May 27, 1747), who is incapacitated by blindness.—M. C. C., V: 289.
- Robert Benson conveys to Philip Grim et al. a "lott of ground 22 in Skinners St., Montgomery Ward," by an unrecorded deed (now in the possession of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co.) On the back of this deed David Grim has endorsed the statement that it was upon this land that the German Lutheran Church was built in 1750 (see, however, April 4), and that the structure was demolished in 1767. It was in the year 1767 (q.v., May 1) that this congregation removed to Christ's Lutheran Church (the "Swamp" Church) at the north-east corner of Frankfort and William Sts.—
Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches, 53-54; Goodrich, Picture of N. Y., 226. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 939; Pl. 174, Vol. III;
Pls. 34, 41, and 42, Vol. I.
- The earliest American play-bill known to be in existence 26 is for a performance of the tragedy called "The Orphan," given at the theatre in Nassau St. on this date. Acquired under the terms of the will of the late Evert Jansen Wendell, it is now owned by the Harvard College Library. See reproduction on Pl. 35-A, Vol. IV, from the photogravure published by the Club of Odd Volumes on the occasion of a lecture by Robert Gould Shaw, on "Collecting Theatrical Books and Play-Bills," given at the club-house, Boston, Feb. 18, 1910. It was reproduced in a small edition by the Club of Odd Volumes, together with a descriptive note by Mr. Geo. Parker Winship, and a copy of the original announcement of the play in the N. Y. Gazette, revised in the Weekly Post-Boy, for April 2, 1750.
- According to an advertisement, "The Orphan" (see Mar. 26) 27 is again to be presented, "By his Excellency's Permission: At the Theatre in Nassau-Street," for the benefit of the charity school, which was destroyed by fire on Feb. 23 (q.v.).—N. Y. Post-Boy, 1750 March 26, 1750. See also description of Pl. 30, II: 265, where the Me27 location of early theatres is discussed.

31 "Petty-Officers and Sea-Men" belonging to H. M. S. "Greyhound," who are absent with or without leave, are summoned by published notice to return to duty on board their ship "in Turtle-Bay, New-York," on or before April 10, or be punished as deserters, as directed by the act of parliament. Those absent without leave, and returning, will be pardoned.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 2, 1750.

Apr. 4 Certain "High Germans," who follow "the Faith and practice of Lutherans . . . after the method and manner of the High Dutch and in their Language," being debarred from assembling in their present church with other Lutherans, who differ from them by their "use and practice of their Religion in the Low Dutch Way," petition Gov. Clinton, and obtain from him a license to collect voluntary contributions for building a meeting-house.
Such a building stood, in 1754, at the north end of Cliff Street.
—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 294-95; Eccles. Rec., IV: 3106;
Pl. 34, Vol. I. See, further, May 1, 1767.

9 Andrew Ramsey, who, since late in 1749, has been proprietor of the Exchange Coffee-House in Broad St., which he leased of Nicholas Bayard (see Oct. 3, 1748), advertises that he "intends shortly for the West-Indies," and desires to dispose of certain property and settle his accounts.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 9, 1750.

25 Cadwallader Colden writes from "Coldenham," N. Y., to Dr. Betts, at University College, Oxford, in part as follows:
". . . the first principles of Action in Matter which were published in the Pamphlet you mention. I printed a few copies of that book in this place with a view only to submit it to the Judgement of some few men of learning The London Edition was without my knowledge You are the first in England that has been pleas'd to give me any particular sentiments of it & by my hearing so little on the subject I began to suspect that it had gain'd no esteem in the learned world & was neglected."—From the original draft of the letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in the N. Y.
Hist. Soc.

26 A committee is appointed by the common council "to Treat and agree with persons to Dismount the Carriage Guns of the Several Batteries within this City and to have them Laid upon Skids and the Carriages housed in proper and Convenient places."—M. C. C., V: 292.

" The common council appoints a committee "to agree with any person or persons to Remove the market house near the Battery at the Corner of pearle Street."—M. C. C., V: 293. See Feb. 28, 1746.

" A committee of the common council appointed "to Run out a plan of a peer on the west Side of Coenties Dock on a Range with the house now in the possession of M<sup>r</sup> David Abeel" reports a plan; and its execution is ordered.—M. C. C., V: 293. On May 2, another committee was appointed to purchase materials and employ workmen.—Ibid., V: 294. The expense of this work was met by corporate bonds.—Ibid., IV: 314, 342, 371; and see Nov.
5, 1750. On Aug. 23, 1751, the managers for building the pier were ordered to "take up the Two small Piers at each side of Coenties Dock and Remove and take away the same," as they were "very Inconvenient and Dangerous to the Market house there, in Case any Vessels fastned to the said Piers sh<sup>d</sup> Slip or Brake their fast." The managers were also required to use the materials in building the new pier.—Ibid., V: 345. For an alteration in the building plans, see July 8, 1752. This became known as the Albany pier.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988, where the date
"prior to 1767" should read: in 1750-1. It is first shown on the Marschalck Plan of 1755; Pl. 34, Vol. I.

" The agitation of several years which preceded the important development of the docks at Hunter's Key ("Rotten Row") began at others, asking "a Grant of the water Lots of this City opposite to their Lots."—M. C. C., V: 292. This was again read on Nov.
30, "praying Grants of the Water Lots fronting to Hunter's Key;" and there was also read a "Remonstrance of John Waters and others against granting the same;" consequently, action was again deferred.—Ibid., V: 317. The date for hearing the petition and remonstrance was postponed from time to time (ibid., V: 336, 339), until July 26, 1751, when the hearing took place. The letters patent of King George I to John Theobald and others were read; the subject was argued by counsel, but final consideration by the common council was again deferred.—Ibid., V: 342. This occurred again on Aug. 13, 1751, when the remonstrance of John McEvers and others came up in opposition.—Ibid., V: 343. No further action appears in the Minutes on this particular petition. Applications for water lots at Hunter's Key were renewed, however, on May 21, 1754 (q. v.), this time by William Walton and others; and in 1761 (q. v.) the subject was reopened and considered for seven years before grants were made. For the earliest mention of the name Hunter's Key, see Feb. 9, 1713, at which time it was established. It lay along the East River front from Old Slip to Wall St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 990.

The vestry of Trinity Church resolves "That all Lots to be let for the future be let for Twenty One Years and that at the Expiration of the Term the Buildings thereon be Valued and the Church have it in their Choice to take the Building at the Appraised Value or that the Tennant have Liberty to take away the Buildings."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Mordecai Gomez, merchant, one of the most prominent members of the early Jewish colony in New York, in his will of this date leaves to his sons Isaac and Jacob his "dwelling house and lot situate and lying in the Sloat." He was buried, according to his wish, in the Jews' burying-ground, a part of which still remains on the New Bowery below Chatham Sq., where his grave may still be seen. For early history of this burying-ground, see Aug.
23, 1728; Dec. 17, 1729; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 927.
The "Sloat" mentioned in the Gomez will was a narrow street at the rear of the lots on Hanover Sq. The present Beaver St.
includes part of it.—Abstracts of Wills, IV: 310. See also "Sloat Lane," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1009.

Richard Clark Cooke advertises that the "Gentlemen's and Exchange Coffee House and Tavern" is now kept at the "Sign of the King's-Arms, in the same House which was lately kept by Andrew Ramsey, near the Long-Bridge."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 7, 1750. See Oct. 3, 1748.

For stealing goods from a shop window, a man named David Smith is sentenced "to be whipp'd at the Carts Tail round the Town, and afterwards stand in the Pillory." The sentence was executed the next day.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1750.

John Bonin, who has opened a shop in Crown St., where he sells "Rum, Sugar, and most kinds of European Goods usually sold in Shops," advertises that his customers "shall be welcome to view his famous Optical Machine Gratis."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1750. See also Dec. 5, 1748; July 3, 1749.

"This is to acquaint the Publick, that there is lately arrived from London, the Wonder of the World, An honest Barber and Peruke-Maker, who might have worked for the King, if his Majesty would have employed him: It was not for the Want of Money that he came here, for he had enough of that at Home; nor for the want of Business that he advertises himself, But to acquaint the Gentlemen and Ladies, That Such a Person is now in Town, living near Rosemary Lane, where Gentlemen and Ladies may be supplied with the Goods as follow, viz. Tyes, Fullbottoms, Majors, Spencers, Fox-Tails, Ramalies, Tucks, cuts and bob Perukes:
Also Ladies Tatमतongues and Towers, after the Manner that is now wore at Court. By their humble and obedient Servant, John Still."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 21, 1750. "Rosemary Lane" has not been found in other advertisements or title records of the period.

Owen Rice and Rudolph van Dyck, deputies of the Unitas Fratrum (Moravians), inform Gov. Clinton by letter that they intend to build a church in New York City.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 596.

Thomas Lepper, "from London," who has been keeping a tavern at the "Sign of the Leopard," at the north-west corner of the great dock (see Aug. 29, 1748), from which he has recently moved to the "Sign of the Duke of Cumberland, opposite the Merchant's Coffee House," announces that he has opened a "Regular Ordinary."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 21 and 28, 1750.
Prior to Lepper's occupancy of this house, it had been conducted by George Burns, who removed, in the spring of 1750, to the Horse and Cart Tavern in William St. Lepper's tavern was the scene of a disagreeable fracas during a club meeting on Aug. 28, brought on by a certain James Porterfield, who had been informed that membership in the club had been denied him because he was "too talkative." The Post-Boy of Sept. 3 contained a long account of this unpleasant affair, which was evidently the "town talk" of the day. Before Nov. 19, Lepper had given up the tavern and

Apr. 26
May 1
3
7
8 14
21
23
28

- 1750 taken the ferry-house on Staten Island.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 19, 1750. June
- Cornelius Clopper, "living in Broad Street, near the Long-Bridge," advertises several lots for sale, "all lying together, adjoining to each other, and bounded easterly on Queen's-street, northerly on the Malt-House of Mr. Robert Benson, and the New Lutheran Church, and southerly on Stage-Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 28, 1750. The same advertisement in ibid., Sept. 24, mentions "Hague-Street" instead of "Stage-Street."
- 31 The popularity of horse-racing and the general use of carriages at this period is shown by the report of "a great Horse Race" which was run "on Hempstead Plains" (Long Island) on this day, "for a considerable Wager." It "engaged the attention of so many of this City, that upwards of 70 Chairs and Chaises were carried over the Ferry from hence the Day before; besides a far greater Number of Horses; and it was thought that the Number of Horses on the Plains at the Race, far exceeded a Thousand."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 4, 1750.
- June 11 An early instance of the "hunger strike" is found in the following record: "There is now in the Work-House one Hugh Windsor who designs to starve himself to Death, he having been thirty odd Days already without any Victuals at all, except Small beer and Water, Just to moisten his mouth, he is so low that he can scarcely speak (this is fact)."—N. Y. Eve. Post, June 11, 1750.
- " People in the city and country are notified that there are several children in the almshouse "from Ten Years and under, to be put out Apprentices." Applications for the children are to be made to Abraham Lefferts and Abraham van Wyck, church-wardens.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 11, 1750.
- " The gunner's mate, James Parks, of the English ship "Greyhound," having fired, on June 7, upon a boat belonging to Col. William Ricketts, of Elizabeth Town (the latter not understanding the signal to stop), and having killed a young woman in the boat, the coroner brings in a verdict of "Willful Murder."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 11, 1750. On Aug. 13, Parks, on being called to receive judgment, pleaded for pardon, and was discharged.—Ibid., Aug. 13, 1750. The case is thus summarized by Gitterman in his chapter on "George Clinton and his contest with the assembly," in Wilson's Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 275-76: "The boat carried a flag, which it did not strike on approaching the man-of-war Greyhound, commanded by Captain Roddam, Clinton's son-in-law. As it had failed to salute the man-of-war on previous occasions, the lieutenant in charge of her resolved to enforce the admiralty rule, . . . The assault had been committed between Governor's Island and the Battery, so that the coroner of the city claimed jurisdiction under the Montgomerie charter, and held an inquest. Captain Roddam, who had not been aboard his ship, returned and instantly put his lieutenant under arrest and sent his gunner's mate to testify at the inquest. Chief Justice De Lancey, on Rickett's complaint, arrested the gunner's mate for murder, even before he confessed his obedience to orders . . . Gitterman explains the bearing of the case upon the factional dispute between Clinton and De Lancey.
- 15 Trinity vestry orders "That the Committee Appointed for Building the Chappell of Ease [St. George's] have power to build Galleries therein and to agree (if they think proper) for the doing thereof and for the Inside work of the Chappell by the Great" (i. e., by contract).—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Jan. 14, 1751.
- " The committee of Trinity vestry appointed "to Agree with proper Persons for Rebuilding the School-house" (see Feb. 23) reports that they have agreed with John Brown and James Napier for £375 certain, and £25 more when the building is completed if they deserve it.—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 25 "To be Seen, next Door to the Play House, A most curious Piece of Rock and Shell-Work, superior to any Thing of the Kind in America; a lively Prospect of the memorable Battle of Culloden; with Views of several of the grandest Cities, Palaces, Hospitals, Water Works, &c. in Europe. The Rock and Shell Work, to be seen at One Shilling each Person, and the Prospects at One Shilling per Dozen: Children at half Price."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 25, 1750.
- 26 Herman Rutgers, brewer, by his will of this date, leaves to his son's widow the dwelling-house, "with the ground thereto belonging, in the East Ward of New York, with the rest of my land between Maiden Lane and my brew house, along Rutgers street, as the same is now railed in and planted with trees." He also orders that "the land between the ground of Vandewater and my lot planted with trees, and as far as my land extends eastward, shall retain the name of Rutgers street, and remain open for the use of all my children."—Abstracts of Wills, IV: 445-46. An excellent undated survey of the brewery property of the Rutgers family, on the north side of Maiden Lane, west of William St., now covered by Nos. 43-59 Maiden Lane, is in the Banker Collection.
- The common council appoints a committee "to meet the Trustees of the Town of Harlem and to bear the proposals to be Offered by them Relating to the accommodating and Setting the Controversie Depending between them and this Corporation for Lands Claimed as Commons of and belonging to this Corporation."—M. C. C., V: 298. On Aug. 23, 1751, Abraham Lodge, who had acted as attorney for the city in 1750 in a trespass and ejectment suit (ibid., V: 304), was appointed counsel for the city, together with Joseph Murray, in support of the city's title to the lands claimed by the town of Harlem.—Ibid., V: 345. This action evidently has reference to the disputed partition line (see Jan. 27, 1749; Jan. 9, 1750) which had been surveyed in 1727 (see April 25, 1727). The dispute "with Respect to the Boundaries of this Corporation and the Township of Harlem" continued until March 13, 1753, when the common council appointed a committee to meet a committee of the "freeholders of Harlem" to settle the difference.—Ibid., V: 397. It was not settled at that time, however, but ran on to March 20, 1771 (q. v.).
- The Boston post now puts up at Mr. Jonathan Ogden's, "the Sign of the Black-Horse, in the upper End of Queen-Street, near Mr. Robert Benson's."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 23, 1750. As in earlier years, the sign of the Black Horse hung from a tavern on William St. See Oct. 9, 1727. Ogden died some time before Feb. 16, 1753 (q. v.), and by Aug. 16 his tavern had been taken over by John Halstead.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 16, 1753.
- Gov. Clinton writes to Gov. Benning Wentworth, agreeing to the proposal to submit the question of deciding the boundary between New York and New Hampshire to the king. On Sept. 2, Gov. Wentworth replied, consenting to the exchange of representations made by each province separately to the king. On Sept. 29, the attorney-general of New York Province gave his opinion on the differences between the two provinces.—Doc. Hist. N. Y., IV: 537. See also a letter of March 23, 1751, from Gov. Wentworth to the lords of trade, relative to the boundary line, in ibid., IV: 548; and see Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 604. For further progress in the negotiations, see Dec. 16, 1763.
- "George Burns, who lately kept Tavern opposite the Merchants Coffee House," removes to the "noted Sign of the Cart and Horse."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 30, 1750. The tavern opposite the Merchants Coffee House was known as the Duke of Cumberland (see May 28). Burns's occupation of the Horse and Cart, which stood on William St., south of Fulton, was brief. On Jan. 28, 1751, the "well-accustomed Inn, known by the Name of the Sign of the Horse & Cart, . . . with all the Out-Houses and Stables," was offered to be let by Tomas Bohanna.—Ibid., Jan. 28, 1751. George Edmunds became proprietor in the early part of 1751 (see June 3, 1751), but in less than a year he had been succeeded by Edward Willett. From the advertisements of both Edmunds and Willett, it is apparent that the house had lost much of its former popularity. Willett says he has "reviv'd" the "once noted Horse and Cart Inn."—Ibid., March 23, 1752. From an advertisement of Thomas Grigg, in the Mercury of May 27, 1754, the house appears to have been turned into a furniture shop. Grigg announced that he had moved to the Horse and Cart, where he continued "to make house-chairs, couches, closestool chairs," etc. He offers to let the stables of the Horse and Cart.
- For a number of years, the Horse & Cart was mentioned as a landmark in records of property transfers; but no reference is found to its use as a tavern again until 1771, when the "Society of House Carpenters" fixed upon the house of Mr. David Phillips at which to hold its meetings, and where "drawing Plans, Elevations, and Estimates" were given.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 18, 1771. In later advertisements, David Phillips is mentioned as the proprietor of the "Horse and Cart."—Rivington's N. Y. Gazetteer, March 31, 1774. Although Bayles and other writers state that the house was known during the Revolution as the "Golden Hill Inn," no contemporary record has been found to substantiate this statement. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979-80; Pl. 174, Vol. III. The name of this tavern appears indiscriminately as "Horse and Cart" and "Cart and Horse."

1750 The Lutheran Church is struck by lightning and set on fire, Ag. 5 but is little damaged.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 6, 1750.

6 Michael Christian Knoll, late "Minister of the Lutheran protestant Congregation" (Doc. Hist. N. Y., 4to ed., III: 350-51), advertises "to give Information in Latin, French, Greek, and Hebrew, and Philosophy, and to teach Merchant's Accounts, and the Manner of keeping Books after the Italian Fashion."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 6, 1750.

14 Thomas Barnes surrenders his lease of the slaughter-house on the East River, and relinquishes his office of keeper.—See deed of surrender in Liber Deeds (City Grants), XXIV: 425. On Aug. 31, the common council approved the draft of this deed; and on the same day a committee was appointed "to view the Ground proposed by Mr Nicholas Bayard for the Building a Slaughter house."—M. C. C., V: 302. For further action of the board, see Sept. 12.

16 Capt. Thomas Clarke, a retired officer of the British army, buys an estate from Jacob and Tennis Somereydyke, consisting of a farm of several hundred acres bordering on the Hudson and running east as far as the present Seventh Ave.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 948. The house which was on this property was burned about the time of the Revolution, and its owner died soon afterward. The homestead called "Chelsea" was built on the site after 1777. It stood 200 feet west of the present Ninth Ave., between 22nd and 23d Sts., the grounds extending to the river whose banks then lay somewhat west of Tenth Avenue. It was rebuilt by Clarke's widow, "Miss Molly Clarke," who lived there until 1802. Her daughter, Charity Clarke, married the Right Rev. Benjamin Moore, D.D., Bishop of New York, whose son, Clement C. Moore, LL.D., lived there until 1850. In that house, in 1822, the latter wrote the famous verses beginning "'Twas the night before Christmas," which were first published in the Tray Sentinel, Dec. 23, 1823. The house was torn down in 1852-3.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 948; Kelley, Hist. Guide to the City of N. Y., 115; Man. Com. Coun. (1854), 536. For a survey of the Somereydyke property, see Oct. 9, 1780.

" The common council appoints a committee to direct "the Regulating Laying out and paving Beekmans Street and the Street Contiguous thereto in Montgomery Ward."—M. C. C., V: 300. On Sept. 1, the committee reported its plan for regulating these streets, beginning at a point opposite the middle door of the new English church (St. George's)—Ibid., V: 306. On June 28, 1751, the order regarding Beekman Street was revoked and a new committee appointed to perform the same services.—Ibid., V: 340-41. For early references to this street, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 993. Beekman Street was first shown on the Bradford Map of 1750 (see Pl. 27, Vol. I). It also April 25, 1803; March 11, 1816.

" The city of New York pays £201:11 for erecting a fire-engine house in the South Ward.—M. C. C., V: 300. On Nov. 30, another payment is made for "building a fire Engine house," probably in Hanover Square.—Ibid., V: 288, 317. See Feb. 28.

27 A horse-race is advertised to be run on Oct. 11, for "the New-York Subscription Plate of Twenty Pounds Value," by "any Horse, Mare, or Gelding, that never won a Plate before on this Island, carrying Ten Stone Weight, Saddle and Bridle included, the best in three Heats, two Miles in each Heat." Horses that are intended to run are to be entered the day before the race "with Adam Van Denberg, living on the Church Farm, paying Two Dollars each, and at the Post the Day of Running, paying Four." The entrance money is to be run for the day after, "by any of the Horses, except the Winner, and those distanced."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 27, 1750. See Oct. 11.

Sept. Two horsemen, called "the two Moor Princes," attempting to show "their Dexterity or their Ignorance on Horseback," run over and nearly kill a child; they are committed to jail.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1750.

3 Parker prints a letter, addressed to him and signed "Tribunus Populi," which refers to the unanimous re-election, "in the Field," on Aug. 27, of the four "Representatives for the City and County of New York" (in the assembly), "by a much greater Number of Persons than ever appeared there on the like Occasion." The writer continues: "It was observable that the Moment his Majesty's Writ was read, the People expressed the most ardent Affection for their former Representatives, by three of those popular and triumphant Huzzas, which are so extremely expressive of a People's Exultation at the Disappointment of the Court, when engaged against the Interest of the Country. From which we may fairly infer, that the Conduct of these Gentlemen is universally approved of by their Constituents, notwithstanding the false and maggoty Aspersions of some of our late ministerial Scribblers." Sept. 3

Parker also publishes a letter of thanks "To the Freeholders and Freeman of the City and County of New York," signed by the four assemblymen, David Clarkson, Cornelius Vanhorne, Paul Richard, and Henry Cruger, in which they declare that, while none of the people as usual "insisted in our Declaration as your Representatives in General Assembly to serve you gratis," they nevertheless will so serve them.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1750. Similar sentiments were expressed when they were re-elected in 1752 after a dissolution of the assembly.—Ibid., Feb. 24, 1752.

" Fraoics Lewis, "next Door to the Treasurer's in the Fly," offers for sale "White Sarments; white, black, brown, lemon, blue, plumb and pink colour'd  $\frac{1}{2}$  Ell and  $\frac{3}{4}$  wide Lutestring; green, blue and pink colour'd English Damask, black Alameda, white water'd Tabby; blue, brown and black rich Paduosoys; white and pink colour'd Ducapecs; black, white and Cloth colour'd Balladiene sewing Silks," besides window glass, wine, and "Boxes of Bristol Pipes."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 3, 1750.

4 Gov. Clinton reminds the assembly that the government of the province has been, for two years, without any financial support, and urges payment not only for past services but for the future support of the government.—Assemb. Jour., II: 276-77.

" The provincial council wears in Edward Holland as a member in place of Philip van Cortlandt, deceased, on receiving a royal mandamus appointing him.—Cal. Coun. Min., 376.

8 A notice is printed calling for a meeting at the Merchants Coffee House on Sept. 11 to take measures against the importation of English copper half-pence. The most effective means of checking their importation, it is believed, would be to follow the example of Boston and Philadelphia merchants and refuse to accept half-pence except at so reduced a value that there would be no advantage in importing them. As matters stand, neighbouring colonies benefit by sending their half-pence to New York. By reducing the value of the half-pence to fourteen for a shilling their importation would undoubtedly be checked, and they would pass at par in Philadelphia and New York, with a somewhat higher rate at Boston. Thirty merchants have agreed to meet at the Coffee House Sept. 11 "at 12 o' the Clock" to sign such an agreement, to which meeting all other merchants and others interested are invited.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 10, 1750. See Dec. 3, 1753; and Sept. 15.

12 Nicholas Bayard (see Aug. 14) is allowed by the common council to build a "publick Slaughter house pen and pinfold" (sic) on his own land in the Out Ward, adjoining the land of Mr. Minthorn. The exact location is defined as "on the south Side of the point of upland Near the fresh Water pond being about Eleven or Twelve Chains to the Westward of the high Road or Bowery Lane and three Chains to the Eastward of the said Fresh water Pond." The lease is for 21 years from March 25 last, on the same terms "as the Late publick Slaughter houses of this City were leased to John Kelly" (see July 22, 1756).—M. C. C., V: 303. The lease was ordered to be delivered to him Feb. 12, 1751.—Ibid., V: 323.

An agreement between the corporation and Bayard on Sept. 24 recited that, as the situation of the slaughter-houses on East River had become inconvenient and was likely to become a great nuisance, and since Bayard proposed to build slaughter-houses at his own expense on his farm in the Bowery Division of the Out Ward, —he was required by this agreement to build "three or more Good Substantial and convenient Slaughter houses and one or more Good and Sufficient pens and pinfolds." These were to be deemed "the publick Slaughter houses of the said City of New York." Bayard (or his executors, administrators, and assigns) was given the office of keeper; paying a yearly rent of one peppercorn on the feast-day of St. Michael the Archangel. These houses, with penfold and necessary tackle, were to be finished on or before the following Sept. 12, and thereafter kept by him in repair, scoured, and cleansed. He, or his successor, was not to receive more than one shilling for killing and dressing each head of cattle. Unless these accommodations become too small, no other slaughter-house is to be built in the Bowery Division of the Out Ward during the term of the grant. Persons may, however, slaughter elsewhere, on their own premises, for their own use.—From a copy, dated Oct. 1, 1765, of the grant to Bayard, on file in the city clerk's record-room. The original is entered in City Grants, XXIV: 425 et seq. See also Feb. 6, 1752; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 962.

- 1750 The common council passes an ordinance making it a "Standing Rule of this Board" that, "whenever a Committee shall be appointed for the future for any matter or thing to be done in any of the wards of this City," the "alderman of such ward shall be Chairman of such Committee."—M. C. C., V: 304.
- 12 On receiving an address from the assembly, the provincial council issues an order that the act for preventing the importation of copper money be reprinted.—Cal. Coun. Min., 376. See Sept. 8.
- " The provincial council grants a petition from Jacob Corson for a patent for his ferry between his land on Staten Island and the shore of Bergen in East New Jersey.—Cal. Land Papers, 258; Cal. Coun. Min., 377.
- 17 Henry Witeaman, who has served an apprenticeship with Casper Wister, "Brass Button-Maker in Philadelphia," advertises that he has "set up the same Business in New-York," at a shop "in Maiden-Lane, between the Fly-Market and the New Dutch Church."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 17, 1750.
- 24 Commenting on the presentation "at the Theatre," on the previous Thursday evening, of Addison's tragedy of "Cato," Parker observes: "As it was the fullest Assembly that has appear'd in that House, it may serve to prove, that the Taste of this Place is not so much vitiated, or lost to a Sense of Liberty, but that they can prefer a Representation of Virtue, to those of a loose Character."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 24, 1750.
- 25 It is estimated that £214:10 are necessary to repair the Copesey Battery.—Assemb. Jour., II: 281.
- 29 "In the province of New-York there is one collection or custom-house district, kept in the port of New York." For the twelve months, to this date, there were 232 inbound vessels, and 286 outbound vessels (ships, snows, brigantines, sloops, and schooners).—Douglass, A Summary, Historical and Political (1760), II: 259.
- Oct. "J. B." (James Bowdoin), writing from Boston to Benjamin Franklin at Philadelphia, on March 2, 1752, said: "The effect which the discharge of your four glass jars had upon a fine wire, tied between two strips of glass, puts me in mind of a very similar one of lightning, that I observed at New-York, October 1750, a few days after I left Philadelphia. In company with a number of Geaumeo, I went to take a view of the city from the Dutch church steeple, in which is a clock about twenty or twenty-five feet below the bell. From the clock went a wire through two floors, to the clock-hammer near the bell, the holes in the floor for the wire being perhaps about a quarter of an inch diameter. We were told, that in the spring of 1750, the lightning struck the clock-hammer, and descended along the wire to the clock, melting in its way several spots of the wire, from three to nine inches long, through one-third of its substance, till coming within a few feet of the lower end, it melted the wire quite through, in several places, so that it fell down in several pieces; which spots and pieces we saw. When it got to the end of the wire, it flew off to the hinge of a door, shattered the door, and dissipated. In its passage through the holes of the floors it did not do the least damage, which evidences that wire is a good conductor of lightning (as it is of Electricity) provided it be substantial enough, and might, in this case, had it been continued to the earth, have conducted it without damaging the building."—Quoted in Experiments and Observations on Electricity, made at Philadelphia, by Benjamin Franklin (1769), 180-81. See also The Works of Benj. Franklin, ed. by Bigelow, II: 242.
- Franklin added a footnote to "J. B.'s" letter, stating that, in the summer of 1763 (June 15, g.v.), after the wire had been replaced by a brass chain, the church was again struck by lightning with the same result. The chain was destroyed, and the door shattered, but the floor was uninjured. He adds: "The steeple, when repair'd, was guarded by an iron conductor, or rod, extending from the foot of the vane-spicule down the outside of the building, into the earth.—The newspapers have mentioned, that in 1765 [Aug. 30, g.v.], the lightning fell a third [error for fifth—see July 29, 1761] time on the same steeple, and was safely conducted by the rod; but the particulars are not come to hand."—Experiments and Observations, 181. Cf. Man. Com. Coun. (1850), 419. For the first, see July 3, 1732.
- It is stated in Macey's How to see New York and its Environs (1876), 44, that, in 1752, "From the belfry of this church [Middle Dutch] Franklin flew his silken kite, and taught the lightning he was its master." Unfortunately, we have been unable to find any authority supporting this statement.
- 10 On order of the provincial council of Oct. 8 (Cal. Coun. Min., 377), a proclamation is issued requiring owners of mills or engines for slitting or rolling iron, of every plating forge that works with a tilt hammer, and of every furnace for making steel, erected before June 24 last, to report the situation, with the names of the owners.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 595. This step was taken in conformity with a law of parliament against the erection of such works in the colonies.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 604-5; see also 1750. For the report concerning New York City, see Nov. 3.
- The "New-York Subscription Plate" (see Aug. 27) is run for "at the Church Farm, by five Horses, and wou by a Horse belonging to Mr. Lewis Morris, jun."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 15, 1750. The race was run again the next year.—Ibid., Sept. 9, 1751. See also April 16, 1753.
- James Birket rides to New York from Kingsbridge, after a tour of the cities of New England. He records in his journal that he dined, at Kingsbridge, at the tavern of one Stephensoos, a Quaker, "who keeps one of the Best Eating houses" he has visited. He says: ". . . we had a Bass fish taken out of the river by the door before our Eyes & some very Good oysters," adding: "This is one of the best built houses for a Tavern I have yet seen in America being all built of good Stone the Apartments large and lofty And a Noble Prospect down towards the Sound; Here we cross the River upon a tall bridge built of wood the Inn & this bridge belong to the Same person; This river is a Branch of the Great North River that breaks out of it a little above this bridge and comes down this way and runs into the Sound above New York and is what makes York Island, & in Spring tides the water flows up this branch until [it] runs into the North river, but is not [at] all Navigable As there's abundance of rocks between this bridge and North river." He describes "York Island" as being "very Narrow but Buffited with many handsome Seats belonging to the Gentlemen in York."
- Arriving in town, he "put up at the Sign of the Horse & Cart in the upper part of the City and prov'd to be very bad lodgings, altho' 'tis a house much used." He continues: "the wharf & places where there vessels lye are on the Eastside of the Town & for the whole Length of it there is a good depth of water And all vessels Load & Discharge without the help of boats or lighters which is very convenient,
- "Neither their Streets nor houses are at all Regular Some being 4 or 5 Story high & Others not above two, Not any of the Modern houses are built with the Gable End to the Street as was formerly the fashion amongst all the old Dutch Settlers, but are many of 'em Spacious Genteel houses Some are built of hewn stone Others of English & Also of the Small white Hollands Brick, which looks neat but not grand, their houses are Generally neat within and well Furnished. Notwithstanding there Still remains too many of the Old Dutch houses which prevents its Appearing to Advantage, The Streets (as above) are very Irregular & Crooked & many of 'em much too Narrow they are Generally pretty well paved which adds much to the decency & Clean-ness of the place & the Advantage of Carriage, The Water in the Pumps & Springs here is a little of the Brackish tast they fetch the Water all without the Gate that they use for Tea &c & several people get their Living by carting of it into town where they Sell it by the pale &c (see also Oct. 30, 1748).
- "Their Publick Buildings are; first the City Hall a large Strong Stone Building the lower part is Seemingly intended for a Change to meet in, as it Stands all upon Arches and is Open like a Market house; Above Stairs are Apartm<sup>ts</sup> for the Gov<sup>rs</sup> Councell & Assembly to meet in, And make Laws for the good of the province, there Also is Other Rooms for the Courts of Justice to Sit in, and Order these Laws to be put in due force & Execution And in Order to make the Most of this Building they Have converted the Garrarts into a prison for D<sup>es</sup> & fellows a Comfortable place Say, take it throughout; the Gov<sup>rs</sup>—house is in fort George and makes a good appearance at a distance there was a Church of England Chapell within this fort but was burnt down in the time of their Negro plot. This fort is well Sittuated to maul the Ships as they come up being very low, And close by it to the East ward is a fine battery which mounts a great Number of Guns almost Even with the water's edge; There is also five Market houses fixed at proper distances from the water Side & from One Another, Only three of them is much frequented, And I am of Opinion if they were all Fixed in one place it would be much the best; Here are two Episcopal Churches, which are Large & Strong Buildings of Hewn 1750 Stone, and as it must be Allow<sup>d</sup> to be the most fashionable religion, So it Seems to me here as well as in most other parts of North America to Prevail here is also Four Dutch Churches Two of the Lutheran the Other of the Calvinistic Order, All which are Large, & formerly were very much crowded but many of the young People fall of to the National form; As do the young people in General from the French Church which now has but a Small Congregation, Here is also a Presbyterian Meeting house which is Large, and has great number of that Society which frequents the Same, and duly attend their prayers, Lectures &c 3 times every Sabbath day; One Jews Synagogue, And one meeting of Friends which is but small their Meetinghouse is of Brick which is neat, built about Two years ago, 1 Moravian & 1 Whitefield m<sup>d</sup> do<sup>o</sup> but both in private houses [see also Oct. 30, 1748 and 1756].

"The People here are very gay in their dress but more particularly in the furniture of their houses &c They have of Late a very Extensive trade to the Bay of Honduras for Log wood which has been of great Service to the Place in making their European Remittances for dry goods &c which without this trade puzzles them a good deal when bills are Scarce."

"They also Build many vessels here of all Sizes, And are well Supply'd with Timber from the Jerseys from Long Island And also from Statten Island which I believe to be the Best in this part of the Country as it grows near the Sea and upon a Clay Soil.—Some Curstury Remarks Made by James Birket in his voyage to North America 1750-1751 (New Haven, 1916), 39-46.

"In the year 1749 the Houses in this City [Phila.] were Carefully Number'd And found to Amount to 2076 By which it Appears to be the Largest City in our America for in the year 1746 by an Exact Acc<sup>o</sup> And that upon Oath, there was only 1760 Dwelling houses in Boston and in New York in the year 1751 there was 2050 houses" (see 1755).—Ibid., 66-67.

13 Daniel Obrien advertises that he has a stage-boat for transporting both people and merchandise which, "if Wind and Weather permit, shall attend at the late Col. Moore's Wharf in New-York, every Wednesday in every Week, (and at other Times if Occasion) and to proceed to the Ferry at Amboy on Thursday, where, on Friday Mornng, a Stage Wagon, well-fitted, shall be ready to receive them, and immediately proceed to Borden's-Town, where there is another Stage Boat ready to receive them, and proceed directly to Philadelphia. All People may depend on the best Usage, and all Passengers and Merchandise shall be transported at the same Rates as are customary from New-Brunswick to Trenton: And as the Passages by Water are much shorter and easier perform'd than the Brunswick-Way, and the Roads generally drier, it is hoped this Way will be found the most deserving of Encouragement."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 22, 1750. Cf. March 25, 1751.

19 Gov. Clinton, in a brief message to the assembly, refers to the "House, and stables, belonging to the Fort," and recommends their completion.—Assemb. Jour., II: 292. See Oct. 23, 1747, and Nov. 24, 1750.

22 An anonymous writer discusses trade conditions in New York. The "great Frauds carried on in the manufacturing Wheat into Flour, in the Article of Bread Reef, Pork, Bacon, are so notorious abroad," he says, that he has often been asbamed to own that he is a native of this place. When such commodities are wanted, only enough are purchased to satisfy present wants "till some Vessel arrives from Philadelphia, for a Supply of better Commodities of the Sort."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 22, 1750. This complaint, in the shape of a remonstrance from the grand jury of the city of New York, was laid before the assembly on Oct. 24 (q. v.).

24 The assembly receives from the grand jury for the city of New York a remonstrance, stating that for some years past many complaints have been made in the West Indies and other places regarding the poor quality of New York flour, "the staple Commodity of this Province." The grand jury seeks action by the legislature in this matter.—Assemb. Jour., II: 294-95. For an early complaint, see Dec. 19, 1715.

On Oct. 28, a number of merchants also addressed a petition to the assembly and complained that "of late Years such great Abuses have been committed in the packing, marking, and selling, New-York Flour . . . that those Markets [French and Spanish West Indies] have absolutely refused to purchase the same." These merchants also asked for action to overcome these evils.—Ibid., II: 295-96. In response, a law was passed, regulating the exportation of flour.—See Nov. 24.

Oct. One John Durgan, having been convicted of stealing, and "being by Law entitled to his Clergy," was last week "burnt in the Hand."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 29, 1750. The old English law of "Benefit of Clergy," whereby an offender purges himself of a felony, was not wholly repealed until 1827.—Cent. Dict. (title "Clergy"), citing the statutes of 7 and 8 Geo. IV.

The king's birthday is celebrated. A house at the corner of Pearl St. near Whitehall Slip takes fire, "it is supposed from some Squibs thrown by the Boys."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 5, 1750.

This fire induced one of the citizens to write to James Parker, for publication, some hints for the safety of the city, in which he says, in part: "It is well known, that the Fires in this Town of late, as that in Duke Street, the School House [see Feb. 23], and This, happen'd to be situate within Reach of the Rivers; by which Means, the Engines could be supplied without great Difficulty . . .

"But suppose a Fire should come to a Head . . . in the Heart of our City, how should we master it? The Wells and Cisterns in a Neighbourhood, we know are soon dry . . ."

"I propose, that a Drain, or Brick Channel, may be carried up at Low-Water Mark, from under the Long-Bridge, in Broad Street; that, at three or four convenient Places opposite to Thwart Streets, a large Pump or two be fixed in such Draia or Channel, to serve in Case of Fires in those Streets or Neighbourhood; that the Drain end in a large Well or Basin, near City-Hall, having three or four pumps to serve in all the Neighbourhood about that publick Building; and perhaps an Expedient may be found to convey the Water issuing out of this inexhaustible Fountain, by some Means or other, to other parts of the City remote from the Water Side. The same I would propose, to be put in Practice from under the Fly-Market, up to, or near the Widow Rutgers's Brew-House, as also in any other convenient Part of the City; so that we were sure to find Water in any Part of the Town, although remote from the River Side; for as we are still striving to bring the River farther off, by wharfing out, we ought to be secure another Way. I think it would not be amiss, if the Magistrates should reserve in their Grants, certain Sinks, Slips or Drains, to let the River Water come to its old Stations, for such Use; . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 5, 1750. Cf. Jan. 11, 1753.

The assembly orders that the commissioners appointed under an act for repairing and completing the fortifications of the colony, and for building a new residence for the governor (see Oct. 19), shall submit to the house sworn statements of the disposition of all money entrusted to them.—From the original order in the Jay Papers in folder lettered "Twenty-eight Documents," N. Y. Hist. Soc. The assembly made additional provision for this work on Nov. 24 (q. v.).

3 Sheriff John Ayscough, of the city and county of New York, makes a return that there are no mills or engines for slitting or rolling iron, and similar work, in his "bailiwick." The same return is made by the sheriffs of other counties. Joseph Sackett, Jr., reports that there are iron works at Munderskill, called fireary works, supposed to be in Ulster Co., belonging to the estate of Nathan<sup>l</sup> Hazard, deceased, and Samuel Braster.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 595. See Oct. 10. On Dec. 14, Clinton issues a certificate that there was a plating forge with a tilt hammer, but not in operation, belonging to Laurence Serawley, blacksmith, at Wawaganda, Orange Co., and that there were no plating forges, mills, or engines for slitting or rolling iron, or any furnaces for making steel, within this government.—Ibid., 596. See Dec. 5.

5 For the second time, the city issues a municipal bond. The first occasion was on March 31, 1731 (q. v.). The present bond is issued to Christopher Baucker, merchant. It provides for a payment to him of £260 on Nov. 5, 1752, under penalty of £520; and is to cover the expense of building the pier at the west end of Coenties Dock, which has already cost £2471127.—M. C. G., V: 314; see also April 26, 1750. To pay this obligation (which it did on Jan. 15, 1754), the city was obliged to borrow from the excise revenue, under a special act of assembly passed for the purpose.—Ibid., V: 434. After this the issuing of corporate bonds became frequent.—Consult ibid. (Index), VIII: 188, title "Bond." See also Man. Com. Coun. (1859), 508.

The "Play-House is new floor'd, and made very warm."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 5, 1750.

Parker advertises a reprint he has made of "All the Twenty-four Songs of the famous English Archer, bold Robin Hood."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 5, 1750.

- 1750 The "House in the Commons, formerly called, the Horse & Manger [see 1748], belonging to Edward Broomhead, Coachman Nov. 12 to the late Governor Burnett," is the subject of an advertisement of one George Dobbins, who desires to discharge any outstanding mortgages upon the property.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1750.
- " "We hear Capt. Tingley, in the Ship Indian King, from Holland, is arrived at Sandy-Hook, with a Number of Passengers on board."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1750. On Nov. 19, the paper reported that "Capt. Tingley, mentioned in our last, is come up [to town], and has bro't in about 340 Palatines, all well."—Ibid., Nov. 19, 1750.
- In this connection, Parker prints the following request: "An eminent Professor in the greatest University in Germany, has lately desired a Gentleman of Pennsylvania, to send him an Account of the first Settling of Germans in North-America, and what Encouragement was then given them, with the Situation and Privileges they now enjoy; in order to have it printed. Now as the first German Settlers were several Palatine Families, who came into New-York Province; and for their Encouragement had a Patent for Land near Newberry [Newburgh] in the High-Lands, with a Glebe of 500 Acres for a Lutheran Minister, &c. if any Person is acquainted with that Affair, and will communicate a faithful History thereof in writing, to the Printer hereof, as it will greatly contribute to the Satisfaction of that Professor, and undeceive the poor Germans, so it will be thankfully received, and communicated to the Publick; and will, doubtless, much oblige all Lovers of Truth, Liberty, and Property."—Ibid.
- 19 For materials and work furnished in completing the house in Fort George (see Nov. 1), building a cover over the fort gate, and repairing the fences around the fort pasture, the assembly allows Charles Jaundine the sum of £175:10.—Assemb. Jour., II: 305. For other work there, done in 1749 and 1750, Tunis Jacobs was allowed £65:5, and Lawrence Rourke the sum of £70:2; for glazing and painting the House in Fort George.—Ibid., II: 323, 347.
- " "Thomas Lepper, Who lately kept Tavern opposite the Merchants' Coffee House in New York [see May 22] is removed to the Ferry House, on Staten Island, late Solomon Comb's [see March 17, 1749], where he will continue to keep good Entertainment, and has good Boats and Boatmen to attend the Ferry. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 19, 1750.
- 24 Provision is made by the legislature for paying the salaries of a number of provincial officers. Among these appropriations are the following: £40 for taking care of the cannon and several batteries; £10 for taking care of the battery and cannon at Red Hook; £14 to Philip Verplank for surveying and laying out the ground "to Erect a Curtain about the City of New York & Drawing a Plan of the Same" in 1747; and £305:10 for "Building & Compleating a Stable [see Oct. 19] for his Excellency, & Providing Materials for the Same."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 793-815.
- " A provincial statute is passed "to restrain Tavern Keepers and Inholders from Selling Strong Liquors to Servants & Apprentices & from giving Large credit to others." No tavern-keeper is allowed to sell liquors to a servant or apprentice without the consent of his or her master. Nor is a tavern-keeper permitted to receive from a servant or apprentice any clothing or other goods in payment for liquors or in pawn. See Dec. 3, 1657. A tavern-keeper is further prohibited from giving credit over six shillings to any person other than a traveller.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 756-59.
- " A statute is enacted "to prevent the Exportation of Unmerchable Flower & the false Tareing of Bread and Flower Casks." This act is passed because the "Flower of this Colony (its Greatest Staple) has in a Great measure lost its Reputation abroad" (see Oct. 24). Every bolter of flour or baker of bread is ordered to provide himself with a brand mark with which he is to designate every cask exported from the city of New York. All bolters and bakers are also notified to enter their brand marks with the clerk of the court of general sessions.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 788-93. The brand marks were entered in the Minutes of the Court of General Sessions, March 21, 1750 (manuscript volume in custody of clerk, criminal court bldg., Centre St.).
- " A provincial law is passed which provides that the laws of the colony be revised, digested, and printed. For a consideration of £280, William Livingston and William Smith, Jr., agree "to revise digest & collect in one Volume exact Copies of all the Laws in Force in this Colony" from the revolution (1691) to the end of the present session of the general assembly. At the rate of 20 shillings for every sheet of printed paper, James Parker undertakes to print the book "on the best Paper & large Folios & with the usual Types for Such Work, and to deliver one Printed Book thereof compleatly bound in Calves Skins" to the governor, one to the counsel, and one to the general assembly. This act repeats the one of Nov. 27, 1741 (q.v.).—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 832-35.
- Under the authority of this act, the edition of the statutes made by Livingston & Smith was published on Aug. 10, 1752 (q.v.). The same editors published the colonial laws enacted since 1751, down to and including May 22, 1762.—Ibid., I: "Explanatory Note." See also Dec. 20, 1763. The work done by Livingston and Smith in 1750-2 was previously undertaken by Horsmanden in 1741.—See Nov. 13, 1741; July 4, 1745.
- " The provincial legislature passes an act for the "Relief of Insolvent Debtors with Respect to the Imprisonment of their Persons." If the debts of any person confined in jail for insolvency do not exceed £50, he or she may appear before a court and submit an account of all assets and liabilities. Wearing apparel, bedding, tools and instruments of trade, not over £5 in value, are exempted from the operation of this statute. The debtor must also swear that since imprisonment no property has been sold, leased, or otherwise disposed of for self-aggrandizement or to defraud creditors. Satisfied with the truth of such declarations, the court may order an assignment of the debtor's goods for the benefit of creditors, and the debtor shall be discharged from custody.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 822-28. Another act respecting debtors was passed Nov. 25, 1751 (q.v.).
- Dec. 3 The public is notified that "there is newly opened a Tavern, at the Sign of the Bunch of Grapes, near the Widow Rutger's Brew-house, going up towards the Cart and Horse."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 3, 1750. In a later advertisement, the proprietor of the newly opened tavern is mentioned as George Edmonds.—Ibid., Dec. 31, 1750. Within a few months, Edmonds had removed to the well-known Horse and Cart Tavern.—See June 3, 1751. The Widow Rutger's brew-house, often mentioned as a landmark in property descriptions, stood at the present 47, 49, and 51 Maiden Lane, near William St. Cf. the "Bunch of Grapes" Tavern mentioned by John Adams on Aug. 20, 1774 (q.v.), and by Bayles, in Old Taverns of N. Y., 269.
- 5 The provincial council issues an order on receiving from the Duke of Bedford a letter enclosing the act of parliament relating to American iron.—Cal. Coun. Min., 378. See Oct. 10, and Nov. 3, 1750.
- 10 James Alexander, who has just been restored to his seat in the provincial council (Cal. Coun. Min., 378), writes from New York to Cadwallader Colden in part as follows: "I have dined once with the Gov<sup>t</sup> [Clinton] at the fire & once at Rutgerfoords, my wife & I was with the Club on fryday night last at the fire, & the Club is to be at my house on fryday next, the Gov<sup>t</sup> seems very cheerful and in good health, you have been his toast every of those three times that I have been in Company with him, on fryday night M<sup>rs</sup> Clinton found fault with his toasting of you for that you were her Constant toast."—From the original letter, preserved with the Colden Papers, in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- " Gay's famous opera (the first musical drama written in English), "The Beggar's Opera," is presented at "the Theatre in Nassau-Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 10, 1750. See also Jan. 7, 1751.
- 18 Gov. Clinton sends a circular letter to the president of the council of Connecticut, and to the governours of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and North Carolina, inviting each to send commissioners to a meeting with the Six Nations at Albany in June.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 595. See 1751.
- 21 The report of a committee of the common council "for surveying the Water Lots Contiguous to Pecks slip" is read (but not entered of record); whereupon, the board proposes to Benjamin Peck that, if he will "quit Claim to the Street Lying to the South east of his Lot," they will grant him a water lot 75 feet in breadth back of his lot, to extend 200 feet into the East River. He refuses "to Comply" with this proposal.—M. C. C., V: 320. Again, on Feb. 12, 1751, the board proposed to him that, if he would release this street, they would grant the water lot to him, in fee simple, at a yearly rental of 18 pence per foot, and pay him £52.—Ibid., M. C. C., V: 323-24. He accepted this proposal on March 22, with the proviso that the yearly rental should commence

(THIS PLATE, WHICH WAS WRONGLY NUMBERED, WILL BE FOUND IN CHRONOLOGICAL SEQUENCE, FOLLOWING PLATE 37A)

A. TITLE-PAGE OF FIRST EDITION OF SMITH'S HISTORY OF NEW YORK, 1757.
SEE P. 687.

B. PAGE OF SMITH'S MS. "CONTINUATION," CONTAINING REFERENCE TO THE CONFLAGRATION OF MARCH 18, 1741. SEE PP. 565, 566, 687.

- 1750 March 25, 1752, and that the board would pay him £32:10, and permit him "to put the Beams of his house into the Walls of the 21 ferry house which may hereafter be built by this Corporation on their Water Lott Next Adjoining" to his lot. This the board agreed to.—Ibid., V: 329-30. See March 6, 1752.
- 25 Rev. Louis Rou, pastor for "upwards of 40 Years past" of the French Protestant Reformed Church in New York, dies. On the following Saturday, he was interred in the French Church, "near the Pulpit he had so long occupied."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 31, 1750. This interesting evidence proves that there were burials in the French church, as in Trinity and the Dutch churches, in New York City.
- 31 "Ann Stockton, lately arrived from England, has just opened an Ordinary, at the House lately possess'd by Mr. Richard Cooke Clark, opposite to Mr. Franks's in Dock's-Street. . . . Dinners and suppers are "from One Shilling to Two Shillings Price, dress'd after the best Manner." . . . N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 31, 1750. This house "in Dock's-Street" could not have been the Exchange Coffee House or King's Arms, as some writers have assumed, since at this time that tavern was on Broad St., just north of the corner of Water and Broad Sts. The house referred to must have been that from which Clark removed when he took over the King's Arms in the spring of 1750 (see May 7, 1750). At any rate, Ann Stockton appears to have abandoned the idea of tavern-keeping almost immediately, having been "advised to teach young Ladies to sew and embroider, and Millenary."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 21, 1751.

1751

- In this year, George Washington, 19 years of age, was appointed adjutant-general for the Northern District of Virginia.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 268.
- In this year, Maerschalck made a survey of the city from Partition (Fulton) St. northward to Reade St., and from Broadway to the North River. His drawing shows the old line of fortifications and gates along Chambers St.; also the "Boulding Green," between Warren and Chambers Sts., near the river. This manuscript plan was recently in the collection of old maps owned by Francis W. Ford, city surveyor (successor to Amerman & Ford). See description of Pl. 34, pp. 275-76, Vol. I.
- In this year, Maerschalck also made a map of Kip's Bay, which, also, in 1910, was in the Ford collection.
- In this year, Archibald Kennedy wrote and published, from the press of James Parker, The Importance of Gaining and Preserving the Friendship of the Indians to the British Interest Considered. It is one of the timely and important tracts written by Kennedy, relating to the political and economic affairs of the province. A letter at the end was written by Benjamin Franklin.
- In this year, Archibald Kennedy, the receiver-general published (N. Y., 1751; London, 1752), a tract advocating a plan of union for the colonies. He urged a yearly meeting of commissioners from the various colonies at New York or Albany, to arrange the quotas of troops, to apportion the expense, and to provide for joint payments for the importation of immigrants. There is a copy of this pamphlet in the John Carter Brown Library at Providence (see that library's catalogue, III: 955, 975).
- During the early part of this year, little else was done in New York than prepare for the great Indian congress at Albany. Gov. Clinton invited representatives of all the colonies from New Hampshire to South Carolina to meet the Six Nations for compacting a league.—See Dec. 18, 1750; Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 612. The journal of the commissioners is in the Mass. Archives, XXXVIII: 160. See also Winsor, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 279. See, further, April 12.
- Jan. 3 Alexander Colden is appointed surveyor-general with his father (see April 19, 1720).—Cal. Coun. Min., 378. On Feb. 10, 1762 (q. v.), he assumed the total responsibility of the office.
- 7 An advertisement announces the presentation, at the theatre in Nassau St. (see Feb. 26, 1750), on Jan. 14, of "The Beggar's Opera," with entertainments between the acts: at the end of the first act, "a Harlequin Dance;" after the second, "a Pierot Dance," and at the end of the play, "the Drunken Peasant," all "by a Gentleman lately from London." To all this will be added a farce entitled "Miss in her Teens." And an oratorio, sung by Mr. Keen, for whose benefit the performance is given.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 7, 1751.
- 8 The Staten Island ferry-boat is caught fast in the ice and driven by the tides back and forth before the city until "the next

- Evening," when the passengers, "without Sustenance," are put ashore "at the lower Ferry in the Narrows, on the Loog Island Side."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 14, 1751.
- 10 "Order'd That the Committee Appointed for Leasing the Church Lands have Power to Agree with Dirck Dye about Leaving a Street between the Church Lands and his upon such Terms as they shall think Convenient."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See March 8.
- 14 The committee of Trinity vestry, empowered on June 15, 1750 (q. v.), to employ workmen to build galleries, pews, and other inside work for "St. George's Chappel" (so called for the first time in the records), advertises that it will meet every Friday at 2 o'clock at the house of William Cook, near the city hall, to treat with carpenters and masons who will undertake to do this work.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 14 and 28, 1751. The committee reported to the vestry on Feb. 4 that workmen had been engaged.—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 21 A notice is published declaring that the "Keeping Accounts, and giving Credit for Postage of Letters" is troublesome and inconvenient, and that hereafter no letters will be delivered at the post-office till the postage is paid.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 21, 1751.
- " James Parker, in answer to reports "that Mr. [Thomas] Kean [see N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 7], for his Benefit Night on Monday last, had caused a greater Number of Tickets to be printed than the House would hold," certifies that "there were but 161 Pit Tickets, 10 Boxes, and 121 Gallery Tickets, printed in all; and it is well known that as large a Number have been in the House at one Time." He explains that, "Tho' it was then determined not to receive any Money at the Door, it was afterwards found to be a Measure impracticable to be followed without great Offence; and such whose Business could not permit to come in Time, have since had their Money return'd."—Ibid., Jan. 21, 1751. The small capacity of the "Playhouse" or "Theatre" on Nassau St. appears to be thus definitely established. For its exact location and history, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 985.
- " A man "lately come to Towro," who "keeps at Scotch Johnny's, upon the Dock," advertises for pupils to form a Latin school.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 21, 1751. Some time prior to this date, John Thompson, generally known as "Scotch Johnny," opened a tavern on Whitehall Slip near the halfmoon battery, at the "Sign of the Crown and Thistle."—Ibid. His tavern was patronized by travellers passing back and forth on the ferry, and was also, very properly, the meeting-place of the St. Andrew's Society. Thompson retired in 1758, and was succeeded by George Burns, who had been conducting a tavern on Wall St., "opposite the Presbyterian Meeting House," at the sign of Admiral Warren. Burns retained the old sign for a time, but by Nov. 17, 1760 (q. v.), had replaced it by the Sign of King George's Head. On June 13, 1763 (q. v.), Burns having moved to the Province Arms, in Broadway, John Graham, formerly proprietor of the Duke of York's Head, also at Whitehall, announced that he had moved to the house lately kept by George Burns. His stay was brief. Perhaps by this time the old tavern had lost its popularity. By May 14, 1764, Graham had removed to the "Sign of the Marquis of Granby in Elizabeth Town."—N. Y. Gas., May 14, 1764.
- " Notice is given that a committee of the vestry of Trinity Church will meet every Friday, "at 2 o'clock in the Afternoon, at the House of William Cook, near the City-Hall, . . ."—N. Y. Gas., Jan. 21, 1751.
- 28 "That well-accustomed Inn, known by the Name, of the Sign of the Horse & Cart," is advertised by Tomas Bohanna to be let.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 28, 1751. See June 3.
- Feb. 1 "Cadwallader Colden writes from "Coldenhag" to Prof. Carolus Linneus, of Upsala, Sweden, in part as follows: "I never saw an Opossum nor heard of any in this Province I think Seals have been seen in the Bay before you come up to the City of New York on rocks near Staten Island."—From the original letter, with Golden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Compare Kalm's Travels, Oct. 30, 1748.
- 4 "A Large Stable and Chaise-House, that will hold two or three Chaises, behind White hall Slip, facing Copsy Battery," is advertised to be let by Obadiah Huot, "living near the same," who states "tis ready for receiving Horses for and from the Ferry-Boats, and seldom wants Custom, if Attendance."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 4, 1751; see also ibid., Feb. 17, 1752.
- 11 A windstorm breaks, or bends down, the "Iron Work, Ball and Cock" on the spire of the Presbyterian church.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 18, 1751.

- 1751 "The publick Whipper of the City of New-York being lately
Feb. dead; if any Person inclineth to accept that Office with Twenty Pounds a Year, he may apply to the Mayor, and be entered."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 11, 1751.
- "An advertisement, seeking the return of a run-away negro boy, states that he "Had on a blue Watch-Coat."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 11, 1751. We have seen, as early as Nov. 9, 1698 (p. v.), that blue was the colour adopted for the "Liverly" of the mayor's marshal. At some subsequent time, it appears to have been adopted for that also of the watch.
- 12 The common council appoints a committee to regulate Queen Street (part of the present Pearl St.), "from Alderman Benson's Malthouse to Fresh Water."—M. C. C., V: 323; Landmark Map
Ref. Key, III: 1008.
- "The common council appoints a committee to run the lines between the lands of the corporation and those of Jacob Duyckman in the Bowery Division of the Out Ward.—M. C. C., V: 323. The order involves determining the line of the Common Lands. Cf.
map of the Harlem line and surrounding territory, drawn by Francis Maerschalk in 1750 (see Jan. 9, 1750).
- 18 This date is found on a manuscript survey of the Trinity Church property, drawn by Francis W. Maerschalk, city surveyor. It is reproduced and described in Vol. III, Addenda, Pl. 3-b. See also March 8.
- "Francis Moore, widow of the late John Moore, a prominent merchant, advertises for sale "Four Lots of Ground, situate on the South Side of Crown-Street, being one half of the Ground commonly known by the Name of Barberie's Garden; each Lot containing in Breadth in Front 25 Feet, and in Length about 100 Feet."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 18, 1751. On May 14, 1753, Mrs.
Moore and John Barberie of Perth Amboy advertised various lots to be sold, including "A Lot of Ground situate at the West-Side of Crown-Street, adjoining the New Dutch-Church Ground, being one half of the Ground, commonly known by the Name of Barberie's Garden, containing about 100 Feet Square, . . ."—
Ibid., May 14, 1753.
- Mar. 7 Although Mayor Holland asserts his claims to the profits of the several markets, as "Clerk of the Same," the common council leases the "Stalls and Standings" of the markets to Bartholomew Skaats (a goldsmith), for one year, from May 1, 1751, to May 1, 1752, for £106. At the same time, they lease to Skaats the "Docks of this City," for the same period, at £120, he giving security and agreeing to take 60 scow loads of mud and dirt out of the dock.
It is also ordered that he repair, at the city's expence, any damage to the docks, from time to time, as directed by the alderman and common council man of any ward.—M. C. C., V: 325-26. Skaats had been lessee of the dock and slips since April 26, 1740.—Ibid., IV: 488; see also ibid., V: 19, 83, 112, 140, 148, 168, 188, 191, 218.
Mayor Holland renewed his contention the following year concerning his right to the rents from market leases.—Ibid., V: 358
(and ibid., Errata, VIII: 154). See also 1755 (ibid., V: 396); and 1754 (ibid., V: 441). After his death in 1756 (ibid., VI: 74), the common council appointed a committee, Jan. 25, 1757, to confer with his executors, in order "to Settle the fees of the stalls and Standings of the several Markets" received by him. The committee was empowered to commence legal action, if necessary, against them.—
Ibid., VI: 80. On April 1, 1760, a new committee was appointed, with powers extended to treat also with the executors of the late mayors John Cruger (Sr.) and Stephen Bayard, and with the present mayor (John Cruger, Jr.), for the same purpose.—Ibid., VI: 209. This committee was allowed to retain "M<sup>r</sup> Smith the Elder" as counsel.—Ibid., VI: 220. The executors of Mayor Holland having been sued by the city for the fees derived from liquor licences (ibid., VI: 190), the committee was able to report, on Sept.
18, 1761, that all the executors concerned, and the present mayor, were willing to pay to the city "All the Monies in their hands by them Respectively Received for Lycences to Tavern Keepers deducting one half of the Amount of what the said Stalls and Standings Sold for During their Respective mayoralty's." The committee advised accepting this offer, reserving the right to retain in future all the monies derived from the stalls and standings; unless an explanatory clause could be added to the charter, appropriating a sum not over £100 per annum for the use of the mayor, and the remainder for the use of the city. The common council accepted the report, and a committee was appointed to prepare the amendment to the charter, and solicit its adoption.—Ibid., VI: 262.
- A committee of the common council is chosen to inquire into the matter of rents due from brick-makers for brick kilns set up on the Commons, and is empowered to agree regarding the leasing of part of the Commons for brick kilns.—M. C. C., V: 325.
- The common council orders "that Every Merchant not born in this City who shall hereafter apply for the freedom thereof shall pay the Sum of five pounds."—M. C. C., V: 326. The native-born merchant was thus favoured; he was required to pay only £3.—Ibid., IV: 97. See also April 24, 1691.
- 8 The committee of Trinity vestry was "Appointed [see Jan. 10] to Agree with Dirck Dey about the Street between the Church's Lands and the said Dirck Dye's Land" reports that it has "Agreed with him that he Leave fifteen feet and the Church Twenty five feet for a Publick Street And that he pay to the Church Sixty pounds by the first of May next."—Trin. Min.
(MS.). The agreement, which is entered in these minutes, shows that a street 40 ft. wide is to run from Broadway to the North River. The original MS. of this agreement between the wardens and vestrymen of Trinity Church and Dirck Dey is preserved in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc., with MSS. relating to churches. It is dated Feb. 26, 1750 (1751), and has reference to the opening of Partition St. (so named from its location), which is the present Fulton St. (named in 1816) west of Broadway.— See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1000. For the cession of this street, with others, by Trinity Corporation to the city, see Sept.
18, 1761.
- "The Committee Appointed to Petition the Corporation for the Water Lots behind Trinity Church" Reports that, "in order to prefer such Petition they had the Said Land Surveyed and a Draft made; and sent for Mess<sup>rs</sup> Bayard Schuyler and Roosevelt who have Lotts Bounding upon the Churches Load, and who they were Informed Claimed some part of what was Conceivd the Churches Load, That M<sup>r</sup> Bayard Declared he was Satisfied with the Line as the Fence now Stands, But M<sup>r</sup> Schuyler and M<sup>r</sup> Roosevelt Insisting that by the said Draft they shall Loose three feet of Ground of Each Lot, and that they had a right to the said three foot and the Committee having Conceivd it would be very Difficult and Expensive for the Church to Appertain [ascertain] their Right to the said three foot of Ground, thought it proper to Agree that they and the Owners of the Lotts to the Northward should take in the said three foot and that a Fricke or Red line be made in the aforesaid Draft three feet to the Southward of the present Black line Beginning at Lombard Street and Running to Low Water Mark be the Division Line or North Bounds of the Churches Lands and the South Bounds of those that Claim Land to the Northward. . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See March 19.
- 10 The prisoners in the city ball appeal for fuel, having not even "one Stick to burn," and having been without fire for several days. Unless relief is forthcoming they must "unavoidably perish in this Place."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 11, 1751. On March 16, they addressed a letter of thanks, in verse, to all their benefactors.
—Ibid., March 18, 1751.
- 18 Parliament passes "An act for regulating the commencement of the year; and for correcting the calendar now in use." The act was introduced in the house of lords in an eloquent address by Lord Chesterfield on Feb. 25, 1751, and seconded by the learned Earl of Macclesfield. For the report of their speeches, see The Parliamentary Hist. of Eng. (1813), XIV: 979-92; also Chester-field's Letters to his son, III: letter No. 215. The act explains that, in England, "the legal supputation of the year," which heretofore began March 25 (the date of the Feast of the Annunciation), has been "attended with divers inconveniences," some of which are described. It states that the Julian Calendar, heretofore in use, has been discovered to be erroneous. This error is explained, as well as the confusion which would arise if not remedied. A corrected system has already been adopted by almost all other nations of Europe; and, as stated, the proposed change "will be of general convenience to merchants and other persons corresponding with other nations and countries, and tend to prevent mistakes and disputes in or concerning the dates of letters, and accounts, if the like correction be received and established in his Majesty's dominions."
- It is there enacted that the old "supputation" shall not be made use of after the last day of Dec., 1751; "and that the first day of January next following . . . shall be reckoned . . . to be the first day of the year" 1752; and the first day of January

1751 next after that shall be accounted the first day of the year 1753, Mar. and so on. January first shall be the beginning of each new year. 18 After Jan. 1, 1752, "the several days of each month shall go on, and be reckoned and numbered in the same order; and the feast of Easter, and other moveable feasts thereon depending, shall be ascertained according to the same method, as they now are," until Sept. 2, 1752, inclusive. The "natural day next immediately following" Sept. 2, 1752, shall be "called, reckoned and accounted" to be Sept. 14, "omitting for that time only the eleven intermediate nominal days of the common calendar," and the days that follow shall be in numerical order from Sept. 14, "according to the order and succession of days now used in the present calendar."

The act further provides that "all acts, deeds, writings, notes and other instruments of what nature or kind soever, whether ecclesiastical or civil, publick or private, which shall be made, executed or signed, upon or after the said first day of January . . . [1752], shall bear date according to the said new method of supputation." The two fixed terms of St. Hilary and St. Michael (Michaelmas), in England, and also all courts are to be held on the same nominal days. All "meetings and assemblies of any bodies politick or corporate, either for the election of any officers or members thereof, or for any such officers entering upon the execution of their respective offices, or for any other purpose whatsoever, which . . . are to be holden and kept on any fixed or certain day of any month, . . . shall . . . after the said second day of September, be holden and kept upon or according to the same respective nominal days and times . . . [as now], but which shall be computed according to the said new method of numbering and reckoning the days of the calendar . . . ; that is to say, eleven days sooner than the respective days whereon the same are now holden and kept."

For continuing and preserving the calendar, or method of reckoning, and computing the days of the year in the same regular course, as near as may be, for all time to come, it is further enacted that every hundredth year, beginning with 1800 (1800, 1900, 2100, 2200, 2300, etc.), except only every fourth hundredth year (of which the year 2000 shall be the first), "shall not be esteemed or taken to be bissextile or leap years, but shall be taken to be common years," of 365 days and no more. The years 2000, 2400, 2800, and every other fourth hundred year, from the year 2000 inclusive, and also all leap years as at present reckoned, shall for the future be esteemed leap years, consisting of 366 days, "in the same sort and manner as is now used with respect to every fourth year."

The act prescribes that Easter and the other movable feasts are to be observed according to the new calendar. Annexed to the act are tables and rules which shall be prefixed to future editions of the Book of Common Prayer of the Church of England instead of the calendar, tables, and rules at present prefixed to it.

The act is not to be construed to extend, accelerate, or anticipate the time of payment of any rent, annuity, or sum of money, which shall become payable by virtue of any custom or agreement now subsisting, or which shall be made, signed, sealed, or entered into, before Sept. 14; nor shall it accelerate the time of the delivery of goods, the commencement or expiration of any lease or demise of land, etc., or of any contract, or the time of attaining the age of 21 years, or the expiration of apprenticeship. The same respective natural days and times when these and other things are appointed to be performed shall prevail, until the full number of years or days shall elapse as prescribed in such agreement, law, etc.—24 Geo. II, Chap. 23; Pickering, Statutes at Large (Cambridge, Eng., 1765), XX: 186, 368. See, further, Sept. 3, Nov. 16, 1752.

The last issue of the N. Y. Jour. located (No. 1017, misprinted 017) bears this date.—Early Newspapers, II: 421; Brigham, "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proc. (1917), 504. See July 30.

19 In a petition to the common council, Trinity corporation seeks a grant of the water lots fronting the church land, described as the "Lands fronting their School house Church yard and Ground from the Rear of their Lott into the North River," 200 feet beyond low-water mark, except the strip 60 feet wide from high- to low-water mark agreed to be released to Nicholas Roosevelt. The petition is granted, with a yearly rental of threepence per foot, and a committee is appointed to examine the premises and have them surveyed.—M. C. C., V: 328. See Feb. 15, 1703, for an earlier grant.

On March 22, the committee reported that it had met a committee of Trinity and proposed that the city release a strip of 85 instead of 60 feet to Nicholas Roosevelt, "in order to make the Ship at the End of Thomas Street more usefull and Convenient for the Publick." This the Trinity committee agreed to, with the understanding that the city would make, at its own expense, "an Ell at the end of that Slip;" and this, the committee of the common council agreed, ought to be done "whenever the said Slip is Carried out." The report recommended that one of the covenants in the grant should be that Trinity "Leave a Street [later Greenwich St.] along high water mark," 40 feet wide; and also that, at a distance of 135 feet from that Street (which would be along the line of low-water mark), "another Street [later Washington St.] be Left," 40 feet wide and parallel to the first mentioned street; and, thirdly, that, at a distance of 200 feet beyond low-water mark, "another Street [West St.] . . . be Left," 40 feet wide and parallel to the first two streets mentioned, to be taken out of the 200 feet, "according to a Draft or plan made by Mr Francis Marschall." This report was approved by the common council, who ordered that the draft of a deed be prepared accordingly.—Ibid., V: 330-31. On May 24, the draft was presented and approved, and ordered to be engrossed and executed.—Ibid., V: 337; City Grants, Liber C: 235; Man. Com. Coun. (1870), 760. Maerschall's plan, A. Pl. 3-b, Vol. III, dated Feb. 18, 1751, is probably the "Draft or plan" here referred to.

"It is ordered by the common council "that no Top sell [top-sail] or Sea Vessells whatsoever Do Lay along the Peer of the Great Dock between the first of March and the first of December every or any Year Unless such Vessel shall pay the Sum of Ten shillings for every Day they shall Lay there for the use of this Corporation."—M. C. C., V: 327. Cf. dockage rates of March 22, 1684 (p. v.), at which time no extra dockage fee was required unless the ship "Lye Above one month."

Daniel O'Brien advertises a "Stage-Boat," to carry passengers and goods between New York and Philadelphia, which "shall attend at the late Col. Moore's Wharf in New York." The route is "to Mrs. John Cluck's, near Amboy Ferry, . . . where there is a Wharf, Store-house, and good Entertainment," and whence a "Stage-Waggon" proceeds "to Borden's Town, where there is another Stage Boat . . . to proceed directly to Philadelphia." He gives times of departure, etc., and adds: "as Passages this Way are generally performed in 48 Hours less than they can be by Way of New Brunswick, it is hoped the Undertaking will meet with the Encouragement it deserves."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 25, 1751. Cf. Oct. 13, 1750. For earlier references to the Amboy route, see April 3, 1738.

Charles Dutens, near the Long Bridge, sells "Diamond Rings, Mourning, Fancy, Enamel'd, or Motto do. [ditto] Stone Buttons set in Gold, Ear-Rings, Solitaires, Stay-Hooks, Seals or Lockets . . . He also sets Rubies, Sapphires, Diamonds, Emeralds, or any other kind of Stones, after the newest Fashion. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 25, 1751.

A teacher's advertisement reads: "Reading and Writing, in Dutch, French, and Latin, with Arithmetick and Geography, are carefully taught, and due Attendance given, by Reinhold Jan Klockhoff, at the House of Mr. Bratt, wherein the Widow of Mr. J. P. Zenger [Aug. 4, 1753] now lives, upon Golden-Hill, in New York; also sewing and darning, or other Needle Work, carefully taught, by the Wife of the said Klockhoff."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 1, 1751. Such instruction was quite common (see Oct. 26, 1747; Aug. 6, 1750, Nov. 6, 1752; May 31, 1756, and Jan. 30, 1758).

A house and lot on "Golden-Hill" are advertised for sale. The lot fronts on "Orange-street," and the rear is on "Rider-street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 8, 1751. Valentine explains that Golden Hill was the name of a "place of public resort, in early times called Vandercliff's Orchard," which was "situated along the East River, in the vicinity of the present John Street, at its junction with Cliff street." He says that "This tavern was, for over fifty years, one of the most frequented suburban houses of entertainment;" also that "It gave the name to a part of the present John street, which for many years was called Golden Hill."—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 467. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 966. For later references to property on Golden Hill, see N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 13, 1753; ibid., Dec. 22, 1755; ibid., Jan. 17, 1757; ibid., Sept. 18, 1758. The houses mentioned in the last-named advertisement are "on the south side of Nassau-Street." Still later mentions are found in The New-York Gazetteer, and the Country

Mar. 19

25

"

Apr. 1

8

19

- 1751 Journal, June 2, 1784 (in N. J. Hist. Soc.); and in The New-York
 Ap. 8 Directory of 1786, as a familiar street address.
- 12 The provincial council receives letters from Gov. Wentworth of New Hampshire, Gov. Ogle of Maryland, Gov. Hamilton of Pennsylvania, and Gov. Phips of Massachusetts, regarding a proposed meeting of commissioners and Indians at Albany in June.—Cal. Coun. Min., 379. On May 24, a letter from Gov. Hamilton stated that he declined to have anything to do with the meeting, but would send a present (ibid., 379); and this he did (ibid., 380). See 1751.
- " The brigantine "Sarah" arrives from St. Christophers with small-pox on board, and quarantine measures are taken.—Cal. Coun. Min., 378. On June 3, the common council paid John de Lamontaine 11s. "for his Trouble and Expenses in Carrying a Doctor on Board the Brig Sarah . . . then Laying Quarantine at Bedlows Island which Lately Arrived from St Kitts and had the Small pnx on Board of her."—M. C. C., V: 338.
- 22 Thomas Kean (see Jan. 21) advertises his farewell performance, his purpose being to "follow his Employment of Writing." He states that "Mr. Murray having agreed to give him a Night, clear of all Expenses, for his Half of the Cluaths, Scenes, &c. belonging to the Play House," he will, on April 29th, play the tragedy of "Richard the Third," to which will be added the farce "The Beau in the Sudds."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 22, 1751. A change of program was advertised on the 29th.—Ibid., April 29, 1751. Kean and Murray, we may conclude, were equal partners.
- 26 The common council orders "that all and Every the Tanners of this City Du fence Round the Severall Tan Pitts and flatts [vats—see Nov. 5, 1745] at the North Side of the fresh Water."—M. C. C., V: 335.
- 29 . . . this Day, a great Cricket Match is to be play'd on our Commons, by a Company of Londoners against a Company of New-Yorkers."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 29, 1751. The game was played for "a considerable Wager," there being 11 players on each side, and "according to the London Method; and those who got most Notches in two Hands, to be the Winners." The New Yorkers won by a total score of 167 to 80.—Ibid., May 6, 1751.
- " Benjamin Pain announces that he has removed from his tavern on Cruger's wharf to the house where Capt. Roddam lived in Broadway, and has opened the "Gentleman's Coffee House and Tavern."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr. 29, 1751. This tavern was also mentioned in the advertisement of one Thomas Gregg in the N. Y. Merc., May 27, 1754.
- May 6 "Last week as some Workmen were digging down the Bank of the North-River, just back of the English Church, in order to build a Still-House, a Stone-Wall was discovered between four and five Feet thick, near eight Feet under ground and is supposed to have been the Breast-Work of a Battery, tho' we can't learn that the oldest Men living amongst us, know any Thing of such a Battery being there, which affords some Matter of Speculation to the Curious here."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 6, 1751. This wall probably belonged to the north-west blockhouse or bastion of the old wall.—Ref. No. 18 on the Miller Plan (Pl. 23-a, Vol. I). The still-house belonged to Thomas Vatar, 5, 1755. See also A. Pl. 3-b, Vol. III (drawn in Feb. 1751), which shows the site of the still-house, back of Trinity Church. For "North-west Blockhouse," see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945, where an error has been made in designating the ruined wall as "Oyster Pasty Mount." The same error was made in Man. Com. Coun. (1869), 851-52.
- 13 "An number of likely Negro Slaves, lately imported in the Sloop Wolf, directly from Africa," are advertised "To be sold at Publick Vendue, on Friday the 17th Instant, at 10 o'clock in the Morning, at the Meal Market."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 13, 1751. This was at the corner of Wall and Pearl Sts.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959.
- " William Anderson, a tailor, announces that he has removed from Broad St. to the sign of the "Hand & Shears," in Crown St., near the New Dutch Church, "in the House where the French Tavern was lately kept."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 13, 1751. This appears to be the only reference of record to this tavern.
- 16 The provincial council issues a warrant to Martice van Dyck for taking care of cannon, etc. at Red Hook.—Cal. Coun. Min., 379.
- 21 Oliver de Lancy's encroachments on the Common Lands at "Bloemendall" having been appraised at £3 per acre, which he has agreed to pay, a deed is executed to him, after surveys.—M. C. C., V: 250, 287, 306-7, 333, 337, 354.
- "Deputies of the Unitas Fratrum" (Moravians) write the governor of their intention of building a church in this city.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 621-22; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 596. For location, see June 16.
- 24 On receiving news of the death of the Prince of Wales, the provincial council orders a change in the prayer for the royal family to be announced by proclamation.—Cal. Coun. Min., 379. See May 28, June 2.
- " It is ordered by Trinity vestry "That the Committee for Building the Chappell of Ease [St. George's] have the Stone work of the Steeple Carried up it's proper Height."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Oct. 3. It is further ordered on this date that "Coll<sup>d</sup> Robinson have the Church put in Mourning," because of "the Melancholly News of the Death of his Late Royall Highness [Frederick] the Prince of Wales."—Ibid.. See June 2.
- 28 William Bull arrives by ship from South Carolina with six sachems of the Catawba Indians, in order to accompany the governor of New York to Albany to meet the Six Nations of Indians there, and conclude a league of friendship with them.—Cal. Coun. Min., 379; Upcott Coll. in N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 221. See June 28.
- June 2 A day of mourning is observed throughout the province, "for the Death of his Royal Highness Frederick Prince of Wales."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 3 and 10, 1751. See May 24 and 28.
- 3 "Whereas the noted Horse & Cart Inn, in New-York, having lately been very much balked to the great Disappointment of Numbers of Persons from New-England that used to frequent that House: This is to assure all Gentlemen and others, that they may now find the best of Entertainment for themselves, and Horses; by their humble Servant, George Edmonds." Edmonds also advertises "Horses and Chairs to be Let."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 3, 1751. See July 30, 1750; March 23, 1752.
- 16 The corner-stone of the first Moravian Church in New York (see May 23) is laid by Rev. Owen Rice on the south side of Fair St., between William and Dutch Sts. (now 106-108 Fulton St.). This church, which was a small frame building occupying two lots of ground, was dedicated June 18, 1752, by Bishop Spangenberg. This remained for nearly 80 years the sole Moravian place of worship.—Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches, 277; Smith, The City of N. Y. in 1789, 158. It was demolished in 1829.—See Aug. 13, 1829. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 930.
- 28 The conference with the Indians begins in Albany. On this day, Gov. Clinton, who is in attendance, orders that a proclamation be issued forbidding the sale or distribution of rum to the Indians.—Cal. Coun. Min., 380. For a digest of the proceedings there, which Clinton reported to the provincial council on July 15, see ibid., 380-81.
- July 1 An advertisement of this date states: "Mr. John Zenger, Printer in this City [see Oct. 14, 1734 at seq.], being lately deceased and leaving an Person qualified to carry on his business: This is to give Notice, that the Printing Press and Materials lately occupied by him, will be exposed to Sale at publick Vendue, on Tuesday the 30th of this Instant July [q.v.], at the Dwelling-House of the Deceased.—The Press is esteemed a good One; & much of the large Letters in good Order."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 1, 1751.
- 5 Col. William Johnson gives reasons to the provincial council for refusing to act any longer as Indian agent. He is asked to continue for the present, and consents, but refuses to be sworn of the council. On the 10th, a royal mandamus was received appointing him to the council, and he was sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 381.
- 29 A subscription course in natural philosophy and mechanics, with experiments, by Lewis Evans, is advertised to be held, beginning Aug. 5, at the home of Rev. Ebenezer Pemberton in Broadway. Recent discoveries in electricity form part of the subject.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 29, 1751. Evans was the author of the important map of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, etc., engraved in Philadelphia, and published in 1749 (see Feb. 27, March 6 and 13, 1749).
- 30 John Chambers is appointed second justice of the supreme court in place of Frederick Philipse, deceased, and, next day, is sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 381.
- " According to the published notice on July 1 (q.v.), the printing press and type of the N. Y. Jour., until recently published by

- 1751 John Zenger, (see Nov. 21, 1748), "lately deceased," are to be sold at auction on this date.—N. Y. Gaz., July 1, 1751.
- 11 Aug. The council at Whitehall orders that additional instructions be drawn up for the governour at New York, in view of the "great disputes" that have arisen between the governour and the assembly, and on account of the encroachments that "have been made by the Assembly on His Majestys Prerogative by wresting from the Governour several of the executive Parts of Government, which were vested in him by His Majestys Commission."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 727. For these instructions, see June 3, 1752. Regarding the growth of the independent spirit in the colonies prior to the Revolution, see Becker's "History of Political Parties in the Province of N. Y., 1760-1776," in Univ. of Wisconsin Bulletin (No. 286), History Series, Vol. II, No. 1.
- 12 A new transportation line is advertised by Fretwell Wright, John Predmore, and James Wilson to operate between Philadelphia and New York. A "Stage-Boat" will "attend every Tuesday . . . at the Crooked Billet Wharf in Philadelphia;" will proceed to Burlington on that day, "and on Wednesday Morning a Stage-Waggon with a good Awning . . . will proceed to Obadiah Ayrs's, Inn keeper at Amboy Ferry . . . and on Thursday a Stage Passage Boat . . . will be ready to receive the Passengers or goods, & proceed directly to New York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 12, 1751. A similar line, by way of "Borden's Town," was advertised on June 4, 1753 (p. v.).
- 13 Lawrence le Tellier is appointed city surveyor.—M. C. C., V: 343.
- " The common council appoints a committee "to View Regulate Lay out and pave all the Streets in the North ward" and "all and Every the Streets in Montgomerie Ward."—M. C. C., V: 343, 358. For further references to the regulation of streets in the North Ward, see ibid., V: 191; VI: 17-18; VII: 280-81; and, in the Montgomerie Ward, see Sept. 11, 1744; and March 20, 1747.
- 19 "Just imported, and to be sold on board the Snow New-York, Capt. Gifford, from Bristol, a parcel of likely Welsh Servants, of both Sexes; the Men mostly Tradesmen: Millers, Masons, Taylors, and Coopers, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 19, 1751. See June 19, 1748. The importation of white servants and mechanics from England and Wales, as well as negro slaves from Africa, is a prominent feature of this year's news in New York.—See also ibid., June 24, and Dec. 23, 1751.
- 23 The common council orders "that M<sup>r</sup> Oliver De Lancy have Leave to Lay out a Road all round Inclenlen Bergh of such Breadth as the Committee hereinafter mentioned shall agree to and Direct for the Convenience of Riding Round the same."—M. C. C., V: 346. See also "Inclenberg" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 966.
- 26 John Tremain advertises his business of cabinet-maker, "at the House of Mr. Norwood, near the Long Bridge." He makes "all Sorts of Cabinet-Work, such as Chest-of-Drawers, Desks, Book-Cases, Clock-Cases, Dinog and Tea-Tables, plain or scollopt; Tea-Chests, Tea-Boards, Dressing-Boxes, Bedsteads, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 26, 1751.
- 28 Richard Bradley, the attorney- and advocate-general, dies.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 2, 1751. He was succeeded on Nov. 2, 1752 (p. v.) by William Kemp.
- Sept. "We have Advice from Halifax in Nova-Scotia, that there is such a number of New-Yorkers got to that Place, since the first Settlement of it, as will nearly fill one of the largest Streets in the Town, and that they are about to form themselves . . . into a Society or Company, by the Name of the Free New-York Fishery Company at Nova Scotia; and that all that shall hereafter come there from New-York, provided they come as one of King David's Soldiers, (see 1 Sam. XXII Ch[hap]. 2 Ver.) Shall be permitted to join them, and draw Shares according to the Stock they bring. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 9, 1751.
- " "Newcastle Coals," just imported, are advertised to be sold on board the ship that brought them.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 9, 1751.
- 11 James Alexander writes as follows from New York to Cadwallader Colden regarding mail received by a recently arrived ship from London: "I sent one of the prentices to attend the reading of the Letters off at the Coffee house, for you & me, he came & told me that half the Letters were carried to the one Coffee house & half to the other, but none were read off where he was, wherefore he went to the other & heard one was read off for me, and that Some body had taken it, I Sent him back to Search the Letters to See if that any for you remained—he found none but Learned that Sergeant Young's Son had taken mine whereupon I Sent there & got it—This way of Dividing the Letters Exposes them to be Lost much more than when together in one place—its what I Did not know of before, otherwise I Should have Sent one to Each Coffee house."—From the original letter with Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- "Whereas several evil-minded People, have at sundry Times broke down the Wall of the Jewish burying Ground, and very much damaged the Tomb Stones belonging thereto," notice is given by the elders that anyone caught getting over the wall, or doing any damage, will be prosecuted "with all the Regour of the Law."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 16, 1751.
- "By several private Letters from London come in Capt.-Troup [sic], we have Advice, that the Honourable Robert Hunter Morris, Esq; Chief Justice of the Province of New-Jersey, is appointed Lieutenant Governor of this Province."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 30, 1751.
- "The Committee Appointed to take Care of the Building of the Charity School House Reported that the Contractors had Completed the Building Pursuant to their Contract."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Feb. 23, 1750, regarding the fire which destroyed the former structure. For its location, see Nov. 7, 1748. In the great fire of 1776, which destroyed the church, the schoolhouse was again consumed.—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 30, 1776.
- " It is ordered by Trinity vestry that "the Society's School-master" may keep his school in the school-room of "the New Charity School House" till further order.—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- " It is also ordered that the committee "for Carrying on the Building of the Chappell of Ease be at Liberty to Provide Materials and finish the Building of the said Chappell and Steeple Completely."—ibid. See May 28. For the consecration of the chapel, see July 3, 1752; regarding the chapel bell, see Nov. 9, 1752.
- 7 A house and lot in "Vandewater's Street, in Montgomerie-Ward, near the new Lutheran Church" is offered for sale.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 7, 1751. The foregoing is interesting as showing that this street existed, at this early date, and was called by this name.—Cf. Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1011. For the site of this church, erected in 1750, see ibid., III: 929; March 22, 1750.
- 9 The Rev. Gualterius Dubois, senior pastor of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church in New York, dies in his 81st year; his remains were interred in the Old Dutch Church (in Garden St.).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 14, 1751.
- 25 The provincial council receives a copy of a royal order creating Prince George Prince of Wales.—Cal. Coun. Min., 382.
- Nov. The provincial council orders that acts of parliament relating to naval stores, bills of credit, and potash, be published in the N. Y. Gaz.—Cal. Coun. Min., 385. In 1752, Henry de Forest, the printer, published in New York a tract, now extremely scarce, on the subject of colonial currency, entitled A Caveat Against Injustice or an Enquiry into the evil Consequences of a Fluctuating Medium of Exchange . . ., By Philoanonomos (Roger Sherman).—See catalogue of Brinley sale.
- 11 Peter de Joncourt conducts a tavern "next Door to the Merchant's Coffee-House."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 11, 1751. For the earlier history of this house, see July 18, 1737.
- 20 Robert Cholmondeley receives a patent for the reversion of the office of surveyor and auditor-general of the provinces of North America. A certified copy of this is of record in this province under date of May 21, 1757.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 680.
- 21 A royal warrant is issued to Gov. Clinton, commanding him to appoint William Kemp attorney-general.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 599.
- 25 An act is passed "for Vesting in Trustees" the sum of £3,443:18, "raised by way of Lottery for erecting a Colledge within this Colony." It states that this sum has been raised but is considered insufficient "without further Additions to answer the Said end of Erecting compleating and Establishing a Colledge," and that it is necessary to appoint trustees for "the Setting at Interest" the sum already raised, and "Receiving the Contributions and Donations of Such persons as may be Charitably disposed to be benefactors and Encouragers of So laudable an undertaking." The act names as trustees "the eldest Councilor residing in this Colony, the Speaker of the General Assembly, and the Judges of the Supreme Court the Mayor of the City of New York and the

